+ New Repub 54:350 My 9 '28 1300w

"A volume as amusing as it is illuminating. The title is the formula with which the interlocutor invariably opened the comic session; and from the moment the reader opens the book he witnesses one of the shows of what now seems a remote past. Did we say one show? Many, rather; or, better still, a gigantic assemblage of all the famous minstrels of the past, with their most famous songs (words and music), and much of their punning and patter; a huge synthetic entertainment at a single sitting."

+ N Y Times p6 My 6 '28 1300w

Reviewed by Robert Edwards

N Y World p9m My 20 '28 500w

"A book that will fascinate every one who has childhood memories of minstrel shows." Herschel Brickell

+ No Am 226:adv Ag '28 80w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:487 O '28

Pratt p29 autumn '28

PATERSON, JAMES. History and development of road transport. (Pitman's transport lib.) 118p il $1.75 (6s) Pitman

656 Transportation—History. Roads—History. Vehicles—History [28-19538]

"Brief outline of the development of roads, road vehicles, and the business of transportation, with chief attention to England."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

---

N Y New Tech Bks 12:48 O '27

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:392 Jl '28

Times [London] Lit Sup p651 S 22 '27 70w

PATON, HERBERT JAMES. Good will; a study in the coherence theory of goodness. (Lib. of philosophy) 448p $5 Macmillan [16s Allen & U.]

171 Ethics. Good and evil. Will 27-18529

"The general philosophical presuppositions of Mr. Paton's study of The Good Will are those of the traditional Oxford idealism of the nineteenth century, considerably modified, in more recent times, chiefly under the influence of Mr. J. A. Smith, by strong infiltrations derived partly from Bergson, but still more largely from the contemporary Italian idealism of Croce and Gentile. He describes, with a minimum of technical apparatus and a wealth of concrete detail, the life of the human spirit on its various levels of moral development, and the values, positive and negative, therein involved."—Int J Ethics

PATON, H. J.—Continued

"It is scarcely possible to come away from the main chapters of the book without feeling that Mr. Paton has kept his feet pretty solidly on the ground of actual human experience; that he possesses a sound insight into the realities of human nature, and a fine and discriminating sense for genuine moral values; and that he has helped one to understand more fully and more deeply, in its fundamental unity amid manifold complexity, the concrete nature of the good life. But Mr. Paton's treatment of fundamental problems of theory is a rather different story. At least I must confess that I have myself found this aspect of Mr. Paton's study decidedly unsatisfactory." R. M. Blake

+ — Int J Ethics 38:229 Ja '28 2050w

"On the whole the book is an interesting statement of an idealistic interpretation of the Good, presented clearly and effectively." Orlie Pell

+ J Philos 25:193 Mr 29 '28 800w

"Mr Paton tends to fall between two stools. He is not always simple enough for the general reader, and he is sometimes too simple for the scholar. But, whatever be his success at it, he is undoubtedly on the right lines in his attempt to come down from the academic platform and tell the so-called man in the street what his human nature means, what it is to will, and what it is to have a good will."

+ — Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 30 '28 720w

PATRICK, DIANA, pseud. (MRS DESEMEA [NEWMAN] WILSON). Call it a day! 276p $2 Dutton [7s 6d Hutchinson]
28-4074

A playwright who has married slightly beneath him, finds as he rises in the world a more cultured mistress. His humbly loving wife decides to leave him for his own good. Since his mistress forsakes him simultaneously for quite the opposite reason, the playwright hastens after his departing wife and overtakes her just in time.

"A novel bearing all the marks of having been written for the traditional English shop girl, but which is so extraordinarily underscored that one wonders whether even a shop girl in love could find it realistic."

— Boston Transcript p2 F 18 '28 150w

N Y Times p9 Ja 15 '28 600w

"'Call It a Day' is by far her best novel and, aside from Rosaleen, contains characterizations much more complex than are usual with her."

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:724 Mr 31 '28 300w

"[The story] contains a sufficiency of incident and some clever character studies."

Times [London] Lit Sup p594 S 1 '27 180w

PATTERSON, EDWIN WILHITE. Insurance commissioner in the United States; a study in administrative law and practice; with a foreword by Felix Frankfurter. (Harvard studies in administrative law) 589p $6 Harvard univ. press

368.91 Insurance law—United States. Administrative law—United States 27-12588

"This volume is the first of a new series of Harvard Studies in Administrative Law. The organization, personnel, functions, scope of administrative control, methods of control and amenability to external control of the state departments of insurance are considered in order."—Ann Am Acad

"The book is a mine of hitherto uncollected material illustrative of major problems in the field of administrative law. . . The book is of permanent value, quite irrespective of the incessant flux of insurance legislation and it will be of continuing significance in focusing attention on a neglected phase of public regulation." L. D. White

Am Pol Sci R 22:471 My '28 620w

"It is a remarkably able summary and criticism of the forty-eight state departments of insurance based on an exhaustive study of statutory enactments, judicial decisions, departmental rulings and actual practice. Professor Patterson presents a clear-cut study of one of the most outstanding recent developments in American legal history, namely, the application and enforcement of law through administrative agencies rather than through the ordinary courts." I. L. Pollock

+ Ann Am Acad 135:183 Ja '28 90w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:441 O '28

PATTERSON, FRANCES TAYLOR. Scenario and screen. 232p il $2 Harcourt

791.4 Moving pictures. Moving picture plays
28-8163

"The author of this volume is an instructor in photoplay composition, and her approach to the subject is essentially pedagogic. There are chapters dealing with the story, the director, the producer and the camera and all the other factors which go to make up the complicated machinery of the industry."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

Booklist 25:62 N '28

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p41 Ap 15 '28 130w

"It is a very handy little technical book, but it is also written with imagination and with a pleasantly light touch."

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 19 '28 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p62 My '28

Cleveland Open Shelf p101 S '28

R of Rs 78:adv29 Jl '28 60w

St Louis 26:354 N '28

Wis Lib Bul 24:189 Je '28

PAUL, CHARLES HOWARD, and BENNETT, CHARLES STUART. Methods and plant for excavation and embankment. 328p il $4 McGraw

624.152 Excavation. Embankments 27-19134

"Based on the extensive records of excavating machinery performance and costs kept by the engineers of the Miami Conservancy District, the authors, both of whom were members of the district's construction forces, have produced a volume on earth and rock excavation. Beginning with scraper and elevating grader work, they take up power shovel work, dragline excavator work, cableway and power scraper work, hydraulic sluicing, dredging and transportation of excavated material."—Eng N

Booklist 24:196 F '28

"Primarily this book is a notable contribution of performance data and cost records. Its descriptions of machines and processes are merely supplementary, although of course highly necessary, to the figures of outputs and costs. The authors have done well in the way of illustration and have furnished an adequate index."

+ Eng N 99:807 N 17 '27 350w

N Y New Tech Bks 12:48 O '27

PAXTON, MARY. River gold. (Lantern bks. for young people) 251p il $2 Bobbs
28-5167

A story of present day pirates on the Missouri river, near Kansas City, of two small boys, aged twelve and five, who hunt for buried gold with their sailor friend, Jud, and of a kind old Indian who helps the boys too.

Boston Transcript p4 Mr 28 '28 220w

"Here is a story that will thrill any boy, and most girls, to the heart and keep them fascinated to the end."

+ N Y Times p14 Mr 11 '28 150w

PAXTON, TACY STOKES. Tellings. 177p il $2 Doubleday, Doran
28-19622

"Tacy Stokes Paxton is a Kansas woman. She decided to become a writer after rearing a family of children. She deliberately went to a school where writers are trained and learned the writing craft as she would learn interior decoration, or cooking—scientifically. And the first fruits of her go-getting as a novelist is this book, 'Tellings.' It is an unusual book. She has told the story of grown-up tragedy in the language of a child and also carefully keeping the viewpoint of a child, a most difficult job well done. More than that, she has a story to tell, a domestic story. And because it is seen through the child's eye, it is a sort of off-stage tragedy, with events often implied even though seen, because Mrs. Paxton always keeps the child narrator in character."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

"It would be easy merely to keep the child's dialect and tell a grown-up story, but to keep the dialect and the viewpoint, the limitation and the naïveté of childhood, is a most difficult task, and certainly Mrs. Paxton has achieved it well. She exhibits real skill in her technique." W: A. White
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 Ag 5 '28 420w

"Mrs. Paxton has by some magical combination of imagination and memory managed to create the very world at which seven years looks. It is a small world full of very confusing things, and curiously nobody seems ready to explain it to you. The beauty of Mrs. Paxton's method is that she never does explain."
+ Boston Transcript p10 Ag 8 '28 250w
Cleveland Open Shelf p122 N '28

"It is as charmingly and naturally done as such a thing can be." Laura Benet
+ N Y Evening Post p2 Jl 7 '28 100w

"'Tellings' is clever in its artlessness of writing, clever in its pointed and curving plot."
+ N Y Times p7 Jl 1 '28 980w

PAYNE, EDWARD F. Dickens days in Boston; a record of daily events. 274p il $5 Houghton
B or 92 Dickens, Charles 27-23560

The president of the Boston branch of the Dickens fellowship has gathered from various sources new material about the two memorable visits of Dickens to Boston, arranging the record in the form of a diary which covers every day of the two visits. The sources drawn upon include letters and diaries, magazines and newspapers, histories, biographies and books of reminiscence.

"Mr. Payne has made a tireless investigation of sources hitherto unexploited and has been in his presentation, extremely faithful to those sources. There is some slight conjectural matter admitted to his pages, but only such as seems entirely permissable and even necessary to the unity of his subject."
+ — Bookm 66:xlvi F '28 250w
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 Ja 29 '28 180w

"A volume that will delight the heart of every Dickens lover." E. F. Edgett
+ Boston Transcript p4 N 12 '27 1700w

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly
N Y Times p8 D 11 '27 820w

Reviewed by D: A. Robertson
N Y World p11m F 5 '28 500w
St Louis 26:48 F '28

"From the purely literary or historical point of view this book can scarcely be considered a work of great importance, for it contains nothing, or very little that was not perfectly well known before to all students and most lovers of the famous novelist. It throws no new light upon either the character or genius of Charles Dickens. But as it offers, in attractive and convenient shape, and in chronological order, a mass of contemporaneous records . . . not at everybody's immediate command, it will be a welcome addition to almost any bookshelf and revive fascinating memories."
+ — Sat R of Lit 4:557 Ja 28 '28 400w

"They seem remote. But they seem fresh and vivid and by no means steeped in antiquarian quaintness after one has looked over the pages of the book."
+ Springf'd Republican p10 N 5 '27 1450w

PAYNE, HENRY MACE. Undeveloped mineral resources of the South. 368p $5 Am. mining congress, 841 Munsey bldg., Washington, D.C.
557.5 Mines and mineral resources—United States 28-9661

"Dr. Payne first gathered together the information available from the United States Geological Survey, the several state geological surveys, the industrial agents of the many railroads, pieced together this information, and then by personal examination during a period of more that three years, has brought together in this volume what we believe to be a most complete survey of the mineral resources of thirteen Southern states, from Texas to Virginia."—Foreword

N Y New Tech Bks 13:37 Jl '28
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:460 O '28

PAYNTER, THOMAS CAMBORNE. Cannon law. 310p $2.50 (7s 6d) Longmans
28-7502

Of the Graustark school of fiction. An Englishman is sent to Szandria, a kingdom in the Caucasus, on a diplomatic mission. The Queen of the Szans is a young girl, half-English, who tries to be more than a figurehead in her country's quarrels both foreign and domestic. She holds out against absorption by Soviet Russia, and with a small loyal army courts destruction.

"There are hints of Oppenheim's mystery stories of international intrigue here. The real charm of the tale, however, lies in the wild, semi-barbaric atmosphere which maintains in parts of it and in the spirit of gallantry which pervades it."
+ Boston Transcript p3 Je 2 '28 200w

"If Mr. Paynter had not hesitated between the historical and the Ruritanian he might have written a good novel. But he was apparently unwilling to sacrifice the chance of a real live bogy; and, although we gather that his Bolshevists were very, very wicked and his heroes very, very good, we are not given enough evidence of either really to move us."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p470 Je 21 '28 110w

PAYNTER, THOMAS CAMBORNE. They sailed [2] on a Friday. 320p $2 Longmans
28-25358

Invited to call on a man he has heard of but never seen, John Alfrey arrives to find the man murdered. He learns of a connection between his uncle, a mysterious character up to no good in India, and the dead man. The latter has left for John an idol stolen from a Hindu temple. John sails for Calcutta, and the mischief begins.

"Poison, snakes, fever, murder, Bhagwan Dass and Behari Lal are among ingredients expertly blended by a more than competent narrator, who provides lifelike characters and settings as well as thrills." Will Cuppy
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p36 D 2 '28 100w

"For the most part, the book makes interesting reading, even though built of a fabric of obvious rococo. The adventures, particularly the later adventures, hold one's attention; and there are elements of harrowing suspense. But one suspects that the author is a little misty

PAYNTER, T: C.—Continued
about some of his basic facts, and particularly about the flora and fauna of remote tropical islands."

+ — N Y Times p50 D 2 '28 480w

Times [London] Lit Sup p968 D 6 '28 220w

PEABODY, JOSEPHINE PRESTON (MRS LIONEL SIMEON MARKS). Collected plays; with a foreword by George P. Baker. 790p $2.50 Houghton

812 28-2021

Contents: Fortune and men's eyes; Marlowe; The wings; The piper; The wolf of Gubbio; Portrait of Mrs W.

Booklist 24:276 Ap '28

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 F 19 '28 80w

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 28 '28 250w

Dial 84:344 Ap '28 60w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:216 Ap '28

Reviewed by J: H. Preston
Sat R of Lit 4:844 My 5 '28 530w

PEABODY, JOSEPHINE PRESTON (MRS LIONEL SIMEON MARKS). Collected poems; with a foreword by Katherine Lee Bates. 535p $2.50 Houghton

811 28-347

The volume contains Josephine Preston Peabody's collected poems as printed in The singing leaves, The book of the little past, The singing man, Harvest moon, earlier lyrics and idyls issued in The wayfarers and Fortune and men's eyes, with some poems hitherto uncollected.

Booklist 24:277 Ap '28

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 F 19 '28 80w

"Among the hitherto uncollected poems are some charming things that mirror the soul of the woman singing as a poet. No matter what the circumstances, she always found something to sing about and a reason for the singing." F. M.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 28 '28 550w

"It is a complete portrait of a woman that stands forth here—a woman who lived life well, intensely, and set it down in verse that is highly significant in her time. But whether much of it is significant for all time, I seriously doubt. She was a great personality, certainly!" J: H. Preston

Sat R of Lit 4:844 My 5 '28 580w

Wis Lib Bul 24:55 F '28

PEAKE, HAROLD JOHN EDWARD, and FLEURE, HERBERT JOHN. Peasants & potters. (Corridors of time) 152p il $2 Yale univ. press [5s Oxford]

901 Archeology. Civilization, Ancient. Pottery, Ancient 28-2125

Volume three of the Corridors of time series deals with the beginnings of agriculture and industry, the discovery of pottery, and the development of languages and racial types.

Booklist 24:243 Mr '28

Reviewed by Clark Wissler
Geog R 18:523 Jl '28 250w

"The work, though pedestrian in quality and expression, is creditably done, and the attractiveness of the book lies first in the open-mindedness of the authors, a virtue which can hardly be said to run riot in modern anthropology, and secondly in the gaiety and profusion of the illustrations." H. J. M.

+ — New Statesman 30:470 Ja 21 '28 210w

Times [London] Lit Sup p13 Ja 5 '28 100w

PEAKE, HAROLD JOHN EDWARD, and FLEURE, HERBERT JOHN. Priests & kings. (Corridors of time) 208p il $2 Yale univ. press [5s Oxford]

901 Civilization, Ancient. Kings and rulers 28-2124

Volume four of the Corridors of time continues the story of human progress thru the period of the rise of dynasties and an organized priesthood and the development of pottery, implements and tools.

Booklist 24:359 Je '28

"The little book affords an excellent conspectus of the chronology and achievements of many mighty kings, including Sargon, whose life was a romance. It also gives enlightening information regarding various races and their affiliations."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ap 21 '28 300w

"The series is well conceived, contains a wealth of fact, and will prove a useful set of handbooks for geographers, anthropologists, and historians." Clark Wissler

+ Geog R 18:524 Jl '23 230w

New Statesman 30:470 Ja 21 '28 210w

Times [London] Lit Sup p13 Ja 5 '28 100w

PEARCE, MARVIN JAMES. Modern automobile painting. 296p il $3 McKay

629.2 Automobiles—Painting 27-17766

A practical book on equipment, materials and methods for finishing automobiles with paint, varnish, enamel or lacquer.

Booklist 24:150 Ja '28

N Y New Tech Bks 12:48 O '27

PEARL, RAYMOND. Rate of living; being an account of some experimental studies on the biology of life duration. 185p il $3.50 Knopf [10s 6d Univ. of London press]

570 Life (biology). Vital statistics. Drosophilidae 28-834

From experiments largely with the fruit-fly —which lends itself to experimentation because it thrives under controlled conditions—Dr. Pearl has arrived at certain conclusions concerning the inheritance of longevity, the rate of living, and inherent vitality.

Booklist 24:313 My '28

"The publisher is to be commended for his enterprise in making genuine first-hand scientific work thus popularly available for those who really want to know what is going on in the laboratory." H. M. Parshley

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Ap 22 '28 400w

"It is a book that is worth reading and owning. It provokes questions and answers them. It is written in a manner that can satisfy the layman and the investigator. A series of investigations of the kind undertaken by Dr. Pearl and his students where conditions are controlled must yield results which in their far-reaching implications may cast light on the nature of human populations." Cecil Yampolsky

+ N Y Evening Post p5 Ag 11 '28 800w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:563 N '28

"The high value of the facts and ideas set forth in 'The Rate of Living' makes one wish that Dr. Pearl did not follow a practice which is unfortunately very common among American scientists—namely, the use of such complex phraseology that even the scientist spends an undue amount of energy in deciphering the meaning." Ellsworth Huntington

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:821 Ap 28 '28 850w

"This is not a book for light reading, and the lay reader will have to take the mathematics for granted. But he is recommended to persevere, not only on account of the significance of this work, but for the sheer interest he will derive from learning how biological research is done." Eldon Moore

+ Spec 140:503 Mr 31 '28 1100w

PEARSON, EDMUND LESTER. Five murders; with a final note on the Borden case. 299p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran

343 Murder. Crime and criminals 28-13761

Five stories of actual crime written with the author's accustomed skill, and a final postscript on the celebrated Borden case.

Booklist 25:55 N '28

"Contains interesting material, written in the brisk, lucid manner of Mr. Pearson's other books. When he is content simply to tell his story, Mr. Pearson has no peer in this country, at least when it comes to a good murder; but the dogmatic vehemence of the expression of his belief in capital punishment, and his disbelief in all forms of modern psychology continue to mar his work."

+ — Bookm 67:xvi Jl '28 120w

"Mr. Pearson's stories are all right if you like to read about murders. He sticks so close to the records—all this is history—that his style is cramped at times; you do not get the flare and invention of some fiction." W. D. Lane

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Ap 29 '28 880w

"In all these stories Mr. Pearson ably combines the arts of the reporter and of the commentator. He is not content to write a bald and unconvincing narrative, as Pooh Bah would call it, but he illuminates it with an artistic verisimilitude which is something more than merely corroborative detail. Furthermore he enlivens his pages with apposite digressions, with commentary, for instance upon the psychology and the philosophy of murder. His accounts of murders thereby become romantic essays as well as realistic chronicles." E. F. Edgett

+ Boston Transcript p3 Ap 21 '28 1200w

Reviewed by E. B. Barrett
N Y Evening Post p6 Je 9 '28 350w

N Y Times p20 S 16 '28 420w

Reviewed by E. C. Beckwith
N Y World p8m My 13 '28 280w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 225:adv Je '28 60w

Springf'd Republican p7f Je 17 '28 480w

PEARSON, EDMUND LESTER. Queer books. 298p il $3 Doubleday, Doran

814 American literature—History and criticism. Books and reading 28-27677

Among the queer books which Mr Pearson has unearthed and held up to a delighted sense of humor are temperance novels of seventy-five years ago, quaint and forgotten best-sellers, spread-eagle Independence day orations, stories of wronged and suffering maidens, books of doggerel poetry, manuals of genteel behavior, floral gift-books and annuals.

"Mr. Pearson has shown, in this volume, that he knows what he is talking about, and that he is able to talk about it so that others may share in the unalloyed delight which he finds in these queer books of the past. He has assembled here a mass of data that are not without value to the literary historian of America. But do not imagine for a moment that the author has attempted to write a book for collectors only. It is an entertaining volume for all readers, and it is evident that the author enjoyed every moment while he was writing it." G: H. Sargent

+ Boston Transcript p3 D 8 '28 650w

N Y Evening Post p8m N 17 '28 180w

"Throughout his book, Mr. Pearson combines his broad scholarliness with a keen interest in everything that makes up the life of his own day, and his humor flashes with a tonic brilliance over the queernesses of the past and the present. He is never superficial and never a wisecracker, and he writes always with distinction as well as with charm. The book is illustrated quaintly and well."

+ N Y Times p33 N 18 '28 600w

Sat R of Lit 5:436 D 1 '28 160w

PEASE, HOWARD. Jinx ship. 324p il $2 Doubleday, Doran

27-25541

The dark adventure that befell Ted Moran when he shipped as fireman aboard the tramp schooner "Congo" bound out of New York for Caribbean ports.

Booklist 24:212 F '28

" 'The Jinx Ship' is as well written as the 'Tattooed Man,' but it gives us no character as vivid and impressive as that of the mysterious tattooed cook. In 'The Jinx Ship' the characterization is good but none of it is especially memorable." H. H. Owen

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 N 20 '27 550w

"A tale which should raise the hair of any normal boy. There is nothing here to aid in forming a literary taste nor, on the other hand, seriously to hinder its development."

Sat R of Lit 4:558 Ja 28 '28 120w

PEATTIE, DONALD CULROSS, and PEATTIE, MRS LOUISE (REDFIELD). Up country; a story of the vanguard. 299p $2 (7s 6d) Appleton

28-4073

Brandon Calverly late of England, joins the colony at Charles Town with a bride found on shipboard. His plantation succeeds, he becomes rich, but society life and his wife's flirtations pall on him. He sells out and starts with wife and child for the western frontier. It is the time of the Revolution, and homesteading is made difficult by the war. Calverly and his daughter survive their hardy adventures and look to a happier day in their frontier home.

Boston Transcript p7 Mr 17 '28 380w

"A rather heavy-handed story. Nowhere does one quite achieve the conviction that the story and the people are real, but the book—for all that—is readable. It is an effort in imaginative reconstruction and in its way successful."

+ — Ind 120:285 Mr 24 '28 60w

"The story moves swiftly, with a steady flow of incident and a richly colored setting. The style has just that measure of impressionism which gives vitality without interfering with the movement of the narrative and the close linking of its picture. The story engages the emotional interest of the reader at the start and holds it at increasing tension until the end."

+ N Y Times p14 F 12 '28 450w

"This is a book difficult to review definitely, being neither very good nor very bad. While we read we are interested—and sometimes even to the point of being impressed by a more vivid description or more charming style. At the finish, however, any momentary enthusiasm is lost in the general sense of flatness and indifference. The work is sincere enough, but not very important."

+ — N Y World p11m Mr 18 '28 150w

" 'Up Country' begins as an historical romance should, continues as an historical novel might, and ends as a very bad melodrama does."

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:765 Ap 14 '28 80w

"Some of its many shifting scenes are sketchily portrayed but it reconstructs a section of pioneer American life and the primeval beauties of the 'up country' with a plausibility that sustains the reader's interest."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7f Jl 15 '28 200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p224 Mr 22 '28 110w

Wis Lib Bul 24:162 My '28

PEATTIE, MRS LOUISE (REDFIELD). Dagny. 260p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran
28-12653

Cheerful, busy, unselfish little Dagny is the Danish maid-of-all-work for Mrs Tavish, a young widow who is making a home for an uncle and two brothers. Alec, the elder brother, is infatuated with Dagny. Unknown to herself, she loves the younger one, Ben, who brings home for a visit a woman of sophisticated allure momentarily attracted by Ben's youth. During the visit the normal serenity of the household is shattered. The situation moves to a painful crisis of which the innocent Dagny is the key.

"The book is patently sentimental and as such should be shunned by those stern readers to whom pleasant sentimentality is anathema. But it is as fresh and crisp as the curtains at Emily's own kitchen window or the fluttering organdies of ladies at a garden party. And if one would not choose a costume in organdie for an enduring picture, at least it offers a colorful divertissement for a summer's afternoon."
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 My 27 '28 480w

"There have been so many 'good' novels written recently that it is increasingly hard to avoid indiscriminate commendation, but even with this in mind, 'Dagny' stands out among the best of them. It is classic in simple dignity of theme, and romantic in loveliness of expression." S. V. V. W.
+ Boston Transcript p3 My 29 '28 380w

" 'Dagny' is a sweet book: one of those quiet, hushed, fragile pieces of writing. A suburban book, if ever there was one. I do not say it in condemnation. Suburbs are pleasant; the more if you don't live in them yourself." J. M. March
N Y Evening Post p14 Ap 14 '28 170w

"As Mrs. Peattie has constructed her story all the tragedy of it seems hidden behind a shimmer of cute and darling phrases; of words dipped in powdered sugar, or detail inserted à la sugar tong into the narrative. The very way in which all things move to dénouement in 'Dagny' within the stimulated twenty-four hours seems factitious. That is because Mrs. Peattie doesn't absorb you; she leaves you unmoved and free to pick at the story's structure."
— N Y Times p8 Ap 15 '28 700w

PECK, W. G. Divine revolution; studies and reflections upon the passion of our Lord. 245p $2.40 Morehouse
232.96 Jesus Christ—Passion 28-28279

"As the subtitle indicates, this is a doctrinal and homiletical interpretation of the death of Jesus. The author presents the Cross as the great revolutionary fact that challenges the modern world and opposes the present social order."—J Religion

"Here is good Lenten study for people and preacher alike."
+ Boston Transcript p3 Mr 17 '28 250w
J Religion 8:160 Ja '28 20w
Reviewed by C: S. Brown
Survey 61:99 O 15 '28 60w

"The work, which is dedicated to Dr. W. E. Orchard, is the fruit of much careful thought; but it will not always win the assent of those who agree with the author's conviction about the supreme importance of the Passion, and share his desire for the fuller attainment of its purpose in the world."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p771 O 27 '27 130w

PEDLER, MRS MARGARET (BASS). Bitter heritage. 359p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Hodder & S.]
28-13451

A story, in the Ethel M. Dell vein, of an English girl whose father died disgraced, whose lover jilted her on that account and who thereupon thrust love and marriage from her thoughts. She meets a man as strong-willed as herself, who finally triumphs over her resolutions.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 S 2 '28 100w

"Mrs. Pedler is too good a writer to trace so superficial a tale in the sands of time."
— Boston Transcript p4 Ag 15 '28 210w

"Carefully carpentered story, with neatly manufactured incidents and characters of a purely fictionary kind, Margaret Pedler's new romance, 'Bitter Heritage,' though altogether unreal, is nevertheless not altogether unentertaining."
— + N Y Times p7 Jl 15 '28 380w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:547 N '28

"Her heroine's moral development is secure, but the reader may find the conception of the story a bit strained and sentimental."
— Springf'd Republican p7f Ag 26 '28 280w
Times [London] Lit Sup p964 D 15 '27 90w

PEEL, GEORGE. Economic impact of America. 331p $4.25 (10s 6d) Macmillan
330.973 United States—Economic conditions. Great Britain—Economic conditions. Finance—United States. Finance—Great Britain. United States—Commerce—Great Britain
28-16296

The tremendous impetus given American industry and exports by the war, and the corresponding slump in European manufactures considerably altered the position of the United States in the markets of the world. The author's study of the economic rivalry of England and America during the war and the post-war years prophesies a return of power to England and a future greater than her past.

New Statesman 31:296 Je 9 '28 630w

"Mr. Peel's book is a comforting and be it added, timely record of mitigations of America's prosperity and of Britain's adversity. After all, we feel, the distance between us is not so great. Of works of the 'Buck up—you're not dead yet' order this is the very best and sanest. For lucidity and breadth, and freedom from hysterics or hyperbole, it is remarkable. And it contains not a few contributions to economic analysis and insight." J. C. Stamp
+ Spec 140:473 Mr 24 '28 500w

PEERS, EDGAR ALLISON. Santander. 159p il $2.50 Knopf
914.6 Santander, Spain (province) 28-10065

Santander, city and province on the northern coast of Spain is as yet undiscovered by the tourist. The author, who is Professor of Spanish in the University of Liverpool and who holds in Santander a summer school in the language and literature of Spain, writes invitingly of its charms, ancient and modern, reinforcing his claims with several photographs.

"Dignified, very well written; it is nevertheless relatively unimportant for the reason that its appeal is to a limited few who chance to number Santander among pleasant memories." A. B. Maurice
+ — Bookm 67:458 Je '28 60w

"It is an excellent pocket-guide to Santander, the province and the town and the neighboring Asturias. It is gracefully and graciously written, and should persuade some Americans who are tired of Biarritz, Saint Jean de Luz, and so on, to try a few swims from the Sardinero, Santander's beach, and one of the best in Europe." Herschel Brickell
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 Je 3 '28 170w

"Such a charming description of Santander will, doubtless, persuade more than one American to spend a vacation there. For those of us for whom the possibility of actual acquaintance with the province is remote, Mr. Peers's monograph offers the pleasantest avenue of approach." W. B.

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ap 14 '28 330w

Reviewed by Marian Storm
N Y Evening Post p8 Je 30 '28 430w

"In discriminating style of fine literary quality he describes the historical interests and the scenic and folkway attractions of city and surrounding region, enthusiastically singing the praises of the Summer climate and the delights of the beach."

+ N Y Times p12 Ap 22 '28 130w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 226:adv Jl '28 30w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:495 O '28

"Santander is a great gathering place for Spanish intellectuals in the summer, and some day is to have a fine university. The small volume at hand is a remarkable piece of propaganda for its further growth and development. It should serve as a good guide to the province, and it is certainly excellent, if a little disturbing, reading for those whose hopes of getting to Santander right away are somewhat vague."

+ Sat R of Lit 4:788 Ap 21 '28 230w

PEFFER, NATHANIEL. White man's dilemma; climax of the age of imperialism. 312p $2.50 Day

321.03 Imperialism 27-24586

For descriptive note see Annual for 1927.

Am Pol Sci R 22:502 My '28 60w
Booklist 24:234 Mr '28

Reviewed by Keith Hutchison
Bookm 67:452 Je '28 220w

Reviewed by Paul Hutchinson
Christian Century 45:316 Mr 8 '28 320w
Cleveland Open Shelf p60 My '28

"Mr. Peffer restates this many-sided problem with all its implications in a work which should command close attention from all serious students of politics. His own study is based not only on a complete mastery of the history of modern imperialism but on long personal experience in China and other backward lands. I have read no book so vital in its interpretation of this most determinant issue." J. A. Hobson

+ Nation 126:647 Je 6 '28 850w

Reviewed by W: McFee
N Y World p10m F 19 '28 780w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:445 O '28

"The book, in addition to its persuasive frankness and easy flowing style, has other virtues. There are vivid sketches of the most conspicuous emissaries of the white man in the Orient: the missionary, the diplomat and the business man." L. W. Cooper

+ Pol Sci Q 43:619 D '28 800w
R of Rs 77:adv11 Ja '28 110w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple
Survey 59:588 F 1 '28 680w
World Tomorrow 11:86 F '28 420w

PEIXOTTO, JESSICA BLANCHE. Getting and spending at the professional standard of living; a study of the costs of living an academic life. 307p $2.25 Macmillan

331.831 Cost and standard of living. Teachers —Salaries, pensions, etc. 27-17797

"An examination of the expenditures of the families of 96 university faculty members with incomes ranging from $1,800 to $16,000, living in Berkeley, Calif., in 1922. The author is (1927) Professor of social economics, University of California."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

"Dr. Peixotto's latest book makes a double appeal to the interests of economists. First, it adds a carefully gathered sample to our scanty stock of data regarding the expenditures of middle-class families. Second, it deals with the economic fortunes of the profession to which most of us belong." W. C. Mitchell

+ Am Econ R 18:144 Mr '28 600w
Booklist 24:101 D '27

"This study is a new and interesting contribution to the economic field." Dorothea Beach

+ J Home Econ 20:201 Mr '28 280w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:90 F '28
Pratt p11 spring '28
St Louis 26:28 F '28

Reviewed by T: C. Blaisdell, Jr.
Survey 59:233 N 15 '27 600w

Reviewed by G: L. Collins
World Tomorrow 10:520 D '27 350w

PELTON, C: J., pseud. See Jacobs, C: P.

PENDEXTER, HUGH. Bird of Freedom. 349p $2 Bobbs [7s 6d Collins]

28-9654

A story of pioneering in Nebraska in which the Civil war interposes as a temporary background. The Strongs and the Hanceys take out neighboring claims and start their homesteads. They meet hardships and disasters of every description,—food shortage, snow storms, grasshoppers, Indians, and frontier bad men. The elder Hancey is murdered by land sharks and thruout the story his son hunts for the murderer. A picturesque rogue who calls himself Bird of Freedom enters largely in the story which includes nearly every sort of incident possible to the time and place.

Reviewed by Will James
Bookm 67:713 Ag '28 280w

"Hugh Pendexter is something of an expert on Injuns as well as a specialist in pioneer lore. His story of frontier life in Nebraska in the late '50s and the '60s is packed with the episodes proper to a tale of the open spaces when the natives were mostly Cheyennes, Sioux or worse, and full of rough and racy white characters to boot." Will Cuppy

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 My 20 '28 80w
Cleveland Open Shelf p106 S '28

"A Western thriller with a strong admixture of frontier history."

N Y Times p24 Je 3 '28 280w

PERCY, CARL. Window display advertising. 208p il $3.50 Day [21s Library press]

659 Advertising. Show-windows 28-5609

The aim of the book is to analyze the possibilities of window display as a sales medium for manufacturers, traveling salesmen, advertising agencies and retail merchants, and its relation to other forms of advertising, in cost and effectiveness. Various displays are dissected and the sales qualities discussed.

Booklist 24:314 My '28

"Mr. Carl Percy has discovered a long felt want and has proceeded to provide it like a good American. It is difficult nowadays to find a subject which has not been treated by some more or less gifted writer. But Mr. Percy has done it and done it exceedingly well."

+ N Y Times p7 F 19 '28 300w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:469 O '28

PEREYRA, DIOMEDES DE. Land of the golden scarabs. 306p $2 Bobbs

28-23662

Two engineers, an American and a Bolivian, are commissioned by a mining company to explore for gold and to map the section of the Brazilian jungle west of the Maders river. As they press slowly into the heart of the jungle the dangers and horrors of the journey increase. They are betrayed by their guide, captured by Indians and taken to an Inca stronghold where their weird and often violent adventure ends in romance for the American and freedom for his Bolivian friend.

PEREYRA, DIOMEDES DE—Continued

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 N 4 '28 160w

"In the second half of the book the author candidly casts dull credibility to the winds, and unrolls such a fabric of glittering romanticism as the esteemed and sainted Rider Haggard might well envy."
+ N Y Times p7 O 21 '28 450w

"A good exciting story of adventure, in which explorers find in the heart of the jungle the descendants of the Incas, as well as tons and tons of gold. And the author knows his stuff."
+ Outlook 150:1175 N 14 '28 120w

PERKINS, LUCY (FITCH) (MRS DWIGHT HEALD PERKINS). Pioneer twins. 221p il $1.75 Houghton

27-22481

Much of the material woven into the story of the Pioneer twins is taken from an old diary kept by a pioneer adventurer who crossed the continent in the California gold rush. Thus many of the incidents in the story of Jimmie and Josie actually happened.

Booklist 24:212 F '28

St Louis 26:82 Mr '28

"It is a Covered Wagon story, with all the advantages of that setting, involving action and changing scene, hardships and courage,—and some little geography thrown in for subconscious stimulus. And of course there is a happy ending. This will undoubtedly take its place as one of the favorites of the series."
+ Sat R of Lit 4:409 D 3 '27 180w

PERLMAN, SELIG. Theory of the labor movement. 321p $2.25 Macmillan

331.88 Labor and laboring classes. Trade unions. Socialism 28-14392

"Professor Perlman bases his historical volume upon three dominant factors in recent labor history: the demonstrated capacity (or incapacity, as in Russia) of the capitalist group to survive 'when the protective hand of government has been withdrawn,' the rôle of the 'intellectual,' and the trade union movement. It is his contention that 'the advanced model in philosophies which the intellectual has a right to expect that labor will accept must be of a pattern that follows the main lines of the simpler model of labor's own contrivance.' He includes in his final chapter a friendly exposition of the ideology of Karl Zwing of the contemporary German scene."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 S 2 '28 100w

Boston Transcript p2 S 15 '28 180w

Reviewed by Simeon Strunsky
N Y Times p4 S 16 '28 1800w

"A most valuable contribution to the literature of trade unionism."
+ Wis Lib Bul 24:219 Jl '28

PERTWEE, ROLAND. Fish are such liars! 59p $1.25 Houghton

28-17398

A story of fish psychology told almost wholly by an old trout who lived in a French chalk stream. His efforts to pass on his wisdom to a younger trout were rudely interrupted when he was hooked by a sportsman. But the sportsman recognized the old trout and returned him to the stream, and there the trout lived up to the title of the book.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 S 2 '28 90w

"Here is a unique little yarn that anglers will read with relish and other people possessing a sense of humor and a love of the outdoors will enjoy almost as much. . . The knowledge of trout and of the art of angling which fills the book proves Mr. Pertwee to be an expert angler, and the presentation of the art from the viewpoint of the trout makes an amusing tale."
+ N Y Times p18 S 2 '28 500w

PETERKIN, MRS JULIA MOOD. Scarlet sister Mary. 345p $2.50 Bobbs

28-24477

The Blue Brook plantation is the scene of another chronicle of life among the Gullah Negroes in South Carolina. Mary at fifteen is married to July, the handsomest young Negro of the settlement. In a year July tires of domesticity and leaves for the city. Sister Mary stays and during the twenty years which follow takes the road which earns for her the name of Scarlet Sister Mary. When July returns repentant after twenty years, even tho she still loves him, Mary sends him away.

"As a portrayer of both grief and broad comedy, it seems to me that Mrs. Peterkin is at the present time unsurpassed by any writer in America. Certainly as an interpreter of the Southern Negro she is pre-eminent." Hudson Strode
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p6 O 28 '28 650w

"Reading 'Scarlet Sister Mary,' one should keep a pencil near at hand. Sentences in the text leap out to be marked to be read again and again and held in memory for all time. Mrs. Peterkin's prose has a beauty and a richness which is balm to a distracted world. The delicious humor of the negro, his love, his fear, his simplicity, his religion and his superstition, so faithfully rendered, cry aloud from these pages. There is something here I think, that we can find nowhere else." Dale Warren
+ Boston Transcript p5 N 10 '28 1250w

Reviewed by A. B. Parsons
Nation 128:47 Ja 9 '29 680w

"There is more concentration upon the one character in 'Scarlet Sister Mary' than in 'Black April,' less crowding of folk material, and an even richer atmosphere of the plantation—of the hot sun, the rich red earth, the dark creek water and old moss-hung trees—all that background of fecund nature of which the black race seems intimately a part. And yet this second book, like the first, remains less a story than a series of pictures, such as Si May-e's visit to Deacon Andrew's smithy. There are so many of these, they are so rich in atmosphere and so true in detail, that the book becomes something more than a novel—the revelation of a race, which has lived with the whites for hundreds of years, without becoming known beneath the skin. One feels that Mrs. Peterkin has much more to reveal, and to create." Robert Herrick
+ New Repub 57:172 D 26 '28 550w

Reviewed by Lionel Trilling
N Y Evening Post p8m N 3 '28 630w

"An interesting book, written with deliberate beauty and possessing moments of genuine power. It is not a volume over which one will grow immensely excited, but we can recommend it to readers who value a smooth simplicity of style and an atmosphere that breathes authenticity." F: F. Van de Water
+ N Y Evening Post p8m D 1 '28 130w

"Mrs Peterkin rings all the changes of season and weather to build up the world of Scarlet Sister Mary, and she does it in a style that is a happy combination of solidity, brilliance and pure beauty. Sometimes her story sags with too much beauty, but to err in that manner is superhuman and quite easily forgiven." J: R. Chamberlain
+ N Y Times p4 O 21 '28 700w

"Scarlet Sister Mary is a character to match Black April, a black woman with a self-contained dignity about her that transcends any infractions of the moral code of her fellows. Minor characters and setting are done with skill; Mrs. Peterkin's technical proficiency is improving without any loss of grasp upon her unique material." Herschel Brickell

+ No Am 226:adv N '28 90w

"It is so rich a book, a work smelling so dearly of the rough, sweet odor of simple earthen things and people, that one closes it with the feeling of having lived and breathed for a while in a way that was healthy and clean." Ben Wasson
+ Outlook 150:1212 N 21 '28 480w

" 'Scarlet Sister Mary' should find an even wider audience than 'Black April.' It very firmly establishes its author as an interpreter of negro character; but more than this, it leaves no room for doubt that she is a novelist whose work has enduring quality." Herschel Brickell
+ Sat R of Lit 5:318 N 3 '28 950w

"What happens in the story is of less moment than that it evidently presents an authentic picture of Negro life, standards, morals, viewpoint, and character close to the soil."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 9 '28 200w

"No other author of white blood seems able to do what Julia Peterkin can do: write of the primitive Negro with an almost pure-black comprehension." F. L. Kellogg
+ Survey 61:313 D 1 '28 680w

PETERSON, HOUSTON. Havelock Ellis, philosopher of love. 432p il $4.50 Houghton [18s Allen & U.]

B or 92 Ellis, Havelock 28-14155

The author of this biography has had the full cooperation of the subject himself. The book is based upon unpublished notes placed at the disposal of the author, numerous conversations and letters and Mr Ellis's commentary on the manuscript. A large part of the book is taken up with an examination of the philosopher's work, with many quotations. Appendices give a full list of the contents of his commonplace books and a bibliography.

Booklist 24:400 Jl '28

"Mr. Peterson's biography is neither an exciting narrative nor a brilliant interpretation. It is, however, workmanlike and sound. In its somewhat pedestrian quality, it is a relief from the jazz step of the school of biography popular today. Mr. Peterson for the most part wisely lets Ellis speak for himself. Both as a summary of a significant experience, and as an introduction to a precious philosophy, it deserves a place on the crowded shelf of Ellis's books." R. M. Lovett
+ Bookm 67:573 Jl '28 1200w

"It has remained for Mr. Houston Peterson to produce a book that at once tells, with the most abundant and scholarly documentation and the authoritative help of Mr. Ellis himself, the history of an unusual life and to throw considerable light on the origin of an unusual and complex reputation. Mr. Peterson's book is that of an intense admirer, but it is written with restraint. It eschews almost all the devices of the new biography. It lets the facts speak for themselves, and tries no high flying or high handed feats of interpretative analysis." Irwin Edman
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 My 13 '28 1600w

Boston Transcript p6 Je 2 '28 750w

Dial 85:359 O '28 90w

"It is an engrossing story and one which explains why Ellis has exerted such a humanizing influence upon his admirers—for it is the triumph of intelligence over Victorianism." Ernest Boyd
+ Ind 120:579 Je 16 '28 920w

"Mr. Peterson's book cannot but continue to be a primary authority for the study of Ellis's life and work. Obviously written out of a very intense admiration for the subject, it is nevertheless refreshingly free from the mere gush of the hero-worshipper, and it certainly constitutes the most complete as well as the most considered and informative account yet given of a man whose influence upon contemporary society it would be very difficult to measure." J. W. Krutch
+ Nation 126:591 My 23 '28 750w

"This is a good book, and a necessary one, because, in the first place, it brings out the essential significance of Havelock Ellis; and again, because it presents a mass of authoritative detail not previously available."
+ Nation and Ath 44:330 D 1 '28 1000w

"Mr. Peterson's is the first really adequate account we have had of this gracious being who has ripened so beautifully in the late autumn of his life." Van Wyck Brooks
+ New Repub 55:335 Ag 15 '28 1300w

"Houston Peterson's treatment is interesting, but chiefly by reason of his voluminous use of Mr. Ellis's writings. He quotes largely from them, so largely, in fact, and in so rambling a fashion that it is confusing. He attempts to portray the trends of Mr. Ellis's mind, but success eludes him. He does not tell enough about Mr. Ellis's personal life or how he achieved his ends; and his depiction of his subject's personal relations is meager." Joseph Collins
— + N Y Evening Post p8 Je 30 '28 1450w

"What Mr. Peterson has written is not so much an 'authoritative biography' as a study of the growth of a philosophical mind. . . The fact that one misses the man is perhaps a tribute to the successes of the author in making us interested in the philosopher. The philosopher is extraordinarily worth knowing, not only for his intrinsic values but because he summarizes so much of the ethical and social progress—or possibly one should say ethical and social change—that has taken place in the last half century." R. L. Duffus
+ N Y Times p5 My 20 '28 1650w

Reviewed by Harry Salpeter
N Y World p7m Je 24 '28 800w

"Mr. Peterson's work has been done thoroughly and conscientiously and with the full assistance of the subject, which gives it a solid importance that is not to be quarreled with. Its prose is pedestrian and it can hardly be called an inspired biography, but this does not take away from its value." Herschel Brickell
+ No Am 226:adv Jl '28 200w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:582 N '28

Pratt p40 autumn '28

"Apart from quotations, and the exposition of Ellis's ideology, we learn hardly anything more than we might from 'Who's Who.' " H. M. Kallen
Sat R of Lit 5:1 Jl 28 '28 2300w

"Mr. Houston Peterson recounts the events of Mr. Ellis's long life with good sense and ability. He is no biographer of genius able to explain to us the mysteries of greatness. Nor perhaps is such a service required in the case of so simple and unified a character as that of Ellis. But he shows interestingly the effect of Ellis's work on the Freudians and on other schools of later workers. There will now be no excuse for ignorant misrepresentation of Mr. Ellis by prejudiced persons."
+ — Spec 141:458 O 6 '28 800w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 25 '28 760w

"Mr. Peterson is a clumsy writer, but he has produced a valuable book."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p699 O 4 '28 830w

Wis Lib Bul 24:253 O '28

"An extremely interesting biography of a living subject in which Ellis has assisted and provided a good deal. A large proportion of the book is a review of the development of modern psychology in which Ellis has had such a large share." A. A. Sharp
+ World Tomorrow 11:473 N '28 120w

PETTIT, CHARLES. Elegant infidelities of Madame Li Pei Fou. 192p $2.50 Liveright 28-23103

"This charming lady took as her lover, in the absence of her illustrious but tiresome hus-

PETTIT, CHARLES—Continued
band, the handsome scullion, Grain of Rice. True, she risked being cut into a thousand small pieces and fed to the pigs, and her lover tempted an even more painful death. But if she preferred the risk of death to boredom, she did no more than many wiser folk have done. From the moment when he first enters the yamen the education of Grain of Rice proceeds swiftly and most entertainingly to the point where Madame Li Pei Fou discovers to her chagrin that men care little for their pleasures unless they can enjoy them comfortably. Which seems to be the ironic moral of this diverting book."—Outlook

"By all odds the best of the book is the way in which it is written. The thing is so deftly handled, with such an admirable lightness and dexterity—with so much objectivity, too, as if the characters were gay little figures in a peep show—that it swings ahead of its own momentum. There is an abundance of philosophy of a sophisticated kind and no end of highly quotable passages." R. B. Sanborn
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 O 7 '28 550w

Boston Transcript p4 O 20 '28 200w

"This mock-Chinese tale, with a pattern neither as complicated nor as fantastic as the somewhat similarly keyed stories of Ernest Bramah, is yet easily and cleverly told." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 150:1044 O 24 '28 120w

PETTIT, WALTER WILLIAM. Case studies in community organization. (Social workers' lib.) 345p $2.25 Century

360 Social service. Community life 28-2281

The community case records included in this volume are part of the material which students and staff of the New York school of social work have been collecting for use in courses in community organization. The purpose of the records, which are stories of actual occurrences with names of localities and people changed, is to assist the social worker to formulate a plan in the community field that will bring people together to work out their social problems.

Booklist 24:348 Je '28

"Not only to the teacher of sociology and the student, but also to the minister, the social worker of any type, and anyone actively interested in developing the social and recreational life of a community, these studies will prove of interest and value."
+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 11 '28 230w

Christian Century 45:670 My 24 '28 70w

"In addition to its pedagogical fitness, this volume possesses the merit of having met the test of actual classroom use."
+ New Repub 54:304 Ap 25 '28 110w

"As an example of the sort of community case studies that are needed by students, this book will fill a very real need; it breaks a new trail. The first four cases are admirably written and held the reader's attention like a novel. As a whole, the cases are studies of group organization rather than community organization. They contain a wealth of material of real value for the training of social executives of all sorts. It is a book which every community worker should read and ponder." Dwight Sanderson
+ Survey 60:124 Ap 15 '28 460w

PETTY, SIR WILLIAM. Petty papers; some unpublished writings ed. from the Bowood papers by the Marquis of Lansdowne. 2v 276; 309p $12 Houghton ([52s 6d Constable]

824 28-13391

"Known hitherto chiefly as an economist and statistician, Sir William emerges from these pages as one of the most versatile and interesting of seventeenth-century Englishmen. He was interested in everything from eugenics to Latin versification, and has left notes of acute observation upon all these matters."—Nation

Boston Transcript p4 N 10 '28 800w
+ Nation 126:653 Je 6 '28 50w

Reviewed by Francis Birrell
Nation and Ath 42:489 D 24 '27 600w
New Statesman 30:212 N 26 '27 730w

"Lord Lansdowne places students under a further obligation by publishing these interesting and valuable papers of his versatile ancestor. Sir William Petty, the founder of statistical science, was the most celebrated economist of the seventeenth century, and applied his acute and original mind to an immense variety of subjects which in these volumes receive an almost bewildering wealth of illustration, from paddle-wheels to philosophy."
+ Sat R 144:705 N 19 '27 810w

"There are in the Papers many scattered jottings which will serve to correct or shed some small new light on history, particularly with regard to the story of Ireland, which was a country Petty knew intimately. Even in his day he throws out a hint that Ireland might be made into 'a Free State tributory to England,' but foresees the difficulty 'where and in whom the soveraigne power of Ireland doth lie,' and the possible danger to England if the Irish 'upon Account of Religion and Revenge of wrongs' make 'friendships and corrispondence with forain nations.' "
+ Spec 139:sup825 N 12 '27 730w

"The insight that these papers give into the daily thoughts and aspirations of a highly ingenious and original mind is such as can only be given by intimate personal writings, and is quite different from that conveyed by material prepared for the press. Petty was so brimful of ideas on such diverse topics that it is impossible to discuss more than a very few of the twenty-five heads under which the editor has succeeded in classifying the notes of his witty and entertaining ancestor."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p803 N 10 '27 1700w

PHELPS, EDITH M., ed. University debaters' annual; constructive and rebuttal speeches delivered in debates of American colleges and universities during the college year 1926-1927. 417p $2.25 Wilson, H.W.

374 Debating (16-1455)

The debaters' annual for 1926-1927 contains the brief and the affirmative and negative arguments on the following subjects: The McNary-Haugen farm relief bill; Extraterritoriality in China; Repeal of the prohibition amendment; Military protection for the property of United States citizens on foreign soil; Cancellation of allied war debts; Legislative control of curricula in educational institutions; The governmental principles of Mussolini; Equal rights amendment.

Booklist 24:111 D '27
Wis Lib Bul 24:18 Ja '28

PHILLIPS, EVERETT FRANKLIN. Beekeeping; a discussion of the life of the honeybee and of the production of honey. (Rural science ser.) rev ed 490p il $4 Macmillan

638.1 Bees. Honey 28-17397

An enlarged revised edition of a useful text, up-to-date and reliable. Considerable additional information on honey plants has been included.

Booklist 25:88 N '28

"Although the book is addressed only to beekeepers, potential and active, few readers possessed of any curiosity will find it dull. For my part I found it fascinating, at least in the sections devoted to the bee itself rather than to the tools and operations of its human manipulator." B. R. Redman
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 O 28 '28 350w

"The revised edition aims to bring the original up to date and contains new and important information on honey plants and a chapter on the prevention and control of bee diseases. Two hundred well-chosen illustrations are of decided value in aiding one to read the text intelligently."
+ Boston Transcript p2 S 22 '28 140w

PHILLIPS, GERALD WILLIAM. See Huntington, J:, pseud.

PHILLIPS, JOHN CHARLES. Sportsman's scrapbook. 212p il $5 Houghton

799 Hunting. Fishing 28-24160

For the lover of the out-of-doors and particularly for the hunter, here are stories of a sportsman's luck in field, forest, and stream, illustrated with drawings by A. L. Ripley.

"A. L. Ripley, the artist, himself a noted sportsman, has handsomely illustrated the volume with many full page and text drawings which add greatly to the value of the book. It is well worth a place in every sportsman's library, and to those interested in the game and fish of Massachusetts, it will have an especial appeal." S. A. L.

+ Boston Transcript p7 O 27 '28 380w

Springf'd Republican p10 N 13 '28 220w

PHILLIPS, LE ROY, and JOHNSON, THEODORE, eds. Types of modern dramatic composition; with an introd. essay on the one-act play by George Pierce Baker. 418p $1.60 Ginn

822.08 English drama—Collections. American drama—Collections 27-19978

An anthology of twenty one-act plays for schools and colleges, with an introductory essay by George Pierce Baker. Fully one-half of the plays included are new and hitherto unpublished. Brief biographical and critical notes accompany each play.

Booklist 24:201 F '28

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 F '28

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:295 My '28

"The book has at least three highly commendable features. It contains twenty plays, an unusually large number of selections for a book planned for school use. The plays are chosen with careful attention to variety of subject matter and form; yet they are almost without exception plays that inexperienced pupils can stage—a feature which is distinctly not characteristic of many anthologies. Finally, the book is to be commended for the originality of the selections." R. B. Thomas

+ School R 36:314 Ap '28 450w

Wis Lib Bul 23:258 N '27

PHILLPOTTS, EDEN. Arachne. 224p $2.25 Macmillan [6s Faber & G.]

28-10529

With many touches of satire on modern thought and ways, this little tale of classic times tells the story of a contest in the art of weaving between Pallas Athene and her pupil Arachne, a mortal. The judges award the palm to Arachne for the perfect web she has spun.

For biographical sketch of Eden Phillpotts see Wilson Bulletin 3:418 Ja '29

Booklist 25:30 O '28

Reviewed by V. P. Ross

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Jl 22 '28 680w

"The dialogue is simply delicious: pungent, provocative, witty, lightly satirizing the fads and foibles of our own day in those of 'that remote age when mankind were not strangers to divinity.' We not only advise but urge lovers of the classics, and of literary artistry, to read (and perferably aloud) this old, old story of Arachne, as told by a modern master of literature." F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 16 '28 950w

N Y Evening Post p9 Je 2 '28 90w

N Y Times p8 Je 10 '28 700w

"Despite his frequently able dialectic, despite his gift for fine description and occasional lively narrative, Mr. Phillpotts remains, like the defeated goddess of his fable, fundamentally illogical and consistently dull."

— + Sat R of Lit 5:110 S 8 '28 200w

"Arachne will induce many an amused smile, especially from those who did not laugh at The Farmer's Wife." R. A. T.

+ Spec 139:1098 D 17 '27 380w

"The story is not without its morals for our own time, and Mr. Phillpotts has pointed them with neatness and humour that win a smile if not always agreement."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p26 Ja 12 '28 300w

PHILLPOTTS, EDEN. Cornish droll. 281p $2.50 Macmillan

[27-6445]

In his dotage and in droll Cornish dialect William Chirgwin tells the story of his life. His wife Mercy Jane proved a deceitful lass but on the whole good luck attended him and the happenings of his eighty years are set down with naive relish.

"Lamentable attempt at comedy." E. H. Walton

— Bookm 67:331 My '28 60w

"Dialect from the lips of a Cornishman is quaint and arresting, but from the supposed pen of William Chirgwin it is as irksome as his own character." H. G. S.

— N Y Evening Post p13 F 11 '28 100w

"The saga of a nonentity written in his dotage."

— N Y Times p13 Mr 4 '28 450w

Wis Lib Bul 24:127 Ap '28

PHILLPOTTS, EDEN. It happened like that. 287p $2.25 Macmillan [7s 6d Hutchinson]

[28-12312]

Homespun stories of life and love in rural England.

Booklist 25:72 N '28

"They are competently done, with a liberal admixture of folksy flavor and homely philosophy."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p13 O 7 '28 50w

New Statesman 30:260 D 3 '27 140w

"Each story is rich in philosophy formed by experiencing the sharp realities of life, and each story is handled tenderly—like a priceless old heirloom—for Mr. Phillpotts loves his Devonshire folk, and what is more he knows them and how to write stories about them that will live on in the memory of the reader."

+ N Y Times p7 Jl 29 '28 730w

"Like his own Farmer Dean, Mr. Phillpotts can 'size up his neighbours tolerable correct most times.' "

+ Spec 139:785 N 5 '27 70w

"They aim at entertainment and neither depress us with tragedy nor worry us with subtleties of character-drawing. The colours are broad and clear; vice is discomfited and virtue crowned without finesse or reserves."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p812 N 10 '27 350w

PHILLPOTTS, EDEN. Ring fence. 388p $2 Macmillan [7s 6d Hutchinson]

28-17274

The hamlet of Thorpe Michael in Dartmoor is the scene of a cheerful story, full of common sense and racy country characters. The love stories of several pairs of young people run along side by side, each one opposed by their elders, yet happily working out its course. The title expresses the ambition of Abraham Churchward, the most prosperous man in the countryside, to unite his own and a neighboring farm by marrying his son John to Cicely, daughter of the Widow Narracott. The two young people elect to do otherwise but in the end, by other means, the two properties are united within their ring fence.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p13 O 7 '28 130w

PHILLPOTTS, EDEN—Continued
Reviewed by Edmund Blunden
Nation and Ath 42:852 Mr 10 '28 200w
New Statesman 31:60 Ap 21 '28 210w

"'The Ring Fence' has at least three excellences, and demands three points. In the first place, it has form, and the form has magnitude. To the confirmed novel-reader, who may be tired of novelettes, or of attenuated biographies, this means something. It means a chance to admire the dexterity of the craftsman who can spin three threads of narrative at once, without for an instant confusing his reader or letting him forget any part of the story; and it means that there is a substantial expanse of pleasure before him." E. A. Aldrich
+ Sat R of Lit 5:164 S 29 '28 450w

"The story has its dramatic moments. But its main charm lies in its quiet and natural descriptions of country life and character."
+ Spec 140:692 My 5 '28 80w

"Mr. Phillpotts would like to persuade us to feel a gentle sadness now and again, but so skilfully has he established us in a contented humour that we can regret nothing except the necessary ending of a pleasant book."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p168 Mr 8 '28 460w

PIAGET, JEAN, and others. Judgment and reasoning in the child; [tr. by Marjorie Warden]. (Int. lib. of psychology, philosophy and scientific method) 260p $3.75 Harcourt [10s 6d K. Paul]

153.6 Reasoning. Judgment. Child study [28-18012]

Dr Piaget, professor of the University of Geneva and director of the Institut Rousseau, has examined 10,000 verbatim remarks of eight children between the ages of three and seven years in order to determine when judgment and reasoning appear in the child. The book describes the methods—test questions and test situations—by which the data were compiled and summarizes Professor Piaget's conclusions.

"Professor Piaget's interesting book has been developed from a series of experiments on Swiss children, and is illustrated in a most illuminating way by examples of their spontaneous observations and answers to tests and questions."
+ Nation and Ath 43:684 Ag 25 '28 480w

"As an appreciation of child thought, and as a lucid, careful explanation of the development of a certain pattern of mind, it is a great contribution to a hitherto very sparsely explored field of knowledge."
+ Sat R 146:613 N 10 '28 1050w

"Although the text requires close reading it is far from dull and is so contributive both in content and suggestion, that it will have a stimulating effect on many students. The author warns against hasty application of his conclusion to other fields, but he would not deny that the laws of child logic have pertinence for related problems in comparative and abnormal psychology." Arnold Gessell
+ Sat R of Lit 5:208 O 13 '28 600w

"Professor Piaget is already well known as a careful and ingenious student of the mentality of children. His new book on the judgment and reasoning powers of a child is further evidence of his cautious and interesting work."
+ Spec 140:980 Je 30 '28 380w

"Of the importance of the investigation in general there can be no doubt. It is really only by making clear to ourselves how the mental processes of children and of animals differ from our own, and how, nevertheless, there is a continuous development from the lowest to the highest, that we shall eventually understand the real nature of adult reasoning. . . . The present volume has been very well translated by Miss Marjorie Warden; but the index is practically useless."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p722 O 11 '28 730w

PICKETT, GEORGE EDWARD. Soldier of the South; General Pickett's war letters to his wife; ed. by Arthur Crew Inman. 157p il $2.50 Houghton

B or 92 United States—Civil war—Personal narratives 28-9551

These tender and moving letters of General Pickett to his love, before and after their wartime marriage, reflect the courage and devotion of the soldier to his duty and the infinite compassion of the man for the suffering caused by war. The letters were published in 1913 under the title "The heart of a soldier."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 My 13 '28 300w

"That charge at Gettysburg established Pickett forever as a magnificent fighter. But these letters show, to me, a spirit that is finer than fighting, a broad, tolerant, sweet, human spirit that I have not often found in such a degree in a rather wide study of Civil war figures."
+ Boston Transcript p5 Mr 24 '28 650w
Christian Century 45:955 Ag 2 '28 60w

"The chief interest of his letters, written in leisure and with charm, in spite of the confusion of war, lies in his personal distinction: not great as a soldier, he was in most respects typical of the best in his society, and his equanimity and urbanity fairly measure the Southern culture of his time. The one letter of the series which might throw an interesting light upon military events has been, out of family piety, omitted; and the testimony of the leading participant in 'Pickett's charge' at Gettysburg, the crisis of the war, is yet to appear." A. T.
+ — New Repub 55:53 My 30 '28 180w
N Y Evening Post p8 Je 23 '28 70w
N Y Times p20 Ap 29 '28 350w
Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 225:adv Je '28 50w
R of Rs 77:adv10 My '28 70w
Wis Lib Bul 24:125 Ap '28

PIERCE, ANNA ELOISE. Deans and advisers of women and girls; with an introd. by Frank Pierrepont Graves. 636p $4 Professional & technical press, 420 Lexington av., N.Y.

376 Education of women. Students. Young women. Girls 28-13640

"A study of the qualifications and activities of advisors of women, whether in colleges, schools, industry or elsewhere."—Cleveland Open Shelf

Booklist 25:106 D '28

"This book is an exhaustive treatise, a real reference book for the dean or others in charge of the education of women and girls. The author seems to have left out nothing of importance in the vast field she covers."
+ Boston Transcript p4 O 17 '28 100w
Cleveland Open Shelf p97 S '28

PIERON, HENRI. Thought and the brain; tr. by C. K. Ogden. (Int. lib. of psychology, philosophy and scientific method) 262p il $4 Harcourt [12s 6d K. Paul]

150 Brain. Nervous system. Psychology 27-5711

"The book is divided into four sections. The first part deals with the general conception of neural-mental functioning. The second part of the book deals especially with the incito-motor function of the brain. The third part concerns the cerebral mechanism of language and verbal thought. The fourth and final part of the book deals with the rôle and mechanism of effective regulation in mental life."—Am J Psychol

"In his treatment, Piéron gives much that is new, both factually and theoretically. Without bias in favor of any particular theory, the author confines himself to the examination of questions which can be stated with some precision in view of the scientific knowledge now at our disposal. The book is a fairly complete synthesis of European and American research, with the contributions of war lesions to neurology and the latest work on aphasia receiving the major amount of attention. It is in keeping with the present dynamic trend of biological and psychological explanation, and will prove helpful to those interested in the correlation of mind and body." G. L. Freeman

+ Am J Psychol 11:328 Ap '28 500w

"The value of the book is not for general readers, but for experts in the neurological bases of psychology. The scientific caution of the work, as well as its unrevolutionary character, may be indicated by the conclusion finally reached regarding the localization of cerebral function." T. V. Smith

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 My 15 '27 800w

"He has subjected to a critical but sympathetic examination the medical reports on the results of injury to brain and nerves, and has succeeded in giving a fair and reasoned analysis of the results achieved. It is particularly interesting to find a French author expounding so lucidly Head's researches on sensation aphasia. In translating this book into idiomatic English Mr. Ogden has successfully accomplished a task of no mean difficulty. But it is unfortunate that he did not submit the proofs to an anatomist: for several of the technical terms, though literally translated, have emerged in curious forms." G. E. Smith

+ — Nature 120:506 O 8 '27 600w

"Professor Piéron's exposition will richly repay critical reading and rereading by specialists in psychology, neurology, physiology, and brain surgery; but the lay searcher for general information and understanding concerning thought, the brain, and their relations, is doomed to disappointment unless he is prepared for an intricate subject and a somewhat difficult style." R. M. Yerkes

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:650 Mr 3 '28 1300w

"He carries his erudition lightly; he is commendably, sometimes even disconcertingly, brief, and if the reader occasionally feels that he is being presented with a confused mass of unrelated facts, the fault lies rather with the state of the science than with the manner of the exposition."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p726 O 20 '27 1400w

PIGOU, ARTHUR CECIL. Industrial fluctuations. 397p $8.50 (25s) Macmillan

338 Business cycles 27-17251

"The business cycle of booms and slumps is analysed with painstaking thoroughness in Professor Pigou's important new book—a companion to the second edition of his well-known Economics of Welfare. In discussing the various causes of fluctuations he points out that a rigid wage policy—that is, the refusal of trade unions to agree to temporary reductions of wages in bad times—has a more serious bearing on the matter 'than popular arguments, focused on the circumstances of particular industries, suggest.' The suggested remedies are many and various; there is no panacea."—Spec

---

Reviewed by E. C. Hughes

Am J Soc 34:233 Jl '28 100w

Boston Transcript p6 Jl 20 '27 340w

Nation and Ath 41:120 Ap 30 '27 1100w

New Statesman 29:382 Jl 2 '27 900w

"Professor Pigou is fair-minded in argument and his collection of facts and figures is impressive."

Spec 138:700 Ap 16 '27 200w

"Professor Pigou's work is the most penetrating and sustained attempt to apply economic science to the problems of economic practice that has been made in this generation."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p326 My 12 '27 840w

PIGOU, ARTHUR CECIL. Study in public finance. 323p $4.50 (16s) Macmillan

336 Finance [28-14301]

The author, professor of economics in Cambridge university, studies the general relations of government expenditure, the principles of taxation and the place of loans in public finance.

"The weaknesses of this study are painfully obvious and tend at first reading to obscure its elements of sound value. Too many pages are devoted to a wearisome elaboration of the obvious. Over and again the author coins a special terminology which is confusing and which calls for a glossary. Too often the mathematical and symbolic expositions which crowd the book are not translated into laymen's English. Finally, the actual illustrations are drawn exclusively from British fiscal experience. These shortcomings aside, A Study in Public Finance yields a rich harvest of fresh and valuable viewpoints." W: J. Shultz

— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 Ag 26 '28 400w

"Professor Pigou falls a little awkwardly between two stools—avoiding alike the stark remoteness from actuality and that vivid contact with social phenomena which would endear him to politicians and publicists. . . The practical politician may read the book with profit; and those who care for economic analysis, always competently, and sometimes brilliantly, performed, will study it with admiration and pleasure." H. Phillips

+ — Nation and Ath 42:819 Mr 3 '28 580w

PILKINGTON, LÆTITIA (VAN LEWEN) (MRS MATTHEW PILKINGTON). Memoirs, 1712-1750; with an introd. by Iris Barry. (English lib.) 487p $4 Dodd [15s Routledge]

B or 92 [28-26463]

The chief interest of these memoirs of an Irish adventuress, reprinted after many years of oblivion, lies in the portrait they provide of Dean Swift in his later years. Some of Mrs Pilkington's verse, upon which she believed her title to fame would rest, is included.

"The recollections of Dean Swift, with which the book begins and ends, are the sprightliest and most important parts of a highly readable book." B. B.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 28 '28 650w

Nation and Ath 42:786 F 25 '28 600w

"While this reprint of Mrs. Pilkington's memoirs is very welcome, it is a pity that Mr. Isaacs, the general editor of this series, did not annotate it more fully; there are many references which are obscure, and many people —Worsdale the painter is one—about whom the average reader of to-day knows nothing. All the introduction might be very advantageously exchanged for a body of notes and, most criminal of omissions in a book of this kind, a good index." R. E. R.

+ — New Statesman 30:766 Mr 24 '28 1850w

N Y Evening Post p9 My 5 '28 90w

"The things she thought it important to write not infrequently simply bore us, and the thought of all the things she might have said makes one impatient. Besides the good, wholesome coarseness employed by other writers of the time, her squeamishness and misplaced sense of virtue seem hypocritical and lead her into an irritating querulousness. Yet, one puts down the book feeling that all is forgiven. In some curious, indefinable way a character has emerged which, for all its pettiness and silliness, is a brave, interesting thing." H. I. Matthews

+ — N Y Times p9 Je 3 '28 650w

"Her chief claim to fame in these memoirs is in the racy picture she gives us of that period of English literature which is most interesting to the twentieth century. . . Her literary comment need not detain us, but her stories of the early eighteenth century, even if distorted, have enough fact in them to make the age of Roderick Random and Tom Jones more comprehensible to our own." Harry Hansen

PILKINGTON, LÆTITIA—Continued

+ N Y World p10m Ap 15 '28 850w

St Louis 26:358 N '28

"As to the Memoirs, no review, we believe, could so well set forth the reason for their interest as does the very excellent introduction by Iris Barry."

+ Sat R of Lit 4:715 Mr 31 '28 1800w

"Amusing her story certainly is; none the less it leaves a certain sadness."

+ Spec 140:237 F 18 '28 680w

Times [London] Lit Sup p125 F 23 '28 1000w

PILLSBURY, WALTER BOWERS, and MEADER, CLARENCE LINTON. Psychology of language. 306p $3 (10s 6d) Appleton

401 Language and languages 28-23548

The authors, who are respectively professor of psychology and professor of linguistics in the University of Michigan, have collaborated in producing this study of language from the psychological point of view. "The book is designed to give a general survey of the facts of language and a psychological interpretation of those facts which shall meet the needs of students of language and of students of psychology." (Preface)

"For a book which is really written about language 'The Psychology of Language' contains remarkably little concrete linguistic detail, and it is a source of some uneasiness that this detail does not seem to be managed with the scientific accuracy that one might expect." G: P. Krapp

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 N 25 '28 1150w

Boston Transcript p4 O 27 '28 700w

"A psychologist and a student of linguistics have matched efforts to show how the mind functions in the communication of ideas. Pillsbury and Meader have succeeded in making a real contribution to the solution of those riddles of language which have deeper meanings. Their book is a compendium of information. . . But it is not the collection and tabulation of facts which marks the volume a work of scholarship,—it is the penetrating analysis of the facts." E. M. East

+ Sat R of Lit 5:368 N 17 '28 850w

PINCKNEY, JOSEPHINE. Sea-drinking cities. 86p $2 Harper

811 28-722

Poems of the Southern water-front and the life of the cities behind.

Bookm 67:xxxiv Mr '28 200w

"She lacks the accent of wilful sophistication that sometimes mars the work of the Sitwells. There is no long-lidded self-consciousness here. There is grace, poise, dignity, and humor withal. And there is the constant awareness of and transmission of atmosphere. It is a tribute to the excellence of Miss Pinckney's work that unless one chooses to reprint a poem in its entirety one is at a loss to find a quotation that will convey her gifts. This is a first book of memorable distinction." Babette Deutsch

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p6 F 5 '28 380w

Boston Transcript p4 Je 23 '28 130w

"Miss Pinckney's is a welcome voice. Whether it will rise above the level of easy competence displayed in this book to the importance of vital poetry is a matter of open conjecture." A. K. Laing

+ Ind 120:164 F 18 '28 120w

"Some of her portraits have a nice deftness and keen insight. 'On the Shelf' shows a fresh and delightful wit; and there are phrases and lines scattered through the whole book which reveal a genuine feeling for landscape and atmosphere. But most of her descriptive passages are too photographic and detailed and literal." Marcia Nardi

— + New Repub 55:181 Jl 4 '28 130w

"In spite of no little fluency throughout the volume as a whole, there is also often the suggestion that Miss Pinckney is a little too aware that she is making her first appearance, and so must strive to please. There is promise in abundance, and no mean accomplishment already attained." Percy Hutchison

+ — N Y Times p2 Ap 1 '28 300w

"There is a delightful freshness of language in Miss Pinckney's poetry. The atmosphere of her native South is caught vividly in dexterous language. She paints in words with the sure touch of the articulate artist." W: R. Benét

+ Sat R of Lit 4:668 Mr 10 '28 220w

PINSKY, DAVID. Arnold Levenberg; tr. by Isaac Goldberg. 401p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

28-15382

"Its background is that of Jewish New York, and its hero is a wealthy young man, a pacifist by nature, who is forced by the war into a bitterly false position. Unfortunately, one hears too little of Arnold Levenberg's spiritual struggles. For the most part he is involved with three or four seductive and voluptuous girls, each more tiresome than the other."—Bookm

"A turgid and heavy-handed novel, unbelievably devoid of humor. . . Certainly 'Arnold Levenberg' is not of the same calibre as Pinski's plays." E. H. Walton

— Bookm 68:98 S '28 120w

"It is unfortunate that Mr. Pinski, who has built up an honorable reputation in his own language, Yiddish, and his particular medium, the drama, should have made his début before American novel readers with an unworthy work in a translation which does nothing to minimize its faults. The author's initial mistake was in attempting to deal with a social milieu which is obviously foreign to him. . . Has Yiddish prose nothing less incompetent, less adolescent, less shoddy to offer to foreign readers?" Babette Deutsch

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p21 S 23 '28 780w

"His novel is not as expert as his plays, but it is a very thorough, stimulating, and passionately sincere piece of work, and it wrestles anew with a problem which has waned but little in interest—namely the inner struggle of the pacifist at home during the months of America's participation in the World War." J. F. S.

+ — Boston Transcript p3 Jl 7 '28 650w

"David Pinski fails to give us a significant map of the internal struggles which resulted in the actions of his weak young 'man of peace' who allowed himself to be drafted and then used influence to get a meaningless clerical job. Mr. Pinski's novel, inarticulate and somewhat repetitive, is nevertheless an interesting and sincere portrayal of a hideously difficult situation." T. S.

— + N Y Evening Post p5 Ag 11 '28 100w

"Here is an excellent study in abnormal character, made somewhat incredible by the haziness of the background and the subordinate characters."

+ — N Y Times p12 Jl 15 '28 630w

PINTO, VIVIAN DE SOLA. Life of Sir Charles Sedley, 1639-1701; a study in the life and literature of the restoration. 288p il $6 Boni & Liveright [21s Constable]

B or 92 Sedley, Sir Charles, bart. [28-5821]

"Professor De Sola Pinto has written the definitive biography of a secondary figure in the English Restoration. Sir Charles Sedley, rake, courtier, politician, dramatist, and poet has hitherto engaged the attention of historians of literature mainly. He has provided material for two German doctoral dissertations, and he occupies a prominent position in Beresford-Chancellor's 'Lives of the Rakes,' but it is the conclusion of his latest and completest biographer that 'Sir Charles Sedley has been badly treated by posterity, both as a man and a poet,' and the present biography purports 'to do him tardy justice.' "—Sat R of Lit

"Exceedingly pleasant reading."
+ Dial 84:437 My '28 80w

"The work is at once exhaustive and interesting, combining real scholarship and imaginative power, and presented in excellent literary form. Footnotes and a vivid text appear in harmony on the same page to confute those popularizers who 'without fear and without research' would banish all evidence of critical scholarship from any book which would claim to be interesting." Paul Birdsall
+ Sat R of Lit 4:913 My 26 '28 550w
Theatre Arts Mo 12:451 Je '28 330w

PIPER, DAVID ROY. Community churches; the community church movement. 158p $1.50 Willett

261 Community church 28-9873

"The book attempts to account for the contemporary rise of community churches, to describe the movement concretely and analyze its characteristics, and to tell in detail how persons who wish to form such churches should go about it."—Christian Century

Booklist 25:52 N '28

"Mr. Piper knows the community church movement as well as any man in America. He boils down to 160 pages the essential facts and figures of that movement. He states them concretely, clearly, and forcefully. . . In general this book can be recommended as the most concise and informative volume yet to appear concerning the most significant movement in American church life of to-day." Fred Eastman
+ Christian Century 45:855 Jl 5 '28 200w

"The community church movement, as described by Mr. Piper, may constitute a useful working compromise for certain types of communities under stress of economic pressure, but Mr. Piper's philosophy will hardly go down except with those predisposed to extremely low church and somewhat liberal doctrinal views. The author's expectation for the future of the community church must therefore be judged to be rather inflated, even by those who wish such views to prevail." H. P. Douglass
— Christian Century 45:953 Ag 2 '28 1500w

"The interpretation is not convincing; it savors too strongly of special pleading. The handbook will be useful to groups wishing to organize a community church."
+ J Religion 8:662 O '28 60w
Wis Lib Bul 24:249 O '28

PIPKIN, CHARLES WOOTEN. Idea of social justice; a study of legislation and administration and the labour movement in England and France between 1900 and 1926; with an introd. by W. G. S. Adams. 595p $3.50 Macmillan

338.9 Labor laws and legislation—Great Britain. Labor laws and legislation—France. Great Britain—Social conditions. France—Social conditions 27-6555

"An essay in political ethics developed against the background of labor legislation in England and France and the political and industrial organization of labor in those countries since 1900. It was undertaken while the author was under appointment as a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford. He defines his project as an attempt 'to estimate the strength of certain forces at work in England and France which are helping to create a better order for the individual.' "—Am Hist R

"One regrets that the author in the present case has covered so much ground with almost no use of the comparative method to which his choice of material almost commits him. It partly accounts for the fact that the conclusion is a general abstract discussion which might easily have been written if the study had not been made." Amy Hewes
— Am Hist R 34:130 O '28 800w

"The author in this volume attacks a vital subject and grips it with the firm hand of exhaustive research. . . This book is commended to those who, under the influence of the propaganda of plutocracy, have come to be despairing in heart about the prospects for social justice through conscious working out of democratic ideals. Here are the facts about the marvelous progress of England and France in our own time. They hold lessons for our own country. They give hope for the future of democratic civilization." J: A. Lapp
+ Christian Century 45:953 Ag 2 '28 550w

"Anyone who has worked in the heavy clay of this field will recognize that it is far easier for the critic to set up his requirements than for the author to fulfil them, and will give Professor Pipkin the least of what is due to him by remarking in this book an important and scholarly achievement in a field where the laborers have hitherto been too few." G. E. G. Catlin
+ — Pol Sci Q 43:287 Je '28 600w
St Louis 25:372 D '27

PIRANDELLO, LUIGI. Old and the young (I vecchi e i giovani); auth. tr. from the Italian by C. K. Scott-Moncrieff. 2v 395;379p $5 Dutton

28-14115

"The scene is Sicily in the '90's. Here we are introduced to the old, the young and the middle-aged—to so many characters of so many sorts that some, of whom we have heard from the beginning, do not appear until the middle of the second volume. . .In these people we have a congeries of ambitions which are played one against the other. Thru them we see the fortunes of Sicily itself at stake; for in a kind of plot and counterplot the old patriotism and the new, the old royalism and the new capitalism, meet and clash and bring forth ruin."—N Y Times

"In 'The Old and the Young,' there are perhaps 300 supreme Pirandellian pages—pages of breathless agitation, violent movement, of twinkling humor, acid sarcasm, exquisite pathos, pages where the Italian author's bitter and ironical spirit lays hold on the stuff of life, blends mood, philosophy, action into unity, creates. There are 700-odd pages in the two volumes of the novel. It is well worth the reader's while to skim them both, to reach these moments where Pirandello is at his highest." Arthur Livingston
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 Je 10 '28 1100w

Reviewed by S. L. Rich
Boston Transcript p3 Je 9 '28 1550w

"It is unlikely that such a book will achieve any great popularity, colored as it is with an overbrocaded Victorian feeling for tragic romance. And yet despite such weaknesses, from the Twentieth Century point of view, there is a power and purpose to this novel that makes it a vivid class picture of pre-Fascist Sicily in the throes of a social movement, conceived but not yet born."
Ind 121:117 Ag 4 '28 220w

"There seems little enough reason for having translated this dull, sprawling, enormous, old-fashioned political novel, dealing in a prose of unexampled stiffness with the organization of the pre-war Fasci and the roots of the Sicilian labor movement. The general effect is that of a bad chromo lithograph. There is not a trace here of the essential Pirandello who was still to develop, the analyst of personality and the wizard of metaphysical drama."
— Nation 127:20 Jl 4 '28 100w

"A first-rate historical novel, to which Mr. Scott Moncrieff has given the translation it deserves."
+ New Statesman 32:supxviii D 1 '28 680w

PIRANDELLO, LUIGI—Continued

"The vast machinery of the story, the endless introduction of characters, description of family backgrounds and presentation of situations, work harm against the book. One has no wish to belittle the strength and solidity of the book, for they are marked; but one cannot help expressing disappointment over what is probably the most ambitious of Pirandello's books. This vast upheaval has a significance which we grasp appreciatively with the mind, but which somehow leaves us cold." L: Kronenberger

+ — N Y Times p5 Je 3 '28 1200w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 226:adv Jl '28 110w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:431 O '28
Spec 141:sup879 D 8 '28 620w

"It is through its profound psychological penetration that the work achieves its deepest interest and significance. There are moments of melodrama verging on bathos, and a somewhat over-liberal indulgence in insanity, which threatens to become Pirandello's obsession. But as a whole the work is convincing and powerful, and deserves to be considered as a distinguished novel of disillusion, a brilliant study of social and psychological motivation, and a creative work of high rank in modern fictional writing." Carroll Hollister

+ World Tomorrow 11:422 O '28 350w

PIRANDELLO, LUIGI. One-act plays; ed. by Arthur Livingston; tr. by Elisabeth Abbott, Arthur Livingston and Blanche Valentine Mitchell. 230p $2.50 Dutton

852 28-8379

Eleven one-act plays by the author of Six characters in search of an author. The volume is one of a series of Pirandello's works to be published under the general supervision of Arthur Livingston.

Booklist 24:394 Jl '28

Reviewed by Glenn Hughes
Bookm 67:590 Jl '28 130w

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 Ap 1 '28 90w

Boston Transcript p5 My 12 '26 400w

"In these one-act plays there are to be found elements both of cleverness and modernity, together with a dash of that pretentious brusqueness of spirit which is supposed to suggest the stature of the author. Whether because the translations—from various lands—are only indifferently considerate of English idiom, or because the pieces themselves are merely Pirandello in an off moment—certainly the off moments would be particularly confusing—these eleven plays seem amateurish and slightly breathless. Still one might read them with vague enjoyment and a vaguer gesture, as of one being Pirandellian."

+ — Ind 120:213 Mr 3 '28 120w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:404 Jl '28
Pratt p31 autumn '28

Reviewed by Jane Dransfield
Sat R of Lit 4:913 My 26 '28 480w

PITKIN, WALTER BOUGHTON. Twilight of the American mind. 362p $3 Simon & Schuster

301 Intellectuals. United States—Intellectual life. United States—Civilization. United States—Social conditions 28-23312

"From beginning to end, with armies of facts and machine gun battalions of figures, Professor Pitkin lays siege to the reader's understanding with one staggering question. He states it in the introduction to his book: 'Our problem is: What can the Best Minds do with their best minds?' In other words, how is the superior 1 per cent. of the population to find work to do? It is Professor Pitkin's thesis that there is not at the present time nearly enough suitable work for this group, and that this discrepancy between the number of intelligent persons and the number of suitable jobs is going to grow greater and greater as our civilization follows its present lines of advance."—N Y Times

---

Reviewed by B. W. Kelly
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p29 D 9 '28 500w

"His statistics are arresting, to state it mildly. And whether or not his theory and his prophecies shall be proved to be correct, his posing of the question of his book is undoubtedly a salutary challenge to thought. It is well that shallow optimism should be sharply jolted and that we should be moved to ask where we are going, in our passion for getting ahead! The book is entertainingly, as well as forcefully, written. It is sure to be not only eagerly discussed but widely read."

+ N Y Times p24 O 21 '28 520w
Outlook 150:1034 O 24 '28 300w

"Professor Pitkin, who unquestionably has an able mind, has presented a forcible thesis, yet it all depends upon the scale of values. One questions his proportions more than his design. The world is much more than an employment bureau; and intelligence, though it becomes a drug on certain markets, will not lose its occupation. It may drop many points in its quotation on 'Change and yet pay (intangible) dividends." Joseph Jastrow

— + Sat R of Lit 5:397 N 24 '28 800w

"The book recommends itself by the fresh nature of the thesis. Unfortunately Mr Pitkin has not been content to develop his thesis simply and cogently. He has buried it in a mass of speculation which, taken as a whole, is far-fetched and unconvincing."

— + Springf'd Republican p7e O 7 '28 620w

PLAYGROUND AND RECREATION ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA. Parks; a manual of municipal and county parks comp. as a result of a nation-wide study of municipal and county parks conducted by the Association, in co-operation with the Am. inst. of park executives at the request of the Nat. conf. on outdoor recreation; ed. by L. H. Wier. 2v il $20 Barnes, A.S. & co.

711 Parks. Playgrounds. Community centers 28-9302

"These two volumes constitute the most comprehensive study ever attempted of the history and development of recreational facilities of the country."—Boston Transcript

---

Booklist 24:386 Jl '28

"Every park official will be impressed with the thoroughness with which the compilation has been pursued." F. P. H.

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ap 7 '28 700w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:476 O '28

POINCARE, RAYMOND. Memoirs of Raymond Poincaré (1913-1914); tr. and adapted by Sir George Arthur. v 2 333p $5 Doubleday, Doran [21s Heinemann]

B or 92

This second volume of the Memoirs of M. Poincaré covers the twenty months preceding the outbreak of war. The translator has adapted and condensed the original, omitting personal matters and compressing two volumes into one.

Reviewed by S. B. Fay
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 O 28 '28 1150w

"The second volume of M. Poincaré's memoirs (considerably abridged from the original French and not very well translated) is very like the first, a depressing book, showing a clever, narrow mind, set in the pre-war mould and impervious to experience. M. Poincaré retells the now well-known story of the seven months preceding the war; he adds little or nothing of importance to our knowledge."

— Nation and Ath 43:472 Jl 7 '28 120w

"These memoirs, as they appear in English, have defects in addition to those belonging to the statement of a case. Sir George Arthur has adapted, as well as translated, the original; two volumes are compressed into one, passages dealing with French politics or purely personal matters have been suppressed or summarized. And the literal translation of the historic present occasionally makes understanding difficult and reading less agreeable than would be the case if a less literal version had been given."
— + Sat R 145:839 Je 30 '28 660w

"The second volume does not compare in interest or importance with the first. Sir George Arthur has therefore done well to condense the lengthy account of M. Poincaré's ceremonial activities and to present with considerable fulness only that part of the story which deals with July 1914. Unfortunately the translation does not measure up to the high standard set in the first volume. Apart from numerous minor mistakes, there are ten passages in which M. Poincaré's language is seriously distorted; indeed in many of them he is made to say the opposite of what he wrote." B. E. Schmitt
— + Sat R of Lit 5:395 N 24 '28 1450w

"From first to last M. Poincaré never quite loses sight of his object, which is to apportion blame and pronounce a verdict, but the evidence apart from the verdict is so interesting, and his occasional digressions so entertaining, that even those who do not think that the truth can be summed up in the one word—guilty—as applied to the Imperial Prussian prisoner at the bar, can have no quarrel with his singleness of purpose."
Spec 140:837 Je 2 '28 800w

"The weakness of the book is that M. Poincaré allows himself too much to be influenced by his passion for controversy. To a large extent, the book simply becomes another contribution to the acrimonious discussion and interpretation of facts which are in everyone's knowledge; while on the other hand, it is not sufficiently balanced or complete to give it any special value or authority."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p387 My 24 '28 1300w

POLIAKOFF, SOLOMON L'VOVICH. Rejected Messiah. 289p $2.50 Boni
28-19755

In the middle of the seventeenth century, Sabbatai Zevy, a young Jew of Smyrna, dreams a prophetic dream. He sees himself as the Messiah who shall lead his people to power, and dreams that with the coming of a beautiful and sinful woman his destiny shall be fulfilled. She appears, and Sabbatai gains many followers but his enemies increase with his fame. In a test of power against the Moslems and their leader Mohammed IV, Sabbatai loses and his Messianic dream is shattered. This rejected Messiah is an historical figure.

"Mr. Poliakoff has made a very appealing figure of his Messiah, through sympathetic treatment. The steps that lead toward the self-proclamation seem very reasonable, and Sabbatai's character afterwards is understandable. Mr. Poliakoff has made him out to be in no sense a fakir or mercenary. Story and conversation move very easily along. The infusion of romance is not a sickly, forced thing but rather a vital part of the theme. Mr. Poliakoff has handled it all in an engaging way." C. B. P.
+ Boston Transcript p2 S 22 '28 480w

"There is much in this story that is suggestive of the setting that produced Jesus—in the mass psychology of the time and even in the personal psychology of the hero. It is a picture for the Christian apologist to ponder." T. P. Smith
+ World Tomorrow 11:473 N '28 150w

POLIAKOFF, VLADIMIR (AUGUR, pseud.). Peace in Europe. 96p $1.50 Appleton [3s 6d Selwyn & B.]
940.5 Europe—Politics [28-8424]

"'Augur's' journalistic training has taught him the art of condensation, and in less than a hundred pages he manages to deal with the relations of Great Britain and France, with Germany, Poland, Italy and their problems, and he also provides us with a survey of the League of Nations."—Spec

Reviewed by Hiram Motherwell
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Mr 25 '28 280w

"His arguments are theoretically sound, but they leave out of account the actual affront to German sovereignty which the Polish corridor constitutes for the mass of Germans and which is a matter of practical politics. There is a good deal of illogical criticism of Germany and a good deal of not very clear enthusiasm for Poland." T. J. C. Martyn
— + N Y Times p20 Mr 18 '28 350w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:498 O '28

"So many people become dull when they write about international relations, but not the author of Peace in Europe. Like Mr. Norman Angell, he has a gift for lucid exposition, and students of European conditions will be all the better for reading this little volume."
+ Spec 139:886 N 19 '27 680w

"Slight though the treatment is, there is much which will obtain general consent. The author is on more doubtful ground when he insists that Poland is and shall be recognized as a 'Great Power.'"
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p966 D 15 '27 80w

POLING, DANIEL ALFRED. The heretic. 233p $2 Doubleday, Doran
28-24276

A young clergyman in a city parish opens a campaign to clean up the river front and to win living wages for the bargemen. His able assistant is a war comrade whom the elders of the church consider a heretic. Against opposition from the church and the river gangsters the campaign proceeds, and in a rush of melodramatic events the Angel of the Barges is rescued from the Killer, the minister confronts and spares the murderer of his son, and love and the golden rule win the battle.

"'The Heretic' is a compound of 'In His Steps' and Nick Carter, with an infusion of Hollywood, where it will probably be welcomed as a prodigal son. Why consciously religious fiction is almost invariably inept and mawkish it is difficult to say, unless it is that to-day, as was not the case in the time of Bunyan, its writer feels that he must adopt a defensive attitude not only toward important characters, but toward possible readers as well. This story has as little verisimilitude as if it had been based on a social survey."
— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 O 14 '28 200w

"Though sentimentally mawkish and unconvincing, it is quite evidently honestly meant." F. H. M.
— + N Y Evening Post p8m N 3 '28 180w

POLLOCK, JAMES KERR, ed. Readings in American government. 354p $2.50 Holt
342.73 United States—Politics and government 27-19728

A book of collateral readings to be used in connection with an introductory study of American government. The selections have been drawn in the main from the classics of political literature and the speeches and writings of our greatest statesmen.

"It is a worth-while volume and not simply another book of readings."
+ Am Pol Sci R 22:215 F '28 160w

POLLOCK, J. K., ed.—Continued

"There can be no doubt but that the choice of the author of these concise, clear, comprehensive, and readable writings, speeches, or decisions of the courts has been above the ordinary. A worthy volume for the study of both student and general reader." E. A. Cottrell

+ Ann Am Acad 137:262 My '28 220w

POND, EDGAR LE ROY. Junius Smith; a biography of the father of the Atlantic liner. (New Grafton hist. ser.) ltd ed 292p $5 Hitchcock

B or 92 Smith, Junius 28-4366

"This volume is a record and memorial of a pioneer in trans-Atlantic steam navigation. Junius Smith graduated from Yale in 1802 and, going to England not long after on legal business, remained there for thirty-eight years to engage in commerce. By his enterprise the British and American Steam Navigation Company was organized. The successful voyage of that company's first steamship, the Sirius, from Cork to New York, in 1838, was a more sensational event than Lindbergh's flight to Paris. . . Mr. Pond's book consists for the most part of the letters of Junius Smith and other documents."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

"It is a very interesting volume not only because of the detailed information given concerning the services of Junius Smith, but also because of data relating to early steamship lines, the marine engines and structural features of their vessels, their business methods, their freight and passenger traffic, and their financial tribulations." G. G. Huebner

+ Am Hist R 33:893 Jl '28 500w

"The editorial treatment of the materials, aside from the first two chapters on the state of trans-Atlantic navigation before the days of the Sirius and the Great Western, is not such as to rouse the interest of the general reader."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 O 28 '28 210w

"This is the sort of work that belongs in the library of either a historical society or an enthusiast, but nowhere else. Treated differently, it might have been interesting to a large number of people, for its subject contains unusual possibilities of excitement and inspiration. As it is, the book is simply a compilation of facts about the planning and construction of Mr. Smith's ships, their dimensions, and their various voyages, presented to the reader through a strange assortment of clippings, records, and letters."

Boston Transcript p2 Mr 7 '28 80w

PONSONBY, ARTHUR AUGUSTUS WILLIAM HARRY. Falsehood in war-time. 192p $2 Dutton [2s 6d Allen & U.]

940.488 European war, 1914-1918—Propaganda. European war, 1914-1918—Atrocities [28-24973]

Mr Ponsonby exposes some of the distortions of the truth, the fabricated incidents, and the official and unofficial lies circulated as propaganda in all the countries involved in the late war.

"The collection of facts will prove useful to show what actually is the practice of fraud during war. It is an interesting study of the moral degradation involved in all wars." C. D. B.

Int J Ethics 39:119 O '28 80w

Nation and Ath 43:259 My 26 '28 230w

"Mr. Ponsonby's little book, so far as it recalls the cruder falsehoods which, especially at the beginning of the War, obtained a large circulation, is a useful warning against undue credulity. But even in this particular the author greatly under-estimates the efforts made by the Government, at least in this country, to discriminate between the true and the false, and he practically ignores the Bryce Report on Belgian atrocities."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p455 Je 14 '28 220w

"What Mr. Ponsonby has done briefly someone ought to do with encyclopedic thoroughness. Meantime this collection is decidedly to the good." D. A.

+ World Tomorrow 12:518 D '28 500w

PONSONBY, ARTHUR AUGUSTUS WILLIAM HARRY. Samuel Pepys. (English men of letters; new ser.) 160p $1.25 (5s) Macmillan

B or 92 Pepys, Samuel 28-30455

The chief English authority on diaries and diarists, who has revealed the treasures of many old diaries including some obscure and forgotten ones, here studies the greatest of English diarists. He shows Pepys as seen by his contemporaries, ignored and forgotten during the eighteenth century, and then raised to fame in the early nineteenth century when the manuscript volumes of the Diary were discovered and deciphered and the first edition issued in two volumes in 1825.

"With Mr. Ponsonby's experience of other diaries behind him, his comparisons and observations have an authority which no specialized and isolated study of Pepys himself could have given them." V. Sackville-West

+ Nation and Ath 44:179 N 3 '28 900w

"With every kind of diary at his fingers' ends, so that parallel passages and modern instances fairly gush out of him, Mr. Ponsonby now comes to the examination of the greatest of them all, and while disclaiming any attempt to exhibit Pepys in a specially new light, he approaches his subject in a novel way." M. J. C. M.

+ Spec 141:sup539 O 20 '28 1100w

"An important feature, and one that hardly anybody else could have carried through with such success, is Mr. Ponsonby's comparison of Pepys with other English diarists. The verdict is high: 'Pepys can hold his own and surpass all diarists by merits which some of the others have and by merits which none of the others have.' A careful estimate of those merits is perhaps the most important part of Mr. Ponsonby's work."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p752 O 18 '28 700w

POPE, HUGH. Catholic church and the Bible. (Calvert ser.) 106p $1 Macmillan

282 Roman Catholic church. Bible. Whole —History 28-12027

What the Bible means to the Catholic church, what the Church has done as custodian and interpreter of the Bible, and what the attitude of the church is toward the free use of the Bible by its children—these are some of the questions presented and forcefully answered by the author.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 S 16 '28 480w

"The author is the principal English authority on this matter and his work is both comprehensive and clear."

+ Boston Transcript p3 Jl 7 '28 90w

Springf'd Republican p10 Jl 3 '28 260w

PORTEOUS, ALEXANDER. Forest folklore, mythology, and romance. 319p $4.50 Macmillan [12s 6d Allen & U.]

398.3 Plant lore. Folklore. Trees 28-25043

From the fertile field of legendry springing up about trees and forests and mythical folk of the woods, the author has gathered a generous bookful of legend, superstition, fact, and fairy-tale.

Reviewed by M. P. Redfield

Am J Soc 34:570 N '28 120w

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 S 23 '28 150w

Boston Transcript p1 Je 16 '28 480w

New Statesman 31:338 Je 16 '28 180w

N Y Evening Post p5 Jl 28 '28 100w

"The author has read widely, variously and carefully for his material and has collected it from the books of explorers and travelers the wide earth over, and from many volumes dealing with the mythology and the folklore of nations of all time, and aboriginal tribes of all parts of the world."
+ N Y Times p8 Je 17 '28 450w

"If you have a feeling for the mystery and enchantment of the woods, you will want to own this book." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 149:397 Jl 4 '28 120w

"It is a jumble of extracts, chiefly from old works, ill-arranged and without the slightest pretensions to scientific outlook. Not the least amazing feature of this remarkable production is the fantastic selection of subjects."
— Sat R 145:468 Ap 14 '28 300w

"He has produced a book which the curious will love to consult and the pedantic to refer to; a book which should be in every upper school library, and at the hand of every one to whom reference to such things is important. The bibliography which is incidental to the work is alone an important aid to scholarship in this direction."
+ Sat R of Lit 5:154 S 22 '28 380w

"The author has here put together, with praiseworthy industry and a formidable array of authorities, a vast amount of details concerning trees and forests in folk-lore, mythology and romance; but its value suffers from the way in which the information is confusedly poured out, with hardly any connecting thread of either scientific or literary interest."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p316 Ap 26 '28 150w

PORTER, MRS ELEANOR (HODGMAN). Fortunate Mary. 265p $2 Doubleday, Doran 28-21586

The volume completes the collection of short stories by the author of Pollyanna. The twenty-three stories here reprinted from many magazines are folksy stories of home life, and of young and married love.

"When Mrs. Porter died she left some hundred short stories, which have been appearing ever since. This collection embodies the last, and is significant of an age which is gone, for there blows through them a certain innocence and simplicity which writers today rarely dare attempt."
Boston Transcript p3 Ag 11 '28 250w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:548 N '28

PORTIGLIOTTI, GIUSEPPE. The Borgias: Alexander VI, Caesar, Lucrezia; tr. by Bernard Miall. 286p il $5 Knopf [12s 6d Allen & U.]
920 Borgia family 28-12023

An historical and psychological study of the Borgias, their ancestry, character, and crimes. Illustrated with reproductions from paintings.

Reviewed by A. W. Vernon
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 Je 10 '28 600w

"This latest biographer attempts to rejuvenate the faded Borgian glamor—the hair-raising tales of poison and unnamable sexual crimes—but he is even duller than his predecessors. Yet he argues so well and his pages bristle with so many authoritative citations that one might accept his deductions if they were not invariably unfavorable to this famous triumvirate of sinners."
— + Nation 127:94 Jl 25 '28 120w

"M. Portigliotti writes in an angry, anti-papal spirit which makes the Borgias less interesting than they really are. They were the genuine article, and, though Spaniards, the leaders of the Italian race. In an age of wickedness, they would be the most wicked, of wealth the wealthiest, of love of power the most powerful. Unfortunately they rather overdid it. M. Portigliotti is best on medical questions." Francis Birrell
— + Nation and Ath 42:910 Mr 17 '28 280w

"The fault of this new study of the Borgias, or the notorious members of the tribe, is a lack of general perspective. Alexander, Cæsar, and the mysterious Lucrezia are examined by the author in turn, but the spirit and struggles of the age they lived in, the drift of the history in which they played their parts, are not adequately related to their individual stories. The most original contribution of the author is his revaluation of Cæsar Borgia."
— + New Statesman 30:736 Mr 17 '28 220w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson
N Y Times p7 Ap 22 '28 1150w
Sat R 145:294 Mr 10 '28 400w

"Not a book we can advise for general reading, although it is undeniably important."
Spec 140:571 Ap 14 '28 70w

"Nothing in this vehement and declamatory disclosure of corruption is admitted in favour of the members of that degenerate family. Gossip and suspicion are frequently assumed to be evidence of fact; the historic background of contemporary events and ideas is disregarded; and little or nothing is said of what the modern historian must insist should be placed to the credit of Alexander as a statesman, and possibly as a Pope."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p141 Mr 1 '28 1750w

POST, EMILY (PRICE) (MRS PRICE POST). How to behave—though a débutante; opinions by Muriel. 227p il $2.50 Doubleday, Doran
395 Etiquet 28-29254

Muriel the debutante chatters with great vivacity and little wit of the way things are done in her exclusive circle.

Boston Transcript p2 D 8 '28 250w

"It is a pretty bad book. It combines a complete disregard of dignity and intelligence with the most objectionable form of snobbery. And we just keep right on harking on the style. Really, my dear, we counted eight-nine 'reallys' before we simply broke down, we mean, really." Marjorie Johnson
— N Y Evening Post p8m N 24 '28 250w

"Mrs. Post has hit upon a remarkably original way of giving life to the dry bones of what must still be called etiquette, while at the same time offering a very clever picture of the Younger Generation."
+ N Y Times p40 N 25 '28 480w

POTEAT, EDWIN MCNEILL. Scandal of the cross; studies in the death of Jesus; to which is added the author's essays: "Tolstoy: Religion without redemption" and "Religion and redemption." 189p $2 Harper
232 Atonement. Jesus Christ—Crucifixion 28-13393

The author of this book believes in the redemptive power of the death upon the Cross as the center of the Christian moral system and warns his readers that they have no right to call themselves Christians unless they believe in the doctrine of the atonement.

Reviewed by S. J. Case
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 Ag 12 '28 620w
Boston Transcript p4 Jl 7 '28 200w

POTTER, PITMAN BENJAMIN, and WEST, ROSCOE L. International civics; the community of nations. 315p il $1.60 Macmillan
341 International law and relations 27-16720

"This is the first attempt to present in book form the civics of world relationships. The authors first describe the present world organization into nations, dependencies and colonies, and the growth of intercourse between them. They then discuss the fundamental problem of securing peace and justice among them; and finally indicate the path that must be followed to reach that goal, culminating in a discussion of the League of Nations. Planned as a text for classes. Useful for study clubs and discussion groups."—Wis Lib Bul

POTTER, P. B:, and WEST, R. L.—Continued

Am Pol Sci R 22:225 F '28 70w
Booklist 24:270 Ap '28

"While many of the books cited may not be available in most high schools, their inclusion will enable the book to be used more intensively in higher institutions. The style of the book is interesting, and should appeal to the thoughtful lay reader, as well as to the student. The book is printed in large, clear type, and is attractively bound. Despite the criticisms cited the authors have performed a signal service effectively. The book should be widely adopted, either as a text or as a supplementary work in the high school, and it should find extensive use as the basic test for courses in normal schools and junior colleges." H. R. Tucker
+ — Hist Outlook 19:94 F '28 1050w

"Though it is intended primarily as a high school text, there is hardly anyone but the most seasoned professorial incumbent who will not achieve from it a new conception of the possibilities and the conditions of a more intelligent and fruitful basis of international intercourse."
+ Springf'd Republican p10 Ja 2 '28 450w
Wis Lib Bul 24:53 F '28

POWEL, HARFORD WILLING HARE. Virgin queene. 255p $2 Little 28-11058

The lively tale of Barnham Dunn, high priest of modern advertising, who in the act of writing a particularly optimistic bit of copy, is overcome by such a distaste for his job that he hurls his typewriter to the floor and starts for England. There he acquires a Warwickshire manor and an extraordinarily accomplished major-domo to make life easy for him. Surrounded by the ghosts of Tudor England Dunn conceives a play so amazingly Shakespearean that it is pronounced by the critics an authentic lost work of the master, and involves its writer in an amusing series of adventures.

Booklist 24:405 Jl '28

"This is a refreshing situation about which Mr. Powel has written his novel. The characters and elements in the story are quite commonplace, but an ease and breeze of telling carry the book along entertainingly. A diverting conceit of placing a decidedly New-World type in an Old-World setting makes the 'Virgin Queene' good light reading. Mr. Powel is cynical enough about the advertising business but sympathetic towards its protagonist." R. M. Fisk
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 My 13 '28 650w

"Mr. Powel has accomplished that most difficult task of being amusing without ever becoming a low comedian, of being serious without ever becoming portentous. He undertakes a theme that has worried many American writers until the tremolo has appeared in their voices. But although, like them, he is distressed at a skilled young man ready to 'throw away his art on mere advertising,' he also possesses the ability to appreciate the self-contained humors of genius." W. E. H.
+ Boston Transcript p2 My 2 '28 1300w

Reviewed by E. F. Edgett
Boston Transcript p5 My 19 '28 380w

"A lively, intelligent and original book."
+ Ind 120:485 My 19 '28 280w

"Mr. Powel's satirical adventure story is quite the most readable and well written thing of its kind we have read in a long while. He starts off on the dangerously familiar ground of the high-powered writer of national advertising, but these early pages are done so sharply and lightly that we feel we are being introduced to entirely new figures on the advertising stage. We would like to call the attention of Mr. Sinclair Lewis, whose next novel is to be an annihilation of an ad-man, or admen, to Mr. Powel's gift for making satire and real people at the same time." R. L.
+ New Repub 55:102 Je 13 '28 230w

Reviewed by Robert Hyde
N Y Evening Post p5 S 15 '28 450w

"All in all, 'The Virgin Queene' is a fine, laughable book. In a world where P. G. Wodehouse is king, Mr. Powel is an excellent Prince of Wales."
+ N Y Times p8 Ap 22 '28 720w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 149:75 My 9 '28 160w

"An amusing and whimsical tale told rapidly and with considerable urbanity."
+ Sat R of Lit 4:896 My 19 '28 320w
Wis Lib Bul 24:163 My '28

POWEL, HARFORD WILLING HARE, and CARTER, RUSSELL GORDON. Giant's house. 229p $1.75 Appleton
28-19619

In this modern version of Jack the giant killer, the giant's house is New York. Jack is a country boy who comes to the city to make good. His assaults on the giant's house fail, one after another, and losing courage he goes home, to find himself and his life work in organizing a craftmanship guild for boys.

Boston Transcript p5 N 7 '28 350w

"The moral is obvious and yet novel, but not at all helped by Jack's vision of himself as President in Washington." T. M. Longstreth
Sat R of Lit 5:352 N 10 '28 50w

POWELL, DAWN. She walks in beauty. 284p $2.50 Brentano's
28-8141

"It is a small-town story of two young girls, Linda and Dorrie Shirley, who are brought up in the dubious squalor of Aunt Jule's railroad boarding house. Linda is a squeamish, petty snob, determined to win a place in the provincial society which despises her because of her environment. Dorrie, on the other hand, has an unquenchable zest for life and an unconscious sense of beauty, which enable her to find delight in the eccentric rags of humanity by whom she is surrounded. Each of the sisters is rewarded, quite logically, according to her expectations and deserts, but Miss Powell wisely refrains from pointing any moral."—New Repub

Reviewed by Margery Latimer
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p38 Ap 15 '28 780w

Boston Transcript p2 Je 6 '28 500w

"The author's phraseology is fresh and pithy. She can successfully apply a sympathetic insight to the creation of memorable characters. She observes, records, and quite frequently manages to communicate ecstasy to the reader."
+ Ind 120:413 Ap 28 '28 110w
Nation 126:652 Je 6 '28 80w

"Despite occasional crudities and lapses into bathos, 'She Walks in Beauty' has the stir of life in it—an encouraging attribute for a first novel." E. H. W.
+ — New Repub 54:332 My 2 '28 140w

"For all its occasional simperings of style, it captures the mood or moods of youth growing up in a small town." J: R. Chamberlain
+ — N Y Times p2 Je 24 '28 80w

"There are the germs of an idea and of a very good story hidden in the superficial pages of this book. But the author has not yet learned what are fairy tales and what are not." Ruth Suckow
— + N Y World p11m My 6 '28 450w

"It is written in the Winslow-Suckow tradition and, in part, very well so written. Individual portraits of eccentrics who obtain bed and board at Aunt Julie's hostelry are striking and complete; all that Dawn Powell sees in them she easily transcribes to her pages. They are striking not because Mrs. Powell has brought out new elements in their character nor because she has viewed them from a new psychological angle, but because she has selected 'odd' characters to begin with, and the portraits are complete because the author has set the boundaries so near the starting-point that the distance between is not difficult of accomplishment."

+ Sat R of Lit 4:869 My 12 '28 280w

POWELL, EDWARD ALEXANDER. Embattled borders; eastern Europe from the Balkans to the Baltic. 374p il $3.50 Century [16s Long]

940.5 Europe—Politics 28-11641

The author travelled over a broad belt of eastern Europe extending from the Balkans to the Baltic, observing the political conditions which are affecting the peace of Europe and talking with the rulers and political leaders of most of the countries visited.

"Most of his estimates concerning contemporary questions seem fair and sound. But when he is dealing with history or the imponderable values in politics he betrays exactly which group of propagandists got him in tow. The accounts of post-war Italy and Hungary for example, are merely the hasty transcriptions of casual conversations, set down without the slightest effort to document and check. The volume contains many inaccuracies of fact and numerous slips of the pen." Hiram Motherwell

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 My 13 '28 700w

"A comprehensive and intelligent account of a year spent among the troubled kingdoms of eastern Europe."

+ Ind 120:557 Je 9 '28 200w

"It is an excellent bit of work, despite reservations. The book reads as pleasantly as a novel was expected to read before novels became the hardest going in literature. Chief among the reservations in respect to an otherwise excellent story is what might be called in some instances bias. . . It would be fairer to say that Mr. Powell has strong convictions. And strong convictions may be forgiven a man, provided he does not suppress evidence. This, so far as I am able to ascertain, Mr. Powell never does." Simeon Strunsky

+ — N Y Times p4 My 13 '28 2200w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:495 O '28
R of Rs 77:adv29 Je '28 100w
Wis Lib Bul 24:190 Je '28

POWELL, SHEPPARD T. Boiler feed water purification. 363p il $4 McGraw

621.194 Feed-water purification 27-20660

"Comprehensive, treating of the various methods from the simplest form of removal of suspended matter by plain subsidence to the more elaborate mechanical devices effecting practically complete removal of suspended and soluble solids and gases. Chapters on corrosion and embrittlement."—N Y New Tech Bks

---

Reviewed by J: F. Norton
Am J Pub Health 18:692 My '28 90w
Booklist 24:236 Mr '28

"The book is timely, fresh in its treatment and contains remarkably few old ideas out of old books. It is a worthy production which will prove to be widely useful." R. S. Weston

+ Eng N 99:806 N 17 '27 400w

"Valuable features are: the excellent illustrations, actual and diagrammatic, of commercial apparatus for different kinds of water treatment; operating results and cost figures from the author's experience with some of the processes; the bibliography at the end of each chapter; the summaries of advantages and disadvantages of many of the processes; the appendix of 31 pages of useful tables and collateral information such as definitions of terms and specifications for chemicals for water purification. The book should be available to every one interested in boiler feed-water." W. D. Collins

+ Ind & Eng Chem 20:103 Ja '28 200w
N Y New Tech Bks 12:48 O '27
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:156 Mr '28
Pratt p17 spring '28

POWELL, SYDNEY WALTER. Roving years; adventures of a wanderer; with an introd. by F. V. Morley. 255p $2.50 Day

B or 92 [28-8622]

"Mr. Powell started his wanderings by enlisting in an Indian ambulance corps in the South African War. He was twenty-one at that time and for eighteen years thereafter he wandered all over the world, working as a day laborer, soldier, stevedore, as a member of the British South African Police, tramping through the Australian bush, and trading in Tahiti."—Publisher's note

---

"Mr. Powell is a novelist, and it is his merit that he sees life with the novelist's gift of precise and satisfying detail. So vigorous and personal is his narrative that one reads even the oft-told tale of Gallipoli without a hint of weariness."

+ New Statesman 32:302 D 8 '28 200w

"Mr. Powell has the story-telling knack and he has a high degree of skill in the use of the English language. Although his style is simple and straightforward he makes the reader see and appreciate the scenes through which he goes, the people he meets. And life has developed in him a quality of philosophic, critical observation and estimate that salts his book throughout most acceptably."

+ N Y Times p12 S 9 '28 450w

"Mr. Powell is an interesting example of an interesting type. He belongs to that inconsequent, but courageous, band of pioneers upon whose shoulders the work of opening up the world has so largely rested. And he writes well, with modesty and humor. 'Roving Years' is, in truth, a book to read: it is, as one might say, a sprightly autobiography of successful failure."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:408 N 24 '28 180w

POWICKE, FREDERICK MAURICE. Stephen Langton. 228p $5 (15s) Oxford

B or 92 Langton, Stephen, abp. [28-22366]

"Professor Powicke has published the four Ford Lectures delivered by him at Oxford in 1927, adding to them appendixes, notes, and genealogical tables. The book as a whole is best described in his own words, 'a tentative introduction to a fresh, almost unworked, field of study.' He has examined carefully all the evidence available to add detail to the general, and current, outline of Stephen Langton as Archbishop of Canterbury and active supporter of Magna Charta. The result is a full and valuable study of a phase in English, or rather Catholic, history."—New Statesman

---

Reviewed by J: H. Holmes
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 O 14 '28 550w
Boston Transcript p5 Ag 29 '28 150w
Nation and Ath 43:570 Jl 28 '28 300w

"A better introduction to Langton or a more thoughtful sketch of ecclesiastical and scholastic life in the eleventh and twelfth centuries could hardly be imagined."

+ New Statesman 31:336 Je 16 '28 150w

"If there is one specially distinguishing feature of the Ford Lectures given by Professor Powicke last year at Oxford, it is their quality of atmosphere. The Paris that moulded Langton's mind has infused itself into this book,

POWICKE, F: M.—Continued
and lent it some of the subtle excitement of contemporary speculation upon issues that were vivid and often poignant."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p389 My 24 '28 930w

POWYS, LLEWELYN. Henry Hudson. (Golden hind ser.) 213p il $4 Harper [12s 6d Lane]

B or 92 Hudson, Henry. America—Discovery and exploration 28-5665

The hope held by the Cabots and other explorers of finding a northern passage to the East also inspired the voyages of Henry Hudson, the English navigator who worked for the Dutch East India company. As background to his biography of Hudson Mr Powys sketches these earlier explorations. The account of Hudson's voyages, to the tragic end in Hudson Bay, is stirringly told and an interesting discovery of the author is included—a document in Latin giving a report of the verdict passed upon the mutineers.

Booklist 24:362 Je '28

"Up to a certain point, Mr. Powys's book is excellent. From numerous fore-runners he has gathered the story of the London explorer's five dramatic years, and has told it well. But having dealt extensively with the Hudson voyages, he devotes all too little space to what happened to the mutineers on their return to England." J: N: Beffel

+ — Bookm 67:322 My '28 600w

"Llewelyn Powys has brought to his laudable task a sensitivity of intuition, a romantic but disciplined comprehension of his subject matter and a beauty of phrasing that assuredly place this volume very high among the more delectable productions of the season." Herbert Gorman

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 F 26 '28 920w

"Mr. Powys himself feels the glamour of the adventurous voyages of Henry Hudson, which were pregnant with such high destinies for two hemispheres. And as he feels he writes. The splendor of the sea and the tang of its winds flow through many of the pages. The desolation of Arctic wastes and silences broods over others." F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p3 Mr 3 '28 1100w

"In telling the story—and he tells it remarkably well—Mr. Powys had to rely mainly upon the log of Hudson for the first part of the voyage and the subsequent narrative of Prickett. The first is reliable, but extremely dry; the latter, from a navigator's point of view, is rubbish, but from the point of view of the student of this voyage, it is an extraordinarily interesting human document. . . The book is illustrated with several maps and pictures, not the least effective of which are the charts in red and black of Hudson bay and the Hudson river, used as end-papers. It is printed in readable type, on good paper and is attractively bound. Altogether one may unreservedly commend both this particular book and the series of which it forms a part." L. J. Burpee

+ Canadian Hist R 9:168 Je '28 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p63 My '28

Reviewed by Padraic Colum

Dial 84:511 Je '28 1200w

"His book is a delightful essay, lightened by very happy literary and other allusions." Bartlet Brebner

+ Hist Outlook 19:290 O '28 80w

"Mr. Powys, we beg you to cease trying to be aloof and to become again just as nastily and lovingly personal as you were in 'The Verdict of Bridlegoose.' Give us no more scholarly concoctions that hundreds of others can brew as well as you can, but devote your pen once more to the depiction of the stabbing agony of a human being under the grip of implacable disease, to the quiet beauty of the Devonshire landscape, or to that remorseless continent where the eternal symphony of 'Kill, Kill!' and 'Blood, Blood, Blood!' rumbles and screams through the desert air." R. F. Dibble

— Nation 126:460 Ap 18 '28 700w

"Mr. Powys is a little prone to underline the picturesque, and to pad his narrative with moralizing; but he has passages of admirable description, and is at his best, as he should be, in telling of the final tragedy of mutiny and desertion in Hudson's Bay. He has achieved a distinct 'scoop' in unearthing the verdict on the mutineers, part of which is reproduced. A word of thanks must be added for the clear sketch maps and the full bibliography." C. E. Fayle

+ — Nation and Ath 42:622 Ja 21 '28 220w

"A good narrative, a competent style, with moments of elevation, and moments of rhetoric a trifle hollow; a fascinating book, considered as history, adventure or biography." Shaemas O'Sheel

+ N Y Evening Post p12 Mr 10 '28 700w

"It is a double drama, the adventure of a man, a hero, and the adventure of two criss-crossing worlds—surely a theme to drive a Dumas mad as to the first of it and make a Jules Verne sigh at the impotence of his imagination when it came to the second. Well, all that is to be said is that Llewelyn Powys has turned the trick a little more than adequately." C: W. Thompson

+ N Y Times p1 Mr 4 '28 1550w

"The tale of his voyagings has been done here by a poet, with a fine appreciation of the romantic side of Arctic exploration. There is an imaginative power in many of the descriptions in this book which recalls the sailors' legend that Hudson found the passage after all." W: McFee

+ N Y World p10m Mr 11 '28 400w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:344 Je '28

St Louis 26:194 Je '28

"Mr. Powys gives every evidence of knowing his Hakluyt and his Purchas well, though we wish that he had learnt from them to check his taste for periphrasis and 'fine writing.' "

+ — Sat R 144:741 N 26 '27 120w

Sat R of Lit 4:775 Ap 21 '28 220w

"Equipped with illusion and daring, Hudson sailed here and there, up and down and about, in a series of adventurings for which Mr. Powys, caught by the glamor and tragedy of the thing, supplies the imaginative setting wherever the documents fail. . . It is a brilliant piece of description, the more commendable because, notwithstanding its color, it sticks close to facts where facts there are. The chief historical contribution of the book, aside from its skilful weaving of the story, is its account of the trial and acquittal of the mutineers, in 1618." W: MacDonald

+ Sat R of Lit 4:822 Ap 28 '28 980w

"A very satisfactory and clear account of Hudson's voyages. It is true that Mr. Powys's attempt both to be a modern historian and a romantic sometimes leads to a complete separation of history and comment on it, which is even marked by different styles. But the historian is not to be expected to solve his artistic problems as completely and as neatly as other writers, or if he does so it is a work of supererogation."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p299 Ap 26 '28 850w

Wis Lib Bul 24:253 O '28

POWYS, THEODORE FRANCIS. House with the echo. 235p $2 Viking press [7s Chatto & W.]

[28-15379]

Twenty-six stories of English rustic life told with the author's accustomed ironic humor.

Booklist 25:122 D '28

"His attitude is that of a philosopher who sits by a peat blaze with a pipe, some ale, and re-creates the town, letting its people crowd around him. He seems to feel that by being direct and simple and always understanding, and by being unmoved by anything his characters think or do, the reader will experience the full force and grimness of the tale." Margery Latimer

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 S 23 '28 1000w

Boston Transcript p2 S 19 '28 500w

"There are more than a score of lean and sinewy stories in this volume—the harvest of an eloquent economy."

+ Dial 85:537 D '28 140w

"Here his stories appear actually bony, almost insignificant. Coming so shortly after his extraordinary 'Mr. Weston's Good Wine,' this volume possesses all the accidental disadvantages of anti-climax." C. P. F.

— Nation 127:275 S 19 '28 60w

"There is less brutality in it than in most of Mr. Powys's books, and in at least one story, 'I came as a Bride,' there is beauty. But his vision of the countryside has become almost stereotyped. He took one look at it (you might say), and his art stood still." Raymond Mortimer

— + Nation and Ath 43:332 Je 9 '28 100w

"He has the same happy faculty that Chekhov, has, of telling just the right thing, with the barest economy, and leaving out everything else. When he makes you laugh, you roar, even if you roar silently; and when he tells you a tragic story, there is nothing more to be said." T. S. Matthews

+ New Repub 56:185 O 3 '28 200w

"Mr. Powys, once having decided to be neither brutal nor obscene, is incorrigibly sentimental, and he relies on his readers to swallow these tales whole for the sake of the click as they go down. But even the person who looks at advertisements of the country without ever going there might suspect the authenticity of these fat curates and simple old men." G. W. K.

+ New Statesman 31:259 Je 2 '28 160w

"A simple, almost biblical beauty is the distinguishing mark of Mr. Powys's style. It is poetry in the most honest sense of the word. it has an artless innocence about it that makes one marvel." Ruth Lechlitner

+ N Y Evening Post p11 O 13 '28 420w

"They are the short and simple annals of the poor. They are not iridescent; but they glow with a gentle, a half eerie light. They are humane, ironic, wise. And their author, now frequently neglected for writers with a noisier pen, will be spoken of in the future with something of the reverence now attaching to the names of Blake and Thomas Gray." P. H.

+ N Y Times p5 S 16 '28 930w

"Perhaps 'The House with the Echo' shows a new departure from Mr. Powys's previous work in that his humanitarianism, once latent, has now risen to the top: every page testifies to his pity for the poor. He is indeed one of the most sentimental of modern novelists; but those who dislike the colour of his sentimentality take him for a satirist or a realist, at any rate a vilifier of the English countryside." L. P. Hartley

Sat R 145:672 My 26 '28 130w

Times [London] Lit Sup p518 Jl 12 '28 400w

POWYS, THEODORE FRANCIS. Mr Weston's good wine. 317p il $3.50 Viking press [15s Chatto & W.]

28-8710

"All Mr. Powys's stories have suggested allegory. They do not describe actual life, but rather evoke a dream image more simple than the reality, in which good and evil are seen more clearly confronted than the realistic imagination sees them. In the present story Mr. Powys openly adopts the allegory and employs it with great effect. Mr. Weston is a name for God, and his wines, of two kinds, are Love and Death. He comes at seven o'clock one evening to an English village; all the clocks stop, time is changed to eternity, and various strange things happen to the villagers. The rector begins to believe in God, and dies in peace, Mrs. Vosper is carried down to Hell, water is turned into wine, and a young girl has intercourse with an angel of whom she has dreamt."—Nation and Ath

---

"This reviewer takes pleasure in commending 'Mr. Weston's Good Wine' to connoisseurs of fine vintages. . . It is one of those surprising creations for which English literature is famous." W: McFee

+ Bookm 67:570 Jl '28 180w

"The lechers and the godless of Folly Down are seen as 'cases' from a psychiatrist's notebook. Mr. Weston moves through a picturesque nursery of the obsessed, giving stimulants or a pitying, terminating dose of his black wine. As a comment on the idea of deity the book has no importance, but it has the merit of a parable against the surviving notions of good and evil, told gracefully and in terms of solid sense." T: Beer

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 Mr 4 '28 2400w

"One wonders what gift Mr. T. F. Powys has that makes the reading of his books a real experience. As stories they are incoherent; his people never develop, and obviously they are distorted. And yet, in spite of all that, something of a revelation comes out of all his books." Padraic Colum

+ — Dial 85:350 O '28 1150w

Living Age 334:844 My 1 '28 350w

"In no other of Mr. Powys's fictions has the unique quality of his mysticism been expressed with such clarity and poetry." C. P. Fadiman

+ Nation 126:517 My 2 '28 650w

"In fullness of conception and sustained imagination 'Mr. Weston's Good Wine' is probably the best story Mr. Powys has yet written. It is also by far the most balanced and satisfying. . . There are beautiful and inimitable pages in 'Mr. Weston's Good Wine'; the whole is executed with skill and power; and the quality of the imagination, though exaggerated, is profound." Edwin Muir

+ — Nation and Ath 42:488 D 24 '27 350w

"Although it is accomplished with intelligent restraint and delicacy yet, when simplified and stripped of its many adornments, the allegory expresses little more than a modified approval of the Rubaiyat. But examined in its garment of beauty and fancy, one cannot decipher nor altogether trust it. Some of it is pure mysticism, as impenetrable as the shadows in a wood at twilight; some of it is sheer fantasy, consisting of happenings irrelevant and arbitrary." Tess Slesinger

N Y Evening Post p12 Mr 31 '28 650w

"So far the most memorable of his tales. It is also that in which the element which may roughly be termed allegory is most openly avowed." Hamish Miles

+ Sat R of Lit 4:740 Ap 7 '28 930w

"In this irreverent book are things repulsive as toads, and things fragrant as wallflowers; it is cynical and it is compassionate. The style is built cunningly with crockets and gargoyles of whims and idlesse; and it is too sophisticated for any ordinary reader." R. A. Taylor

+ Spec 139:1016 D 3 '27 250w

Times [London] Lit Sup p956 D 15 '27 420w

PREEDY, GEORGE, pseud. General Crack. 497p $2.50 Dodd [7s 6d Lane]

28-20759

Christian Ketlar, soldier of fortune, illegitimate son of a ducal line, rises to tremendous power in the game of war between France and Austria, by wit, diplomacy and the sword. He wins the proposed bride of Leopold of Austria, promising in return to make Leopold an emperor. But Leopold and Eleanor do not forget each other. A traitor to Christian brings about a meeting and Christian, who has won an empire, loses a bride.

PREEDY, GEORGE, pseud.—Continued
Reviewed by F: H. Martens
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p13 S 9 '28 550w
Boston Transcript p8 O 27 '28 180w

"The background is well done. The men are much more living than the woman, though it is the book's greatest defect that Leopold is portrayed as so much of a puppet that one can care little for his rise or fall. Prince Christian, on the other hand, is well drawn."
— + New Statesman 31:520 Jl 28 '28 170w

"It is a good, stirring tale of adventure in an actual eighteenth century Europe whose dramatis personae only have been Heutzened and as such offers entertaining reading." F. H. M.
+ N Y Evening Post p9 S 29 '28 130w

" 'General Crack' is amazingly ponderous, astonishingly filled with words and saturated with the most dismaying amount of conversation we ever have tried to slosh our way through." F: F. Van de Water
— N Y Evening Post p9m N 3 '28 600w

"The book has life and movement and color, splendor of pomp and pageantry, masking a general crumbling, a dying order. It tells an interesting, exciting story full of intrigue, of love and hate, clashing interests, and a sense of great issues at stake."
+ N Y Times p6 S 9 '28 630w

"A long historical novel, leisurely in the manner of its telling, and devoting much more attention to its story than to its style, but highly readable." Herschel Brickell
+ No Am 226:adv S '28 110w

"The story is rather silly, but Mr. Preedy manages to get dignity and impressiveness into its details. Its relation to history is conducted on the give-and-take principle; it gives a love-interest, and takes the period charm. The latter is the more interesting, and Mr. Preedy has shown skill in extracting it." L. P. Hartley
+ — Sat R 146:218 Ag 18 '28 220w

"The narrative has much that is arresting and novel; it usually sweeps along with such force and color that we regret its occasional longwindedness and difficulty.
+ — Sat R of Lit 5:492 D 8 '28 180w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 30 '28 250w

"In his ambitious story Mr. George Preedy attempts to depict the international affairs of Central Europe during the early part of the eighteenth century. But his motives are purely romantic, and he does not leave that difficult period, during which the Wars of the Austrian Succession raged, any clearer."
Times [London] Lit Sup p521 Jl 12 '28 250w

PRESCOTT, FREDERICK CLARKE. Poetry & myth. 190p $2 Macmillan
809.1 Poetry. Mythology. Imagination
27-19390

The author's purpose is to show from its nature and from its origin in the mind, how poetry should be read and interpreted. The greater part of the book is devoted to explaining the development of poetry from myth, showing that both are products of the imagination and must be understood by the imagination rather than by the intellect.

"In effect the book becomes a plea not only urging the necessity of appreciating poetry and myths through their imaginative power but declaring that in our modern life we need to cleave to this power as the only way of apprehending ideal truth. Arrived at this position, it would be easy for the author to lose himself in a mystical fog. But he doesn't. His plea is supported by thorough scholarship and examination of the evidence."
+ Bookm 66:xli F '28 230w

"Throughout the work there is a wealth of quotations, both from the poets and from those who have discussed the subject of myth or poetry or both. The author seems willing to sacrifice brevity to completeness, but the style is not dogmatic, and in parts it is very sympathetic." M. G.
+ Boston Transcript p4 O 15 '27 500w

"He is earnest and painstakingly careful. The curious thing about it is that he seems to think it is something of a discovery. Every poetically minded person, however, has known it intuitively. Prosaic and literal minds have never known it and they never will. One feels that Mr. Prescott has devoted his time to writing a book about poetry rather than to the more difficult task of creating poems. It is to be hoped that he will reform and lead a better life."
+ — J Religion 8:166 Ja '28 200w

"The volume is no mere treatise on verse-making, no mere restatement of time-honored praises, but an honest and independent attempt to define what happens when a work of art is brought to birth. I cannot help regarding him as a scholar with a rare gift for lucid exposition and as a critic with unusual independence of mind. He has approached the central problem of creative art in a somewhat novel way, and has made contributions of solid value to its solution." G. H. Gerould
+ Sat R of Lit 4:820 Ap 28 '28 900w

"The weakness of Professor Prescott's book seems to be due to an indecision as to his real purpose, and deeper still, to a failure to think out his own ideas. . . The second half of Professor Prescott's book is fortunately on an altogether higher level. His vindication of the essential autonomy of poetical thought is sound and timely."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p986 D 29 '27 1300w

PRESCOTT, H. F. M. Lost fight. 310p $2.50 Dodd [7s 6d Constable]
28-22665

Sire Adam de Morteigne, a knight of Lorraine, is excommunicated by a vindictive bishop and his marriage declared annulled. Adam is much in love with his wife, tho his affection is not returned. He journeys to Rome to plead his case, but is unsuccessful and wanders on to Cyprus and joins in the Sixth Crusade. After many wanderings he returns to his wife—the marriage having been declared in good standing—and meets his death at the hands of her lover.

"No mere recital of the story of 'The Lost Fight' can give more than a faint intimation of the intense realism and the intense romance of Miss Prescott's narrative which really is the Middle Ages and neither a fandango of high derring do nor a spout of modern wisecracks about Guinevere. The characters live and breathe the air of their own times, accept the conventions of their age, wrestle with their souls, and yet fill a round of ordinary tasks." Donald Douglas
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 O 28 '28 650w
Boston Transcript p3 O 27 '28 450w

"The colours are bright, but they are kept simple, and there is psychological subtlety without complexity. Not greatly ambitious, the author achieves in these pages a constant careful beauty which from the first page marks her work as both unusual and distinctive."
+ New Statesman 31:546 Ag 4 '28 150w

"The author is trying to do something difficult; and the book is certainly a fine attempt in really imaginative fiction." R. A. Taylor
+ Spec 141:109 Jl 21 '28 230w

"In telling the story of The Lost Fight Miss Prescott returns to medieval France; but her period is a generation later than that of the 'The Unhurrying Chase,' and her scenes are set in Lorraine, Italy, Cyprus and Jerusalem. Once again she shows her mastery of the historical intricacies of the time. She paints her scenes of feudal society with convincing facility. . . She successfully conveys the impression that her characters are real folk, bound by custom, swayed by passions and ambitions, who just happen to have lived in a time of vivid colour and picturesque action."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p518 Jl 12 '28 400w

PRESTON, HARRY JOHN. Memories; being the sporting reminiscences of a gallant gentleman. 288p il $5 Sears [15s Constable]

B or 92 [28-28376]

"Here is a book full of the mellow memories of a long life well spent in the company of many of the principal figures of England and America. Harry Preston, three-score-and-ten, is one of the characters of the Anglo-Saxon world. Prize-fighter in youth, hotel owner at seventy, horseman, yachtsman, flying-man—sportsman all his life—he knows everybody from the Prince of Wales to Gene Tunney, and they all call him 'Harry.' "—Boston Transcript

---

Boston Transcript p2 S 26 '28 230w

"Mr. Preston's kindliness, activity, and zest for contacts with men of the time compose an entertainment much above the common level of latterday memories; the sporting world perhaps predominates in the anecdotes, and there are glimpses of other circles."
Nation and Ath 43:404 Je 23 '28 180w

"He is interested in everybody, and almost everybody will find something of interest in his book."
+ New Statesman 31:170 My 12 '28 280w
Sat R 145:602 My 12 '28 600w

"A volume of reminiscences full of personality, sparkle, and charm."
+ Spec 140:650 Ap 28 '28 800w

"This breezy narrative of the happy life of Mr. Preston is as good-natured and amusing as its author."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p310 Ap 26 '28 380w

PREZZOLINI, GIUSEPPE. Nicolo Machiavelli, the Florentine; tr. from the Italian by Ralph Roeder. 257p il $3.50 Brentano's [10s 6d Putnam]

B or 92 Machiavelli, Niccolò 28-9769

"Of the various forms of literary art, biography has revealed during these latter years the most interesting and the greatest number of variations. Signor Prezzolini's life of his great fellow Florentine offers us still another biographical form which has borrowed something from certain types of the contemporary novel and is altogether fresh, original, and engaging. Villari veiled his eyes from the more Rabelaisian elements of Machiavelli's life and character whereas our present author veils his eyes from nothing. The result is a picture which we can only take as a 'true image,' the picture of a veritable Renaissance gaillard in whom the capacity for intense, austere thought was mingled with the raffish traits of a Villon or a Benvenuto Cellini."—Ind

---

Booklist 24:401 Jl '28

"It is a remarkable study of a remarkable time and people. With swift, sure strokes is the portrait of Niccolo Machiavelli painted verbally." F. B.
+ Boston Transcript p6 Ap 21 '28 750w

"Signor Prezzolini is, we gather, a 'black shirt' who sees in Machiavelli the remote but indisputable progenitor of the Fascist philosophy; but he is no propagandist, fortunately, and he is deeply in love with his subject. His book is highly impressionistic, yet he is able to say that he has given us facts not to be found in the formal biographies; and he has certainly conveyed a spirit and a reality that are beyond the reach of the formal biographers." Van Wyck Brooks
+ Ind 120:460 My 12 '28 1050w
Nation 127:301 S 26 '28 180w

"Prezzolini has made Machiavelli cease to be an adjective and become once more a living figure. And what a keen, jocose, irresistible figure. Incidentally it was high time this Prezzolini was made familiar to us. Among the informed of his own country he is no prophet without honor. A journalist of distinction in a land where the occupation is esteemed rather than sniffed at, he is sensibly recognized in Europe as a biographer and historian second only to Ferrero, and probably not even that for very long. And, in passing, I must pause to lift a cheery bonnet to Ralph Roeder's translation, a fine sparkling piece of work." L: Sherwin
+ N Y Evening Post p8 My 12 '28 1050w

"The book is a light yet accurate essay on Machiavelli's relation to the life and times of his native Florence. It is couched in a salty, racily picturesque style, which has been an occasional temptation to his translater. The pages are studded with American colloquialisms where the original is gaily Rabelaisian." J: Carter
+ N Y Times p5 Ap 29 '28 1550w
R of Rs 77:adv26 Je '28 100w

Reviewed by Carlo Sforza
Sat R of Lit 5:140 S 22 '28 980w

"Determined at all costs to bring Machiavelli up to date, the author adopts the boisterous manner with his subject, blowing about the hapless Florentine like an east wind. He buttonholes the reader, and takes him into his confidence with familiar winks. He makes so many excursions in the style of Rabelais; he invents so many modern parallels, that it is only occasionally that he offers some information, not always trustworthy, concerning Machiavelli. Indeed, this is an amusing enough book, if you are already well acquainted with your Machiavelli."
— + Spec 141:455 O 6 '28 250w

"Here is a volume fresh, outspoken, pretentious, individual, vulgar, learned, lively, pugnacious, provocative, opinionated, vivid, a tremendous relief from the ordinary run of biographies and character-studies. The work is excellently translated from the Italian by Ralph Roeder." R. W. N.
+ Springf'd Republican p12 Ag 24 '28 480w

PRICE, BURR. The world talks it over. 308p $1.75 Henkle

341.1 League of nations. Peace 27-24087

Leading up to an account of the League of nations—its genesis, organization and activities and America's participation, both official and unofficial, Mr Price sketches the history of the progress of peace thought during the last one hundred and fifty years.

"It is a readable and interesting study from which the reader may draw his own conclusions." F. R. Dulles
+ Bookm 67:106 Mr '28 100w

"The volume is an excellent factual record of the League's activities. It is almost unique of its kind in that it undertakes no special pleading, and for this reason alone ranks among the best of all the volumes which have attempted a comprehensive study of the League. On the other hand, it refrains from any critical evaluation of the League's influence on world affairs, and on disputed points is inclined to give Geneva the benefit of the doubt." Hiram Motherwell
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Jl 29 '28 300w

"This work is not even the slightest opinionative. It is straight and unqualified fact from cover to cover, and the service rendered is that of presenting to the public at large a very readable summary at least of the first eight years of a new era." A. S. R.
+ Boston Transcript p7 Ja 14 '28 420w
Cleveland Open Shelf p59 My '28
Nation 126:328 Mr 21 '28 20w

PRICE, BURR—Continued
"It is an excellent piece of reportorial writing; there is no more to be said." T. J. C. Martyn
N Y Times p3 F 19 '28 70w
No Am 225:adv Ja '28 30w

PRICE, EDITH BALLINGER. Citizen of nowhere. 264p il $2 Greenberg
27-22998

"This volume, offered with pleasing candor to 'children of all ages,' concerns the adventures of a little group of lucky youngsters and some necessary elders in both the hemispheres. The tale tells how Owen and Diana Hempsted on a vacation at Coastward Island, Maine, meet Jack Palmer, who has a mystery in his parentage, rescue a grown-up artist from the sea, and sail for France to find out who Jack really is, anyhow."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Ja 15 '28 120w

"Edith Ballinger Price adds one more charming novel to her list which will delight her old admirers and bring her new friends." M. Van R. King
+ N Y World p11m Ja 15 '28 110w

"Boys and girls who know the Maine coast will find additional interest in the story."
+ Springf'd Republican p7f D 18 '27 90w

PRIESTLEY, ANNA FREEBORN. How to know Japanese colour prints. 78p il $5 Doubleday, Doran
761 Color prints 27-24679

"As a short general introduction for the beginner who wants to know something about Japanese color prints, their origin, their technique and the subjects they portray, this little book fits into a hitherto unoccupied place in the steadily growing literature about Ukioye, Japan's popular pictorial art."—N Y Evening Post

---

Booklist 24:274 Ap '28

"A joyous book! She has traveled in Japan, and as an enthusiastic amateur she has bought prints and has read for her diversion a certain number of the books on Oriental art. She has enjoyed it all thoroughly, and in a flutter of enthusiasm and a burst of good will she has undertaken briefly to share her delight." Raymond Weaver
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 Mr 25 '28 450w

"Miss Priestley has not only been a careful student of thousands of the color prints and of the works of the best authorities on the subject, but has had the further advantage of travel in Japan. While her writing is at times a bit amateurish, it has the interest of a fine enthusiasm." G: W. Harris
+ — N Y Evening Post p13 D 24 '27 250w

PRIESTLEY, JOHN BOYNTON. Old dark house. 269p $2 Harper
28-3978

With this book the English critic joins the ranks of the mystery writers. It is a veritable tale of horror, the story of five people who took shelter from a black night of torrential rain in an old dark house in a remote corner of Wales. Here they encountered human horrors infinitely worse than the storm and flood from which they sought refuge.

Booklist 24:284 Ap '28

"A pleasant successor to 'Adam in Moonshine.'" Will Cuppy
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 F 5 '28 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p124 N '28

"The book is better than a mere mystery story; it is a novel of character and strength and meaning—recording the growth of men and women exposed to strange and sinister conditions. It will rank among the best in its special field."
+ Ind 120:261 Mr 17 '28 180w

"'The Old Dark House' is readable; one who knew nothing of the author as critic would know that a writer of parts was entertaining and seeking, perhaps, to enlighten him. But I can assure the publishers that at page 158, where it has pleased them to paste a yellow seal around the remaining pages, and to guarantee your money back if, having read thus far, you can resist the desire to read on, I could have resisted and left the seal unbroken, without half trying; and that silly is the friendliest word I can find for the use of the seal in this book." H. E. Dounce
+ — N Y Evening Post p12 F 11 '28 550w

"There are none too many stories comparable with this one."
+ N Y Times p6 F 5 '28 500w

"Mr. Priestley writes splendidly and the first half of his story is a bit of a triumph. Yet for the captious critic of the terror tale, disappointment lies not many pages beyond the seal." Vincent Starrett
+ — N Y World p11m Ap 22 '28 220w

"This is a good book, which is not surprising, for Mr. Priestley is an English critic and essayist of competence and real distinction. It is also an interesting, indeed an engrossing, story, which is more surprising for critics usually do not make good story tellers. And it is a book with qualities which should recommend it to a circle of readers far wider than a critic as critic could ever hope to reach." H: S. Canby
+ Sat R of Lit 4:589 F 11 '28 560w

"The conversation is witty and finished, and the scenes are well selected and vividly presented. Altogether, the book is an artistic performance."
+ Springf'd Republican p7f Ap 15 '28 150w

Wis Lib Bul 24:91 Mr '28

PRIESTLEY, JOHN BOYNTON. Too many people, and other reflections. 224p $2.50 Harper
824 28-22246

Essays and reflections on the circus, musical comedies, flower shows in a little town, the first fall of snow, hats, notebooks, and many well-loved English characteristics.

"A gentle, urbane and wholly British philosophy invades mildly—perhaps too mildly—these tiny discourses upon an overcrowded London, and a multitude of other themes."
Bookm 68:xiv N '28 100w

Boston Transcript p2 S 26 '28 580w

"Reflective, humorous or gracefully petulant, 'agreeable writing' might describe the entire lot, were it not for the gleaming exception of 'First Snow'—which transmits the acute perception and excitement of beauty as only a work of art can do. But for this one clear, delicate note the colloquy is as ineffectual in the clamor of contemporary expression as a 'modulated voice' in a stadium cheering-section." D. B. Woolsey
+ — New Repub 57:77 D 5 '28 200w

N Y Times p28 D 9 '28 350w

PRINGLE, HENRY FOWLES. Big frogs. 276p il $3 Vanguard press
920 United States—Biography 28-24465

Men prominent in various phases of American public life are the subject of these essays, which are enlivened with anecdotes and verbal thrusts, and illustrated with portraits by Bry. The big frogs are Herbert Hoover, Jimmy Walker, the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, Kenesaw Mountain Landis, Ivy Ledbetter Lee, Bernarr Macfadden, Samuel Untermyer, Frank Hedley, William H. Anderson, Will H. Hays, Robert F.

Wagner, Curtis D. Wilbur, Theodore Roosevelt, jr., John S. Sumner.

For biographical sketch of Henry F. Pringle see Wilson Bulletin 3:380 D '28

"He has handled his Frogs in a clever manner, giving his reader a pleasing and often humorous slant at their private and public selves." H. F. M.

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 8 '28 360w

"Henry F. Pringle comes exceedingly close to achieving his purpose for any one who will approach 'Big Frogs' with an open mind. Mr. Pringle, in recent years, has brought a new note to biography. It is, under analysis, nothing more than honest reporting. He presents both sides of a character, much as John Galsworthy does in a play, and leaves the final estimate to common sense. It is, all in all, a splendid piece of work." Russell Cruse

+ Outlook 150:1131 N 7 '28 200w

"The author's journalistic training has stood him in good stead, for he knows what is immediately and directly significant in any public figure, and how to convey this significance—sometimes with a touch of exaggeration—to the ordinary reader. Along with these virtues, the deficiencies of the volume are no less evident. None of the author's information is really expert, first-hand, or recondite, and none of the interpretation is a kind which places the subject in a new light."

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:380 N 17 '28 400w

PRINGLE, WILLIAM HENDERSON, ed. Economic problems in Europe to-day; with an introd. by Charles Grant Robertson. 146p $2 Macmillan [5s Black]

330.94 Europe—Economic conditions

[L28-123]

Lectures delivered at the City of Birmingham commercial college, on present day economic problems of the countries of Europe. Contents: Foreword, by the editor; Introduction, by Sir C: G. Robertson; France, by G: Peel; Italy, by G. Salvemini; Czecho-Slovakia, by R. W. Seton-Watson; Russia, by Michael Farbman; Germany, by W. H. Edwards; Belgium, by Emile Cammaerts.

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 28 '28 550w

"A lucid and reasonable account. Inasmuch as the revival of British trade, with the reduction of unemployment and lower taxes, is conditional upon the restoration of Europe to normal conditions, these lectures have a very serious interest for English readers."

+ Spec 140:733 My 12 '28 80w

Times [London] Lit Sup p292 Ap 19 '28 110w

PROCTOR, MARY. Romance of the sun. 266p il $2.50 Harper

523.7 Sun 27-23999

A distinguished English astronomer shows, from the popular standpoint, some of the wondrous revelations concerning the sun, discovered by means of photography and the spectroscope. The corona is specially considered and descriptions are given of personal experiences in viewing this phenomenon. The last chapter contains an account of the total eclipse of the sun which occurred on June 29, 1927.

Booklist 24:196 F '28

"Parts of this book are extremely interesting. In describing the attempts of various astronomers to explore the mysteries of our nearest star, Miss Proctor justifies the use of the word 'romance' in her title. She gives a stirring story of the difficulties encountered by scientists, particularly when they try to catch the sun in eclipse."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 14 '28 90w

Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '28

"Miss Proctor quotes largely from her authorities; indeed, one-quarter of the text is made up of excerpts. Whether so excessive a use of quoted passages is wise in a book of this description is very questionable. But however that may be, an entertaining account is provided of astronomers and their friends in quest of observations which are only possible at rare intervals."

Nature 121:860 Je 2 '28 150w

No Am 225:adv Ja '28 20w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:151 Mr '28

"Miss Proctor has inherited much of her distinguished father's ability in popularizing the myths and marvels of astronomy, and her new book gives a clear and accurate description of the chief facts relating to the sun."

+ Sat R 145:330 Mr 17 '28 120w

"Miss Proctor's book, 'Romance of the Sun, contains many interesting pages for those who have little or no knowledge of astronomy, and who wish information about that part of this science which deals with the nearest star, our own sun. The book is written in popular language so that it can be read easily by any one. . . Even in a popular book of this length, it would seem that a fuller treatment of the source of the sun's heat would have been of interest to any reader. A more detailed description of the sun's surface would have increased the value of the book for the majority of readers. The subject of sun-spots is rather neglected. A brief and superficial description of sun-spots is given in the introduction." Ida Barney

+ — Science n s 67:444 Ap 27 '28 850w

"The principal function of Miss Proctor's book is to show how the spectroscope has been developed, so that we now have marvellous instruments by which the sun, in all its fiery eccentricities, may be photographed, and so measured and named in its constituent elements. The amateur should find the book very useful." R: Church

+ Spec 140:sup616 Ap 21 '28 760w

Wis Lib Bul 24:86 Mr '28

PROUST, MARCEL. Cities of the plain [Sodome et Gomorrhe]; tr. by C. K. Scott Moncrieff. ltd ed 2v 352;384p $15 Boni

28-3977

This is the fifth part of Proust's monumental novel "Remembrance of things past." Sexual inversions of the characters, men and women, which were hinted at in earlier sections of the work are here dissected in full, with an interlude in which the autobiographic hero turns again to his remembrance of things past.

Boston Transcript p4 F 15 '28 1050w

"The passionate weight of certain pages of this profound and revealing book should cause hesitation to those who judge certain other passages with too great temper. As alert to the conflicts of his characters, to their sufferings, their pitiable subterfuges, the nervous masks through which their telltale eyes look out, as a lover to the steps of his mistress, Proust can never be accused of moral insensibility." Alyse Gregory

Dial 85:165 Ag '28 1100w

"Abominably and inexcusably proof-read. The translation of Mr. Moncrieff continues excellent. His task is extraordinarily difficult, but this difficulty is also its own consolation and facilitation to Mr Moncrieff, for it throws him and us, in a score of places, back to the French and keeps us constantly, though never irritatingly, mindful of an original—which, contrary to orthodox opinion, is what a translation should do." Lionel Trilling

N Y Evening Post p14 Ja 21 '28 1800w

"Many persons have probably been attracted by his reputation for pornography whom his merely literary qualities might have repelled And yet it is hard to imagine that they could extract much unlawful enjoyment from the pages of 'Sodome et Gomorrhe.' Its manner is so measured and reflective, so utterly im-

PROUST, MARCEL—Continued

personal as to put it almost in the class of biological research. Habits and emotions are treated to a minute dissection that recalls Fabre's famous studies of insect life. In fact, there are times when the latter seem more exciting. Fabre's pictures of scorpions embracing one another, or of the female spider devouring her lover have a dramatic warmth that one never finds in Proust." Rose Lee

N Y Times p15 Ja 8 '28 2700w

"'Sodome et Gomorrhe' presents material richer than usual to the reader, less static and more nearly dramatic, and none of Proust's many displays of snobbishness is more thoroughly in character or more satisfying than that of the Princesse de Guermantes' party. Proust's style is at its best throughout, and this is the last section which he corrected and reviewed for publication himself. . . However seriously one may take Proust (and many feel that he has been taken altogether too seriously), here we have him in English, admirably transplanted thanks to Mr. Scott-Moncrieff. But for some reason which certainly cannot be the selling price of the books, he has not been too well printed or proofread." Theodore Purdy, Jr.

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:630 F 25 '28 800w

PRYDE, ANTHONY, pseud. See Weekes, A. R.

PULLIN, V. E., and WILTSHIRE, W. J. X-rays, past and present. 229p il $4.50 Van Nostrand [16s Benn]

537.53 X-rays

"We have set out to tell the story of X-rays for the benefit of the enquiring layman because we believe that no general account of this fascinating branch of science is so far available for him. We have attempted to sketch a panoramic view of the subject, tracing its development in broad outline and indicating, with explanatory remarks, its bearing and the importance of its influence on modern scientific thought. We have also recorded all the important practical applications of X-rays, both scientific and industrial."—Preface

---

"Excellent monograph." A. W. Allen

+ Chem & Met Eng 34:692 N '27 550w

N Y New Tech Bks 12:48 O '27

St Louis 26:8 Ja '28

"Written clearly and readably, this useful book should fill [a] gap in popular scientific literature."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p199 Mr 17 '27 180w

PUTERSCHEIN, HERMANN, pseud. See Dwiggins, W: A.

PUXLEY, W. LAVALLIN. Magic land of the Maya. 244p il $4 Dodd [12s 6d Allen & U.]

917.28 Central America—Description and travel. Mexico—Description and travel [29-363]

Mr Puxley quickens with interest whatever he has to say of his wanderings in Central America. His book follows no particular plan, but whether he writes of natural scenery, birds or flowers, a page of history or the life of today, he shares his own interest and pleasure with the reader. Several illustrations.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 N 25 '28 100w

"The Magic Land of the Maya is written with an unusual sympathy and even tenderness of feeling. . . The author's sensibility evokes a quality of insight simply by its isolation from the stereotyped hardness of so many modern travellers. Mr. Puxley, simply by noticing its variety and prodigality, the glory of its flowers and multiformity of its fauna, returns to the vision of Hudson's Green Mansions."

+ New Statesman 32:92 O 27 '28 520w

"While he is a close observer and a fascinated and graphic reporter of scenery, birds and beasts and insects, in such matters as political affairs, international relations and economic developments, which seem to attract him as flame does a moth, he reveals himself as credulous, uncritical and prejudiced."

+ — N Y Times p18 D 30 '28 400w

St Louis 26:388 D '28

Sat R 146:396 S 29 '28 880w

"Mr. Puxley seems to be an amiable Englishman who likes to go to places he hasn't seen before and speak about them as if he were the first to discover them. Thus, for the better part of his book, he keeps talking about 'Central America' regardless of the fact that he is describing the country usually known as 'Mexico.' Most of the book is written in this very personal, wide-eyed style. Notwithstanding this prevailing ingenuousness, Mr. Puxley contrives to see a good deal that is interesting, first and last. From his remarks on bugs, fish and so on, one would surmise that he is by way of being an amateur ornithologist."

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:419 N 24 '28 400w

Times [London] Lit Sup p1015 D 20 '28 180w

PYLE, KATHARINE. Tales from Greek mythology. 312p il $2.50 (10s 6d) Lippincott

292 Mythology, Greek 28-7173

"Katharine Pyle here retells, with special reference to their interest and charm for young readers, thirty-four Greek myths. Among them are the stories of Prometheus, Pandora, Cadmus, Perseus, Niobe, Hero and Leander, Philemon and Baucis, Deucalion and Pyrrha, Atalanta, Oedipus and the Sphynx, the labor of Heracles, and others."—N Y Times

---

Booklist 24:408 Jl '28

"These tales are retold with a charm the exquisite illustrations reflect."

+ Boston Transcript p3 Je 6 '28 180w

"Katharine Pyle has a special gift for the retelling of ancient tales, as she has proved in other volumes, but never has she exercised that talent more effectively than she has done in the rewriting of these Greek myths. The twelve page plates that illustrate the book are exquisitely drawn."

+ N Y Times p12 Je 24 '28 110w

Pratt p9 autumn '28

Times [London] Lit Sup p244 Mr 29 '28 120w

Q

Q, pseud. See Quiller-Couch, A. T:

QUACKENBUSH, MRS ALICE T. A. Annuals of flowerland. 166p $1.50 Macmillan

716.2 Flowers 27-23905

A garden dictionary which lists the annuals in alphabetical order, describes each kind, and gives a word of advice about them out of the author's experience, or a bit of legend.

"Mrs. Quackenbush has delved into the legends of flowers, and mixes a salad of legend and etymology with a light main course of gardening instructions for the amateur."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 F 12 '28 90w

"This is an exceedingly pleasant little garden book, both for those who make gardens and those who only read about them."

+ Boston Transcript p3 Ja 7 '28 110w

"The book contains unusual bits of information and is readable if one's sense of style can be kept in abeyance."

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:1036 Jl 14 '28 210w

QUICK, HERBERT, and MACMAHON, MRS ELENA STEPANOFF. We have changed all that. 262p $2 Bobbs

28-8368

The story describes the misfortunes of a Russian family of wealth and position during the Revolution. To save her son Ilya, suspected of counter-revolutionary activity, from the firing squad, the mother offers her daughter Musia to the Bolshevist commissioner. He, however, loves the girl. His efforts to save the brother ruin him, and he flees with Musia to an unknown fate.

Booklist 24:365 Je '28

"The Russian revolution offers a vast field, scarcely touched in fiction. And yet this book fails to do it justice. . . There is displayed neither understanding of, nor sympathy for, the causes that brought about the revolution. The plot seems trite and the characters literary rather than lifelike."

— Bookm 67:xxvi Jl '28 150w

Reviewed by Dorothy Brewster

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p13 Ap 29 '28 1100w

"Mrs. MacMahon's part in the writing of the book must have been the greater, to judge from nearly every standpoint. The literary style is entirely different from Mr. Quick's. The atmosphere is too elaborate. Although the large outlines are the work of an experienced writer, the details show the hand of an amateur. The plot is marked more by a strained appeal to the public's sense of the melodramatic than by originality or finish. And everywhere it is most successful in the strictly descriptive passages which form a record of Mrs. MacMahon's own experiences during the Russian Revolution."

— + Boston Transcript p2 My 12 '28 180w

Christian Century 45:476 Ap 12 '28 110w

Cleveland Open Shelf p123 N '28

"With effective humor and restraint, but with power throughout, a story is told here which rings true, even if a Bolshevist commissar turns out to be the hero."

+ Ind 120:314 Mr 31 '28 90w

"A tragic, sincere tale of the doom of a family of the Kazan aristocracy—in the upheaval which has changed all social values." F. H. M.

N Y Evening Post p13 Ap 7 '28 80w

"While the impress of Herbert Quick's style is to be seen in 'We Have Changed All That,' the delicate shadings of the Slavic temperament could only have been done by one long familiar with her own people, and with a fine feeling for Russian characterization."

+ N Y Times p11 Ap 22 '28 550w

"The story is bitter; in fact, it spoils its effect by excessive bitterness. The pictures of successive Bolshevik officers who try to take advantage of the innocence and beauty of Musia Krassin is hardly convincing. Yet there is sincerity behind the bitterness, and Miss Stepanoff knows her scene and her people. Herbert Quick's part in the book, it is safe to say, did not extend beyond a little advice regarding the plot—and the plot is very simple—and correction of the style. Essentially the volume is the work of the Russian refugee, and not of the far more gifted author of 'Vandemark's Folly.' "

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:849 My 5 '28 450w

World Tomorrow 11:426 O '28 60w

QUIGLEY, HUGH, and CLARK, R. T. Republican Germany; a political and economic study. 318p il $5 Dodd [15s Methuen]

943.085 Germany—Politics and government. Germany—Economic conditions 28-25212

A study of contemporary Germany and of the complicated work of readjustment which has been carried out during the last nine years in its political and economic structure. The first part of the book is purely historical and describes the building of the German Republic; the second part deals with the organization of industry, the recovery of production and the stabilization of finance.

"Messrs. Quigley and Clark have told the story of the political evolution of Republican Germany in the first 120 pages of their book, and have told it exceedingly well. . . It is not possible to accord the same measure of praise to the remainder of the book, which is devoted to the economic recovery of Germany. Here the method of treatment is open to criticism. There is too much statistical and other detail, with the result that the narrative is apt to be confused and is certainly often dull."

+ — Nation and Ath 44:150 O 27 '28 630w

Reviewed by W: MacDonald

N Y Times p9 O 28 '28 1300w

R of Rs 78:adv36 O '28 70w

St Louis 26:329 O '28

"The authors of Republican Germany give us a balanced analysis of the political and economic forces which have appeared in Germany since the War such as we have found in no other book. In a very penetrating criticism of the German character they say that the German genius is economic rather than political. . . . The first part of the book is predominantly political and the second part predominantly economic. The first part, in our judgment, is not nearly so interesting or so important as the second part."

+ Spec 141:456 O 6 '28 780w

Times [London] Lit Sup p919 N 29 '28 1250w

QUILLER-COUCH, SIR ARTHUR THOMAS, [3] (Q, pseud.). Lecture on lectures, introductory volume. (Hogarth lectures on literature ser.) 60p $1 Harcourt [3s 6d Hogarth press]

378 Lectures and lecturing. Education, Higher 28-11840

Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch wittily and valiantly defends the lecture against those who would abolish it in favor of the book.

Dial 85:539 D '28 100w

"Like all his lectures, it has the whole grace and charm of a fireside conversation with a man rich in humanity, a millionaire in reading; but it is so delightful, so beautifully digested, that the feeling of pleasure is likely to smooth away all that disturbance which goads a student to the unnatural act of thinking." Bonamy Dobrée

+ — Nation and Ath 42:908 Mr 17 '28 180w

"If he had said, as he well might have done, that a teacher preparing to impart knowledge orally adopted instinctively a certain tone which is sometimes afterwards advantageously apparent in print, the relevance of his discourse would have been obvious. But his ostensible argument is that the lecture, in the literal sense, is still a valuable form of teaching and it is hard to see what connexion this has with a series of printed books." E: Shanks

Sat R 145:224 F 25 '28 380w

Sat R of Lit 4:1037 Jl 14 '28 330w

Spec 140:272 F 25 '28 150w

"He holds our attention to every phrase entertainingly stating the case both for and against the college lecture. He decides in favor of the practice, but contends that (at the English universities, at least) there are too many lectures, or rather that the student attends too many, and that some men of the ripest scholarship are not fitted to give lectures and should not be subjected to the ordeal."

+ Springf'd Republican p12 Ap 5 '28 230w

QUINN, ARTHUR HOBSON. History of the American drama, from the Civil war to the present day. 2v 296;359p $10 Harper

812.09 American drama—History and criticism 27-24419

In these two volumes Dr Quinn continues his history of the American drama, from the Civil war to the present day. From Augustin

QUINN, A. H.—Continued
Daly to Clyde Fitch he has written a complete record of each dramatist's work, and tho for the period from William Vaughn Moody to Eugene O'Neill, he has necessarily been more selective, the author believes he has omitted no important play. As in the earlier volume he has had access to many plays in manuscript hidden by authors and managers. There is a general bibliography and play list from 1860 to 1927.

Booklist 24:242 Mr '28

Reviewed by M. J. Moses
Bookm 67:108 Mr '28 300w

"His three volumes represent a vast amount of reading and theatergoing, and have put into compact and coherent form the fascinating story of our dramatic growth. Nobody's disagreement with details will much affect his conviction that the work as a whole has been ably and shrewdly accomplished." W. P. Eaton
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Ja 22 '28 620w

Reviewed by E. F. Edgett
Boston Transcript p5 Jl 14 '28 480w
Cleveland Open Shelf p99 S '28

Reviewed by Gilbert Seldes
Dial 84:156 F '28 720w

Reviewed by O. G. Villard
Nation 125:714 D 21 '27 420w

"As a chronicle, this history is admirable. It is on the critical side that it is vulnerable at spots. One of these is in the nature of the uncritical critical dicta which crop out from time to time. The allusion to common assumptions about older writers is the simplest short-cut to findings that would otherwise need detailed discussion; but Mr. Quinn assumes a good many things carelessly or recklessly." P. H. Boynton
+ — New Repub 55:339 Ag 15 '28 1000w

"Professor Quinn's volumes represent a prodigious amount of industry in reading manuscripts, summarizing their plots and arranging them into the pattern of history. He has performed a valuable service with notable skill and with an enjoyable devotion to his subject." J. B. Atkinson
+ N Y Times p2 Ja 1 '28 1850w

"For the student of American drama these two volumes, with their twenty-two chapters of well considered presentation of plays and playwrights in the United States since the Civil War, and its eighty pages of bibliography, and its play list and twenty page index, are of first rate importance. But Prof Quinn has presented his material in a way to warm the heart of any lover of the theatre who can remember Denman Thompson in 'The Old Homestead,' or James A. Herne in 'Shore Acres,' or William Gillette in 'Secret Service.'" D: A. Robertson
+ N Y World p10m F 26 '28 1550w

"Dr. Quinn's two noble volumes are impressive as works of scholarship, valuable as mines of information, and entertaining as reading matter." Rosamond Gilder
+ Outlook 148:392 Mr 7 '28 1150w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:113 F '28

"In the aggregate, the showing for American dramaturgy is impressive; the two later volumes reveal, on the part of our playwrights, constant progress in power and sweep of subject-matter and in expertness and delicacy of technical achievement. I know of no other book dealing with our dramatic literature that so successfully awakens this response in the reader." G: C. D. Odell
+ Sat R of Lit 4:842 My 5 '28 880w

"Prof Quinn is an urbane and interpretative writer rather than an academically critical one; that is why his volumes are so excellently informative for those who may care to trace the history of recent dramatic developments."
+ Springf'd Republican p14 F 24 '28 510w

"If A History of the American Drama is not a book to be read at one sitting, or two or three, it is a book to be owned. It is a laborious compilation that cannot be overlooked or enjoyed, that lacks judgment, originality, profundity or selection, but that is so crammed with the kinds of facts most people would never have the patience to acquire that it is really indispensable. In passing, it should be noted that Mr. Quinn's general bibliography makes its own comment on his indifference to the so-called newer theatre." D. M. Morton
+ Theatre Arts Mo 12:367 My '28 720w
Wis Lib Bul 24:55 F '28

QUINN, VERNON (CAPINI VEQUIN, pseud.). Hands up! palmistry for pastime; a book for information and amusement. 69p il $1 Stokes
133.6 Palmistry 28-1565

This is palmistry simplified by the question and answer method. To numbered questions concerning the hand and its lines there are keyed answers given at the back of the book.

Booklist 24:274 Ap '28

"A small book which affords material for entertainment along the newer lines of indoor games. Hostesses will be assured of an evening's excitement with this book on hand."
+ Springf'd Republican p7f Ja 22 '28 90w

R

RABAUD, ETIENNE. How animals find their way about; a study of distant orientation and place-recognition; tr. by I. H. Myers. (Int. lib. of psychology, philosophy and scientific method) 142p $2.75 Harcourt [7s 6d K. Paul]
591.51 Orientation. Animal intelligence 28-16035

The well known ability of ants, bees, and birds to find the shortest way home from a distant point is the subject of Professor Rabaud's inquiry. Of the two theories to account for this orientation—that insects, birds and animals are equipped with a special sense of direction; that there is no special sense, but cues to location are developed by the ordinary senses—the author's experimentation supports the latter view.

Boston Transcript p4 S 8 '28 250w

"Professor Rabaud throws a good deal of light upon some of the problems, but his conclusions seem to me often to be scrappy, and he leaves a good deal still unexplained." Leonard Woolf
— + Nation and Ath 43:299 Je 2 '28 1050w
New Statesman 31:392 Je 30 '28 670w
N Y Times p20 S 23 '28 380w
Times [London] Lit Sup p407 My 31 '28 550w

RADIN, PAUL. Story of the American Indian. 371p il $5 Boni & Liveright [21s Murray]
970.1 Indians. Indians of North America. Indians of South America. Mayas 27-25839

Dr Radin, an ethnologist who has spent his life in studying the American Indian, writes this popular account of Indian culture from the rise of the Mayan civilization, and of the great tribal movements that have taken place on this continent from Peru northward.

"The style is warm without sentimentality, often charming, literary rather than scientific. It is its intuitional insights that give the book a distinctive flavor and value. Dr. Radin appears to have read widely but, from intrinsic pleasure of interest rather than with systematic intensiveness of exactness. His hypothesis, so far as it is special and new, appeals as a sudden and more or less happy snatch, not as a growth resulting from long concentration or even a sustained emotional attitude. Midnight hours may have gone into this book: but not a drop of sweat. It is tossed off. It is half tour-de-force, half challenge—or at least provocation. When Dr. Radin comes to take contemporary anthropology seriously, anthropologists are likely to take more seriously his productions as well as his unquestioned gifts." A. L. Kroeber

+ — Am Anthropol 30:711 O '28 1000w

"The account is presented in a series of vivid pictures, with frequent quotation from Indian ritual and poetry, and the interest of the reader in Indians cannot fail to be aroused. The book is, after all, art." Robert Redfield

+ Am J Soc 34:394 S '28 250w

"There is no better single study of the American Indian to which the general reader can be referred." Donald Young

+ Ann Am Acad 137:268 My '28 300w

Booklist 24:243 Mr '28

"This is a book not for the man in the street primarily, but for thinkers and writers, culture specialists and social prophets, for all who concern themselves with the American scene and American futures. It is by all odds the best summation of what is at present known about the peoples upon whose culture the future of Mexico and most of South America is founded, by which our own future is more definitely colored than we perhaps realize. One thinks somehow of Willa Cather and Carl Sandburg in Dr. Radin's handling of his material rather than of any of the best-selling popularizers." Mary Austin

+ Bookm 67:90 Mr '28 1250w

"Whatever the defects of Mr. Radin's book one excellent purpose is served—the book is calculated to marshal the public mind for the intelligent reception of new facts. Wherever possible Mr. Radin starts with the known and works into the unknown of pre-Columbian material. It is a difficult though illuminating method and requires a sustained handling in the popular manner of which Mr. Radin frequently falls short, especially in reassembling his material into a cohesive whole." Mary Hunter

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Ja 8 '28 1250w

"It is a vividly told story. Dr. Radin never strays from the narrative form, and the rise and fall of Indian civilizations, strange native customs, and peculiar psychology move us deeply. The spirit which the motion picture, The Vanishing American, tried to give is presented here in a profound and important book." T. S.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ja 11 '28 480w

"Dr. Radin has a style and a sense of literary values, as well as technical knowledge. One scarcely needs a previous interest in Indians to find his treatment fascinating, but to one who has it is absorbing."

+ Christian Century 45:670 My 24 '28 110w

Reviewed by Ruth Benedict

Nation 126:456 Ap 18 '28 900w

"An important contribution to anthropology. . . . offering a vast amount of research and information never before coordinated in one volume."

+ New Statesman 32:supxiv D 1 '28 320w

"The author, whose technical equipment for the work is of an unquestionably high quality, is utterly incapable of imparting his vast accumulation of knowledge with the simplicity which the purpose of the book makes requisite. Dr. Radin's style is turgid, involved or condescending." Margaret Whipple

— N Y Evening Post p9 My 26 '28 450w

"In elaborate and vivid detail, using much source material, he traces the culture of the North American tribes through the Mound Builders back to the Mayan civilization of Yucatan. The quotations of original Indian chants and aphorisms which this book contains give it the quality of an anthology as well as of a popular history, and as such it supplements Dr. Radin's other recent book on 'Primitive Man as Philosopher.' "

+ Outlook 147:537 D 28 '27 620w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:228 Ap '28

Pratt p33 spring '28

"Gathers into a single volume the most important things that are known today about the native American. Dr. Radin epitomizes a whole library of ethnological lore in his vivid narrative."

+ R of Rs 77:adv12 F '28 120w

"Mr. Radin writes agreeably of the Maya, but presses too hard the theory that he has adopted of the extension of Maya influence to north and south of its great home in Central America. Copious extracts are given throughout the book from ancient records and previously published works, but the authorities are rarely named and chapter and verse are lacking. In the case of the illustrations, generally taken from well-known and previously published examples of ancient American art, the author has usually omitted to state the 'provenance' of object or picture. There is no index and no map."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p1012 D 20 '28 170w

Wis Lib Bul 24:56 F '28

RADZIWILL, CATHERINE (RZEWUSKA) princess, now MRS C. M. GRAND (COUNT PAUL VASSILLI, pseud.). Intimate life of the last tzarina. 325p il $5 Dial press

B or 92 Alexandra, consort of Nicholas II, emperor of Russia 28-24047

While disclaiming that her book is either an apology for the tzarina or an indictment, Princess Radziwill goes so far as to say that it is "out of the question to attempt to absolve her from a large share of responsibility for the terrible collapse of Russia." The book is not more "intimate" than other accounts of the imperial family that have appeared recently.

"So emphatic is the Princess Radziwill's condemnation of certain of Alexandra's shortcomings—that the reader is almost led to believe that the Romanoffs would still be secure upon the throne of Russia had Nicholas II chosen another woman as his bride and consort." M. G.

— Boston Transcript p6 N 10 '28 880w

"Madame Radziwill's book about Alexandra Fyodorovna is journalism, but of a singularly worthless variety. The author has understood neither the Empress nor the Revolution. She is prejudiced, inaccurate, and devoid of the judgment necessary for the weighing of evidence. Her writing is as sloppy as her critical judgment." Vincent Sheehan

— New Repub 57:22 N 21 '28 300w

"Those familiar with the many recent Russian memoirs, the histories and collections of letters published since the Revolution, will find in Princess Radziwill's book little more than a readable rearrangement of known facts." Arthur Ruhl

— + Sat R of Lit 5:398 N 24 '28 400w

RAGG, LAURA M. (ROBERTS) (MRS LONSDALE RAGG). Crises in Venetian history. 310p il $5 Dutton [12s 6d Methuen]

945.3 Venice—History

Mrs Ragg links with each of these sketches of notable events in Venetian history some building, picture, or object to be seen by the visitor in Venice. The book is generously illustrated, is indexed, and gives a bibliography of authorities.

New Statesman 32:24 O 13 '28 140w

"A resident in Italy of ten years, during which her husband has been English chaplain at Bologna, Venice, and Rome has given the author an excellent opportunity of studying her subject. While her style is somewhat ponderous her selection of the events which she has discussed has been so judicious that the book is well worth being read by those who are interested in Venice." G: B. McClellan

+ Sat R of Lit 5:584 Ja 12 '29 900w

"Mrs. Ragg wields formidable weapons—extreme clarity of thought, a fluent style, and the 'historical mind.' She makes no claim to original research, but it would be obvious that her information from printed sources was unusually complete even if there were not four-and-a-half pages of 'authorities consulted' at the end of the book."

RAGG, L. M.—Continued
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p723 O 11 '28 1100w

RAINE, WILLIAM MACLEOD. Colorado. 316p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Hodder & S.] 28-3167

The adventures of Tom Collins, young bullwhacker in the early days of the settlement of Colorado. Practically alone Tom stands up to a gang of desperadoes and wins not only his own freedom and safety, but the hand of a charming girl who had been a childhood friend.

Booklist 24:284 Ap '28

"This saga of the old frontier by an experienced hand may well lay claim to certain virtues of the historical romance. His fable, if conventional, is geared to the taste of most Western fiction fans." Will Cuppy
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 Ja 22 '28 100w

Boston Transcript p3 Mr 3 '28 250w

N Y Times p9 Ja 8 '28 300w

"An unpretentious, satisfactory adventure story, in which we find the usual outlaws, stagecoaches, and saloons. We find nothing remarkable in the plot, to be sure, but our common sense suffers no assaults. 'Colorado' is, in short, agreeable adventure set against a splendid background."
+ Sat R of Lit 4:656 Mr 3 '28 130w

RAINE, WILLIAM MACLEOD. Texas man. 317p $2 Doubleday, Doran 28-23099

Tough Nut, Arizona, is a strong man's town. Boone Sibley is a strong man, but Curt French and his gang consider themselves stronger and intimate to Boone that Tough Nut is not the place for him. Those are fighting words and the Texas man joyously goes into action. He cleans up the town and settles down to victory with honor, and romance.

Booklist 25:123 D '28

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 S 23 '28 80w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:548 N '28

RALL, HARRIS FRANKLIN, and COHON, SAMUEL S. Christianity and Judaism compare notes. 132p $2 Macmillan

296 Christianity. Jews—Religion 27-22731

Two professors of theology, the one in Garrett Biblical institute, the other in Hebrew union college, interpret their respective faiths.

"Professor Cohon's contribution is particularly valuable in its historical perspective. It summarizes Judaism clearly and compactly."
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 Ja 22 '28 120w

"There is nothing of propaganda here, nor whittling down of faith. Neither is this an attempt at compromise. Rather it is a frank honest interpretation of each speaker of the faith for which he stands. There is neither polemics nor apologetics but the spirit of toleration. 'Speaking the truth in love,' to use Paul's phrase, is both the purpose and method. It is another instance of the change of attitude that America is showing and developing. It will help to promote a better understanding." T. C. R.
+ Boston Transcript p10 N 26 '27 160w

"Doctor Cohen's work has been done very skilfully. He has presented Judaism at its best. Professor Rall did the same thing [for Christianity]. . . The book ought to be helpful to those of both religions who are interested in historical movements and problems of adjustment." I. G. M.
+ Crozer Quarterly 5:235 Ap '28 420w

RAMSAY, ANNA AUGUSTA WHITTALL. Sir Robert Peel. (Makers of the nineteenth century) 385p $5 Dodd [14s Constable]

B or 92 Peel, Sir Robert [28-13240]

A carefully written and sympathetic biography of the eminent English statesman whose name is bound up with two acts of policy, Catholic emancipation and the repeal of the Corn laws.

Booklist 25:117 D '28

"Miss Ramsay has handled her subject, which is unsurpassed in political interest, with fine competence. She knows it all, has worked through all the material, and has the sound historian's attitude toward her man. But she is somewhat lacking in narrative glow." S. K. Ratcliffe
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 S 16 '28 630w

"A presentation of Peel which bids fair, not only to revive his memory and perpetuate his fame, but also to call up, for an age that more than ever needs them, the outstanding lessons of his life." Edmund Noble
+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 23 '28 1900w

"The merit of her biography is that it gives a plain, straightforward account of the facts. The weakness of her method is that her trees never form themselves into a wood, so that the journey through her pages becomes more and more monotonous and tedious. She has little power of psychological vision, and in so far as she uses that vision to construct and explain Peel's character, it is extremely unconvincing." Leonard Woolf
— + Nation and Ath 43:79 Ap 21 '28 1100w

"On the factory question Miss Ramsay's narrative is less accurate and careful than on some others, and it fails to bring out the essential elements of the struggle. . . In other respects, with one notable exception, Miss Ramsay's well-written and well-designed book keeps its balance. But on the question of Peel's conduct in 1845 she becomes a mere advocate, and an advocate who does not quite appreciate the case she has to answer." J. L. H.
+ — New Statesman 31:86 Ap 28 '28 1400w

"As fine a piece of biographical writing by a woman as this reviewer has ever read." T. J. C. Martyn
+ N Y Times p11 Jl 8 '28 2000w

"Miss Ramsay goes rather far in partisanship, but she cannot be described as an unfair historian. Her prejudices appear in her arguments, not in her exposition of the facts, and she leaves her reader free to interpret the facts as he will. Her narrative is not only full but also spirited and highly readable and it does succeed in giving a credible picture of a great and extraordinary man. This is, I think, entitled to a very distinguished place among the political biographies of recent years." E: Shanks
+ Sat R 145:438 Ap 7 '28 1250w

Spec 140:sup613 Ap 21 '28 1500w

"Her book is conscientiously documented, excellent in construction, and dramatic without fine writing. . . A volume that must take its place among the best in a notable series."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p263 Ap 12 '28 1800w

RANDALL-MACIVER, DAVID. Etruscans. 152p il $2 (6s) Oxford

937.5 Etrurians 28-8423

"For a long time the Etruscans have been invested with a false mystery, but the author's exposition of their origins and development blows away most of the mist without taking away from the strange dark interest of this remarkable people. He sweeps away the nebulous assumptions which bring the Etruscans over the Alps as Barbarians similar to the Villanovans whom they civilised, and he accepts the account of Herodotus which tells us that the first townships were founded by an expedition from Lydia under the leadership of a king's son, who may have been the man whom the Egyptians called Tursha—in which case the Etruscans had racial affinities with the Achæans."—New Statesman

"The book is fully and excellently illustrated, and interesting both for its historical and artistic values."
+ Boston Transcript p2 F 25 '28 230w

"A model of what a small book should be. It is written with a light and deft touch, and it is clearly informed by a central idea about which move all secondary subjects as satellites in due attraction."
+ New Statesman 30:470 Ja 21 '26 480w

"His extensive researches, his constructive imagination and his discriminating judgment in the appraisal of theories and of evidence, combined with a real ability to infuse his writing with much of the color, vitality and interest the subject has for him, have enabled him to write a pieced-out outline of the probable explanation of the mystery of the Etruscans that is authoritative—as far as anything can be authoritative in the present state of knowledge concerning them—and also has, even for the layman, a very considerable interest."
+ N Y Times p21 Ja 22 '28 360w

RANDALL-MACIVER, DAVID. Iron age in Italy; a study of those aspects of the early civilization which are neither Villanovan nor Etruscan. 248p il $28 (84s) Oxford

571.4 Iron age—Italy. Italy—Antiquities. Tombs [28-14018]

"Much work has been done of late on the numerous prehistoric sites in Italy, and the characteristics of the various primitive peoples which Rome was afterwards to unify are slowly being defined. Dr. Randall-MacIver has devoted himself to the study of the Early Iron Age, immediately preceding the rise of Rome. Three years ago he put together all the evidence available for the early Etruscans and for a very different race—called Villanovans because the first remains were found at Villanova outside Bologna. He has now continued his task by publishing the material available for Este and the lake region, for Picenum and for the South."—Spec

Boston Transcript p4 Ap 25 '28 800w

"The volume, like its predecessor, will be indispensable to the apparatus of all who are interested in anthropology, in primitive art, or in early Roman history. It is lavishly illustrated and an example of excellent bookmaking." Tenney Frank
+ Sat R of Lit 5:167 S 29 '28 900w

"A great deal of the matter will be entirely new to students, even in Italy, as the objects described and figured are in local museums. We must emphasize the scientific importance of the book and the high artistic quality of many of the prehistoric cups and bowls, weapons and jewels, which are illustrated."
+ Spec 140:24 Ja 7 '28 250w

RANDOLPH, VANCE. A B C of psychology. 137p 50c Vanguard press

150 Psychology 27-21483

Reviews simply and briefly the history and present status of psychological theory.

"A better balanced and more thoroughly reliable introduction to modern psychology than this neat little pocket edition by Vance Randolph could hardly be recommended a beginner. It is amazing to see what content the author has managed to pack without confusion into his one hundred and thirty-seven short pages."
+ Boston Transcript p5 Ja 14 '28 200w

"A readable handbook, informing, but not inspiring. Here is opportunity of acquaintance with psychological problems by an hour's careful reading. The author assumed his task and carried it through creditably upon the urge of an accepted commission." Joseph Jastrow
+ — N Y Evening Post p15 D 3 '27 400w

RANGA IYER, C. S. Father India; a reply to Mother India. 211p $2 Carrier [6s Selwyn & B.]

915.4 India—Social conditions. Mayo, Katherine

Mr Ranga Iyer's reply to the charges against his country contained in Mother India is in part a refutation of certain of Miss Mayo's statements, and in part a counter-attack on social conditions in America, which is buttressed with quotations from the writings of Judge Lindsey.

Reviewed by C: Johnston
N Y Times p7 F 19 '28 180w

"This rejoinder to Mother India is ineffective; first, because it is written in anger; secondly, because it is mainly vituperative; thirdly, because it evades several of Miss Mayo's worst charges; and fourthly, because it is inaccurate. Mr. Iyer scores when he arraigns Miss Mayo for having generalized too widely on insufficient knowledge. And he takes a debating point with some dexterity when he quotes one of Miss Mayo's own countrymen on the immoral practices in certain high schools in Denver City. But otherwise the tirade is a little monotonous."
— + Spec 139:1012 D 3 '27 330w

"In politics Mr. Ranga Iyer is not likely to convince anyone but the already convinced, but it was worth while to draw attention to certain exaggerations and false generalities in social matters which Miss Mayo has not succeeded in avoiding."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p983 D 29 '27 680w

RANSOME, ARTHUR. Chinese puzzle; with a foreword by David Lloyd George. 189p $3 Houghton [5s Allen & U.]

915.1 China—Politics and government. China—Foreign relations [28-8533]

The complicated politics of the Far East constitute the Chinese puzzle, upon which a shrewd English observer comments, with special reference to British policy in China. The author states the case of Chinese nationalism with sympathy and discusses some of the leading personalities in the movement.

Reviewed by Lyman Bryson
Bookm 67:311 My '28 130w
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 Mr 18 '28 280w
Boston Transcript p7 Ap 14 '28 280w
Nation 126:415 Ap 11 '28 70w

"His conclusion that the old relations between China and the Western Powers need revision is not original; and we may doubt whether foreign communities in China would be as safe without military protection, as he seems to imagine. Nor does he prove, that, by withdrawing this protection, we should do anything to assist the Chinese to restore order in their own country. None the less the book is a good corrective to the hot-headed nonsense talked by old residents in China, and the exaggerations of the Bund Press."
— + Nation and Ath 42:sup434 D 10 '27 120w

"What he writes is excellent in character and liberal in outlook. His insight is keen and reliable, with possibly a little too roseate a view of some of the events. His estimate of 'the Shanghai Mind' is excellent." W: H. Kilpatrick
+ New Repub 54:328 My 2 '28 100w

"Those who have read Mr. Ransome's brilliant articles on China in the Manchester Guardian will expect to find the same high qualities in this book, and they will not be disappointed. It is the work of a master in journalism—vivid, bold, informative and clearly argued.

RANSOME, ARTHUR—Continued

+ New Statesman 30:572 F 11 '28 150w

"Mr. Ransome appears to possess a mind that is strikingly free from preconceptions, prejudices and unsympathetic angles of vision and to be more concerned to get at the fundamental ethical values of the problem than have been most of those who have written about it . . . He has written an illuminating book."

+ N Y Times p24 F 19 '28 350w

"His little book is a masterpiece of compression, illumination and sound judgment." W: McFee

+ N Y World p11m F 26 '28 130w

"He has something of value to add to a multifaceted subject which is perfectly certain to engage a good deal of the world's attention, willy-nilly, for a long time to come." Herschel Brickell

+ No Am 225:adv Mr '28 90w

R of Rs 77:adv22 Mr '28 20w

"Mr. Arthur Ransome is not without political bias, but he is so undeniably the most intelligent and best-informed of the correspondents who have represented British newspapers during the troubles in China that any book of his on the complex Chinese puzzle deserves a careful reading."

+ Sat R 144:919 D 31 '27 280w

Times [London] Lit Sup p939 D 8 '27 220w

RAUSHENBUSH, HILMAR STEPHEN. Men atwhiles are sober. 337p $2.50 Boni 28-11392

The novel is written around the mental torment of a man in love with two women, hurting them both and despising himself for it, wanting to be honest yet lacking the strength of character and the resolution to make etiher woman happy. Ruth, his wife, and Julia, the other woman are contrasts; both have more stamina than the man they love. The characters belong to a more or less literary or theatrical circle in New York city.

"Except for a rather stumbling beginning, Men Atwhiles Are Sober is a powerful and moving book."

+ Bookm 67:xxiii Ag '28 160w

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 S 9 '28 80w

"Mr. Raushenbush writes a good story. He goes beyond the language and actions of his characters, penetrating their mental processes and transcribing them for his reader. The result is a story of substance."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 30 '28 150w

New Repub 56:107 S 12 '28 250w

"The book is difficult, unhappy reading. The effort to develop the idea strains desperately through a clumsy plot of loosely-articulated incidents." Shaemas O'Sheel

— N Y Evening Post p5 Ag 11 '28 380w

"Mr. Raushenbush has presented a spectacle that is apt to leave the mind of the reader as turbulent as the emotions of the characters, and has let it go at that. That is because the style is penetrating impressionism rather than truth."

N Y Times p9 My 13 '28 600w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks

Outlook 149:397 Jl 4 '28 160w

"The book is one of those energetic observant ones that seems to be only half-cooked, since it lacks fusion and feeling. It has action and ideas, but no heart."

— Sat R of Lit 5:57 Ag 18 '28 100w

"The novel has a welcome combination of intelligence, observation and good writing. Mr Raushenbush tries consciously to give a picture of futility. But the futility lacks emotional etching, except in so far as it deals with the failure of Lathrop's marriage and the unhappy lot of his wife, Ruth, in the portrayal of whom Mr Raushenbush does his best work. It should be said that Mr Raushenbush treats his charaters with promising objectivity, and that his talent and sincerity should bear fruit when linked with a wider range of experience and observation."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7f Je 10 '28 200w

RAUSHENBUSH, HILMAR STEPHEN, and LAIDLER, HARRY WELLINGTON. Power control. 298p pa $1 New republic

380.16 Electric industries. Public utilities. Industry and state—United States. United States—Economic policy 28-10479

"This volume is the outcome of research by a committee on giant power and submitted as 'somewhat in the nature of a reply to the power lobby.' Successive chapters discuss concentration of control, rates, regulation, municipal ownership, and the controversies relating to Boulder Dam, the St. Lawrence, and Muscle Shoals."—Am Econ R

Am Econ R 18:523 S '28 60w

Booklist 24:385 Jl '28

"A well-written brief against private control of hydro-electric power."

+ Eng N 101:443 S 20 '28 420w

"Here is a sprightly, vivacious treatment of a serious subject. The authors have skilfully combined education and entertainment. . . 'Power Control' is full of facts and wisdom, and—praise be!—it is also full of wit and laughter." D. R. Richberg

+ Nation 126:646 Je 6 '28 550w

" 'Power Control' is a model in the art of pamphleteering: temperate and well documented, yet charged with an emotional conviction that brings even the statistics to life, and, most important of all, it is well written. Some of the pages are by necessity difficult reading—the subject-matter itself is often too complicated for simple treatment." Evans Clark

+ N Y Times p7 Je 3 '28 1900w

Reviewed by E: Berman

World Tomorrow 11:309 Jl '28 450w

RAVEN, CHARLES EARLE. Creator spirit. ² (William Belden Noble lectures, 1926) 310p $2.50 Harvard univ. press [8s 6d Hopkinson]

215 Religion and science [28-4635]

"Canon Raven of Liverpool is an English Modernist, but in his Noble lectures at Harvard, published together with a series of Hulsean lectures at Cambridge, he undertakes a more difficult task than the justification of modernism. This task is described in the subtitle as 'a survey of Christian doctrine in the light of biology, psychology, and mysticism.' His ambitious aim is the reconciliation of science, principally of the two sciences just mentioned, and religion. Few persons have to the same extent as Canon Raven familiarity at first hand in the fields here combined. A student and author in the subject of the history of doctrine, he is also a naturalist in his own right, and is beside thoroughly in touch with the latest psychology."—Sat R of Lit

"The book embodies most of the qualities which one is accustomed to find in this class of contemporary Anglican writing—deep religious earnestness, much scholarship combined with a fresh and vigorous style, and, it must be confessed, a desire for breadth and comprehensiveness which ultimately defeats its own object." G. D. M.

+ — Cath World 127:248 My '28 280w

"An exceptionally thoughtful and critical discussion of the problem of interpreting the universe which science discloses in religious fashion. The author has done considerable first-hand work in biology, and thus avoids the easy superficiality of many evolutionary theologians. His critical discussion of modern psychology is based on wide and intelligent reading."

+ J Religion 8:163 Ja '28 70w

"The whole work may be said to be the ablest attempt made in recent years systematically to interpret the results of biological science in terms congruous to Christian belief." J. C. Hardwick

+ Nature 121:201 F 11 '28 500w

Reviewed by H: J. Cadbury
Sat R of Lit 4:594 F 11 '28 230w

Reviewed by Evelyn Underhill
Spec 138:99 Jl 16 '27 1050w

Times [London] Lit Sup p496 Jl 21 '27 1200w

RAWDON, HENRY S. Protective metallic coatings. (Am. chemical soc. Monograph ser.) 277p il $5.50 Chemical catalog co.

691.7 Corrosion and anti-corrosives 28-3570

"A scientific consideration of the principles and the various methods: hot dipping and cementation, electroplating, and metal spraying, for the protection from corrosion of metals, especially iron and steel. Discusses coatings of zinc, tin, copper, nickel, chromium, cobalt, lead, cadmium, aluminum, gold and silver. A chapter is given to testing methods. The book will not serve as a manual for shop practice. Bibliography."—Pratt

---

"Discussion of various metallic coatings, including their usefulness and limitations, in a manner interesting to the non-technical reader as well as to the specialist, is the aim sought and achieved by the author." J. R. Cain

+ Ind & Eng Chem 20:554 My '28 250w
N Y New Tech Bks 13:4 Ja '28
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:267 My '28
Pratt p20 summer '28

RAYMOND, CHARLES HARLOW. Story-lives of master writers. 370p il $2.50 Stokes

928 Authors, English. Authors, American 27-18340

Short biographical accounts of twenty great English and American authors. Contents: William Shakespeare; Daniel Defoe; Robert Burns; Sir Walter Scott; P. B. Shelley; John Keats; Alfred, Lord Tennyson; Robert Browning; Charles Dickens; George Eliot; Lewis Carroll; R. L. Stevenson; Rudyard Kipling; J. F. Cooper; H. W. Longfellow; L. M. Alcott; Mark Twain; Howard Pyle; O. Henry; F. H. Burnett.

Booklist 24:367 Je '28

"It is a collection that I would by no means limit to youth, as each story is a remarkably fascinating and lifelike portrait of the writer." M. Van R. King

+ N Y World p11m O 16 '27 150w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:180 Mr '28

"Although there is a definite attempt to adapt the material to a limited class of readers, one questions whether the boy or girl who reads Keats or Browning would at the same time continue to be interested in Howard Pyle or Frances Hodgson Burnett. The biography of Defoe, with its richly romantic historical background, is ideally suited to students in secondary schools. That of Browning is probably the least successful in the book. The audience is not clearly defined."

Sat R of Lit 4:558 Ja 28 '28 220w

"He succeeds in making them seem like real men and women. While Mr. Raymond includes some of the unattractive facts of the lives of Shelley, Byron, and George Eliot, he does so with restraint and dignity, placing such details in proper subordination to the more pertinent elements of the writers' experiences. Mr. Raymond writes his biographies well; he has a sense of the dramatic. Best of all, he places biography where it belongs in an English curriculum—decidedly subordinate to the literature itself and reasonably independent of it." R. L. Lyman

+ School R 36:390 My '28 270w

RAYMOND, E. T., pseud. See Thompson, E: R.

RECK-MALLECZEWEN, FRITZ PERCY. Woman in flight; tr. by Jenny Covan. 253p $2.50 Boni & Liveright

28-14118

The day after the wedding in Berlin, little Elfie's husband leaves her to make a business trip. His brother profits by the absence to seduce her. Frantic with shame Elfie is driven from horror to horror, finally to be carried off as a prostitute to Buenos Ayres. She escapes into the arms of the police and is returned to Berlin to stand trial for murder. Even the dignity of tragedy is denied her; the trial is turned into a laughing stock. Elfie's respectable in-laws cast her off, her husband divorces her. These cumulative griefs are sheer melodrama, at times incredible, but for the most part as real to the reader as to Elfie, due perhaps to the rapid, present-tense style of narrative.

"There are moments when this story is almost too much for the author; moments when it is quite too much for the translator; moments when it is much too much for the reader. By the time the novelist has reached page 86 he pauses for breath and takes an inventory, as much for his own information as any one's else . . . A novel hoarse and flamboyant, substituting violence for power."

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Jl 1 '28 220w

"Most of the sentiment in the book is false, and the persecutions of Elfie are highly lurid, yet the author has succeeded in conveying what he evidently purposed; a sense of the cruelty, stupidity and falsity in courts of justice."

Boston Transcript p2 Je 9 '28 150w

"Aside from sentimentalities and the incredibleness of some of the South American scenes, the book is written surprisingly well. The author is obsessed with the dirt, the drabness, the madness of post-war and especially German capitalist civilization, and his conveyance of this feeling is the most interesting achievement of the book. The translation is apparently very good—at least its literary quality is excellent, and well adapted to the material." Robert Wolf

+ — Nation 126:698 Je 20 '28 550w

"The tale is related almost entirely in the present tense, with an effect of taut, almost unbearable suspense, and with a kind of agonized pity that makes Elfie's sufferings seem real to the reader."

N Y Times p22 My 20 '28 540w

" 'Woman In Flight' is written with a good deal of dramatic power. Of its truth there seems to be little question and the book has aroused a vast amount of discussion." Mary Shirley

+ Outlook 150:800 S 12 '28 300w

"This is supposed to hit off the modern world. It seems rather to be merely the externalization of a splitting headache. It bears the same relation to the modern world that a performance on a mechanical piano bears to modern music."

— Sat R of Lit 5:58 Ag 18 '28 200w

REDFIELD, JOHN. Music: a science and an art. 307, xxiiip il $5 (21s) Knopf

781.1 Music—Acoustics and physics. Music—Philosophy and esthetics 28-12296

The author, former lecturer in the physics of music, Columbia university, writes his book in the conviction that the scientific aspect of music needs cultivating as well as the artistic. "Music is not something on a sheet of paper . . . music is something happening in the air." The composer, the player or singer, the instrument maker, each works with sound as the raw material out of which to make music. Mr Redfield believes that music should be studied in the laboratory, as electricity is studied, and that the study should be based on the science of sound.

REDFIELD, JOHN—Continued

Booklist 25:62 N '28

"Mr. Redfield's work is rare and invaluable, just the sort of book which one should thoroughly digest in building up a foundation and background for the intelligent understanding and appreciation of music. While emphasizing the scientific approach to music, this interesting and highly informed writer has escaped producing a dull and unreadable treatise, such as already exist in abundance." Elbert Lenrow

\+ Bookm 67:703 Ag '28 360w

"Our suspicions regarding Professor Redfield's exactness of thought and scientific impartiality increase perceptibly when we come across references to the 'well established facts' of harmony and the 'fundamental laws governing the use of chord progressions and modulations,' and they are not allayed by his repeated appeals to 'the censensus of musical opinion.' Scientists do not appeal to the consensus of grocerial opinion in their endeavor to compute the atomic weight of radium." J: Goss

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 S 23 '28 1000w

"Mr. Redfield knows and understands his subject and without doubt his treatise is one of the clearest and sanest ever written upon it."

\+ Boston Transcript p6 Je 16 '28 220w

Cleveland Open Shelf p99 S '28

"There have been many attempts to formulate a theory of harmony that would account for the relations of sounds as musical facts by their relations as physical facts, the latest and seemingly the best attempt being Mr. Redfield's." B. H. Haggin

\+ Nation 127:183 Ag 22 '28 1300w

"Although he exposes the fundamental fallacies of scales and harmonic theories, the book is a valuable piece of constructive writing, for he proposes new and flexible scales and gives an illuminating insight into musical tendencies." Waldemar Kaempffert

\+ N Y Times p10 S 2 '28 1500w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:480 O '28

"He makes some very bold criticisms, and some even bolder suggestions, which are a healthy challenge to open minds but are not calculated to win the immediate confidence of practising musicians, especially as they are often embedded in passages that are at once superficial and platitudinous. Indeed, it is the weakness of a book that contains many important, but little-known, acoustical facts which are of intimate concern to musicians that in its attempt to unite the artistic and scientific sides of music it also contains a section in which there is some shallow philosophizing about the nature of music."

\+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p554 Jl 26 '28 300w

REES, ARTHUR JOHN. Love me Anise. 337p $2 Dodd [7s 6d Lane]

28-15378

The Sussex Downs form the background for this tale. John Gordon, a famous physician, finds that his wife is in love with Gwynne, the young Lord Montveux. Shortly afterwards Gwynne is hurt and there follows a serious illness. Gordon is torn between professional ethics and jealousy, but human need conquers and he does his best for Gwynne. After all efforts Gwynne dies and Gordon returns to his dark eyed and disillusioned Anise.

"A pleasant mannered and readable if rather sprawling fiction of the modern romantic school."

\+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 Ag 19 '28 100w

Boston Transcript p6 Ag 22 '28 180w

N Y Times p11 Je 17 '28 750w

"The author's solution is a little vague in its implications, but he has written a fine story, more in the vein of his 'Cup of Silence' than in that of his admirable detective tales."

\+ Sat R 146:883 D 29 '28 140w

"Competent characterization of the principals and the skill with which the author works in the background, the Sussex downs, save the book from sheer banality."

— + Sat R of Lit 4:1038 Jl 14 '28 160w

"A quiet and thoughtful book, spoilt by Mr. Rees's inability to resist the temptation to push his characters into the background and come forward and talk to his readers himself, and partly by an occasional sentimentality of outlook which robs characters, drawn convincingly in the main, of their reality at the most critical time."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p414 My 31 '28 140w

REESE, CURTIS WILLIFORD, ed. Humanist sermons. 262p $2.50 Open ct.

252 Sermons. Humanism. Unitarianism

28-5411

"A collection of sermons preached in the cause of the growing nontheistic movement called 'humanism,' and now given permanence in book form. The word 'humanism' here, as elsewhere in the history of thought, stands for a revolt against tendencies which have a supernaturalistic coloring. These humanists, like their predecessors in the time of Socrates, in the time of Bacon and in the time of Comte and Mill, protest against all speculative thought which is not grounded in experience, against reliance on the authority of the past and against any denial of the ability of the human mind to discover unaided all that can be known about life and the cosmos."—Springf'd Republican

Boston Transcript p6 O 8 '27 180w

"Scholarly and enlightened sermons." W. E. Garrison

\+ Christian Century 45:177 F 9 '28 980w

Reviewed by Vergilius Ferm

Int J Ethics 38:485 Jl '28 220w

"The significance of the book lies in the fact that it shows the tendencies of thought and the vital interests of those who are leaders in the 'Humanistic' movement largely in the Middle West. . . Our difficulty with the kind of Humanism in this volume is that it is not Humanist enough. It is not true to the whole of human nature. It certainly does not do justice to the religious needs and longings of the soul, its cry to God, its faith in him, and fellowship with him. . . Again the book fails to live up to its expressed purpose in not giving a satisfactory interpretation of man's cosmic situation." Daniel Evans

— + J Religion 8:309 Ap '28 800w

"The sermons are in the main admirably written, and appear to presuppose a standard of knowledge and intelligence in those to whom they are addressed which would put an English congregation to shame." C. E. M. Joad

\+ Nation and Ath 43:468 Jl 7 '28 480w

"These men are pioneers and the ideas they proclaim are ideas that religion to-day needs to hear. The effect of the book cannot be anything but salutary."

\+ Springf'd Republican p10 Ja 19 '28 680w

Reviewed by C: S. Brown

Survey 61:99 O 15 '28 60w

REEVES, DACHE MCC. Aerial photographs; characteristics and military applications. (Ronald aeronautic lib.) 307p il $5 Ronald

778 Photography, Aerial. Photography, Military

27-27509

"With the growth of popular interest in aeronautics and the ever-increasing use of aerial mapping, this volume, which sets forth the first principles of reading and applying aerial photographs, is timely. Though the book, divided into two parts, treats of the characteristics of aerial photographs, the larger part of the volume concerns itself with the military features of aerial photography. The first part explains by means of descriptions and examples the character of photographic features and the technique of recognizing objects."—Eng N

"Because of its thorough character, its plain language, and its many illustrations, this volume is a text book which all officers of the military and naval services might well acquire and study." D. R.

+ Boston Transcript p3 Ja 28 '28 430w

"No attempt is made to cover the subject exhaustively. However, the instructions which are given relating to methods of mapping are comprehensive. Though some consideration is given the applicability of air photography to topographic work, the book devotes itself more exhaustively to the development among a greater number of people of a 'terrain sense.' "

+ — Eng N 100:453 Mr 15 '28 110w

N Y Times p6 My 20 '28 550w

REID, H. S. Phillida; or, The reluctant adventurer. 316p $2.50 Houghton [7s 6d Chatto & W.]

29-2381

Richard Carey, a young Royalist condemned to death for treason against the Commonwealth, was sold into African slavery. The brothers Boone, owners of gold mines, were terrible masters and Richard escaped. In Carthage, ruled over by Don Hannibal, an old Englishman, Richard found refuge and after the death of Don Hannibal took his place. All these years he remembered Phillida, who had rejected him and married Colonel Godwin. When Phillida's son and later her daughter came out to Africa Richard plotted vengeance. But love was stronger than hatred and Richard Carey returned to England to marry the younger Phillida, more charming than her charming mother.

"In this story the author has achieved an historical novel of peculiar charm and merit."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p36 S 30 '28 350w

"Miss Reid writes carefully, with a pleasant, but not unduly archaic, turn of phrase to suit her matter."

+ Nation and Ath 43:474 Jl 7 '28 200w

"The tale has enormous possibilities, which are not fulfilled. The author has obviously attempted too much, employing all the devices known to writers of historical adventure and psychological novels, yet carrying none of them to a complete and rounded fulfillment. Even the sequence of incident is improbable and unconvincing, and because of its lack of continuity the story drags, in spite of its wealth of exciting material."

— + N Y Times p13 Ag 19 '28 270w

"Miss Reid contrives to write as a contemporary of the seventeenth century and of the twentieth century at once, and it is to this perhaps that the reader's pleasure is largely due. She is at home in the seventeenth century, and takes it so much for granted that we are soon persuaded to do the same; she writes what will pass for seventeenth century prose very naturally, without any affectation or preciousness, and this is an achievement in itself."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p410 My 31 '28 400w

REID, LESLIE. Trevy, the river. 299p $2.50 Dutton [7s 6d Dent]

28-6086

Trevy Morrieson was a strange boy. Born out of wedlock on a night when Trevy, the river, was at flood height his mother named him after the river. Always out of sympathy with the villagers Trevy lived more and more of his life along and in the river. After his mother's death he went away for a time, but found the world of men was not for him. Wandering about one day he found the source of Trevy, the river, and his long happy pilgrimage began. From source to its end in the ocean he followed his beloved river and probably he found his own death where the river ended.

"A prose lyric of unusual beauty."

+ Bookm 67:464 Je '28 120w

"As a tour de force of imagination 'Trevy the River' is never successful. Plainly Mr. Reid is a writer of more than ordinary poetic gifts. But his wings are never quite strong enough to lift him entirely away from the ground, and his earthbound struggles have as much of dust as beauty in them." Eugene Lohrke

— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p38 Ap 15 '28 530w

"Unusual in its theme, the story is one of rare poetic imagery and beauty."

+ Boston Transcript p3 Jl 7 '28 230w

Reviewed by Florence Haviland

N Y Evening Post p8 My 12 '28 320w

"The supernatural element in this book is spread too thin to be convincing."

— N Y Times p22 Mr 18 '28 580w

"The distinction of the book lies in the glowing beauty of its numerous descriptive passages, but the remoteness and fragility of its materials give the story little chance of winning favor with the average reader."

+ — N Y World p7m Jl 8 '28 170w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:365 Jl '28

"There is some quietly beautiful writing in the description of the boy's wanderings, there are some scenes and characters well imagined in the episodes through which he moves. But the various incidents of the story do not, somehow, build up into an impressive whole. The tale meanders like the river—quite justifiably (the author might contend) inasmuch as it is desired to show the similitude between the boy's life and the river's life—but the simple fact is that that very endeavor makes for a rather thin and long drawn-out narrative in which little really happens of much import."

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:671 Mr 10 '28 280w

Spec 140:806 My 26 '28 100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p452 Je 14 '28 200w

REILLY, MRS ESTELLE (MULQUEEN). How to cook for children; with an introd. by Dr Charles Gilmore Kerley. 250p $1.75 Putnam

641.5 Cookery, Children—Nutrition 27-9974

A cookbook for mothers, which gives a generous selection of approved and tested recipes from which the daily menus may be arranged. Helpful suggestions for household appliances, management and marketing are also given.

"In spite of controversial points 'How to Cook for Children' will be helpful to young mothers who are trying conscientiously to follow the doctor's orders in feeding their children. Here are recipes in abundance for dishes suitable for growing children and simple, detailed directions for preparing all foods which children require as soon as they are graduated from an all-milk diet."

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p23 Ja 29 '28 200w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 32:488 O '27

Pratt p21 autumn '27

REINHOLD, PETER P. Economic, financial and political state of Germany since the war; pub. for the Institute of politics. (Inst. of politics publications, Williams college, Williamstown, Mass.) 134p $2 Yale univ. press

330.943 Germany—Economic conditions. Germany—Politics and government. Finance—Germany 28-20044

"In this monograph an active partner in the post-war rehabilitation of the German economy traces the economic history of Germany from the outset of the war to the present day, stressing the financial aspects, and having particular regard for the part played by international and domestic politics. Publisher of the

REINHOLD, P: P.—Continued
Leipziger Tageblatt during the war, later the finance minister of Reich, Dr. Reinhold speaks with evident authority."—Boston Transcript

Boston Transcript p9 O 20 '28 280w

Reviewed by W: MacDonald
N Y Times p9 O 28 '28 850w

REISNER, EDWARD HARTMAN. Historical foundations of modern education. 513p il $2.60 Macmillan

370.9 Education—History 27-14571

"A readable history of education which begins with the culture and education of the Homeric Age and extends to the sixteenth century. The emphasis is always on the dependence of education on the political, social and economic condition of each period."—Pratt

Cleveland Open Shelf p71 Je '28

Educ R 75:149 Mr '28 220w

"The book should serve a most useful purpose and every teacher or would-be teacher should read it."

Hist Outlook 19:242 My '28 500w

Pratt p13 spring '28

REITH, GEORGE. Art of successful bidding. 227p il $2 Doubleday, Doran

795.41 Auction bridge 28-8319

"This book by the chairman of the Card Committee of the Knickerbocker Whist Club and director of the American Auction Bridge League, is by no means a treatise for the beginner. Mr. Reith presents in lucid fashion the principles of sound opening bids, assists, doubles and modern methods of denial, and he also gives the theories of camouflage bidding, which have been recently developed among the most advanced players of the day."—Boston Transcript

Booklist 24:354 Je '28

"Mr. Reith's book is an able guide for those who would attain really fine bridge."

\+ Boston Transcript p4 Mr 3 '28 150w

REMIZOV, ALEXEI MIKHAILOVICH. Fifth pestilence, together with The history of the tinkling cymbal and sounding brass; Ivan Semyonovitch Stratilatov; tr. from the Russian, with a preface by Alec Brown. 235p $3 Payson & Clarke

[27-28084]

"Alexei Mikhailovich Remizov is one of the most talked of living Russian novelists, although his work is known but little outside of Russia. Since the first years of this century he has been exerting a greater and more pernicious influence with Russian writers of the younger generation than any one else. Both stories (or novelettes) 'The Fifth Pestilence' and 'The Tinkling Cymbal,' undoubtedly belong to his best works. They are laid against prerevolutionary background of squalid provincial cities, and express the aggressive filth, spite and vice of life."—N Y Times

"The initial difficulty in the way of enjoying Remizov in translation is that his style is almost impossible to reproduce in another language. Remizov's hideous characters are as horrible, as ugly, as tedious, as abounding in devilish absurdities and absurd obscenities as anything in Russian fiction. But they are so much papier-mache. One is not truly disgusted by them because one does not ever believe in them." Babette Deutsch

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Ap 22 '28 350w

"Though, on the present evidence, Remizov is hardly a great writer, he is obviously a fascinating, original and very accomplished one, interesting both for his very peculiar and sometimes really profound imagination, and for the effectiveness and novelty of the means he employs to express it. For this reason, and for the excellence of the translation, this book should be read." Edwin Muir

\+ Nation and Ath 42:122 O 22 '27 100w

"No matter how excessive his mannerisms may be, his works, especially the early ones, deserve the attention which [his pupils] do not deserve. In spite of all his artifices he is undoubtedly a talented writer. . . In spirit Remizov can be best described as a symbolist with a touch of Dostoyevsky's weird, 'underground' influence. With this he combines a truly racy and often remarkable spirit of humor."

\+ — N Y Times p17 My 13 '28 640w

"Read in its original Russian, where the author's tricky and precious style may have some peculiar raciness, or by Russians to whom his somewhat impish little flashes on this and that may be seen in their full perspective, it doubtless means more than it does in English. At best, Remizov seems here to be stirring the waters of a very small mud-puddle." Arthur Ruhl

— Sat R of Lit 4:866 My 12 '28 130w

"Striking and powerful they undoubtedly are; but it is hard to say how much they can mean to the foreign reader—to anybody unacquainted with Russian provincial life before the Revolution or with the vagaries of Russian literary tradition since the beginnings of 'Symbolism.'"

\+ — Times [London) Lit Sup p835 N 17 '28 850w

RENARD, MAURICE, and JEAN, ALBERT. Blind circle; tr. from the French by Florence Crewe-Jones. 324p $2 Dutton

28-22662

In this tale of horror translated from the French, Claude Cirugue's newly announced engagement is broken when Maxence, his fiancée, meets his brother Richard. Shortly afterward a friend finds Richard's dead body outside the latter's own door. Simultaneously one, two, three other identical bodies are reported from different places. Claude, investigating, discovers his brother's experiments in producing by a chemical process replicas of the human body. As Claude takes up the ghastly experimentation a new note of horror creeps into the tale.

"Sufficiently ghoulish but not very impressive." Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 O 21 '28 130w

Boston Transcript p6 O 27 '28 320w

RENDINELL, JOSEPH EDWARD. One man's war; the diary of a Leatherneck; ed. by George Pattullo. 177p $2 Sears

940.48 European war, 1914-1918—Personal narratives 28-6324

"The actual experience of an average American boy of twenty-three who passed from a mid-West steel-mill job to Paris, France—by way of Verdun and Belleau Woods—in the Sixth Marines. Joe fought, smoked, chewed, drank, shot crap, but to judge by his diary he was practically a Man Without Women."—N Y Evening Post

Reviewed by Robert Wolf

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 My 13 '28 630w

"It is a remarkable diary, for it is written with charming freedom and honesty."

Boston Transcript p1 My 5 '28 220w

N Y Evening Post p13 F 25 '28 90w

"An engaging personal record of 'One Man's War.' It is singularly detached, impersonal, in that what was going on outside of Corporal Joe's range never attracted his interest. It is a graphic, terse picture, baldly but authentically stated."

\+ — N Y Times p13 Mr 11 '28 460w

RENOUVIN, PIERRE. Immediate origins of the war (28th June—4th August 1914): tr. by Theodore Carswell Hume; with a preface by Charles Seymour. 395p $4 Yale univ. press

940.311 European war, 1914-1918—Causes 28-4513

M. Renouvin, who is professor of the history of the Great war at the University of Paris, has made this study of the immediate causes of the war in the spirit of a scientific investigation. His conclusions are reached after an impartial weighing of the evidence drawn from a careful study of the German, Austrian, Russian and British official documents. The work is limited to the diplomatic crisis between June 28 and August 4, 1914, which led Europe into the war.

"Whether one agrees or not completely in this identification of Germany and Austria, one can not fail to admire the clarity, grasp, and judiciousness with which M. Renouvin has sifted the mass of documentary evidence, punctured and discarded untenable legends and written what seems to the reviewer quite the best comprehensive treatment in any language which he has read on this difficult and thorny subject." S. B. Fay

\+ Am Hist R 33:877 Jl '28 480w

"A penetrating and scholarly study which deserves careful attention."

\+ Am Pol Sci R 22:493 My '28 200w

"His book is extremely significant as showing exactly how much a very clever and well-informed apologist for France can save out of the French Epic of 1914-1918, which represented France as completely blameless for the outbreak of the conflict. In spite of the introduction by Professor Seymour, no reader should be misled into regarding the book as an objective and impartial historical summary of the facts relating to the crisis of 1914. Renouvin is calm in the tone of his writing, and, hence, disarms the uniformed reader, but he interprets the documents almost invariably in the manner most favorable to the Entente and most damaging to the Central Powers." H. E. Barnes

Ann Am Acad 138:187 Jl '28 400w

Reviewed by W: L. McPherson

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p11 Je 10 '28 1200w

"His book would be welcome if only as a clear setting forth of the various international attitudes which followed the assassination at Sarajevo up to the time of the outbreak of hostilities; it is especially valuable as an account of what happened in those critical days of 1914, extending from the twenty-eighth of June to the fourth of August." E. N.

\+ Boston Transcript p4 F 29 '28 530w

"While Renouvin lacks the unerring impartiality and absolutely consistent logic of Georges Demartial, his book is the most competent detailed summary of the crisis of 1914 which has thus far appeared in France." H. E. Barnes

\+ — Nation 126:518 My 2 '28 580w

Reviewed by G. L. Dickinson

Nation and Ath 43:111 Ap 28 '28 900w

"While many of Renouvin's conclusions have been expounded already by American writers (Fay, Schmitt, Barnes), it is interesting to follow this Frenchman through his lucid, devastating analysis of Entente diplomacy." Herbert Solow

\+ N Y Evening Post p13 Mr 17 '28 780w

Pratt p32 summer '28

"Here is a lucid, unimpassioned exposition of the course of those diplomatic negotiations which in the fateful summer of 1914 eventuated in the World War. The book was hailed, when it first appeared in French two years ago, as one of the three or four very best studies of the grave question of war guilt: it firmly established the reputation of its author as a careful student and judicious interpreter of the multitudinous evidence in the case." C. H. J. Hayes

\+ Sat R of Lit 4:963 Je 16 '28 1000w

Springf'd Republican p7f My 6 '28 1300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p323 My 3 '28 860w

"Written with detachment, fully annotated, not avoiding issues or controversies and summarizing accurately thousands of documents, it deserves, in this excellent translation, a wide reading, both for the dramatic quality of its narrative and for the general soundness of its conclusions." B. E. Schmitt

\+ Yale R n s 17:799 Jl '28 700w

REUMERT, ELITH POUL PONSAING. Hans Andersen the man; tr. from the Danish by Jessie Bröchner. 192p il $3.50 Dutton [10s 6d Methuen]

B or 92 Andersen, Hans Christian [28-18159]

A psychological biography and defense of the famous Danish author, who suffered so keenly during his lifetime from misrepresentation and ridicule.

"Herr Reumert's book is a voluminous and carefully documented brief for the defense. . . a gold mine of material for whoever may undertake to write a real life of the man who rose from a birth almost in the gutter to be the honored guest of kings and celebrities. . . It is good work, well worth studying. But here in America and in England we don't care to hear about all those silly little controversies and malicious gossipings. We want the drama of the poor youngster who saw the world of beauty in the commonplace, who spoke the language of little children with the wisdom of an ancient sage, and who broke his heart in unrequited love for sweet Jenny Lind." Edwin Bjorkman

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p24 N 11 '28 800w

"This book ought to have been quite a good book, but it is marred by much slipshod writing, besides being padded, in places, with inconsequent chatter about nothing in particular. Also, Elith Reumert keeps intimating that it is wrong to say anything derogatory of a dead writer once his work has been universally accepted and admired. . . Despite its padding and discursiveness the book contains some interesting material."

— \+ Nation and Ath 42:754 F 18 '28 500w

New Statesman 30:698 Mr 10 '28 680w

Pratt p38 autumn '28

Sat R 144:915 D 31 '27 780w

"To an audience other than Danish, the passionate outcry in these pages against the long dead critics and friends who dared to smile at the personal eccentricities of Andersen is likely to be incomprehensible. Who needs to defend Andersen at all, nowadays? Has he not become as legendary and permanent a figure as Homer? Yet here is a good-sized volume full of naïve indignation against contemporaries who dared to hint that Andersen was vain, or that he was a tuft-hunter, or that he gave a great deal of trouble to hotel-keepers by his fussy demands."

Spec 140:201 F 11 '28 120w

"We do not love Andersen more for reading Miss Reumert's book, but that is because we loved him already—long ago—but we do feel a deeper understanding of him and a vast and tender pity."

\+ Springf'd Republican p8 O 30 '28 630w

Times [London] Lit Sup p975 D 22 '27 880w

REYNOLDS, BRUCE. Paris with the lid lifted. 281p il $2 Sully

914.436 Paris—Description 27-24643

The book is not for the ordinary tourist, but for the pleasure lover with plenty of money who wants to see all that Paris has to offer. To such the book gives explicit directions in the convivial style of the author's earlier book, A cocktail continentale.

"This is a volume for the young blood who will have his fling abroad and do it promptly. It is a book for those with money to spend.

REYNOLDS, BRUCE—Continued
Decorated in a manner reminding one of La Vie Parisienne, the guide book is made even racier by its illustrations, all excellent little black and white drawings."

Boston Transcript p5 F 11 '28 160w

"Some people here and there may find this a bold and encouraging volume. Others less naïve and loving Paris truly will be disgusted at the manner in which it vulgarizes an old and lovely city."

— N Y Times p5 Ja 22 '28 220w

REYNOLDS, GERTRUDE M. (ROBINS) (MRS LOUIS BAILLIE REYNOLDS). Gift in the gauntlet. 319p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Hodder & S.]

27-20430

Lady Courland, penniless and in love with another man, marries Ethan Storm and goes to his family home, Romaldscar. The secret of the ancient place estranges the couple just as the wife begins to care for her husband. Her former lover re-enters the story and tho her husband saves Hermia from disgrace, their coldness toward each other increases until the mystery at Romaldscar is revealed and a prophecy fulfilled.

"A complicated plot, a mystery, lovers' misunderstandings, a weird fortune-teller and an old tradition go to make a tale whose dauntless romanticism will be enjoyed by many readers." L. M. Field

+ Bookm 66:592 Ja '28 80w

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Ja 8 '28 140w

Boston Transcript p6 F 25 '28 130w

"If this were cut down to a fourth of its size, it would be an excellent parody of almost any of Elinor Glyn's novels." L. G.

N Y Evening Post p13 F 11 '28 100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p457 Je 30 '27 200w

REYNOLDS, PHILIP KEEP. The banana; its history, cultivation and place among staple foods. 181p il $2 Houghton

634.772 Banana 27-21892

"A readable, richly illustrated discussion of the banana, and its past, present, and probable future place in the economic scheme; brings together data regarding the nutritive value and utilization of the fruit, but is chiefly interesting for the descriptions of the regions in which it is and has been grown, and of the enormous recent development of the banana trade."—J Home Econ

---

Booklist 24:237 Mr '28

"A bibliography, probably the most complete on this subject now in print, accompanies the text. The book is profusely illustrated, presenting a complete review of great value to the student of commercial history, economic geography, modern business achievement, and Pan American relations."

+ Boston Transcript p4 D 10 '27 350w

"The present volume is the first to collect in condensed form the many interesting phases of the banana from its cultivation to its consumption. . . The appendix contains a comprehensive bibliography of the literature relating to the banana. The book is profusely illustrated and the avoidance of technical language makes it readable to the layman as well as to the scientist." H. J. Skinner

+ Ind & Chem 20:447 Ap '28 300w

J Home Econ 20:49 Ja '28 60w

"The history of the banana and the magic tale of how its cultivation has suddenly expanded during recent years together make one of the most amazing romances in the story of civilization. Mr. Reynolds tells it with adequate attention to all its phases, botanic, historical, economic."

+ N Y Times p30 N 27 '27 400w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:275 My '28

R of Rs 77:advii Ja '28 80w

RHODE, JOHN, pseud. See Street, C. J: C:

RICCI, CORRADO. Umbria santa; tr. by H. C. Stewart. 190p il $4 Oxford [12s 6d Faber & G.]

914.56 Umbria—Description and travel. Art—Umbria. Francis of Assisi, Saint 28-26154

" 'For the right understanding of a great man's mind,' says Signor Ricci, 'it is profitable for us to know the country of his choice; for few things can so truly reveal his feelings as the harmony existing between his innate thoughts, his life and his natural surroundings. The landscape of Umbria and its painters and its saints are thus comprehended from a unified point of view which cannot help but be enlightening. More than fifty illustrations furnish an excellent visual supplement to the text." —Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

Booklist 24:279 Ap '28

"He contributes nothing new, either in appreciation or knowledge, but so simple and tender is his presentation that one recalls one's own moments in Perugia or Assisi. Umbria is a land of dreams fulfilled both in the past of its saints and painters and in the present of its tourists, and it is these which the book brings vicariously to us."

Bookm 66:xliv F '28 150w

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p11 Je 10 '28 120w

Reviewed by Gilbert Thomas

Nation and Ath 41:sup392 Je 18 '27 100w

"Absorbing and eloquent book."

+ New Statesman 29:22 Ap 16 '27 300w

"They are written on a note of high lyricism which does not pass over into English readily, and the scholarship of the author is somewhat disguised in the passage. The book is extremely well produced and the illustrations are excellent."

Sat R 143:986 Je 25 '27 150w

Spec 138:807 My 7 '27 160w

RICE, ANN. Blight. 362p $2.50 Payson & Clarke [7s 6d Gollancz]

28-11050

When Jane's father and mother were divorced she took her father's part and went to live with him. Her sister Olga elected to stay with the mother. This selfish, domineering, social climber acts as blight on the family. For the father's good the divorce has come too late. He cannot hold a job, and fifteen-year-old Jane goes on the stage. The story follows both girls, Olga abroad with her mother, making a stand at last and marrying the man she loves, Jane at home married to a young playwright and drifting toward a repetition of her mother's faults.

"Mrs. Thorne is one of the most irritatingly real characters of her sort one is likely to find in modern fiction. If the sisters seem stilted, and the father surprisingly stupid, the novel justifies itself without their aid."

Bookm 67:464 Je '28 110w

"Jane and Olga are interestingly presented in their relations to environment and heredity; and Molly Thorne and her mother—ludicrous echo of the daughter—are a strangely familiar pair. Although the novel as a whole is loosely constructed, it has some very fine high lights, and is for the most part an entertaining and sound piece of work." Ruth Lechlitner

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p13 Je 10 '28 700w

Boston Transcript p6 Je 2 '28 350w

"The characterizations on the whole are good, the worst fault being overemphasis of Mollie's shrewish nature. Never for one moment does she display to any one a trace of a decent quality, and being so consistently 'cussed,' she fails to be credible." Lucy Goldthwaite

+ — N Y Evening Post p8 My 26 '28 360w

"The novel has variety, flavor and individuality; it is well and clearly written and holds the reader's interest."

+ N Y Times p8 Ap 22 '28 620w

N Y World p7m Ag 12 '28 140w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 9 '28 160w

RICE, FRANCIS OWEN. Mechanism of homogeneous organic reactions from the physical-chemical standpoint. (Am. chemical soc. Monograph ser.) 217p $5 Chemical catalog co.

547 Chemical reaction. Chemistry, Organic 28-2944

"The work is a systematic study of reaction kinetics and collects in accessible form much scattered material. Author is Associate Professor of chemistry in Johns Hopkins University." —N Y New Tech Bks

---

"There is at times a tendency to become encyclopedic, but on the whole the treatment is very readable. Anyone looking for research problems in physico-organic chemistry will find the book most suggestive. There are about five hundred references to the literature, which will prove of great value to all workers in this field." L: S. Kassel

+ Am Chem Soc J 50:1825 Je '28 700w

Reviewed by J. E. Booge

Chem & Met Eng 35:491 Ag '28 320w

"Doctor Rice has carried out an extremely difficult piece of work uncommonly well, and deserves the gratitude of organic chemists for pointing out a field which they will do well to explore." H. T. Clarke

+ Ind & Eng Chem 20:447 Ap '28 300w

Reviewed by T. M. Lowry

Nature 122:87 Jl 21 '28 1300w

N Y New Tech Bks 13:4 Ja '28

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:262 My '28

RICE, STUART ARTHUR. Quantitative methods in politics. 331p $3.25 Knopf

320 Politics, Practical. United States—Politics and government. Social psychology. Public opinion. Statistics 28-18750

"Professor Rice has brought together the results of a number of investigations designed mainly to show the applicability of statistical methods in research in the field of politics, 'politics' being defined as the subject which 'deals with the formulation of public policies and the machinery through which they are expressed.' The author emphasizes the method of his investigations and the evidence which he has been able to secure regarding the validity of that method."—Am J Soc

---

"There is no disputing the need for accurate, objective descriptions of the phenomena which we are studying as a preliminary to any adequate determination of casual processes. To the formulation of such descriptions Professor Rice's studies in the method unquestionably contribute. The book abounds, also, in insights into political processes which are quite incidental to the statistical findings." F. N. House

+ Am J Soc 34:389 S '28 630w

Educ R 76:74 S '28 650w

"The bulk of the book is devoted to a statistical survey of certain subjects of political import. These studies are interesting and ingenious, and will most likely be followed up by more elaborate and ambitious efforts by other investigators. Yet it is reasonably arguable that if the present studies are typical then the scope of the statistical method in politics is not extensive. Unlike some of his too sanguine co-workers, Professor Rice states his conclusions with admirable reserve and moderation."

+ Nation 127:sup378 O 10 '28 160w

RICHARDS, CHARLES RUSSELL. Industrial art and the museum. 102p il $1.50 (6s 6d) Macmillan

708 Art—Galleries and museums. Art industries and trade 27-23972

"After describing the development of European museums, defines the scope and character desirable in American museum collections, indicates the most effective method of display, and suggests educational activities."—St Louis

---

Booklist 24:354 Je '28

"As a whole, the book is a fine work which should prove most valuable both to curators, and to others brought by their interests in frequent contact with museums. But would not an index have been helpful?"

+ — Bookm 66:xvi F '28 220w

J Home Econ 20:128 F '28 80w

N Y Times p18 D 25 '27 300w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:150 Mr '28

R of Rs 77:28 Mr '28 90w

St Louis 26:35 F '28

Springf'd Republican p10 Ap 20 '28 220w

"Though this book is primarily intended for an American public, there is much information concerning European museums and their policies which an English reader will find useful."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p45 Ja 19 '28 160w

RICHARDS, GRANT. Coast of pleasure. 361p il $4 Harper [10s 6d J. Cape]

914.4 Riviera

Mr Richards loves the Riviera and is familiar with every section of it. His book, cleverly illustrated by Tom Van Oss, is an essay in reminiscent joys and at the same time a personal guide to the Coast of Pleasure where "you can have the best of both worlds. Simplicity and solitude and the unspoiled beauty of coast and mountain and forest, when you want them; and then, when you tire of nature and of quiet, crowds and carnivals, luxury and the decorated beauty of woman." (Preface)

"Mr. Grant Richards has been going to the Riviera for thirty years and he knows not only every inch of the coast, where to stay and where to dine, but also the hinterland. He touches on all places worth a visit between Toulon and Monte Carlo. His chapter on the motor journey from Paris is a gastronomic map; one drives with him from bottle to bottle. He is knowing about hotels; sinister, sceptical and amusing about Monte Carlo; and has withal a place for those peaceful villages tucked away in the mountains—so long as he can get back to Monte in the evening and have a bath. The drawings by Tom Van Oss are very funny."

+ New Statesman 31:460 Jl 14 '28 80w

"The tragedy of the book is that underneath all this determined optimism, this loud praise of things as they are, one seems to detect a lurking doubt, a haunting, growing fear that the Riviera too has taken the wrong turning, like so many other pleasant European things—has become merely noisy instead of gay, vulgar instead of wicked. Mr. Grant Richards praises bravely, but he cannot resist an occasional backward glance at King Edward's golden days."

Sat R 146:88 Jl 21 '28 200w

Sat R of Lit 5:443 D 1 '28 320w

"This is no ephemeral guide-book to the French Riviera; it is a work that will endure and that will be read and re-read by the great and growing company of those who love that blue sea for which all civilized peoples yearn. . . This is an expert book in every sense."

+ Spec 140:886 Je 9 '28 150w

"Among travel books that are at once informative and gossipy this one takes high rank; it is also written in a style of ease, briskness and clarity and it has drawings by Tom Van

RICHARDS, GRANT—Continued
Oss, which, while considerably less artistic than the text, catch some of its ironical humor."
+ Springf'd Republican p10 O 9 '28 560w

"He writes always with zest, and his book is both the most entertaining and, within its limits, the most informative that has yet been written on what is at the moment the most written about part of the world."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p370 My 17 '28 230w

RICHARDSON, MRS ANNA STEESE (SAUSSER). Etiquette at a glance. 232p $1.50 Appleton

395 Etiquet 27-23926

The fundamentals of good form in business, social or official life are here condensed into concise paragraphs, to the matter of which there is an index.

"With this book available, the man who masters French in twelve easy lessons, who sweeps across a survey course in literature by the scrapbook method and develops his personality through a correspondence school, will be able to deal firmly with each social amenity as it confronts him."
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 F 5 '28 150w
N Y Times p33 D 11 '27 250w

RICHARDSON, ANTHONY. Transgressor. 280p $2.50 Dodd [7s 6d Constable]
28-23917

For a dishonorable action committed in his youth Norlan pays twenty years of obscurity and remorse. He has lost self-respect and his wife's love. Then comes an opportunity for a man's job as boss of a convict gang building a mountain road in southern France. All his submerged qualities of leadership come to the fore; Norlan beats his enemies, makes friends of his men by his just treatment, and wins back his lost manhood.

"The story is so well written, so cleverly does it capture one's imagination that the characters seem really alive. The story of how Norlan worked out his release from the fear of discovery and exposure which had haunted him for so long makes it something more than a mere novel of adventure and crime." G. B.
+ Boston Transcript p6 N 3 '28 580w

"Mr. Richardson possesses the ability of describing both men and places vividly, yet simply, of leaving unsaid what the reader's imagination can supply. He approaches the verge of sentimentality frequently, but invariably succeeds in drawing back before it is too late."
+ N Y Times p6 N 11 '28 450w

"Many excellent qualities, rarely met with together, and rarely successful together, are to be found perfectly blended in 'The Transgressor.' It is a good novel." L. P. Hartley
+ Sat R 146:622 N 10 '28 400w

"The incidents are exciting, and the psychology is arresting and fine. Captain Norlan is a sympathetic character, well-woven of strength and sensibility. . . This is a masculine, well-written novel." R. A. Taylor
+ Spec 141:557 O 20 '28 180w
Times [London] Lit Sup p828 N 8 '28 450w

RICHARDSON, CAROLINE FRANCIS. English preachers and preaching, 1640-1670. 359p $2.50 Macmillan [10s 6d S.P.C.K.]

262.1 Church of England—Clergy. Preaching 28-4890

An exhaustive account of preachers and preaching in England from 1640 to 1670, with copious references and footnotes. The wide range of interests of the clergy of the period is illustrated in the accounts of Laud, Calamy, Fox, Edward Knox and Thomas Fuller.

"This is a fascinating piece of research. A very good book to recommend to your pastor—to keep alive his sense of humor."
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 Ap 1 '28 150w
J Religion 8:661 O '28 60w

"In spite of seeming pedantry the book makes rather interesting reading as throwing a searchlight on one particular profession during 30 dramatic years of English history. While the clergy are the center of interest, the whole social fabric is necessarily involved in the stage setting."
+ Springf'd Republican p10 My 15 '28 480w

RICHARDSON, DOROTHY M. (MRS ALAN ODLE). Oberland. 240p $2.50 Knopf [6s Duckworth]
28-14833

"The ninth volume of Miriam Henderson's 'Pilgrimage' finds her in Switzerland. The book, like its predecessors, is given over to Miriam's sensations, her impressions, her physical and sentimental responses to a relatively unexciting world. She spends a fortnight in a modest Swiss hotel, recuperating from overwork. Her stay is outwardly lacking in drama."—New Repub

---

Booklist 24:405 Jl '28

"Consciously or unconsciously, Miss Richardson's method has changed with her material. Far from being purely subjective, as in the early volumes of the series, it is frequently so objective as to be almost impressionistic. The note of ecstasy is grandly and triumphantly sounded, in contrast to the distressingly English guests at Miriam's hotel. The book is rich in poetic passages that are a full reward for the gas-light drabness of the earlier books in the series."
+ Bookm 67:xxxiv My '28 150w

Reviewed by G. B. Stern
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 Mr 11 '28 2650w

" 'Oberland' is a continuous flow of beautiful thought and expression. It is colorful and penetrating; it is pathetic and piquant. Above all, it is smoothly artistic. One should not read 'Oberland' in a sitting, even though it is not very long. The method might become too oppressive or obvious." A. C.
+ — Boston Transcript p4 Ap 7 '28 430w

"Miss Richardson is Victorian in sentiment and errs frequently in style, but where else do we find so dedicated a reverence for the implications of each passing moment, so scrupulous an attention to every tap of experience sounding outside an ear always attuned for such messages?"
Dial 84:434 My '28 60w
+ Living Age 334:278 F 1 '28 400w

" 'Oberland' is one of the best novels that Miss Richardson has written. . . In spite of its weakness in one respect, it is a triumph of this writer's conscientious and beautiful art." Edwin Muir
+ Nation and Ath 42:284 N 19 '27 380w

"In spite of the absence of action, these pages fairly dance with vitality. Miss Richardson's heroine lives at a pitch of intensity that casts enchantment over the commonest things. The novel has the detail of Proust, without the fatiguing effect of Proustian society. It has the living quality of Virginia Woolf, without her careful pattern." B. D.
+ New Repub 54:305 Ap 25 '28 170w

"The present volume is slighter than its predecessors; one wonders a little whether the theme is wearing out. But it is a charming light interlude in Miss Richardson's scheme, and should introduce many new readers to a work of importance." Conrad Aiken
+ N Y Evening Post p9 My 12 '28 960w

"For those who discover through 'Oberland' an author not known before the book will be a find indeed. For those who have long been acquainted with the rare genius of the writer it will be another precious thing. It is scarcely possible to say enough in praise of a book of such rare, such quietly dazzling beauty."

+ N Y Times p7 Mr 11 '28 650w

Reviewed by J: R. Chamberlain
N Y Times p2 Je 24 '28 110w

Reviewed by Ruth Suckow
N Y World p11m Mr 11 '28 850w

"One cannot help liking Miriam as one pursues her. . . Her style, that curious style, is her own invention and expresses her perfectly. Her imitators have borrowed her instrument for their experiments; in their hands it looks strange and uncouth; with her it is completely at home." L. P. Hartley
+ Sat R 144:828 D 10 '27 380w

"If Miriam is met on her own ground, if Miss Richardson's work is read as she intends, she has at least something to say. It should be taken only a little at a time, for even surrender to her method involves a really painful demand upon the imagination and the attention. But thus read she does render extraordinarily vivid the passing sensations of each moment. As May Sinclair says, she 'gets you.' For a time, and until normality returns, you will see in subway trains, along the streets, and on familiar walls, colors, shadows, lights that you never perceived before." E. A. Aldrich
+ — Sat R of Lit 4:841 My 5 '28 1150w
Times [London] Lit Sup p812 N 10 '27 350w

RICHARDSON, EDWARD GICK. Sound; a physical text-book. 286p il $6 Longmans [15s E. Arnold]

534 Sound 27-28110

"Dr. Richardson, Assistant in the Physics Department, University College, London, writes for university students for pass and honour examinations, endeavouring to give the results of recent experimental research and to provide an introduction to such treatises as those of Rayleigh and Lamb."—Times [London] Lit Sup

"A well-balanced account of the present state of knowledge in experimental acoustics. . . The book is very readable, is well produced, and can be heartily recommended to all interested in the subject." W. H. George
+ Nature 120:760 N 26 '27 1250w
N Y New Tech Bks 13:10 Ja '28
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:261 My '28
Times [London] Lit Sup p699 O 6 '27 40w

RICHARDSON, MRS ETHEL (PARK), comp. American mountain songs; ed. and arranged by Sigmund Spaeth. 120p il $3.50 Greenberg

784.8 American ballads and songs. Folk songs, American. Ballads, American. Mountain whites (Southern states) 28-5992

"From the inaccessible highlands of the Carolinas, North Georgia, Tennessee, Arkansas and Missouri come the sixty-odd songs in 'American Mountain Songs.'" (Books [N Y Herald Tribune]). The songs have all definitely originated in the American highlands and are divided into ballads, lonesome and love tunes, spirituals and nonsense songs. The music is included.

Booklist 24:274 Ap '28

"Whatever its shortcomings, this volume, like other ballad collections, finds abundant justification as an effort to rescue the old rhymes from a fate that is fast hurrying them into oblivion. Not so striking in its format as Mr. Finger's anthology, 'American Mountain Songs' will probably, like the former volume, do something to capture the fancy of the general public." Louise Pound
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 F 12 '28 300w
Boston Transcript p2 My 12 '28 230w
Reviewed by H: I. Brock
N Y Times p19 D 18 '27 100w
St Louis 26:72 Mr '28

"The book is well arranged with an excellent introduction showing how the language of the mountaineer of to-day is closely related to that of the Elizabethan, an adequate index, simple accompaniments to the songs suggesting the melodion and the guitar, and finally intelligent comments on the origins of the songs themselves. So that we have not only a book of songs that will appeal to the average singer, but also a clear reflection of the lives of their creators." Dorothea Withington
+ Sat R of Lit 4:790 Ap 21 '28 230w

RICHARDSON, FRANK HOWARD. Nervous child and his parents. 400p il $2.50 (10s 6d) Putnam

136.7 Children—Management. Children—Diseases. Nervous system—Diseases. Children—Care and hygiene. Child study 28-4358

A primer of advice for parents of nervous children; but useful even with normal children. Tantrums, jealousy, refusal to eat, disobedience, sleep disturbances, nail-biting, lying, stealing, running away and other disturbing elements in the rearing of children are discussed and remedies suggested.

Booklist 24:382 Jl '28
Reviewed by R. O. Kallen
Bookm 67:xx Ag '28 70w

"Dr. Richardson's book makes no pretensions of being based upon revolutionary doctrine, but it is grounded on the most recent medical discovery and written in a sane and temperate tone." Agnes De Lima
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 My 20 '28 110w

"The author feels that a good deal of nonsense has been talked about the problem of the nervous child, and brings a sturdy common sense to bear upon the apprehensions of the nervous parent. Such problems as 'tantrums,' 'refusal to eat' and 'sleep disturbances' are considered with penetrating reference to cause and simple suggestions for treatment. Most of the doctor's recommendations involve thoughtful personal application." D. B. Woolsey
+ New Repub 55:103 Je 13 '28 480w

"His book is no more than a synthesis of the truisms which have been popularized in recent years about the superficial aspects of problems of child-bearing. His advice is sound, however, and his explanations simple, and if he has nothing new to offer, still his book may well prove useful to conscientious parents who have not become familiar with more scientific terms." T. S.
N Y Evening Post p13 F 25 '28 90w
Wis Lib Bul 24:219 Jl '28

RICHARDSON, JOHN HENRY. Study on the minimum wage. 256p $2.50 Adelphi co. [7s 6d Allen & U.]

331.215 Minimum wage [27-19232]

"This study represents an attempt to measure the general application of national minimum wages to modern industrial conditions. The résumé is not limited to one particular territory but presents the standards of advanced countries against the competition of countries with low standards. The writer is of the opinion that as basis of the wage system of each country national minimum wages should be fixed. These would constitute a standard below which no worker of ordinary ability should fall."—Survey

Reviewed by H: R. Mussey
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 S 23 '28 650w

"This well-written little book by a member of the staff of the International Labour Office is an excellent introduction to the practice and problems of minimum wage regulation in the various countries which have made such ex-

RICHARDSON, J: H:—Continued
periments. Both the theory underlying the fixation of wages and the administrative machinery required are interestingly set forth." P. H. Douglas

+ J Pol Econ 36:171 F '28 850w

"Mr. Richardson has performed a most useful function, by bringing together a great deal of information about the practice of various countries in enforcing wage standards, not in a mere narrative, but as elements in an original and synthetic study of the problem. His book is a really valuable contribution to the subject."

+ New Statesman 29:490 Jl 23 '27 420w

Spec 138:700 Ap 16 '27 180w

Survey 59:785 Mr 15 '28 80w

Times [London] Lit Sup p281 Ap 21 '27 100w

RICHARDSON, LESLIE. Riviera coast. 278p il $4 Dodd [16s G. Bles]

914.4 Riviera [28-25941]

Pictures the Riviera coast as seen from the author's motor-cruiser. Points of interest on both the French and Italian Riviera are visited and described. Illustrated with photographs.

Boston Transcript p10 Ag 8 '28 280w

"The book should make an excellent and useful companion; and it has, besides its sea-lore, the additional advantages that the volume itself is a pleasant piece of bookmaking to handle, the author shows familiarity with the best that has been written about the Riviera by Conrad, Stevenson, Arthur Young and others, and the illustrations from photographs are excellent."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p370 My 17 '28 150w

RICHARDSON, NORVAL. Mother of kings. 471p $5 (21s) Scribner

B or 92 Bonaparte, Maria Letizia (Ramolino) 28-22149

Letizia Bonaparte is movingly presented in this novelized biography, as a woman of immense courage and character, and an unconquerable pride rising from the consciousness that she was the mother of Napoleon.

Booklist 25:117 D '28

"It will take a harder hitter than Mr. Richardson to do full justice to the crudest, strongest and finest member of the extraordinary clan of the Bonapartes. In his fastidious caution, the author has omitted or softened some of the most expressive lines of her portrait. . . Fortunately this impression dies away during the last hundred pages, where the author abandons the sweetish dialogue and gives us some excellent portrayal of character. . . Letizia deserves, and will have, more profound and penetrating biographies. But this one, in its way, is good."

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 N 4 '28 450w

"There is not a dull page in it, and yet, underlying all the brilliant detail, the sparkle, and the imagery, is the solid foundation formed by a vast amount of historical research."

+ Boston Transcript p3 N 3 '28 280w

"Here is imaginative biography in its extremest form—lavish, fluent, theatrical, and resolutely intimate all the time. No authority is cited or hinted at from first to last. . . The historical background against which Mr. Richardson stages his family drama is so remote and sketchy that one cannot get any real idea of the stature of Napoleon, or of his brothers and sisters. It is a pity to see such assiduity as Mr. Richardson's frittered away in so large and unsatisfying a volume."

— New Statesman 32:98 O 27 '28 210w

RICHARDSON, NORVAL. Pirate's face. 307p $2.50 Little

28-11056

Lucienne has been brought up by her father to the continental rather than the American point of view. Capable of romantic love, she submissively marries the man chosen for her and after her father's death goes to South America with her engineer husband. On the boat a Spaniard with a pirate's face captures her imagination and, finding out his mountain eyrie, she is tempted to leave her husband and go to him. The story is laid partly in the wilds of South America, partly in New York.

Booklist 25:123 D '28

Reviewed by R. B. Sanborn

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p13 Jl 1 '28 530w

"Every character is well drawn." R. B.

+ Boston Transcript p1 My 12 '28 530w

"Mr. Richardson writes well when he confines himself to ordinary people, but his exotic heroine and villain are just a bit unconvincing."

+ — Ind 121:21 Jl 7 '28 150w

"A story that is interesting on the whole, and convincing in the main. The characters are depicted understandingly and with reality; the reader has vivid glimpses into their psychology, and yet they are presented with a becoming restraint; while the setting—or, at least, the South American part of the setting—is portrayed in a picturesque detail that stands out in the reader's mind."

+ N Y Times p8 Ap 29 '28 420w

"There is quietly distinguished writing and character portraiture, as well as a decidedly ingenious working out of the central situation, in this urbane novel."

+ Sat R of Lit 4:1007 Je 30 '28 300w

Wis Lib Bul 24:224 Jl '28

RICHARDSON, SAMUEL. Familiar letters on important occasions; with an introd. by Brian W. Downs. (English lib.) 252p $4 Dodd [10s 6d Routledge]

826 Letters

Out of Richardson's semi-official capacity as letter-writer to the neighborhood grew not only this book of model letters for all sorts and conditions of men in every kind of circumstance, but also Pamela, the first English novel. The letters, quaint, amusing, and naïvely charming in themselves, have therefore, a double significance.

"Familiar Letters still keep their charm. They remained for the best part of a century the staple of 'polite letterwriters'; and later compilers constantly made use of the book and appropriated whole epistles. And, at any rate, they have one romantic appeal when the shy young man has finally declared his passion for an unknown lady and Richardson provides her with two answers, one to encourage him and one to damp him down, we are quite concerned to know which, in fact, she decided to send." Alan Porter

+ Spec 141:741 N 17 '28 750w

RICHMOND, MRS GRACE LOUISE (SMITH). At the south gate. 333p $2 Doubleday, Doran

28-25459

Modern marriage in two of its aspects forms the groundwork of the story. The struggling author and his vivacious, loyal wife who keep together are shown in contrast to the wealthy, dissolute couple who come to the verge of divorce.

"Her stories tell themselves smoothly and directly; emotions are tender more often than tough, and thoughts are expressed with homely—and somewhat bookish—charm. 'At the South Gate' possesses a few degrees more of character study than some of the author's recent books, but that is its only marked difference. It retains all their dependable merits."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p25 D 9 '28 120w

N Y Times p35 N 25 '28 200w

"Mrs. Richmond's novels are always about nice people concerned with getting more from life than the graceless daily bread and endowed with the power of very jolly talking and letter writing. They move along the surface of life, and their troubles—they all have troubles—are the kind that a stout heart and a willing hand can vanquish."

Sat R of Lit 5:410 N 24 '28 250w

RICHMOND, SIR HERBERT WILLIAM. National policy and naval strength, and other essays; with a foreword by Lord Sydenham of Combe. 355p $6 (16s) Longmans

359 Sea power. Naval history. European war, 1914-1918—Naval operations [28-10009]

"Admiral Richmond, chief of the recently organized Imperial Defense College, has here brought together a number of lectures and papers, some of them historical and others critical or expository, bearing upon the general subject of sea power and the principles of naval operations and defense. The chief interest of the book for the present moment is its insistence upon the need of systematic preparation for war before war itself begins, and its comment upon the question of naval armament which wrecked President Coolidge's naval conference at Geneva."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

Reviewed by W: MacDonald

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 S 9 '28 680w

"Vice-Admiral Sir Herbert Richmond is among the most thoughtful and well-read of our Naval officers. He has long since framed certain general principles on the effect and uses of sea power, and he applies them as consistently as did that brilliant American, Admiral Mahan."

+ Spec 140:685 My 5 '28 160w

Times [London] Lit Sup p459 Je 21 '28 1650w

RICHMOND, LEONARD. Art of landscape painting. 108p col pl $7.50 (25s) Pitman

758 Landscape painting 28-26352

As a guide for the student of landscape painting the book is generously and finely illustrated from the author's work, showing each step in the processes described from the preliminary sketch to the finished painting.

Booklist 24:354 Je '28

"The author professes no literary distinction, but does manage to set forth in plain words the elementary truths of his art." Ralf Renaud

N Y Evening Post p13 Ja 28 '28 220w

"A very able, if very pretentious, textbook for students who are desirous of taking up landscape painting." H. L. Matthews

+ — N Y Times p6 Mr 4 '28 380w

"It should be useful to the beginner if he is not too much deterred by the fact that his mentor's lay ins are almost always more attractive than the finished product. It is perhaps a defect that only the author's paintings are used in demonstration. Surely even the beginner should promptly make the acquaintance of great masterpieces. In short the outlook is rather that of the art class than of art."

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:597 F 11 '28 100w

RIDDELL, FLORENCE. What women fear. 352p $2 Lippincott [7s 6d G. Bles]

28-10631

Marya Combe, the famous explorer, married Dickie Bannister, twelve years her junior. Tongues wagged and predicted the destruction of their marriage, but their life went on with exceptional happiness. Then came Tanis, charming, radiant and only twenty, and with her came destruction. Marya took the only line known to her and after years of unhappiness regained her own.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p13 Je 17 '28 80w

"There is very little sense of reality, but a certain thin polish, a setting of nice people which gives a deceiving varnish to the whole."

— + Boston Transcript p2 Jl 14 '28 200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p912 D 1 '27 140w

RIDDELL, JOHN, pseud. See Ford, C.

RIDDER, ANDRE HENRI PIERRE DE, and DEONNA, W. Art in Greece; [tr. by V. C. C. Collum]. (Hist. of civilization) 375p il $5 Knopf [21s K. Paul]

709.38 Art, Greek 27-23474

"The first part discusses the relationship of art to manners, social rank, and the changing character of society. The second part is on Ionian, Dorian, Attic and other artistic tendencies; and the author ingeniously attempts to represent Attic art as a compromise between the other two. The best part is the third, where he analyses technical accompaniments, especially in sculpture, such as pose, anatomy, drapery, rhythm, composition and atmosphere. Part iv. is on the Greek ideal."—Times [London] Lit Sup

---

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p37 Ap 15 '28 120w

"To those to whom Greek art means something quite different than the monotonous plaster casts lining the entrance halls of the Metropolitan Museum this volume offers a new and refreshing approach. One is grateful that these authors base their speculation on the modest, though faithful, documents of lesser-known contemporary sculptors, vase painters, and workers in the minor arts rather than on the replicas of celebrated works modeled centuries later in a foreign land and spirit."

+ Nation 126:386 Ap 4 '28 150w

"It is not historical, but essentially analytical, both of technical features and of sociological connections. It traces separately the evolution of special aspects, pose, anatomy, drapery, composition. Even on the most familiar ground it is remarkably fresh and penetrating, and several of its æsthetic judgments are expressed in that vivid non-technical impressionistic style which is now happily in fashion."

+ New Statesman 30:176 N 19 '27 150w

"It is often hard to follow the author as he quotes statues or vase paintings, because the reader cannot have a library at his elbow, and the book should have been generously illustrated. Some even of the few plates are not good, and the line drawings in the text are of little use except to those who know the originals. The translation is not bad, but the translator was not familiar enough with the subject or he would not have given un-English spellings of Greek names or have made Aphrodite masculine in one place. None of Professor Beazley's works on vases is given in the bibliography, and of other books mentioned some are out of date and some too popular in character."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p219 Mr 22 '28 480w

RIDEOUT, HENRY MILNER. Lola the Bear. 159p il $1.75 Duffield

28-19548

This tale for men and boys tells how Mark's father was lost in the Maine woods, how Mark went out to look for him, and with the help of a friendly Indian named Lola the Bear, found his father and a gang of counterfeiters. The illustrations are in color and black and white.

"It is an honest, simple story of crime, justice and boyish pluck." J: Macy

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 Ag 5 '28 1350w

Boston Transcript p4 S 22 '28 80w

"Here is a book for boys that is well and carefully written. The characters are real; the author has the ability to make you see and feel the woods; and it is one of the few stories of this kind we have read in which the hero is neither a prig nor a professional strong man." W. R. Brooks

RIDEOUT, H: M.—Continued
+ Outlook 149:753 S 5 '28 80w

"Lola is an amusing Yankeefied Indian, probably drawn from life by the late author. The nature touches are nature. Lola's humor and the Sheriff's humor demonstrate, in contrast to the boy's seriousness, what life does to men who take it naturally, and their philosophy lives after them. 'Lola the Bear' is really a long short story, exquisitely told." T. M. Longstreth
+ Sat R of Lit 5:415 N 24 '28 160w

RIDER, DAN. Ten years' adventures among landlords and tenants; the story of the Rent acts. 332p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Methuen]

333 Landlord and tenant. Housing. Rent [28-17618]

The man who was chiefly responsible for the passing of the Rent acts in England during the acute stage of housing conditions beginning in 1914 and who was appointed by the government to represent the tenants' interests writes this history of his experiences. The cases which he heard were sympathetically dealt with and are related in an entertaining and humorous way.

"Naturally, this book is of greatest value for those who are interested in the economic problems which it involves. But those who are no way involved in the rent question will find it vastly entertaining. The style is delightful, and the subject matter is not to be treated with indifference by anyone interested in social problems." G. H. S.
+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 14 '28 1200w

"An entertaining addition to the history of the great war."
+ N Y Times p18 Ap 8 '28 310w

"How amusingly he can write about it—how intelligently and impartially—is a surprise, even to those who have heard Mr. Rider speak. The organized property-owners, as is well known, supported him throughout. His worst enemies were the extremists on the other side, who deliberately obstructed every attempt at reform, apparently wishing to see the poor suffer more and more in order to give them an excuse to 'bust up the show.'"
+ Sat R 144:919 D 31 '27 130w
Spec 139:396 S 10 '27 130w

"This book tells the story of the formation and activities of the War Rents League, but, lest the reader be led to infer therefrom that it is a dry summary of political and economic facts and figures, it may be said at once that, on the contrary, it is primarily a book of adventures; far more thrilling than many books placed by their publishers in that class."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p658 S 29 '27 630w

RIDING, LAURA. Contemporaries and snobs. 255p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d J. Cape]

824 Poetry

Miss Riding has chosen for her subjects in these essays on contemporaries and snobs: Poetry & the literary universe; T. E. Hulme, the new barbarism & Gertrude Stein; The facts in the case of Monsieur Poe.

Boston Transcript p2 O 24 '28 250w

"Miss Riding finds it safer to classify than to select. She classifies poets according to their periods, and poems according to their length. She has only one form of argument, and that is the reiterated use of the epithet 'snob.' Mr. Eliot is a 'snob' for liking Poe, and Miss Sitwell for liking Pope. In fact it is gross 'snobbery' for anyone to have better taste than Miss Riding." Roy Campbell
— Nation and Ath 42:817 Mr 3 '28 780w

"Miss Riding is a very acute critic of the circumstances of modern poetry. She is a little breathless, like all those who look round at contemporary conditions and gather them together in an attempt to make them intelligible in one synthesis. The reader also may arrive at the end of the book a little breathless and confused, wishing perhaps that Miss Riding had been more precise and defined more of her terms; but he will find when he gets his breath again that she has made a singularly complete and convincing survey of the causes of modern poetry, or at least of a certain school of modern poetry, being what it is."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p254 Ap 5 '28 1200w

RIDING, LAURA, and GRAVES, ROBERT. Survey of modernist poetry. 295p $2 Doubleday, Doran

821 Poetry. English poetry [28-14310]

The English poet laureate has collaborated with Miss Laura Riding in producing this survey of modernist poetry. The authors examine the work of E. E. Cummings, T. S. Eliot, Edith Sitwell, Marianne Moore and others in regard to form and subject, comparing them to the older poets.

Living Age 334:560 Mr 15 '28

"The authors give a convincing explanation for most of the puzzling aspects of contemporary poets. They tell you why it is 'difficult,' why it is irregular in form and syntax, why it is mocking, bitter, and cynical. But they do not tell you why it is poetry. They seem to the reviewer to have very little poetic sensibility. And, having an unpoetic sensibility, these authors necessarily stray into an unsound theory of poetry. Cummings, Ransom, Moore—these are new stars in our firmament, and Riding and Graves are the first astronomers to spot them (or shall we say the first journalists to publish the news?)."
— Nation and Ath 42:654 Ja 28 '28 1250w

"The authors propose to show us what 'modernist poetry' is, how it has come into existence and why it should be admired. It is a praiseworthy attempt and I am indebted to the authors for light in some places which have hitherto been dark to me. But I remain unconvinced by most of their argument and quite unimpressed by their methods of presenting it." E: Shanks
— Sat R 144:822 D 10 '27 1450w
Spec 139:1132 D 24 '27 150w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple
Survey 61:170 N 1 '28 80w

"The plain reader will certainly find himself at the end with more understanding of the modernist poets than he had at the beginning; and even a small success is worth gaining in a matter of so much importance. The plain reader is, on the whole, treated fairly throughout the book, and in gratitude he must persevere in his search for enlightenment through a good deal of what may seem to him to be nonsense and waste of time."
Times [London] Lit Sup p40 Ja 19 '28 500w

RIESENBERG, FELIX. Red horses. 336p $2 McBride

28-5533

"An earlier version of Red Horses entitled 'P. A. L.' was published three years ago. The story is the rise of Pal Tangerman from dubious beginnings in Seattle to risky millionairehood in Chicago."—Bookm

Bookm 67:xxvi Jl '28 110w

"A rather tiresome exposure of various get-rich-quick schemes floated by Pal, which, strung out into 336 pages, begins to lose a salty savor. The novel begins suspiciously, but like 'Elmer Gantry,' there is too much of the same development of theme, a continuous harping on incidents which, interesting once told, do not improve by repetition. Chicago is well sketched and the truth is not overstrained in the sketching."
— + Boston Transcript p5 Mr 21 '28 110w

N Y Evening Post p10 F 18 '28 100w
N Y Times p5 F 12 '28 730w

"It is one of the most effective and malicious cartoons of mercantile fraud ever presented." E: T. Booth

+ Sat R of Lit 4:865 My 12 '28 600w
Springf'd Republican p7f F 12 '28 400w

RIESENBERG, FELIX. Shipmates; sketches of the sea. 233p $2.50 Harcourt

910.4 Seafaring life. Seamen 28-11892

Short sketches of men and ships and places, all of them known to Captain Riesenberg at one time or another. The papers have almost all appeared in the Nautical Gazette.

Booklist 25:115 D '28
Boston Transcript p3 Je 30 '28 500w
Cleveland Open Shelf p76 Je '28

"There is more than knowledge in these reminiscences of men and events afloat—there is an understanding of human nature and the spirit of his time."

+ Nation 127:252 S 12 '28 120w

" 'Shipmates' strikes the reader, who is looking for sound accomplishment, as well as for lively and stimulating subject matter, as a very uneven performance. The pictures sometimes fail to seem quite real. Some of them do have spirit, do contain strong characterization, do show finely felt descriptive passages, salty freshness and rich sea talk. Quite a few are flat and slight, however." Florence Haviland

— + N Y Evening Post p8 Je 30 '28 250w

"These little papers, published mostly in the Nautical Gazette, are characteristic of the seaman who wrote them. Many of them are most excellent, many of them might be even better than they are, and some, if he had given time to the job, could have been little masterpieces."

+ N Y World p10m Ap 29 '28 300w

"If you love the sea, you will enjoy these sketches of men and ships and places, but if you do not love it they will never make you." W. R. Brooks

Outlook 149:195 My 30 '28 40w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:548 N '28

RIETSCHEL, HERMANN IMMANUEL, and BRABBEE, CARL WILHELM. Heating and ventilation; a handbook for architects and engineers; tr. for Am. use from the 7th German edition. 332p il $4.50 McGraw

697 Heating. Ventilation 28-470

" 'Discusses those phases of design of apparatus that apply to installations with the purpose of giving the engineer and the architect the information necessary to appraise and criticize the value of heating and ventilating equipment of various types.' (Domestic engineering, 1928)"—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

---

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:267 My '28

RIGGS, ARTHUR STANLEY. Spanish pageant. 416p il $5 Bobbs

914.6 Spain—Description and travel 28-28380

An enjoyable tour of modern Spain in which present day characteristics of the Spanish pageant are interestingly described and briefly compared with those of the past. The author, who writes out of intimate observation and deep appreciation, touches on all aspects of modern life in Spain. His book is plentifully illustrated from excellent photographs.

"Unusually valuable because it indicates the possibilities of automobile travel in the country. Mr. Riggs writes well and interestingly and at some length of the principal cities and briefly of the less important ones. The illustrations —most of them from his own photographs—are numerous and well chosen. The book should prove valuable to prospective visitors to any part of the country." Herschel Brickell

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p29 N 25 '28 480w

"Mr. Riggs does more than describe. He interprets." F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p6 N 28 '28 650w

RIHANI, AMEEN FARES. Maker of modern Arabia. 370p il $6 Houghton

953 Arabia—History. Arabia—Politics and government. 'Abd al-Aziz ibn Sa'ūd, king of Hejaz and Nejd 28-26638

A Syrio-American made a determined effort to penetrate the barriers, physical, political and religious, that surround Ibn Sa'oud, king of Najd, in Arabia. This illustrated story of his experiences in the desert kingdom is a tribute to Ibn Sa'oud, maker of modern Arabia, and his achievements.

Booklist 25:25 O '28

"Mr. Rihani's picture of the Wahabi, the Moslem puritans of whom Ibn Sa'oud is the religious head as well as the temporal ruler, is the sort of first-hand authoritative stuff that puts this book above and wholly outside the range of the usual treatises either of travel, observation or politics." W: B. Seabrook

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 My 6 '28 800w
Boston Transcript p2 Je 2 '28 1250w

"Exceedingly timely contribution to knowledge of Arabia. . . The most important section of Rihani's work is his account of the Uqair Conference, which is a definite contribution to history and exceedingly well done."

+ Nation and Ath 43:114 Ap 28 '28 680w

"He has a lively style (which occasionally becomes histrionic) and he mixes grave topics and gay with considerable skill. Many of the descriptions of the country are admirable, and the life and manners of its rather grim inhabitants are sympathetically yet critically portrayed."

+ New Statesman 30:800 Mr 31 '28 760w
N Y Evening Post p9 My 26 '28 120w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson
N Y Times p7 My 13 '28 1350w

Reviewed by Alphonse Toinette
N Y World p7m Je 10 '28 1000w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:497 O '28

"Mr. Rihani's book is from some points of view one of the most interesting that have yet appeared on modern Arabia. . . What makes him valuable as an observer and a reporter is his curious but unmistakable ability to find the things of the East both strange and familiar—strange enough to call out the full powers of his observation, familiar enough not to be confusing." E: Shanks

+ Sat R 145:324 Mr 17 '28 1200w

"Rihani has evidently taken Doughty as his pattern; and very wisely too. He has written an excellent book, humorous, colorful, and balanced in judgment." F. A. Ali

+ Sat R of Lit 4:840 My 5 '28 930w

Reviewed by T: Arnold
Spec 140:423 Mr 17 '28 800w
Times [London] Lit Sup p183 Mr 15 '28 700w
Wis Lib Bul 24:223 Jl '28

RINEHART, MRS MARY (ROBERTS). Two flights up. 248p $2 Doubleday, Doran

28-18123

The bonds stolen by Holly Bayne's father were hidden by him in the house before his arrest. Only Mrs Bayne knows where they were. She asks the new roomer to sell one of the bonds for her. Unsuspectingly he does so, and brings an avalanche of trouble on his own head and Holly's. The resulting tale is rather a love story than a mystery.

RINEHART, MARY—Continued

Booklist 25:30 O '28

" 'Two Flights Up' is no high pressure shocker, but 'a love story, with just enough mystery' —to give it some modish lines. To Mrs. Rinehart's large gallery of memorable portraits add Mrs. Bayne, a decayed gentlewoman whose practically half-witted goings-on keep the clews moving." Will Cuppy

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Jl 22 '28 180w

"Altogether enticing little tale. Relatively slight as the story is in plot and length, longer ones which Mrs. Rinehart has written have not made more evident her sensitive understanding, her control of artistic values, her delicacy of emotional analysis." F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 27 '28 550w

"It is certainly not a work of the highest type of literary art. But it is a good and a puzzling mystery story and its problem is propounded and solved with all her customary skill and ingenuity." E. F. Edgett

+ Boston Transcript p7 N 17 '28 170w

Cleveland Open Shelf p124 N '28

Times [London] Lit Sup p761 O 18 '28 110w

RIPLEY, OZARK, pseud. See Thompson, J: B. de M.

RIPPY, JAMES FRED. Latin America in world politics; an outline survey. 286p $3.50 Knopf

327.8 Spanish America—Foreign relations. Spanish America—Politics. Spanish America—Relations (general) with Europe. Spanish America—Relations (general) with United States. United States—Relations (general) with Spanish America 28-10384

"A survey of the history of Spanish-American foreign relations emphasizing the modern period."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

Reviewed by J. B. Lockey
Am Hist R 34:148 O '28 600w

Reviewed by H. T. Collings
Ann Am Acad 138:186 Jl '28 600w

Booklist 24:386 Jl '28

"So useful a book will doubtless find a place in college classes and will run to a second edition. When it does, perhaps Mr. Rippy will tone down his alarm at Japanese immigration into South America (there are more Hindus in British Guiana alone than Japanese on the entire continent). So good a book should be freed from even these lesser flaws." L: S. Gannett

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 Jl 8 '28 850w

Reviewed by A. C. Wilgus
Hist Outlook 19:237 My '28 560w

"Professor Rippy has provided an historical and contemporary study indispensable for an understanding of the conditions that have produced an important phase of international relationships. The material gathered and the manner of its interpretation do credit to his scholarship and discernment. Informative, readable and well arranged, the work merits careful consideration." W: R. Shepherd

+ New Repub 55:340 Ag 15 '28 580w

"His book is a useful corrective of the one-sided treatment which Latin-American history, particularly that of recent years, has commonly received, and also a welcome introduction to a large and important field of international politics and international thought." W: MacDonald

+ N Y Times p1 Ap 29 '28 1600w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:327 Je '28

Sat R of Lit 4:1007 Je 30 '28 100w

RIPPY, JAMES FRED; VASCONCELOS, JOSE; and STEVENS, GUY. Mexico. (Am. policies abroad) 253p $1.50 Univ. of Chicago press [7s 6d Cambridge univ. press]

972 Mexico. United States—Foreign relations —Mexico. Mexico—Foreign relations—United States 28-26854

"This little book, published for the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, attacks the question of our relations with Mexico from three separate and distinct points of view. Professor Rippy gives an historical, critical summary. Mr. Vasconcelos voices the thoughts of the Mexican nationalists; Mr. Stevens presents the case of the American investor."—R of Rs

Booklist 25:115 D '28

"The three authors together integrate the Mexican problem in the mind of the reader in a most illuminating fashion."

+ Bookm 68:xiv N '28 130w

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p22 O 21 '28 480w

Boston Transcript p7 N 7 '28 550w

Reviewed by H: E. Armstrong
N Y Times p1 O 7 '28 1250w

"There is no propaganda here. The reader is expected to form his own opinions."

R of Rs 78:adv36 O '28 80w

RITCHIE, ROBERT WELLES. Hell-roarin' [2] forty-niners. 298p pt 1 $3 Sears

979.4 Frontier and pioneer life—California. California—Gold discoveries 28-22302

"Like the later miners who worked over old diggings and found gold missed in the first rush, Mr. Ritchie has panned out from abandoned mining towns and the files of old newspapers some nuggets overlooked by Bret Harte. Nuggets, not goldsmith's work, are the compact tales contained in this volume. There are tragedies and comedies—the hanging of Juanita at Downieville, and the rise of the E Clampus Vitus Society, the fate of Lucky Bill, and the Sage Brush War."—N Y Evening Post

"The author has accumulated much information of the period, and he tells a story dominated by all the hysteria and romance that can possibly be associated with adventurous days."

+ Boston Transcript p4 D 5 '28 220w

N Y Evening Post p11m D 8 '28 120w

N Y Times p18 D 30 '28 300w

"He writes in workman-like but never spectacular fashion. He knows his ground, gets over a good bit of flavor and shows some penetration." D. R. M.

+ Outlook 150:1334 D 12 '28 80w

RITTENHOUSE, JESSIE BELLE (MRS CLINTON SCOLLARD), ed. Third book of modern verse; a selection from the work of contemporaneous American poets. 341p $2 Houghton

811.08 American poetry—Collections 27-24174

"A satisfying anthology made up of the choicest work, published since 1919, of about one hundred and fifty American poets, inclusions ranging from one poem each, to four in the case of a chosen ten."—Cleveland Open Shelf

Booklist 24:155 Ja '28

Reviewed by Horace Gregory
Bookm 67:203 Ap '28 80w

"If Miss Rittenhouse has one flaw it is, perhaps, that of erring a bit on the side of sweetness and safety; but this is forgivable, insomuch as her fault, if it be one, is not carried to the lengths, say, that the late Mrs. Waldo Richards carried hers. Yes, yes, E. E. Cummings, Ezra Pound, T. S. Eliot and Hart Crane are included in Miss Rittenhouse's book. And so is Cale Young Rice and John Eskine and Arthur Guiterman. So it may be seen that her catholicity is undisputed; and her anthology is an attractive volume."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p21 N 20 '27 200w

"A perfect gift for poetry lovers."
+ Cleveland Open Shelf p133 D '27

"Miss Rittenhouse's two previous anthologies in this series have become justly famous. They had character even while they were catholic. The present volume, bringing the picture up to date, will be quite as valuable as its predecessors."
+ Nation 126:169 F 8 '28 40w
No Am 225:adv Ja '28 20w
Pratt p27 spring '28

"Her choice, as with every editor, is fallible. This being so, one cannot inquire why there is no single illumination by so fine a poet as Léonie Adams or considering the number of unabashed echoes of Edna St. Vincent Millay, why there is no excerpt from the two-edged impudences of Dorothy Parker. . . Although Miss Rittenhouse seldom strays into pastures new and confines her heart and her book to charted fields, it is decidedly pleasant accompanying her." L: Untermeyer
+ — Sat R of Lit 4:914 My 26 '28 800w

"A worthy successor to the Little Book of modern verse. A really charming selection from recent poetry. Readers will find personal favorites and discover new delights."
+ Wis Lib Bul 23:287 D '27

RITTER, MARGARET TOD. Wind out of Betelgeuse. 95p $1.25 (5s 6d) Macmillan 811 28-7169

Sonnets, lyrics, several portrait impressions and one narrative poem, "Cruse of oil," make up this volume of verse.

Booklist 24:394 Jl '28

"With a sense of relief—and even of novelty—one turns to verse such as Margaret Tod Ritter's. It is not provocative, it is not dynamic; lo! it is not even modern. But, at that, much of it manages to get neatly, often pointedly, said, although most of the subject-matter is classical, conservative, even bookish." Ruth Lechlitner
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 Jl 29 '28 450w
Boston Transcript p5 Je 16 '28 180w

"Miss Ritter has made a charming book; she has awakened us to an appreciation of her sincerity and her artistic integrity." V. T. McC.
+ Cath World 128:121 O '28 280w

"Stripped of a sweet and pretty rhetoric, espousing the single adjective, the short brief phrase, and the tight clipped stanza, Miss Ritter's lyrics, because they lack any really vital content, are very much like photographed metal, or, more accurately, like a smooth-edged fragment of unpliable slate." Marcia Nardi
New Repub 55:180 Jl 4 '28 110w

" 'Wind Out of Betelgeuse,' despite the pretentiousness of the title, is, nevertheless, a more than acceptable contribution." Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p2 Ap 29 '28 280w

"Too often her verse leaves an impression of sterile hardness, of a starkness which is rather metallic than profound. At her best, in some of her sonnets or in such 'Portrait Impressions' as 'Emily Brontë,' she compensates us for her lack of sensitiveness by a certain intensity."
Times [London] Lit Sup p670 S 20 '28 160w

ROBACK, ABRAHAM AARON. Psychology of character; with a survey of temperament. (Int. lib. of psychology, philosophy and scientific method) 595p $5.50 Harcourt [21s K. Paul]
137 Character. Temperament. Personality 28-3327

"Before Dr. Roback expounds his own view of character he gives a most complete and admirable historical survey of the study of character, with an account of all the methods of approach and schools of thought. Its comprehensiveness is little short of a miracle."—New Statesman

"The treatment is unique in its breadth and scholarly character. Dr. Roback has devoted the major portion of his large volume to a historical study. With a thoroughness that bespeaks great industry and distinct scholarly inclinations, he has carefully combed the English, French, and German literature and has managed to pay some attention to Dutch, Italian, Hungarian, and Russian contributions to the concept of character. These are presented in the form of carefully read and assimilated theories, and are not merely cited and glossed over with a few general remarks." Herbert Blumer
+ Am J Soc 33:1001 My '28 1000w
Booklist 24:233 Mr '28
Reviewed by Raymond Weaver
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 Mr 11 '28 450w

"The book is a rich storehouse of material gathered in the fields of both theory and practise, with literary attitudes appealed to for illustration and both ancient and modern schools of psychological thought called in either for criticism or endorsement. But it is also expository in the best sense, and though technical here and there, goes far to illuminate both individual and social problems." E. N.
+ Boston Transcript p3 Ag 27 '27 520w

"Dr. Roback's otherwise valuable work is not wholly satisfactory as a text. There are two reasons for this. In the first place his collection of source material is not organized in a way to make it useful as a textbook. It is more in the nature of a source book. In the second place, Dr. Roback's constructive theory is too controversial for satisfactory textbook material. That it has a certain basis in facts there can be no doubt, but the facts are not in the foreground." M. A. May
+ — J Philos 25:326 Je 7 '28 1400w

"As a whole, the book is too uneven; but it is learned, honest, and in its way massive. We can confidently recommend it both to the layman and the practitioner of psychology."
+ — Nation and Ath 41:781 S 17 '27 760w
New Statesman 29:748 S 24 '27 230w
Reviewed by J: E. Lind
N Y Times p17 N 20 '27 900w

"In the work of Roback we are offered a mine of historical information and also the latest findings in the study of character in a thorough manner but, at the same time, in a clear and highly interesting style." Woodbridge Riley
+ Sat R of Lit 4:614 F 18 '28 560w

"Dr. Roback has been at immense pains to read and summarize what has so far been published on the subject. We cannot imagine that anything of importance has escaped him; but the result is not striking. The impression one receives is that of an endless series of fidgety variations on a single theme. Dr. Roback's style is, to say the least, unattractive."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p104 F 16 '28 1480w

ROBBINS, HOWARD CHANDLER. Cathedral sermons. 261p $2 Harper
252 Sermons 27-20938

Twenty-one sermons preached in the Cathedral of St John the Divine, New York City, by the dean of the cathedral. The sermons selected have been chosen from those preached by Dean Robbins during a period of sixteen years. A memorial address on Woodrow Wilson is included.

"They impress one with their dignity and sincerity and their unfailing fitness for the occasions on which they were spoken. At the same time they reveal a certain impersonal quality, perhaps imposed upon them by the vastness of the edifice in which they were delivered. The most interesting of the addresses, to the average reader, will be those of a memorial nature—particularly those devoted to Horatio W. Parker and to Woodrow Wilson."

ROBBINS, H. C.—Continued

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p30 D 4 '27 90w

Boston Transcript p1 N 5 '27 180w

"Dr. Robbins's sermons, a selection from those preached at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, are of excellent quality. A liberal orthodox acceptance of the main tenets of the Christian faith leads to a sympathetic and helpful interpretation of certain of life's deeper problems." J: H. Holmes

+ N Y World p10m O 30 '27 70w

ROBERTS, ALEXANDER CRIPPEN, and DRAPER, EDGAR MARIAN. High-school principal, as administrator, supervisor, and director of extracurricular activities; with a foreword by Lotus D. Coffman. 335p $2 Heath

371.2 School superintendents and principals. High schools. School management and organization 27-14627

The president of the University of Minnesota writes in the Foreword: "The book is not a book filled with mere theorizings. It is not a book of devices. It is a book that illuminates the varied life of the principal. It lists and describes his duties and responsibilities, administrative and supervisory and extracurricular, in a clear and convincing manner. The book is not intended to be historical or academic. It is intended to be definitely helpful and practical." The authors are professor and assistant professor of education in the University of Washington.

Educ R 74:184 N '27 150w

"The best feature of the book is the 128 problems listed at the end of the several chapters. These embody genuine situations. Good bibliographies will be found at the close of the chapters. The table of contents is well outlined, and the index is very complete." H. G. Blue

+ School R 36:67 Ja '28 700w

ROBERTS, CARL ERIC BECHHOFER (EPHESIAN, pseud.). This side idolatry. 349p $2.50 Bobbs [7s 6d Mills & B.]

Dickens, Charles—Fiction 28-21370

"A novel based on the life of Charles Dickens." (Subtitle) The author has consulted documentary evidence and surviving friends of Charles Dickens and has attempted to write a novel which depicts him as he was in the days of his highest popularity.

"The narrative is an absorbing one. It will be read with breathless interest, with chortling amusement and loud disapproval by Dickens devotees. . . The discerning reader who comes to this book without precise knowledge of Dickens's life, as most readers will come to it, will have no means of knowing whether Dickens really deserved his biographer's very lively contempt. The undiscerning reader will accept as true a portrait whose damaging factors proves on analysis to be slight." A. B. Parsons

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 S 23 '28 1350w

"Even the uninitiated will find it more interesting than the ordinary novel. It is a thoroughly good story and is one of the few that can be unqualifiedly recommended." E. D. W.

+ Chicago Daily Tribune p16 O 20 '28 250w

"I cannot say that I think the life of Dickens, whether orthodox or otherwise, a particularly thrilling theme for a novel, but the book is interesting as a corrective, as an attempt to see Dickens more or less as he was. We have got the notion nowadays that there is some virtue in the process of 'debunking'; there is, but it should not be limited to mere personalities. A literary legend is more important than a personal reputation." Ernest Boyd

+ — Ind 121:307 S 29 '28 1000w

"Mr. Bechhofer Roberts has written a vulgar, stupid, and boring book, but to talk of his desecrating a great memory is rather nonsense. The book is vulgar because all the standards in it are low; it is stupid because Mr. Roberts has only seen the most obvious things in Dickens's life and character; it is boring because of the appalling sameness in the speeches which he makes his characters spout. . . Dickens was probably all the extremely unpleasant things which Mr. Roberts has so laboriously shown to us. But he was also at one and the same time, in nearly every case, their exact opposite. Even if what we know of his life did not prove this, his books alone would prove it." Leonard Woolf

— Nation and Ath 43:794 S 22 '28 1150w

"It is Dickens's nemesis that his own method of caricature should be turned against him—but nemesis loses its force when its weapon is a book which from any point of view is vulgar, silly and dull." R. M. Lovett

— New Repub 56:253 O 17 '28 100w

"Exaggeration and a disregard of the kindlier and more understanding part of Dickens's character are the chief faults of the book. Much of it, of course, is necessarily fictitious, and some of the characters are merely irritating puppets, who talk like Jingle or Micawber but not so well; and there is a hysterical scene at the end between Dickens and Kate Dickens which need never have been written. Still, as a trifling antidote to Forster, it is worth reading."

— + New Statesman 31:700 S 15 '28 630w

"We submit that when a later biographer runs counter to his predecessors the burden of proof is on his shoulders. Mr. Bechhofer-Roberts has not produced the proof of his assertions. On the other hand, 'This Side Idolatry' is not without its pleasing qualities. And throughout the narrative manner, resembling much the narrative manner of De Morgan, is such as to be pleasantly unobtrusive. The present writer's complaint—aside from the specific one on assumption of authority—is against the genre [novelized biography]."

— + N Y Times p6 S 9 '28 1000w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 226:adv N '28 60w

" 'This Side Idolatry' constitutes nothing less than an attempt to smash the Dickensian tradition. Cast in the form of fiction as it is, it gives the author a license to put serious charges in the words of others, evading the possible responsibility that might be his were his book presented as straight biography. Yet this fact is inescapable; Mr. Bechhofer-Roberts knows his Dickens as a man; he makes no attempt to depreciate or deprecate his work as a novelist." Harry Salpeter
Outlook 150:917 O 3 '27 800w

"The puerility of the dialogue put into the mouth of Dickens, which, of course is entirely fictitious, is sufficient proof of the poverty of the author's literary conception. In his delineation of other personages introduced he is not much more successful or trustworthy." J. R. Towse

— Sat R of Lit 5:266 O 20 '28 1000w

"He has studied all Dickens's failures and defects, his vanity, his selfishness, his greed for money, his boisterous fooleries, and out of these and these alone he has constructed a cad and a bounder without any trait that is not repulsive and contemptible. Never does Mr. Roberts attempt to reproduce a spark of Dickens's charm, or of his impetuous compassions and liberalities, and by the complete omission of such his Charles Dickens is a puppet who bears no real resemblance to the man after whom he was named." E. F. Benson

— Spec 141:333 S 15 '28 450w

Springf'd Republican p8 D 1 '28 480w

ROBERTS, CARL ERIC BECHHOFER (EPHESIAN, pseud.). Winston Churchill; being an account of the life of Winston Churchill. 272p $5 McBride

B or 92 Churchill, Winston 28-12463

" 'Ephesian' does full justice to the many talents, to the originality, the spontaneous force, the virtues, and the defects of the man who is certainly the outstanding personality in present-day England."—Ind

---

"Ephesian is a eulogist merely. If Winston Churchill, who is said by his biographer to have a nice taste in literature, can enjoy a paean of this kind, he is different from one's notion of him. The book is better written than most of its class; or rather, it would have been if Ephesian had not adopted the historic present all through. That practice, established in French, is vexatious in English." S. K. Ratcliffe

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 Ap 1 '28 730w

Reviewed by Edmund Noble

Boston Transcript p3 Mr 17 '28 1950w

"A really first-class job in contemporary biography. Insight, thorough information, a clear, readable style, a very fair-minded attitude, and a Guedalla or Strachey-like turn for satirical phrase combine to make this book as delightful as it is informative."

+ Ind 120:315 Mr 31 '28 150w

Reviewed by Keith Hutchison

Nation 127:161 Ag 15 '28 800w

Nation and Ath 42:188 N 5 '27 230w

Reviewed by J. W. T. Mason

Sat R of Lit 4:737 Ap 7 '28 680w

Spec 139:sup557 O 8 '27 1000w

"The book is an appreciation, not a criticism; and Ephesian is not prepared to admit that his hero has ever made a mistake."

Times [London] Lit Sup p723 O 20 '27 450w

ROBERTS, CECIL. Sagusto. 325p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Hodder & S.]

28-7944

Major Denis Cameron, English, idling in Venice, performs a trifling service for a charming stranger. Invited to board the lady's yacht to receive her thanks in person, he is first kidnapped and then impressed into further service. The lady has an island, Sagusto, and a lovely daughter, Nada. To wrest the island from the enemy who holds it and to win the daughter become the Major's objectives in a vigorous and daring campaign.

"Mr. Roberts has a nimble invention, and his initial conception has allowed him the utmost latitude in its exercise. His pages are filled with all the diverting and agreeable stage properties of conventionalized romance, with beautiful women and treacherous villains and reckless mercenaries—with moats and machine guns and murder. And the whole impossible, glittering arrangement is carried off with an urbanity which is at once the book's prime virtue and its greatest fault." Margaret Wallace

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Mr 18 '28 600w

"It is worthy of notice that Mr. Roberts misses no point in his quite clever delineation of character. Against the color and passion of these southern peoples where even the beautiful young girl Nada arms herself and would as lief as not kill an enemy, he sets the cool sanity of his Englishman. . . The character of Major Cameron makes a very large part of the interest of the story."

+ Boston Transcript p2 F 24 '28 1250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p107 S '28

"A modern romance in an ancient manner; no better, no worse, than it should be."

N Y Times p16 F 5 '28 420w

"The action passes quickly—almost disconcertingly so—to a too circumstantial ending that finishes a fairly good story and a well-created atmosphere."

+ Sat R of Lit 4:635 F 25 '28 180w

"The reader must be content to accept the fact that his plot is absolutely impossible. This once settled, the struggle over the island of Sagusto makes fairly exciting reading, and the donna herself is a notable figure."

+ Spec 139:580 O 8 '27 60w

" 'Sagusto' is a straightforward, almost bald, tale of adventure, and, although the author displays his customary carefulness and skill in describing events, he has not troubled—except, perhaps, where the hero is concerned—to endow his characters with any particular individuality."

Times [London] Lit Sup p669 S 29 '27 220w

ROBERTS, ELIZABETH MADOX. Jingling in the wind. 256p $2 Viking press

28-22353

Jeremy was the official rainmaker of Jason county. Thrilled by the stories of the metropolis brought back to him by his friend Josephus, Jeremy traveled up to the Rainmakers' convention. On the way the bus broke down and while the mechanics were busy with its repair the travelers sat down in the shade of a liquidambar tree and told marvelous tales, tales with styles slightly reminiscent of certain present day authors. Then arrived in a cloud of glory to join the travelers, Miss Tulip Tree McAfee, a lady rainmaker. And romance entered the life of Jeremy.

"Miss Roberts has tossed the typewriter over the new moon and set out on a novelist's holiday, as gay as a cricket, as sprightly as a green grasshopper. . . 'Jingling in the Wind' is a poet's novel, dancing through cadences of prose that lift into song, as joyously fantastic in sound and rhythm as in image. There are tenderness and humor in the book, truth in motley, and a clear strain of lyricism mounting to a conclusion in the love of Tulip and Jeremy as rare in its pulsing insight as it is beautiful." Mary Ross

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 S 30 '28 1100w

Boston Transcript p2 O 31 '28 180w

"With the best will in the world, one can do little more with this satiric extravaganza than chuckle appreciatively at occasional flashes of fantasy and nod heavily over the remainder of the book."

— + Nation 127:431 O 24 '28 100w

"After Miss Roberts has got past the first fine careful rapture of her opening pages, her satirical fantasy jingles delightfully in the wind."

+ New Repub 56:335 N 7 '28 120w

"No mental child of this author's could be entirely devoid of charm. It is, however, too mad and too diffused a charm. . . When it comes to regarding this book as a glittering travesty, a firecracker in fantasy, it simply is not. The firecracker does not go off with a bang. Instead, the fuse sizzles and the sparks do not fly high, for the book is too much made-to-order and too hurriedly done." Laura Benet

— + N Y Evening Post p9m O 27 '28 520w

"If it were not for the fact that Miss Roberts has written one of the best American novels in 'The Time of Man,' another that is almost as fine in 'My Heart and My Flesh,' and a haunting short story in 'Death at Bearwallow,' one would be tempted to toss this book to the floor with an unkind exclamation. . . It is our prayerful hope, that Miss Roberts will return to human ground in her next story or novel."

— N Y Times p5 S 30 '28 880w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

No Am 226:adv D '28 70w

"It is conceded that this most recent novel by Elizabeth Madox Roberts is delightful, charming and keeping company with similar adjectives, but when one can be the mate to descriptives such as inspired and wonderful, should one turn and spend time with the lesser gentlemen?" Ben Wasson

Outlook 150:1215 N 21 '28 230w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:548 N '28

"While readers should be warned that this is a gay fantasia, a bit of harlequinade, a fabric of mockery, they should also realize that it is not all mere frivolity. Her bubble

ROBERTS, E. M.—Continued
of nonsense is streaked with satire and occasionally iridescent with beauty. It is a tale to be read, not too seriously, but deliberately, to savor its unusual qualities." Allan Nevins
+ Sat R of Lit 5:294 O 27 '28 1050w

"For his part, the reviewer finds Miss Elizabeth Madox Robert's 'Jingling in the Wind' delicate, poetic, diverting at times, but does not pretend to know what the book is about. And, while he admits that the fault may be his, he does not really think so. Miss Roberts could, of course, tell us what the book means, but one is forced to say, with some regret, that explanation is necessary." G. H.
— + Springf'd Republican p7e O 7 '28 780w

ROBERTS, GEORGE LITCH. Patentability of inventions and the interpretation of patents. 2v $20 Little

608.73 Patent laws and legislation 28-14

"Criteria for the determination of questions relating to patentability and patent-interpretation, derived from analysis of judgments of the Supreme court of the United States."—Subtitle

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:267 My '28

ROBERTS, JOHN. Coal carbonization, high and low temperature; a treatise on the principles and processes of manufacturing coke and semi-coke. 406p il $7.50 (25s) Pitman

662.7 Coke. Coal distillation 28-5555

"Gives an up-to-date survey of the methods of treating coal in coke-ovens and gas-works and by low-temperature carbonization. Considers unsuccessful low-temperature processes as well as the more promising."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

"He has marshalled his facts and arguments well, and reproduces a number of useful illustrations of coke formation under various conditions. It would, however, be a mistake to suggest that this study of coke formation is the only outstanding characteristic of the author's treatment of his subject. The book is packed with information of this kind, and it is given, so far as the reviewer has been able to see, with accuracy and clearness, collecting a mass of descriptive detail into a comparatively small volume of 400 pages." J. W. C.
+ Nature 121:201 F 11 '28 1000w
N Y New Tech Bks 12:35 Jl '27
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:159 Mr '28

ROBERTSON, ALEXANDER. Mussolini and the new Italy; head of the Italian government, duce of the Fascisti. 156p il $2 Revell

B or 92 Mussolini, Benito 28-13119

A brief, popularly written life of the Fascist leader, by an ardent admirer.

Boston Transcript p4 Ag 18 '28 230w

"Alexander Robertson has tried to give a dispassionate and unbiased presentation of the career and personality of Il Duce and of the accomplishments of the fascist government, but he has not succeeded. His tone is that of the hero-worshipper and both his selection of facts and his comments reveal the partisan of fascism. Though he indulges in no criticism—perhaps because he sees nothing to criticize—he conveys much information, especially about the personal qualities of his hero." W. E. G.
— + Christian Century 45:858 Jl 5 '28 100w
Cleveland Open Shelf p103 S '28

"This is an excellent book for children written in adult phraseology. It might be classed as a 'campaign biography' if Mussolini were under the necessity of making a campaign. The Fascist Chief is all hero—real old-fashioned all-virtuous hero. . . It is too late in the day for such a book as this."
— Sat R of Lit 5:282 O 20 '28 480w

ROBERTSON, DAVID ALLAN, ed. American universities and colleges; ed. [for] the American council on education. 884p $2.50 (10s 6d) Scribner

378.73 Colleges and universities—United States. Education—United States—Directories 28-5598

"Reference book on the resources of higher education in the United States. Part I summarizes in general terms the organization and interrelation of the various types of institutions, while Part 2 presents in systematic arrangement the essential facts regarding the organization, endowment, equipment, teaching, and student bodies of all the institutions on the accredited list of universities or colleges drawn up by the American Council on Education in 1927." —J Home Econ

Booklist 24:311 My '28
Bookm 68:xxxviii O '28 30w

"There is no doubt that Mr. Robertson has created what will prove to be the standard work in the field, especially if it can be arranged to revise it regularly."
+ Boston Transcript p6 Ap 7 '28 250w

"It is a great pity that after bringing together so many figures on a variety of subjects as this volume contains, practically no summaries are included. Another sad lack of the volume is an introduction in the nature of a general summary. Valuable as the book is as a compilation, it is chiefly that and nothing more."
— + Eng N 100:454 Mr 15 '28 300w

"An invaluable and convenient reference book."
+ J Home Econ 20:597 Ag '28 50w
Pratt p14 autumn '28
St Louis 26:276 S '28
Wis Lib Bul 24:187 Je '28

ROBERTSON, EILEEN ARBUTHNOT. Cullum. 314p $2.50 Holt [7s 6d J. Cape]

28-21181

Cullum Hayes is a young poet whom women love easily and greatly. Esther Sieveking, daughter of an impoverished old English country family, tells of her own passionate attachment for Cullum, and of her agonized awakening to the inherent uglinesses hidden under the dazzling cloak of his eager, brilliant spirit.

"The characters of Cullum are deftly drawn, the dialogue refreshing. There is maturity of judgment, keenness of observation and not a little wit. Excellence of dialogue is perhaps Miss Robertson's greatest virtue. But there is an air of verity about the novel as a whole for which one is grateful." R. E. Larsson
+ Bookm 68:241 O '28 180w
Boston Transcript p3 S 29 '28 200w

"Making every allowance for its faults, this is a very notable first novel. The author falls into none of the faults which beset those who try to portray complex characters: impressionism, mystery-mongering, confusion of proportions. The statement is always firm and lucid, and up to the last few chapters the proportions are admirable. The whole love episode between Esther and Cullum is psychologically convincing, and the style throughout has measure and precision." Edwin Muir
+ — Nation and Ath 42:752 F 16 '28 280w

"The book is well written, with some excellent descriptions of English scenery, and a total lack of introspection and self-pity of the more obvious kind. The jokes in particular are above the average, as are the crisp reflections and racy frankness of the heroine's style. . . This is certainly the brightest of the long string of distressed heroines who have succeeded the real, tragic characters of The Constant Nymph and Dusty Answer, though far less memorable than they." Cyril Connolly
+ New Statesman 30:662 Mr 3 '28 280w
Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 226:adv S '28 100w
Reviewed by L. P. Hartley
Sat R 145:170 F 11 '28 450w

"Cullum is a first novel of quiet dignity and well-restrained emotion... The characters of Cullum and Esther are revealed with rare intimacy and subtlety; there are some excellent descriptions of country and Fleet Street life; and the writing throughout is admirable."

+ Spec 140:120 Ja 28 '28 260w

Times [London] Lit Sup p110 F 16 '28 450w

ROBERTSON, HOWARD, and YERBURY, FRANCIS ROWLAND, eds. Examples of modern French architecture. $10 Scribner [32s 6d Benn]

724.9 Architecture—France 28-20299

"Contains a hundred plates, well reproduced from excellent photographs. The editors modestly describe it as 'an architectural traveller's record of buildings and details which on first and last examination appeared as having something to say, and as saying it in terms of modern architectural language.'" Nation and Ath

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p22 N 18 '28 100w

"This is a disappointing book. The editors' choice seems to have been made in a most haphazard fashion. Actually there is an architectural movement in France which may prove of the first importance, and this book includes photographs of buildings by Le Corbusier, by Lurcat, and by Mallet-Stevens. But far too large a proportion of the plates represent work that already looks old-fashioned, and which has neither convenience nor beauty to recommend it. It is also regrettable that the dates of the various buildings are not given."

— + Nation and Ath 43:438 Je 30 '28 180w

"This admirable collection of plates is worthy of profound study."

+ Spec 141:197 Ag 11 '28 150w

"No praise can be too high for Mr. Yerbury's photographs, and it is to be hoped that his pursuit of the modern movement in different countries will continue."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p464 Je 21 '28 220w

ROBERTSON, WILLIAM JOSEPH. Changing South. 311p $3 Boni & Liveright

917.5 South 27-25546

A survey of the Southern landscape which notes the changing aspects of social, political and cultural life in the Southern states.

Booklist 24:319 My '28

"A timely book—in a rather restricted sense. It is written only for the moment in which it happens to appear, and, apart from the first few chapters, can have no possible value in the future. It is too controversial even to be useful as a record of the change which Mr. Robertson believes is taking place in the traditions and customs of the South."

— Bookm 67:xxxv Mr '28 280w

"In all these subjects lies material for a sound and thorough book on the New South, but Mr. Robertson develops neither them nor the general statistics of Southern industrialism which he presents." Paul Lewinsohn

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p21 Ap 1 '28 620w

"The book is by no means taken up with political prophecies. It contains many chapters devoted to other topics, such as economic progress, modern literature, the tariff and many questions of interest for the general reader."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ja 11 '28 250w

"The book is full of sympathy for the South, and sympathy for the negro. It is a helpful contribution to the study of sectionalism in the United States."

+ Ind 120:69 Ja 21 '28 250w

"Some of his chapters are a bit thick with platitude, and those on Literature and Education are far from adequate. Yet on the whole 'The Changing South' is accurate, informative, outspoken, written from a civilized point of view, and worth reading." C: L. Snider

+ — Nation 126:542 My 9 '28 830w

N Y Times p8 Ja 1 '28 380w

"Mr. Robertson writes about the South very much in the manner of a genial newspaperman who has turned up a good feature story and is in a hurry to get it in type before the subject is cold. Between his awareness of the importance of the story, which certainly will bear as many tellings as it can get, and of the vast miscellaneous body of fact and fallacy to be subdued to order, he naturally finds himself sometimes in difficulty. The subject is in fact not very plastic and manageable. It is not surprising that in Mr. Robertson's interesting report on the South the wholesome truth is now and then attended by some confusion and error." Donald Davidson

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:607 F 18 '28 1100w

"While Mr Robertson's book might have been more carefully written in spots, it is excellent in understanding, in temper and taste, and is free from the vices of exaggeration and smartness which discolor so much social analysis in the magazines. It is the more candid because it is not warped by the point of view of any clique and its impressions are obviously gained at first hand."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7f S 2 '28 1750w

"The volume has, as had Dr. Edward Mims's on The Advancing South, a two-fold value. It is proof that the South is getting focus on its own life and an invitation to the rest of the Union to get hold of the facts of the South's upsurging renascence, and lend aid. But I do wish an Englishman would write a real study of its charm, its folly, and its hopes, and use a pen dipped in honey tinct with gall." Leon Whipple

Survey 59:713 Mr 1 '28 120w

Wis Lib Bul 24:89 Mr '28

ROBINSON, EDWIN ARLINGTON. Collected poems. 5v $10.50 Macmillan

811

"These five small volumes supply a want that has become acute since Mr. Robinson added so many poems to the canon established by the 'Collected Poems' of 1921. Everything is here and in attractive form."—Nation

For biographical sketch of Edwin Arlington Robinson see Wilson Bulletin 3:326 N '28

Boston Transcript p4 Je 23 '28 700w

"Seemingly without meaning to, Robinson has discovered that verse—all verse, any verse—affords readiest expression to ideas which he has found good, where others of his contemporaries have striven to breathe a divinity into their mortal thoughts which should make these worthy of their lines. Perhaps, in the final analysis, it is this refusal to find poetry either divine or extraordinary as a medium for his thoughts which has kept Robinson so long in the background. With 'Tristram' Mr. Robinson has at last convinced a wary public that it is as natural, for him at least, to think in poetry as to think up to poetry. He has touched an immortal beauty with the color of a simple and honest mortality. It is in this that his genius lies." Stewart Beach

+ Ind 120:68 Ja 21 '28 1200w

Nation 126:169 F 8 '28 40w

"During a period of poetic experimenting, which had its kernel of true and original inspiration but a large amount of wilful and deplorable imitation, Mr Robinson has remained true to the higher esthetic ideals of the poetic art. Not, perhaps, a great poet, he has been a great poetic influence, helping to keep alive an appreciation of the purest English poetry by aiming at fresh embodiments of its spirit."

+ Springf'd Republican p6f D 11 '27 160w

"An excellent opportunity for an evaluation of the work of this poet. For slightly more than 30 years Mr. Robinson's poems have been appearing with some regularity, and his work, in this new edition, makes a most substantial showing." Granville Hicks

ROBINSON, E. A.—Continued
+ Springf'd Republican p7f F 12 '28 1550w

ROBINSON, EDWIN ARLINGTON. Sonnets. 89p $1.75 Macmillan

811 28-26933

A selection from the sonnets which covers the years 1889 to 1927.

"The sonnet form is one well molded for this poet's genius and he has turned to it for many of his most memorable utterances. It well serves many moods and purposes; but Robinson's most characteristic sonnets are the portrait-biographies, in which every phrase is filled sharp, every other line an epigram and the whole hard, round and bright and self-sufficient." B. R. Redman
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p23 D 9 '28 150w

Reviewed by Edgar Johnson
N Y Evening Post p8m D 1 '28 750w

"This book affords those richnesses which sonnet lovers search with their own intensity more abundantly than one dares expect in these sterile times." G: O'Neill
+ Outlook 151:111 Ja 16 '29 130w
Sat R of Lit 5:412 N 24 '28 280w

"This volume will permit the reader to study in a convenient form the technic of one who has used the sonnet form as effectively and pointedly as any contemporary poet. The earlier sonnets (they are printed chronologically), though good enough, do not show characteristics to be found in the later ones—a crisp incisiveness of diction, a cryptic sense of the complexity of human relations and emotions, an almost Meredithian preoccupation with the mystery and frustration of human existence."
+ Springf'd Republican p10 D 13 '28 280w

ROBINSON, HENRY CRABB. Correspondence with the Wordsworth circle (1808-1866); the greater part now for the first time printed from the originals in Dr Williams's library, London; chronologically arr. and ed. with introd., notes, and index by Edith J. Morley. 2v 904p il $14 (42s) Oxford

B or 92 Wordsworth family. Wordsworth, William 28-9583

"Two volumes, containing, all told, a little over nine hundred pages about Wordsworth, his sister, his wife, his daughter, his sons, his grandsons, and the clerical nephew who wrote his Biography. These two volumes record the History of a Family told year by year and sometimes month by month, in the language of the hour, and as the things happened, with a frankness, a bluntness that belong to those who had no suspicion that in writing as they did they were doing anything but living out their lives in the secrecy of a sheltered home." —Nation and Ath

Reviewed by F. K. Brown
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 F 26 '28 1400w

"There were times in reading these pages when we felt guilty of an almost indecent intrusion upon the private sorrows of proud and reserved spirits. . . The frequently recurring names of Charles and Mary Lamb bestow a benediction over these volumes. Wordsworth's love for them was deep and enduring." Augustine Birrell
Nation and Ath 42:sup248 N 12 '27 1200w

"One's admiration for Wordsworth the man, also, is confirmed by the book. He appears as less self-absorbed, less conceited, than in some of the portraits that have been painted of him; and his devotion to Dorothy, when the clouds had descended on that brightest and most unselfish of souls—one of the best things in Wordsworth's life—is here perhaps pictured more clearly than ever before."
+ New Statesman 30:536 F 4 '28 820w

"Though the historic value of these letters lies, doubtless, in the light they throw on the 'immortal' personages involved, some readers may perhaps agree with the present reviewer in finding no one represented there more worth knowing than Crabb Robinson himself; and if we know Wordsworth and others the better for his clear-eyed observation of them, on the other hand his acquaintance with them was fortunate, too, because it gave him the opportunity, incidentally and unintentionally, of drawing his own portrait. Though we should probably not have heard of him but for his famous acquaintance, his raison d'etre was by no means merely that of a Boswell." R: Le Gallienne
+ N Y Times p2 Mr 11 '28 2450w

Reviewed by C. D. Thorpe
Sat R of Lit 5:49 Ag 18 '28 1100w

"Wordsworthians will be grateful to Miss Morley for the infinite care with which she has edited all the letters from or concerning the Wordsworths that are preserved in the enormous Crabb Robinson correspondence at Dr. Williams's Library. It has been a colossal task, for Miss Morley has looked through thousands of letters and, gleaning after Professor Knight, has printed many Wordsworth family letters for the first time and others in full which had been known only in a condensed form. But the editor's labour has been well spent."
+ Spec 139:852 N 12 '27 250w

"Professor Edith Morley's admirable edition of all those of Crabb Robinson's papers which are concerned with the Wordsworth circle puts an end to all doubts of his critical understanding of Wordsworth's poetry."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p773 N 3 '27 3400w

ROBINSON, WILLIAM HENRY. Under turquoise skies; outstanding features of the story of America's Southwest from the days of the ancient cliff-dwellers to modern times. 538p $5 Macmillan

917.8 Southwest, New—Description and travel. Southwest, New—Antiquities. Natural history—Southwest, New. Indians of North America—Southwest, New 28-13111

For the purposes of the book Mr. Robinson defines the Southwest to include New Mexico and Arizona with a narrow strip added to the north and east. His narrative of this region combines history and geography with a description of its natural beauties, and of the Indian tribes past and present to be found there.

Booklist 25:67 N '28
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Ag 5 '28 130w

"Mr. Robinson writes brilliantly and is particularly happy in sifting from his great mass of random information the essential color that expresses itself in so many ways."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 23 '28 300w
Christian Century 45:797 Je 21 '28 200w
Cleveland Open Shelf p90 Jl '28
J Home Econ 20:908 D '28 50w

"A panorama of past and present, full of life and color and vivid interest."
+ N Y Times p5 My 27 '28 320w
Pratt p35 autumn '28
Springf'd Republican p10 S 19 '28 280w

ROBSON, EDGAR ILIFF. Wayfarer in French vineyards. 212p il $3 Houghton [7s 6d Methuen]

914.4 France—Description and travel. Wine and wine making [28-28287]

The author made a pleasant tour of the vineyards of France, sampling the vintages of each, and listening with interest and respect to professional secrets of vine culture and wine making processes. The book is the story of his tour and the regions visited. Twelve drawings of chateaux, street scenes and landscapes by J. R. E. Howard illustrate the book.

Boston Transcript p5 Ag 4 '28 300w

"What Mr. Robson tells he tells gracefully and has seen with his own eyes. What he quotes he quotes from old chroniclers and local poets. And from the whole book one gets a quietly reassuring feeling of the richness of the country and fullness of the leisurely life of France." M. McC. Lowes

+ Living Age 335:156 O '28 230w

"A very entertaining book, well worth reading by any visitor to France who travels through a wine-producing country."

+ Nation and Ath 43:570 Jl 28 '28 60w

New Statesman 31:398 Je 30 '28 150w

"Although he assures the reader that his book is 'topographical rather than oenological,' since he is writing about the vineyard regions of France he cannot ignore the vines; and so his attention is fixed for a few moments on the castles, churches, historical interests and scenic beauties of the section, and the next it is racing away to the vineyards, the wine growers and their vines. Constantly his eyes turn back and forth, now to one for a page or two and then to the other for an equally brief space. In consequence he probably will please none of his readers."

— N Y Times p5 Ag 12 '28 350w

Sat R 146:510 O 20 '28 400w

"He has an eye for scenery and for architecture. But his best pages are those devoted to the culture of the vine and the vintage, especially in Burgundy, where the process is still more primitive and can be watched in detail by anyone who cares for the experience. Mr. Howard's pencil drawings, generally architectural, are most attractive, and maps covering the three chief wine countries are provided."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p377 My 17 '28 550w

ROCHE, ARTHUR SOMERS. Wise wife. 217p $1.75 Century

28-2515

Discovering her husband's infatuation for their blond young guest, the wise wife of the title taxes the pair with their guilt, and condemns them to two weeks' close companionship. The sentence is completely effective: the two are speedily disenchanted, and the errant husband returns chastened to his wife.

Bookm 67:xxxiv My '28 110w

Boston Transcript p3 Mr 7 '28 430w

"There are plenty of amusing incidents. If the plot and its working out are conventional, it should be added in fairness that it is a theme which has rarely failed to meet the approval of fair-sized audiences."

+ Ind 120:237 Mr 10 '28 120w

N Y Times p8 Ja 29 '28 250w

Sat R of Lit 4:707 Mr 24 '28 60w

"The idea is old, but Mr Roche works it into laughable situations. While enjoying Blaisdell's confusion the reader knows from the beginning that 'The Wise Wife' will win, thanks entirely to her own resourcefulness."

+ Springf'd Republican p7f F 19 '28 160w

ROCKWELL, FREDERICK FRYE. Evergreens for the small place. (Home garden handbooks) 84p il $1 (4s 6d) Macmillan

715 Evergreens. Landscape gardening 28-14796

A small, compact handbook on evergreens which contains chapters on evergreens for year-round beauty; evergreens as foundation plantings; dwarf evergreens; the larger evergreens; soils and fertilizers preferred by evergreens; when and how to plant them, general care, and insects and diseases attacking evergreens. There is a list of evergreens for special purposes.

Booklist 25:18 O '28

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 N 25 '28 150w

"The little book is well illustrated and when used, as it is intended, with the catalogues of nurseries, may well prove of great value to anyone who loves to see growing things."

+ Boston Transcript p7 S 22 '28 120w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:575 N '28

St Louis 26:381 D '28

ROCKWELL, FREDERICK FRYE. Rock gardens. (Home garden handbooks) 86p il $1 (4s 6d) Macmillan

716 Rock gardens 28-17879

The author of other helpful garden books plans rock gardens of various types, describing, with many drawings, the construction of the garden, plants of suitable kind, and the fertilization and care of the rock garden.

Booklist 25:62 N '28

"His counsel on soils for rock plants is useful; his lists of rock plants might well be more complete. He is patient with shrubs and bulbs and evergreens, but his summary lists of flowering alpines will leave many a beginner asking for more details."

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p47 S 30 '28 150w

"The directions and suggestions are very practical and are given in detail. This handbook is of real value to one interested in this fascinating form of intimate gardening."

+ Boston Transcript p3 Ag 25 '28 90w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:575 N '28

St Louis 26:381 D '28

RODD, SIR JAMES RENNELL. Homer's Ithaca; a vindication of tradition. 160p il $2.40 Longmans [6s E. Arnold]

913.83 Ithaca (island). Homer

Sir Rennell Rodd spent two weeks on the island of Ithaca seeking evidence for identification of the island with the Ithaca of Homer. His research of which the book is an account, confirmed the author's belief that the two Ithacas were one.

"His account of his excursions in Ithaca, 'that incomparable island,' is very pleasant reading and his identification of the Raven's Rock and the Fountain of Arethusa is specially interesting."

+ Sat R 144:632 N 5 '27 120w

"The new book is welcome, for it contains much the best available first-hand description of the territory, together with a pair of sketch maps, the lack of which has made many discussions of the problem very difficult to follow. The book is pleasantly written, though too brief to exhaust all aspects of the question."

+ Sat R of Lit 4:1055 Jl 21 '28 380w

RODGER, ESCA G. Careers. 186p $1.50 (5s) Appleton

374.1 Profession, Choice of 28-5922

For boys and young men about to choose a profession Mr Rodger reports these interviews with prominent men on their careers. Those interviewed are: William Allen White, Dr William J. Mayo, Dan Casement, Irving T. Bush, Dr Julius Klein, Louis K. Liggett, Dr Stratton D. Brooks, John Hays Hammond, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Booklist 24:348 Je '28

"Particularly well suited to boys and girls of junior and senior high school age, and will be welcomed by parents and teachers." A. H. Munson

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 Ap 22 '28 750w

RODGER, E. G.—Continued

"The main trouble with all such interviews is their axiomatic monotony. Instead of giving expression to his own deep-rooted convictions, the subject of the interview utters those safe and sane generalities which he knows will look well in print. Mr. Rodger asked every one the same questions and received very much the same answers."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p23 My 20 '28 230w

Cleveland Open Shelf p73 Je '28

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:248 My '28

"As a whole, the book is well worth while. Its field is largely with those young men who have ability that is more than average, and opportunities, or the qualities that create opportunities, for qualifying for those occupations that need good ability and adequate preparation. For them its message is more than an informational one. It adds inspiration." E. R. Smith

+ Survey 60:357 Je 15 '28 480w

Wis Lib Bul 24:192 Je '28

RODGERS, MARTIN A. Handbook of stunts; [2] with an introd. by Jesse Feiring Williams. 515p il $3 (12s 6d) Macmillan

613.7 Physical education and training. Gymnastics. Games 28-13517

"In an attempt to expand the activities possible in physical-education classes at the junior high school level, Martin Rodgers has prepared a book of 'stunts' which are suitable for children of this age. The 'stunts' were selected after careful trial in the junior high schools of New York City. The book opens with an introductory chapter entitled 'Principles and Organization of Physical Education.' Each of the nine following chapters is devoted to one particular kind of activity: 'Individual Stunts,' 'Combat stunts,' 'Stunt games,' 'Stunt Races,' 'Mat, Agility, and Tumbling Movements,' 'Apparatus Stunts,' 'Athletics,' 'Miscellaneous Self-Testing Activities,' and 'Pyramids.' "—El School J

Booklist 25:62 N '28

"The directions for carrying out the 'stunts' are given in such detail that no difficulty will be experienced in using them with classes. Illustrations are provided where necessary to show the various phases of a movement. The book will prove very useful to directors of physical education in both elementary schools and junior high schools."

+ El School J 29:75 S '28 250w

St Louis 26:271 S '28

"This book is one more manifestation of American earnestness, industry, and energy. It would have been of fifty small pages, not 500 large ones, if an Englishman had taken for his subject minor feats of balance such as while away rainy hours in cricket pavilions. Of these, with certain elaborations and additions, Mr. Rodgers contrives to give some 700 examples."

Times [London] Lit Sup p684 S 27 '28 600w

RODMAN, HUGH. Yarns of a Kentucky admiral. 320p il $5 Bobbs

B or 92 United States—Navy 28-11180

Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman, retired, was for over fifty years connected with the United States navy. He was with Dewey in Manila Bay, he represented the Navy in the organization for operation of the Panama canal, he commanded the American battle squadron during the World war. King George made him a K. C. B. and he holds the Distinguished service medal. His is hardly a formal autobiography, but more a story of his life at sea, filled with many anecdotes.

Reviewed by Arthur Warner

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p11 Je 24 '28 900w

"The yarns are written just as they would be told, in the easiest style and the most unaffected manner imaginable."

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 11 '28 270w

Cleveland Open Shelf p135 D '28

"He seems to have had the interesting habit of learning all he could from all possible sources about every place he visited and this has very greatly enriched his reminiscences."

+ N Y Times p14 Ag 19 '28 430w

Reviewed by F: O'Brien

N Y World p8m My 20 '28 960w

R of Rs 78:adv27 Jl '28 80w

"The volume might truthfully be called just a collection of miscellaneous reminiscences which the admiral has jotted down from time to time. Perhaps this is the happiest kind of informal autobiography."

+ Springf'd Republican p12 Jl 20 '28 540w

ROEHL, LOUIS MICHAEL. Household carpentry (Practical crafts ser.) 196p il $1.50 Macmillan

694 Carpentry. Woodwork 27-22463

Written by a well-known teacher of woodwork and carpentry, assistant professor of rural engineering in the New York state college of agriculture, this book is a practical manual for home use. It treats the selection, care and use of the essential tools and describes many conveniences that can be made for the home as well as some jobs of repairing.

"A valuable manual for the inexperienced layman."

+ Booklist 24:237 Mr '28

N Y New Tech Bks 13:3 Ja '28

Pratt p20 spring '28

Wis Lib Bul 24:159 My '28

ROGERS, ARTHUR KENYON. Morals in re- [2] view. 456p $3.50 (15s) Macmillan

170.9 Ethics—History 27-19720

"Suggestive analytic survey of the important aspects of ethical thinking from the Greek philosophers down to the end of the nineteenth century."—J Religion

Boston Transcript p4 N 19 '27 730w

"Dr. Rogers is a sympathetic, judicious, yet keenly critical interpreter. Few historical scholars combine insight into motives and logic of systems so successfully with critical poise. The book is a closely reasoned, fair-minded, and clearly presented account of the leading ethical theories. It is the fruit of a scholarship which has ripened through many years of productive work since A Student's History of Philosophy appeared." J. H. Tufts

+ Int J Ethics 38:234 Ja '28 380w

"The book should be welcomed by teachers of ethics as a most valuable supplement to discussions of problems of ethical theory and application. It answers, at least in part, the present need for a new history of ethics. Its material is presented with a high degree of skill, evident both in analysis and organization." Clifford Barrett

+ J Philos 25:555 S 27 '28 950w

J Religion 8:163 Ja '28 20w

Times [London] Lit Sup p162 Mr 8 '28 1100w

ROGERS, CAMERON. Gallant ladies. 363p il $3.50 Harcourt

920.7 Woman—Biography 28-4081

The ten feminine soldiers of fortune whose lives Mr Rogers sketches belonged to almost as many different countries. They include Mata Hari, one of Germany's spies during the war; Mary Read and Anne Bonny, that strange pair of pirates; Calamity Jane, of border history; Adrienne Lecouvreur, French actress; and Lola Montez, danseuse.

Booklist 24:363 Je '28

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p24 Mr 18 '28 750w

Boston Transcript p3 F 18 '28 530w

Cleveland Open Shelf p65 My '28

"His effort to appear languidly sophisticated after the fashion of Thomas Beer results in a style that is merely precious; and thus a book that contains very promising matter—for its subjects are not often gallant and never ladylike—simply fails to come off."
— Nation 126:274 Mr 7 '28 80w

Reviewed by Tess Slesinger
N Y Evening Post p15 Ja 21 '28 450w

"Mr. Rogers's book is, on the whole, well done. The sketch of Mata Hari is especially interesting." Herschel Brickell
+ No Am 225:adv Mr '28 100w

"Mr. Rogers has done them in swagger portraits. All of the strut, all of the mummer about them, finds its way into his delineations until the gallant ladies become fabulous personages indeed."
+ Sat R of Lit 5:240 O 13 '28 480w

"The book as a whole affords entertainment. At times the style is involved, or at least the author seems to presuppose familiarity with his story on the part of the reader. But as soon as he really swings into his narration he is straightforward enough. Many will no doubt be glad to make the acquaintance of his unladylike and dashing heroines."
+ — Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 16 '28 530w

ROGERS, CAMERON. Legend of Calvin Coolidge. 179p $1.50 Doubleday, Doran

B or 92 Coolidge, Calvin 28-17087

"Mr. Rogers does not undertake the task of explaining and illuminating Coolidge's official character, saying that as President he is 'an individual difficult to see and impossible to plumb,' but confines the study to his personality as a man. To get his material and his intimate viewpoints Mr. Rogers went to the people who have known Calvin Coolidge from his childhood and his young manhood in Plymouth and Northampton and his associates during his terms of office as Legislator and Governor of Massachusetts. His narrative is lively with anecdotes, and he delights in dramatic presentation of scenes and interpretation of events and motives."—N Y Times

---

"Mr. Rogers has written a clever, amusing, kindly and understanding sketch of the President's life and character which can be read with sympathetic reaction alike by those who admire him and by those who don't. . . His 'Legend' is most readable, although one knows that frequently he is drawing upon his imagination to make a crumb of information do service as a large and interestingly ornamented cake. In its fundamentals, however, his narrative appears to be truthful."
+ N Y Times p10 Ag 26 '28 420w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:407 Jl '28

"It is an easily written and an easily read product. There is economy and point in Mr Rogers's style and he gives an intimate picture of the President. Mr Rogers has collected what are, for the most part, familiar episodes and anecdotes of Calvin Coolidge and deftly strung them together in a unified narrative."
+ Springf'd Republican p5f Ag 12 '28 580w

ROGERS, CLEMENT FRANCIS. Case for Christianity; an outline of popular apologetics. 278p $3 Harper [12s 6d Allen & U.]

239 Christianity—Evidences

For eight years Professor Rogers of the University of London faced the heckling crowds of Hyde Park and talked to them on the subject of religion. Out of the experience of those years in answering the objections of hecklers grew the material for this volume. It is a defense of Christianity following two lines of discussion—Christian life and religion, and Christian theology and philosophy.

"Whatever criticisms one may make of the author's theology there is a fine vigor and reasonableness in his presentation. One may hold different views about some matters of Christian faith and duty and still be grateful that Christianity has such a stout and stalwart champion A theology that can be brought out of doors is ipso facto saved from the worst defects of theology. It may be wrong in some points, but it is not musty." W. E. Garrison
+ — Christian Century 45:1230 O 11 '28 800w

"Professor Rogers is an expert at facing secularist hecklers in Hyde Park, and this volume is an attempt to produce a comprehensive handbook of apologetics. He leads off with an excellent chapter on 'The Things That Matter,' suggesting that a humble, unselfish, and optimistic attitude towards life and humanity is the soil in which Christianity most readily takes root. The rest of the book is frankly disappointing, and tails off into the 'yes, but. . .' type of theology, not too well written (for the style throughout is that of a talker rather than a writer), full of irritating repetitions, and disfigured by careless proof-reading. The book will nevertheless constitute a useful armoury for the type of Christian who indulges in open-air dialectics, for Professor Rogers has a well-stocked mind, and a good grasp on the psychology of his audiences."
+ — New Statesman 31:702 S 15 '28 480w

"As a manual of dialectic for the use of Christian teachers, who are not likely to be heckled above what they ought to be able to bear, the volume is of unquestionable value, and as a guide to their reading it could hardly be surpassed, having regard to its particular purpose. There are, however, traces of a tendency to dogmatism on certain genuinely debatable problems of social and sexual ethics which do not enhance the comity or persuasiveness of the argument, and some of the generalizations are of a somewhat sweeping character."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p318 Ap 26 '28 230w

ROGERS, SAMUEL. Less than kind. 314p $2.50 Payson & Clarke

28-24277

A psychological study of the emotional life of Vincent Raymer, college professor. All his life Vincent had depended on his sister Suzanne and when she married, she quite naturally turned to her husband, leaving Vincent, to his own mind, stranded. The disastrous outcome of the situation brings a little manliness to Vincent, but much misery to Suzanne.

"There is a strong suggestion of the technique of the daily newspaper in Mr. Roger's outline manner and in his detached objectivity. But it is the rare reporter who achieves distinction; and what 'Less Than Kind' gains by its simplicity, it loses by its uncompelling characterizations and its pedestrain prose. . . Few characters equal Vincent Raymer for general unpleasantness. The author has done a thorough job of his weaknesses."
— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 O 28 '28 280w

Boston Transcript p8 D 8 '28 320w

"The novel has considerable merit. Vincent Raymer is portrayed skillfully, with sympathy and deep understanding. The reader with a jaded appetite will enjoy the strange savor of this book."
+ Sat R of Lit 5:325 N 3 '28 180w

ROGERS, STANLEY. Ships and sailors; tales of the sea. 303p il $2.50 Little [7s 6d Harrap]

Sea stories

All sorts of sea stories are here—authentic tales of shipwreck, mutiny, mysteries of the sea, famous voyages, and pirate yarns, all re-

ROGERS, STANLEY—Continued
told from reliable sources and illustrated by the author.

"Here is indeed a book of wonders. Mr. Rogers has delved deeply into the lore of the sea and into the history of mariners and vessels. Here are shipwrecks, escapes, mutinies, piracies, open boat journeys and sea mysteries. There is no sea fiction that is more thrilling than these true tales which an author who knows his subject has gathered for his readers from old historical lore and recent authenticated facts." S. L. Cook

+ Boston Transcript p3 S 15 '28 1400w
Cleveland Open Shelf p132 D '28

ROHRBAUGH, LEWIS GUY. Science of religion; an introduction. 291p $3; student's ed $2.40 Holt

201 Religion 27-25322

The various phenomena of religious experience are made the subject of scientific investigation by the professor of philosophy and religious education in Dickinson college. Prayer, conversion, mysticism, the belief in and hope for immortality are analyzed and psychologically explained.

"The volume reveals a competent grasp of the issues involved, adequate command of the pertinent lore, and that tolerant spirit which is above all needed for discussion in this field." E. N.

+ Boston Transcript p2 F 1 '28 630w

"The material is presented in an interesting way and well organized throughout." Vergilius Ferm

+ Int J Ethics 38:494 Jl '28 120w

"This is an ambitious book. It attempts to reduce religion to a science; and it is only partly successful. Where Doctor Rohrbaugh gives the impression of being most scientific, he seems least religious; and vice versa. His book has dabs of many sciences in it—astronomy, geology, biology, psychology, etc.—but add them all together and they total neither religion nor a new science." C. S. Brown

— Survey 60:243 My 15 '28 130w

RONALDSHAY, LAWRENCE JOHN LUMLEY DUNDAS, 1st earl of. Life of Lord Curzon; being the auth. biography of George Nathaniel, marquess Curzon of Kedleston. 3v v 1 318p il per set $15 Liveright [ea 21s Benn]

B or 92 Curzon of Kedleston, George Nathaniel Curzon, 1st marquis [28-13122]

The first volume of the authorized biography of Lord Curzon extends from his early life to his appointment as viceroy to India.

Bookm 67:xxix My '28 180w

"The young people of our day, I suspect, will not be impressed. Curzon, young or elderly, was a heavy jester on paper, although his abounding interests and gifts of expression made him at all stages an interesting speaker and writer and a vivacious companion. He did not grow; he could not change. He was equally astonishing as individual and as type. The most interesting and the most enlightening thing in Lord Ronaldshay's picture is the young Curzon's own confession, obviously sincere and self-confirmed in later life, that whenever he came in contact with men of the first intellectual rank he felt his own mind to be second rate." S. K. Ratcliffe

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 Ap 8 '28 800w

Boston Transcript p4 Ap 11 '28 630w

Reviewed by A. W. Vernon
Christian Century 45:735 Je 7 '28 530w

Reviewed by Van Wyck Brooks
+ Ind 120:364 Ap 14 '28 1100w

"There are already signs in this first volume that Lord Ronaldshay would have done better to compress his narrative. It begins extremely well. Curzon's curious character and remarkable abilities are splendid material for a biographer, and where Lord Ronaldshay is dealing with his early career he seems to be inspired by his subject. But later on he gets bogged in the facts of Curzon's travels, and his obvious hesitation over the right way of treating this part of the 'life' and his even more obvious failure to find a solution appear to have lowered his biographical vitality, and subsequently he shows himself unable to breathe life or liveliness into the narrative of Curzon's political career."

+ — Nation and Ath 42:850 Mr 10 '28 730w

"Lord Ronaldshay is not to be envied the task which he has undertaken. It is a peculiarly heavy and difficult task for two main reasons. The first is that the material is so voluminous. The second reason is that Lord Curzon's personality and behaviour were repellent to nearly all save those who knew him very intimately, and that therefore his biographer suffers a heavy handicap in his endeavor to secure sympathy for so publicly unsympathetic a figure. Nobody loved Curzon who did not know him in his lighter moments. The point is important in connection with this first volume of the Life, because it is full of accounts of Lord Curzon's early successes at school and university and of detailed descriptions of the impressions he gained (and, of course, wrote down) during his early travels round the world. Such accounts and impressions can be readable and interesting only if the reader possesses some sort of affectionate sympathy with the subject of the biography; and in this case most of us have none at all." C. S.

New Statesman 30:696 Mr 10 '28 2050w

"If the Earl of Ronaldshay knows the secret of Lord Curzon's life and personality, he does not reveal it in the first volume of 'The Life of Lord Curzon.' It may be that it is such a deep one that it requires three volumes, but nothing that I can find in this volume that has come to hand leads me to suspect that such is the case." Joseph Collins

— N Y Evening Post p15 Ap 14 '28 1600w

"Amid the Ludwigs and the Guedallas, the unobtrusive biographer is not only a relief but a refreshment. Lord Ronaldshay so writes that you forget Lord Ronaldshay and remember Lord Curzon. We are eager for volume two, describing the viceroyalty." P. W. Wilson

+ N Y Times p3 Ap 1 '28 2150w
No Am 225:adv My '28 260w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson
Outlook 149:112 My 16 '28 500w
R of Rs 77:adv12 My '28 110w
St Louis 26:194 Je '28

"He has wrought up his story very skilfully through a mosaic of quotations; and yet there is something lost unless one gets complete expression of the man's mind on even one topic. Perhaps the best thing in the book is the passage which deals with the Viceroyalty of India and with all that it meant to the man who so early in life attained to it. This is a model of biographical exposition; and it confirms the view that it will be pleasanter to read about Lord Curzon when he is at the top than when he is trying to get there." Stephen Gwynn

+ — Spec 140:sup365 Mr 10 '28 730w
Times [London] Lit Sup p179 Mr 15 '28 1400w

RONALDSHAY, LAWRENCE JOHN LUMLEY DUNDAS, 1st earl of. Life of Lord Curzon; being the auth. biography of George Nathaniel, marquess Curzon of Kedleston. 3v v 2 424p il per set $15 Liveright [ea 21s Benn]

B or 92 Curzon of Kedleston, George Nathaniel Curzon, 1st marquis [28-13122]

This volume in the authorized biography of Lord Curzon covers the period of his viceroyalty of India from December, 1898, to November, 1905. Altho this period was brief in comparison with the length of Lord Curzon's public service, it was the most significant part of his career.

Reviewed by S. K. Ratcliffe
Bookm 68:81 S '28 1730w
Boston Transcript p4 Ag 15 '28 200w

"At times too much knowledge of India is assumed for even educated Americans to follow. It is as biography, if at all, that these volumes will command American interest. And as biography the second volume is both more compact and more critical than the first. If the first volume attempted somewhat unsuccessfully to explain the origin and charm of a domineering personality, the second indicates its efficiency and limitations when raised to the high position of viceroy of India." A. W. Vernon
+ — Christian Century 45:1079 S 6 '28 1100w

Reviewed by Evan Cotton
Nation and Ath 43:364 Je 16 '28 930w

"The reason why the Life of Lord Curzon is being made to fill three volumes is given by Lord Ronaldshay in his preface to the second volume, and it is interesting. Curzon's dying wish, we are told, was that his Indian Viceroyalty should be dealt with by his biographer on a scale commensurate with Curzon's own view of its immense significance. The wish has been respected, and this volume of 420 pages is the result. It is a record of the most active and uneasy proconsulate of modern times."
New Statesman 31:293 Je 9 '28 1500w

"It is a volume which, as we anticipated, proves to be not indeed more readable than the first, but assuredly more important. The volume is devoted to seven years only of Lord Curzon's long career. But they were the only seven years when he could be said to be a man who made a difference. All that went before was merely prospective and what went after was mainly disillusion." P. W. Wilson
+ N Y Times p3 Jl 8 '28 2100w

"It is a narrative at once sympathetic and searching. Lord Ronaldshay appreciates Lord Curzon's merits but he does not conceal his failure." P. W. Wilson
+ Outlook 150:800 S 12 '28 700w
R of Rs 78:adv22 Ag '28 100w

"Lord Ronaldshay's second volume is immeasurably better than his first, because of the unity of its subject. This unity he has observed, with an almost excessive fidelity, for in all these 424 pages only one figure is presented." Stephen Gwynn
+ Spec 140:875 Je 9 '28 1000w

"This volume of Lord Curzon's biography is certainly written in no spirit of indiscriminate eulogy; and Lord Ronaldshay has succeeded in conveying a vivid picture of his hero's noble, clearsighted but imperious character in this admirable record of the seven strenuous years to which Lord Curzon gave 'all that was worth having of his spirit and strength.' "
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p439 Je 14 '28 1650w

RONALDSHAY, LAWRENCE JOHN LUMLEY DUNDAS, 1st earl of. Life of Lord Curzon; being the auth. biography of George Nathaniel, marquess Curzon of Kedleston. 3v v 3 457p il per set $15 Liveright [ea 21s Benn]

B or 92 Curzon of Kedleston, George Nathaniel Curzon, 1st marquis [28-13122]

"Lord Ronaldshay's third volume is concerned with Curzon's activities as President of the Royal Geographical Society and Chancellor of Oxford, his return to politics with the War as member of the Coalition Cabinet, his direction of the Shipping Control Committee and the Air Board, and of Foreign Affairs."—New Repub

---

"Lord Ronaldshay's biography is valuable, it is true, in its lucid account of many events and situations in which Lord Curzon participated; but its significance is far greater as the description and interpretation of a character which expresses to the full an ideal and a way of life which we recognize as aristocratic." R. M. Lovett
+ New Repub 57:21 N 21 '28 1650w

"This is biography written as biography should be written, with unfailing sympathy yet with equally unfailing critical detachment. . . In these volumes, thanks to the peculiar capacity of Lord Ronaldshay as a biographer, we have an almost complete and extremely just picture of a man who played in his time great parts, and who with all his faults represented a great deal that is England."
+ New Statesman 31:supix O 6 '28 1750w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:489 O '28
Pratt p40 autumn '28

"Lord Ronaldshay has sacrificed the feelings of a friend to the duty of a biographer. No one who reads this third volume can remain ignorant of the fact that Lord Curzon, outside a small circle, was the best hated man of his day, and of the reasons why he was so." A. A. B.
Sat R 146:383 S 29 '28 1300w
Spec 141:404 S 29 '28 800w

"The inner detail of Curzons' policy, or his relations with his colleagues, cannot in the nature of things be known for years to come; but meantime Lord Ronaldshay has succeeded —for most of us for the first time—in making alive that which was marble and in giving a human and tangible Curzon."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p653 S 20 '28 3350w

ROOSEVELT, NICHOLAS. Restless Pacific. 291p $3 (12s 6d) Scribner

950 Pacific ocean. United States—Foreign relations. Eastern question (Far East). World politics 28-11419

Since the theater of world events has shifted from the Atlantic to the Pacific and the United States has become one of the three dominating powers in the Pacific area new international problems have arisen in which the United States has a vital interest. The book argues that the interests of the United States demand that no nation or group of nations becomes sufficiently strong to disturb the balance of power, and that a strong navy is required to uphold the arm of diplomacy and "maintain the peace."

"Mr. Roosevelt's book is interesting and full of meat. The reader who is looking for a general survey will find it almost invaluable." R. L. Wilbur
+ Ann Am Acad 138:182 Jl '28 450w
Booklist 24:395 Jl '28

Reviewed by F. R. Dulles
Bookm 67:698 Ag '28 130w

Reviewed by F. R. Dulles
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 My 6 '28 830w
Boston Transcript p7 My 5 '28 680w
Christian Century 45:856 Jl 5 '28 110w

Reviewed by C. E. Fayles
Nation and Ath 43:179 My 12 '28 180w

"I commend the reading of 'The Restless Pacific' to all who want to understand our responsibilities in the Pacific. It will be a good antidote for those slogan-worshipers who must confine their approval or disapproval to a phrase. While one may not agree with all of the interpretations of the facts presented by Mr. Roosevelt, one cannot avoid facing them." R. L. Wilbur
+ New Repub 55:125 Je 20 '28 1500w
New Statesman 31:264 Je 2 '28 300w

"As timely as it is well written and inclusive." F: H. Martens
+ N Y Evening Post p8 My 26 '28 280w

Reviewed by C: W. Thompson
N Y Times p3 Ap 15 '28 2150w

"This is a book by a journalist who has gathered his facts carefully and written for the understanding of the everyday person who wishes to have a sane outlook on foreign affairs which vitally concern his own country."
+ No Am 225:adv My '28 100w
R of Rs 77:adv28 Je '28 120w

ROOSEVELT, NICHOLAS—Continued

St Louis 26:274 S '28

Sat R 146:24 Jl 7 '28 120w

Reviewed by D. M. Hill

Survey 60:189 My 1 '28 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p542 Jl 26 '28 600w

Wis Lib Bul 24:223 Jl '28

"He has done a highly creditable piece of work, but the book is marred by a style that makes it difficult to see and remember what some of the chapters are about, and by the methods of a publicist with a point of view to 'put over' rather than by those of a scientist seeking the truth only. Nevertheless, the book is a good one. It is valuable and timely." W: H. Ellison

+ — Yale R n s 18:395 winter '29 300w

ROOSEVELT, THEODORE. Diaries of boyhood and youth. 365p il $2.50 (10s 6d) Scribner

B or 92 28-23979

"We have in this interesting volume a record of the childhood and youth of Roosevelt which is unique and valuable. It begins with Monday, Aug. 10, 1867 (when Theodore was ten years old), and ends with 1877, his first year at Harvard College. The journal is not continuous as it comes down to us today, because fragments of it have been lost, but a large part remains. Young Theodore's spelling and grammar in his early years have wisely been kept just as they came from his childhood pen. . . He read widely, and he was taken on several journeys abroad. This 'Diary' covers mainly those months and years of his life in France, Germany, the Holy Land, Egypt and elsewhere."—Boston Transcript

---

Booklist 25:117 D '28

Reviewed by Freeman Cleaves

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 N 4 '28 580w

"Not only devoted admirers of Roosevelt will delight in its frank, ingenuous illusions, but more impersonally, students of child-psychology will find it extremely instructive as to how an American child of high type looks at life, and re-acts to his environment." B. G.

+ Boston Transcript p2 O 31 '28 1450w

Reviewed by E. F. Edgett

Boston Transcript p7 N 17 '28 620w

Cleveland Open Shelf p135 D '28

"Considered as what it obviously is—the journal of a slightly precocious child awake to all the novelties of 'abroad'—there is attraction in the laconic registering of facts and observations with the unselfconscious brevity and directness of the youthful mind."

+ Nation and Ath 44:sup230 N 10 '28 220w

"This serious business of building up a Roosevelt legend, in which the friends of the late President are engaged, involves the publication of as many of his writings as may be possible, and Theodore Roosevelt was the most profuse of American public men. These childish diaries begin in 1868, when Roosevelt was nine years old, and end ten years later. Most of the jottings were made before his fifteenth year. The earliest are well expressed, though shockingly spelt. The amusing thing to note is that, neither in handwriting nor in style, was Roosevelt markedly different at nineteen from what he was at nine."

New Statesman 32:96 O 27 '28 100w

"Although one may not want to take large doses of this book at a sitting, in homeopathic quantities it is delightfully entertaining. The earlier entries are, of course, the more amusing, because they are deliciously naïve and are frank with the terrible frankness of childhood. . . The book will have no small value for child psychologists, while for students of Roosevelt's illustrious career it will offer many a ray of illumination."

+ N Y Times p22 D 16 '28 580w

St Louis 26:390 D '28

Reviewed by C. R. Robinson

Sat R of Lit 5:460 D 8 '28 500w

"All through the book there runs that charming naïveté that was perhaps the most remarkable characteristic of America's great President."

+ Spec 141:702 N 10 '28 150w

"The 'Diaries' are a treasure-house of unconscious humor and of conscious observation, the latter keen and intelligent, if youthful in spirit. The things that normally impress children and the things that normally impress adults are blended in a manner unfailingly amusing to the sympathetic adult mind. . . There is perhaps nothing in the diaries particularly striking as boyhood revelation of genius. Indeed, the charm of the book is that of normal if highly intelligent childhood reflected in the atmosphere of culture and travel with which fortunate American families were familiar at the middle of the last century."

+ Springf'd Republican p12 O 5 '28 800w

"Sir James Barrie is no doubt the proper person to write the youthful diary of a future President of the United States, but Theodore Roosevelt has done it extremely well. Sir James could not better his spelling in the earlier pages, which date from his ninth year. The spelling is not orthodox, but it has character. In fact, the spelling is an antiseptic without which the reader might think that this intensely serious boy had lost his freshness too young."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p771 O 25 '28 420w

ROOSEVELT, THEODORE. Rank and file; true stories of the Great war. 279p il $2.50 (10s 6d) Scribner

940.48 European war, 1914-1918—Personal narratives 28-9259

Eight deeds of personal heroism during the great war are commemorated in these tales by Colonel Roosevelt and illustrated by Captain John Thomason, jr. The ninth story recounts the eventful flight to Hawaii of Lt. John Rodgers and his crew in the P N 9-1.

Booklist 24:396 Jl '28

Reviewed by Larry Barretto

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p33 Ap 15 '28 330w

Boston Transcript p2 My 23 '28 180w

"Colonel Roosevelt does not prove himself a great raconteur in setting down these stories, but, given the facts, the stories almost tell themselves. And then there are the vivid illustrations by Capt. John Thomason, Jr."

+ Ind 120:317 Mr 31 '28 180w

"Colonel Roosevelt works up so deliberately to the actual exploits that his preparatory pages seem too long, but once he arrives, the recounting is terse and forceful. The best and most memorable pages are those in which he tells of Henry Johnson's single-handed fight with clubbed rifle and a bolo against a squad of night raiders, and those devoted to the feat of Sergeant York." R. C. B. Brown

+ — N Y Evening Post p13 Mr 17 '28 300w

Reviewed by S. T. Williamson

N Y Times p13 My 6 '28 630w

N Y World p11m My 6 '28 160w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:502 O '28

"What we get from Colonel Roosevelt is a vigorous and inspiring account of some of the principal acts of heroism performed by American soldiers during the war. The lack of variety in trench warfare, as compared with the hostilities in Cuba, is not to be denied; these stories are very much alike; and Colonel Roosevelt's habit of decorating them with journalistic clichés only adds to the appearance of similarity. Nearly all the faces are 'hard-bitten' and 'lean', except those of the higher officers, which are of 'granite'; and there is more than a touch of the war correspondent in such phrases as 'gaunt, powder-streaked men.' But it rings true. Its only sins, after all, are those of omission. It is the kind of book that one hopes may be read by schoolboys in America."

+ — Sat R 145:529 Ap 28 '28 320w

Springf'd Republican p10 Ap 17 '28 480w

"The stories are well told and psychologically comprehensible."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p294 Ap 19 '28 110w

Wis Lib Bul 24:161 My '28

ROOT, HARVEY WOODS. Unknown Barnum. 376p il $4 Harper

B or 92 Barnum, Phineas Taylor 27-24078

While describing at length certain well-known incidents of the great showman's career, the author concentrates on the lesser known aspects of Barnum's life; an adventure in journalism, a brief term of office as Mayor of Bridgeport, Conn., his services as legislator in the same state, and his efforts as a public spirited citizen in other fields. Illustrated.

"Mr. Root's biography of Barnum is a sober, academic affair, quite free from those fictional arts with which biographies now dress up their material; and well documented with Barnum's own remarks. In these quiet and somewhat gray pages The Great Showman contrives constantly to shine by his own irresistible light." Marjorie Greenbie
+ Bookm 67:324 My '28 180w

Reviewed by Van Wyck Brooks
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Ja 29 '28 850w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 F '28

N Y Times p3 Je 10 '28 350w

"Pleasant reading. The ensemble is considerably enhanced by many reproductions of old photographs and rare broadsides in rotogravure. Readers, young and old, will find in this book much in which they cannot fail to be interested." Bob Sherwood
+ N Y World p11m Ja 22 '28 350w

St Louis 26:106 Ap '28

Reviewed by Bernard de Voto
Sat R of Lit 4:824 Ap 28 '28 820w

"Mr Root makes out a good case for his subject. The book is well planned and well written."
+ Springf'd Republican p6 D 12 '27 550w

ROSCOE, EDWARD STANLEY. Aspects of Doctor Johnson. 148p $2.25 Macmillan [6s Cambridge univ. press]

B or 92 Johnson, Samuel

These brief studies illuminate certain aspects of Dr Johnson's character and personality, showing him as teacher of the art of living, in his religious life and his friendships, as talker and as traveler.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 Ja 13 '29 220w

New Statesman 31:396 Je 30 '28 250w

Sat R 145:840 Je 30 '28 420w

ROSE, ARTHUR. Boy showman and entertainer. 198p il $2 Dutton [3s 6d Routledge]

793 Entertainments 27-26671

The book gives simple instructions for a variety of shows and entertainments within the scope of the boy showman. Contents: Introduction; A marionette show; Peep shows; A home-made magician; Living pictures; Giants and dwarfs; Ventriloquism; Artificial fireworks; The living head; A Punch and Judy show; A panorama; A drawing-room circus; Living marionettes; Shadow shows; Conundrums.

Reviewed by H. S. Wright
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 Ja 15 '28 160w

St Louis 25:362 N '27

"School and camp and home libraries will undoubtedly welcome this very simply written, carefully planned volume wherein are to be found the secrets of ventriloquism and drawing room magic, not to mention full direction for circuses, peep-shows, artificial fireworks, marionette and Punch and Judy shows."
+ Sat R of Lit 3:720 Ap 9 '27 80w

ROSE, MRS HILDA. The stump farm; a chronicle of pioneering; with a foreword by Samuel A. Eliot. 178p il $2 Little

917.1 Frontier and pioneer life. Farm life 28-11575

The truly heroic story of a frail woman who with her elderly husband and small son wrested a living from the soil of a stump farm in the Northwest, and had the courage to take up a homestead and start all over again in Alberta, so that her aging husband could die in his homeland. The letters appeared first in the Atlantic Monthly.

Booklist 24:399 Jl '28

Reviewed by Garreta Busey
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Jl 29 '28 800w

"Every sentence in the book is a pull on the heartstrings. Still, nowhere is there any plea for pity. It is a story of a small woman's great courage and faith in the face of almost overwhelming difficulties, a true story that puts to shame the sloppy, modernistic 'realism' that would show all life as sordid and ugly. 'The Stump Farm' is at once a rebuke and an inspiration." J. W. Maury
+ Boston Transcript p5 My 5 '28 1650w

"If 'The Stump Farm' is, as I think, a true story, it is one of the best true stories I have ever read of life on the outposts of the circle of man's habitable world. By its side, some of the realistic fiction about life in New York and other great cities seems tawdry and insignificant." E. F. Edgett
+ Boston Transcript p5 Je 30 '28 300w

Cleveland Open Shelf p118 N '28

N Y Times p20 My 6 '28 320w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:490 O '28

R of Rs 78:adv27 Jl '28 100w

"As heroic a story as the annals of pioneering in any age or place afford. A story of indomitable courage, of cheerfulness in adversity, of family devotion and community spirit, of insurmountable obstacles somehow surmounted; a book which deserves a wide reading, and will leave every reader a wholehearted admirer of the mistress of the stump farm." Allan Nevins
+ Sat R of Lit 4:947 Je 9 '28 800w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple
Survey 60:397 Jl 1 '28 300w

Wis Lib Bul 24:161 My '28

ROSENFELD, PAUL. Boy in the sun. 266p $2 Macaulay

28-23666

"We meet David Bauer in the warm light of his own illusion of himself, as the boy in the sun staring with baffled eyes down the dim funnel of his childhood; and we leave him as a man, returned again to the sun, with all the shadows and humiliations safely behind him. In the interval between, we follow the struggle of his inordinately sensitive nature against the various dark forces that strive to claim him for their own. The atmosphere of his Jewish home in uptown New York, with its quarrels, its ambiguous loyalties, offers the first menace to his spiritual unity. His relationship with his father is important because of the value he has placed on it; it is difficult because of its uncertainty, wavering until the end between love and hatred. . . At no time does the sense of his racial isolation dwindle to a sense of inferiority, and in the end it is probably the cause of his triumph."—N Y Times

ROSENFELD, PAUL—Continued
Reviewed by G. B. Munson
Bookm 68:336 N '28 680w

"Mr. Rosenfeld attempts that perennially interesting feat, the re-creation of a boy's thoughts and emotions, and the slow welding of his masses of disconnected sensations into a personality. This has been done many times, but it can always be profitably done again by a writer who handles his own new material as closely and as honestly as Mr. Rosenfeld has. . . The book ties up into a neat, artificial and perishable package certain strands of experience that in themselves are measurably real and measurably significant." A. B. Parsons
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 O 14 '28 1050w

"This psychological study of an abnormal childhood and youth is an unusual divergence from Mr. Rosenfeld's usual pathway of criticism. Like any treatment of spiritual abnormality it tends toward morbidity. Filled with short and explosive sentences, which often prove difficult of grammatical analysis, the book overflows with the inchoate emotionalism of mental rebellion."
Boston Transcript p3 O 20 '28 250w

"I think The Boy in the Sun contains about the best writing Rosenfeld has done to date. No doubt of it. And when he falls down I think this book discloses the cause. He is trying for an extremely difficult colour differentiation and naturally, especially in English and in America, this is no cinch." W: C. Williams
+ Dial 85:431 N '28 450w

"The treatment is fresh-visioned and at moments moving: one would expect no less from Mr. Rosenfeld. Most readers, however, will quarrel with the style—jeweled, oblique, and imagistic, much too labored for the rather simple fable. The prose of Mr. Rosenfeld is really a reversion to Victorianism. Like the elders of that day, he chooses to call a spade an agricultural implement; and though the disguise is adopted for aesthetic rather than moral reasons it is none the less irritating."
— + Nation 127:432 O 24 '28 100w

"It is an intimate study, done with the understanding, sympathy and charm in which Mr Rosenfeld is never lacking."
+ New Repub 57:51 N 28 '28 50w

"The much criticized style of Paul Rosenfeld here proves itself, but for an occasional weight of Germanisms, a nearly perfect instrument for the expression of emotion at a new angle. Rosenfeld's book has the formal simplicity of a lyric, which it is. Things happen and stop. That is all. But it opens a fresh instancy of effect. There is in it a vehemence of freshness." Vincent McHugh
N Y Evening Post p8m N 3 '28 350w

"Mr. Rosenfeld gives an extraordinarily moving study of the psychological mechanism of racial distinction. The theme is never abandoned for a moment during the course of David Bauer's career: it recurs with increasing potency throughout his ordeal at boarding school."
+ N Y Times p6 O 7 '28 450w

ROSMAN, ALICE GRANT. The window. 297p $2 Minton [7s 6d Mills & B.]

28-16718

To the scandal of Dorne-on-Severn, Patricia Eden adopts a war orphan. Chief of her detractors is Mrs. Willingdon, the grand old lady of the town who has purchased a memorial window—at the cost of her husband's ruin—to be dedicated to her son, once Patricia's fiancé. Just before the dedication Christopher Royle arrives in the village on an unannounced errand. He is introduced to Patricia and Michael thru their good friends of the rectory. The grave girl and her lively charge are fine comrades and Christopher is captivated by them. He, unhesitatingly sides with them against Mrs Willingdon, and finds a satisfactory way to help them, and at the same time to discharge the errand that brought him to town.

"In spite of the over-simplified plot, in spite of phlegmatic stock characters, 'The Window' remains a sprightly hammock tale, a book to be picked up at leisure and dropped at pleasure, one which can serve as a pacifier on a restless day. And it must be said in its favor that it pretends to be no more."
Bookm 68:xviii S '28 150w

"The book is not without humor, it has taste, it moves along. No one ought to quarrel with it because it has nothing to do with literature. It is like a hot fudge nut sundae—as pleasant, as sweet, as nourishing." Dorothy Graffe
— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p11 Jl 22 '28 380w

"Mrs. Rosman gives a sensitively acute analysis of human nature, especially of that born and bred of English tradition and training, and environed by the gentle loveliness and friendliness of England. Mrs. Rosman has given us five friends (six, counting 'Blinkers!')." Frances Bartlett
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 21 '28 1500w

"Here is one of those rare and charming books which captures your interest at the start, introduces you to a group of attractive people, and leaves you soothed and satisfied at the end of a sprightly narrative. The book is full of lively and natural characters and some very charming conversation. It is not too clever, nor is the pace forced."
+ N Y Times p6 Jl 1 '28 730w

ROSS, EDWARD ALSWORTH. World drift. 223p $2 Century

304 Social conditions. Social problems

28-21064

A widely traveled sociologist reports on a variety of modern world problems and conditions. His subjects range from population problems at home to sociological conditions in India, from the films and young America to the military mind. Dr Ross is professor of sociology in the University of Wisconsin.

Booklist 25:106 D '28
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 N 4 '28 250w

"Professor Ross is a traveled sociologist. This collection of essays is one of the fruits of his travels. He observes conditions of life in India and in our own Appalachian highlands and writes about both communities with the same engaging frankness. He has the equipment, derived from long experience, observation, and study, for analyzing world-wide trends."
+ R of Rs 78:adv38 O '28 60w
Sat R of Lit 5:320 N 3 '28 380w

"One wonders, when he reads the trembling words about the dysgenic effects of the differential birth-rate, just how scientific these alarmed folks are when they talk about inferiors and superiors. It seems to me that Professor Ross has joined the ranks of the careless in the use of those references to inferior and superior classes. But the book contains other chapters and some of them, especially those on India and China, are delightful. On the whole, World Drift is worth reading if one is careful to distinguish Ross the Journalist and Ross the humanist from Ross the sociologist." Nels Anderson
+ — Survey 61:454 Ja 1 '29 200w
Wis Lib Bul 24:249 O '28

ROSSITER, LEONARD. Spellbinder (Eng title Emperor Joseph). 365p $2 Dutton [7s 6d Selwyn & B.]

28-7750

Not without reason was Joseph Willard, capitalist and manufacturer, known as Emperor Joseph. He ruled with absolute sway his home, his employees and his townsmen. An American girl was the first to dispute the smug Joseph's authority. She became engaged to his son, incited both son and daughter to wild revolt, and herself fought Emperor Joseph in the open. With not particularly happy results for any of them.

" 'The Spellbinder' is a well and subtly written story."
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p9 Jl 29 '28 100w

"Keen perception, a stark power of character analysis, and much cleverness at atmosphere, dominate Mr. Rossiter's novel."
+ Boston Transcript p7 Ap 14 '28 250w
N Y Evening Post p13 Mr 3 '28 90w
N Y Times p11 Je 3 '28 330w
Springf'd Republican p7f Ap 22 '28 310w

"In his second novel Mr. Rossiter shows the same energy and clearness which distinguished his previous book. His downright manner and economy of effect, due to a strong sense of satire, are certainly invigorating when contrasted with the vagueness and emotional irresponsibility of much modern fiction. But his up-to-date rapid method has a decided rigidity: we are reminded of ferro-concrete construction. . . Willard, though he has been sketched in with powerful strokes, never becomes a real person. Mr. Rossiter has been led astray by his satiric sense. His story remains generic: his modern capitalist, brutal and bullying, is but that stern father of fiction who in a previous generation figured as a choleric and senseless squire."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p664 S 29 '27 280w

ROSTOVTZEFF, MICHAEL IVANOVICH. Mystic Italy. (Brown univ. Colver lectures, 1927) 176p il $2.50 Holt

292 Mysteries, Religious. Rome—Religion 28-8827

In these three chapters Professor Rostovtzeff interprets some of the most important archeological evidence regarding the Greek mystery religions of the first three centuries A.D. in Pompeii and Rome.

Reviewed by C. H. Moore
Am Hist R 34:101 O '28 580w

Reviewed by S. P. Lamprecht
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 D 9 '28 420w
Boston Transcript p4 Je 3 '28 280w

"The three lectures comprising this slender volume are as expert as authority can make them at the same time that they are fascinating in detail and extraordinarily rich in suggestion."
+ Nation 127:143 Ag 8 '28 120w

"A fascinating résumé of the more plausible explanations in a persuasive historical setting; and though he disclaims having written a 'learned monograph' he has given the gist of all that sound learning has discovered and in addition has advanced interpretation by many penetrating suggestions of his own. Yet he has written easily, he has placed the cults in their proper milieu, and, as in all his work, he has illumined the environment of his theme. Specialist and amateur will read the book with equal zest." Tenney Frank
+ Sat R of Lit 4:944 Je 9 '28 530w

ROURKE, CONSTANCE MAYFIELD. Troupers of the Gold Coast; or, The rise of Lotta Crabtree. 262p il $3.50 Harcourt

B or 92 Crabtree, Lotta. Theater—California 28-22487

California in the old gold-rush days, with its mushroom cities, mining camps and shifting scenes of life and amusements, forms the background for a study of the life of Lotta Crabtree, the famous soubrette of the seventies and eighties.

"The career of Lotta on our stage, the rôles she played, an analysis of her art in relation to the growing arts of musical comedy and native satire, deserve much fuller treatment than they get here. But the picture of a tiny child, weary with dancing, asleep strapped to the saddle of a mule as the pack train moves on in the starlight over the pass to the next mining camp, the wild, whirling, vital, colorful life of old 'Frisco for background and school to a wistful and virginal hoyden, these are in the book in rich abundance, and make it both delightful and significant." W. P. Eaton
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 O 28 '28 850w
N Y Times p18 D 30 '28 930w
Outlook 150:1333 D 12 '28 150w

"Here is a story of the theatre written as such a story should be. The goldrush days of California in the fifties and sixties were an exuberant, changing pattern of comedy, tragedy, farce, and melodrama, and, strangely enough, a vigorous theatre flourished at the same time and in the same mood. The excitement and color of both, Miss Rourke manages to capture within the pages of her book." Vera Kelsey
+ Theatre Arts Mo 12:844 N '28 330w

ROUTZAHN, MARY BRAYTON (SWAIN) (MRS EVART GRANT ROUTZAHN), and ROUTZAHN, EVART GRANT. Publicity for social work. 392p il $3 Russell Sage foundation

360 Social service. Publicity 28-12892

The book contains a practical discussion of publicity methods for board members, executive secretaries and publicity directors of social and civic agencies. It is intended to serve as a reference book for any organization seeking the understanding and goodwill of the public. Ideas are made concrete by a wealth of examples of social work publicity drawn from the experience of social agencies all over the country. There are 63 pages of illustrations.

Reviewed by Forrest Witcraft
Am J Pub Health 18:1199 S '28 280w

"As yet there is no school for training in publicity methods, but a considerable literature on the subject is now available. The present volume is not only an important addition to that literature, but an indispensable practical guide book for social workers who are face to face with the problem of influencing group behavior." C. D. Clark
+ Am J Soc 34:396 S '28 480w
Booklist 24:386 Jl '28

"The book is very comprehensive and is an encyclopedia of knowledge for social, health and civic organizations. It should be one of the most used books for live organizations doing effective publicity work."
+ Boston Transcript p3 Ag 18 '28 200w
J Home Econ 20:679 S '28 60w
Pratt p12 autumn '28

ROWAN, RICHARD WILMER. Spy and counter-spy; the development of modern espionage. 322p $3.50 Viking press

355.34 Spies. Secret service 28-22680

The author tells certain chapters in the story of espionage, and of the exploits of famous spies. Many of the incidents related occurred during the World war, and include the development of the effective system of counter-spies which so frequently nullified the activities of the spies.

Bookm 68:xviii N '28 30w

"Mr. Rowan provides a readable collection of information, including such lively items as codes, ciphers, invisible inks, ultra-violet rays and complicated intrigue, with abundant data on prominent practitioners. The author steers admirably clear of heroics in his account of mercenaries, rogues and, occasionally, patriots—an account which may, in a pinch, be used as material towards a psychology of snooping."
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p24 O 7 '28 100w

"This book is not merely a history of espionage systems within our own memory, it covers a wider field. Mr. Rowan is an expert on his subject. He has given us a book that is of more than transitory importance." D. F. G.
+ Boston Transcript p3 S 22 '28 550w

ROWAN, R: W.—Continued
Reviewed by W: Frauenglass
Outlook 150:1254 N 28 '28 220w
R of Rs 78:adv40 O '28 50w

ROWE, DOROTHY. Begging deer, and other stories of Japanese children. 109p il $2 Macmillan
28-14308

Yozo was a little Japanese boy who was very, very much afraid of animals. On his fifth birthday he was taken to Nara, the home of the begging deer, and in his joy at feeding them he lost all fear of animals forever. The other stories of Japanese children are: The singing boards; Ukiko and White Puppy; Flying carp flags; Because Yuki could add; When the cherry tree bloomed; Seiji and the pearls; The bird who said baga.

Booklist 25:33 O '28

"The spirit of the tales seems accurate, as do the details of Japanese life. The best thing we can say is that here is a group of short stories, imbued with a kind of dramatic gentleness, that will certainly please children."
+ Boston Transcript p3 S 15 '28 90w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:508 O '28
St Louis 26:330 O '28
Springf'd Republican p7e D 23 '28 90w
Wis Lib Bul 24:257 O '28

ROWLAND, ERON OPHA (MOORE) (MRS DUNBAR ROWLAND). Varina Howell, wife of Jefferson Davis. v 1 499p il $4 Macmillan
B or 92 Davis, Varina (Howell) (Mrs Jefferson Davis). Davis, Jefferson (27-24238)

Written by a Southerner, for some years connected with the Mississippi state department of archives and history, this biography is a glowing portrait of the wife of the president of the Southern confederacy. The home life of the Davises on the plantation at Brierfield is lovingly pictured and their life in Washington during the time that Jefferson Davis was a member of Congress and Secretary of war in President's Pierce's cabinet. The first volume closes with his accession to the presidency of the Confederacy.

"The author is an admirer of Mrs. Davis and has evidently made extensive researches to discover all that can be discovered about her. But if one may judge from the material cited and the foot-note references, it would seem that the work is based too much upon tradition."
— + Am Hist R 33:926 Jl '28 480w
Booklist 24:320 My '28

Reviewed by D. C. Seitz
Bookm 67:208 Ap '28 260w

"Mrs. Rowland's volume has all the earmarks of a sound piece of work: a lengthy biography, exhaustive footnotes, an excellent index; she not only has read widely in her primary sources, she has talked with many of Varina Howell's friends and intimates and carefully noted their impressions and conversations. Yet, except in two instances, her Varina Howell never comes to life." Sara Haardt
— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 F 5 '28 880w

Reviewed by S. L. Cook
Boston Transcript p3 D 10 '27 1900w

"A full length and definitive biography of a woman of extraordinary charm and intelligence. It bears the evidence of a meticulously careful preparation, and reads like a romance of a dead day." C. G. Bowers
+ Nation 126:453 Ap 18 '28 600w

"The first volume of Mrs. Rowland's account of Varina Howell Davis is execrably written; it is almost impossible to follow the course of events, so buried it is in a repetitious, diffuse, and ungrammatical style. The history of Varina Howell, even after Mrs. Rowland's second volume appears, will remain, we suspect, to be written." Allen Tate
— New Repub 55:127 Je 20 '28 400w

"Mrs. Rowland has, I fear, let sentiment over-rule fact, and her material for the most part is derived from conversations with contemporaries of Mrs. Davis and descendants of contemporaries. The real Varina Howell must have been far more interesting, if less agreeable, than the adult Elsie Dinsmore created by Mrs. Rowland." Lucy Goldthwaite
— N Y Evening Post p13 D 24 '27 200w

"To Mrs. Rowland Varina Howell is little short of a goddess. And as we come to this story with full knowledge of her worship and respect for the wife of a great Southern leader we do not scoff. There is something charming about an attitude which has in it no distrust, no revaluation." Harry Hansen
+ N Y World p8m Ja 1 '28 1300w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:299 My '28
Spec 141:63 Jl 14 '28 250w
Times [London] Lit Sup p387 My 24 '28 1100w

ROYDE-SMITH, NAOMI GWLADYS (MRS ERNEST MILTON). A balcony. 86p $1.50 Doubleday, Doran [5s Benn]
822 28-9971

A play in three acts, with four characters and a single setting. An author tasting his first success discovers simultaneously his wife's inconstancy. He returns home to confront her as she waits her lover in the "balcony room" of the new apartment. In the quarrel that follows the wife flees to the balcony, which crashes with her.

"The trickery of the broken balcony rail and the signal lights is second-rate Pinero, but the play does achieve some real quality in the intensity of the husband's moods as his doubts grow." W. P. Eaton
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p13 Je 3 '28 80w
Boston Transcript p2 Je 2 '28 220w
Cleveland Open Shelf p116 N '28

"The play ends in tragedy, but incidentally contains much humorous and ironic comment on contemporary life and manners."
Spec 139:1052 D 10 '27 40w

"If violent and various physical action is to be the substance of a play, then Miss Royde-Smith's work is without substance and there is 'nothing in it.' But it is a beautifully finished piece of dramatic analysis, a little over-conscious now and then of its own psychological dexterity, but too brilliant in workmanship ever to be dull."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p663 S 29 '27 330w

ROYDE-SMITH, NAOMI GWLADYS (MRS ERNEST MILTON). In the wood; a novel in three parts. 381p $2.50 Harper
28-13166

Cilia was the middle one of the five Vyning children and the least cherished. The not unkind neglect of her parents added to her natural aloofness had led her to create a world of her own into which she could withdraw at will. This world of the imagination did not vanish with the days of her childhood but lived on with her after she had grown up and married. And with the birth of her first child Cilia slipped back to her own wood and her invisible playmates

Booklist 25:72 N '28

"The best that can be said for 'In the Wood' is that it is insipidly well written; and the worst that it is astonishingly dull. As a dissertation on the obvious it is a little like being collared while walking in a forest by an excited stranger who wishes to announce that he has found a tree. The author of 'In the Wood' is apparently too full of the discovery that human beings walk and talk. She holds up her specimens on a fluttering pen point, and before they can even wriggle they are dead. Thereafter they lie flat on the pages and have to be pulled by wires."

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 Je 24 '28 300w

"The high tide of human passions, life, suffering and death, is achieved in the picture of war-time England, in the hospital scenes with their wonderful suggestion and restraint, while the child life of the first portion of the book is unexcelled, with each detail worked out in perfection." C. K. H.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 27 '28 800w

"In many ways an exasperating book, wobbling as it continually does between constructive imagination and reporting. . . Obviously Miss Royde-Smith has rare imaginative qualities. She combines an evident passion for children with the ability to describe them. All the first part of her book, dealing with a family of young children growing up in a garden, on the outskirts of a beastly North Country town, is beautifully done. Her children have all the vividness, without the wistful wonder, of Kenneth Grahame's." Frances Birrell

+ — Nation and Ath 43:432 Je 30 '28 280w

— N Y Evening Post p7 Je 9 '28 80w

N Y Times p9 My 27 '28 530w

"'Children in the Wood' drags after the first half; but the first half is excellent." L. P. Hartley

+ — Sat R 146:23 Jl 7 '28 300w

"Naomi Royde-Smith has added to her quota of convincing, flesh and blood boys and girls an eerie creature out of the wood. . . The book shows occasional evidences of a deliberate attempt towards the wistful and whimsical, but for the most part it is an authentic excursion into one type of childhood."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:250 O 13 '28 300w

"An interesting and unusual novel. It may be said at once that the central theme is perhaps the least successful element in the book, Cilia Vyning, the child and woman who possesses the 'Invisible playmate,' is never very distinct in character, and remains shadowy and not altogether comprehensible to the end of the book. . . But this comparative failure in the main theme does not damage the book as a whole as much as might be expected. There are other things which more than compensate for it. 'In the Wood' is a good novel, beautiful and moving to read, with a fresh and charming presentation of varied types of character."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7f Je 24 '28 850w

"In many respects the book is extremely charming, in others it is unsatisfying. . . It is the failure to provide any kind of necessity, even supernatural, which leaves this otherwise very clever story in the limbo of unreality. This is a pity, because the character-drawing is, as always in Miss Royde-Smith's books, exceedingly shrewd; but we fear that character and episode so beguile this author that she sees no necessity to provide strong connexions. When she should be forging links she lapses into lyrics."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p484 Je 28 '28 520w

Wis Lib Bul 24:244 Jl '28

ROYDEN, AGNES MAUDE. I believe in God. (What I believe ser.) 293p $2 Harper [7s 6d Benn]

230 Christianity. Faith 27-24249

For descriptive note see Annual for 1927.

Booklist 24:233 Mr '28

"It is a highly disappointing production—a decisive revelation of the essentially unsubstantial character of Miss Royden's leadership in the religious world of contemporary England. This is not to suggest that 'I Believe In God' is without merits. Miss Royden treats this most fundamental of all questions with reverence and insight. She writes again and again with a high sense of intelligence and beauty." J: H. Holmes

— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 Ja 15 '28 830w

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 14 '28 280w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison

Christian Century 45:112 Ja 26 '28 650w

Reviewed by E. B. Barrett

N Y Evening Post p13 Mr 31 '28 320w

"Maude Royden's book interprets the present with all its characteristic compromises, evasions and confusions. Just because Miss Royden writes with utter frankness her volume is the most depressing demonstration of the breakdown of contemporary religion that we have seen in recent years." J: H. Holmes

N Y World p10m Ja 15 '28 200w

Wis Lib Bul 24:121 Ap '28

ROZANOV, MIKHAIL GRIGORYEVITCH (N. OGNYOV, pseud.). Diary of a communist schoolboy; tr. from the Russian by Alexander Werth. 288p $2.50 Payson & Clarke [7s 6d Gollancz]

"This Diary is said to be the work of a Russian school teacher, Rozanov, who writes under the name Ognyov, and to have been widely read in Russia, and in translation elsewhere on the Continent. It is a work of fiction, in any case, and so far as American readers are concerned, may be taken as it comes, like any other story of a boy—like 'Stalky' or 'Tom Sawyer.' Its strength lies in its endeavor to present, without argument or any of the political preoccupations which overburden most writing about contemporary Russia, the day-to-day states of mind of a post-revolution Russian youngster of high-school age."—Sat R of Lit

Booklist 25:25 O '28

"A book of this sort is worth tons of propaganda." Agnes de Lima

+ Bookm 68:237 O '28 600w

"The reason the book is so good, and conveys so realistically the new Russian life, is that the author is not only serious and ardent but a humorist, as well. His book gleams with the contradictions, the unsettled grips in the catch-as-catch-can of Russian daily life, and, above all, even in describing this new proletarian religion, his flexibility, his lack of soggy moralizing, his appreciation of the scientific worth of setting down the picture whole." Ernestine Evans

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 Jl 1 '28 1000w

"The author, who seems to have intended typifying various tendencies of the new Russian youth (and he has succeeded in creating lively and charming individuals), has chosen the period when young people seem to grow up almost over night, and thus has made the psychological climax both dramatic and natural." R. J. Barber

+ Living Age 335:150 O '28 600w

"The temptation to quote at length from this book is strong, so arresting is its attitude toward life and so extraordinary the life it shows. It reveals more than the Soviet experiments in education, for there are also quick flashes vivifying the everyday tests to which pet Soviet theories are being subjected." Norah Meade

+ Nation 127:111 Ag 1 '28 1150w

Reviewed by Raymond Mortimer

Nation and Ath 43:144 My 5 '28 40w

"The book is interesting because it is unusual and vividly written, and because the hero of it, a precocious and enthusiastic Communist, is undoubtedly of a type which has sprung up in Russia since the revolution."

+ New Statesman 31:170 My 12 '28 240w

"A hearty, uninhibited co-operation between pupil and teacher is revealed in this well-written and often amusing account of a school in Soviet Russia." T. S.

+ N Y Evening Post p8 Je 23 '28 90w

"Whether N. Ognyov created Kostya or discovered him in real life and merely edited his

ROZANOV, M. G.—Continued
diary is quite immaterial to the enjoyment and importance of the book. It rings true in every page. Those, however, who know Kostya in the original and have learned to love him will probably miss in the translation by Alexander Werth the amusing terseness and originality of Kostya's own language. Fortunately these moments are not too numerous and Mr. Werth, in spite of them, can be generously applauded for presenting in English the most illuminating bit of literature that has come out of Russia since the revolution." L. D. Kornfield

+ N Y Times p4 Je 24 '28 1300w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p7m Je 17 '28 1250w

"This diary is an interesting record, and though not actually written by a schoolboy, it bears every evidence of being a truthful picture. although the organization is so different from anything you know that you will read a good many pages before you get the hang of what is really going on. If you are interested in the new Russia, in education, in life, you will find a good deal to think about in these pages." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 149:397 Jl 4 '28 90w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:548 N '28

"It is such a relief to run across any such artistic treatment of Russian revolutionary phenomena, the whole thing is jotted down with such simplicity, and is so alive with authentic slang and the mood of the moment, that it is likely to be welcomed as something more than it really is by those who are fed up with the usual verbiage or, because of their own adventures in Russia, feel themselves, as they read, back in Moscow again. Its weakness, I should say, or one of them, so far as the uninformed foreign reader is concerned, is its lack of background and atmospheric texture." Arthur Ruhl

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:37 Ag 11 '28 800w

"The diary is written in a delicate and natural style, which has not lost its individuality in translation."

+ Spec 140:947 Je 23 '28 120w

"An arresting little book, and extraordinarily well translated by Mr. Alexander Werth."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p339 My 3 '28 240w

"It turns a mighty searchlight on such perennial school problems as the relation of teachers and pupils and pupils among themselves, the curriculum, discipline, sex in adolescence, and many more. The excellent translation by Alexander Werth preserves the flavor of the original by successfully adapting the school slang of these amazing youngesters." H. C. E.

+ World Tomorrow 11:473 N '28 100w

RUCK, BERTA (MRS GEORGE OLIVER). Money for one. 308p $2 Dodd [7s 6d Hodder & S.]
28-2233

The heroine will inherit her grandmother's fortune only if she does not marry. But having met a poor but handsome artist Kitten marries him, quarrels and makes up, and in the end finds more in her grandmother's will than appears on the surface.

"A thoroughly entertaining light novel of young—very young—love."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 Ag 12 '28 100w
Boston Transcript p3 Mr 7 '28 100w
N Y Times p13 Jl 8 '28 180w
Times [London] Lit Sup p793 N 3 '27 130w

RUCK, BERTA (MRS GEORGE OLIVER). Youngest Venus; or, The love story of a plain girl. 306p $2 Dodd [7s 6d Hodder & S.]
28-21888

A plain little typist becomes beautiful in four months by following a Swedish course of exercises, and wins the man her yearning heart desires.

"This somewhat obvious prank of Miss Ruck's need not annoy the pessimists—it isn't meant for them. In style it is bright, carefree and amusing."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p22 N 4 '28 100w
Times [London] Lit Sup p433 Je 7 '28 80w

RUGGIERO, GUIDO DE. History of European liberalism; tr. by R. G. Collingwood. 476p $5.50 (16s) Oxford
323.4 Liberalism 28-14395

The author defines liberalism as being neither democracy, the rule of the mere majority, nor authoritarianism, the irresponsible rule of those who happen to be in power at a given moment. It is something between the two; democratic in its respect for human liberty, yet attaching importance to the necessity for skilled and practised government. The subject of the book is the development of this conception in the political theory and practice of the last hundred years or so. Its conclusion is that the liberal state, tho hard beset in recent years, is still proving its vitality.

"An excellent exposition of modern liberalism." E. N.

+ Boston Transcript p2 F 4 '28 700w

"As a historian of thought, the author shows wide knowledge and penetrating insight. His is a reflective mind of a high order. More debatable is his exposition, in the second part of the book, of his own doctrine of Liberalism." L: Rockow

+ — Nation 127:113 Ag 1 '28 800w

"The whole book is as much a new and luminous page in the history of liberalism as it is itself a history. As is fitting for such a work, the style sometimes reaches heights of great eloquence, and there is scarcely a page that does not contain some pregnant and acute perception of the past or the present." Effingham Evarts

+ N.Y Times p26 Je 17 '28 1800w

"The interest even of the layman will be held by the author's lucid simplicity of style and his aptness for pithy statement. Author and translator both deserve the reader's gratitude, and the result of their combined efforts should be highly recommended, if not prescribed, as a model to most of our philosophical historians. The tone is throughout the book that of seasoned and restrained scholarship enlivened by a power of constructive analysis." L. J. P.

+ Outlook 148:476 Mr 21 '28 600w
R of Rs 78:28 Jl '28 60w

"The book remains on the highway of thought without blazing any trails for the specialist. It is intended for the intelligent general reader, interested in the history of Liberal thought. There is a bit too much facile generalization and a rather strong lingering of war prejudice against Germany." H. C. E.

World Tomorrow 11:310 Jl '28 120w

RUHL, ARTHUR BROWN. Central Americans; adventures and impressions between Mexico and Panama. 284p il $3 (12s 6d) Scribner
917.2 Central America 28-21009

These friendly impressions give a picture of the daily life and pursuits of the peoples of Central America, with some discussion of their political and economic problems.

"The poets sing of Latin glories, but their children read Yankee comic strips and go to Yankee movies. Mr. Ruhl, with an artist's intuition and a faint nostalgia, distills the essence of that unconscious conflict of two ages and two civilizations." L: Gannett

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 S 9 '28 1200w

"These are essentially the records of a particularly gifted reporter with a skill for developing a train of interesting anecdotes. Pieced in between more intimate observations there is a wealth of information about the countries, their politics, their leaders, their social problems, their geography. But the book is in no sense a 'serious' effort to solve the difficulties which arise from two essentially different points of view, and therefore probably goes further toward clarifying those differences than many another more conscious effort."

+ Ind 121:213 S 1 '28 250w

"The 'impressions' are conventional description, an occasional anecdote, a smatter of recent history, a few data concerning commerce, agriculture, and population, the author's views on the benevolence of United States aims in the Caribbean—the whole generously seasoned with foreign words and phrases—some incorrectly rendered. . . Those who seek new or vital information about glamorous regions still largely unrevealed, or savor akin to that of the better South Sea literature, will find neither. Mr. Ruhl has brought forth another travel stereotype for a region which could yield the equivalent of a 'Bible in Spain,' an 'Arabia Deserta,' or a 'Viva Mexico!' "
— Nation 127:sup382 O 10 '28 230w

"The book is pleasantly written, is worth including in your luggage if you're bound that way, and worth reading if you want to learn who lives on the hotter side of Mexico and how they do it." Paul Sifton
+ N Y World p9m S 23 '28 450w

"Mr. Ruhl is a 'reporter de luxe,' and he has a well-developed reportorial instinct combined with a pleasing sense of humor. He has taken Central America country by country and written his impressions, which seem to include every phase of national life as well as vivid geographical descriptions of the countries. It is a good practical book for any one who wishes to acquire a general knowledge of this part of the world." Milton Byron
+ Outlook 150:1171 N 14 '28 180w

"A most skilful blend of an entertaining travel journal and a political and economic sketch."
+ Sat R 146:506 O 20 '28 730w

"His accurate eye for details makes his impressions of value; but he leaves the interpretation to the reader. He gives you the country as you would see it—were you equipped with an understanding mind, a steamer ticket, and an ability to meet other people's customs halfway." Walter Millis
+ Sat R of Lit 5:212 O 13 '28 700w
Springf'd Republican p8 O 17 '28 350w
Times [London] Lit Sup p734 O 11 '28 820w
Wis Lib Bul 24:303 N '28

RUSSELL, ANDREW LAURENCE NOEL.
[2] Architecture. (Simple guide ser.) 266p il $3 Dutton [7s 6d Chatto & W.]

720.9 Architecture—History [28-13072]

"Mr. Russell rapidly surveys the history of his subject from Mesopotamia and Egypt, passing through Greek and Roman building, Norman, Gothic, and Renaissance, to the present day."—Sat R

Booklist 25:62 N '28

"It is by no means free from errors, but the general perspective is sound." W. R. Agard
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Ap 22 '28 50w
New Statesman 30:120 N 5 '27 250w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:478 O '28

"It is a practical introduction to the study of architecture, addressed to people who know nothing about the matter, who are anxious to learn, and for whom more advanced and specialized books are, for the moment, useless."
+ Sat R 144:590 O 29 '27 320w

"Mr Russell's historical narrative is full of illuminating touches, and his criticism of modern architecture is so fresh and suggestive that one wishes there had been more of it. He also gives a good deal of information about modernist experiments on the continent. There are some errors in the chapter on American architecture, but the gist is correct. The author is an English architect."
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Je 4 '28 450w

RUSSELL, BERTRAND ARTHUR WILLIAM.
Philosophy (Eng title Outline of philosophy). 307p $3 Norton [12s 6d Allen & U.]

192 Philosophy. Psychology. Physics—Philosophy [27-23824]

For descriptive note see Annual for 1927.

Booklist 24:192 F '28

Reviewed by C. E. Ayres
Bookm 66:679 F '28 550w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 45:381 Mr 22 '28 860w

Reviewed by M. G. Evans
Crozer Quarterly 5:497 O '28 800w

"Skepticism and animal faith is Bertrand Russell's philosophy; but where Mr. Santayana needed only forty-one pages of direct and cogent analysis to achieve the center of this position, Mr. Russell wanders to it through 291 pages of irrelevance and ambiguity, during which the focus of his criticism is changed many times and the argument blurred." M. J. Adler
— Nation 126:99 Ja 25 '28 980w

"If the reader should not be conversant with the independent character of Mr. Russell's thought, he must not expect to find this book just one more of the usual 'introductions' to philosophy. It is something vastly more valuable than that. It is, in fact, the best book there is for explaining to the educated but non-specialist reader the present position and prospects of philosophy as based on modern science."
+ Nation and Ath 42:518 D 31 '27 780w

Reviewed by C. E. Ayres
New Repub 53:250 Ja 18 '28 1100w

Reviewed by D: Karsner
N Y World p11m Ja 15 '28 800w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:83 F '28
R of Rs 77:adv10 Ja '28 120w

"A book which puts life and mettle into a subject which could well do with more of these desirable commodities." G: Brown
+ Springf'd Republican p7f Jl 8 '28 1200w

RUSSELL, BERTRAND ARTHUR WILLIAM.
Sceptical essays. 256p $2.50 Norton [7s 6d Allen & U.]

104 Skepticism. Social ethics. Intellect [28-22467]

"Bertrand Russell's introductory essay 'On the value of Scepticism,' in which he places the sceptical faculty at the center of true intelligence, sets the tone to the succeeding essays. In the essay 'Is Science Superstitious?' the answer is affirmative; science, it seems is really a process of lessening ignorance, never quite absolute in its logical necessity. And he is especially emphatic on the need for the most militant doubt possible in the evaluation of social problems. In the second half of the book—in the essays on 'The Harm That Good Men Do,' 'The Recrudescence of Puritanism,' 'The Need for Political Scepticism,' 'Free Thought and Official Propaganda,' 'Freedom in Society,' 'Freedom Versus Authority in Education,' 'Psychology and Politics,' 'The Danger of Creed Wars'—the burden of the entire argument is that a true approach to liberty lies in the unabridged license to doubt and never to quit doubting." —Bookm

---

Booklist 25:104 D '28

"In this collection of Sceptical Essays Bertrand Russell seems to us all good things in one—charming, witty, authentically sceptical, and knowing."
+ Bookm 68:xiv N '28 200w
Boston Transcript p6 O 6 '28 1050w

RUSSELL, B. A. W:—Continued

"'Sceptical Essays,' is an exceedingly brilliant book, the best non-technical book that Mr. Russell has written since 'Principles of Social Reconstruction.' It is extremely witty, yet the motive power of Mr. Russell's wit is not the appositeness of verbal connections, but the logical drive of his thought seeking expression. His epigrams result not from forced collocations of ideas, but by looking straight at facts, which for most of us are obscured by prejudice, and drawing the logical deductions." C. E. M. Joad

+ Nation and Ath 44:54 O 13 '28 1000w

"No other writer living today has that talent so keenly developed for making the intricate simple and the complicated crystal clear." Manuel Komroff

+ N Y Times p2 D 2 '28 1000w

"Mr. Russell's essays ramble widely, but he continually makes the mistake, in preaching scepticism, of confounding it with cynicism. Cynicism has its uses, of course, and Mr. Russell exploits them to the full. He pricks many a full-bellied gas-bag, and has some delicious little smacks at Prohibitionists of all sorts—whether they prohibit drink or free thought, cocaine or chocolates after 8 p.m." Eldon Moore

— + Spec 141:sup445 O 6 '28 480w

"The book is an eloquent plea, expressed with the author's well-known lucidity and wit, for the use of reason, as against prejudice, in dealing with moral, political, social, and religious questions. But it suffers from the same defect as the official propaganda which it inveighs against, inasmuch as no attempt is made to present the other side of the matter." G. B.

+ — Springf'd Republican p12 D 7 '28 720w

Times [London] Lit Sup p748 O 18 '28 1100w

RUSSELL, CHARLES EDWARD. American orchestra and Theodore Thomas. 344p il $5 Doubleday, Doran

B or 92 Thomas, Theodore. Music—United States. Orchestra and orchestral music 27-25803

A biography of Theodore Thomas, the founder and conductor of the Chicago symphony orchestra must necessarily make an important chapter in American musical history. For forty-three years he labored for his ideal—to educate the musical taste of America, travelling up and down the length of the land and fighting every step of the way against indifference, prejudice and open hostility. Mr Russell's book is a record of the adventures and sacrifices, successes and failures, that entered into his great accomplishment.

Booklist 24:205 F '28

Reviewed by P: Bowdoin

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p27 N 20 '27 1150w

"Mr. Russell's sympathy with his subject is unblurred by sentimentality, and the friendly keenness of his criticism is unblurred by the affection his long acquaintance with 'the real T. T.' gave and intensified year by year. Never was more lifelike line and color given (even to the 'warts' every human being possesses) the portrait, or more clearly outlined the heroic lifework of the strong-willed, sturdily honest, often imposed-upon, much criticized Theodore Thomas." F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ja 14 '28 1050w

Cleveland Open Shelf p98 S '28

Nation 126:23 Ja 4 '28 100w

"Theodore Thomas has been fortunate in his biographer. Mr. Russell's book is a reasonably comprehensive survey of the American orchestra since about 1845, as well as an engrossing tale of one musician's development. A few notable pioneers have been slighted and Dr. Leopold Damrosch, Thomas's great rival, whose influence on American musical taste is hardly apparent from Mr. Russell's account of him—but the outlines of the story are always clear. The fact that the author seems to have only a casual acquaintance with musical tradition and technique is, in this case, an asset, for it keeps him on the relatively safe ground of the historian rather than in the contentious field of the critic." R. A. Simon

+ — N Y Evening Post p12 N 12 '27 1250w

"His book is so comprehensive, so widely ranging and presents so illuminating a study, albeit a wholly sympathetic one, of Theodore Thomas's personality, gifts, labors and achievements that those who are interested in the musical development of this country and the story of the orchestra will find it valuable, interesting and very suggestive."

+ N Y Times p18 Ap 8 '28 360w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:115 F '28

RUSSELL, CHARLES EDWARD. A-rafting on the Mississip'. 357p il $3.50 Century

634.982 Mississippi river. Lumbering. Steamboat navigation—Mississippi river 28-23003

Drawing upon the reminiscences of old-time river men and his own memories of a boyhood on the Mississippi, Mr Russell has made a good story of the varied life of the great river in the heyday of its activity, the period of the lumber industry and of the rafts and steamboats on which were borne the wasted wealth of the forests.

"Here is a book that will appeal with absorbing interest to the historian, the business man and every one interested in human nature and 'characters.' Mr. Russell writes with complete authority, yet there is not a dull page in the book. He writes frontier history as it should be written."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 N 11 '28 780w

"Mr. Russell writes with a lively pen and, although his narrative suffers somewhat from excess verbiage, he has made a colorful and entertaining account of a phase of national development that deserves more comprehensive attention than it has heretofore received."

+ N Y Times p14 O 7 '28 480w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

No Am 226:adv D '28 80w

Outlook 150:1333 D 12 '28 100w

"Any man whose boyhood was passed on the shores of the Mississippi River in the days of lumber rafting may be expected to have something to tell, but few could hope to make as good a story of it as Mr. Russell makes. He knew the rafts and the raftsmen."

+ R of Rs 78:adv34 N '28 30w

Wis Lib Bul 24:303 N '28

RUSSELL, HENRY NORRIS. Fate and freedom. (Dwight Harrington Terry foundation lectures on religion in the light of science and philosophy, 1925) 176p $1.50 Yale univ. press [7s Milford]

210 Philosophy and religion. Religion and science. Free will and determinism 27-19147

These three lectures were delivered in 1925 at Yale university on the Terry foundation by the professor of astronomy and director of the observatory at Princeton university. His thesis is that the mechanistic interpretation of nature as a working hypothesis is capable of rendering important services to religion and that the theory leaves intact our practical faith in freedom.

Boston Transcript p5 Ja 28 '28 480w

"The book is clear sighted, wholly scientific and modern in its discussion, unbiased, and in spirit frankly reverent and aspiring." F. F Kelly

+ N Y Times p10 D 18 '27 150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p46 Ja 19 '28 50w

RUSSELL, PHILLIPS. Fumbler. 332p $2 Macaulay

28-23669

"A character study of young Lomer Guyon, recently graduated from college, and editor of the paper in a small conservative southern town. The establishment of a mill brings an influx of foreign born population and in a strike which ensues at the mill, Lomer casts his strength and editorial powers upon the side of the strikers. Before the settlement of the strike Lomer finds himself persona non grata and his business ruined, owing to his stand. Going to New York he ekes out a meager life and becomes engaged; leaves his miserable job, while simultaneously his fiancée breaks the engagement. Lomer is again left in a wreckage of misfortune, but an uncompromising devotion to ideals and courage which ultimately comes to his rescue seem to forecast his perseverance and success."—Cleveland Staff Notes

---

For biographical sketch of Phillips Russell see Wilson Bulletin 3:376 D '28

"The book's theme is a good one and the narrative is swift, but the style, dialogue and character-drawing are flat and without distinction."
— + Bookm 68:xxviii N '28 60w

"As a writer of biography Mr. Russell won his literary spurs. Now he has branched out into fiction and the result is not so appreciably excellent. The story is well written with that deft sureness of touch characteristic of the experienced writer. Its length, however, exceeds its accomplishment, and the reader is left wondering just what gain is made after its lengthy peregrination." H. F. M.
— + Boston Transcript p7 O 6 '28 380w

"The provincialism of 'Fumbler' is of that accidental order which defiles language with the unconscious use of localisms; which betrays itself in all its rawness by an unwillingness to assume intelligence on the part of the reader. . . In his less ambitious moments Mr. Russell writes with simplicity and directness."
— + N Y Times p6 S 30 '28 580w

RUTH, GEORGE HERMAN. Babe Ruth's own book of baseball. 301p il $2.50 (10s 6d) Putnam

796.357 Baseball 28-9907

Babe Ruth's book of baseball reminiscences is full of advice on the technique of the game and anecdotes about players. The book is effectively written in short and slangy paragraphs.

Booklist 25:19 O '28

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Je 24 '28 200w

N Y Evening Post p8 My 5 '28 80w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:339 Je '28

"It is a straightforward chronicle, that hews straight to the line of the baseball history which the enthusiast will prefer to more general biography, and that interpolates into its personal record incidental comment on the technique and personalities of the diamond. It is good entertainment for boys old and young."
+ Sat R of Lit 4:868 My 12 '28 80w

RUTTER, FRANK VANE PHIPSON. Since I was twenty-five. 220p $3.50 Houghton [12s Constable]

B or 92 [28-12197]

"A book of reminiscences is, or should be, an agreeable excuse for talking shop. Mr. Rutter talks shop naturally—journalism, art-criticism, painters and painting. He begins with a spirited account of his dark visits to music-halls while he was still a schoolboy, and his later adventures at Cambridge. Like most undergraduates he developed a taste for Paris, and spent a month or two each year living cheaply in the Latin Quarter and eyeing from a distance such men as Rodin, Norman Angell and Oscar Wilde. Finding himself without a profession, he became a free-lance journalist and afterwards joined the staffs of several newspapers. The most interesting part of the book is concerned with his experiences as an art-critic and his meetings with such men as Rodin and Monet."—New Statesman

---

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 My 6 '28 130w

"In every respect this book is excellent reading. Artists and authors will particularly delight in it. Any fair-minded intelligent person will discover charm in the writer's frank and honest estimate of life, the world of art and letters and the men and women he has met. His style is direct and occasionally witty." D. F. Gilman
+ Boston Transcript p3 Mr 3 '28 1550w

Ind 120:557 Je 9 '28 230w

New Statesman 30:542 F 4 '28 130w

Reviewed by R: Le Gallienne
N Y Times p6 Je 10 '28 800w

"Entertaining book."
+ Sat R 144:744 N 26 '27 120w

"Mr. Rutter writes his autobiography with an attractive absence of egotism. His pride of acquaintance with notable people is implicit, but the teller remains in the background of the excellent anecdotes with which the book is closely packed."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p133 F 23 '28 110w

RUTTER, OWEN. Golden rain. 309p $2.50 Longmans [7s 6d Unwin]

28-16623

Jeludin, descendant of a line of Malay princes, was a rebel against the British government in Borneo. The story of his pursuit and capture is told in the first person by the English official who was sent after Jeludin into the jungles to bring him to terms. The task is made more difficult because of the murder of a white man by friends of the rebel. Yet the Englishman has reason to respect and admire the Malay, and when a young English girl comes out to Borneo and into the story, this respect and admiration for Jeludin's behavior increases. The rebel hero is an appealing figure, in an authentic background.

"A good yarn, workmanlike, interesting."
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 S 23 '28 250w

Boston Transcript p7 S 8 '28 520w

" 'Golden Rain,' as an adventure novel, offers more than good entertainment, for the South Sea setting is portrayed with such fidelity that it is delightfully instructive as well."
+ N Y Times p13 Ag 26 '28 500w

"As an adventure story 'Golden Rain' is much above the average." L. P. Hartley
+ Sat R 145:44 Ja 14 '28 240w

Spec 140:58 Ja 14 '28 110w

" 'Golden Rain' has those qualities of restraint, good sense, and sincerity for which one always looks in books of this type, but seldom finds."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p26 Ja 12 '28 430w

Wis Lib Bul 24:256 O '28

RYAN, DON. Angel's flight. 296p $2.50 Boni & Liveright

27-20664

"A chaotic, semirealistic novel of Los Angeles and New York by a newspaperman. Desperadoes, bandits, bobbed and otherwise, prize fighters, insurance men, dancers, actresses, screen directors, popular writers, writing-tramps, mother's darling sons, highjackers, police and newspapermen galore, Kiwanians, Methodists, telephone girls, and above all tourists, have their day in 'Angel's Flight.' 'Bootleg Gaiety' and bunk jostle with despair in this somewhat too hectic picture of life."—Springf'd Republican

---

RYAN, DON—Continued

"One story tells the sad fate of an insurance man who carries on a mild and innocent flirtation. It is pathetic and true and finely written. Each reader will come upon it as a precious discovery. What it does discover is the talent of the author in a book that otherwise presents a false show." L. F. Hellman

— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 D 11 '27 430w

"An interesting and readable novel. If one were a movie magnate one would be tempted to buy the rights to 'Angel's flight,' call it 'The Prodigal of Babylon,' and make a lot of money. But as for Mr. Ryan, one wonders why he doesn't write something really nasty about Los Angeles—something tolerant, appreciative, and only incidentally contemptuous. His talent, one feels, is adequate to the task; it might prove to be a good book. And the Angelenos would never know they had been bitten." James Rorty

+ — Nation 126:100 Ja 25 '28 380w

"Ryan writes a staccato, modernistic prose, effective in short pieces but rather a bore in a full-length book. If he has scarified Los Angeles, Los Angeles is revenged, for Ryan, the writer, is subtly tainted, in spite of himself, with the flatulence the written word acquires there. Especially in his apostrophic passages."

— N Y World p11m D 4 '27 200w

Springf'd Republican p7f Ja 29 '28 100w

RYAN, JOHN AUGUSTINE. Catholic church and the citizen. (Calvert ser.) 94p $1 Macmillan [4s Burns, Oates]

282 Church and state. Roman Catholic church in the United States 28-11115

A brief discussion, by a well-known Catholic writer, of the question of conflicting loyalties involved in allegiance to the state and to the Catholic church.

"This is an especially timely book, one of The Calvert Series, and by the author of many well known works on social, ethical, and political problems. At a time when religion and politics are being mentioned in the same breath, but not always with the same degree of understanding and knowledge, it is well and conducive to an intelligent and fair minded discussion of both subjects, that such a book, by such an authority, is offered to the public."

+ Boston Transcript p3 Je 16 '28 80w

"There is no better authority on Catholic belief and practice, especially with reference to social and civic matters, than Rev. John A. Ryan. His new book aims to show that 'in resolving apparently conflicting loyalties arising from differences between the constitutional and statutory enactments of the civil and the ecclesiastical powers, the Catholic citizen is not in an essentially different position from the non-Catholic who rejects the principle that the state can do no wrong.' The fact of such apparent conflict is not denied, though the extent of it is minimized. The treatment is brief, clear, scholarly, dispassionate, and, to this reviewer, entirely unconvincing."

Christian Century 45:955 Ag 2 '28 140w

R of Rs 77:adv30 Je '28 40w

St Louis 26:273 S '28

"This book should help to clear the situation of its perplexity and misunderstanding. It is void of special pleading and specious argument."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Ag 30 '28 170w

RYAN, JOHN AUGUSTINE. Distributive justice; the right and wrong of our present distribution of wealth. new rev ed 404p $4 Macmillan

331 Wealth. Economic conditions 27-11627

"This is a new and revised edition of Father John A. Ryan's well-known book, which appeared first in 1916. In a prefatory note to this edition, Dr. Ryan says: 'Two kinds of changes appear in the present edition: first, matter which seemed to be either unnecessary or relatively unimportant has been omitted; second, new material has been introduced in place of statistical or other statements which the lapse of ten years has rendered inadequate. Most of the new matter will be found in the chapters on land, coöperation, monopoly, and wages. The method of treatment, the general argument, and the principal conclusions remain the same as in the original edition."—Am Econ R

Reviewed by M. G. Smith

Am Econ R 17:690 D '27 280w

"This is a learned and carefully argued discussion of the specific problems of economic justice. Its author, as would be expected of an authoritative Catholic teacher, is convinced of the impracticability of socialism. But he advocates the government ownership and leasing of mines, oil and forest reserves, and water power." E. C. Hayes

+ Am J Soc 33:651 Ja '28 780w

Booklist 24:83 N '27

Springf'd Republican p10 Ag 12 '27 800w

RYLANDS, GEORGE HUMPHREY WOLFESTAN. Words and poetry; with an introd. by Lytton Strachey. 260p $3 Payson & Clarke [10s 6d Hogarth press]

821 Poetry. Shakespeare, William—Style 28-30487

"A splendidly unconventional study of the psychological qualities of poetic diction, together with a fascinating exposition of the problem of Shakespearean style—this latter subject a rich field still almost untouched, as Mr. Rylands astonishingly proves."—Nation

---

Reviewed by Mark Van Doren

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 Jl 1 '28 880w

"This 'thesis' is, perhaps, not unprecedented, but we venture to say that few writers upon Shakespeare in any phase have succeeded so well in anatomizing the living structures of his art without rubbing off the glamor in the progress. He amiably and avowedly browses in a rich wilderness that no man's system may hope to domesticate." S. V. V. W.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 9 '28 430w

"In the field of scientific poetic criticism this is the finest volume since Professor Lowe's triumphant 'Road to Xanadu.' Mr. Rylands's observations on Shakespeare, all too tentatively and modestly put, have a quality of definite illumination; they are an excellent vindication of his plea that critics of poetry should exchange 'wonder for curiosity.'"

+ Nation 126:699 Je 20 '28 90w

Nation and Ath 43:333 Je 9 '28 780w

"This is a book which I, and I hope by this time a good many others, have read with unusual pleasure. It has faults, faults of a slightly exasperating character, but it is charming and stimulating and illuminating. It is a book which is good for one's taste; it stimulates the love of words and the love of poetry. . . Its faults are faults of arrangement and indistinctness of direction; we are invited to wander in the garden of poetry and to observe that the same flowers of speech are found growing in the bed of now this poet, now that. We are not given a lesson in botany but we are invited to inspect the author's florilegium, between the leaves of which he has pressed many and many a choice line which we have either never read or have forgotten."

+ — New Statesman 31:291 Je 9 '28 1500w

Reviewed by Mitzi Kolisch

N Y World p7m Ag 12 '28 320w

"This is not the best book on the appreciation of poetry which we have read, but it is an excellent one, and they are not too common."

+ Outlook 149:476 Jl 18 '28 90w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:483 O '28

"While not in agreement with all Mr. Rylands's conclusions, we find much that is new and notable in his views of Shakespeare's prose and increasing mastery of blank verse."
+ — Sat R 146:52 Jl 14 '28 960w

Sat R of Lit 5:281 O 20 '28 480w

"The book is strewn with ample quotations from some of the loveliest passages in Shakespeare, and that in itself makes it pleasant to turn its pages. But Mr. Rylands is an accomplished critic, and already a considerable Shakespearean scholar."
+ Spec 140:804 My 26 '28 220w

"He is always quoting, both with erudition and art; and not only do his quotations seem to yield some further profundity in his hands but, as Mr. Strachey says, 'with such a clever guide, we may well at last grow presumptuous and long to do a little exploring on our own account.' "
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p753 O 18 '28 820w

RYTTENBERG, LILLIE, and LANG, BEATRICE, comps. Samples; a collection of short stories. 415p $2.50 Boni & Liveright

Short stories—Collections 27-20827

Contents: "Tall-stoy," by George Ade; The man's story, by Sherwood Anderson; Simply sugar pie, by Barry Benefield; Muzio, by Konrad Bercovici; Let's go to Hinky-Dink's, by L. Bromfield; Flowers of the soul, by D. Canfield; Coming, Aphrodite! by Will Cather; A doer of the word, by Theodore Dreiser; Every other Thursday, by Edna Ferber; The dance, by F. S. Fitzgerald; Annie Laurie, by Zona Gale; Told by the schoolmaster, by John Galsworthy; Rerouting Rufe, by Sam Hellman; My old man, by Ernest Hemingway; Madagascar ho! by Fannie Hurst; Cynara: the sculptor, by M. R. Rinehart; The island game, by G. B. Stern; All the way up, by T. S. Winslow; The applewood chair, by Elinor Wylie.

"Very excellent anthology."
+ N Y Times p18 D 25 '27 180w

" 'Samples' is a literary pack that contains some very good names but fewer good stories. The compilers seem to have tried to please too many readers, at the same time to gather together some authors who would give artistic dignity to their volume but to choose from these authors their poorest and least representative stories in an effort to catch the popular magazine taste." Ruth Suckow
+ — N Y World p10m N 27 '27 450w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:5 Ja '28

Springf'd Republican p7f D 25 '27 100w

S

SABATINI, RAFAEL. Hounds of God. 327p $2.50 Houghton [7s 6d Hutchinson]

28-24060

A tale of the Spanish inquisition. Don Pedro, shipwrecked on the English coast, gives his parole to Lady Margaret Trevanion who shelters him. Gervase, her boyish lover, is jealous, and with reason. Don Pedro's love for Margaret grows to the point of madness and he abducts her to Spain. A priest to whom she appeals for protection on shipboard, discovers that she is a heretic and denounces her for a witch who has cast a spell on Don Pedro. Despite all that Don Pedro can do, the English girl is subjected to the terrors of the Inquisition when Gervase comes hot-foot to the rescue.

Boston Transcript p6 N 10 '28 250w

"An admirable plot is developed on a plausibly human as well as historical basis, lends a conventional love story richly adventurous relief and will not disappoint the author's deservedly large reading public."
+ N Y Evening Post p8m N 3 '28 110w

"A gallant tale of wit and courage, love and loyalty and high faith, is told by the always interesting Rafael Sabatini in his new romance. More notable than his talent for drawing surroundings is the author's ability to make of his historical characters neither mere wooden puppets, costumed for a show, nor modern individuals in masquerade, but human beings with the outlook and reactions of the time in which they lived."
+ N Y Times p28 O 28 '28 600w

"At his best, Sabatini is a first-class historical novelist. At his worst—well, read this one and see. . . The best scenes in the book are those in which Elizabeth of England and Philip of Spain appear." W. R. Brooks
— + Outlook 150:1214 N 21 '28 90w

"Sabatini is 'old-fashioned,' perhaps, but he is a great story teller and he has become a master in the vivid presentation of great figures and events of history."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 11 '28 400w

"Obviously the book challenges comparison with 'Westward Ho!' No single scene in it is as thrilling as the wreck of Don Guzman's ship on the Shutter of Lundy. But the portrait of the Queen is striking, if not flattering. The silky gentleness of the Inquisitors is excellently done. And Philip, the 'Spider of the Escurial,' is so vividly and repulsively drawn that by contrast the British reader finds himself near the end of the book again enthusiastic for Elizabeth."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p836 N 8 '28 120w

SACCO, NICOLA, and VANZETTI, BARTOLOMEO. Letters; ed. by Marion Denman Frankfurter, and Gardner Jackson. 414p il $3 Viking press

B or 92 28-31094

These letters written by Sacco and Vanzetti from jail eloquently reveal the character and spirit of the two men. Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti were both nature lovers and anarchists; the former was also a devoted husband and father, the latter a student of ideas and something of a philosopher. The letters written during the seven years before the execution, are chiefly addressed to friends working for their freedom.

"The volume is sponsored by an international committee which includes, among others, John Dewey, Sinclair Lewis, Romain Rolland, Bertrand Russell and H. G. Wells. . . There are passages in these letters and these speeches that remind one of the trial of a more famous victim of mob hysteria and gubernatorial inertia two thousand years ago. There are passages that recall the voice to which Socrates listened, before he drank the hemlock to which the judges had condemned him." Babette Deutsch
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 D 9 '28 1550w

"To the people who believed Sacco and Vanzetti innocent of the crime for which they died in the electric chair at the Charlestown State Prison, Aug. 22, 1927, the volume will become a treasured one. It gives the clearest picture we have had of the two humble Italians who became world figures."
Boston Transcript p5 D 19 '28 280w

"This material, which does not include translations, but only the English letters and statements of the two prisoners, has been collected into a volume by Gardner Jackson, secretary of the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, and Marion Denman Frankfurter. Sinclair has woven many passages from these letters and speeches into the fabric of his novel. He is right when he declares that here is some of the greatest English prose of our time and of all time." James Rorty
+ Nation 127:sup618 D 5 '28 1000w

"Much of what Sacco and Vanzetti have written down has the elements of poetry. The very fact that they were unfamiliar with the language and the idiomatic uses of English gives their speech a vigorous, unhackneyed quality. . . To date this book is perhaps the most important contribution to Sacco-Vanzetti literature. The letters, skillfully edited in chronological order with an appendix devoted to a brief resume of the case and speeches to the court are far more valuable than any opinionated history of the case." Horace Gregory

SACCO, N., and VANZETTI, B.—Continued

+ N Y Evening Post p8m D 22 '28 500w

"The human interest of the letters is very great indeed. It is impossible to read more than a few of them without becoming keenly interested in these two different personalities, in their quickness of intellectual response, their high spirit, their flaming zeal for their philosophy and for brave men's living, their deep devotion to their families and friends. The letter to his little son with which Sacco's active life same to an end is a human masterpiece, and surely no less a masterpiece because of that life's tragedy."

+ N Y Times p17 D 23 '28 500w

SACHS, MRS EMANIE LOUISE (NAHM). ² Terrible siren, Victoria Woodhull (1838-1927). 423p il $4 Harper

B or 92 Martin, Mrs Victoria (Claflin) Woodhull 28-28495

Narrative biography of Victoria Woodhull, the meteoric prophetess of free love and woman suffrage, who flashed across the papers and lecture platforms of the 'seventies. From her sensational career in America she went to England where she married a wealthy Englishman, and died "in the odor of sanctity" in 1927.

"This is a priceless addition to Americana, a much more lively accumulation of story than Mr. Broun and Miss Leach's 'Anthony Comstock, Roundsman of the Lord,' but deserving a place on the shelf between it and some yet unwritten life of Horace Greeley." Ernestine Evans

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 N 25 '28 1000w

"The author of this biography presents her facts without comment. She does not endeavor to prejudice her readers, nor does she eulogize the heroine of her narrative. One reason this book is important and impressive is because everything is placed neatly before our eyes. One hates to declare this a delightful book, but in this age of inaccurate historical surveys, we are thankful to be permitted to form our own opinion and to create our own prejudices." D. F. Gilman

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 8 '28 1150w

Reviewed by Freda Kirchwey

Nation 128:83 Ja 16 '29 880w

"Mrs. Sachs shares one quality besides pulchritude with her heroine—courage. Those who like their sex discussed with almost clinical candor will revel in 'The Terrible Siren.' This may, and I hope will, make the book a best-seller; but it is not, to my mind, its chief virtue. Here is a portrait of America and the Americans as authentic as 'Huckleberry Finn.'" Paxton Hibben

+ New Repub 57:146 D 19 '28 530w

"The author has told the story with admirable irony and restraint. She exposes facts which prove that Victoria was no model of the feminine virtues, either ancient or modern, and yet manages to make the picture of a most dramatic and alluring personality. Women like Elizabeth Cady Stanton did more for equal suffrage and equal rights and were more admirable human beings, but Victoria put on a better show." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p9 D 16 '28 1200w

"This is a truly dramatic story and a real contribution to our social history, admirably told by one who has possessed herself, by a long and patient investigation, of the far-flung necessary documents." Van Wyck Brooks

+ Outlook 151:80 Ja 9 '29 320w

"A brilliant book. One makes a single complaint—the chronology is confusing because of the author's failure to mention enough dates. If biography is to be more than mere amusement, it must constantly be tied down to time and place. Apart from that, I feel that Mrs. Sachs has shown the way to improve the current output of Americana: let it become the avocation of novelists." Bernard DeVoto

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:552 D 29 '28 1100w

"Mrs. Sachs has done her work skillfully and, with some exceptions to be noted, with careful heed to the historian's obligation to use such inflammatory material as here, with scrupulous regard for the truth. 'The Terrible Siren,' as the wording of its title suggests, is frankly of the 'jazz school' of biography, which is highly popular just now. With due acknowledgment of the author's evident purpose to be fair, it is desirable in reading to make more or less allowance for the exigencies of the demands of this school."

Springf'd Republican p7e D 30 '28 1350w

SACKVILLE-WEST, VICTORIA MARY (MRS HAROLD GEORGE NICOLSON). Aphra Behn, the incomparable Astrea. (Representative women) 177p $2 Viking press [3s 6d G. Howe]

B or 92 Behn, Mrs Aphra (Amis) 28-8962

Aphra Behn, 1640-1689, has the distinction of being the first woman in England to earn her living by her pen. Miss Sackville-West makes an interesting story of her adventurous and somewhat dubious career and studies her novels and plays to discover the qualities that entitle her to a place in English literature.

Booklist 24:401 Jl '28

Reviewed by Robert Kissack, Jr.

Bookm 67:445 Je '28 180w

Reviewed by S. C. Chew

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 Ap 1 '28 730w

Dial 85:75 Jl '28 70w

"An excellent story is made by Miss Sackville-West. Her task was all the more difficult in that the biographical material is very scanty." Ernest Boyd

+ Ind 120:339 Ap 7 '28 630w

Living Age 334:751 Ap 15 '28 150w

Nation 127:232 S 5 '28 70w

"Piecing her slender material together with a cool, quiet skill, she is able to argue and to persuade that a woman who has been reviled for her loose living and her gross pen was, none the less, brave, generous, idealistic, and honest. And she writes a chapter of literary criticism sensitive enough to send many people to her works to decide for themselves what they may have missed because Astrea, instead of trusting to her coarse, gay English, and her knowledge of unfashionable London, insisted on going modishly to Italy and Spain for her literary style." Barrington Gates

+ Nation and Ath 42:360 D 3 '27 150w

"Little is known of the life of Aphra Behn, and that little is obscured by much legend. Nevertheless, she has drawn a thoughtful and sensitive picture, and it is perhaps her sympathy with the courageous adventuress that has enabled her to bridge so successfully the gaps in Astrea's life-story. Despite this sympathy, one feels at times that Miss Sackville-West has lost sight of her subject in the pursuit of English prose."

+ — New Statesman 30:250 D 3 '27 300w

Reviewed by Lionel Trilling

N Y Evening Post p14 Ap 14 '28 150w

"Miss Sackville-West brings to her study a delightfully easy prose style and sympathy and scepticism in just about the right amounts." Ruth Suckow

+ N Y World p11m Ap 15 '28 220w

Outlook 149:750 S 5 '28 450w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:490 O '28

"Miss Sackville-West has written an excellent monograph with sympathy and penetration."

+ Sat R 144:744 N 26 '27 220w

"This brief and well-written summary of the career of the first-Englishwoman to become a professional author, is a useful addition to the Rev. Montague Summer's 'Memoir of Mrs. Behn' prefixed to his edition of her works."
+ Sat R of Lit 5:73 Ag 25 '28 280w

Spec 139:sup836 N 12 '27 120w

Springf'd Republican p7f My 20 '28 960w

"Miss Sackville-West, as would be expected, tells her story with great honesty and ability. She has made the most of what we do know of Mrs. Behn's life, and has guessed shrewdly and sympathetically at the character that lay behind it."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p856 N 24 '27 110w

Wis Lib Bul 24:162 My '28

Reviewed by M. E. Chase
Yale R n s 17:375 winter '29 150w

ST JOHNS, ADELA ROGERS (MRS RICHARD HYLAND). Single standard. 229p $2 Cosmopolitan bk.

28-11054

The story of a girl who borrowed the man's prerogative of casual or experimental love, following love where it led her, until she learned to be true to one man, the man her son would grow up to be.

"The argument is sound enough. But the conclusion goes lame. Adela Rogers St. Johns begs the question in the same trite, sentimental fashion that hundreds of her predecessors have found easier and more plausible." Margaret Wallace
— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 My 27 '28 550w

Boston Transcript p3 My 19 '28 280w

"She lets her characters run away with her, somewhere toward the middle of the book. They take her from bad to worse until the propaganda value of the book is quite lost in a deluge of mother-love." Robert Hyde
— + N Y Evening Post p9 My 19 '28 180w

"'The Single Standard' has the merit of brevity."
N Y Times p24 Je 3 '28 400w

Reviewed by Robert Edwards
— N Y World p11m Ap 29 '28 280w

SAKI, pseud. See Munro, H. H.

SALTEN, FELIX. Bambi; a life in the woods; tr. by Whittaker Chambers. 209p il $2.50 Simon & Schuster [5s J. Cape]

28-17486

"Bambi" is the life story of a forest deer, from fawn to full grown stag, told simply, tenderly, poetically.

Booklist 25:30 O '28

"The story is told with an enchanting clarity and simplicity. It creates its own atmosphere and its own terms. One feels the rightness of the manner, so skilfully diversified, in which the forest creatures talk. One shares their hopeless terror at the approach of that inscrutable Him who carries a 'third arm' and deals destruction." E. H. Walton
+ Bookm 68:99 S '28 200w

Reviewed by Eugene Lohrke
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 Jl 8 '28 1100w

"'Bambi' is more than a study of a forest deer. It is a sensitive allegory of life. There is an absence of the usual tragic finale to be found in all animal stories. In its place Mr. Salten has contrived a soft minor note." W. E. H.
+ Boston Transcript p5 Jl 21 '28 320w

"It is much more than 'just another nature book.' Many other writers have distilled from their acquaintance with the woods the essence of animal life, but Felix Salten has done it with a peculiarly unique charm and verity." E. F. Edgett
+ Boson Transcript p7 O 20 '28 850w

"The author's approach to his subject is marked by poetry and sympathy and there are charming reminders of German folklore and fairy tale in his nature world. It is to be regretted that his vision should have been deflected by a sentimental transference of certain human ideals to the animal mind." M. C. M.
+ — Cath World 128:376 D '28 480w

"Composed with such simplicity that it might well serve as a text to trace the distinction between fine writing and fine feeling. There is no artifice here, unless one gives that name to an occasional twinkle of gentle irony. The story is unfolded so quietly that one can quite hear the stillness of the forest in which it is set."
+ Dial 85:356 O '28 90w

Nation 127:sup379 O 10 '28 130w

"It is intended for children, but will be enjoyed by many adults. The descriptions of forest life are often beautiful." Raymond Mortimer
+ Nation and Ath 43:564 Jl 28 '28 70w

New Statesman 31:544 Ag 4 '28 420w

"'Bambi' might be termed a gentle narrative. It has none of the verve and snap of the 'Jungle Books.' It moves along like a quiet stream or like the rustle of green leaves, containing much poetic beauty and harmony but markedly lacking both intensity and originality." Laura Benet
+ — N Y Evening Post p8 Jl 7 '28 350w

"Felix Salten, in 'Bambi,' takes you out of yourself. He has the gift of a tender, lucid style. His observation is next door to marvelous, and he invests the fruits of this observation with pure poetry." J: R. Chamberlain
+ — N Y Times p5 Jl 8 '28 1350w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 226:adv S '28 120w

"A direct, unsentimental, tender, almost humorless story. It is written in a style which is a model of effortless simplicity."
+ Outlook 149:474 Jl 18 '28 320w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:431 O '28

Pratt p44 autumn '28

"Children will enjoy this story of deer life in the woods quite as much as will adults."
+ R of Rs 78:adv560 N '28 50w

Sat R 146:188 Ag 11 '28 150w

"With all its virtues, it does not, as a whole, leave that indelible impress upon the mind one feels it might. If, however, it ranks as a comparatively minor performance, it has beauty and grace and an individuality rare among works of fiction of the day. Nor is it fiction, save as all conjectures concerning what may amount to mentality in animals must approach fiction." W: R. Benet
+ — Sat R of Lit 4:1032 Jl 14 '28 500w

"The story of Bambi's life in the forest and of all his relations and animal friends is entrancingly told. The author has a fine faculty of conveying sound through the medium of words. This is not a book for children alone, any more than is The Story of a Red Deer; indeed, it may be too heart-breaking for the majority of children."
+ Spec 141:193 Ag 11 '28 150w

"This is a tale of exceptional charm, though untrustworthy in some of the facts of animal life."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p618 Ag 30 '28 200w

SALVATORELLI, LUIGI. Life of St Francis of Assisi; tr. from the Italian by Eric Sutton. 313p $4 (18s) Knopf

B or 92 Francis of Assisi, Saint 28-8349

This life story of St Francis of Assisi is related with fidelity and reverent sympathy by a fellow country-man whose mother was a native of Assisi. The historical background of St Francis's life is fully drawn.

SALVATORELLI, LUIGI—Continued

Booklist 25:69 N '28

"A history of St. Francis and the Franciscan Order which, though scholarly, is never dull; and, though it takes a completely non-Catholic view of both the Saint and his miracles, is itself a little miracle of non-partisanship." T. S. Matthews

+ Bookm 68:91 S '28 480w

Boston Transcript p2 Je 30 '28 250w

"I have not read a book in a long time more refreshing to the spirit than this delightful new biography of 'God's troubadour.' I do not say that the book is as great as Paul Sabatier's classic on this subject, but it is certainly more historical than Gilbert Chesterton's." Reinhold Niebuhr

+ Christian Century 45:572 My 3 '28 650w

"The freshest and most valuable portion of this Life of St Francis is its historic and scenic setting. This is delineated with scholarly thoroughness and poetic grace. The weakest aspects of the book are those that might be termed psychological; for the saint's character and aims are treated with so much orthodox piety that very little new light is thrown upon the emotional crises of his dramatic story. On the other hand the book is strikingly free from rhetoric or sentimentality; and the purely ecclesiastical problems pertaining to the founding of the Franciscan Order are dealt with tactfully and with skill."

+ Dial 85:76 Jl '28 120w

Reviewed by Bartlet Brebner

Hist Outlook 19:292 O '28 420w

"As scholarly as it is guiltless of pedantry, his work is a recreation of a man in a milieu, a portrait rich in human interest set in a background of the exuberant life of the Italy of the communes."

+ Ind 120:485 My 19 '28 250w

"This life of St. Francis is by far the best book produced under the inspiration of the recent se-centenary celebrations."

+ New Statesman 31:428 Jl 7 '28 1150w

"Salvatorelli's story of Lady Poverty's mystic husband convincingly portrays the man who came nearer realizing the legendary purity of apostolic life than any other." F: H. Martens

+ N Y Evening Post p15 Ap 14 '28 50w

"Signor Salvatorelli's exquisitely written study—so well translated that it loses nothing in its passage from Italian into English—is, essentially, an attempt to get at the real Francis. Yet the figure thus disclosed (or created) is surely something less. The strength of the book lies first in its peculiarly fresh and vivid reconstruction of the geographical and historical scene within which Francis was born; the landscape in which he moved, the personalities with whom he came in contact: next in the psychological imagination which is able to recreate for us the mental processes that determined the actions of the Seraphic Father and his early disciples." Evelyn Underhill

+ — Spec 140:771 My 19 '28 430w

"Of all the interesting literature evoked by the centenary just passed, this Life of St Francis of Assisi is most likely to live. . . Signor Salvatorelli has a fine and minute knowledge of contemporary history which serves him in good stead. His book is an honor to Italy. It is also eminently readable." V. D. Scudder

+ World Tomorrow 11:375 S '28 360w

SANCTIS, SANTE DE. Religious conversion; a bio-psychological study; tr. by Helen Augur. (Int. lib. of psychology, philosophy and scientific method) 324p $4 Harcourt

248 Psychology, Religious. Conversion

28-5576

This study in religious psychology describes the causes, types and process of conversion, behavior after conversion, and sublimation, distinguishing between the normal and the pathological in religious phenomena.

Bookm 68:xxxiv O '28 90w

"The study is scholarly and scientific and the author is familiar with European and American work in his field. He gives great credit to William James of Harvard. In his discussion he tries to be fair to religion and science too." T. C. R.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 7 '28 430w

"This book displays an independent point of view and will be read with much interest." J. C. H.

+ Nature 121:824 My 26 '28 480w

SANDBURG, CARL. Abe Lincoln grows up. 222p il $2.50 Harcourt

B or 92 Lincoln, Abraham

28-21008

An adaptation for boys and girls from the first twenty-seven chapters of "Abraham Lincoln, the prairie years." We have Lincoln's birth and boyhood, his years at Knot Creek farm and on Little Pigeon Creek, at Gentryville and on the Mississippi, until he leaves home at nineteen.

Booklist 25:78 N '28

"Carl Sandburg has not rewritten or edited his life of Lincoln for boys and girls. He has simply consented to the reprinting of the first twenty-seven chapters of that first volume which James Daugherty read and reread until he could no longer keep from drawing the pictures he found in it. . . The book is one which no library should be without and one which will bring a new atmosphere to the celebration of Lincoln's birthday in the schools and the homes of the country." A. C. Moore

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p6 Ag 12 '28 800w

Cleveland Open Shelf p114 N '28

"Its appeal will be especially to young readers in their middle and latter teens, while those younger will probably find the vivid picturing of pioneer days alluring, but the viewpoint throughout is, in general, rather mature for any but fairly well-developed minds."

+ N Y Times p10 S 23 '28 160w

A really noteworthy juvenile book, one which, both by virtue of its content and general make-up, is decidedly desirable for boys and girls from the age of ten upward, even past the time when they cease to be young men and women. . . The generous illustrations in black and white by Mr. Daugherty are a perfect complement to Carl Sandburg's style and remarkably significant of the times they picture in their rugged power and strong, expressive lines." Isabelle Houck

+ N Y World p11m O 7 '28 550w

"To all parents who want something that will entertain and that will yet offer tough intellectual mastication for the children, the book can be confidently commended. Mr. Daugherty's illustrations are spirited and original, but somewhat overemphasize the roughness of pioneer people and scenes." Allan Nevins

+ Sat R of Lit 5:346 N 10 '28 450w

Wis Lib Bul 24:257 O '28

SANDBURG, CARL. Good morning, America. 251p $3 Harcourt

811

28-26710

"Good Morning, America, is a paean to this great gorgeous shield of American earth, its trees and waters, winds and stars, crickets and autumn leaves, melodious scents and endearing sounds."—Survey

Booklist 25:65 N '28

"If ever there was a poet who went treading in Whitman's tracks, it is this man. . . Not that Sandburg is an imitator. His vision, his rhythm, his pangs, his chuckles are his own. It is simply that he shares much of the elder poet's feeling about the world in which he lives, that he is stirred and perplexed by its mystery, but never chilled by it, that he is full of a pitying tenderness for all living creatures, that he needs make no effort to swing along with the free stride of one to whom nature has never shown the face of an enemy." Babette Deutsch

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 O 21 '28 1700w

"His humor is here, and his talkiness, and his love of American lingo. And, of course, there are skyscrapers and waterfronts, not to speak of old flagmen and persons named Iglits. But all is noted by a tender brain to which no difference appears between 'a hard old earth' and 'a sweet young earth.'" Mark Van Doren

+ Nation 127:456 O 31 '28 450w

"Mr. Sandburg discovered an attitude in 'Chicago Poems' and is still doing it. Mr. Sherwood Anderson made a similar discovery about the same time and is still doing it. Other names could be mentioned. As long as there is no real progression but merely more of the same, as long as our mature writers are willing to drop their work where they found it, and our young writers seek only to discover an attitude of their own which shall be different, just so long shall we have more authors and more books, but certainly no literature." Edwin Seaver

New Repub 57:76 D 5 '28 700w

Reviewed by J: Crawford

N Y Evening Post p9m N 3 '28 480w

"It is some bit from a poem, some shrewd observation, some penetrating phrase, some expansive line, that one remembers from Sandburg rather than the poem itself. To use one of the poet's own lines,

'Some rag of romance, some slant of a scarlet star'. . .

But eventually the watcher is inclined to ask him a little petulantly if he cannot so mix his ingredient as to bring about fresh combinations and new beauties. Perhaps Mr. Sandburg yet can do this. But we fear he has sat too long at the feet of Walt Whitman." Percy Hutchison

N Y Times p2 O 21 '28 1600w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

No Am 226:adv D '28 40w

Outlook 150:1375 D 19 '28 230w

"Here comes sunburned Carl Sandburg, in love with the earth, distilling the emotion the farmer should feel but has not time for. He is, in his way, farm relief. Good Morning, America, is a paean to this great gorgeous shield of American earth. . . And he has conquered free rhythms to serve his vision with more beauty and honesty than anybody since Walt Whitman. The rhythms for a Continental plateau and Great Divide have to be free: Tinkling won't do. . . I doubt whether there is another Carl Sandburg in the universe—not so sweetly vocal, anyhow. America says Good morning, Carl." Leon Whipple

+ Survey 61:169 N 1 '28 300w

World Tomorrow 12:522 D '28 20w

SANDBURG, CARL, comp. American songbag. 495p il $7.50 Harcourt

784.8 Songs, American 28-681

For descriptive note see Annual for 1927.

"He has made here a book to be used wherever people gather around the piano, the mouth organ, the saxophone, or the accordian. And because he has a feeling for what people will sing, as well as for what they have sung, the book is doubly expressive. It is a work of art inasmuch as it gives an effective expression to sentiments and emotional attitudes; but these sentiments and attitudes are not so much those of Sandburg himself as of the nation as a whole." M. P. Redfield

+ Am J Soc 33:819 Mr '28 850w

Booklist 24:240 Mr '28

Reviewed by R. A. Kissack, Jr.

Bookm 67:101 Mr '28 450w

"Most of them are utter rubbish considered as music but deeply interesting as revealing one side of the character of the people who made and liked and sang them. Almost the only ones in the lot which have any musical value that is to be taken seriously are the Spanish songs and the Negro spirituals. The others seem chiefly inspired by the spirit of uncouth hilarity rather than by an authentic lyric impulse. The section headed 'Darn Fool Ditties' might have included a much larger proportion of the total contents of the book than it does. This is nothing against the book, or the songs, or the people who sang them. It is merely that we are silliest when we sing. But they are a real factor in the social history of America."

+ — Christian Century 45:414 Mr 29 '28 260w

Reviewed by Conrad Aiken

Dial 84:425 My '28 1200w

"This is the supreme American song-collection. I believe it is the finest that has sprung from any English-speaking people, because no other that I know, of anything approaching its noble scope, has had the benefit of Sandburg's love and knowledge of songs in their dual aspect, as literature, and as things to be sung. I cannot praise all the work of the corps of musicians who have written his piano accompaniments. It seems to me that Mr. Leo Sowerby, alone among these, has uniformly produced settings of distinction and beauty without sacrificing the defenseless tunes themselves. But with Mr. Sandburg's part in this Bible of song-lore I can find no fault that does not sink into insignificance in the face of his achievement." Abbe Niles

+ New Repub 54:sup170 Mr 21 '28 860w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:106 F '28

Pratt p25 spring '28

R of Rs 77:adv11 Ja '28 70w

Yale R n s 18:202 S '28 450w

SANDERS, ELLA KATHARINE. S. François de Sales, 1567-1622. 304p $3.75 Macmillan [12s S.P.C.K.]

B or 92 Francis de Sales, Saint 28-24735

A study of the life and writings of Saint Francis de Sales, founder of the Order of the Visitation, whose devotional writings, especially his "Introduction to devout life" have appealed to Christian readers for three centuries and more.

"E. K. Sanders writes, we should surmise, as a high Anglican deeply reverent toward his subject, gifted with no ordinary insight into what constitutes saintliness and in easy control of a fluent narrative style. We might desire a more extensive reference to the momentous events of that time and of Francis de Sales' opinion of them. This, however, lessens not at all our grateful acknowledgement of a work worth doing and well done." W: L. Sullivan

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 S 23 '28 900w

"Miss Sanders has added a valuable and fascinating volume to her series of studies of French seventeenth-century religion." Evelyn Underhill

+ Spec 141:106 Jl 21 '28 900w

SANFORD, A. P., and SCHAUFFLER, ROBERT HAVEN, eds. and comps. Armistice day. (Our Am. holidays) 457p $2 Dodd

808.8 Armistice day. European war, 1914-1918—Poetry 27-27702

"An anthology of the best prose and verse on patriotism, the great war, the armistice—its history, observance, spirit and significance; victory, the unknown soldier and his brothers, and peace; with fiction, drama, pageantry and programs for Armistice day observance."—Subtitle

---

Booklist 24:110 D '27

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 Ap 22 '28 60w

Cleveland Open Shelf p114 N '28

Ind 119:533 N 26 '27 60w

SANFORD, A. P., and SCHAUFFLER, R. H., eds. and comps.—Continued

No Am 225:adv Ja '28

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 32:658 D '27

"An excellent selection of material."

+ Wis Lib Bul 23:258 N '27

SANTAYANA, GEORGE. Realm of essence; bk. 1 of Realms of being. 183p $3.50 Scribner [21s Constable]

191 Ontology. Philosophy [28-12886]

For descriptive note see Annual for 1927.

Booklist 24:344 Je '28

Reviewed by Jerome Rosenthal

Bookm 67:438 Je '28 1300w

Boston Transcript p4 Ja 14 '28 480w

"What Santayana seems to be doing is locking himself in a room, throwing the key out of the window, and then proceeding to batter the door nervously in order to get out. This is acceptable in a movie comedy. In philosophy, where whimsicalities have no social status, a little more candor is required. But perhaps this criticism should be suspended until Santayana's next book, 'The Realm of Matter,' comes out. For it may be that his excursion into the realm of essence is only temporary—although it does not appear so from the tenor of this book—and that he intends to come back in the future to a real world." Eliseo Vivas

Nation 126:410 F 11 '28 1050w

Reviewed by J: Dewey

New Repub 53:352 F 15 '28 1400w

"A literary delicacy persists throughout the volume, making page after page glow in the light of verbal beauty. But this very virtue is, from one point of view, a defect. For the lay reader the bulk of the book can hardly prove less than difficult of comprehension. To write of philosophical ideas in a literary way means, at least for Santayana, to write of them apart from considerations of mere pedagogy. He communicates mature philosophical ideas to minds philosophically mature enough to grasp them without effort." Axton Clark

+ — N Y Times p2 Ja 15 '28 1350w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:196 Ap '28

"Not the least remarkable of this brilliant writer's gifts is his remarkable style. Never has philosophy been better expressed in English prose, not even by Walter Pater at his best." G. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Jl 26 '28 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p41 Ja 19 '28 1800w

SANTEE, ROSS. Cowboy. 257p il $2.50 Cosmopolitan bk.

917.8 Cowboys. Ranch life 28-20230

At fourteen Santee tired of roping hogs and chickens on his father's east Texas farm and started west to be a cowboy. His father brought him home from that trip in quick time. But his determination grew and not long thereafter his father gave him a horse and forty dollars and let him depart. The boy wandered from outfit to outfit looking for a job, meeting all kinds of rebuffs and hardships and keeping his courage high. Before he was twenty he was taken on as a regular hand and his life as a cowboy began.

Booklist 25:117 D '28

"From beginning to end the reader is made at home in a world of unique standards, customs and preoccupations as interpreted by a boy who absorbs them with a quick, keen ardor. He tells his own story without a backward glance toward home, without any curiosity concerning the lives of the millions who live in other worlds than his. By virtue of this contracted viewpoint one gets a singularly intensive and intimate picture of the cowboy and the things that make up his existence." Glen Mullin

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 Ag 26 '28 700w

"Santee's style is as refreshing as the wind across the plains, his simple drawling manner carries the reader along the bottoms, gulches and rivers of the cow country. It fills the room with the acid smell of the branding iron, and narrates a little known chapter of Western life."

+ Boston Transcript p2 N 3 '28 100w

"Here is Wild West narrative that is literature—and it closely verges upon being 'Treasure Island' literature. . . Here the boy is, 'all boots an' spurs,' with dreams in his head and with the will to make them materialize." E. L. Sabin

+ Sat R of Lit 5:120 S 15 '28 630w

SAPPER, pseud. See McNeile, H. C.

SARTON, GEORGE. Introduction to the history of science; v 1, From Homer to Omar Khayyam. (Carnegie inst. of Wash. Publications) 839p $10 Williams & Wilkins

509 Science—History. Scientists 27-11418

"The chief aim of the volume is to give, in as compact a form as possible, the main assured facts concerning men of science during the period covered, together with a list of the important editions and translations of the works of each individual, and a critical bibliography of the treatment of that individual and his works by modern scholars. It deals only with printed works and makes no attempt to cover the manuscript materials."—Am Hist R

"This sort of a work of reference has long been needed and will be extremely useful. It represents a tremendous amount of work and a high order of erudition, but will save others many times the labor expended on it and tend to raise subsequent work in the field to its own level." Lynn Thorndike

+ Am Hist R 33:363 Ja '28 1100w

"Only the work itself will give an adequate impression of its thoroughness and scholarship, of the care exercised for accuracy, of the extent of the informative evaluation, of the meticulous transliteration of Arabic, Chinese, Greek, Hebrew, Japanese, Persian, Sanskrit, and Syriac. (Every Chinese word is expressed in roman letters with the tones indicated by superscripts and a number added which indicates the exact Chinese character among the odd ten thousand.) Such tools of scholarly workmanship are rare. We may thank the author profoundly, and also be grateful to the Carnegie Institution which made its publication possible." E. G. B.

+ Am J Psychol 40:150 Ja '28 500w

Booklist 24:237 Mr '28

+ Boston Transcript p3 Je 25 '27 820w

"He has devoted his whole life to this task, and the first-fruits of his labours are now presented to us. 'First-fruits' may seem a particularly inept word to describe the book now before us, which many a scholar would be more than content to have to his credit as the sole product of his working years." E. J. Holmyard

+ Nature 120:648 N 5 '27 1300w

"He has thought long, deeply and independently: he has read widely and yet systematically: and he writes agreeably and racily with a pleasing touch of his French-speaking origin. In fine, this monumental treatise must be taken as a serious contribution to the thought of our age."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p730 O 20 '27 1350w

SASS, HERBERT RAVENEL. War drums. 293p $2 Doubleday, Doran

28-12651

Jolie Stanwicke, a beautiful English girl, comes to the colonies to search for her missing lover. Her father, Lord Stanwicke, is influenced by one Captain Falcon, suspected of piracy, and blocks Jolie's search. Lachlan McDonald, son of a Scotchman of good blood and an Indian princess, becomes her cavalier. On board Captain Falcon's pirate ship he finds a clue to the missing man, and makes an enemy of Falcon. The man they seek is held prisoner in an Indian camp. Accompanied by two misled friends, a swordsman and a scout, Lachlan and Jolie ride to the rescue thru woods resounding to the war drums of the Indians.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Ap 29 '28 80w

"The action is brisk, and the interest is not allowed to flag. Times and conditions are nothing to the author. He brings the rapier of the late sixteenth century into use with the rifle of the Southern frontier, which never occurred in history. But such anachronisms are unnoticed by an author bent on writing a book of fiction which will tickle the imagination."
+ — Boston Transcript p2 My 23 '28 250w
N Y Evening Post p5 Jl 28 '28 80w

" 'War drums' has all the requirements of a good motion picture—tender romance, breathless action and beautiful settings. The author says, 'This book is not history,' but it is a true picture of the Anglo-Saxon courage that conquered the American wilderness."
+ N Y Times p8 Ap 29 '28 400w

"To those who like cloak and sword, the play of pistols, dialogues in which hot-headed men spit oaths and threats at each other, and interludes of gallant lovemaking, the book may be warmly commended."
Sat R of Lit 4:1038 Jl 14 '28 200w

SAUNDERS, KENNETH JAMES. Gospel for Asia; a study of three religious masterpieces: Gita, Lotus, and Fourth Gospel. 245p $2.50 Macmillan [10s 6d S.P.C.K.]

294 Mahābhārata. Bhagavadgītā. Saddharmapundarīka. Bible.New Testament.John. Hinduism. Buddha and Buddhism. Christianity and other religions 28-6543

"In this work the author has made a comparative study of the three great sacred texts, the Bhagavadgita, the Saddharmapundarica and the Fourth Gospel. These three books for him represent the finest flowering of the religious thinking of Hinduism, Buddhism, and Christianity. He notes sympathetically the striking similarity among them."— J Religion

"Missions, India, Japan, internationalism, not to speak of Europe and America, will benefit by this scholarly, sympathetic approach and interpretation. The spirit and scholarship are alike admirable. East and West will be drawn closer together by one who understands the best ideals of both. Yet the author is scientific enough to be discriminating and announces his conclusions with candor and firmness." T. C. R.
+ Boston Transcript p5 Ap 21 '28 420w

"Skillful, penetrating and sympathetic study of the great Hindu, Buddhist and Christian masterpieces." J. T. Addison
+ Churchman p18 Jl 7 '28 350w

"As a way of approaching mutual understanding across the borders of religions this book should help. None better than the author can open the doors to appreciation of other faiths, no one is a better apologist for Christianity. The book is beautifully written and the selected readings at the end of the volume are an additional attraction."
J Religion 8:655 O '28 70w

SAWYER, CHARLES J., and DARTON, FREDERICK JOSEPH HARVEY. English books, 1475-1900; a sign-post for collectors. 2v 368; 423p per set $12 Dutton [42s C. J. Sawyer]

090 Book collecting 28-2009

The book-collector, amateur or professional, will learn from these two generous volumes, what types of English books, and which books (1475-1900) are considered desirable by the book-collector; also why they are desirable. The books are discussed for the most part in chronological order, from Caxton to Johnson in volume I, and from Gray to Kipling in volume II. Illustrated with title-pages in facsimile.

"One of the best of guides to intelligent collecting of English books." G. H. S.
+ Boston Transcript p3 Ja 7 '28 1250w

"Everyone who is interested in the externals of books as well as in their contents will accord a very hearty welcome to the admirable volumes which Mr. Sawyer and Mr. Harvey Darton have written as 'a signpost for collectors' of English books from Caxton's day to the close of the nineteenth century. Their work is exactly what has long been wanted."
+ Spec 139:778 N 5 '27 750w

SAWYER, EDITH AUGUSTA. Way of Umé; [2] with introd. by William Elliot Griffis. 145p il $2 Rudge

28-20571

This story of samurai love and vendetta is a portrayal of Japanese life in the days just before the Restoration.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p24 D 9 '28 130w

"Ume has a certain charm which lovers of the Orient will enjoy." L. B.
+ Boston Transcript p3 Ag 25 '28 280w

"Quaint and charming with the flavor of Old Japan is this simple little tale of two lovers in the days of transition when the Emperor was coming again into his own."
+ N Y Times p7 Ag 12 '28 600w

"Dr. Griffis, a great authority on Japan in the early days of the Restoration, praises the accuracy of Miss Sawyer's descriptions, and her use of local colour is indeed exceedingly, perhaps excessively, profuse. There is nothing she does not know and tell us about how the old-time Samurai wore their hair, carried their fans, ate, prayed, constructed their gardens and houses. The one thing she does not let us see is that Japan, then as now, was inhabited not by moralistic puppets, but by real men and women."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p689 S 27 '28 70w

SAXO GRAMMATICUS. Swords of the Vikings; stories from the works of [the author]; retold by Julia Davis Adams. 225p il $2.50 Dutton

948.9 Vikings 28-18231

Stirring tales of brave deeds of the early Danish kings and queens and their henchmen. The stories have been translated and retold for children from the works of Saxo Grammaticus. The illustrations are by a Danish artist.

"In the original Danish of Saxo lie treasures hitherto unguessed by western minds. But it happens that Mrs. Adams, who has lived many years in Denmark, has undertaken a translation as terse and brisk and unembellished as Saxo's own, and has given us a collection of fairy tales very new to the children of this country. Moreover, there are the pictures by Mrs. Lassen, a noted Danish artist, embodying the spirit of the myths."
+ Boston Transcript p10 Ag 8 '28 330w

"The Viking code was a simple and a rough one, and these stories, translated for children from the chronicles of Saxo Grammaticus, illustrate it very clearly. These are the sort of people we like to read about, and children like to read about them too." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 149:597 Ag 8 '28 120w
R of Rs 78:559 N '28 70w

"Here is a book so quietly beautiful in all the features that mark good book-making that we wish it might fall to the lot of every child who reads to have it to mull over and fondle page by page until it becomes his touchstone of what a book should be." A. S. Brackett
+ Sat R of Lit 5:193 O 6 '28 530w
Springf'd Republican p10 N 21 '28 200w

SAXON, LYLE. Fabulous New Orleans. 330p il $5 Century

917.63 New Orleans—History. New Orleans—Description 28-25742

A series of impressions of New Orleans, beginning with a narrative of the Mardi Gras which the author witnessed as a small boy on his first visit to the city. There is a section on the history of New Orleans, and a description of the supposedly suppressed Voodoo worship witnessed not so long ago. Some of the articles have been previously published in the Century magazine, the New republic and the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

"Of high romance Mr. Saxon writes beautifully, often poetically; of historical backgrounds and evolutions, with scholarliness; of unimportant customs which are nevertheless peculiar to the city and essential to its flavor, with affection and charm; of the underworld and plagues, of amazing crimes and orgies, with frankness and distinction." Josiah Titzell

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 D 23 '28 350w

"Mr. Saxon has made deep research before writing a word, and he is gifted in his choice of words and their arrangement, even in the naming of a chapter. It is good literature and good history, beautifully illustrated." L. H. G.

+ Boston Transcript p4 N 24 '28 550w

Reviewed by Arthur Warner

Nation 128:23 Ja 2 '29 30w

"New Orleans brims over with a past life. . . It has fallen to Mr. Saxon's happy lot to make that life glow for us again. And he has succeeded, con amore. We taste the peculiar flavor of New Orleans before we have read ten pages of the book." Laura Benet

+ N Y Evening Post p8m N 10 '28 580w

"It is the rich texture [of the city] that Lyle Saxon has tried to reweave into words and Mr. Suydam into pictures. Both are uncommonly well qualified for the task, though the pictures are more smoothly uniform than the text. They catch most exquisitely the spirit of the city, so far as line and shade can do it. New Orleans is supremely sketchable. But Mr. Saxon has gone behind the sketchable." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p4 N 25 '28 1250w

"The entire story is written with fluidity and graceful humor. There is only one thing to regret: the failure to discover in these pages some mention of the wonderful old dining places and the foods of New Orleans. It is a book well worth having or giving and the illustrations by Mr. Suydam are in keeping with the delightful general tone of the volume." B. W.

+ Outlook 150:1374 D 19 '28 180w

SAYERS, DOROTHY LEIGH. Dawson pedigree. 299p $2 Dial press

28-2671

A chance remark overheard in a restaurant starts a long inquiry and an apparently natural death is proved to have been a murder. But Lord Peter Wimsey, aided by his friends, Parker from headquarters, and that garrulous and delightful maiden lady, Miss Climpson, has a very difficult time to catch the murderess.

"Dorothy Sayers may as well be put on the approved list of mystery-mongers for good and all. Miss Sayers swings a full-bodied story, furnished with a gallery of lifelike persons." Will Cuppy

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 F 5 '28 130w

"The style is often irritatingly facetious, and the author attempts too often and too obviously to show her knowledge of literature and her wide, quotable reading. At the outset, the hero impresses one as being the type who would be much more apt to go in for amateur theatricals or the running of a tea room. As the pace quickens, either the artificiality of the style and story is lost, or it is there only to be overlooked."

— + Boston Transcript p3 F 21 '28 200w

N Y Evening Post p13 Mr 3 '28 90w

N Y Times p16 F 19 '28 230w

Reviewed by Vincent Starrett

N Y World p7m My 27 '28 100w

Reviewed by Edmund Pearson

Sat R of Lit 4:790 Ap 21 '28 500w

Springf'd Republican p7f Ap 29 '28 150w

SAYERS, DOROTHY LEIGH. Unpleasantness at the Bellona club. 345p $2 Payson & Clarke [7s 6d Benn]

28-19623

Breezily, and without lingering over sordid detail, the author tells how an old gentleman was found dead in his armchair in the staid Bellona club, how the affair turned out to be murder, and how Lord Peter Wimsey discovered whether one or none of the old gentleman's heirs was guilty of the crime.

Booklist 25:125 D '28

"Miss Sayers's mysteries are never intricate, but provide enjoyable enough reading,—amusing, that is, if you can enjoy Lord Peter, who is what Philo Vance might have been if he had been amusing." C: M. Purdy

Bookm 68:233 O '28 130w

"Even mystery haters may read this without an attack of pessimism, for it is civilized, entertaining, humorous and in every way deserving of a medal." Will Cuppy

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 O 21 '28 100w

Boston Transcript p8 D 15 '28 300w

" 'The Unpleasantness at the Bellona Club' is not well written, and the jokes are for the most part not funny. The plot is fair." Raymond Mortimer

— Nation and Ath 43:564 Jl 28 '28 50w

"The special qualities of Miss Sayers's writing are seen here at their best."

+ Sat R 146:305 S 8 '28 110w

Sat R of Lit 5:301 O 27 '28 130w

"The story is not sensational, but is told in that familiar straightforward way which seeks to make crime and punishment as much like a chess problem as possible. This being so the plot has to be examined with great strictness, and Miss Sayers's book will bear this inspection, since the criminal is introduced early in the book, and the detective is more, rather than less, intelligent than the normal reader of detective stories. In fact none of the rules of detective-story writing is broken, and the book may be recommended to those who take detective stories seriously."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p594 Ag 16 '28 150w

SAZONOV, SERGIEI DMITRIEVICH. Fateful years, 1909-1916; the reminiscences of [the author]. 327p $4 Stokes [15s J. Cape]

940.32 Russia—Foreign relations. European war, 1914-1918—Diplomatic history [28-18016]

Sazonov was called to St Petersburg as undersecretary of state in 1909 and became minister for foreign affairs in 1910, serving Russia thru the war years and until the revolution. He was a staunch Royalist and when the czar was overthrown he became foreign minister of the counter-revolutionary Omsk government. Sazonov's reminiscences afford a frank discussion of the intricate diplomatic situation and a defense of Russia's policy. The book is chiefly concerned with the relations between Russia, Germany and Austria arising out of their conflicting interests in the Balkans.

Reviewed by Arthur Ruhl

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 Je 24 '28 1100w

"No writer on behalf of the Entente has offered as convincing an argument for the extreme revisionist position upon responsibility for the World War as Sazonov unwittingly brings forward in his official defense of his policy. It is an adequate commentary upon the nature of Sazonov's work to learn that he has not used the genuine documents on the crisis of 1914 as published by Stieve, Marchand, and Romberg, but, incredible though it may seem, cites the abridged and falsified 'Orange Book' of the war period." H. E. Barnes

— Nation 126:453 Ap 18 '28 300w

Nation and Ath 42:912 Mr 17 '28 450w

Reviewed by W: L. Langer

New Repub 55:283 Ag 1 '28 1100w

New Statesman 30:738 Mr 17 '28 210w

Reviewed by A. M. Nikolaieff

N Y Evening Post p7 Je 9 '28 1400w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:502 O '28

Pratt p37 autumn '28

"Far the greater part of what he has to say is inevitably an old story, but it derives point and force from the position of the narrator. The Russian point of view finds nowhere so clear an expression as in these pages, and that in itself is of great importance. In particular, it is of great assistance in regard to Balkan questions."

+ Sat R 145:291 Mr 10 '28 450w

"Sazonov's reminiscences are a very important and interesting contribution to the diplomatic history of the war. His narrative is clear and temperate."

+ Spec 140:237 F 18 '28 300w

"The book contains his own account, explanation and defence of his policy and his acts. It does not, as he tells us, profess to be a full history of the times; he has more wisely confined himself to that of which he can speak with personal knowledge. What he does is to give us his own recollection of the objects which he attempted to attain and the direction in which he aimed at directing the policy of his country. Up to a point he has succeeded in doing so."

Times [London] Lit Sup p119 F 23 '28 1750w

Wis Lib Bul 24:124 Ap '28

SCHACHT, HJALMAR. Stabilization of the mark. 320p $3 Adelphi co. [8s 6d Allen & U.]

332.49 Money—Germany [28-11727]

"This book can hardly fail to become an economic classic. It contains the full story of the greatest and most difficult financial operation ever attempted anywhere—the sudden stabilization of the currency of a huge industrial country. And the story is told by the man who almost alone carried it through."—New Statesman

---

"Its main defect is that it contains too much personal color and represents in part an apology or explanation of the policy of the Reichsbank under his direction. On the whole, the book by Dr. Schacht is one of the most interesting economic descriptions that appeared after the war and in many parts brings out points which hitherto have not been stressed sufficiently." M. Nadler

+ — Am Econ R 18:540 S '28 530w

"The volume as a whole is marked by sincerity and good faith; it is a delight to the careful student for its specific citation of dates and figures; and to the layman it is a human record full of interest." M. S. Evans

+ Nation 126:568 My 16 '28 900w

Reviewed by J. M. Keynes

New Repub 53:276 Ja 25 '28 680w

+ New Statesman 30:382 D 31 '27 1350w

"So far as it goes it is a very brilliant little book, the purpose of which is to justify the State's claim to existence and as a corollary to its security as a national entity." T. J. C. Martyn

+ N Y Times p3 F 19 '28 70w

"Germany's emergence from financial chaos into a state of ordered prosperity has been one of the most remarkable developments of the post-War years. How it was achieved may be read at length in a singularly able book by the man chiefly responsible, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Director of the Reichsbank. The book is somewhat technical in places and expresses the German view of political questions somewhat strongly, but it is well worth careful study."

+ Spec 140:535 Ap 7 '28 200w

Survey 59:785 Mr 15 '28 20w

"He tells the story, which has a romance of its own, in a clear, direct, and concise narrative. Although most of his chapters appeal chiefly to the specialist and student, even the general reader will be interested in his speculations as to the future, contained in a chapter entitled 'International Co-operation.' " W: H. Dawson

+ Yale R n s 18:383 winter '29 120w

SCHAFF, DAVID SCHLEY. Our fathers faith and ours; a comparison between Protestantism and Romanism. 680p $4.50 (21s) Putnam

282 Protestantism. Roman Catholic church—Doctrinal and controversial works 28-11223

A clear and exhaustive account of the differences between the Roman Catholic and the Protestant faith on questions of belief and doctrine, church government, the sacraments, worship and all other points of difference. The author, who is lecturer on American church history in Union Theological seminary, deals with his subject fron an historical approach.

Boston Transcript p2 Je 27 '28 180w

"The serious student of Catholicism will find this book not only valuable but, one might almost say, indispensable." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 45:669 My 24 '28 400w

"An inadequate and somewhat antiquated handling of a subject that sadly needs an unbiased treatment." B. I. Bell

— Sat R of Lit 4:1036 Jl 14 '28 380w

SCHAUB, EDWARD LEROY, comp. and ed. Philosophy today. 609p $3.75 Open ct.

190 Philosophy, Modern 28-4892

Essays on contemporary English and American, French, German, Russian, Scandinavian and South American philosophy, reprinted from the Monist.

Boston Transcript p2 Mr 17 '28 380w

"International in scope it is valuable in that it places the reader in reach, if not in touch, with what has lately been written in certain of the more significant intellectual quarters, on the subjects covered. As a book for the prompt information of the general reader, however, it must seem of somewhat low utility, partly because the complex considerations involved are too cursorily surveyed in space admittedly inadequate, and partly because the writing is too unreservedly by and for specialists. An unexplained omission is that of psychology in English-speaking countries.

+ — Dial 85:268 S '28 150w

Sat R of Lit 5:257 O 13 '28 350w

SCHERR, MARIE. See Cher, M., pseud.

SCHICKELE, RENE. Maria Capponi; tr. from the German by Hannah Waller. 332p $3 (10s 6d) Knopf

28-6082

"The hero is an ex-officer of the German army, who has just lost his wife under tragic circumstances, and sets himself to write his reminiscences, in order to take his mind off his almost unbearable loss. The figure that over-shadows the story is not his wife, but an Italian marchesa, Maria Capponi. She was his earliest love, and we are left in some doubt

SCHICKELE, RENE—Continued
whether she was not his latest. It is a rich panorama he shows us: Alsace, Venice, the Riviera, the Black Forest; and a rich nature that exhibits these scenes and the people that swarm through them."—New Repub

Booklist 24:366 Je '28

"The quality which distinguishes this work is not a novelistic one at all, but a trait of character, admirable in itself, and here present to a high degree. It is a kind of well-bred intelligence, the mentality of a man who will find something of spontaneous interest in anything he chances upon. He seems too often to be copying the details of his novel out of a diary. To the retrospective and the forward-looking, art is handed on a platter; but to one who writes with his experiences of last night uppermost, the use of his impressions as an artist is identical with his reception of them as a voter." Kenneth Burke

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 Mr 4 '28 930w

"A brilliant but confused novel. At times one feels that one is reading a kind of condensed Proust, but condensed unevenly so that the result is obscure and the picture dim. Besides, the author tells his story backward and forward so that one wanders in a reversed chronology."

+ — Ind 120:314 Mr 31 '28 120w

"A tortuous and over-written novel of frustrated love, with an Alsatian and Venetian background. The most irritating thing about it is its feverish concern with the sensations of two young decadent aristocrats whose tempers have become so refined that, as the saying goes, their servants do their living for them. The heroine was conceived as a brilliant and moving figure; but she is rendered vague by the introduction of page after page of irrelevant detail."

— + Nation 126:354 Mr 28 '28 130w

Reviewed by Raymond Mortimer
Nation and Ath 43:144 My 5 '28 100w

Reviewed by T. S. Matthews
New Repub 54:201 Mr 28 '28 180w

"It is rare to read a love story with hero and heroine so distinct and likable; in most stories it is impossible to like the hero, if written by a woman, or to see the heroine apart from his conception of him, if written by a man. It is the skill and daring of the child episode and the technique by which the admiral's love tragedy is presented through their eyes that is amazing in this story and that come with a beauty and crispness utterly removed from the Venice of Thomas Mann." Cyril Connolly

+ New Statesman 31:124 My 5 '28 700w

"This book is a broader thing than its romance. The death and rebirth of a whole social order is contained in it. Through the uncomprehending eyes of the boy of 14 the careless, gay society of Europe before the war is made to live again. It is touched off in little, revealing strokes which do not pretend to importance, but whose sum is very important indeed. The postwar world, the world which is searching for the foundation on which to erect a new life, is seen through the eyes of the responsible, care-laden man. The double picture is the more effective because of its very submergence in trivial detail. It is not intended as a demonstration of social theory, but derives its value from its influence upon the life of a typical individual."

+ N Y Times p32 Mr 18 '28 400w

"The persuasive voice that meditates, recollects, and appeals through all the musical movements of the beautiful book called Maria Capponi is a more powerful advocate for international love than the tongues of many diplomatists. It is not a novel that will immediately impress the public like the huge cinema-history works of Feuchtwänger, for the decoration is aërial and the sound has no fiercer fury than that of birds and violins. But the rare sensibility, the exquisite tolerance, with which these gracious visions of Alsace, Venice, the Côte d'Azur, and the Black Forest besiege the imagination, are the essentials of the fine art of reconciliation." R. A. Taylor

+ Spec 140:509 Mr 31 '28 620w

Times [London] Lit Sup p333 My 3 '28 620w

SCHIFF, JACOB HENRY. Jacob H. Schiff; his life and letters, by Cyrus Adler. 2v 398;396p il $10 Doubleday, Doran

B or 92 28-30273

The material for the authorized biography of Jacob H. Schiff, New York banker, publicist, and philanthropist has been chiefly drawn from his many letters which have been so used as to make the book almost an autobiography. The biography reveals the wide range of Mr Schiff's interests and good works and his love for humanity.

"Dr. Adler sought to make this work, as he says in the preface, as nearly as possible an autobiography. He has admirably succeeded. The man—banker, philosopher, philanthropist—is revealed in his own utterances and deeds without the re-touching of a friendly hand. It has been done with the unostentatious skill of a great scholar and with a scholar's disinterestedness, despite his close association with Mr. Schiff." J: H. Finley

+ N Y Times p3 D 9 '28 3050w

SCHLAPP, MAX GUSTAV, and SMITH, EDWARD HENRY. New criminology; a consideration of the chemical causation of abnormal behavior. 325p il $4 Boni & Liveright

364 Crime and criminals. Glands, Ductless. Criminal anthropology 28-15184

The book maintains that the vast majority of all criminals, misdemeanants, mental deficients and defectives are the products of bodily disorders, that most crimes come about thru disturbances of the ductless glands in the criminal or thru mental defects caused by endocrine troubles in the criminal's mother. The attempt is also made to show that criminal actions are in reality reactions caused by the disturbed internal chemistry of the body.

"Portions of the book provoke disbelief. Extravagance of statement is perhaps its greatest defect—that and an occasional irritating anger with those who do not accept all that the authors say. . . One can only sigh over the intrusion, once more, of obvious prejudice into a field where clear thinking is so necessary." W. D. Lane

— Bookm 67:700 Ag '28 900w

Reviewed by Theodore Dreiser
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 Je 10 '28 1400w

Boston Transcript p6 Ag 22 '28 280w

"It is deplorable that Dr. Schlapp's laudable basic conception could not have been linked up with an adequate and up-to-date psychiatry, like that to be observed in such a book as Dr. M. H. Smith's 'Psychology of the Criminal.' Yet Dr. Schlapp has undoubtedly pointed out the path which criminology must follow in the future and his treatise is worth a truck-load of the alarmist volumes like Richard Washburn Child's 'Battling the Criminal,' or the 'judicial wisdom' of men like Marcus Kavanagh, or of the static manuals of the classical school. This is a stimulating and dynamic volume." H. E. Barnes

+ — Christian Century 45:1075 S 6 '28 1250w

"It is unfortunate that the first avowed and consistent American contribution to the new criminology should have been so needlessly weakened by a narrow and dogmatic position in regard to psychiatry. . . In any event, Dr. Schlapp has marked out the general path along which the newer criminology must proceed, and his work will be regarded as a landmark in the history of the literature of criminology." H. E. Barnes

+ — New Repub 56:sup219 O 10 '28 480w

"I have never seen a book on this or any other serious subject that was so readable, so perfectly organized and eloquently written." L: Sherwin

+ N Y Evening Post p5 Ag 4 '28 980w

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly

N Y Times p7 My 20 '28 1500w

"The work is one which should be widely read for the light it throws on a recognized cause of human abnormalities. Because of its general excellence the reader may well forgive the too confident statements which appear at times." A. H. MacCormick

+ Sat R of Lit 5:298 O 27 '28 450w

SCHMALHAUSEN, SAMUEL DANIEL. Why we misbehave. 313p $3 Macaulay

131 Sex (psychology). Psychoanalysis. Psychology, Pathological 28-20540

The book is a discussion of the workings of human nature and of the problem of sex as it affects human behavior, emphasizing the importance of the contribution of psychiatry and of the mental hygiene movement. "My proposition is," writes Dr Schmalhausen, "that a truly adequate and therefore profound history of life will be written only when such pervasive forces as fear, love, vanity, (let us add anger, envy, hate) will be taken account of as the universal normal determinants of abnormal behavior."

Boston Transcript p2 S 26 '28 700w

"Among the influences making for civilization and decency in the United States must be ranked the work of the group whose activities centre around the Modern Quarterly, under the leadership of V. F. Calverton and Samuel D. Schmalhausen. The pair and their coadjutors may readily be accorded the first place among those Americans devoted to popularizing the newer trends in the investigation and discussion of sex problems. They are frank and earnest apostles of the movement to divorce sex entirely from its present religious and conventional controls, and they deal with it solely from the standpoint of the dictates of biology, psychology, sociology and aesthetics." H. E. Barnes

+ N Y World p7m S 9 '28 980w

"The author's brilliant analysis of the feeling of Shame and its relation to our present 'moral' problems is perhaps the most significant contribution to educational psychology since Adler's theory of inferiority and compensation." A. E. Hamilton

+ Portland Evening News p13 O 24 '28 530w

"The volume contains two books, not one. The second makes some interesting contributions to the attitudes towards sex by way of a questionnaire, and discusses with some insight and more overstatement the province of mental hygiene. Despite this compensation the general attitude toward the book will be one of disgusted protest. There is after all something else in life besides sex. There won't be if the advocates of misbehaviorism have their way."

— + Sat R of Lit 5:167 S 29 '28 700w

"It is to be hoped that the marked strides towards a dignified thorough understanding of psychoanalysis in this country will make the intelligent less and less tolerant of sensational 'philosophical' orations on life problems." Dorian Feigenbaum, M.D.

— Survey 61:512 Ja 15 '29 300w

SCHMECKEBIER, LAURENCE FREDERICK. Office of Indian affairs. (Inst. for government research. Service monographs of the U.S. government) 591p il $3 Johns Hopkins

353.3 United States. Office of Indian affairs. Indians of North America—Government relations 27-25414

History of the activities, organization, and personnel of the Office of Indian affairs, including an extensive bibliography.

"Dr. Schmeckebier is a political scientist long engaged in research and publication for various branches of the federal government. His monograph is a useful compendium of information on our Indian policy and on the organization and work of the Office of Indian Affairs. There is a chapter on the history of our military and political relations with the Indians which is not mere historical whitewashing, an appendix collecting federal legislation dealing with the Indians, and an extensive bibliography. There is much material here on the development of an institution."

+ Am J Soc 34:408 S '28 80w

"The book covers, with great completeness, the history, organization, and activities of this office, but does not go into all the controversial questions. Chapter II of the book will prove especially useful to students of governmental functions."

+ Am Pol Sci R 22:482 My '28 50w

Booklist 24:270 Ap '28

SCHMIDT, FRANZ. Hangman's diary; being the journal of the [author], public executioner of Nuremberg, 1573-1617; ed. with an introd. by Albrecht Keller and tr. by C. Calvert, and A. W. Grunner; with an introd. essay by C. Calvert. 250p il $3.50 Appleton [10s 6d P. Allan]

343 Crime and criminals. Criminal procedure. Executions and executioners

The book contains, besides a translation of the diary of Franz Schmidt, hangman of Nuremberg, an introductory article by Mr Calvert, the English translator, on criminal procedure in Germany during the Middle ages, and a brief introduction to the diary itself by Albrecht Keller, the editor.

"One cannot avoid laying down this book with a sense of relief. A good part of it is gruesome. To a highly sensitive nature, it will, no doubt, be revolting. And yet there is a certain naivete in Master Franz's writings that holds one's interest in the face of their depressing subject matter. He writes in a vigorous style, like the swordsmanship he was called upon to display in his calling. He looked upon his occupation as a boon to his fellow citizens—he was ridding them of individuals better out of the way." C. E. G.

Boston Transcript p7 N 14 '28 320w

New Statesman 31:supxvi My 19 '28 250w

"It is a record of unpleasant crimes, unpleasantly punished—a dry, unemotional list of beheadings, hangings, and occasionally drownings, and executions on the wheel. Historically, as showing the methods of dealing with criminals and the manner in which the punishment was made to fit the crime, it has considerable interest. Occasionally, too, an emotion of one kind or another is roused in the reader." W. R. Brooks

Outlook 150:918 O 3 '28 210w

SCHNEIDER, ISIDOR. Temptation of Anthony; a novel in verse, and other poems. 141p $2 Boni & Liveright

811 28-12440

The long narrative poem which gives its title to the book was included in the first American Caravan, and attracted wide and favorable notice. It is the story of an atheist in revolt against the bigotry of his village neighbors.

"With the publication of The Temptation of Anthony, Isidor Schneider emerges from the forest of obscure literary figures, as a poet of great power."

+ Bookm 67:xviii Jl '28 250w

"Occasionally, the elaboration of his metaphors or the overcrowded succinctness of his phrasing keep a poem from making its full impact. But there can be no question of the authenticity of the poet's genius. The world is its pasture. It will be our good fortune to watch it feed." Babette Deutsch

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 Je 3 '28 1150w

SCHNEIDER, ISIDOR—Continued

"Critics hailed 'The Temptation of Anthony' when it appeared like a nugget in the somewhat crude ore of 'The American Caravan.' They will hail again, now that it is polished and set off in a smaller book accompanied by a number of Schneider's shorter poems. These latter hold to a rather high level of individuality, as lyrics go in recent times." S. V. V. W.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 9 '28 500w

"His long title-piece like the shorter poems in the volume, is rich with energy and suggestion, though so heavily packed that it makes difficult going for the reader. The whole book, however, is the work of a deeply and strangely gifted mind."

+ Nation 127:sup379 O 10 '28 80w

"The poetry of Mr. Isidor Schneider presents violent contradictions. It is forceful, original, striking and unreal. The title poem in the present volume is a novel in verse, superficially modeled after the technique employed by Mr. Jeffers in 'Tamar' and 'Roan Stallion,' but there are many internal qualities in Mr. Schneider's work that stamp it as his own. The source of the originality lies in his descriptive passages which, in spite of verbal brilliance, clog his narrative and blind him to all human emotions other than his own." Horace Gregory

+ — New Repub 55:52 My 30 '28 520w

"Mr. Schneider has ideas, originality, vigor, range, inspiration—in fact, a good many attributes that many a lesser poet might well envy. But in the poem, 'Anthony,' as in the novel, 'Dr. Transit,' one can identify practically the same faults: self-conscious cleverness, excessive and confusing imagery and quantitative impression rather than disciplined selection of detail. This is why reading 'The Temptation of Anthony,' although well worth the time and effort, is needlessly irritating." Ruth Lechlitner

+ — N Y Evening Post p6 Je 9 '28 650w

Reviewed by G. B. Munson

N Y World p8m My 20 '28 160w

"We find his phrase often tortured, though his seeking for original expression is sometimes wildly fortunate . . . and his dialogue is unreal. In spite of these strictures it is incontestable that here is vigorous writing of epigrammatic originality, involving shrewd insight, deep irony." W: R. Benét

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:222 O 13 '28 250w

"Vigorous, unusual poetry; characters not always sufficiently individual, mayhap; but fresh, powerful imagery and a novel theme."

+ World Tomorrow 12:522 D '28 50w

SCHNITZLER, ARTHUR. Theresa; the chronicle of a woman's life. 460p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

28-23659

" 'Theresa,' a novel much longer than most of Schnitzler's recent books, is the story of a déclassée, of a woman who descended from suitors to lovers and climbed from the parlor to a room under the eaves, near the servants. Her mother had been a baroness and her father was an officer in the army, but after Lieutenant Fabiani went insane Theresa herself was left with neither money nor position. She thereupon took two steps which determined her whole life: she became the mistress of a young officer and she applied for work as a governess. Her life from that time was a long succession of lovers and pupils, complicated toward the end by troubles with her illegitimate son, who had grown into a thief."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

"One could write two reviews of this unpretentious novel. The first would be all praise —praise for its simplicity and straightforwardness, praise for the reality of all its characters, praise for the pitiless march of small events. The second review would present the same facts with a different interpretation: it would condemn the novel for being gray and monotonous; it would deplore the lack of dramatic or lyrical elements; it would suggest that the author is profoundly dispirited, tired of observing the human heart, tired of writing . . . Personally I waver between the two attitudes." Malcolm Cowley

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 O 7 '28 800w

Boston Transcript p4 N 10 '28 530w

"Competently written and yet withal thoroughly undistinguished." J. W. Krutch

— + Nation 127:523 N 14 '28 680w

"The book is realistic to a degree—that is, it is a model case-report on a governess qua sociological phenomenon. As we cannot believe that Herr Schnitzler has actually been a governess himself, we must at least grant that he is an extraordinarily careful investigator." T. S. Matthews

New Repub 56:308 O 31 '28 220w

"One regrets a little the loss of Schnitzler's old gift of lightness and could wish that it were present to temper the sobriety of his recent works. And yet perhaps the very dullness of his manner of recounting the life of Theresa is its chief merit; perhaps this is the most effective method of conveying the dullness, the sodden hopelessness of that life itself and of intimating that it is only one of many." Tess Slesinger

+ — N Y Evening Post p11 O 13 '28 750w

"It must be admitted that there is a curious lack of warmth and cumulative power in this novel. It is impossible not to admire the completeness of Schnitzler's understanding of his heroine and the deftness with which he traces out the exact parts played by heredity and environment in the formation of her character and the fashioning of her career. Yet when one has said that, one has said almost all. One never feels any great sympathy for Theresa." C. B. Chase

N Y Times p2 N 25 '28 880w

"Hardly an ordinary human emotion, a thought above the plane of mere animal existence, lightens this sombre narrative. A Zolaesque gloom pervades it, and yet the reader will find himself following the central character's sordid career with interest. Herr Schnitzler has again shown himself as an excellent exponent of the naturalistic technique." A. W. G. Randall

+ Sat R of Lit 4:1053 Jl 21 '28 600w

"Though there is hardly a scene or an element in the book not essentially sordid and depressing, used innumerable times in the realistic novels and plays of another epoch, the book as a whole achieves lightness of tone. This paradox is easily explained by Schnitzler's style and viewpoint. The reader is always an immense distance above Theresa and her affairs, looking down as if from some comfortable and insensible heaven upon the petty activities of mankind. How far removed we are —and yet how familiar it all seems!" Theodore Purdy, Jr.

Sat R of Lit 5:336 N 10 '28 800w

Reviewed by E. G. Seltzer

Survey 61:451 Ja 1 '29 680w

SCHOONMAKER, FRANK. Come with me through Belgium and Holland. (Traveler's ser.) 183p il $2 McBride

914.92 Netherlands—Description and travel. Belgium—Description and travel 28-12638

"While intended primarily for the traveler who must count his pennies carefully, the author also gives hints for the first class travelers. Hotel tips, routes, tables of train rates, inexpensive meals and other details which trouble the traveler are all taken up. This book has a number of illustrations and several maps."—Springf'd Republican

---

"His facts and figures are concisely presented and his traveling suggestions are the fruits of experience. The traveler in Holland and Belgium will find his advice intelligent as well as timely." Lisle Bell

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p9 Ag 19 '28 40w

"Besides the lure of the countries themselves, which Mr. Schoonmaker opens to us is a charm of narration making his travel-book delectably individual. His method is crystal clear. We always know exactly where we want to go, and exactly how much we need to spend."

+ Boston Transcript p7 My 26 '28 280w

Cleveland Open Shelf p121 N '28

"Written in a more informal and breezy style than the usual guide-book, Mr Schoonmaker's book nevertheless contains also much useful information."

+ Springf'd Republican p7f My 20 '28 110w

SCHOONMAKER, FRANK. Come with me through France. (Traveler's ser.) 239p il $2 McBride

914.4 France—Description and travel—Guide-books 28-15690

"This is the third volume in a series of enlightening and guiding books for travelers in Europe in which Mr. Schoonmaker has already written of Italy and Belgium. Mr. Schoonmaker divides the whole of the French Summer tour into a dozen or more sections, each of which embraces ground that can be easily covered in a few days from the same headquarters, and for each one he suggests itineraries and hotels for those who want all the luxuries they can find, for those who desire merely comfortable accommodations, and for those who are trying to make their Summer vacation as inexpensive as possible."—N Y Times

---

"A light-hearted little book indeed is this. And a practical one telling us enticingly what is best worth seeing, and the easiest and most economical way of seeing it."

+ Boston Transcript p5 Ag 29 '28 230w

"He writes pleasantly, and in all his advice, information and description there is never the suggestion of heaviness and fatigue that guide-books too often carry. There are many sketch maps and diagrams, and the endpapers present a useful 'graphic map' of Paris. The volume contains a very great deal of judiciously selected and varied information that has been well digested and carefully classified."

+ N Y Times p17 Jl 1 '28 330w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:495 O '28

St Louis 26:326 O '28

Springf'd Republican p7f Je 10 '28 350w

SCHREINER, OLIVE (MRS S. C. CRONWRIGHT-SCHREINER) (RALPH IRON, pseud.). Undine; with an introd. by S. C. Cronwright-Schreiner. 374p $2.50 Harper 29-694

Undine is the first novel of Olive Schreiner written when she was a young girl, the manuscript of which was entrusted to Havelock Ellis and not brought to light until after her death. Of this story of a lonely and misunderstood little girl, Olive Schreiner wrote to Ellis in 1884: "I ought to have burnt it long ago, but the biographical element in it made me soft to it."

"As an antiquarian relic of the Victorian heyday and a reminder of the youthful storm and stress which most artists and ordinary people have undergone, the book has interest and casual charm. For literary scientists or psychological observers who wish to trace the background of a remarkable woman it has both curiosity and conscious and unconscious revelations. But to publish it as a literary event more than fifty years after its writing and expect it to stand on its own feet as a novel, which Mr. Cronwright-Schreiner apparently intends, is unfair and a little absurd. As soon expect a little girl in crinoline and pantalettes to feel at home in the subway." Mary Ross

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 D 9 '28 900w

New Repub 57:254 Ja 16 '29 150w

"Undine remains a remarkable sort of book for a young girl to have written. Some forty-eight years have not robbed her story of its bloom." Edwin Seaver

+ N Y Evening Post p11m D 8 '28 150w

SCHREPFER, FRANK ANDREW. Hardy evergreens. 127p il $1.25 Judd

715 Evergreens. Trees. Shrubs. Landscape gardening 28-13924

"A practical handbook on the planting, growth and management of all hardy evergreens, exclusive of the broad-leaved species."—Subtitle

---

Booklist 25:19 O '28

"Mr. Schrepfer is discreet in his enthusiasms. With his advice the suburban gardener has no excuse for going astray."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p21 Je 3 '28 100w

SCHROEDER, THEODORE ALBERT. Al Smith, the pope, and the presidency; a sober discussion of the church-state issue. 212p $2.50 The author, 18 E. 10th st., N. Y.

282 Smith, Alfred Emanuel. Church and state. Roman Catholic church in the United States 28-8056

"Mr. Schroeder is strongly of the opinion that Americanism and Catholicism are mutually incompatible. In a series of chapters he rehearses the historic instances of conflict between church and state and the classic assertions of the supremacy of church over state. This is Gov. Smith's 'limbo of defunct controversies.' Then follows, occupying most of the book, a detailed analysis of Gov. Smith's reply to the Marshall letter, showing that it does not answer the questions that were asked and that it lacks that quality of straightforwardness for which many have praised it."—Christian Century

---

Christian Century 45:382 Mr 22 '28 100w

"Under the guise of great respect for the Governor and of a desire to be fair to him, Mr. Schroeder's book is, in effect, one long attack upon the Governor as a Catholic."

N Y Times p7 Je 17 '28 130w

St Louis 26:273 S '28

Reviewed by Leon Whipple

Survey 60:558 S 1 '28 150w

SCHRUMPF-PIERRON, PIERRE. Tobacco & physical efficiency; a digest of clinical data; with annotated bibliography; preface by Henri Vaquez; pub. under the auspices of the Committee to study the tobacco problem; with a foreword by Alexander Lambert. 134p $1.85 Hoeber

613.84 Tobacco—Physiological effect 27-23775

A concise summary of the results of scientific experimentation on the effect of tobacco on the body is followed by an annotated bibliography of the subject from which the material for the book has been gathered, and an index. The author is professor of clinical medicine, University of Cairo.

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:206 Ap '28

"Dr. Pierron has assembled a good deal of evidence that is of doubtful value and has overlooked one or two important pieces of research; but his work will still be valuable, especially to the many reformers who are not so scientific as he. It may help, also, to stimulate research in a subject that cries aloud for investigation." J. R. E.

+ — Survey 60:127 Ap 15 '28 140w

SCHUBERT, FRANZ PETER. Letters, and other writings; ed. by Otto Erich Deutsch; and tr. by Venetia Savile; with a foreword by Ernest Newman. 143p $3 Knopf [6s Faber & G.]

B or 92

These are simple and, with a few exceptions, brief letters, the first one written when Schubert was fifteen years old, the last a few days before the end of his pitifully short life. A few extracts from his diary are included and a short allegorical story.

SCHUBERT, F. P:—Continued

Boston Transcript p4 D 29 '28 130w

"The book will be valuable to those who think it necessary to know a man's life in order to understand his music; but Schubert's life is the music itself. He found no other means of expression."

Nation and Ath 44:sup236 N 10 '28 60w

New Statesman 32:293 D 8 '28 70w

"The letters are very living, responsive to all beauty, often wistful, always intensely interesting."

+ N Y Times p24 D 9 '28 420w

"Miss Savile's translation of Schubert's scanty letters and other writings is accurate and in excellent English. The letters themselves have not the intrinsic interest which makes such good reading of the correspondence of Beethoven or Mozart. They go to confirm the accepted view of the composer's character and of his relations with his friends." Dyneley Hussey

+ Sat R 146:654 N 17 '28 130w

SCHUCHERT, CHARLES, and LE VENE, CLARA MAE. Earth and its rhythms. 409p il $4 (15s) Appleton

550 Geology 27-22334

"Scientifically accurate exposition of the science of geology for the layman. Considerable attention to historical geology."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

Booklist 24:237 Mr '28

"Two very excellent features are the remarkably clear, concise, and non-technical statement of the principles of organic evolution and its geologic and paleontologic evidences, and the fact that less than a dozen of the drawings and photographs are from non-American localities. Altogether the book is one with which the geologist can meet the frequent inquiries for a general, cultural reader." F. A. Burt

+ J Geol 36:186 F '28 200w

N Y Times p21 My 13 '28 400w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:23 Ja '28

"There are 385 pages of exceedingly readable text, and an excellent index. The book is profusely illustrated, the majority of the photographs showing scenes in North America. Some are of very recent geologic events. The diagrams preserve a simplicity which adds immensely to their effectiveness." C: P. Berkey

+ Sat R of Lit 4:534 Ja 21 '28 380w

Springf'd Republican p10 Ap 6 '28 450w

"The book is well and pleasantly written, and the many illustrations include some interesting reconstructions of extinct animals."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p67 Ja 26 '28 60w

Wis Lib Bul 24:53 F '28

SCHUMAN, FREDERICK LEWIS. American policy toward Russia since 1917; a study of diplomatic history, international law, and public opinion. 399p $3.75 Int. pub.

327.47 Russia—Foreign relations—United States. United States—Foreign relations—Russia 28-20123

The book is a history of Russian-American relations since the Revolution and a critical analysis of the grounds upon which diplomatic recognition of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics is withheld by the government of the United States.

"Ably written and well-documented volume." E. N.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ag 11 '28 850w

"Dr. Schuman's book is more than a partisan plea for assumption of diplomatic relations. It is a dependable chronicle of the events of the last 11 years in the field of Russo-American relationships, and even those who cannot agree with the author's conclusions will welcome his straightforward narrative of events." L: R. Miller

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 S 5 '28 1250w

"Although American policy toward Russia represents the most extraordinary combination of wavering contradiction and obstinate inconsistency that the modern world affords, Dr. Schuman tells the story unflinchingly and impartially. With his facts there is little opportunity to quarrel. Every important assertion in his book is carried back in the notes to the best authority available, and the bibliography is very remarkably complete. As a piece of workmanship the book is a model. The work will not have to be done again." R. M. Lovett

+ New Repub 56:23 Ag 22 '28 2000w

SCHUMANN, CLARA JOSEPHINE (WIECK) (MRS ROBERT SCHUMANN), and BRAHMS, JOHANNES. Letters, 1853-1896; ed. by Berthold Litzmann. 2v 299;310p $12 Longmans [36s E. Arnold]

B or 92 28-5993

"The letters of a very young composer to a brilliant pianist some fourteen years his senior. Neither Brahms nor Clara Schumann wrote outstanding letters. These contain, besides musical affairs, the usual trivialities, scraps of news, discussions of immediate plans, that give old letters their depressing flavour of remote activity. The translator has done wisely to abridge the exhaustive German collection and so reduce unnecessary bulk. For the most part they are products, rather than proofs, of a friendship lasting over forty years."—Nation and Ath

Booklist 24:320 My '28

Reviewed by P: Bowdoin

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 Ap 1 '28 1200w

Reviewed by Sylva Norman

Nation and Ath 42:624 Ja 21 '28 420w

"It is not too much to say of Clara Schumann that she was a perfect woman and an ideal wife, and that this correspondence is a witness to one of the finest friendships that ever existed between a man and a woman."

+ New Statesman 30:359 D 24 '27 920w

"The letters themselves will, of course, delight all fanciers of Brahms and the Schumanns, and the lay reader who does not ask for thrills will enjoy a glimpse into the lives and—if the sentimentality be pardoned—the souls of two high-minded musicians. As a chronicle of a human relationship, the letters, which unlike many missives composed by musicians, were written with no idea of future publication, are highly agreeable reading." R. A. Simon

+ N Y Evening Post p13 Mr 3 '28 960w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:217 Ap '28

"As literature, the anonymous translation reads very well; but some reviser with an adequate knowledge of musical terminology should have noticed such solecisms as 'three-quarter time,' the Serenades 'in D sharp' and (on another page) 'in A sharp,' and 'system' for the line of a page of music."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p923 D 8 '27 880w

SCOGGINS, CHARLES ELBERT. White Fox. 170p $1.75 Bobbs

28-5564

Lew, the old prospector of an earlier Scoggins story, narrates another in his picturesque vernacular. He tells how White Fox, the last of the Aztecs, plays the part of Montezuma in a moving picture of old Mexico, and how he is vamped by Dolores, the leading lady. The story ends on a rather tragic note of disillusionment in New York City, where White Fox goes for the opening of the picture.

Reviewed by L. M. Field
Bookm 67:332 My '28 70w

"Opinions are likely to vary about the narrator, one Don Luis, who combines occasional raciness and even beauty of vernacular phrase with a curious stiffness. 'White Fox' is unusual and sometimes thrilling." Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 F 26 '28 90w

Cleveland Open Shelf p67 My '28

"The story is simple and the language is Lew's. It is heartily recommended for its vitality, its picturesque vividness and its pervasive humor." R. C. B. Brown
+ N Y Evening Post p12 F 25 '28 300w

"It is a long distance from Tezcuco to Broadway, but Mr. Scoggins has linked them together in a spirited, thoughtful and beautifully written romance."
+ N Y Times p13 Mr 4 '28 460w
Sat R of Lit 4:724 Mr 31 '28 200w

SCOON, ROBERT MAXWELL. Greek philosophy before Plato. 342p $3.50 Princeton univ. press [16s Milford]

180 Philosophy, Ancient 28-24039

"Professor Scoon's work divides itself into a longer first part, in which the salient tenets of the various philosophers from Thales to the Atomists are reviewed chronologically, and a shorter second part in which cross-sections are taken with a view to establishing the course of developments which make a departure from the principle of direct lineal succession."—Times [London] Lit Sup

"Professor Scoon has given us some useful hypotheses and interesting hints. And any book which does that much for so difficult a field as early Greek philosophy has its importance for all students of the subject." S. P. Lamprecht
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 Ag 12 '28 1100w

"A fruitful idea regarding philosophy—that of examining its early history as a means of discovering its significance—has been well worked out in this book." E. N.
+ Boston Transcript p1 My 5 '28 500w

"It is pleasant to find, in the highly debatable and conjectural field which the author has selected, a union of respect for tradition with originality in presentation; and there is humour as well as modesty in the manner in which, speaking of his estimate of the specifically Socratic (i.e., non-Platonic) contributions to philosophy, Professor Scoon observes that 'he has no new theory to propound and that his view can lay claim at the most to common sense, in whose name many serene stupidities are perpetrated.' Such enormities are however, in point of fact, absent; and the chapter on Socrates is among the most valuable in the book."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p700 O 4 '28 980w

SCOTT, ELEANOR. War among ladies. 303p $3.50 Little [7s 6d Benn]

28-17208

"War among ladies" tells the story of the inner life of an English girl's high school among a group of teachers who are growing old and whose lives are set in an unnatural relationship to each other. The battle rages round the incompetent and superannuated French mistress who, in spite of the humiliation she suffers, hangs on to her position, rather than resign and forfeit her pension.

Booklist 25:30 O '28

"A hard, bitter, unsparing book, which makes excellent use of unpromising material. . . The tension of the book is almost intolerable, the atmosphere is suffocating. Miss Scott is, at times, too frankly the propagandist, but nevertheless she has produced a novel of unusual vigor." E. H. Walton
+ Bookm 68:97 S '28 150w

"Only an artist could make us know her unprepossessing heroine so profoundly that our hearts are wrung by her fate. And only a writer with true dramatic instinct would make the heroine of the book also its villain." A. B. Parsons
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 Jl 22 '28 1100w

"An exceedingly clever piece of writing."
+ Boston Transcript p4 Ag 1 '28 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p122 N '28

"Her novel is unusually interesting. I do not know if the indictment of the Secondary Education is fair: it is certainly made with terrific conviction. Every line of the book seems to be the fruit of bitter personal experience." Raymond Mortimer
Nation and Ath 43:80 Ap 21 '28 220w

"The love interest is a little commonplace, and the occasional use of the first person breaks the thread of the story. The book is well written, but the style is deliberately not noticeable; most people will be amused and harrowed by the glimpse of this unfamiliar world and impressed by the author's sympathy and fairness." Cyril Connolly
New Statesman 31:17 Ap 14 '28 920w

" 'War Among Ladies' will probably be assailed as an unnecessarily realistic picture of what many teachers have to endure by the large group of readers whose refrain is, 'It may be true, but why write about such unpleasant things?' It is a strong book, not a cheery one."
N Y Times p7 Jl 15 '28 550w

Reviewed by Mary Shirley
Outlook 149:595 Ag 8 '28 180w

"It is a vigorous piece of work, and holds one fascinated from first to last. When she leaves the objects of her detestation, notably in the love-story of her heroine, she loses grip and tends to become conventional. But this very seldom happens." L. P. Hartley
+ — Sat R 145:471 Ap 14 '28 270w

Reviewed by Gladys Graham
Sat R of Lit 5:464 D 8 '28 130w
Springf'd Republican p12 N 9 '28 700w
Times [London] Lit Sup p332 My 3 '28 330w

SCOTT, HUGH LENOX. Some memories of a soldier. 673p il $5 Century

B or 92 28-13504

For more than forty years General Scott has served in the United States army, first on the western plains in Indian expeditions, then in the Spanish-American war and the regeneration of Cuba, and then as governor of the Sulu archipelago in the Philippines. He was superintendent and commandant of West Point from 1906 to 1910 and the last years of his active service were in the war department during the World war, where as chief of staff he strongly urged the country to preparedness and conscription.

"In some ways the narrative is unique, for while alive with those personal descriptions and anecdotes which constitute one of the chief lures of autobiography, it also throws light on many problems, national and international, in whose solution statesmen and politicians are still deeply concerned." Edmund Noble
+ Boston Transcript p3 Je 2 '28 1750w

"Admirable traits stand out clearly in all General Scott's dealings with Indians and Filipinos—his kindliness, sympathy, consideration and tact. His autobiography, packed with incidents and contacts, is the simply written record of a long and honorable authority." R. C. B. Brown
+ N Y Evening Post p6 Je 9 '28 360w

"These memoirs are so well worth while that neither soldier nor civilian should miss them. They contain pictures of the old army that will endure." H: E. Armstrong
+ N Y Times p17 Je 3 '28 1900w

Reviewed by E. C. Beckwith
N Y World p7m Je 17 '28 160w

SCOTT, H. L.—Continued

"All in all a brilliant and characteristically American autobiography."

+ R of Rs 78:adv27 Jl '28 100w

SCOTT, WILL. Shadows. 303p $2 Macrae Smith co.

28-2806

It was a week end party at Tinker's Revel, an old English estate just inherited by Philip Nash. Suddenly things began to happen—bells were rung when no one touched them, footsteps were heard and the person could not be found, and a limping man was seen sneaking around in the shrubbery but could not be caught. In the midst of the excitement the great Disher arrived and he, eventually, solved all the tangles.

"Disher is competent, amusing and original in his methods and the author supplies him with a succession of interlocking riddles worthy of his mettle. Not to speak of love in quantities." Will Cuppy

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 F 5 '28 150w

Boston Transcript p4 F 15 '28 400w

Times [London] Lit Sup p273 Ap 12 '28 130w

SCOTT, MRS WINIFRED MARY (WATSON) (PAMELA WYNNE, pseud.). Mademoiselle Dahlia. 316p $2 Doubleday, Doran [3s 6d P. Allan]

28-21587

A frilly story of life and love, poverty and riches, in France and India.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 N 11 '28 180w

"Of its own sentimental and melodramatic kind, the story is pleasantly effective."

Spec 140:692 My 5 '28 120w

SCRIBNER, GRACE. American pilgrimage; portions of [her] letters; sel. and arr. by Winifred L. Chappell; foreword by Harry F. Ward. 89p il 50c Vanguard press

B or 92 27-18923

"Miss Scribner, a self-denying social worker, was ironically the victim of an automobile driven recklessly by a self-indulgent son of fortune; and the record of her life and thoughts, as embodied in her correspondence, proved her to have been a high-minded and reflective person, capable of feeling deeply, of expressing herself beautifully, and of probing profoundly and seriously into the fundamentals of life."—Bookm

---

Reviewed by S. A. Coblentz

Bookm 66:693 F '28 80w

"There is nothing particularly arresting in her career, but there is a note of genuineness in her letters—an unself-conscious expression of her reactions to the tangled disorder of contemporary life—which fully justifies their publication."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 D 18 '27 90w

World Tomorrow 11:89 F '28 20w

SCULLARD, HERBERT HAYES. Ethics of the Gospel, and the ethics of nature; with a preface by A. E. Garvie. 267p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [10s 6d S. C. M.]

171.1 Christian ethics. Ethics 28-18413

This deeply thoughtful study of the ethics of the New Testament maintains the superiority of Christian ethics to an ethic which is merely philosophical or one that is based on natural sciences.

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr

Christian Century 45:1076 S 6 '28 430w

"The work impresses us as an unusually thoughtful but not very well proportioned discussion. An analysis or an index would have added to its usefulness."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p795 N 3 '27 150w

"There is much here to interest the student of the history of ethics, and though few will endorse all Dr. Scullard's judgments they will appreciate them as a result of wide reading and careful thought. We can only regret that the scheme of the book did not allow a proportionate treatment of the ethical teaching of the medieval Church; for, in spite of what some will judge to be its perversity, this memorial volume of an independent thinker in ethics is a serious contribution to the study of the subject. There is an index of scripture passages and of proper names."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p896 D 1 '27 530w

SEABURY, DAVID. Growing into life; a magna charta of youth. 715p $5 Boni & Liveright

136.7 Adolescence. Mental physiology and hygiene. Youth. Neuroses. Child study

28-10968

"Writing as an expert in psychology and with command of the pertinent medical lore, Mr. Seabury passes in review the various tendencies of the time that have come in to disturb the relations of the young to their families and to society at large. An account is given of those neuroses which, showing themselves in a variety of abnormal states, complicate the problems of parental care on the one hand and that of social care on the other. And under the heading of 'preventive psychology' this expert sets forth the ways by which the ills the youthful mind is heir to may be avoided or cured. The book is rich in suggestions based on actual experience in dealing with such ailments and aberrations as those described."—Boston Transcript

---

Booklist 24:382 Jl '28

"A noble book, filled with wisdom and steeped in sympathy." Alexander Goldenweiser

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 Jl 22 '28 1050w

"This challenging volume, written in entertaining style and packed with useful information, works havoc with inherited ideas of the complete subordination of children to their parents and is sure to furnish new ammunition for the 'revolt of youth' movement." E. N.

+ Boston Transcript p3 My 5 '28 550w

"On the whole a book well worth reading, but with its subject matter so presented that it is to be feared that its legitimate audience will forever remain inaccessible." J: E. Lind

+ — Nation 127:92 Jl 25 '28 500w

"As regards substance—though there is far too much of it—this is a very good book; as regards presentation it is a very bad one. The immoderate repetitiousness, the ridiculous diagrams and lists of virtues and vices, the slovenly style and bad grammar do really fade into insignificance before the author's manifest insight into human nature and needs, his penetration into motives and aims, his remarkable combination of detachment and sympathy in the observation of numberless cases, and of faith with common sense in his principles of treatment. His intuitive judgments are often uncannily accurate." D. B. Woolsey

+ — New Repub 55:103 Je 13 '28 370w

Reviewed by M. J. Adler

N Y Evening Post p8 Je 30 '28 700w

N Y Times p2 O 7 '28 950w

"We wish that in Mr. Seabury's book there were less heat in proportion to the light. The author frankly admits a 'burning, partisan emotion for the rights of youth.' But, assuming that youth is in need of self-appointed adult defenders, a burning partisan emotion is hardly the mood for enlightening parents on a difficult and intricate subject. The book is also too long." L. J. P.

— Outlook 149:153 My 23 '28 450w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:436 O '28
St Louis 26:271 S '28

Reviewed by Joseph Jastrow
Sat R of Lit 5:68 Ag 25 '28 1000w

"Dr Seabury sanctions the cause of youth in a highly sympathetic manner, with considerable sense of the dramatic and an abundance which permits of judicious skipping." Jeanette Regensburg
+ Survey 61:47 O 1 '28 200w

SEARS, LOUIS MARTIN. History of American foreign relations. 648p $3.50 Crowell

327.73 United States—Foreign relations
27-17341

For descriptive note see Annual for 1927.

Reviewed by J. M. Callahan
Am Hist R 33:448 Ja '28 500w
Am Pol Sci R 22:487 My '28 530w

"This excellent book of Dr. Sears meets a long-standing need in the literature of American foreign policy."
+ Ann Am Acad 135:184 Ja '28 120w

"It appears to be comprehensive and well-balanced, and, though packed with facts, it quite fails to rise to the level of dullness which is usually considered requisite in American text-books. It is obviously the work of a liberal, and like all the products of the modern American school of historians is entirely free from spread-eagleism." F. H. Underhill
+ Canadian Hist R 8:324 D '27 250w

"A plain narrative written from a thorough knowledge of the vast literature which has grown up on the subject of America, and with truly admirable impartiality and balance of judgment."
+ Nation and Ath 42:860 Mr 10 '28 140w

"One of the ablest and best-informed surveys of American foreign policy that has appeared of recent years. His thorough familiarity with all phases of our diplomatic history, from pre-Revolutionary times down to the post-Wilson era, combines with a sense of perspective and a nice moral balance to make his book as entertaining as it is informative."
+ N Y Times p11 Ja 8 '28 420w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:252 My '28

"The book is interestingly written, but it is not always conspicuously lucid. The reader is sometimes left to infer what happened instead of being told, and the exact provisions of treaties are not usually indicated with clearness and precision. These defects, however, do not prevent the book from being of considerable value as a guide to the history of American diplomacy."
+ — Sat R 145:196 F 18 '28 900w

"Important and excellently written. Its temper is beyond reproach. While writing strictly as an American, he never fails to be fair to Britain. It is a pleasure to welcome such a book, for every sensible person admits that patriotism which is based on untruthful partisanship is not for honest men."
+ Spec 140:sup379 Mr 10 '28 80w
Times [London] Lit Sup p262 Ap 12 '28 1150w
Wis Lib Bul 24:86 Mr '28

SEAVER, HENRY LATIMER. Great revolt in Castile; a study of the comunero movement of 1520-1521. 393p il $5 Houghton

946 Castile—History. Spain—History—House of Austria, 1516-1700. Charles V, emperor of Germany
28-23577

The author, associate professor in the English and history department, Massachusetts institute of technology, gives a detailed and scholarly account of the revolt of the comuneros in Castile in 1520, involving Toledo, Salamanca, Segovia and other cities.

"The volume is for the student of history rather than the general reader, but it also offers entertainment to any Hispanophile." Herschel Brickell
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p29 N 25 '28 70w
R of Rs 78:adv36 N '28 20w

SEDGWICK, HENRY DWIGHT. La Fayette. 433p $5 Bobbs

B or 92 Lafayette, Marie Joseph Paul Roch Yves Gilbert de Motier, marquis de 28-9567

Mr Sedgwick's life of La Fayette is as far removed as possible from Delteil's unconventional biography. It is a restrained and impartial chronicle which follows the established authorities and confines itself chiefly to the three great episodes of La Fayette's career: his adventurous youth in America; his attempt to establish in France the principles of liberty and equality which he had learned from Washington and the other leaders in the cause of American independence; and the revolution of 1830.

Booklist 24:401 Jl '28

Reviewed by F. H. Winterburn
Bookm 67:585 Jl '28 180w

Reviewed by R. T. House
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Je 17 '28 1100w

"Mr. Sedgwick has done a great deal of work and learned a great deal about Lafayette. With more critical discrimination he might have written a splendid biography. Even so, his work is a paragon compared to M. Delteil's." L: R. Gottschalk
+ — Nation 127:17 Jl 4 '28 350w

"The book has many excellent qualities: it is capable, sympathetic, thorough; it gives evidence of more than the usual preparation; it is written in an agreeable and unobtrusive style. . . We have recently been taught to distinguish between Literature properly speaking and the literature of information. Mr. Sedgwick's 'La Fayette' belongs to the second category." Malcolm Cowley
— + New Repub 56:132 S 19 '28 270w

"Mr. Sedgwick has been as impartial as a biographer with a gallant, nobly-motived hero, who took himself on occasion more seriously than his natural gifts warranted, can be." F. H. M.
+ N Y Evening Post p5 Ag 18 '28 110w

Reviewed by H: L. Stuart
N Y Times p3 My 18 '28 900w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 225:adv Je '28 50w

"His book has a musty odor, but it is useful. It is useful, not only for those who wish to know the story of Lafayette, but for those who wish to know the story of his times. Such a life as Lafayette's, such times as his, call for a livelier pen than Mr. Sedgwick's. But we must not be unmindful of the service which is fulfilled by even a pedestrian relation of facts." Harry Salpeter
— + Outlook 149:316 Je 20 '28 280w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:407 Jl '28
Pratt p41 autumn '28
R of Rs 78:adv27 Jl '28 80w

"It is a sterling narrative of an active, eager enthusiastic life crowded with adventure and romance." W: MacDonald
+ Sat R of Lit 4:905 My 26 '28 550w
Springf'd Republican p6 Je 18 '28 750w

SEGUR, LOUIS PHILIPPE DE, comte de. Memoirs and anecdotes; tr. by Gerard Shelley. 286p il $3.50 Scribner [15s Hamilton]

B or 92 France—History—1789-1900. France—Foreign relations—Russia
28-30622

Besides the engaging quality of the memoirs and the picture contained in them of eighteenth century France there is added interest to the American reader in the reminiscences of French enthusiasm for the revolution by one who was a close friend of the youthful Lafayette, and who just missed embarking with him in the American cause.

SEGUR, L: P. DE—Continued

"Louis-Philippe de Ségur was the most interesting member of a remarkable family. His 'Mémoires, Souvenirs et Anecdotes,' first published in 1824 in three volumes, are reliable, illuminating and amusing. But it would have been better if the American reader had been warned that he has before him not the 'Mémoires,' but a few extracts only. And it is thoroughly unfortunate that the clear and skillful eighteenth century French of the original has been so botched and bungled by the translator. Louis-Philippe de Ségur was a distinguished literary artist as well as an able diplomat, statesman and soldier, but the reader of this translation will scarcely suspect it." R. T. House

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 S 16 '28 1200w

Boston Transcript p4 S 15 '28 400w

Reviewed by Francis Birrell

Nation and Ath 42:910 Mr 17 '28 150w

"The Count's intimacy with the French Court of Louis XVI., and the various diplomatic missions which he undertook, give to his pages a genuine historic value. We derive from them a real picture of Europe in the years preceding the French Revolution, a picture all the more real owing to the astuteness of his mind and the ease of his style."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:244 O 13 '28 280w

"Those of us who do not read French as easily as we should in the original, must thank Mr. Gerard Shelley for enabling us to add this fascinating volume to our list of delightful books."

+ Spec 140:198 F 11 '28 700w

"The personal anecdotes of this Frenchman are set down with a simplicity that is captivating. He really gives an intimate picture of the times. Whether it be a personal quarrel or a naval battle, a clear picture may always be obtained of the situation. The famous characters who are described seem, but for the different setting, as if they were alive in our own age."

+ Springf'd Republican p8 S 11 '28 320w

"Louis-Philipe de Ségur is a writer often quoted by historians of the French Revolution. He was clear-sighted and virtually without prejudices—two qualities which make him a valuable guide to opinion."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p169 Mr 8 '28 550w

SEGUR, NICOLAS. Opinions of Anatole France; auth. tr. with an introd. by J. Lewis May. 219p $3 Dodd [7s 6d Lane]

B or 92 France, Anatole 28-21179

M. Ségur has been an assiduous and faithful reporter of the conversations of Anatole France and in this new book he reveals the "master discoursing on the war, socialism, the cinema and Americans, love, spiritualism, and many other subjects."

"A work manifestly intended to present the master in as excellent a light as possible. At the same time it is a human book possessing a recognizable figure. The bawdry has been kept out of it. It is not as entertaining a volume as M. Brousson's, but it is instructive, for all that, and there is much that throws light on the cryptic, paradoxical and certainly inconsistent mentality of the master." Herbert Gorman

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p6 Ap 15 '28 330w

Boston Transcript p4 Jl 25 '28 230w

Dial 85:176 Ag '28 120w

Reviewed by Van Wyck Brooks

Ind 120:388 Ap 21 '28 1300w

Spec 140:sup465 Mr 24 '28 550w

SEGUR, PIERRE MARIE MAURICE HENRI, marquis de. Julie de Lespinasse; tr. from the French. 403p $5 Dutton

B or 92 Lespinasse, Julie Jeanne Eléonore de

The biography of a Frenchwoman of the eighteenth century, famous alike for her salon, her friendship with D'Alembert, and for the grande passion which was only discovered after her death when her letters to Guibert, her lover, were made public.

"Could she have chosen her biographer she could have found none better than the Marquis de Segur; he invests her story with her own wit, sympathy and elegance." Isabel Paterson

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 Mr 11 '28 1400w

"At a time when interest in the recreation of history, and especially French history, is so high, this book comes as a welcome addition, although it is too much to hope that its direct and honest biographical method—eminently successful as well—will be able to tone down its florid and imaginative style. Perhaps it is the saving grace of the biographer that he is no fine litterateur, and that we obtain our best impression of his subject not in his fancy but through his facts and their arrangement." S. V. V. W.

+ — Boston Transcript p1 Mr 10 '28 480w

Reviewed by F: H. Martens

N Y Evening Post p11 F 18 '28 600w

"A valuable contribution to the literary and social history of the closing years of the eighteenth century."

+ N Y Times p4 N 25 '28 720w

"To many, the greatest charm of the book will be found in the vivid portrait of Du Deffand, in the lively study of the Hume of the French salons whose 'outer man was far from brilliant,' but whose 'lofty spirit,' 'profound intellect' and 'eloquent conversation' sufficiently explain his popularity in the lightest and most brilliant of societies. That the popular Julie was not a philosopher or profound thinker is evident from her utter inability to appreciate the company she met at the Neckers. That the author has succeeded in painting a speaking portrait of her we are certain—a strangely unhappy woman who frowned on love too long and fell its victim." C. G. Bowers

+ N Y World p11m Mr 11 '28 480w

Reviewed by W. S. Hayward

Sat R of Lit 4:682 Mr 17 '28 450w

Springf'd Republican p10 Mr 29 '28 400w

SEGUR, PIERRE MARIE MAURICE HENRI, marquis de. Marie Antoinette. 313p il $5 Dutton [12s 6d Routledge]

B or 92 Marie Antoinette, consort of Louis XVI, king of France. France—History—Revolution 29-2920

Tho written evidently with sympathy for the unhappy queen of France, this study clearly reveals the failings in herself which contributed to her ill-fate, the tragic effect of her frivolities and extravagance and the unfortunate influences that surrounded her.

Boston Transcript p4 S 15 '28 800w

"The story is told with dramatic intensity and with a most sympathetic art of portraiture by the Marquis de Ségur in a book which, if it does not promise to become standard, nevertheless holds a most appealing and abiding charm." Van Wyck Brooks

+ Ind 121:332 O 6 '28 1050w

"M. de Ségur was a conscientious and widely read historian. But this is the last book he wrote, and shows some of the signs of old age. He, curiously enough, seems unduly prejudiced against the Ancien Régime. . . Otherwise he writes with considerable charm and perception, and tells once more the story that never grows tedious of a woman whose expiation bore no possible relation to her offence." Francis Birrell

+ — Nation and Ath 42:364 D 3 '27 320w

"The Marquis de Ségur, great-grand-nephew of the historian of the Russian campaign, has retold the story in a very quiet and judicious style. He has written an impressive book."

+ New Statesman 30:supxvi D 3 '27 300w

"The book is a fluent, picturesque and moving narrative. The author's instinct for selection has led him to choose for description just such scenes as will recreate to best advantage not only his characters but their historical background."

+ Outlook 150:994 O 17 '28 320w

Sat R of Lit 5:195 O 6 '28 280w

"Miss Mary Caroline Watt has succeeded in a difficult undertaking, and has put Marie Antoinette into most pleasing English."

+ Spec 139:1020 D 3 '27 180w

Times [London] Lit Sup p963 D 15 '27 80w

SEIGNE, JOHN WILLIAM. Irish bogs; sport and country life in the Irish free state. 249p il $6 (15s) Longmans

799 Hunting—Ireland. Fishing. Game and game birds 28-21130

The author recalls pleasant days of cock and snipe shooting in Irish bogs, and of fishing in the lakes and rivers of the Irish free state. The illustrations are from photographs, of natural life, and of hunter and hounds or angler in action.

"Though they are undoubtedly 'wet enough to give a snipe neuralgia,' Irish bogs according to this author, are ground that no sportsman can afford to overlook. . . This is a book calculated to give an acute attack of nostalgia to those with native taste for 'a nice soft day.' "

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 N 25 '28 250w

"His book, besides being a pleasant account of experiences over many years, is intended as a guide to sport in the Irish Free State."

+ New Statesman 32:58 O 20 '28 50w

"Irish Bogs should persuade many sportsmen to come to Ireland, and those who know it already will love to compare notes mentally with the author. It is a sportsman's book, a practical guide by one who lives in the Free State and knows all about it. The admirable illustrations which accompany the letter-press increase the value of the book to anyone who loves nature."

Spec 141:554 O 20 '28 300w

"There is none of the baldness so often associated with books of this sort. Mr. Seigne always writes neatly and with humour, and at times with real charm."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p681 S 27 '28 600w

SEITZ, DON CARLOS. The "also rans"; great men who missed making the presidential goal. 356p il $3.50 Crowell

923 United States—Biography. United States—Politics and government 28-7781

Biographical sketches of eighteen men who ran for the presidency and were defeated. Contents: Introduction; Our presidents; Aaron Burr; William H. Crawford; John C. Calhoun; Henry Clay; Lewis Cass; Daniel Webster; Winfield Scott; John C. Fremont; Stephen A. Douglas; William H. Seward; George B. McClellan; Horatio Seymour; Horace Greeley; Samuel J. Tilden; Winfield Scott Hancock; James G. Blaine; Benjamin F. Butler; William Jennings Bryan; Index.

Booklist 24:401 Jl '28

Reviewed by Eugene Lohrke

Bookm 67:436 Je '28 220w

"Mr. Seitz's entertaining sketches of the men who failed to 'make the grade' might well be read in connection with Viscount Bryce's famous chapter on why great men are not chosen Presidents. . . His lively narrative, interspersed with a wealth of incident and anecdote, ranges about over pretty much the whole field of American politics." W: MacDonald

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 Ap 22 '28 720w

"Mr. Seitz, curiously enough, writes best of matters of which he has no personal knowledge. When he is forced back to history and to sources, he gives exceedingly readable and generally reliable sketches. His Webster is excellent, for instance, and his anecdotes, if not altogether new, are not those which are the most familiar. . . But when Mr. Seitz gets down into the campaigns in which he took part, he is too sure of himself. He is often irresponsible and unreliable as to details." S. L. C.

+ — Boston Transcript p4 Ap 11 '28 920w

Christian Century 45:606 My 10 '28 90w

Cleveland Open Shelf p104 S '28

"A narrative so fascinating that I couldn't lay the book down until I had quite finished it."

+ Educ R 76:73 S '28 280w

Ind 120:356 Ap 14 '28 120w

Reviewed by C: W. Thompson

N Y Times p7 Ap 29 '28 1650w

"Mr. Seitz is not always so careful of his details as he might be, but these slight inaccuracies do little to mar the interest of a good book, which makes an especial appeal in the midst of a Presidential year."

+ No Am 225:adv My '28 80w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:345 Je '28

Pratt p38 autumn '28

R of Rs 77:adv10 My '28 60w

Reviewed by R. J. Davis

Sat R of Lit 5:168 S 29 '28 200w

Springf'd Republican p10 Je 19 '28 500w

Reviewed by Nels Anderson

Survey 61:41 O 1 '28 100w

Wis Lib Bul 24:161 My '28

SEITZ, DON CARLOS. James Gordon Bennetts; father and son; proprietors of the New York Herald. 405p il $5 Bobbs

B or 92 Bennett, James Gordon, 1795-1872. Bennett, James Gordon, 1841-1918. New York herald 28-28880

James Gordon Bennett, father and son, ruled the New York Herald for eighty-three years, "the longest newspaper dynasty we Americans have known." The personalities of these two extraordinary men and the exploits of the Herald during its long history afford material for an absorbing story.

"Mr. Seitz has gathered his material from original sources. The book is richly annotated with extracts from 'The Herald' files; it is indexed and it makes, therefore, a valuable historical document as well as a fascinating tale. With his lives of Joseph Pulitzer and of Horace Greeley, previously published, it rounds out a trilogy of works on the history of American journalism in the last century of uncommon interest to every student of our national life." W: M. Houghton

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 N 18 '28 900w

Reviewed by I. W. Lawrence

Boston Transcript p4 D 22 '28 1400w

"Mr. Seitz leaves much to be desired in this, the first serious attempt at a critical biography of the Bennetts. He has drawn heavily on 'Memoirs of James Gordon Bennett and His Times,' written in 1855 by a journalist named Isaac C. Pray, whom Bennett paid for the service." C. F. Thompson

— + N Y Evening Post p9m N 24 '28 800w

"As a piece of biographical workmanship, the Seitz work is thoroughly acceptable. His style shows an advance in simplicity and flowing quality. Judgment of the two Bennetts comes through him rather than from him. The tone

SEITZ, D. C.—Continued
is uniformly literary throughout. The author has taken full advantage of the insight into a newspaper life gained through his long association with The World without allowing it to sway him to one side or the other in his judicious observations of the records of the two men." A. S. Will

+ N Y Times p9 N 25 '28 1550w

Outlook 150:1372 D 19 '28 30w

"He has a true flair for interesting and important historical episodes and personalities and writes with simplicity and directness."

+ Springf'd Republican p6e D 16 '28 730w

SELDES, GILBERT VIVIAN. The stammering century. 414p il $5 Day

917.3 Reformers. United States—Biography. Fanaticism. Nineteenth century 28-22704

"This book is not a record of the major events in American history during the nineteenth century. It is concerned with minor movements, with the cults and manias of that period. Its personages are fanatics, and radicals, and mountebanks. Its intention is to connect these secondary movements and figures with the primary forces of the century, and to supply a background in American history for the cults and manias of our own time: the Prohibitionists and Pentecostalist; the diet-faddists, and dealers in mail-order Personality; the play-censors, and Fundamentalists, and Point Loma theosophists; the free-lovers and eugenists; the cranks and, possibly, the saints. Sects, cults, manias, movements, fads, religious excitements, and the relation of each of these to the others and to the orderly progress of America in the past hundred years, are the subject matter."—Preface

Booklist 25:115 D '28

"He has performed a genuine service in his book. Reading it one seems to be looking at American life in a distorting mirror. The devilish part of it is that one is not." J. T. Adams

+ Bookm 68:356 N '28 630w

"The virtue of the book is that it temperately describes strange people and bizarre movements with an acute discernment as to human character and a stimulating range of observation." Constance Rourke

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 D 9 '28 1350w

"After reading Mr. Seldes's latest book, in which he writes with fascination and wisdom of the eccentricity and fanaticism, the sects, cults, fads, manias and strange and amazing personalities of the nineteenth century, one begins to understand more definitely the real background for the undeniable bigotry on the one hand and the equally persistent radicalism on the other hand of the America of today. It is Mr. Seldes's avowed task to explain through minor channels of American thought the reason for prohibition, censorship, and all similar phenomena of the present generation. In carrying out his intention Mr. Seldes succeeds magnificently." K: Schriftgiesser

+ Boston Transcript p2 S 15 '28 2100w

"His opening chapter is beplastered with platitudinous and pretentious history, sociology, and psychology. His final chapter is touched by the fine philosophic exaltation of a school principal giving an assembly talk on Arbor Day. The thinking is inconsequential, the writing is generally dull, and the puns are simply horrendous. If Mr. Mencken lets this book get by him it will be because Mr. Seldes—despite an apparently sincere desire to win a commission in the rising army of revolt against Menckenism—is dealing here with typical Mercury material—the idiocies of American life. Considered in this light, 'The Stammering Century' is less titillating than the books of Messrs. Werner, Asbury, and Merz." Herbert Solow

— Nation 127:297 S 26 '28 750w

"He does not sneer or gibe even at the scarecrow exhibits of his collection; and toward the more gracious types among them, Bronson Alcott and Adin Ballon, he shows a certain tenderness. After all, these men were artists in human life, according to a modern definition of Art—they were making the world a different place in which to live." R. M. Lovett

+ New Repub 56:129 S 19 '28 1300w

"'The Stammering Century' is an inviting book, an informative and suggestive one, and it is done with a verve and gusto that make it agreeable to read and easy to believe. One must be grateful to Mr. Seldes also for not interpreting his characters according to Freud." Joseph Collins

+ N Y Evening Post p9m O 20 '28 1900w

Reviewed by C: W. Thompson
N Y Times p3 S 16 '28 2150w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 226:adv N '28 100w

Outlook 150:1331 D 12 '28 780w

Reviewed by Woodbridge Riley
Sat R of Lit 5:455 D 8 '28 1050w

"The book is an important one. It is very readable and it is stimulating. Scholars have largely neglected this stream of thought, and they should be grateful that so talented and clever a journalist as Mr Seldes has turned their eyes to these fascinating if minor eddies." Merle Curti

+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 11 '28 1300w

World Tomorrow 12:520 D '28 180w

SELEKMAN, BEN MORRIS. Postponing strikes. 405p $2.50 Russell Sage foundation

331.89 Strikes and lockouts. Arbitration, Industrial 27-24230

A discussion of the Industrial disputes investigation act of Canada, its mode of operation, its administration, and the attitude of Canadian labor toward the Act. The author is a well known writer on labor matters.

Reviewed by B. M. Squires
Am Econ R 18:315 Je '28 1000w

Reviewed by J. T. Young
Ann Am Acad 136:177 Mr '28 580w

Booklist 24:235 Mr '28

Reviewed by G. E. Jackson
Canadian Hist R 9:180 Je 28 950w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:254 My '28

Times [London] Lit Sup p31 Ja 12 '28 160w

Reviewed by A. J. Muste
World Tomorrow 11:132 Mr '28 720w

Reviewed by W. J. Couper
Yale R n s 18:406 winter '29 200w

SELIGMAN, EDWIN ROBERT ANDERSON. Economics of instalment selling; a study in consumers' credit, with special reference to the automobile. 2v 979p ea $4 (32s) Harper

658.883 Instalment plan. Credit. Automobile industry and trade—Finance 27-24759

"In volume one he first traces the historical background of instalment credit and summarizes the extent to which such credit is employed today. In this connection he shows pretty conclusively that the total volume of all instalment sales of consumption goods is less than is generally supposed. The second half of the first volume, labeled analytical, is devoted to an attempt to show the real significance of instalment selling in modern economic life. Volume two contains seven appendices, each of which deals with some aspect of instalment selling. These appendices were for the most part prepared by Professor Seligman's younger colleagues and are admirable studies in themselves."—Hist Outlook

Reviewed by E. C. Hughes
Am J Soc 34:398 S '28 250w

Reviewed by W. C. Plummer
Ann Am Acad 137:269 My '28 620w

Booklist 24:237 Mr '28

"The volumes not only tell us all that is to be known about instalment selling in America, but also give us a most interesting picture of the economic life of the country, and a store of stimulating theory, practically applied to the new conditions that are now being worked out."

+ Economist 106:44 Ja 14 '28 1350w

"The leading scholarly statement on the subject that has been produced. The book builds up a complete history of the movement, and goes in detail into the methods employed at the present time." J. H. Perkins

+ Harvard Business R 6:367 Ap '28 1000w

"Professor Seligman has appraised with remarkable fullness and clarity an aspect of what may well be termed the second or twentieth-century industrial revolution."

+ Hist Outlook 19:139 Mr '28 130w

"All who examine this study will hope that Professor Seligman and his associates, or other groups of scientific workers, may have further help from important industries in making additional studies to corroborate or modify the conclusions which have been arrived at in this excellent piece of investigation." H. R. Tosdal

+ Nation 126:493 Ap 25 '28 700w

"While Dr. Seligman's is the first comprehensive work on the subject, it is to be regretted that he did not consider one or two phases of the subject which are of particular interest to the general public. He has not developed as clearly as might be wished a moral code for instalment buying: he has left the purchaser without any definite ideas as to what goods can be bought this way with economic impunity and what cannot. He might also have included a discussion of the costs to the consumer of purchases made by the instalment route in comparison with those made by cash." Evans Clark

+ — N Y Times p11 Ja 15 '28 2050w

R of Rs 77:adv14 My '28 20w

"The reader may not be able to banish his doubts as completely as Prof Seligman has done. But he will find his time amply repaid and will recognize that here is the standard work on installment selling." R. S. M.

+ Springf'd Republican p7f Ja 22 '28 1500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p223 Mr 22 '28 70w

Wis Lib Bul 24:18 Ja '28

SELTZER, CHARLES ALDEN. Mystery range. 303p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Hodder & S.]

28-14826

Brazo was present when the army paymaster was shot, and altho he was not guilty, it seemed as tho he would be held. So Brazo fled and lived in the lonely cabin with Jim Henley until Jim died. When Jim's young sister came and difficulties beset her Brazo was very willing to stay.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 My 13 '28 100w

Boston Transcript p2 Je 27 '28 250w

Times [London] Lit Sup p618 Ag 30 '28 100w

SELTZER, LAWRENCE HOWARD. Financial history of the American automobile industry; a study of the ways in which the leading American producers of automobiles have met their capital requirements. (Hart, Schaffner & Marx prize essays) 297p $3 Houghton

658.14 Automobile industry and trade. Ford motor company, Detroit. General motors corporation. Corporations—Finance 28-13844

The phenomenal growth of the automobile industry within a short period of years has required enormous quantities of productive resources: buildings and equipment, materials and labor, capital to cover risks. How were all these requirements met? How was the astounding growth of the industry financed? The book gives the answer to these questions.

"He discusses in detail the development of the industry as a whole, gives a complete history of the General Motors Corporation and the Ford Motor Company, and sketches briefly the history of six other producers, and does it with such skill as to make an absorbing story." C. P. White

+ Ann Am Acad 139:218 S '28 450w

Booklist 25:59 N '28

"This Hart, Schaffner & Marx prize essay, a study of the way in which the leading American producers of automobiles have met their capital requirements, devotes scholarly sections to the development of the industry, the Ford Motor Company, The General Motors Corporation and other outstanding concerns before proceeding to an admirably conservative conclusion. Dr. Seltzer restrains any impulse to generalize broadly on the basis of his findings, which, however, reveal the importance of certain commonly unstressed aspects of capital mobility."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p27 S 9 '28 90w

R of Rs 78:adv29 Jl '28 180w

SENIOR, FRANCESCA DOROTHY PONSONBY. Life and times of Colley Cibber. 286p $5 Henkle [16s Constable]

B or 92 Cibber, Colley 29-164

"Miss Dorothy Senior tells Cibber's life in a pleasant and lively fashion. We are not only given a life of Cibber; Miss Senior has also written an anecdotal history of the English Stage in the early eighteenth century. Betterton, Mrs. Siddons, Garrick, and Peg Woffington all come into her narrative."—Spec

---

"It may be that one reason more people haven't written lives of Colley Cibber is that Colley did it pretty well himself. Dorothy Senior has not added greatly to that delightful though no doubt prejudiced record." W. P. Eaton

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p40 D 2 '28 180w

Boston Transcript p12 D 8 '28 350w

"Miss Senior has, beyond all question, made a pleasantly readable book out of Colley himself, his rather notorious children, the disreputable Theophilus and the impossible but not altogether disagreeable Charlotte; et quibusdam aliis—the 'others' in this case including a considerable variety of things and persons. The volume is in every way well got up and is handsomely illustrated." G: Saintsbury

+ Nation and Ath 43:651 Ag 18 '28 750w

"The book is interesting and almost crammed full of very good things. It shows many signs of real research. . . It has, however, some faults. It tells too much. . . The arrangement is not always straightforward and the book is often more like a rag-bag of ill-assorted facts than like a connected biography."

+ — New Statesman 31:486 Jl 21 '28 1000w

"Miss Senior's treatment of this mountebank is remarkably fair. In all justice, she gives him credit for being an alert opportunist, and, in all justice, she laughs at him for being ludicrous. In some cases Miss Senior shows too openly her likes and dislikes. Steele, whom she loves, is Dicky to her and Pope, whom she hates, a stinging wasp. But these are trivial flaws in a volume written wittily and vivaciously." V: A. Lemaitre

+ — N Y Evening Post p8m D 1 '28 600w

"Miss Senior's book is interestingly if not faultlessly written, and we learn, perhaps, rather more of the times than of the life of the hero of the 'Dunciad.' "

Sat R 145:838 Je 30 '28 1150w

Reviewed by Alan Porter

+ Spec 141:22 Jl 7 '28 780w

Theatre Arts Mo 13:77 Ja '29 180w

Times [London] Lit Sup p517 Jl 12 '28 680w

SENIOR, WILLIAM. Naval history in the law courts; a selection of old maritime cases. 114p $2.50 (6s) Longmans

347.7 Naval law 28-1389

These old maritime cases include a murder charge against Sir Francis Drake, and various acts of piracy, impressment, and slave running up to the nineteenth century. The law suits throw an oblique ray of light on the customs of the times in which they occurred.

"The stories are admirably told and make a most interesting volume."

+ Sat R 145:74 Ja 21 '28 180w

Times [London] Lit Sup p14 Ja 5 '28 400w

"SHI not before Evelyn May"; the log of a much traveled girl. 284p $2 Century [7s 6d H. Jenkins]

28-9275

Evelyn May travels abroad with her American father and her English mother. She is an observing child and confides with artless candor to her "log," much that her elders would be chagrined to read.

Boston Transcript p3 My 19 '28 530w

"For the most part the obnoxious child relies for her material on the rather vulgar 'back chat' that flows unceasingly between her parents as they move from one expensive hotel to another, commenting thereon in her own indiscreet manner, but there are one or two good things."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p793 N 3 '27 90w

SHAND, PHILIP MORTON. Book of food. 319p $4 Knopf [10s 6d J. Cape]

641 Food. Gastronomy [28-12723]

"Mr. Shand knows food in its infinite variety, animal, vegetable, mineral; simple and compound; knows it in its geographical and national variations, in or out of seasonings and sauces and what and when to drink with the food you eat. After writing about 'A Century of English Cooking,' with some harsh words for English cookery, 'Hand, Eye and Mouth,' 'The Psychology of the Principal Meals,' and 'Seasonings,' he talks about—his style does happen to be a civilized man's conversation—bread, hors-d'oeuvres, soup, entrees, fish, vegetables, meat, poultry and game, sweets, cheese and savories, dessert and, finally, beverages."—N Y World

Booklist 24:352 Je '28

Boston Transcript p6 Ap 28 '28 170w

J Home Econ 20:677 S '28 60w

"It is not his opinionation that makes his book rather unappetizing, or two or three passages designedly and inexcusably emetic. It is the failures of his colloquial efforts to be playful and charming—failures that sometimes result in a manner that might be called bubble-and-squeak." H. E. D.

— N Y Evening Post p12 Ja 28 '28 80w

"It is full of valuable information, bold truths, errors, daring heresies, perfect judgments and strange ignorances. Often he knows the truth, and, knowing, dares maintain. At other times he is full of errors, and at such times he should writhe with pain and die amid his worshipers—who are and of right ought to be numerous."

+ — N Y Times p5 F 12 '28 1150w

"It is an informative book and it is a charming book. It is zestfully written, flavored with wit, allusion and the happy expression of too human prejudices. Throughout the man communicates the feeling that he is glad to be alive, being a fortunate being, and happy to be writing about foods. His book has the charm of a collection of gracefully written essays and the solidity of a volume of information with its material sufficiently well organized for use as reference." Harry Salpeter

+ N Y World p10m Ja 22 '28 1150w

"This is a book for everyone who loves the art, whether as a creator or merely as a connoisseur." E: Shanks

+ Sat R 144:703 N 19 '27 1300w

Sat R of Lit 4:674 Mr 10 '28 50w

"This amusing book is not for the faddist or crank, but for him who has the capacity to enjoy a good meal and the diligence wherewith to pursue it."

+ Spec 139:1153 D 31 '27 130w

Spec 140:779 My 19 '28 170w

"His book has two great merits—the breadth of his survey and the sound judgment he exhibits in it. He leaves aside purely exotic delicacies, but there is otherwise no department of the table which he neglects; and if he rates parsnips too low and celery too high, well, there are differences of taste among the most accomplished gourmets of us all."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p866 N 24 '27 480w

SHAND, PHILIP MORTON. Book of French wines. 247p $3.50 (10s 6d) Knopf

663.2 Wine and wine making

This is "an extension or elaboration of Mr Shand's general book on wine" (Book Review Digest, 1926). Besides singing the joys of all the famous French wines, the author has also included a chapter on French brandies.

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

No Am 226:adv Ag '28 60w

Springf'd Republican p7f S 2 '28 120w

"Outside Portugal Mr. Shand is impeccable, and his account of vineyards and methods of manufacture is accurate and detailed. His preface contains matter of real importance."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p190 Mr 15 '28 140w

SHARP, DALLAS LORE. Better country. 277p $3 Houghton

917.8 West—Description and travel 28-7303

The Professor motors westward with his wife, to California in search of a "better country" of the spirit than the cloistered university home in the New England hills which he has known so long. He describes with quiet humor the adventures of the hegira, and the delights of the promised land. As for the better country—it waits him on his return.

Booklist 24:399 Jl '28

"This sentimental journey is just sentimental enough. As you follow this transcontinental pilgrim across the open spaces—from New England to California—you may find yourself chuckling with him over his misadventures, sharing in his delights and kindling to his enthusiasm. Even when his enthusiasm is slightly extravagant you are inclined to be indulgent."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 My 6 '28 180w

"Of all the adventures, Professor Sharp writes in characteristically happy fashion, weft of a love of nature, the shrewd yet always kindly philosophy his useful life has taught him, high ideals of true democracy, deliciously whimsical wit and humor." F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Mr 21 '28 750w

"A mind-resting and heart-warming book."

+ Christian Century 45:414 Mr 29 '28 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p90 Jl '28

"Any one who has read Mr. Sharp's previous books will know what a rich, savory, wholly delightful conglomerate he would make of an account of such a pilgrimage. On every page there is a little of everything likely to emanate from an observing, pondering mind stimulated by surroundings, changing landscapes, contacts with people, the thousand and one suggestions that set it upon a train of thought, to be followed for a few sentences and then turned to something else."

+ N Y Times p18 My 20 '28 500w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:412 Jl '28

Pratt p35 autumn '28

"The questing reader will browse far before finding a more enjoyable account of harmless adventure than is set down in this story of the search for 'The Better Country.'"

+ Springf'd Republican p7f My 6 '28 720w

Wis Lib Bul 24:161 My '28

SHARP, EVELYN. Here we go round; the story of the dance. (Beginning of things) 88p il $1 Morrow [2s 6d Howe]

793.3 Dancing—History 28-21052

"Beginning with a study of the Horn Dance which still takes place in the Staffordshire village of Abbot's Bromley every September, Miss Sharp traces the evolution of the dance from the cave-dwellers of the most ancient human race known to us in Europe to the modern ball-room, stage and village green."—Sat R

Reviewed by H. M. Parshley

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 N 18 '28 60w

"It is with the tradition, not the art, of the dance that the book is concerned, and any one interested in dancing, and therefore in that tradition, will find it a welcome and readable handbook. It possesses also a good bibliography."

N Y Times p25 N 18 '28 400w

"Much learning, both theoretical and practical, is fused in the crucible of her ingenious mind, and those who dance without knowing why or wherefore will derive both instruction and amusement from a study of these few but pleasant pages."

+ Sat R 145:400 Mr 31 '28 120w

Times [London] Lit Sup p359 My 10 '28 110w

SHARP, FRANK CHAPMAN. Ethics. (Century philosophy ser.) 566p $3.50 Century

170 Ethics 28-12181

The author, professor of philosophy in the University of Wisconsin, has written a text in ethical theory which is both reasonable and readable and which draws many illustrations from life and literature.

Boston Transcript p1 Je 30 '28 550w

"If the proof of the textbook is interest from the student, there is little hazard in the claim that Professor Sharp has written a good text for ethical instruction. Illustrations seem to grow indigenously out of every page, and it is very rare to discover a book devoted to principle rather than to practice which at the same time carries with it so unmistakable a tang of concreteness." T. V. Smith

+ J Philos 25:661 N 22 '28 1000w

Survey 61:247 N 15 '28 70w

SHAW, CHARLES GREEN. Low-down. 289p il $2.50 Holt

920 Biography 28-7766

Pet likes and dislikes of certain celebrities arranged as if answers to a questionnaire on personal idiosyncrasies. Cartoons by Peter Arno. The list includes Nathan and Mencken, Gershwin, Beebe, Anita Loos, Clarence Darrow, Deems Taylor, Ernest Boyd, Michael Strange, and Tex Rickard.

"Mr. Shaw treats all his sitters to the same smartly cosmopolitan analysis, gayly lopping off the features which do not seem to fit. It would be rather alarming if one really believed that these twenty-four Americans possess so many interchangeable parts."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 Jl 29 '28 200w

"Of as transitory value as are many of the sitters, the sketches provide entertainment for a casual hour. While, however, their worth as book material seems questionable, as long as they stay within the confines of The New Yorker they serve their purpose. On our own part we should prefer Dorothy Parker's book reviews bound in a neat volume. They would provide greater entertainment."

Boston Transcript p8 Ap 14 '28 150w

"All of them are smart, according to up-to-date, sophomoric ideals of smartness, superficial, glib, and, for the most part, inconsequential, although now and then a haphazard sounding has brought up a glimpse of something of real importance in his subject. Also, he seems not infrequently, to be laughing in his sleeve at his subject, or his reader, or both."

N Y Times p18 Ap 1 '28 220w

"In general the book is amusing, 'catchy' journalism."

Sat R of Lit 4:723 Mr 31 '28 300w

SHAW, CLEMENT. Letizia Bonaparte (Madame Mère). (Representative women) 176p $2 Viking press [3s 6d G. Howe]

B or 92 Bonaparte, Maria Letizia (Ramolino) 28-20527

A brief biography of the mother of Napoleon beginning with her early married life in Corsica. The style is dramatic and "except for the dialogue in the early sections, the remarks and statements quoted are believed to be those of Letizia Bonaparte or her children."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 N 4 '28 230w

Boston Transcript p7 O 6 '28 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p135 D '28

"It is an amusing book, but it is not biography or history; it is propaganda." Leonard Woolf

+ Nation and Ath 43:210 My 19 '28 130w

"Mr. Clement Shaw writes beautifully, at times brilliantly, not without something of the mannerism in which most readers discern the stamp of a personality, though some find it but an irritating affectation. In the mother of Napoleon he has found a subject which gives him plenty of scope to exercise his style and ingenuity. His picture of Corsica during Letizia's early married life is delightful, and he has successfully avoided the dangerous pitfall of allowing Napoleon, campaigns and all to preponderate in his mother's biography."

+ New Statesman 31:94 Ap 28 '28 170w

"The book presents in brief space—it can be read in an hour or so—so vivid a picture of the woman to whom her famous son owed so much and that picture illuminates so helpfully the enigma of the son that it is well worth reading."

+ N Y Times p12 S 9 '28 400w

"The whole book is a mélange of information, true and false, cemented together in the spuriously sprightly Ludwigian style. Its presentation in print is an enterprise of extremely doubtful value."

— Sat R of Lit 5:438 D 1 '28 180w

Times [London] Lit Sup p303 Ap 26 '28 1100w

SHAW, GEORGE BERNARD. Intelligent woman's guide to socialism and capitalism. 495p $4 Brentano's [15s Constable]

335 Socialism. Capitalism 28-14214

"The latest gospel, which is of course very old, is the gospel of economic equality. According to Mr. Shaw that is the meaning of Socialism. The first fourteen chapters of the book are devoted to the attempt to prove that Socialism in this sense of exact equality of income for everybody is the only practicable

SHAW, G: B.—Continued

solution of the problem of distribution. This is the fundamental article of his economic creed, which he here so persuasively expounds to the intelligent woman. The whole argument turns on equality but the greater part of the book is taken up with the means to this end, of which nationalization of most things from coal mining to banking is the chief."—Sat R

Booklist 25:12 O '28

Reviewed by Rebecca West

Bookm 67:513 Jl '28 4500w

"I am persuaded that we have here no eternal monument and beacon light, but rather the socialist case restated in a form which, for all its brilliance, still manages to be frequently dull in its total effect, which contributes few new ideas either critical or constructive, and which, while it may well appeal to intelligent women to-day, can hardly hold the undivided attention of the generations yet unborn." Stuart Chase

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 Je 17 '28 3000w

Reviewed by Addison Cowles

Boston Transcript p2 Je 23 '28 1200w

Reviewed by E. F. Edgett

Boston Transcript p5 Jl 21 '28 600w

"The result of his clarity and his thoroughness is that he has written practically a political history of modern English life and a Utopia at the same time. He has made plain the entire complicated system of modern life—even to the business of how stocks and bonds are sold and inflated and depressed (which a rare woman, and almost as few men, really understand). For the first time in your life, probably, the way that the English parliaments work is made clear. And to those who never heard of political economy its tenets are stated with such simplicity that even a sub-intelligent person can understand them." Fanny Butcher

+ Chicago Daily Tribune p13 Je 2 '28 1150w

"Shaw's socio-political treatise is a fine illustration of the simplicity of great writing. The profundities of social and political thought are related to the experience and the problems of an average householder with great literary skill and charm." Reinhold Niebuhr

+ Christian Century 45:952 Ag 2 '28 800w

"He retains throughout, his wit, his adroit aplomb, and his sanguine, nineteenth-century reasonableness."

+ Dial 85:266 S '28 60w

Reviewed by Ernest Boyd

Ind 120:604 Je 23 '28 1200w

Reviewed by C. D. Burns

Int J Ethics 39:109 O '28 800w

"No great idea emerges at any point, but the book does help us to understand many of the puzzling surface manifestations of our time. There is nothing deep, difficult, or depressing in what the author has to say—nothing in the grand manner. At the most he raises the question of whether modern civilization will congeal and decay as other civilizations have done, or whether it can give birth to a finer world than we have ever seen before."

+ Living Age 334:1113 Jl '28 600w

"Whether this book is a fair statement of the socialist position, whether it is sound economics and political good sense, may be matter for argument. I think it is all that, with some minor reservations and disagreements. Of this I am certain: it is sound literature. Considered as writing, as an example of the art of exposition, it is the finest thing on its subject and pertinent subjects since Morris's 'News from Nowhere,' and in content, of course, it is far richer and more modern. It is clearer than any of the German authorities from Marx down (I know them only in English translation), clear as the lens of a telescope." J: Macy

+ — Nation 126:695 Je 20 '28 1300w

"The Intelligent Woman will need to possess considerable pertinacity and skill in the art of reading: for though she will not be called upon to puzzle over a single really difficult intellectual problem or a single ill-written sentence, the texture of this enormous volume is so loose, its arrangement so haphazard, its rhetoric at times so deafening, that a mere man has had to lay it down at frequent intervals from sheer fatigue. Yet how superb, in its own kind, is Mr. Shaw's style! The most striking thing about this book is not that it contains much fine writing, but that it should have been written at all—that this man who can delight and dazzle multitudes should have poured so much of the strength of his declining years into this monumental sermon. Most urgently in its pages he claims, as he has always claimed, to be taken seriously as an economist and political scientist. And the question is, how seriously can we bring ourselves to take him?" D. H. Robertson

+ — Nation and Ath 43:300 Je 2 '28 1150w

" 'The Intelligent Woman's Guide' is, I think, the last great Fabian tract: with it, a whole epoch is wound in tape, sealed, and docketed. Let us swallow our disappointment and be thankful for this summary. If the book means less as a living impulse than we had hoped, it will count for more as an historical document." L: Mumford

New Repub 55:177 Jl 4 '28 2100w

Reviewed by S. K. Ratcliffe

New Statesman 31:292 Je 9 '28 1700w

"This highly pernicious volume reveals no sign that Mr. Shaw's powers are failing, although he is now seventy-two; it is extremely readable and often amusing; it constantly flatters the Intelligent Woman to whom it is addressed. But it is also so wordy and rambling that it is best read, no doubt, in installments. There is a 'Foreword for American Readers.' " Montgomery Belgion

— + N Y Evening Post p8 Je 23 '28 1700w

"Mr. Shaw has written a textbook on socialism that, for all its heterodoxy, will take first rank. But it is a textbook in the root meaning of the word—a book of texts—rather than in its modern connotation. Nothing could be further from the text-book manner of today than Mr. Shaw. He is not trying to impart information, cut up and dried for safekeeping in little numbered paragraphs. He is trying to save souls: a much more personal business in spite of all the economics." Evans Clark

+ N Y Times p1 Je 10 '28 2650w

"It is Shaw the Preacher telling the world that Socialism of the Fabian variety is the panacea for the world's ills; that equality of income will make us all happy and contented. It is also Shaw the wit, the publicist, the ironist, the shrewdly intelligent thinker, commenting in typical vein upon nearly every topic under the shining sun. . . There is a tremendous lot of entertainment in the book, page after page of delightful reading." Herschel Brickell

+ No Am 226:adv Ag '28 250w

Outlook 149:396 Jl 4 '28 420w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:448 O '28

Pratt p12 autumn '28

Sat R 145:701 Je 2 '28 1400w

Reviewed by H. J. Laski

Sat R of Lit 4:981 Je 23 '28 1900w

"His book is full of illumination. And when counsel is completetly darkened, he at least has made a suggestion, has presented an idea which by slow processes is capable of realization. One can but make comments on his book; it needs a volume for adequate discussion. Why, oh why, does he torture the eyes of his intelligent readers with a page of print so dense that often about six words run together in a strange compound?"

+ — Spec 140:837 Je 2 '28 980w

Springf'd Republican p7f Jl 1 '28 900w

"It is extraordinarily clear and readable (provided you take it in broken doses); and a monumental simplification of the social view of national wealth." Leon Whipple

+ Survey 60:483 Ag '28 1250w

Wis Lib Bul 24:249 O '28

Reviewed by J. W. Hughan
World Tomorrow 12:41 Ja '29 780w

SHAY, FRANK, ed. Fifty more contemporary one-act plays. (Appleton dramatic anthologies) 510p $5 Appleton

808.2 Drama—Collections 28-3719

This collection of one-act plays by American and foreign authors will be useful for the little theater. The first collection "Fifty contemporary one-act plays" appeared in 1921.

Booklist 24:317 My '28

Reviewed by Glenn Hughes
Bookm 67:592 Jl '28 120w

"If it lacks the wide and often wild variety and color of the first volume, it is certainly a significant commentary on the current fortunes of the one-act play. Most of the other plays in the collection are stamped with the year 1928, and they represent so much small talk for small people in 'Little Theaters.'"
— Boston Transcript p7 Ap 14 '28 230w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:296 My '28

Reviewed by Jane Dransfield
Sat R of Lit 4:913 My 26 '28 600w

Wis Lib Bul 24:124 Ap '28

SHEA, PATRICK F. Accident prevention through education in the elementary schools; a manual for teachers and pupils; safety program under the supervision of John J. McBride and Michael E. Fitzgerald. 86p 68c Heath

614.8 Accidents—Prevention 28-13565

"A brief manual for instruction of children." Pittsburgh Mo Bul

---

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:627 D '28

SHEAHAN, HENRY BESTON (HENRY B. BESTON, pseud.). Outermost house. 222p il $3 Doubleday, Doran

917.449 Cape Cod. Birds—Cape Cod 28-23978

For a whole year Mr Beston lived alone in a snug two-roomed cottage at Eastham on Cape Cod and recorded the life of the sea and land in that vicinity, with most of his emphasis on birds and the changing seasons.

"His book is written with simplicity, sympathy and beauty." Arthur Warner
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 O 28 '28 730w

"[The author] has treated his sojourn on the Cape with love and respect. He has spread before his readers a pageant of nature, a colorful and everchanging chronicle of movement that approaches the magnificent."
+ Boston Transcript p7 N 3 '28 180w

"Mr. Beston sees his birds and his waves and even his human companions with an eye for significant detail. He knows the shore birds really well and his descriptions of their habits are clear and full of life. But even here he fails somehow to convey the delightful and comic mannerisms of the sandpiper tribes as they run and teeter and cock an inquiring eye; or to transmit the high-pitched conversational clatter that descends from a flock of wheeling terns. I finished 'The Outermost House' with a final question lurking in my mind: Did its author ever act and feel or did he only look and wonder?" Freda Kirchwey
+ — Nation 127:522 N 14 '28 850w

Reviewed by J. B. Atkinson
N Y Times p5 D 9 '28 560w

SHEEAN, VINCENT. New Persia. 333p il $2.50 Century

915.5 Persia—Politics and government. Persia—Foreign relations. Persia—Economic conditions 27-23831

These chapters describe the situation in Persia since 1921: the rise of Reza Shah Pahlavi, the appointment of the American financial administration and its work of reorganization, the policy of Great Britain and of Russia touching Persia, Persian internal affairs, and present day social conditions in the country. The material is reprinted from Asia magazine.

Booklist 24:245 Mr '28

"A frank, uncompromising, and extraordinarily intelligent account of events so contemporary as to be meaningless and chaotic to the average newspaper reader."
Bookm 67:xvii Je '28 320w

"Mr. Sheean has performed a very real service for Persia by describing present conditions without allowing himself to be forced into either the British or Russian camps and without succumbing to that hero worship of the strong man which is to-day so prevalent. If the scope of his book is limited by the brevity of his visit to Persia, preventing him from gaining that direct knowledge of the people which gave such fascinating point to Major Forbes-Leith's 'Checkmate,' it has the advantage of a fresh and unprejudiced point of view." F. R. Dulles
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Ja 8 '28 330w

"After reading this book, no one will gainsay the judgment. It is to be regretted that no index has been provided in this work; such a useful survey of modern Persia should have this convenience." K. P. Kirkwood
+ — New Repub 53:251 Ja 18 '28 360w

"Mr. Vincent Sheean's account of the country, appearing at this time, is invaluable. His book was needed and it could scarcely have been a book better fitted to meet the need." P. W. Wilson
+ N Y Times p11 Mr 18 '28 950w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 225:adv Ja '28 90w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:229 Ap '28

Reviewed by M. F. Labaree
Sat R of Lit 4:632 F 25 '28 260w

Wis Lib Bul 24:124 Ap '28

SHEEHAN, MURRAY. Eden. 304p $2 Dutton

28-971

A retelling of the story of the Garden in which Lilith appears as the personification of God's idea—instantly repudiated by Him—of some opposition in the world to Himself and His plans, and in which Cain, conceived in the pleasance of Eden, is the natural antithesis of Abel, child of the austere years. Cain is mothered by a she-goat. Abel kills it for a sacrifice and is slain in reprisal. Cain is driven forth to his endless quest of Eden. This, which is designed to save him from the smugness of Adam and Eve, is misinterpreted by them as his punishment.

Booklist 24:323 My '28

Reviewed by L. M. Field
Bookm 67:114 Mr '28 90w

"Murray Sheehan has written the story of Eden. Yes, I have read Mr. Erskine's 'Adam and Eve.' And in the face of all possible opposition I declare 'Eden' to be the book I would rather remember." Elizabeth Sanderson
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Ja 22 '28 850w

Boston Transcript p4 Ja 25 '28 1150w

"Mr. Sheehan has produced a story of such poetry, insight, and charm that his version seems both more real and more beautiful than any of the others. His is no superficial satire, but a dramatic tale told with a delicate humor and fine irony. Altogether, 'Eden' is the most skillfully written book on this theme we have met."
+ Ind 120:93 Ja 28 '28 250w

Reviewed by T. S. Matthews
New Repub 53:280 Ja 25 '28 160w

SHEEHAN, MURRAY—Continued

"His interpretations are brand new. But then, so are his 'facts.' Had his book been intended fancifully this would have been all right, but that he had any such intention seems highly doubtful. In particular, is his conception of Cain as the shepherd and Abel as the tiller of the soil a fruit of the 'many years of the most concentrated work' which he is said to have spent on the novel?" T. S.

N Y Evening Post p12 Ja 28 '28 100w

"Murray Sheehan has handled the Garden of Eden legend with simplicity, understanding and dignity. The maturity of his novel on so difficult a theme is as astonishing as the result is satisfying and welcome."

+ N Y Times p9 Ja 22 '28 700w

"An entertaining satire upon parents and religion." Herschel Brickell

No Am 225:adv Mr '28 150w

"Mr. Sheehan tells his story in beautifully modulated prose. His interpretation is not without humor and subtlety, a humor and subtlety that never become strident. One may register an objection to the reiterated premise that a knowledge of good and evil is necessarily incompatible with a sense of beauty; one may detect certain illogicalities in the several rôles of Lilith; one may find the contribution of ideas somewhat meagerly proportioned to the length of the novel, and the style not always consonant with the theme. Nevertheless one must welcome work at once so full-bodied and so imaginative, so sincere and so graciously conceived." Grace Frank

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:569 F 4 '28 750w

"Clearness of style, humor and subtle characterization give this novel a charm of its own."

+ Springf'd Republican p7f Jl 8 '28 450w

SHELLABARGER, SAMUEL (JOHN ESTEVEN, pseud.). Chevalier Bayard; a study in fading chivalry. 391p il $4 Century

B or 92 Bayard, Pierre du Terrail, seigneur de 28-22151

This life of Chevalier Bayard, who has been held up to youth as the shining exemplar of the knightly tradition, portrays him as a man of large and generous heart, carrying into the tumult of the renaissance a chivalrous ideal, yet sharing the strength and weaknesses of his rough, light-hearted age.

"Mr. Shellabarger examines all the sources of the Bayard traditions and separates the legendary from the real and adds a good deal of acute and interesting discussion. One wishes he were not so conscious of modern notions and spent less time in justifying Bayard's ideals." Donald Douglas

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 S 30 '28 650w

Boston Transcript p2 N 17 '28 450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p135 D '28

Reviewed by S: Putnam

N Y Evening Post p10m D 8 '28 550w

"The book is gorgeous with descriptions of the period with which it deals. It is an excellent chronicle embellished with an excellent background, vivid with bright pictures of the pageantry of Renaissance courts, and horrible ones of the cruelty of the Italian wars. Some may find Shellabarger's style a little pedantic in the reflective passages of the book. We admire it and find his gift for firm comment as refreshing as his talent for felicitous phrase is charming."

+ Outlook 150:994 O 17 '28 350w

"The book of Dr Shellabarger is an excellent example of graceful and valuable scholarship. It is well-documented yet it possesses very considerable literary merit. In its pages we find a deep understanding and appreciation of the Middle Ages. The author presents a spirited and convincing defense of certain phases of medieval life."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:539 D 22 '28 320w

SHELLABARGER, SAMUEL (JOHN ESTEVEN, pseud.). Door of death. 283p $2 Century 28-22871

In a house built and furnished in renaissance style by Francis Ballion, modern descendant of the Baglioni, a powerful Borgia-like family once rulers of Perugia, its frail lovely mistress, Celia Ballion, dies, the first victim of the sinister forces at work in the house. Working upon an ingenious theory, Detective Rae Norse traces the source of the grüesome crimes and the forces that inspired them.

"In his commendable effort to achieve intense and thrilling atmospheric effects with an heredity-ridden and clew-laden house as background, the author of this novel has rather neglected surface credibility of incident and character, though that is no great crime as mystery goes. And though the machinery of terror creaks a bit the total effect is pleasantly horrid." Will Cuppy

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 O 14 '28 130w

Boston Transcript p3 N 3 '28 430w

N Y Times p30 N 11 '28 180w

Outlook 150:1175 N 14 '28 110w

SHENTON, EDWARD. Lean twilight. 291p $2 Scribner 28-24279

In her tender youth Camar O'Neil, a lonely and sensitive child, falls in love with Martin Grove. When she discovers that he is married the harm is already done: tho Camar can never have Martin the pattern for her lover is fixed in his mould. Her later affairs bring no abiding satisfaction. She moves from New Jersey to Chicago, from Chicago to Paris, always attracting men but never able to shake Martin's hold on her thoughts. She marries money and position and is active in war work when she meets Martin again. The story is told chiefly thru the thoughts that flow thru Camar's mind.

"Old as is the theme of frustration, used and misused again and again by superior and inferior hands, yet it is here so delicately and creatively handled as to have shed its wornness. That the book sings itself, unfolding in the haunting cadences of poetic prose, is perhaps one of the reasons."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 O 28 '28 380w

N Y Evening Post p8m N 17 '28 220w

"Mr. Shenton has a style which is distinctive. . . At times he is more than half the poet. His externals are recorded in impressions rather than definite descriptions. Nothing can be counted, but everything can be felt. The book is worth reading."

+ N Y Times p16 O 21 '28 580w

"An attempt to show the gradual narrowing and coarsening of an initially fine character which results from an evasion of reality. But fortunately the author himself has rather turned his back on reality, too, in allowing certain modern influences to undermine a really good method of presentation, evident in a former book. . . There was some splendid stuff in the former book, 'The Grey Beginning.' We don't care much about this one." W. R. Brooks

— Outlook 150:1214 N 21 '28 110w

SHENTON, HERBERT NEWHARD. Practical application of sociology; a study of the scope and purpose of applied sociology. 259p $3.50 Columbia univ. press [7s 6d Oxford]

301 Sociology 28-4387

"This commendably well-organized little book contains three sections, the first and most important of which is a study of the possible uses of sociology and the attempts which have been made to formulate 'applied' or 'practical' sociology. Section two describes the changing relationships between applied sociology and the fields of ethics, social science, social art, social economy, and social work. Part three deals with the task, function, scope and nature of applied sociology as a basis for 'societal engineering.' "—Ann Am Acad

---

"The opening chapters of this book are well written and thought-provoking. The later chapters are uneven and somewhat pedantic." F. N. House

Am J Soc 34:402 S '28 300w

Reviewed by W. W. Weaver

Ann Am Acad 138:195 Jl '28 100w

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 14 '28 500w

Nation 127:231 S 5 '28 350w

SHEPARD, ODELL, and HILLYER, ROBERT SILLIMAN, comps. Essays of today, 1926-1927. 392p $2.25 Century

814 American essays—Collections 28-11060

"A truly excellent collection of modern prose writings, representing wide variety in subject matter, style and point of view. Thomas Masson on Speech, common and preferred; Albert J. Nock on The decline of conversation; Stuart Chase on The dogma of 'business first'; Henry S. Canby on Traveling intelligently in America; Edgar Lee Masters on James Whitcomb Riley, are some of the selections."—Wis Lib Bul

---

Booklist 25:21 O '28

"Taken as a whole, these papers indicate a mood of restless dissent from the conditions of contemporary life; they possess a timeliness which in some degree militates against their literary permanence."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p13 Ag 12 '28 250w

"The collection as a whole is of considerable interest."

+ Dial 85:540 D '28 140w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:484 O '28

Wis Lib Bul 24:189 Je '28

SHEPHEARD-WALWYN, HUGH WALLWYN. Harmonies of nature. 242p il $3 Dodd [10s 6d S. Hamilton]

570.4 Nature. Adaptation (biology) 28-17147

Adaptations of plant and insect, animal and bird life are the subjects of these informal talks for nature lovers, called harmonies of nature—harmonies of scent, colour, touch and sound, etc. Illustrated from photographs by the author.

" 'The Harmonies of Nature' is good to read, and would be good if it were twice as long. The many photographs by the author are superb examples of nature's cleverness. The book, one of the results of a life of loving study, is a vacation in the quiet open air, an education and—a rest."

+ Boston Transcript p3 Ap 28 '28 330w

"Mr. Walwyn's apparently philosophical study seems to us an almost perfect example of how not to write a 'Nature book.' What is harder to bear than either pipings or guffaws is Mr. Walwyn's consistent patronage of Nature, the least pleasing of the many facets of anthropomorphising her."

— New Statesman 30:332 D 17 '27 650w

"His knowledge appears to be varied and thorough, and he is a careful photographer, but many of his statements are uncritical."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p822 N 10 '27 260w

SHEPHERD, NAN. Quarry wood. 283p $2.50 Dutton [7s 6d Constable]

28-23274

"Martha Ironside is the daughter of a ploughman who has married a woman with pretensions to gentility; she grows up with the sound of her mother's shrill bickering, punctuated now and then by a good-natured boom from her father, Geordie, always in her ears. After a good deal of domestic friction she goes to the university, where she falls in love with a student who is married to one of her friends. But Luke does not realize her as a creature of flesh and bone. To him she is all spirit; and Martha has to endure the torment of body without the consoling touch of a lover's hand. Finally she struggles through to serenity and a kind of stedfastness in life."—Times [London] Lit Sup

---

Reviewed by A. B. Parsons

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 S 30 '28 900w

Boston Transcript p2 S 12 '28 150w

New Repub 56:80 S 5 '28 200w

"Refreshing little book, Scotch in tone, in dialect, in manners. The writer, be she young, old or middle-aged, has done an artistic piece of work, and the warp and woof of the story are material of which she is sure. The Scotch speech gives the book much of its esprit. It is irresistible, being no threadbare collection of well-worn terms, but the real thing, racy, rich, genuine." Laura Benet

+ N Y Evening Post p5 S 1 '28 450w

"The novel is fairly interesting, and is well written, showing no small amount of sympathy and comprehension. Much of it is done in a Scotch so broad that the reader finds the glossary at the end decidedly useful."

N Y Times p28 S 23 '28 420w

"This book is an unusually good first novel. It bears none of the signs of inexperience."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p273 Ap 12 '28 180w

SHEPPARD, ALFRED TRESIDDER. Here comes an old sailor. 356p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Hodder & S.]

28-13164

One wintry night in the year 1217 Dom Vigilius of the Kentish Abbey of Reculver found a supposedly dead sailor on the shore near the abbey. Due to the medical knowledge of Dom Vigilius the "dead sailor" lived and told the story of his adventures. These adventures were written down and later read aloud to the monks, and in the discussions which ensued there was painted a lively picture of the monks themselves and the times in which they lived.

"As an historical novel, it is one of the best. As a masterpiece of fine writing, it is also one of the best. As a weird, colorful allegory, it is unsurpassed." C. K. H.

+ Boston Transcript p2 O 17 '28 500w

"Lacking the robustness of Kingsley's 'Westward Ho,' it possesses much of that novel's adventurous charm." Laura Benet

+ N Y Evening Post p9m O 20 '28 400w

" 'Here Comes an Old Sailor' is an uncommonly fine piece of work. Mr. Sheppard has a narrative style of distinction. He has taken his material from a rich and unhackneyed source—set it forth at a rapid pace and pictured his historical and legendary characters with unction, quite evidently a labor in which he rejoiced. The writer has wit and charm and the Heaven-sent gift of the born storyteller."

+ N Y Times p28 S 23 '28 850w

"Mr. Sheppard has written a thoroughly original and very charming book, to which added distinction is given by his gentle mysticism, his sensitiveness to spiritual issues, and his appreciation of the fact that even the thirteenth century had its 'modernists.' "

+ Spec 139:740 O 29 '27 150w

"The yarn is spun out rather long, and the poverty of love interest does not help the book considered as a novel. Nevertheless, such episodes as the visit of Christ with Peter and other Apostles to Mariner's house at the climax of his misfortunes, or the ultimate voyage in the spectral ship to the shore of heaven, have a depth of feeling that heals up all discrepancies."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p812 N 10 '27 580w

SHEPPARD, HUGH RICHARD LAWRIE. Impatience of a parson; a plea for the recovery of vital Christianity; with an introd. by E. D. Soper. 227p $2 Doubleday, Doran [3s 6d Hodder & S.]

261 Christianity. Church 28-6313

"Mr. Sheppard's book is concerned especially with the Anglican communion in England, and most of its pages are taken up with presentation and discussion of specific things which he thinks the Lambeth Conference—the ruling body of the Anglican Church—should do and say at its next session in 1930. But there are several chapters dealing with Christianity in general and the causes of his own discontent with the way it is going that help to illuminate the modern religious movement. He says that Christendom has been accepting the dogmas instead of the ethics of Christianity, that it is now the first duty of Christians 'to rethink our religion in terms of Jesus Christ.' "—N Y Times

---

Booklist 24:345 Je '28

"Important, candid, and profoundly melancholy book. Important, because it deals with living questions, not with dead controversies: sincere, because it makes no attempt to disguise the gravity of the situation; melancholy, because the Papa Angelicus whom the writer calls for is an ideal, not a real figure." A. F.

+ Nation and Ath 42:194 N 5 '27 760w

"Contains more high explosives than any other book ever written by a clergyman of the Church of England. It is an impetuous and prophetic book, written at white heat by a man who believes that Western civilization will go up in the smoke of another World War unless Christianity ceases to be a caricature of what Christ intended." H. W. Horwill

N Y Times p10 N 27 '27 190w

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly

N Y Times p10 D 18 '27 150w

"This book is one apart in its personal quality and note of urgency. It is one man's most unconventional and direct plea in an emergency. It has therefore an unstudied impetuosity of style and a breath-taking audacity of attack that single it out among contemporary voices." Amos Wilder

+ Outlook 148:316 F 22 '28 550w

"Most unequal book. By its transparent sincerity and the honesty of its 'impatience' it makes a real appeal. But we are first rather irritated by the length of the apologetics for what is coming, and by the incessant use of that contemporary catchword, 'values.' "

+ — Spec 139:776 N 5 '27 200w

"We are glad that this book has been written, and that it has been written by its author, for though it appears to us ill-balanced and deficient in constructive policy it may usefully remind not a few of those who are active in Church affairs and absorbed in its ever-increasing commissions, committees and councils that the Divine Kingdom does not come with observation, nor is it secured by careful policies or elaborate organizations."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p828 N 17 '27 340w

SHERIDAN, MRS CLARE CONSUELO (FREWEN). Naked truth (Eng title Nuda veritas). 383p il $5 Harper [21s T. Butterworth]

B or 92 28-11233

A life of as many moods and changes as Clare Sheridan's must rouse the interest of the reader. A childhood in the "upper circle" of London society, an improvident marriage for love, motherhood, widowhood, the discovery of her talent for sculpture and the career as journalist growing out of it, interviews with men and women of world note and the consequences on her life—these are high points in the story as Mrs Sheridan gives it, frankly, holding little of her inner or her outer life in reserve from the reader.

"An autobiography, powerfully written by a firm hand, with the finest sort of literary skill. It is an extraordinary life story, so convincingly told that it is worthy to rank with the self-revelations of greater personages. Mrs. Sheridan enjoys an unusual ancestry, with advantages in association and environment that come to life in her book. . . Her book is an epic of the unusual." Don Seitz

+ Bookm 67:582 Jl '28 780w

Boston Transcript p2 Je 13 '28 850w

"The grain of interest is hidden in a good deal of chaff, and none of the book could be trustworthy history."

— Hist Outlook 19:295 O '28 180w

Ind 120:485 My 19 '28 120w

"A book which is extraordinarily frank and outspoken,—and, incidentally, one of the most entertaining volumes of memoirs issued for some time. You cannot call her book indiscreet, for the word sounds stupid, but that is not to say that everybody will approve. Yet even those who disapprove the most must bear witness to its merits, for every page is human and alive."

+ Living Age 334:91 Ja 1 '28 180w

"The straightforwardness of Mrs. Sheridan's indiscretions usually makes them endurable, yet the careful setting down of so many gallantries becomes a bit too much, and a disingenuous and funny note enters now and then."

+ — N Y Evening Post p8 My 5 '28 1300w

"To entitle the story of Clare Sheridan's life 'Naked Truth' is to pin a lurid and suggestive label upon a remarkably fine piece of work. Those who expect scandal are warned that there is little here. She is candid, straightforward and sincere in her work, and no one who reads her work can fail to be refreshed and amused." J: Carter

+ N Y Times p5 My 13 '28 1350w

"Mrs. Sheridan gossips about many people in her book, from Lenin to Lloyd-George, and there is the same zest about her writing there has been about her life. If what she has done seems unimportant, it has at least entertained her in the doing, and it should entertain her readers." Herschel Brickell

No Am 225:adv Je '28 120w

Reviewed by Arthur Ruhl

Sat R of Lit 4:883 My 19 '28 1300w

"Much of the book is very amusing and some of it contains real wisdom. It is being widely read and deservedly so, for it gives a vivid picture of vivid people. Particularly successful is she in depicting the rackety 'atmosphere' of the War years and of 1919. With energy and ability that are both exceptional, we hope that Mrs. Sheridan will leave some lasting mark on her time."

+ — Spec 140:54 Ja 14 '28 380w

Springf'd Republican p7f Jl 29 '28 380w

"Here is little of the philosophy of history. This lady has been too busy a-seein' and a-doin' things. It is all the story of a rich and vivid woman, pliant hands a-drip with the gold and scarlet vintage of life. It leaves the reader breathless with delight before such fulness of living." Leon Whipple

+ Survey 60:396 Jl 1 '28 520w

"If nothing of what she says is particularly important, her impressions of exciting times and remarkable people are very vivid and make entertaining reading."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p926 D 8 '27 810w

SHERMAN, CHARLES LESTER. Moral self; an introduction to the science of ethics. 365p $2.60 Ginn

170 Ethics 27-21479

"An elementary text centering in the conception of the self. Successive chapters deal with the self as biological, as psychologically determined, as socially realized, and its relationship to moral judgment and to personality. The author's aim is to make a book that shall be less difficult than the average text. The problems are treated from the psychological rather than from the sociological point of view, and the practical problems considered are chiefly those of the individual character rather than those of institutions and the relation of the individual to social processes."—Int J Ethics

---

"A logical and neatly interlocked structure, but one which is suspended in the 'heaven of speculation,' and devoid of an empirical or inductive base."

+ — Am J Soc 33:853 Mr '28 90w

Int J Ethics 38:237 Ja '28 80w

"This book is disappointing. While we can not look for too much searching analysis in a work intended expressly as an elementary textbook, the author's own statements (which are all too frequent) as to what he has just explained or is about to explain, lead one to expect something far more thorough than is actually offered. His own interest in education has led him to apply his conclusions to problems of class-room practice and child-training and in that way make his theories more concrete. The work also contains several bits of insight and helpful advice. But it tends, unfortunately, to be too 'moralistic' to be an important contribution to philosophy." Orlie Pell

— + J Philos 25:248 Ap 26 '28 200w

SHERMAN, STUART PRATT. Shaping men and women; essays on literature and life; ed. by Jacob Zeitlin. 277p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran

814 28-23336

"The purpose of this book is to bring together the essays and addresses in which Stuart Sherman expressed his ideas on the profession in which he spent the greater part of his active life. They constitute a record and memorial of his work as teacher and scholar. In the desire to illustrate Sherman's talent in the class room the editor has taken the liberty of adding to the Contents several lectures which were not meant by him for publication. Their illustrative interest, it is hoped, will atone for the lack of literary polish."—Preface

---

"A posthumous collection of odd essays, lectures and addresses written during the last quarter-century, more closely concerned with academic than with literary themes, yet, like everything Sherman did, basically related to literature. It is markedly inferior to the other books, but it is far more important as a study of the man once we have the key which they offer. For they are the chronicles of his vacillation in critical precept and practice, whereas this work contains his various and contradictory testaments." Johan Smertenko

+ Bookm 68:359 N '28 680w

"To those who regard criticism as something too aloof and sacred to soil its hands with the growth, struggle and decay of the moment, Sherman will doubtless seem a kind of playboy of letters. But it is hard to see how one can care intensely about the fortunes of the moment in which we live and not recognize him as the most valiant critic of our generation. He alone was willing to keep his great forces of mind and information plastic for immediate use and to say the word of encouragement or teasing scorn that the occasion demanded." G. F. Whicher

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 O 14 '28 1350w

N Y Times p42 D 2 '28 350w

"Taken as a whole, with its mixture of contents, the book reflects Sherman's personality as perhaps none of the volumes issued in his lifetime did. Certainly parts of it reveal him more intimately, in his dual role of teacher and critic, than the writings whose collection and publication he himself supervised." Allan Nevins

+ N Y World p9e O 28 '28 1200w

SHERMAN, THOMAS HENRY. Twenty years [2] with James G. Blaine; reminiscences by his private secretary; with an introd. by Nicholas Murray Butler. 194p il $3.50 Hitchcock

B or 92 Blaine, James Gillespie 28-14135

"Mr. Sherman was for twenty years Blaine's private secretary, the period of his service covering the years from 1869-1889, when Blaine's political prominence was at its height. It cannot be said that his reminiscences add very much that is important to what is already known of Blaine's public career, but they shed an agreeable light upon Blaine's domestic life and his personal relations with his more intimate associates."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 O 4 '28 150w

Hist Outlook 19:394 O '28 70w

"These reminiscences of the 'Plumed Knight' by a man who held the confidential position of private secretary to him for two decades contain no revelations and do nothing to lessen whatever mystery clings to Blaine's attitude toward the Republican nomination for the Presidency in 1892."

Sat R of Lit 5:173 S 29 '28 240w

Springf'd Republican p10 Ag 8 '28 1000w

SHEWAN, ANDREW. Great days of sail; some [2] reminiscences of a tea-clipper captain; ed. by Rex Clements. 240p il $3.50 Houghton [10s 6d Cranton]

623.822 Clipper ships. Merchant marine—Great Britain 28-5900

"No more authentic record of the tea-clippers has been published than that which Captain Shewan gives us. Not only was he himself master for some years of the 'Norman Court,' but his father was in the tea-clipper service before him. Captain Shewan was, indeed, born with the sea in his blood. His grandfather was a Peterhead whaler, and his own earliest memories are associated with the romantic Blackwall where his childhood was passed, and where the coming and going of famous sailing vessels was the familiar, yet perpetually wonderful, business of life."—Spec

---

"Captain Shewan does not essay a history of the British tea clippers. His is a personal story—anecdotes, observations and judgments—and as such gives freshness and atmosphere to the days of which he tells." Arthur Warner

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 Ja 8 '28 580w

Boston Transcript p6 N 23 '27 640w

"His narrative is just what it should be; modest, unaffected, rich in reminiscences of great ships and great seamen, full of allusions to old customs and traditions of the sea. His chapter on the origin of shanties has real historical value. But the most valuable feature of the book is that it brings out, better than almost anything else that has been written on the subject, the real factors in passage-making—the extraordinary sensitiveness and liveliness of the China clippers, and the rare combination of daring, judgment, and incessant vigilance that was required for a racing captain."

+ Nation and Ath 42:366 D 3 '27 400w

"The book is so good that it is difficult to write calmly of its merits. . . Captain Shewan, a true seafarer himself, carries the interest of his readers by his obvious sincerity and restraint. A Nestor of the sea, the 'Old Man' sits comfortably in his chair ashore, recalling in tranquility the triumphs, fears, dangers, and achievements of a long and distinguished career at sea." D: W. Bone

+ Sat R of Lit 5:21 Ag 4 '28 1050w

Spec 139:sup560 O 8 '27 390w

Times [London] Lit Sup p681 O 6 '27 360w

SHIEL, MATTHEW PHIPPS. How the old woman got home. 434p $2.50 Vanguard press 28-27813

Hazlitt is a mechanic out of a job waiting to marry his Jessie. The old woman, his mother, is abducted from her rooms in a humble part of London, and presently Hazlitt himself is plucked out of life as an unemployed mechanic and dropped back into it as Sir Henry Beresford, millionaire, with three immediate aims: to find his mother; to marry Jessie; and to find out who's back of all this mystery and violence. But first he meets a burly evangelist with a sense of sin, and a maddeningly tempting woman. From the entrance of this pair a fierce excitement seizes the story. The pitch rises steadily, and as the mystery deepens and the chase extends, horror seeps in and the tale ends in violence.

Boston Transcript p3 N 24 '28 300w

"The old woman finally does get home through a welter of turgid rhetoric that even Carlyle might envy. From this tortuous phrasing and perverse punctuation emerges a surprisingly ingenious and absorbing mystery story. The characters are original and even exciting in their own right."

+ Nation 128:114 Ja 23 '29 130w

"So superbly mystifying a tale that the crime clubs could, and probably will, claim it as their own. Yet this wild, whirling narrative is very far from being a detective story. Beneath the surface melodrama, M. P. Shiel juggles with cosmic ideas. Still breathless from the pursuit of unknown villains, his characters pause to talk brilliantly and interminably of science and God. His book violates every classical canon, is undisciplined and at times almost absurd, but it has the bracing force of an electric shock." E. H. W.

+ New Repub 57:227 Ja 9 '29 200w

"This amazing novel is a first-rate mystery thriller. It is exhilarating reading. It involves every element of suspense that can possibly be crammed in, and it rises to a wild and violent climax."

+ N Y Times p28 N 25 '28 580w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 150:1342 D 12 '28 90w

SHMELEV, IVAN SERGIEEVICH. Sun of the dead; tr. from the Russian by C. J. Hogarth. 297p $2.50 Dutton [7s 6d Dent] 28-13797

This story of the horrors of the Bolshevist revolution in the Crimea is written by one who lived thru the awful scenes he depicts. The effect of the story is heightened by the interpolated descriptions of the beauties of its setting.

" 'The Sun of the Dead,' in the simple prose of the English translator, is more vivid, more colorful, more productive of fright and anguish, than all the oratory and pyrotechnics of Carlyle's 'French Revolution.' And there is good reason why. Shmelov was not sitting secure decades after the event, troubled by nothing worse than dyspepsia; he lived through the days of ravishment and the nights of blood."

N Y Times p5 F 19 '28 950w

No Am 225:adv Ap '28 90w

"Full of all sorts of allusions and involutions, and on the whole self-conscious, labored, and rather queasy. It is not helped by the long and uncalled-for introduction by its translator, Mr. C. J. Hogarth, in which the latter takes it upon himself querulously to pamphleteer against Marxianism and all who find anything going ahead in present-day Russia. Indeed, the whole book leaves the reader more with the sense of having perused a highly literary tract rather than a story going ahead under its own steam." Arthur Ruhl

— + Sat R of Lit 4:866 My 12 '28 100w

"This powerful novel gives a very vivid, first-hand series of pictures of life in the Crimea during the Terror following the Russian Revolution. The story is quiet and meditative in style, and the tragedies which it describes are the more poignantly felt because of the author's poetic sensitiveness to the beauty of the Crimean background."

+ Spec 138:1093 Je 18 '27 100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p433 Je 23 '27 800w

SHOTWELL, JAMES THOMSON, and LOOMIS, LOUISE ROPES, eds. See of Peter. (Records of civilization: sources and studies) 737p $10 Columbia univ. press [50s Oxford]

282 Papacy—History. Peter, Saint, apostle. Roman Catholic Church—History. Church history—Primitive and early church. Popes—History 27-25032

The volume consists of a collection of the texts upon which the historical claims of the Papacy rest. The texts are accompanied by discussions elucidating the documents. The period covered extends to the end of the fourth century.

"The historical student will rejoice in the possession of this work which so abbreviates his time and toil and guides his scrutiny of the material by so careful a discussion of the historical process involved and by such valuable references to the vast literature relating to it. The student will have abundant reason for an attitude of deference to the great erudition of these editors, their careful and discriminating thought, and in general the precision of their statements." F. A. Christie

+ Am Hist R 33:848 Jl '28 800w

"The collaborators in this collection have been thorough and exhaustive, leaving nothing unturned which may make their work more accurate and interesting. They have achieved at once a source book and a complete history of the Papal See."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 25 '28 280w

Christian Century 45:414 Mr 29 '28 300w

"From a scholarly point of view, the book is a classic."

+ Hist Outlook 19:185 Ap '28 430w

"The making of this type of volume involved some very delicate problems in selection, arrangement, and interpretation. A historical source-book, however important its subject matter, rarely proves to be delightful reading. By prefixing explanatory paragraphs to their selections the present compilers have endeavored to weave their excerpts into a continuous story, but even their best efforts produce only a patchwork quilt, more or less regular in its design. In fact, they have pieced two quilts out of the materials at their disposal. The volume is essentially a tool for the student working in the library or the classroom, and, as such it certainly merits wide appreciation. The patience and scholarship exhibited in its production are most reassuring, although it seems unfortunate that the archaeological data have been so little used." S. J. Case

+ — Nation 126:647 Je 6 '28 480w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson
N Y Times p1 Ja 22 '28 250w

SHOTWELL, WALTER GASTON. Driftwood; being papers on old-time American towns and some old people. 243p $2.50 (8s) Longmans 814 27-15555

Essays on a variety of subjects, but chiefly historical and biographical. The first is an account of the Society of Zoar, a community established in Ohio in 1819 by a colony of German immigrants, calling themselves Separatists. Contents: Zoar; The good priest; William Hazlitt; Logan, chief of the Mingoes; My dogs; Stanton, Lincoln's secretary of war; Country life; Old Gnadenhutten; Angling; Bingham; Work.

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ja '28
New Statesman 29:546 Ag 6 '27 250w
N Y Evening Post p8 Jl 30 '27 100w

"Leisurely biographical or historical sketches, evidently the work of a writer of culture who has had a special interest in certain American people and places."
Outlook 146:516 Ag 17 '27 80w

"The character sketches show the conscientious labor of a historian; but the writing of more whimsical nature is ineffectual. The author's purpose in writing is to give mingled pleasure and information, but the ingredients are not entirely well mixed."
Springf'd Republican p7f F 19 '28 100w

SHUSTER, GEORGE NAUMAN. Catholic spirit in America. 296p $3 Dial press

282 Roman Catholic church in the United States. Church and state in the United States 27-25033

An unbiased statement and explanation of certain aspects of American catholicism which for want of understanding, engender suspicion and mistrust in the mind of the non-Catholic. In other words, a discussion of the contribution of the Catholic body to the social, political, economic, and literary life of America.

Booklist 24:268 Ap '28

"It contains a good deal of matter which does not contribute to the development of the subject, and which leads the author instead into a fruitless and not very reasonable diatribe against 'confident disillusionment, sublimated naturalism, and intelligence sterilized by the scientific method.' This philippic is largely directed, one gathers, against the school of thought fathered by H. L. Mencken. Once Mencken is off his mind, Mr. Shuster's survey is characterized by fairness and moderation."
— + Bookm 67:xxi Je '28 280w

Boston Transcript p3 Jl 28 '28 250w

"Mr. Shuster's criticisms are suggestive and thought-provoking. They are happily calculated to dissipate some of the smugness that has been the erring characteristic of the American Catholic attitude. Many of his observations will be painful to certain of his coreligionists, but these same observations will probably stimulate a very desirable and altogether salutary introspection." C. M.
+ Cath World 127:116 Ap '28 530w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 45:82 Ja 19 '28 650w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson
N Y Times p16 Ja 22 '28 680w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:440 O '28

"Mr. Shuster's book is exceedingly timely; and we may be grateful to him for lifting his level of argument above the politics of the day, and for dealing with it in the general light of Catholic culture." Theodore Maynard
+ Sat R of Lit 4:588 F 11 '28 850w

SIDGWICK, ETHEL. When I grow rich. 461p $2.50 Harper

28-23921

Auburn Sherriff is presiding angel and leading spirit of the super-house in Rafferty Street. Fraternity and frugality is the motto of the house: membership is limited to a small group of poor and ardently democratic young people of both sexes; the one exception is an earnest young millionaire much in love with Auburn. With great good humor and much clever conversation, Mrs Sidgwick unwinds the skein of the story,—the major and minor upsets of the Ark, as Auburn's sister calls the super-house, and the loves and hates on board.

"Handled skillfully within its limitations, the book has all that limpid flow of style added to the niceties of distinction we have learned to anticipate from the studied grace of Mrs Sidgwick's creation." Halle Schaffner
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p30 D 2 '28 430w

"There is plenty of clever writing. Much is implied in the narrative but nothing happens. That is of course what Miss Sidgwick wishes us to understand. Her atmosphere is too rarified. At moments to a simple American mind the conversations between the inhabitants of this super-house in Bloomsbury sound almost dangerously trivial." D. F. G.
— Boston Transcript p5 N 7 '28 430w

"'When I Grow Rich' is a good novel to read, for the very simple reason that few words are wasted on descriptions and reflections. The author spends her energy keeping her characters walking and talking, falling in love, trying to help others, being as gentle as they can and as courageous, and making mistakes as normally as any of the rest of us make mistakes. This gives the story the stir of life, which is one of the principal qualities fiction should have, of course." Herschel Brickell
+ Sat R of Lit 5:369 N 17 '28 750w

SIEVEKING, LANCELOT DE GIBERNE. All children must be paid for. 151p $2 Brentano's [7s 6d Lane]

"About Lord Downacre and Miss Claire Collingdale, Miss Pelladower, Ronald Beeches, and Blanyre, an artist, who were all mixed up with meetings and studio parties and a street crowd composed entirely of women and babies—some of them imitation babies."—Times [London] Lit Sup

---

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Je 3 '28 120w

Boston Transcript p5 Mr 24 '28 380w

"The drawings by Pearl Binder lend an air of cleverness to this skit which the words alone would not give us, for the hero is too asinine to be really funny, and the humor is not mad enough to make us laugh very often or very loud." T. S. Matthews
— New Repub 55:259 Jl 25 '28 180w

N Y Evening Post p13 Mr 17 '28 50w

"Every now and then he scores a hit, but he makes his target so large it is impossible to miss it. To write a fantasy on Birth Control was a daring idea, but Mr. Sieveking spoils it with overmuch burlesque." L. P. Hartley
— + Sat R 144:894 D 24 '27 100w

Sat R of Lit 4:725 Mr 31 '28 150w

"A careful second reading leaves one as far off as ever from any coherent notion of what it is all about. Mr. Sieveking read the words which he took for his title in a railway announcement, and it seemed to him that he was struck by a brilliant idea. But the idea did not really strike; it remained hovering in the offing, it never crystallized, although the author took pen at once and wrote for all he was worth."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p14 Ja 5 '28 160w

SIEVEKING, LANCELOT DE GIBERNE. Bats in the belfry; introds. by G. K. Chesterton and Max Beerbohm. 132p il $3 Brentano's

817 Nonsense verses [25-15015]

"These verses range from the most unadulterated of nonsense to the sharpest of satires; they are bounded on the north by Lewis Carroll; on the south by W. S. Gilbert, and on the east and west by wide margins."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

"Mr. Sieveking's rhymed paradoxes are quite Chestertonic, and Mr. Nash's pen-and-ink work is very near-Beerbohm. Consequently there isn't much that the reviewer can do except follow the example of the distinguished preface writers and simply give voice to an indorsement." Lisle Bell
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 Ja 8 '28 480w

"I do not think this book is funny. There are good things in it, but they are all derivative. There are also derivative things that are not good. There are poems that are neither derivative nor good, and they are awful." Marjorie Johnson

SIEVEKING, L. De G.—Continued
— N Y Evening Post p12 Ja 28 '28 350w

"Mr. Sieveking is a nonsense-writer born, and yet not so remarkable a one as his illustrator, John Nash, is a nonsense-artist. John Nash's drawings are superb in their spontaneous idiocy, and quite rightly commended by Max Beerbohm in his Preface to the Drawings."
+ Sat R of Lit 4:413 D 3 '27 320w

SIEVEKING, LANCELOT DE GIBERNE. Stampede! 304p il $2 Brentano's op
28-30705

"Professor Bynestone dies, leaving a weird device called a 'thought machine.' When this contrivance is placed on a person's head it records his thoughts and emotions. It can be regulated so that the wearer is able to project his thoughts to a certain place, and the person at that spot will receive the message, if he, too, is equipped with a 'thought machine.' The invention falls into the hands of Kanker, a man crazed with lust for power. He organizes his forces in all the capitals of Europe and, with the aid of the 'thought machine' and a mysterious death-dealing ray, schemes to overturn Governments and make himself supreme. Richard Kade, a nephew of Professor Bynestone, and Detective Burles oppose and finally crush Kanker."—Boston Transcript

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 N 4 '28 100w

"Whoever understands beforehand that this is not the conventional well-knit mystery yarn will not be disappointed, and will be prepared to appreciate its ingenuity and refreshing style." F. K.
+ Boston Transcript p5 O 6 '28 300w

" 'Stampede' is neither one thing nor the other: it is partly satirical, partly a reductio ad absurdum of the detective story and the adventure story rolled into one, and it has gleams of lucid madness. It would be an interesting experiment to try this book on a hardened reader of detective stories: he might be irritated; on the other hand, it might sharpen his palate." T. S. Matthews
New Repub 56:183 O 3 '28 110w

SIFTON, PAUL. The belt. 193p $2 Macaulay
812 28-128

The scene of the play is a factory town. The "belt" symbolizes the relentless force which drives the workers to ever greater speed, higher productivity. A young radical urges the factory workers to revolt. They have gathered to threaten him for his relations to Nance, but stay to listen, and incited to temporary heroism by his words demolish the belt in the very presence of "The Old Man."

"It contains scenes which are unusually absorbing, and many passages of its dialogue fascinate by their crude reality. Even the expressionistic episodes, wherein the belt, the moving line of men and machines, is intruded, achieve a marked effectiveness. On the other hand, the play goes to pieces two or three times. . . There is a trifle too much straining for sympathy with automobile-factory workers, and as for the representation of the Old Man, one is inclined to doubt its justness." Glenn Hughes
— + Bookm 67:591 Jl '28 140w

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 F 5 '28 30w

"The play itself is a vigorous, uneven cartoon of American industry. 'The Belt,' if not a powerful play, is, on the whole, an interesting and worthy one. It has not the irony, the suave aloofness, that, at one extreme, might lift it into significant scorn and ridicule; and, at the other extreme, it does not convey the sense of great passionate feeling, a soul torn and consumed with the wrongs of the world it envisages and scorches into dramatic art. But it has its own irony, nevertheless, and its feeling; it outlines its people distinctly; its dialogue is lively, diverting and forced into explosive humor or youthful, burly caricature." Stark Young
+ New Repub 52:285 N 2 '27 450w

"Even a casual reading of this play in book form reveals its power. It is entirely in the language of the common people, harsh and tense and roughly colloquial. It stages the conflict of men against machinery, and is packed with raw drama. We never saw it in performance, but it has such direct drive in the reading that we think the performance must have been striking. The lingo of the workmen is actual, the rapid-fire snarling dialogue convinces. This is a revolutionary play, cut out of crude real life, but it is a comment worth listening to upon contemporary industrial tendencies."
+ Sat R of Lit 4:635 F 25 '28 130w

SILVESTRE, CHARLES. Aimée Villard, daughter of France; tr. by Marjorie Henry Ilsley and Renée Jardin. 132p $1.75 Macmillan
28-11173

This novelette is the first work of M. Silvestre to be translated into English. It is a simple pastoral story of a French peasant girl who after her father's sudden and tragic death, takes her place as the head of the family and carries on the work of the farm.

Booklist 24:405 Jl '28

"One of those pure and quiet stories of humble life that could be placed with safety in the hands of the most carefully guarded jeune fille in France. Aimée Villard, if not highly original, is extremely well done." Rose Lee
+ Bookm 67:710 Ag '28 90w

"Writing with delicacy and moderation, Charles Silvestre is by no means a great or powerful novelist, but he exhibits a grace and felicity of phrase that are characteristically French." C. S. Parker
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 My 13 '28 700w

"A short prose pastoral this is, one that might have been written when romantic rural simplicity was a faith and not an accomplishment. In fact, one is led to believe that the author was born out of his time, so simply and exquisitely does he cast his love of French peasant life into words, and withal so naively, when he attempts to novelize a dream-idyl. . . A novel that will indubitably be loved by many readers for its unassuming dignity and its (unhappily) old-fashioned ideals, as well as for its limpid-poetic style." S. V. V. W.
+ Boston Transcript p5 Jl 21 '28 350w
Cleveland Open Shelf p91 Jl '28
Ind 120:533 Je 2 '28 130w

"The life of the peasant farmer is interestingly pictured, the translation reads well, but there is hardly enough material for a short story and certainly not enough for a 'novelette' of this length. It is the sort of thing that is always read by second-year high school French classes." L. G.
+ — N Y Evening Post p15 Ap 14 '28 50w

"This novelette has a slight charm that almost but not quite compensates for its sentimentality and too artful nobility. That charm is to be found in fresh and original phrasing, and in some comic scenes in which the villain of the piece, the grasping Courteux, and his helpless wife come off an almost cruel second best."
+ N Y Times p6 Ap 1 '28 550w

" 'Aimée Villard' lies on exactly the other side of the moon from Zola's 'La Terre.' For gentleness and opalescent simplicity of style one can turn only to 'Marie Chapdelaine' for comparison."
Sat R of Lit 4:802 Ap 21 '28 280w
Wis Lib Bul 24:164 My '28

SIMPSON, BERTRAM LENOX (PUTNAM WEALE, pseud.). China's crucifixion. 401p $2.50 Macmillan

28-13914

A story of the turmoil of modern China and a group of Europeans, missionaries and civilians, whose lives are thrown into confusion by political forces without and spiritual forces within their own group. It is a long story and a rather involved one, tracing both the course of the revolution and the fortunes of General Wang, and the perilous lot of the aliens.

"The author's characters are either quaint ivory figures with whom he plays kindly, or ridiculous upstarts who must be automatically quelled without paying them the compliment of taking them seriously. But the chief error of this novel lies in the fact that the author, sufficiently familiar himself with the scenes and events of which he is writing, never bothers to explain or describe them to us."

— Bookm 68:xviii S '28 200w

"Mr. Weale has caught the spirit and the 'insides' of the Orient. He understands it and portrays it with vividness and power. The story itself is worth-while. The character studies are well done. The combination of adventure, war, love and intrigue make interesting reading and real information."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ag 4 '28 200w

"Mr. Weale's would have been a good novel had the story been laid in France, Germany, or the Island of Yap. His characters are real, their destinies are developed with a skillful casualness which gives the effect of inevitability, and the story is well told."

+ Ind 121:45 Jl 14 '28 220w

SIMPSON, HELEN. Cups, wands & swords. 287p $2.50 Knopf [7s 6d Heinemann]

28-2670

"The story of English twins, a brother and sister. Miss Simpson's background is Oxford and London, and she writes of present-day life in both places with a shrewd handling of the situations that arise from the devotion of the twins."—No Am

Booklist 24:284 Ap '28

Reviewed by A. B. Parsons

Bookm 67:212 Ap '28 100w

"Despite the greenish glow of the supernatural which faintly lights the book it gives a surprising feeling of naturalness." Mary Ross

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p6 Ja 15 '28 620w

Boston Transcript p3 Ap 14 '28 450w

"A curious mental perversion especially marked in the smart London of today leads her to ruin her book with a ridiculous framework of gipsy superstition and a climactic piece of parlor-trick clairvoyance which puts her in the same class with Conan Doyle and Sir Oliver Lodge. If Miss Simpson outgrows her spooks her next novel will be well worth reading."

— Nation 126:191 F 15 '28 120w

" 'Cups, wands and swords' is good reading, written with the kind of precocious charm and ease which young English writers seem to inherit naturally, and to which ours seldom, if ever, attain."

+ New Repub 53:279 Ja 25 '28 210w

"The theme is as old as Electra and Orestes, and is managed so well as to make the supernatural part of the story both credible and moving. The book is well worth reading." Cyril Connolly

+ New Statesman 30:supxii N 5 '27 200w

"There are such really funny scenes, such delightful conversations, such vivid and civilized writing that we are willing to excuse faults, in fact, we remember only with gentle regret, and a little absent-mindedly, the discords which obscure the clear outlines of an otherwise brilliant production." Marjorie Johnson

+ — N Y Evening Post p9 Jl 7 '28 780w

N Y Times p8 Ja 8 '28 650w

"In many respects she has done a better job than Miss Kennedy with somewhat the same theme." Herschel Brickell

+ No Am 225:adv Mr '28 100w

Outlook 148:198 F 1 '28 500w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:194 Ap '28

"There is something capricious about the narrative; and the happy ending is out of tune. Yet it is a fascinating novel, with mirror-flashes of the uncanny." R. A. Taylor

+ — Spec 139:618 O 15 '27 100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p769 O 27 '27 200w

SIMPSON, LOLA JEAN. Back fire; a California story. 399p $2.50 Macmillan

27-21344

Chafing under restraint at home, Marais, a California girl, longs for freedom. She shares the advanced notions of Sydney, a much admired friend, but fortunately does not share Sydney's fate. Tho happily started on her career at last, Marais finds the call of duty stronger than her own desires, and goes home to care for a younger brother. She is rewarded with a new happiness and a new freedom.

"A mediocre story." E. M. Field

— Bookm 66:592 Ja '28 30w

"Miss Simpson has a sense of humor and displays it prominently in her work—a saving grace indeed. 'Back Fire' will never become immensely popular but, on the other hand, it should give temporary pleasure to those who read it."

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 14 '27 100w

"This first novel by Lola Jean Simpson has a broken back. It starts off bravely. Along about the middle, though, the grip on the life of small-town people loosens considerable melodramatic high jinks and the ending, while as gory as 'Hamlet,' is a sop to things as we would like them to be."

+ — N Y Times p23 O 23 '27 550w

"The author relies too heavily on the accumulation of stolid trifles to carry along her narrative; her aptitude, however, for distinctive character portraiture leads us to regard her possibilities hopefully."

— + Sat R of Lit 4:400 D 3 '27 210w

SIMS, ALAN. Phoinix. 343p $2.50 Little [7s 6d Chatto & W.]

28-19131

"Phoinix, son of Amyntor, in his old age tells the story not only of Achilles, his marvellous pupil, but of Peleus, the father, and Neoptolemus, the son, of the hero. With the story of the events that in the end drew all the kings to Troy are entangled other great Hellenic legends like that of Herakles, of the voyage of the Argo, and the hunting of the Calydonian boar. Mr. Sims deals with the Greek heroes in an odd half-rationalizing, half-softening style. He modernizes, though without the rather crude raillery of Mr. Erskine."—Spec

Reviewed by R. E. Larsson

Bookm 68:242 O '28 90w

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p13 O 7 '28 380w

"It is an intensely interesting and noteworthy story, and no comment made upon it will be wholly fair unless the book's qualities of sincerity, realism and beauty loom larger than the defects of a somewhat immature and variable style and a decidedly cavalier overriding of details in the account of the Trojan War which up to the present has satisfied the world for nearer three than two thousand years." J. F. S.

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ag 25 '28 650w

+ Nation 127:275 S 19 '28 100w

SIMS, ALAN—Continued

"It is a pity that a dull sense of the theme's being overdone should, perforce, take the freshness off Mr. Sim's variations, for he can write with a rare beauty. The Greeks have shaped his world. He can sustain the clear heroic tone and knows how to relieve it with an adroit satirical touch."

+ New Statesman 31:398 Je 30 '28 250w

"The tale, all in all, makes delightful reading for any one at home in its classic background—freshness of view, humor and genuine imaginative facility lending familiar vistas a fresh allure." F. H. M.

+ N Y Evening Post p5 S 15 '28 230w

N Y Times p30 N 25 '28 450w

"It is not, like 'The Private Life of Helen of Troy,' a tale of modern people with modern motives and ideas in a classic environment. The people are not modernized, nor is the story." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 150:999 O 17 '28 150w

"For the few who love the names of Peleus, Akhilleus, and Neoptolemos, and who have the leisure to read a long, pleasant volume, 'Phoinix' will be a delight."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:410 N 24 '28 100w

Spec 140:947 Je 23 '28 100w

"It is a fine, vigorous story; immortal characters throng its pages, great scenes are described with a realism which is enhanced by Mr. Sim's skill in representing picturesque impossibilities as grave episodes of sober history."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p394 My 24 '28 550w

SIMS, NEWELL LE ROY. Elements of rural sociology. (Crowell's social science ser.) 698p $3.75 Crowell

630.1 Country life. United States—Social conditions. Sociology, Rural 28-9244

A text book of rural sociology written with the needs of the city and townbred student in mind, and emphasizing the development of community life as a solution to the problems of rural society.

Am Econ R 18:548 S '28 80w

"The book contains a great volume of excellent source material but lacks organization from a consistent point of view. It is fundamentally a volume in rural social technology rather than rural sociology." G. E. Chaffee

+ — Ann Am Acad 138:194 Jl '28 150w

Booklist 24:390 Jl '28

"The author has handled his subject admirably, producing a book of interest and value to the general reader, in city and country alike, as well as for school and college use."

+ Eng N 101:445 S 20 '28 200w

"This is by far the most scholarly and comprehensive of the numerous recent textbooks on rural sociology—and the only one of marked value for reference purposes. The author has brought together from innumerable sources a mass of pertinent data, which he interprets with accuracy. He sketches also a significant background of rural history and contemporary European practice. The work is largely free from the sentimental bunk and the uncritical assumptions characteristic of most contemporary writings on rural life. Unfortunately, the book is badly written, but not worse than other books in its field."

+ — Nation 127:142 Ag 8 '28 100w

Wis Lib Bul 24:250 O '28

Reviewed by Walter Burr

World Tomorrow 11:424 O '28 280w

SINCLAIR, UPTON BEALL. Boston. 2v 755p $5 Boni

Sacco, Nicola—Fiction. Vanzetti, Bartolomeo —Fiction 29-26043

Mr Sinclair's novel is a passionate indictment of Boston as a symbol of the state of mind that decreed the death of Sacco and Vanzetti. The whole long story of the South Braintree crime, the trial, and after seven years, the death of the anarchists is told as seen thru the eyes of an aristocratic rebel. Cornelia runs away from wealth and respectability and at sixty takes a six-dollar-a-week job in the Plymouth cordage factory. Her fellow-boarder at the Brini's where she finds a room, is Bartolomeo Vanzetti, a simple, gentle soul who has accepted the philosophy of anarchism. Between the young Italian working-man and the aristocratic old lady a rarely beautiful friendship grows up. With her grand-daughter Betty, who is also a rebel, Cornelia fights for justice for her friends.

" 'Boston' is not quite like anything else ever done in fiction—this combination of intimate human story-telling with magnificent social-historical craftsmanship, centering about a cause célèbre. . . This is American history, and historians in time to come will rely upon it when they deal with this critical stage of our American imperialism. But it is masterly story-telling, too, and the characters who are not historical—the runaway grandmother and her rebel grand-daughter—are Upton Sinclair's happiest inventions." Floyd Dell

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 N 11 '28 800w

"It is more a social document than it is a work of fiction, and it is written entirely without any noticeable attempt at making the completed story a work of art. At times, it is true, Mr. Sinclair, whose style is never gracious and seldom forceful, rises to the occasion and gives a dramatic and passionate description of what to him is a grave miscarriage of justice. But 'Boston,' as a whole, is written to inflame rather than to educate." K. S.

— Boston Transcript p4 D 1 '28 580w

"What one objects to, as usual, is Mr. Sinclair's tendency to point the moral and adorn the tale with the observations of his own exacerbated social conscience. The tale itself should have been enough. It is strong wine and needs no bush. . . Let no one read these books who is not prepared to weep at the terror and the beauty of life. There are five men who will not dare to read them as long as they live." James Rorty

+ Nation 127:sup618 D 5 '28 850w

"Cornelia, though bearing a fictitious name, is, Mr. Sinclair assures us, a real person, and we can easily believe it. Through her eyes we see Vanzetti, the dreamer, the learner, the friend and helper of his fellow men, so eager for light and truth, so simple, and pure, and humble. The friendship of Cornelia Thornwell and Bartolomeo Vanzetti is a strain of pure music in the book." R. M. Lovett

+ New Repub 56:354 N 14 '28 1550w

"Upton Sinclair has neither time nor the gift for making individuals. His heroes and heroines are Horatio Alger boys and girls blessed with a social conscience. His 'good people' are tossed into a pattern of the same size for every one labeled 'good.' His 'bad people' are thrown into the opposite pattern. . . But in this wordy, misshapen, uneven mass of fact and fiction there is the life of American cities—New York, Boston and Chicago—such as you can find nowhere else." Horace Gregory

+ — N Y Evening Post p8m N 17 '28 700w

"The Sacco-Vanzetti case as Upton Sinclair sees it is wrought into a narrative on the heroic scale, with form and coherence, to make an effective historical novel. . . Biased by Mr. Sinclair's vehement social beliefs, as of course the whole book is, the scene stands out with a craftsmanship in the technique of the novel that the author has seldom displayed before when he set out to denounce something or other. His prose style has improved considerably."

N Y Times p6 N 18 '28 530w

"As art Sinclair's novel is worthless; as propaganda it is superb. He has a theme and a character that ride triumphant over technical disabilities. And he has a living conscience. As he works toward a climax, the pretence of fiction gradually falls away and in the last magnificent chapters the book becomes a piece of glorified reporting. Concurrently, the heat of its author's indignation rises steadily higher until, at the end, the reader is left with the sense of having himself been cleansed and purified by fire and humbled by great tragedy." R. N. Linscott

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:425 D 1 '28 1000w

"Those familiar with the case who fail to read the book because there is nothing new to be learned, will be surprised at the material dug up by this indefatigable worker. Not since Sinclair's book, The Jungle, has there been a more moving contemporary picture. Thousands who ignore legal articles and who are not interested in the technicalities of proof, will for the first time here learn the detailed facts concerning these two men." A. G. Hays

+ Survey 61:315 D 1 '28 1100w

SINCLAIR, UPTON BEALL. Money writes! 227p $2.50 Boni

810.9 American literature—History and criticism. Authors, American. Authorship 27-24135

"Mr. Sinclair's summary judgment of American letters during the past thirty years. 'Money Writes' does for American literature what 'The Brass Check' did to American journalism, with the same formulas. 'The System,' i. e., Mr. Morgan and 'Wall Street,' are held responsible for all the uninspired product of American imagination, for the Saturday Evening Post and the Cosmopolitan schools of writers, for the lubricities of Mr. Cabell and Mr. Hergesheimer, for Amy Lowell's lack of poetic interest in the Great War as well as Mr. Mencken's excessive interest in the Eighteenth Amendment, etc., etc.—just as they are responsible for the American attitude towards Russia, the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti, etc., etc. All, all are due to the 'capitalist system,' personified by Mr. Morgan, Wall Street, and the New York Times. The few rebellious righteous, not enough to save one hundred and ten millions of people, consist of Norris, Jack London, Phillips, Dreiser—and, Mr. Sinclair modestly permits the reader to infer, the author of 'The Jungle' and 'Oil!' "—New Repub

Reviewed by Donald Douglas

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 D 18 '27 1500w

Boston Transcript p4 Ja 25 '28 180w

"Having read this book twice, I regret to say I can find in it almost no concern for anything in literature save Socialist propaganda, preferably in its direct form, but at all events in such a form that attention is drawn to social and economic problems. Upton Sinclair's greatest scorn is for writers who are uninterested in such problems, whether they are authors of the distinction of Cabell and Hergesheimer, or purveyors of popular fiction like Zane Grey and Peter B. Kyne. If he wishes to refute his critics on this point, he must learn that he cannot do so merely by quoting them and then telling two stories illustrating timidity in a volume whose every page amply demonstrates the absolute truth of their contention." Ernest Boyd

— Ind 119:579 D 10 '27 980w

"I think he is mistaken. None the less I think 'Money Writes' a useful book, and I enjoyed it thoroughly—the more, probably, because I share most of Mr. Sinclair's puritan tastes, even if I don't always agree with him about what is great poetry. I enjoy his scarification of most of our current literary lights, even though I don't always share his estimates of them, and though I find his explanations of their success or failure almost always partial." H: R. Mussey

+ — Nation 126:163 F 8 '28 530w

"Mr. Sinclair's simplifications appear worse than absurd: they are out of date. They belong to that naïve era of Rooseveltian progressivism when the muckraker was taken seriously. And yet, in spite of his impossible socialist dogma which distorts everything he looks at, his literary discernments are fundamentally just. His judgments of his contemporaries are largely deserved, and his condemnation of the futility, the aridity of American literature of his time is justified." Robert Herrick

— + New Repub 53:227 Ja 11 '28 380w

Reviewed by C: W. Wood

— + N Y Evening Post p11 F 18 '28 1200w

St Louis 26:103 Ap '28

"He is often acute, diabolically right in many an analysis of an over-stuffed reputation, and full of choice bits of gossip. He believes that many a tired radical now licks the hand he once bit, and that the writers of today can glimpse the muses only when clad in cloth of gold. There is the usual addition of personal sauce. But so much of what Mr. Sinclair says is true, and all of what he writes is so freshly conceived and humanly amusing that the book is both useful and stimulating. Our case cannot be quite so bad as he declares but it is none too good, and if you have indigestion from too rich a diet of publishers' blurbs and backscratching criticism, here is a tart antidote." Leon Whipple

+ — Survey 59:464 Ja 1 '28 260w

World Tomorrow 11:375 S '28 120w

"The book is a very valuable contribution both to the history of science and civilization and to medieval studies. It is written in interesting style and with the aim in view of historical illumination rather than pedantic exhibitionism. As an example of book-making art the work is one of the outstanding products of the current literary season." H. E. Barnes

+ New Repub 57:226 Ja 9 '29 520w

"The book is of extraordinary interest to the cultivated reader, and the illustrations, many of them in colour, are novel and striking as well as unusually numerous."

+ Sat R 146:88 Jl 21 '28 280w

Times [London] Lit Sup p562 Ag 2 '28 930w

SINCLAIR-COWAN, MRS BERTHA (MUZZY). See Bower, B. M., pseud.

SINGER, CHARLES JOSEPH. From magic to science; essays on the scientific twilight. 253p il $7.50 Liveright

509 Science—History. Magic. Medicine—History 28-26927

In seven essays a distinguished English scholar traces the decline of ancient science in the Middle ages and its slow recovery from the swamp of magic and superstition to a rational conception of the material world. There are many interesting illustrations, including colored plates. Contents: Science under the Roman empire; The dark ages and the dawn of science; The Lorica of Gildas the Briton; Early English magic and medicine; Early herbals; The visions of Hildegard of Bingen; The school of Salerno and its legends; Index of names.

"Their value is enhanced by the reproduction of more than a hundred curious drawings from contemporary manuscripts, of which the fourteen in colour are extremely creditable alike to the taste of the selector and the skill of the copyist."

+ Nation and Ath 43:682 Ag 25 '28 550w

SINGER, CHARLES JOSEPH. Short history of medicine. 368p il $3 (7s 6d) Oxford

610.9 Medicine—History 28-20640

"This short history has been written to introduce medical principles in their origins and development to students and non-medical readers. Dr. Singer goes no further back than Greece of 300 B.C. He has chapters on Hippocratic, Alexandrian, and Roman medicine, goes on to the Arabs and the Middle Ages in Europe, and so to the beginnings of modern physiology, clinical practice, and bacteriology." —New Statesman

Reviewed by M. P. Ravenel

Am J Pub Health 18:1552 D '28 630w

SINGER, C: J.—Continued

"The statements herein contained are all impeccable from the standpoint of accuracy. The illustrations, of which there are 142, are the best I have ever seen in any work of this sort. The book will instantly appeal to any teacher or lecturer in the history of medicine who wishes to recommend a small text to his students." Logan Clendening, M.D.

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 D 9 '28 650w

"Dr. Singer here furnishes an excellent survey, not burdened by technicalities, of the development of medicine through the ages, modern medicine 'being treated as 'the natural outgrowth of an ancient tradition.' " E. N.

+ Boston Transcript p1 O 13 '28 630w

"A volume packed with interesting matter, excellently presented. There are 142 illustrations, admirably chosen."

+ New Statesman 31:338 Je 16 '28 150w

"His endeavor throughout has been to strip away all but the essentials and keep his account as simple and elementary as possible, and he has everywhere stressed the principles of medicine rather than details of medical practice, thus making his book, in a limited sense, the story of the development of medical philosophy."

+ N Y Times p12 O 7 '28 450w

R of Rs 78:adv42 N '28 30w

"As a rapid non-technical statement of the gradual application of the national method of observation and experiment in medicine Dr. Singer's work is the best that we have seen. A host of good illustrations admirably supplement the text." E: C. Streeter

+ Sat R of Lit 5:553 D 29 '28 550w

Survey 61:247 N 15 '28 50w

"The non-medical reader will find that these pages pleasantly supply much that is essential to an adequate education; the facts they record are instructive; they are written in a simple, lucid style, and supported by helpful illustrations; conclusions, both stimulating and chastening, are suggested."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p460 Je 21 '28 880w

SINGLETON, ESTHER. Dolls. (Collectors lib.) 167p il $7.50 Payson & Clarke

649.55 Dolls 27-23681

Miss Singleton's excellently illustrated history of dolls upsets the generally held theory that the doll has been the plaything of children of all ages and races. Her study goes to show that the doll is not as old as generally thought and that thru the centuries it has been of more importance as a fashion model than as a plaything. Dolls of all countries are treated and an interesting chapter is devoted to dolls connected with famous people.

Booklist 24:237 Mr '28

"Miss Singleton is a competent biographer in this field and has access to the few reliable documents on dolls as well as to private collections of much importance. . . Because in this age the doll is the child's possession, this book would be fascinating to children were it not that the large field it covers makes it too difficult for them to understand."

Bookm 67:xxvi My '28 220w

"The book is amply illustrated with pictures of dolls and costumes, and the text painstakingly and seriously covers everything that can be said about dolls. We do not find, however, the foolish passion we feel for dolls in Miss Singleton's able handling of them."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p9 Ja 1 '28 210w

"Miss Singleton has made her history one that any reader can enjoy, no matter how remote he or she may imagine the general subject to be." Herschel Brickell

+ No Am 225:adv Ja '28 60w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:252 My '28

SINGMASTER, ELSIE (MRS HAROLD LEWARS). What everybody wanted. 262p $2 Houghton

28-20602

Mamma, beautiful and well-preserved at forty-five, wanted beautiful clothes above all else. Her daughter Marian, twenty-one, capable and dependable, wanted music and Lucien Clement, the most eligible bachelor of the whole Maryland town in which they lived. Arietta Lee, Mamma's younger daughter, very lovely and unscrupulous and idle, wanted only Lucien. Everybody got what he or she wanted, and that is the story.

Booklist 25:72 N '28

Boston Transcript p2 S 8 '28 190w

Reviewed by Laura Benet

N Y Evening Post p5 S 22 '28 220w

"The author is ingenious in the way she has developed the slender materials of her plot to complicate and defer the outcome and she has made out of it all, background and people and human foibles, as charming and clever and delicately skillful a bit of comedy as one finds in many a day."

+ N Y Times p30 S 23 '28 600w

Wis Lib Bul 24:256 O '28

SITWELL, OSBERT. England reclaimed; a book of eclogues. 99p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Duckworth]

821 [28-11215]

In this book of pastoral poems Mr Sitwell evokes some English rustic characters—Mr Hague, the gardener, and his wife, Mr Goodbeare, the carpenter, the Nutches, Mary-Anne and Moping Fred—and tricks them out in the bright finery of his imagination.

Booklist 24:357 Je '28

Bookm 67:xvii Je '28 250w

Reviewed by Babette Deutsch

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 Ap 1 '28 900w

Dial 84:435 My '28 100w

Ind 120:437 My 5 '28 200w

"In those visionary moments, when his attempts at literality are forgotten, Mr. Sitwell's portraiture becomes fascinating, his verse most musical, and his eclogues are rich in such possibilities."

+ Nation and Ath 42:328 N 26 '27 200w

"Mr. Sitwell is exceedingly accomplished: he is terribly accomplished: he is erudite, witty, dexterous, eloquent: he has a sharp eye, and that special sort of fair-haired obtuse shrewdness which is almost a prerogative of the English: he knows his history, and can refer as easily to Ur and the Chaldees as to the Brookes of Borneo: he knows the English language, and tosses it and catches it with a conjurer's virtuosity. And nevertheless, in this book of charming ecologues, one questions whether anywhere is precisely that 'wisdom of the blood' for which one always has so famished a craving." Conrad Aiken

+ — New Repub 54:252 Ap 11 '28 480w

"Verse which marks an appreciable advance on any collection of poems Mr. Sitwell has so far published."

+ New Statesman 30:292 D 10 '27 930w

Reviewed by C. P. Fadiman

N Y Evening Post p12 Mr 3 '28 700w

Reviewed by Percy Hutchison

N Y Times p12 Ap 29 '28 230w

"Mr. Sitwell's free verse has the distinction of being really free; as free to use rhyme or metre, or even both rhyme and metre, as to discard them. He is cunning—and often successful—in the use of internal rhymes, jingles, assonances, puns, alliterations, and musical undertones; and the result is a pattern of colour and sound which, however dexterously woven, has the air of genuine æsthetic intoxication." Gerald Bullett

+ Sat R 145:101 Ja 28 '28 900w

"A happily-linked series of poems unusual among most of the verse of our time,—unusual in richness of fabric, sensitiveness of deep feeling mellowed by humor, and in precision of recollection fused with imagination." W: R. Benét
+ Sat R of Lit 4:649 Mr 3 '28 680w

"The disappointing inequality and lack of form in Mr. Sitwell's new book seem to indicate that the poet has been holding up his natural development by mistaken loyalty to a theory which he has really outgrown. The introduction, written in rhymed couplets, is wholly delightful and has that little pleasure in domestic details which one finds in Cowper's Task, but when Mr. Sitwell leaves rhyme and his snatches of nursery jingle, his artistic conscience seems to vanish." Austin Clarke
+ — Spec 140:237 F 18 '28 200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p760 O 27 '27 720w

SITWELL, OSBERT, and SITWELL, SACHEVERELL. All at sea; a social tragedy in three acts for first-class passengers only; with a preface entitled A few days in an author's life, by Osbert Sitwell. 199p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [8s 6d Duckworth]

822 28-20601

The play "All at sea" is a farce in which a number of smart society types move about between the cocktail bar and the saloon of a transatlantic liner. The play is preceded by a long preface in which Mr Osbert Sitwell airs his artistic grievances, pointing out the superiority of the American stage and the greater insight of American criticism.

Booklist 25:21 O '28

"The scenes of this fantastic affair are on a liner, mostly in the cocktail bar. It is probably meant to be ironically funny. Maybe it is. It undoubtedly is to the Sitwells. But for one benighted American, at least, a little of it goes a long way." W. P. Eaton
— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p11 Ag 19 '28 150w

Boston Transcript p3 My 26 '28 420w

"The main part of [the book]—modestly described as a Preface—. . .is a long-drawn-out whine—utterly unnecessary, and utterly unworthy either of the writer or of his brother and sister—a tedious and tortuous tale of trivial complaint." C. S.
— New Statesman 30:248 D 3 '27 1550w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:487 O '28

"A magnificent and relentless indictment of our artificial existence. . . It is a long time since any writer has delivered such trenchant criticism of the contemporary English stage as is found in this preface. And the observations are doubly interesting and convincing in that each of them is the spontaneous reaction to the author's actual experience." W. F. Kohn
+ Sat R of Lit 5:39 Ag 11 '28 500w

"There are plenty of smart lines and amusing nonsense, particularly in the 'cabaret' scene, and, taken as a whole, All at Sea is far wittier than most revues."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p336 My 3 '28 90w

SITWELL, SACHEVERELL. German baroque art. 109,48p il $6 Doubleday, Doran [25s Duckworth]

709.43 Art, Baroque. Architecture, Baroque. Art, German. Architecture—Germany

In his monograph on the baroque art of central Europe under Leopold I and Charles VI, Mr Sitwell draws in the historical scene, describes the outstanding specimens of the art in Germany, Austria, and Hungary, and the work of the interior decorators, the painters and craftsmen of the period. Following the monograph there are 48 plates illustrating the works described.

Bookm 67:xxv Ag '28 150w

Reviewed by W. R. Agard
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Ap 22 '28 180w

Boston Transcript p4 My 19 '28 250w

Reviewed by Roger Fry
Nation and Ath 42:516 D 31 '27 1050w

"The writing is as good as need be, but there is no obtrusion of writing merely for writing's sake. With estimable compression, in itself the result of very considerable labour, the reader is given a simple and adequate history of the German side of the Baroque manifestation. The whole book is a model of the artistic monograph, a form of book-production which at the present time is very popular and usually very badly executed."
+ New Statesman 30:330 D 17 '27 850w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:475 O '28

"Nothing else in English covers the ground. So this book should have a wide reading and usefulness among discriminating travellers who, having outgrown early prejudice, have learned to value the inexhaustible inventiveness and vitality of the great baroque designers."
+ Sat R of Lit 4:1023 Jl 7 '28 150w

"His pleasant style and real knowledge lend charm to this study."
+ Spec 139:932 N 26 '27 90w

Times [London] Lit Sup p975 D 22 '27 600w

SKELTON, MRS GLADYS (JOHN PRESLAND, pseud.). Escape me—never. 248p $2 Appleton [7s 6d P. Allan]

28-18291

In his old age, Count Valentine von Arlen writes of his cousin Raimond's love for the beautiful, tragic Anastasia. Meeting in Vienna after the war the cousins renew an acquaintance which has lapsed since Val's boyhood visit to the jolly, disorderly household of the English von Arlens. Valentine and Raimond are together when they come upon Anastasia in a Viennese cafe. Obviously a woman of fine breeding she is as obviously a prostitute. At first sight of her tragic face Raimond's great unswerving love is born. She evades him, but in Buda-Pesth he finds her again and will not be denied. Their love comes too late to redeem the past, but in time to transcend with happiness the days that are left them together.

Booklist 25:123 D '28

"A very remarkable story of high emotional appeal, and absorbing interest." I. W. L.
+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 22 '28 450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p106 S '28

"It is a piteous story, most movingly told with a very considerable and stirring artistry. 'Escape Me—Never' is distinctly worth the reading."
+ N Y Times p12 Ag 26 '28 280w

"This story of love triumphant over squalor, sin, and cruelty, finding its fine flower in abnegation, has passages of beauty and scenes of reality, but artifice seems always just around the corner."
+ — Sat R of Lit 5:173 S 29 '28 150w

"The story is neither original nor subtle, but it is told with unusual spontaneity, delicacy, and charm."
+ Spec 140:885 Je 9 '28 110w

"This is a remarkable novel, intense without being sentimental. . . In Anastasia John Presland has created a character that takes complete possession of the reader's mind."
Times [London] Lit Sup p550 Jl 26 '28 350w

Wis Lib Bul 24:256 O '28

SKINNER, CONSTANCE LINDSAY. Roselle of the North. 256p il $1.75 Macmillan

27-22475

"Roselle is a 15-year-old white girl who is adopted by the Cree Indians and makes friends with the daughter of a great medicine man. There are no historic personages in this tale;

SKINNER, C. L.—Continued
but an effort has been made to reproduce the life and atmosphere of the Canadian Northwest, and the types of red and white men who inhabited it, about the year 1800, in the heyday of the fur trade.' "—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

Booklist 24:287 Ap '28
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:126 F '28

"Will appeal especially to girl Scouts and lovers of outdoor life. Superior to many books for girls because of the imaginative and sympathetic spirit in which it is written."
+ Wis Lib Bul 24:58 F '28

SKINNER, CONSTANCE LINDSAY. Search relentless. 318p $2 Coward-McCann

"This portrayal of adventurous life in the Canadian wilds is. . . a mystery story of treachery and sudden death and the law's tireless relentless overturning of clues against the many-colored wild background and with a grave and vivid love story dominant over all." —N Y World

"This is a poet's novel, not because of incidental beauty, but because of its fine compass, the sensitive perception which pervades it, and a bold comprehension of human patterns. Here, too, is a striking material, that of the far north, hitherto shaped to transient ends of melodrama and gaudy entertainment, now turned to truth of observation and feeling." Constance Rourke
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 S 16 '28 800w

"With her beautiful clarity of description and her human viewpoint, Miss Skinner has lifted her book out of the commonplace. It retains a power to thrill without being in any sense a 'thriller.' "
+ Boston Transcript p4 S 15 '28 180w
Ind 121:330 O 6 '28 180w

"A typical Wild West thriller of the sort long familiar to us in the movies, its movement made a little slow at times by Mrs. Skinner's desire to make us see and hear the country she loves."
Nation 127:sup638 D 5 '28 110w

"A novel wherein wild adventure and thoughtful beauty mingle. The story is informed with a deep sense of poetry which is life's core and the law which is its architect, and of that other inner law that alike impels human characters to grope toward their inevitable norms." Muna Lee
+ N Y World p6m S 9 '28 480w

SKINNER, HENRIETTA CHANNING (DANA) (MRS HENRY WHIPPLE SKINNER). Echo from Parnassus; being girlhood memories of Longfellow and his friends. 275p $2 Sears
B or 92 Longfellow, Henry Wadsworth 28-22321

"An interesting and unique personality was Mrs. Henrietta Dana Skinner, whose early recollections, in part, at least, appear in the book entitled 'An Echo From Parnassus.' As the daughter of Richard Henry Dana, she was born and bred in the refinement of Cambridge and shared in childhood the studies and the instructors of the Longfellow children. Her reminiscences include, not only the intimate life of the Longfellow household, but the Channings, the Sedgwicks, Lowell, Dr. Holmes, the Edwin Percy Whipples and Mrs. Harrison Gray Otis." —Springf'd Republican

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 D 9 '28 200w

"It is a very readable book. 'An Echo From Parnassus' recalls, in terms of many-sided living, a many-sided time."
+ N Y Times p22 D 2 '28 500w

Reviewed by Lilian Whiting
Springf'd Republican p7e O 7 '28 1000w

SKINNER, OTIS. Mad folk of the theatre; ten studies in temperament. 297p il $3.50 Bobbs
927.9 Actors and actresses 28-8960

Mr Skinner gossips entertainingly about the lives and adventures of some of the less well known folk of the theatre. In this "somewhat sorry little group, for the most part a trifle mad" are Thomas Betterton, a member of the first Drury Lane company; two favorites of royalty, Nell Gwynn and Dora Jordan; the notorious George Anne Bellamy; and three tragic actors, whose genius was touched with insanity: Edmund Kean, George Frederick Cooke and Junius Brutus Booth.

Booklist 24:363 Je '28

"Mr. Skinner is permeated with the atmosphere of his art. He is sincerely interested in the people he depicts, but he writes in the spirit of romance. One feels him at all times identifying himself with his characters, yet he tends at the same time to an artificial pathos. Experienced in technique of the stage he ends his sketches with a dramatic climax, a poignant or striking contrast. Chatty and readable, his style leans toward the florid. Not for him the reserved portrayal on stage or in book, but the rhetorical devices of the older school."
+ — Bookm 67:xxiv Je '28 250w

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 Ap 15 '28 880w

Cleveland Open Shelf p104 S '28

"He writes with literary grace and charm and his dramatic instinct makes him see the value for his narrative of the drama in the life of his subject."
+ N Y Times p15 Ap 22 '28 480w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:409 Jl '28

"All his material is old and a trifle shopworn, but he has known how to select from it judiciously and to dish up his extracts in fresh, lively, entertaining fashion, with a preference for spicy flavors, but a due regard for historical accuracy. For the host who know only the contemporary theatre this book will be both attractive and instructive." J. R. Towse
+ Sat R of Lit 4:842 My 5 '28 600w

Springf'd Republican p7f Je 10 '28 750w

"Mr. Skinner's book is delightfully illustrated and his style is as easy, humorous and unaffected as his subjects are engaging." Helen Redlig
+ Theatre Arts Mo 12:370 My '28 300w

SLATTERY, CHARLES LEWIS. Following Christ. 167p $1 Houghton
265 Christian life. Protestant Episcopal church 28-7055

The Bishop of Massachusetts discusses simply and without dogmatism some problems of the Christian life—baptismal vows, confirmation, the creed, the apostolic church, Christian worship, and the holy communion.

"The chief charm of any book by Bishop Slattery is the flow of his English, which invests his books of wisdom with something of the pleasant flavor of old missal lore, although it deals, unhesitatingly, with the problems of every day." I. W. L.
+ Boston Transcript p5 Mr 10 '28 430w

"He gives frank, simple, clear and direct answers to such questions as why confirmation should be desired, what good it does, what is required of one who is confirmed. All through the little book Dr. Slattery considers each item of belief, purpose, action and behavior in detail, thus making the work a manual of daily Christian life and practice."
+ N Y Times p13 Ap 1 '28 220w

SLOAN, MRS ELEANOR (VERDERY). More about Ellie and Mr Me Too. 158p il $2 Dutton 28-17091

Part of the time Ellie and her little brother Fran are at Sandacre, their seashore home, but oftener they are at Grandma's house in Great Neck, where they play happily winter or summer at things which very small people enjoy.

"Mrs. Sloan has drawn on memories of her own childhood pleasures for most of the incidents of the story, which she writes simply and realistically, but with plenty of dramatic spirit. All children under 10 will enjoy the picturesque account of these happy children having just the kind of fun they themselves love."

+ N Y Times p20 Ag 19 '28 150w

"This is a pleasing story for the smaller children. It is a sequel to 'About Ellie at Sandacre.' It is tersely presented in big type, and both text and pictures are charming. Edna Potter is the illustrator."

Sat R of Lit 5:254 O 13 '28 70w

SLOCUM, EUGENE E. Ye gods & little fishes. 312p $2.50 Dodd

799 Fishing 27-19422

Delightful essays and random notes on trout fishing modes and mores, which will appeal especially to the brotherhood of the rod and stream.

"The author talks to the confirmed fisherman in the language of the confirmed fisherman, and those who stand outside the charmed circle will feel lonely and baffled. But anyone who gets a fresh thrill every time he takes his rod in hand and wades into a cool stream will find Mr. Slocum's chapters a mine of information and inspiration."

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 O 16 '27 90w

"Many fisherman have written books on their hobby, and many have demonstrated that fishing is a fertile field for delightful writing. The author of 'Ye Gods and Little Fishes' has made a book which ranks with the very best on this subject." J. R. S.

+ Boston Transcript p4 S 17 '27 510w

"The entire book is written in the spirit of that mellow philosophy and genial tolerance that years of devotion to the angler's art is supposed to evolve."

+ N Y Times p7 D 18 '27 320w

Wis Lib Bul 24:54 F '28

SLOCUM, STEPHEN ELMER. Beggars of the sea. 303p $2.50 Minton

28-26453

During the Inquisition the people of the Netherlands made a desperate effort to throw off the yoke of Spain. The action of this historical novel takes place chiefly in Holland and Zeeland and pictures the conflict in vivid scenes, which throw into relief the plight of a young Hollander and his love.

Booklist 24:405 Jl '28

Reviewed by F: H. Martens

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 My 20 '28 210w

"A story of deathless power and inspiration. And told worthily." F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ap 21 '28 630w

Cleveland Open Shelf p107 S '28

N Y Evening Post p12 Ap 7 '28 50w

"The work as a whole stands out above the mass of historical fiction because of the author's evident enthusiasm for his subject-matter and because of his care to make the incidents historically accurate and at the same time vivid and real."

+ N Y Times p16 Ap 15 '28 530w

Springf'd Republican p7f Ag 26 '28 280w

SLOSSON, EDWIN EMERY. Snapshots of science. 299p il $2 Century

504 Science 28-11296

Brief views, from two to six pages in length, of recent progress in contemporary science. weekly.

Booklist 25:16 O '28

"These late news bulletins by the always readable Director of Science Service, Washington, D.C., present in admirably lucid manner much recently acquired information in such fields as agriculture, industry, medicine, and daily life. For a palatable combination of authentic scientific information and real enjoyment there is nothing quite like a Slosson book."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p21 Je 3 '28 130w

"It is the kind of book that one can take up at odd moments and begin to read with interest wherever the book chances to open."

+ Ind & Eng Chem 20:875 Ag '28 170w

"Mr. Slosson does this sort of popularizing of science exceedingly well, for he knows his subject thoroughly, he has a notable gift for simple and lucid statement and he possesses a sense of humor that enables him to be whimsical, fanciful, pungent, amusing, picturesque, as he likes."

+ N Y Times p18 Ap 29 '28 330w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:456 O '28

R of Rs 77:adv29 Je '28 70w

SLOUSCHZ, NAHUM. Travels in North Africa. 488p $2.50 Jewish pub.

296 Jews in Africa. Africa, North 28-924

"The author has spent ten years of travel among the Jews of Northern Africa, making researches into their history and ethnography with a view to throwing light on the origins and history of Judaism throughout the whole Mediterranean basin. This book, describing the results of his voyages and the conclusions come to is intended as a popular work, containing documentary evidence, facts of historical and social interest, observations on the social and religious life among various Jewish groups of Africa, and the author's reflections on the differences between these and those of the modern world."—Times [London] Lit Sup

"Taken as a whole, the narrative parts of this book are interesting to the ordinary reader. It is as a scholarly work of research, however, that the author's efforts and discoveries, here detailed, commend themselves to serious students of the subject. His learning and ability cannot be questioned." J. A.

+ Boston Transcript p3 F 11 '28 300w

Reviewed by Gustav Davidson

N Y World p11m Ap 29 '28 520w

Pratt p9 spring '28

"It is a scholarly book, full of sympathy but void of mawkishness." H. I. Priestley

+ Sat R of Lit 4:858 My 12 '28 210w

Times [London] Lit Sup p97 F 9 '28 70w

SMALL, SIDNEY HERSCHEL. Splendid Californians. 323p $2.50 Bobbs

28-10629

Don Estevan and his daughter Hilarita come from Spain to their new home in California, near the ranch of their friends the de la Torres. Hilarita and young de la Torre grow up together and are affianced. Misfortune in the person of Cienega, agent of Mexico, divides them. But the Californians win title to their country against Mexico and Indian attacks, and thanks to brave Fra Juan, a priest, the lovers are spared to one another.

Booklist 25:123 D '28

"It has the quality of instinctive good writing that a congenial, thoroughly felt and sympathetically understood subject is apt to develop. In every respect it is a worthy successor to his precedent, 'Sword and Candle.'" F: H. Martens

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 My 6 '28 230w

Boston Transcript p3 Je 16 '28 230w

Cleveland Open Shelf p106 S '28

SMALL, S. H.—Continued

"'The Splendid Californians' sets forth the romance of a stirring time and a high-spirited people, all of which becomes capital reading in the hands of a writer who evidently deals with a subject which stirs both imagination and ability."

+ N Y Times p24 My 6 '28 400w

SMALLWOOD, JULIAN CHASE, and KOUWENHOVEN, FRANK WOLFERT. Mechanics for engineers, statics and kinetics. 185p il $2.50 Van Nostrand

621 Mechanics, Applied 28-14128

"Text-book of university grade involving some use of the calculus, and omitting subjects unimportant in average engineering practice. Has a large number of diagrams and practical problems. Authors are on the staff of Johns Hopkins University."—N Y New Tech Bks

"Although intended for a college textbook, this work is well suited for use in self-instruction. The chemist who finds himself involved in engineering problems without the necessary training will find that this book is clearly and logically written, with many problems at every step." W. L. Badger

+ Ind & Eng Chem 20:1277 N '28 90w

N Y New Tech Bks 13:36 Jl '28

SMART, JOHN SEMPLE. Shakespeare, truth and tradition. 224p $4 Longmans [7s 6d E. Arnold]

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Biography

This biography by a Shakespearian scholar, late lecturer on English literature at the university of Glasgow, was recovered at great labor from his penciled notes by Prof. Nixon who contributes a memoir of the author.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Je 10 '28 330w

"A book which can be unreservedly praised. A work of the rare kind which shows genuine and first-hand learning along with a true sense of style." E. E. Kellett

+ New Statesman 31:125 My 5 '28 630w

"The book is one which must be added to every Shakespeare library."

+ Sat R 145:570 My 5 '28 60w

"The book is a quietly effective protest against the sensational paradoxes in which the biographers and critics of Shakespeare vied with each other for two centuries. Dr. Smart seems to have been eminently sane, and it is the sanity of his book which will make it annoying to lovers of sensation and refreshing to all who want to enjoy their Shakespeare in peace."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p268 Ap 12 '28 840w

SMITH, ARTHUR DOUGLAS HOWDEN (ALLEN GRANT, pseud.). Hate. 319p $2 Lippincott

28-25184

Driven on the rocks off the coast of Portugal by a British frigate and ship-wrecked, Captain Fellowes escapes with his life, thanks to Donna Cara. He is making his way back to America on the True Bounty when he is impressed by a British captain, and for his insolence, flogged. Escaping once more, Fellowes commands an American cruiser and returns to sea to hunt out his enemy who is also a friend of Donna Cara. The private feud of the two antagonists merges in the greater issues of the War of 1812.

"'Hate' is crammed with full-blooded romantic personae, lively actions and the authentic color of stirring days." Will Cuppy

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 O 7 '28 150w

"A fast moving tale, typical of its author's usual style, it is full of thrills and bloodshed. The tang of salt spume drenches the pages to which an historical basis lends credence."

+ Boston Transcript p3 S 15 '28 150w

"Mr. Howden Smith's plot is noticeably threadbare and hackneyed. His is a book for those who like their romance constructed according to a set standard with only enough alteration to differentiate one year's model from the last."

— Sat R of Lit 5:253 O 18 '28 250w

SMITH, CHARD POWERS. Lost address. 104p ² $2 Houghton [6s Benn]

811

This is Chard Powers Smith's second volume of verse, his first being entitled "Along the wind" (Book Review Digest, 1926).

"Mr. Smith's poems are, on the whole, admirably conditioned and vigorously executed. His varied subject matter and range of treatment demonstrate a remarkable versatility on the part of the young poet, without any sacrifice in dignity or balance. His chief handicap is that his shadow sometimes stands between him and the sun."

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p9 S 2 '28 530w

"There often is a lack of lucidity in Mr. Smith's work and a harsh abruptness in conveying an idea, which is not atoned for by any rare poetical quality in word arrangement. As is usual with most modern poets, his shortest, simplest offerings rank among his best."

— Boston Transcript p5 Ag 29 '28 150w

"Readers will find a good many things of interest and some of value. The volume is superior in variety and in net accomplishment to the first collection. It remains for the most part, however, the attempt of a talented and mentally alert person to write poetry out of the periphery of a consciousness not yet analyzed or disciplined." James Rorty

+ — Nation 127:430 O 24 '28 350w

Reviewed by Austin Clarke

Nation and Ath 42:976 Mr 31 '28 110w

Reviewed by Percy Hutchison

N Y Times p4 N 11 '28 200w

"'Lost Address' is in some places exciting and in some places interesting and in some places dull; and the poet has put several of the dullest pieces at the beginning. But the lover of poetry should persevere for Mr. Smith has the root of the matter in him. . . He has, in fact, a lot to learn about writing poetry; but certainly he is a poet."

+ — Sat R 145:527 Ap 28 '28 240w

"Mr. Smith is unusually versatile, but his rough-and-ready ballads are better than his lyrics." Austin Clarke

+ — Spec 140:572 Ap 14 '28 50w

"Mr. Smith's title is an unusually happy one if we interpret it as signifying no settled place of abode. For his verse seldom comes to rest; it is fleet and evasive, touches our mind or imagination, but will not be held. It is astonishingly versatile and accomplished and it moves with an apparent inevitability, but too fluently to strike its roots far down into reality. It lacks a centre of gravity."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p226 Mr 22 '28 320w

SMITH, COPELAND. Straight answers to life ² questions. 177p $1.50 Willett

170 Christian life. Conduct of life 28-22938

"Dr. Smith broadcasts six times a week, and his question-box appears in the Chicago Daily News. These questions and answers reveal what people are thinking about. Personal religion, personal conduct, prohibition, sex, crime, modern youth and scores of other themes are treated honestly, squarely, and yet sympathetically. Unquestionably Dr. Smith understands human nature."—Boston Transcript

Boston Transcript p6 D 8 '28 130w

"It seems to me a valuable book for those who are perplexed and want answers to their questions; for those who want to know what the questions of the ordinary man and woman really are; and for those who enjoy watching the play of a versatile and incisive mind when it is at grips with genuine difficulties." Paul Hutchinson

+ Christian Century 45:1165 S 27 '28 2100w

SMITH, DAVID NICHOL. Shakespeare in the eighteenth century. 92p $2 (5s) Oxford

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation

"Three lectures, delivered in London a year ago, are here published verbatim with the addition of footnote references. Professor Smith's purpose is to exhibit Shakespeare's reputation during the hundred years between Betterton and Mrs. Siddons, Rowe and Malone, and to show how the critics, scholars and actors of the century contributed to that reputation."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

"In fact, it must be frankly said that Professor Smith has beaten over a good deal of old straw. But the subject is important enough to bear repetition, for to a greater degree than is generally realized the eighteenth century anticipated the methods and subjects of the scholarship and criticism of later periods." S: Chew

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 O 21 '28 430w

"It belongs to that best class of book—the class in which a master of his subject gives out, easily and lightly, of the riches of his knowledge. Small as it is, the amount of information it contains is astonishing, and yet we are always left with the feeling that Mr. Nichol Smith, like Lucullus in Horace, has abundance more in reserve. He is Bacon's three men in one—the full reader, the ready converser, and the exact writer."

+ New Statesman 31:432 Jl 7 '28 420w

"In his lecture on the critics Mr. Nichol Smith has brought together many very different and very interesting opinions which are not likely to be known to the general reader."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p683 S 27 '28 1100w

SMITH, EDWARD HENRY. Mysteries of the missing. 317p $3.50 Dial press

920 Biography. Kidnapping 27-25144

Here are brought together some enigmas of human history, cases of disappearance and kidnapping, most of which have never been solved. Contents: A note on disappearing; The Charlie Ross enigma; "Severed from the race"; The vanished archduke; The stolen Conway boy; The lost heir of Tichborne; The kidnappers of Central park; Dorothy Arnold; Eddie Cudahy and Pat Crowe; The Whitla kidnapping; The mystery at Highbridge; A nun in vivisepulture; The return of Jimmie Glass; The fates and Joe Varotta; The lost millionaire; The Ambrose Bierce irony; The adventure of the century; Spectral ships.

"If Mr. Smith has failed in this volume to match the superb excitement of his 'Famous Poison Mysteries,' he has at least provided many thrills of high voltage and occasional touches of horror, as well as a constant appeal to the appetite for riddles. As gruesome entertainment the seventeen pieces well fulfill their purpose."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 Ja 1 '28 120w

N Y Times p18 Ja 15 '28 360w

"Superficially, kidnappings are pretty much all alike, or, at least, have many conspicuous features in common: the distinguished features are usually, unfortunately for Mr. Smith, matters of conduct and motive. Yet 'Mysteries of the Missing' is an honest book: even when relating mysteries that are not mysteries it indulges in no sleight-of-hand, but sticks to the available facts and their accepted interpretations. A sprinkling of guesses would have made it a more exciting book."

Sat R of Lit 4:599 F 11 '28 420w

SMITH, ELLIOTT DUNLAP. Psychology for executives; a study of human nature in industry. 262p $3.50 Harper

150 Psychology, Applied. Employment management. Efficiency, Industrial 28-5263

The author, who is division manager at the Dennison Manufacturing Co. and lecturer at Harvard, deals with such themes as habits and how to handle them, the forces of personality, self-control, and the effect of group in industry.

Reviewed by C. L. Stone

Am Econ R 18:521 S '28 120w

"For men who are dealing with individuals and wish a book analyzing motives and replete with factory illustrations, this volume is certainly a fine addition to the field. It is the reviewer's opinion that the suggestion for teaching set forth in Appendix I may be the part of the book most likely to raise differences of opinion." J. R. Doubman

+ Ann Am Acad 137:277 My '28 90w

Booklist 24:383 Jl '28

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 O 14 '28 80w

"The basic material for this book is drawn from the author's own experience with college students and factory workers and serves as a valuable guide to the executive for the solution of problems that depend upon some knowledge of psychology for their solution."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ap 28 '28 170w

"It is all very entertaining and quite inhuman." G: Joel

+ N Y World p9m My 20 '28 100w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:436 O '28

St Louis 26:187 Je '28

Springf'd Republican p10 Je 13 '28 480w

Wis Lib Bul 24:157 My '28

SMITH, ERNEST BRAMAH (ERNEST BRAMAH, pseud.). Kai Lung unrolls his mat. 320p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Richards] 28-14321

"Through the malignity of his enemy, Ming-Shu, the story teller [Kai Lung] is despoiled of his all, including the beloved Hwa-mei. Undaunted, he begins the pursuit, with his golden tongue bewitching all those whom he encounters till he craftily rescues Hwa-mei, and avenges his wrongs."—Spec

---

Booklist 25:30 O '28

"Herein you will find a glamour and store of meritorious and golden wealth; and the altogether obscure and clay-fingered menial who writes these unappetizing words can do no more than lift his egregious and yet joyful voice to the praise of the incomparable Kai Lung." Donald Douglas

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 My 13 '28 300w

+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 28 '28 300w

"Is it possible, as the rumor runs, that there are those who have no relish for these sly Oriental suavities, these delicate evasions of language, this restrained Gongorism carried to the point of fine art? If such there be, there is no use telling them that this latest volume is more subtly humorous than even its masterly predecessors."

+ Nation 126:653 Je 6 '28 50w

"This is the third volume of such tales from his hand—tales of Chinese life, written with rare understanding and in vigorous, nervous. picturesque English that simulates at times with amazing dexterity the suave, sarcastic, flowery idiom of the Celestial Real—and it may be said at once that it is wholly worthy of the two that preceded it." G. W. Harris

+ N Y Evening Post p9 S 29 '28 630w

"Shorn of their literary style the adventures and stories of Kai Lung would be practically worthless. As things are, however, one can take no small amount of pleasure in Mr. Bramah's gift for hyperbole."

+ — N Y Times p19 My 20 '28 500w

SMITH, E. B.—Continued

"The ponderous, polished, and totally insincere courtesy of all the characters, with its transposition of our ordinary slang phrases into a sort of high-flown Chinese idiom, is delightful. . . We only refrain from saying that these books are the best of their kind because we know of no others that are at all like them. They are really unique." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 149:114 My 16 '28 180w

"Those who are acquainted with the courteous and philosophic Kai-Lung, and take delight in his elaborate stylization, will be charmed to hear his smooth accents again, while new passers-by will pause enchanted where he unrolls his mat." R. A. Taylor

+ Spec 140:653 Ap 28 '28 100w

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p332 My 3 '28 400w

SMITH, GERALD BIRNEY. Current Christian thinking. (Univ. of Chicago publications in religious education. Handbooks in ethics and religion) 209p $2 Univ. of Chicago press [10s Cambridge univ. press]

230 Christianity. Theology 28-7292

"Belonging to a series of handbooks on ethics and religion provided for the use of colleges and seminaries in America this volume undertakes to interpret the important trends of present-day theological thinking in the United States. It starts with a survey of Roman Catholicism, because, so it is asserted, the real significance of the present perplexity of Protestants can be fully understood only against the background of Roman Catholicism. We are then provided with chapters on the significance of the Protestant revolution and the way in which Modernism is dealt with in the Roman Catholic Church. Having described Fundamentalism and its deficiencies the author shows how the argument from Christian experience may be developed and gives an account of Ritschlianism and the appeal to Christ. The succeeding chapters deal with the theological interpretation of the natural world, the modern quest for God, the controversy over evolution, and the spirit of evangelical Christianity."—Times [London] Lit Sup

---

"The book is interesting as illustrating the position of modernists on current subjects by one who is representative." T. C. R.

Boston Transcript p4 Ap 11 '28 200w

— Cath World 127:122 Ap '28 150w

"As a brief survey of the processes and products of modern religious thought, with an outline of the important literature on the subject and a constructive study of the meaning of Christianity in our time, Professor Smith's small volume is incomparable." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 45:573 My 3 '28 730w

"The method is simple, and consists in brief, readable statements and comparisons of current ways of thinking through the problems of religion; and an estimate of the adequacy of these various ways to meet the demands of reason and modern knowledge. Its effect is to show the inadequacy of these ways of thinking to make adjustment to modern knowledge and life. The presentations are fair; but the criticisms, while accurate perhaps, sometimes give the sense that more is demanded of the attempts at adjustment than might reasonably be required." S. B. M.

+ — Crozer Quarterly 5:249 Ap '28 430w

"To intelligent lay discussion groups the book commends itself most admirably." Vergilius Ferm

+ Int J Ethics 38:487 Jl '28 180w

"Combined with McGiffert's Rise of Modern Religious Ideas, it should give the layman all the guidance he needs through the intricacies of modern religious thought. But it is not only the layman who will be attracted by this book." W. M. Horton

+ J Religion 8:646 O '28 630w

Reviewed by B. W. Bacon

New Repub 56:sup222 O 10 '28 130w

"Nobody can doubt the earnestness of the man who wrote this present volume, but one cannot help wondering where he learned his science." B. J. Bell

— Sat R of Lit 4:963 Je 16 '28 900w

"Though the book is concerned with religious conditions in America it deals with the deeper elements of Christian thought in such a well-balanced fashion that all who are interested in the progress of theology will find it an advantage to be acquainted with these thoughtful studies."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p226 Mr 22 '28 140w

SMITH, GERALD BIRNEY, ed. Religious thought in the last quarter-century. 239p $3 Univ. of Chicago press [15s Cambridge univ. press]

270 Christianity—Addresses, essays, lectures 28-7958

"During 1926-27 the Journal of Religion under the editorship of Professor G. B. Smith published a series of articles relating to the character and progress of theological scholarship within the period of the first quarter of the twentieth century. The present volume is a collation of these papers written by competent authorities and representing eleven distinct phases of religious interest and research." (Int J Ethics) Contents: Old Testament interpretation, by J. M. Powis Smith; The life of Jesus, by S. J. Case; The study of early Christianity, by H. R. Willoughby; The interpretation of Protestantism, by J. T. McNeill; Theological thinking in America, by G. B. Smith; The psychology of religion in America, by E. L. Schaub; History of religions, by A. E Haydon; Religious education, by T. G. Soares; American preaching, by O. S. Davis; Thought concerning Protestant foreign missions, by A. G. Baker; The development of social Christianity in America, by S. Mathews.

Booklist 24:345 Je '28

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison

Christian Century 45:476 Ap 12 '28 280w

"While neither the papers nor the volume aim to be exhaustive, the treatment affords an excellent summary of some of the most significant achievements in this field as well as an index to 'the important questions and tasks which lie before the next generation of scholars.' The reader will not fail to note the growing emphasis of the social approach to the study of religion to which these papers direct attention." Vergilius Ferm

+ Int J Ethics 38:364 Ap '28 180w

SMITH, GRAFTON ELLIOT, and others. Culture; the diffusion controversy. (New science ser.) 106p $1 Norton

901 Civilization. Anthropology 28-6827

"A compendious statement of the current anthropological controversy concerning the single or multiple origin of the higher cultures of the old and new world. Those whose interest is stimulated by vivid and well documented polemic will enjoy the challenging problems which have developed out of years of laborious and unromantic research."—Sat R of Lit

---

Booklist 24:359 Je '28

Reviewed by C. M. Perry

Int J Ethics 39:125 O '28 90w

Nation 126:594 My 23 '28 100w

"The lay reader can hardly avoid coming to the end with the conclusion that they are all trying to formulate theories upon too scanty a supply of facts and that if they would busy themselves more with investigation and less with argument they might sooner come to an agreement. But he will find the arguments on both sides interestingly presented—and not the less so because of the heated 'scrap' of which they give evidence—and the whole question set before him simply and clearly."

+ — N Y Times p18 Ja 1 '28 260w

Reviewed by L. S. Cressman
Pol Sci Q 43:158 Mr '28 250w

"For those general readers whose knowledge of history is confined almost exclusively to the history of the old world, Dr. Spinden's rapid survey of the great inventions of the new world will provide a wealth of new and fascinating evidence of the wide range of human inventiveness."

+ Sat R of Lit 4:979 Je 16 '28 100w

Reviewed by Bruno Lasker
Survey 61:43 O 1 '28 80w

SMITH, HENRY PRESERVED. Heretic's defense; a footnote to history. 130p $1.50 Scribner

B or 92 26-22394

"A record of the author's life, centering around his trial for heresy by the Cincinnati Presbytery in 1892 and the appeal to the Presbyterian General Assembly in 1894, on both of which occasions the verdict was against Dr. Smith. The book constitutes an excellent summary of the history of the attitude of the Presbyterian church toward the historical study of the Scripture. Professor Smith contributed much toward bringing in a more liberal attitude."—J Religion

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 Je 12 '27 160w

Cath World 125:281 My '27 500w

J Religion 7:504 Jl '27 100w

Reviewed by C. E. Ayres
New Repub 50:308 My 4 '27 200w

N Y Evening Post p8 Ja 22 '27 170w

"A delightful bit of autobiography which is so simple, modest and brief withal that it gives little idea to the uninformed reader of the real importance of the man and his experience. The book has value as a chapter in the history of religious controversy in America, and is interesting at just this time as bearing on the contemporary disputes of Fundamentalism." J: H. Holmes

+ N Y World p11m Ja 9 '27 100w

Springf'd Republican p10 Ja 11 '27 450w

"The narrative is written with a pleasing absence of anything like recrimination and manifests a fine temper which serves to commend the author's defense of views which are now generally accepted by scholars."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p255 Ap 7 '27 250w

SMITH, JESSICA. Woman in soviet Russia. (Vanguard studies of soviet Russia) 216p 50c Vanguard press

396 Women in Russia. Woman—Legal status, laws, etc. Marriage 28-6426

This inquiry into the status of woman under the soviet régime looks at women at home and in industry, in politics and in education, and studies present conditions in regard to marriage and divorce.

Booklist 24:386 Jl '28

"Miss Smith's little book is replete with vital sociological material and keen observations. It fills the jaded American economist or sociologist with new hopes." Theresa Wolfson

+ Nation 127:46 Jl 11 '28 430w

SMITH, REED, comp. South Carolina ballads; with a study of the traditional ballad today. 174p $3 Harvard univ. press

811.08 Ballads. American ballads and songs. Ballads, American. Folklore—South Carolina 28-21394

"In the earlier pages of his book Professor Smith reprints, or presents for the first time, short papers on the topics: ballads and folksong, dramatic and narrative traits, communal composition and transmission, ballad degeneration, the ballad in literature, and the ballad in America. In the second part appear a small sheaf of English and Scottish ballads surviving in North Carolina and a few songs."—Sat R of Lit

"Professor Reed Smith has brought together the results of his many years of interest in traditional balladry. The volume is pleasingly written and of scholarly character. The short introductory discussions are non-controversial in tone. Though obviously brought up on older views, the author is open-minded, and he gives his readers probably the most rational presentation at present available of what is left of the old 'communal' theory of ballad origins." Louise Pound

+ Sat R of Lit 5:220 O 13 '28 450w

Reviewed by Granville Hicks
Springf'd Republican p7e S 23 '28 1250w

SMITH, ROBERT METCALF, ed. Types of [2] philosophic drama. (World drama ser.) 524p $1.65 Prentice-Hall

808.2 Drama—Collections 28-13244

The Professor of English, Lehigh university, presents with brief introductory discussion eight great works from antiquity to the present era, in which the central theme is man's struggle to understand God and the universe. Contents: Foreword; The book of Job; Prometheus bound (c. 460 B.C.), by Æschylus; Everyman; Dr Faustus (c. 1588), by Christopher Marlowe; Samson Agonistes (c. 1671), by J: Milton; Manfred (1817), by G: G. Byron; Prometheus unbound (1820), by P. B. Shelley; The life of man (1906), by Leonid Andrieev.

Boston Transcript p3 Je 20 '28 200w

Dial 85:269 S '28 70w

SMITH, ROBERT METCALF, ed. Types of world tragedy. (World drama ser.) 667p $1.65 Prentice-Hall

808.2 Tragedy. Drama—Collections 28-15614

"The dramas in this volume have been chosen to illustrate the varying conceptions of tragedy from the classical art of the Greeks to the naturalism of the modern era." (Foreword) Contents: Œdipus the king, by Sophocles; Medea, by Euripides; Phaedra, by Jean Racine; Othello, by W: Shakespeare; The Cenci, by Percy Bysshe Shelley; Ghosts, by Henrik Ibsen; The weavers, by Gerhart Hauptmann; The lower depths, by Maxim Gorky.

Boston Transcript p3 Je 20 '28 330w

SMITH, THOMAS VERNOR. American philos- [2] ophy of equality. 339p $3 Univ. of Chicago press [15s Cambridge univ. press]

323.42 Equality 27-23671

"The earlier chapters trace the ideas of 'natural' equality which underlay the Declaration of Independence, the slavery struggle, and the movement for womens' rights. Then after examing and rejecting the philosophical justifications of the equalitarian ideal derived from Christian theology, Kant, and Utilitarianism, the author expounds and applies the gospel according to the school of Dewey."—Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by A. J. Todd
Am J Soc 34:399 S '28 300w

Reviewed by W. Y. Elliott
Am Pol Sci R 22:458 My '28 550w

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 S 2 '28 500w

Reviewed by Gladys Bleiman
J Philos 25:330 Je 7 '28 1350w

"Professor Smith writes as a philosopher and an historian. His reasoning is sound, his information accurate, and his style clear and virile. The volume is a notable contribution to our political philosophy." D: S. Muzzey

+ New Repub 54:sup403 My 16 '28 750w

New Statesman 30:736 Mr 17 '28 320w

SMITH, T: V.—Continued

"This is a useful book, attractive in its physical appearance, well written, and calculated to stimulate the American reader to thought about the premises of his democratic faith. It gives evidence of the author's wide reading in social and political philosophy, as well as of his open-mindedness, candor, and moral buoyancy." R. B. Perry

+ Sat R of Lit 4:717 Mr 3 '28 1050w

Times [London] Lit Sup p115 F 16 '28 110w

World Tomorrow 11:182 Ap '28 180w

SMITH, WALTON HALL. Red ivory. 278p $2 Houghton

28-18756

Dwight Dockery, young director of an American ivory-buying company, met in the wilds of Africa Marceline, a well-known ivory poacher. Dwight was immediately drawn to this man and his charming daughter. But there were other white men in the jungle who were interested in the beautiful white girl and the hidden hoard of ivory which her father owned. It was a battle of wits and more, but Dwight came out very much ahead.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p9 Ag 19 '28 90w

" 'Red Ivory' is an exciting tale that will not only hold but carry forward the reader's interest. It remains for Mr. Smith to add workmanlike, sustained finesse to his already extensive variety of gifts." W. E. H.

+ — Boston Transcript p5 Ag 29 '28 500w

"The author of 'Red Ivory' sagaciously blends the high spots of a thin plot with an impressionistic picture of jungle life."

N Y Times p16 Ag 12 '28 360w

"A silly and superfluous love theme is introduced without benefit to the story, but as a whole the book holds one's interest, is smoothly written, fairly convincing, and happily devoid of the usual jungle claptrap."

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:92 S 1 '28 150w

Wis Lib Bul 24:256 O '28

SMYTH, ETHEL MARY. Final burning of boats, etc. 263p il $4 (10s 6d) Longmans

B or 92 28-11107

"Its contents are heterogeneous, beginning with polemical autobiography and ending with two librettos of light opera. This 'Final Burning of the Boats' is a complete saying of Dame Ethel Smyth's say about man's sexual jealousy of woman's attempts and achievements in any arts and professions which for long have been his monopoly."—Times [London] Lit Sup

"In these pages the author is aggressive, tactless and illogical. Perhaps her disappointments are traceable to the same attributes."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Jl 1 '28 210w

"As in the case of Dr. Smyth's earlier volumes of memoirs, there is much that is worth reading here and she has a vigor and terseness in writing which recommend her chapters."

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 7 '28 300w

New Statesman 31:92 Ap 28 '28 530w

"If in this 'rapid biographical survey' she blows her own trumpet, she blows it extraordinarily well and we are never bored, indeed she knows how to fix our delighted attention during the whole of the performance; when she tells us, however, that men try to 'damp down' the success achieved by any feminine rival in any art or trade, and tilts her lance against 'the gentlemen of the Press' who have not 'the remotest conception of the quality of my work,' we cannot help smiling."

+ — Spec 140:473 Mr 24 '28 700w

"If Dame Ethel Smyth's musical defeat is the spur that urged her to write, her books are worth it."

Times [London] Lit Sup p209 Mr 22 '28 780w

SNAITH, JOHN COLLIS. Surrender. 294p $2 Appleton

28-19626

"Surrender" tells the story of a young American artist and an Englishman who together escaped from the Foreign legion and after a three years' adventurous trek thru the desert, made their way back to the civilized world—and to further adventures in England.

Booklist 25:123 D '28

"What has happened to the Snaith of 'Broke of Covenden' and 'Fortune'? What sea-green plague has come upon the man who once thrilled the world with 'William Jordan Junior'? Now Mr. Snaith has become a novel-a-year man and each novel is a little worse with succeeding abominations like 'The Coming' and 'Thus Far' and now with 'Surrender.' You can hardly blame a boiler for his pots. Once Mr. Smith was a goldsmith."

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 O 28 '28 180w

"It is as thrilling a story as 'Beau Geste' and a more credible one in many ways." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p3 S 8 '28 230w

"All in all his desert is one of real sand and not moving-picture devices. Another thing for which to be grateful is an unromanticized description of the Foreign Legion."

+ N Y Times p12 Ag 26 '28 360w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:548 N '28

Pratt p44 autumn '28

"The work has high narrative interest."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 16 '28 500w

"So long as Mr. Snaith is writing of adventure in the desert his story moves along briskly and entertainingly enough, but the second part sails too close to the wind of the novelette. Mr. Snaith has done better work than 'Surrender.' "

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p650 S 13 '28 170w

SNELL, EDMUND. Blue murder. 288p $2 Lippincott [7s 6d Unwin]

There was a new menace abroad in the form of a deadly gas which left no sign on its victim except a mark of blue powder. It was known that it was shot from a special gun, but it was left for the British secret service to ferret out its source. And in the ferreting out Alan Dighton and his love affairs took the prominent place.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Ap 29 '28 80w

Boston Transcript p3 My 19 '28 170w

Cleveland Open Shelf p108 S '28

"There are some exciting moments, but, on the whole, the book is disappointing."

— Spec 138:157 Jl 23 '27 60w

Springf'd Republican p7f Ag 19 '28 200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p521 Jl 28 '27 130w

SNELL, EDMUND. Kontrol. 306p $2 Lippincott [7s 6d Benn]

28-25626

During the war Guriev confides to Wildash his scheme for replacing a damaged brain in a sound body with a sound brain from a crippled body. Wildash counsels Guriev to forget it. But ten years later he finds to his horror that the surgeon has a huge laboratory and sanitorium in England for carrying out his scheme and has not only actually performed the gruesome operation on two of his (Wildash's) friends, but somewhere in the world has an island utopia inhabited by his patients. Wildash himself is kidnapped and carried off to the island where the final cataclysm takes place.

Boston Transcript p8 N 17 '28 220w

"This book deserves a line of appreciation for the first 240 of its 290 pages. But unfortunately Mr. Snell falls down badly when it comes to extricating his hero."

+ — New Statesman 31:546 Ag 4 '28 70w

"Despite its extravagance the story is told well."

Times [London] Lit Sup p650 S 13 '28 130w

SNODGRASS, KATHARINE. Copra and coconut oil. (Stanford univ. Fats and oils studies) 135p $2; pa $1.50 Food research inst.

665.3 Copra. Coconut 28-13279

The rapid increase in the use of coconut oil in this country and the fact that the industry promises to grow in importance in the future, gives value and timeliness to this study of the world production of copra and coconut oil and the international trade in these commodities.

"The treatise is full of interesting facts gathered from a great variety of sources and contained in eleven chapters. . . The extent to which copra and coconut oil have become important in a variety of directions to American industry would indicate extensive appreciation for this volume."

+ Ind & Eng Chem 20:1279 N '28 280w

J Home Econ 20:507 Jl '28 30w

Pratt p23 autumn '28

SNOWDEN, JAMES HENRY. Old faith and new knowledge. 279p $2.50 Harper

239 Religion and science. Modernism 28-18008

Dr Snowden defines Fundamentalism (old faith) and Modernism (new knowledge) and shows their relation to the controversy between religion and science. Then, tracing the roots of Modernism back to the Old and New Testaments, he shows that there need be no conflict between the two schools of religious thought, that in reality old faith and new knowledge "join in reaching wider truth and better faith."

"Dr. Snowden wants to be a modernist, tries to be a modernist; but, like the rest of the modernists, when forced to decide, yes or no, between an old dogma and a new fact, he shows himself at heart a fundamentalist. He can't surrender, in whole or even in part, that system of theology which modern knowledge has revealed as only so much mythology." J: H. Holmes

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p37 S 30 '28 780w

"The book shows a remarkable grasp of scientific facts, and is just as impressive in its command of deliverances in the field of religion."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ag 18 '28 500w

SNYDER, FRANKLYN BLISS, and SNYDER, EDWARD DOUGLAS, eds. Book of American literature. 1245p $5; text ed $4 Macmillan

810.8 American literature—Collections 27-18071

The aim of this selection is to represent the best in American poetry and prose from colonial times to the present. Many selections are included from the field of political prose and some from such recent critics as H. L. Mencken and Stuart P. Sherman.

"A very useful though rather obvious and old-fashioned anthology. Its selections from the Colonial Period are full, excellent and unconventional; but the disproportionate space given to Whittier, Longfellow, Holmes and Lowell indicates a discouraging willingness to follow the beaten track. Also much thoroughly worthless material calculated to display our literary poverty rather than our wealth is included: the poems of Bayard Taylor, for example." C. P. F.

+ — N Y Evening Post p14 O 22 '27 150w

"Poetry and prose is well balanced in this comprehensive and workmanlike collection."

+ Springf'd Republican p16 D 2 '27 100w

SOARES, THEODORE GERALD. Religious education. (Univ. of Chicago publications in religious educ. Handbooks of ethics and religion) 336p $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press [12s 6d Cambridge univ. press]

377 Religious education 28-9382

A discussion of the principles which underlie religious education. Its chapters deal with such topics as human nature, the social individual, habits and ideals, religion as folkways, idealism, the will of God, churchmanship, worship.

"A well organized bibliography is found at the end of the book, which adds to its value not only from the point of view of the student but also of the layman. While it is based on well grounded theory, the book has many practical suggestions for religious education workers, pastors and teachers. It is a distinct contribution to the field. Whether one agrees wholly with Professor Soares or not, one must admit that he has done his task thoroughly and well." R. R.

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 19 '28 400w

"True to form, Dr. Soares writes with clearness, simplicity and charm. Especially to be commended is the skill and thoroughness with which the author has revealed religious education as a phase of education." G: H. Betts

+ Christian Century 45:574 My 3 '28 420w

"This book merits the closest study on the part of persons who desire critical acquaintance with the field of religious education. The writer's style is as free from the technical as a serious study could well be. Every page is lit up with incidents from every-day life and from the author's rich professional experience that make the material fascinating reading. Doctor Soares' conservational attitude in matters of religious postulate are joined in a rewarding way with liberal tenets of educational procedure—an attractive combination of pedagogical elements." S. G. Cole

+ Crozer Quarterly 5:368 Jl '28 640w

St Louis 26:276 S '28

"Religious Education is the product of long experience and thorough scholarship. But this book has the weakness common to all texts on this subject; it is so far out of touch with the hard, harsh realities of the average church school that it has very little immediate or practical value." C: S. Brown

— Survey 61:99 O 15 '28 130w

SOIBERG, HARRY. Sea king; tr. from the Danish by Edwin Björkman. 274p $2.50 Morrow

28-13789

"A fishing village on the west coast of Denmark is the setting; Ole Skarpe, 'The Sea King,' an aged tyrant, tight-fisted, narrow, stonyhearted, the dominant character. By his covetous austerity he causes the suicide of an inoffensive villager, his debtor for a paltry sum, and drives to despair his own daughter, Semine, through refusing to allow her marriage to the poor but worthy man she loves. Ole is also responsible for the equally severe sufferings of others, and one reads the book vainly waiting for the approach of his just retribution."—Sat R of Lit

Booklist 25:123 D '28

"The Sea King while lacking in the elements of greatness, is true to the refreshing Scandinavian traditions."

+ Bookm 67:xxii Ag '28 220w

Reviewed by O. E. Rolvaag

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p31 O 28 '28 350w

"The story, forceful in itself, is more than merely 'a story.' It is a renascence of the life, racial and individual, of the Baltic Scandinavian peoples." F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 6 '28 800w

Cleveland Open Shelf p122 N '28

SOIBERG, HARRY—Continued

"Soiberg paints a small-scaled though intensively intimate picture of life in a tiny Danish fishing village. We share with keen receptivity the simple joys, the ever-present vicissitudes, the loves and the hates of the austere fisher folk. On the debit side of the book must be placed a certain lack of vitality and vividness in characterization. We know that these are real human beings, but they are hazily, at times colorlessly, rounded off. 'The Sea King' should, however, find welcome for the notable sincerity of its workmanship and the soft-mannered radiance of its spirit." Arthur Herman

+ — N Y Evening Post p5 S 15 '28 350w

" 'The Sea King' makes fast and agreeable reading for those who demand a story as well as a picture. But it stands out, primarily, as a picture; as one more picture of fishing village life done in black and white and gray. It has its own sort of fearful beauty, its own strength, a strength that is personified and made vivid in the character of Ole Skarpe."

+ N Y Times p8 My 27 '28 530w

"A sour, infinitely stolid tale, told without a trace of imagination, color, or human appeal, it is yet a perfect example of bare, surface realism, and as such is a potent lesson."

— + Sat R of Lit 4:1038 Jl 14 '28 150w

SOILAND, ALBERT. Cancer; a professional responsibility and a public liability. (Appleton popular health ser.) 143p $1.50 (5s) Appleton

616.994 Cancer 28-11991

A physician and health worker sets forth in clear and intelligible terms the known facts about cancer. He describes symptoms, the nature and course of the disease in its various types, methods of treatment and the possibilities of cure, and adds a warning chapter on cancer "cures" and quackery.

"We would highly recommend the book to anyone interested in the subject, both for private information and also as a basis for material for popular lectures." Wallace Crawford

+ Am J Pub Health 18:1074 Ag '28 200w

Booklist 25:59 N '28

"To many people the book will bring relief from unnecessary dread, and it will supply also the sort of knowledge that brings comfort."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Je 30 '28 200w

"Dr. Soiland writes definitely for the layman rather than for the medical reader. He gives just enough information as to the nature of cancer to permit the reader to appreciate some of the highly technical medical studies that have been made." Morris Fishbein, M.D.

+ N Y World p7m Je 24 '28 230w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:464 O '28

"This small book, easily read, is a valuable contribution to the increasing volume of literature educating the layman in medical matters." A. R. Smith, M.D.

+ Survey 61:387 D 15 '28 130w

Wis Lib Bul 24:302 N '28

SOLVE, MELVIN T. Shelley; his theory of poetry. 207p $3 Univ. of Chicago press [15s Cambridge univ. press]

821 Shelley, Percy Bysshe 27-23565

Mr Solve argues that Shelley tried to achieve a non-moral position in his art, but that it was impossible for him to do so because he was a moral philosopher and a born teacher. He also explains Shelley's attitude toward nature and his idea of the relation between nature and art.

Reviewed by André Maurois

Bookm 67:88 Mr '28 550w

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 My 20 '28 90w

"A valuable treatise for intensive study of the poet."

+ Boston Transcript p3 D 3 '27 160w

Dial 85:75 Jl '28 100w

"Excellent study." C. H. Grabo

+ New Repub 53:111 D 14 '27 400w

"He has read not only almost everything that has been written about the poet, but—what is far better—he has read the poet himself. He is not, however, competent to write a book about him. . . There is not a single point in this essay, for instance, which is not far better made by Bradley in his Oxford Lectures. He announces old things as new discoveries with a naviety which at once amuses and annoys; and he crowds his pages with commonplaces."

— New Statesman 30:361 D 24 '27 160w

"An extremely valuable study, rather uninspiringly written." C. P. F.

+ — N Y Evening Post p13 D 31 '27 200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p206 Mr 22 '28 880w

"Dr. Solve's book is small and unambitious; but it is a very sensible, intelligent, sympathetic work. We know of no other book which in so little space gives so just a conception of Shelley's thought world, and of the attitude underlying his poems. It forms an excellent supplement to Dr. Peck's 'Life,' emphasizing precisely what the larger work omits." F: E. Pierce

+ Yale R n s 17:608 Ap '28 50w

SOMERVILLE, EDITH ANNA ŒNONE, and MARTIN, VIOLET FLORENCE (MARTIN ROSS, pseud.). French leave. 287p $2 Houghton [7s 6d Heinemann]

[28-18127]

A spirited young Irish girl quarrels with her high-handed fox-hunting father and, borrowing money from a cousin she has recently begun to like, goes to Paris to study art. George Lester, one of the town lads, follows her and is a partner in Patsy's innocent escapades, but his romantic hopes are dashed by Patsy, who returns to Ireland and ultimately to her cousin.

Booklist 25:72 N '28

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p22 N 11 '28 130w

"This latest Somerville-Ross book seems by far the most interesting of the series of fox-hunting, country-loving tales which have made their fame. It is as quiet and as full of humor as the rest, a quiet humor which delights you by the mere satisfaction of being clever enough to appreciate it." I. W. Lawrence

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ag 4 '28 1500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p138 D '28

Living Age 334:653 Ap 1 '28

"The novel suffers somewhat from an excess of gentility, and the tone is inclined to be superficial throughout. . . Occasional flashes of character and atmosphere make us hope for better things, but this hope soon fades. The novel remains polite, but without the breath of life."

— + Sat R of Lit 5:109 S 8 '28 180w

Wis Lib Bul 24:305 N '28

SOPER, EDMUND DAVISON. Lausanne: the will to understand: an American interpretation. 156p il $1.50 Doubleday, Doran

280 Church unity. World conference on faith and order 28-10543

The book is not so much a report as an interpretation, from the American viewpoint, of the World conference on faith and order held at Lausanne in 1927. Dean Soper lights up the personalities and atmosphere of the conference, summarizes the unities and differences which emerged from its discussions and comments on its relation to the whole problem of church unity.

"This is the most vivid and descriptive of all the accounts of Lausanne." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 45:444 Ap 5 '28 130w

"Intimate pen portraits of the principal participants add greatly to the value of the book."

+ J Religion 8:501 Jl '28 60w

SOROKIN, PITIRIM ALEKSANDROVICH. Contemporary sociological theories. (Harper's social science ser.) 785p $4 Harper

301 Sociology 28-5170

"In carrying out his study, the author classifies 'all the important sociological theories' into nine 'schools of thought'; the mechanistic, the synthetic, and geographic school of Le Play, the geographical, the biological, the bio-social, the bio-psychological, the sociologistic, the psychological, and the psycho-sociologistic. These major divisions are then divided into varieties each of which is 'represented by several of the most typical works.' The author then undertakes to characterize the fundamental principles of each school and division and to point out its fallacies and deficiencies."—Am J Soc

"Not only sociologists but social scientists in other fields will find the book informing and valuable. Students of population and social selection, in particular, will find it worth while to consult. It cannot fail to remain for a long time a valuable reference work." A. B. Wolfe

+ Am Econ R 18:715 D '28 1200w

"The book is very valuable. It is by no means a great book. Its style is rough, its organization mechanical, its tone dogmatic, and its bias pronounced. Nevertheless it attempts a much needed survey. Its harsh criticism of much current theory is stimulating; it may lead to more consideration and careful statement of fundamental assumptions. It will make somewhat easier the task of preparing a really adequate and objective analysis of the trends in social thought. The sociologists should read it; graduate students should be required to read it." E. B. Reuter

+ — Am J Soc 34:382 S '28 600w

"There is a peculiar lack of balance and proportion in his treatment. His want of sympathy for theory leads him to omit all consideration of sociological thinkers like Oppenheimer or Müller-Lyer. There is no reference to the more important works of Hobhouse, which he would probably dismiss as a kind of metaphysics, while he devotes many pages to trumpery writers like Winiarsky. At the same time his work is critical as well as descriptive of the various sociological schools of the present and the near past, and often his criticisms are trenchant and effective. His knowledge of European as well as American sociology is exhaustively drawn upon." R. M. MacIver

+ — Ann Am Acad 139:216 S '28 280w

"A scholarly piece of work, finely conceived and carefully worked out."

+ Booklist 24:311 My '28

Reviewed by Alexander Goldenweiser

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p13 Jl 1 '28 700w

"Professor Sorokin's book is by far the most notable contribution to the history of sociology that has appeared for some time. The work embodies incalculable research and scholarship, and is as much a tribute to the ability of the author as it is a contribution to the field. Here is an encyclopedia of modern sociology written in scholarly but readable form. Its scientific documentation cannot fail to appeal to all discriminating students." A. S. R.

+ Boston Transcript p4 F 29 '28 300w

"His review of sociological theories of the past sixty or seventy years is infused with a fine sense for discrimination and generalization. In this later volume he reveals a breadth of scholarship which is so often lacking in the work of our native social critics. His writings are among that smaller list which must be read."

+ New Repub 54:304 Ap 25 '28 160w

"Professor Sorokin's industry has brought together an impressive amount of data and he need not fear being taken to task for many, if any important, oversights. His judgments are generous, but not to the sacrifice of truth, and the student will look vainly for any account of contemporary sociology as informing." F. H. Giddings and M. V. Gaaden

+ Sat R of Lit 5:274 O 20 '28 900w

"Here is the most adequate factual criticism of social theory that has appeared in English. There are other good monographs and critical biographies, but none of them compares with this study of social theory in comprehensiveness and excellency of criticism. . . One source of Sorokin's superiority over English and American writers on social theory is the fact that he has recourse to the literature of ancient and mediaeval writers, oriental and occidental writers and, most important, modern Italian, Russian and Polish writers." R. C. White

+ Survey 60:613 S 15 '28 450w

SOSMAN, ROBERT BROWNING. Properties of silica; an introd. to the properties of substances in the solid non-conducting state. (Am. chemical soc. Monograph ser.) 856p il $12.50 Chemical catalog co.

546.28 Silica 28-585

"For the chemist who wants all the theoretical information at present available on silica. The author, who is with the Geophysical Laboratory in Washington, has produced a valuable treatise on a subject hitherto represented by a very scanty literature. Despite its eight hundred pages the book may in one way be considered as a 'brief' treatment, for the enormous amount of information presented is for the most part in extremely concise form, provided with copious references to other literature."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

"The completeness and authoritative character of the book render it indispensable to those interested not only in the specific properties of silica but in the general characteristics of substances in the solid non-conducting state." H. B. Weiser

+ Am Chem Soc J 50:3392 D '28 360w

"The research worker in chemistry, ceramics, or petrology will find this a valuable reference book since Dr. Sosman has gathered the scattered literature and unified it. This alone would be an achievement but the volume is also worthy of careful study as a textbook by all those who are interested in silica. Although the book is not easy reading, the reviewer found himself carried on and on by the clear, logical, coherent development of the subject." W: Stericker

+ Chem & Met Eng 35:366 Je '28 230w

"This book is a brilliant example of what a monograph of this type should be. It not only represents a compilation of the most important facts known concerning silica, but goes far beyond this concept of a treatise and offers throughout a critical and appreciative review of the available results. The author's vast experience in silicate research is evident on every page." A. V. Bleininger

+ Ind & Eng Chem 20:446 Ap '28 200w

J Geol 36:574 Ag '28 280w

Reviewed by W. D. Bancroft

J Phys Chem 32:1112 Jl '28 3200w

N Y New Tech Bks 13:10 Ja '28

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:204 Ap '28

SOULE, GEORGE HENRY. Wage arbitration; selected cases, 1920-1924. 298p $2 Macmillan

331.89 Wages. Arbitration, Industrial 28-22565

This case book of wage arbitrations between unions and employers, 1920-1924, selects some typical cases in the printing, packing-house, railroad and garment industries and summarizes the argument on both sides.

"These cases furnish extraordinarily interesting source material to the student of wage questions, illustrating, as they do, the determined fight put up by the unions against wage reductions." J. A. Flexner

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 O 28 '28 630w

R of Rs 78:adv36 N '28 20w

SOUSA, JOHN PHILIP. Marching along; recollections of men, women and music. 384p il $5 Hale, Cushman & Flint, 20 Providence st., Boston

B or 92 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 28-12968

Sousa's memories of his musical career as band leader and composer go back to his first lessons, for a beginning, and march along to the present, down a pleasant pathway of friendship and fame.

Booklist 25:27 O '28

"The writer hoped for more than he found in 'Marching Along.' Mr. Sousa certainly does not fail to appreciate that he earned his success, but by some complication of modesty, perhaps, he has chosen rather to present the material evidence of victory than the qualities which brought it all about. In short there is too little of Sousa and too much about him." Abbe Niles

— + Bookm 67:717 Ag '28 180w

"The recollections are rich in incidents and continuously amusing—a valuable contribution to the archives of Americana."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Jl 1 '28 150w

Boston Transcript p4 My 5 '28 830w

Cleveland Open Shelf p103 S '28

Reviewed by G. W. Harris

N Y Evening Post p9 Je 23 '28 1350w

"While Mr. Sousa's book will have particular consequence for lovers of music, a much wiser audience will find it full of interest. A many-sided man, he has touched life at many points and his genially written biography is flavored by all of them."

+ N Y Times p2 Je 3 '28 700w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:490 O '28

Springf'd Republican p10 Je 22 '28 450w

SOUTHARD, CHARLES ZIBEON. Evolution of trout and trout fishing in America. 254p il $10 Dutton

799.1 Trout fishing 28-9524

Beautifully illustrated from full page plates in color, this large volume contains information on every aspect of trout fishing in America: types, habitat and propagation of trout, the fine art of angling, and state laws on trout fishing.

"Most anglers disagree among themselves on minor points in their avocation. Mr. Southard's long experience on trout streams entitles him to express his opinions and the mails are open to those who don't choose to accept some of them without a battle." Fred Fletcher

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Jl 22 '28 580w

Boston Transcript p4 My 12 '28 750w

N Y Times p5 O 7 '28 450w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

No Am 225:adv Je '28 50w

"Mr. Southard is not content to tell how to fish; he goes very thoroughly into the condition of our streams, the best methods of stocking, and the best kinds of trout. Even more interesting than these statistical studies are his forthright comments on the vulgar errors about trout which have been copied from book to book, and his studies of trout vision and trout feeding habits with reference to their capture. Probably no American book has ever contained so much valuable information on local conditions here. Indeed this book should be reprinted as a small and inexpensive manual. It deserves a wider circulation than its present price and format will permit." H: S. Canby

+ Sat R of Lit 4:790 Ap 21 '28 280w

"The book is one of the most inclusive of its kind that has come to the reviewer's attention. It contains every conceivable branch of information on the subject of trout fishing."

+ Springf'd Republican p7f Je 10 '28 1300w

SOUTHWOLD, STEPHEN, ed. Children's playhour book. 153p il $2 (6s) Longmans 27-12372

"A collection of stories, poems, puzzles, riddles, tricks and illusions, richly illustrated in black and white and in color and made in Great Britain. The book is the work of various artists—C. Buchel, H. R. Miller, L. Hacker, J. Mercer, L. R. Brightwell, R. Carter, M. E. Board, P. E. Paul and A. Anderson—and well-known authors—Eleanor Farjeon, Grimm Brothers, Edward Lear, Hans Andersen, W. E. Aytoun, Lord Macaulay, Walter de la Mare, A. A. Milne and many others."—Springf'd Republican

"A most satisfactory anthology of ancient and modern tales and poems."

+ Bookm 66:472 D '27 30w

Boston Transcript p2 S 14 '27 150w

Sat R of Lit 4:225 O 15 '27 200w

"Sure to provide amusement for the most exacting youngster as well as the most discriminating. Moreover, it will pass muster with the elders whose pleasure it is to choose books for juveniles to read or otherwise enjoy. This book is a happy collection of old-time and modern favorites with the most space given, however, to stories that have become classic."

+ Springf'd Republican p7f D 4 '27 150w

SPARROW, WALTER SHAW. Henry Alken; with an introd. by Theodore Cook. (Sport of our fathers ser.) 55p $6 Scribner [21s Williams & N.]

759.2 Alken, Henry. Sporting prints

"The present high market value of old sporting prints and the numerous and confusing Alkens (all painters) give this volume on Henry Alken a double interest. Nomenclature in this Danish family varied between Samuels and Henrys, a fruitful cause of chagrin to many a collector from across the Atlantic. Mr. Shaw Sparrow comes to the rescue. Moreover, he brings good tidings. All the happiest of Alken's work is still, he says, contained in three English collections."—Spec

Reviewed by W. B. Bradford

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Je 24 '28 300w

Boston Transcript p2 D 31 '27 350w

"Henry Alken's wide rolling landscapes rank him very high indeed among landscape painters, and his horses are living thoroughbreds. The reproductions in this book do them no injustice. This is a most beautiful gift-book."

+ Spec 140:23 Ja 7 '28 140w

"Mr. Shaw Sparrow writes very well. The illustrations are excellently reproduced and altogether delightful, though of course it is only in the colour plates that we see Alken at his best, for his colouring is almost always beautiful. His men are purely conventional, though they sit their mounts well, but his scenery is splendid. As for his horses, no one since his time has depicted better a thoroughbred at full speed, and owing to the influence of the camera it is unlikely that anyone ever will."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p865 N 24 '27 180w

SPAULDING, EDWARD GLEASON. What am I? 273p $2 (8s 6d) Scribner

104 Philosophy, Modern—Addresses, essays, lectures. Rationalism 28-12182

A book of philosophical reflections on the nature of man, the effect on him of heredity and environment, the nature of knowledge, and fundamental questions of conduct and belief. A part of the material has appeared in Scribner's Magazine. The author is Professor of philosophy in Princeton university.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 N 4 '28 300w

Boston Transcript p3 My 26 '28 500w

"Professor Spaulding asks interesting questions and considers them in a leisurely, discursive manner, which assumes a like mental attitude on the part of his readers. The modern reader demands a more searching method, for his doubts and difficulties reflect the rapid change of the intellectual world. He may gain the impression that this is a statement of philosophical conservatism not wholly successfully revised to meet new conditions."

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:92 S 1 '28 160w
Spec 141:55 Jl 14 '28 60w

SPEAKMAN, HAROLD. Mostly Mississippi. 360p il $3.50 Dodd

917.7 Mississippi river—Description and travel 27-24707

The ingratiating account of a leisurely voyage down the length of the Mississippi, made by the author and his wife, first in a canoe, and then from St Paul to New Orleans, in a houseboat. The story is illustrated from sketches of Mississippi types drawn by Mrs Speakman and from drawings of Mississippi towns made by Mr Speakman.

Booklist 24:246 Mr '28

Reviewed by L. H. Guyol
Boston Transcript p4 D 24 '27 1650w
Cleveland Open Shelf p25 F '28

" 'Mostly Mississippi' is not a travel book, but rather a gayly humorous account of what the author chooses to call 'a very damp adventure.' "

+ Ind 120:117 F 4 '28 150w

"The volume has many interests and many entertainments to offer, but its particular value is that it does give a view of the mighty Mississippi as a whole, from the tangle of lake and streamlet at its source to its fearsome plunge into the Gulf, with the varying scenery of its banks, the changing life of its shores and the constant, inescapable sense of its tameless power. The reader comes to feel it presently as a living thing of mighty powers, and by the time he reaches the end he realized it, gains a conception of it as a whole, that, if he has never had it before, is well worth acquiring." F. F. Kelly

+ N Y Times p8 Je 17 '28 1500w
R of Rs 77:adv14 F '28 60w

Reviewed by Bernard De Voto
Sat R of Lit 4:568 F 4 '28 250w

SPEARMAN, CHARLES EDWARD. Abilities of man; their nature and measurement. 415p $4.50 (16s) Macmillan

151.2 Ability—Testing. Psychology, Educational 27-10830

Dr Spearman, who is Grote professor of philosophy of mind at the University of London, has spent over twenty years of research in building up the theory upon which this book rests. The volume deals with the analysis of individual differences of ability, their causes and their control and development. The method of approach is by way of the mathematical technique of biometrics.

"It is the kind of work that only time and much research can properly estimate. As a compilation of studies and programs of research it is a most serviceable contribution. Few psychologists can read it without being stimulated to rearrange or add to their present research. But the greater value lies in the system of psychology presented. Here is a system, or at least a system in the bud, which is the direct outgrowth of research by the test type of research technique. Whether one be convinced of the system or not, one must recognize that a master mind has looked through the welter of tables and correlations and has seen far, far more than a test for this and a test for that. Few books in a year or in many years manifest the scholarship, the creative planning, the insight and the vision revealed here. It will long stand as an indispensable aid to the teacher, the experimental researcher, and to the systematizer in psychology." E. S. Conklin

+ Am J Psychol 40:504 Jl '28 1300w

"Here is strong meat for minds that hunger after knowledge and fancy themselves apt in the subtleties of scientific method; a volume to confound the easy dogmatism of popular psychology and to delight the spirit of those who are weary of what Paul Valery calls 'choses vagues.'" Harold Ward

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p21 Mr 25 '28 750w

Reviewed by P. M. Symonds
J Philos 25:20 Ja 5 '28 1750w

"Here are four hundred thorny pages with a mathematical justification so formidable that it must be confined in an appendix, hardly fifty pages of which would have been comprehensible to a psychologist when this century opened. Out of that simple idea of Alfred Binet, designed by means of a few tests to separate the sheep from the goats in the intellectual flock, there has grown a literature, the bibliography of which alone is a sizeable volume, and a new profession of intelligence testers. The Spearman approach is a different one, more fundamental, more ambitious, more foundational." Joseph Jastrow

Sat R of Lit 4:1035 Jl 14 '28 1300w

Reviewed by E. B. Wilson
Science n s 67:244 Mr 2 '28 1400w

SPENCER, HAZELTON. Shakespeare improved; the restoration versions in quarto and on the stage. 406p il $5 Harvard univ. press [23s Milford]

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Adaptations. Shakespeare, William—Stage history. Theater—London 27-27589

"Mr. Spencer's book is a study of the adaptations of Shakespeare's plays produced on the stage during the Restoration Period or published in the so-called 'Players' Quartos.' He begins his study with the reopening of the licensed theaters in 1660. . . The study terminates in 1710, the year of the death of Betterton, the greatest actor of the period in question. Mr. Spencer expresses the hope that his volume, without trespassing upon sociological territory, may serve in some measure to illuminate the Restoration mind. His book is divided into two parts: the stage history of Shakespeare's plays and the texts of the Restoration versions."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

Reviewed by S: Chew
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 Mr 11 '28 600w

"This sprightly contribution to a fascinating branch of learning should be read in connection with Professor Odell's 'Shakespeare from Betterton to Irving,' and Professor Allardyce Nicoll's 'A History of Restoration Drama,' books which it supplements by much painstaking independent research, and occasionally challenges with an independence of judgment to which Professor Spencer has earned the indisputable right." R: Le Gallienne

+ N Y Times p13 Je 3 '28 1950w
Times [London] Lit Sup p493 Jl 5 '28 1250w

SPENGLER, OSWALD. Decline of the West; perspectives of world-history; auth. tr. with notes by Charles Francis Atkinson. 2v v 2 539p $7.50 set $13.50 Knopf

901 Civilization—History. History—Philosophy

Spengler's second voulme, "Perspectives of world-history," brings to a conclusion his massive work on the philosophy of history. The principles defined in his first volume are here applied to the various aspects of social activity —the development of cities, races, and tongues, the state, politics, money and the machine.

"In Spengler's hands, history is philosophy. . . Even if most of his analogies are indefensible and his conclusion wrong, still his

SPENGLER, OSWALD—Continued
'Decline' is a great work—one of the few mighty books of our time—mighty in its challenges, in its psychological analysis, in its efforts to grasp at the hem of Destiny. On almost every page, there are sentences of sharp, cutting power which alone make the labor of reading it rich in rewards. Yet it cannot be denied that it is full of holes, assertions, logical impossibilities and contradictions." C: A. Beard
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 N 18 '28 3700w

Reviewed by C. J. Friedrich
Boston Transcript p2 D 29 '28 2500w

Reviewed by M. J. Adler
N Y Evening Post p10m D 8 '28 1500w

"With the same monumental learning as before, with an independence and coldness of judgment which defers nothing to great names or consecrated opinions, and in a style always forceful and in places eloquent, Spengler surveys man's cosmic march, analyses social classes and the work of leaders, dissects the idea of the State with its accompaniments of democracy and parliamentary government, challenges the economic interpretation of history and appraises religion and religions only to find them all, in the culture of the West, running fast to decay under the impetus of civilization, doomed by destiny from which there is no escape." W: MacDonald
+ N Y Times p3 D 2 '28 3000w

"Dr. Spengler knows a great deal, but he does not know how to write a book. This second volume does not follow on the first in any natural order of meaning, nor does it supplement it in any systematic manner, nor can it be taken as a study of the same subject from any definite new point of view. It is simply another heap of facts and speculations shoveled together under the same inspiration. . . It is not perhaps to be wondered at if the true significance of his speculations is misunderstood by many of his critics; he persistently misunderstands it himself. But for the student who handles him cautiously and refuses either to accept or to reject him wholesale he offers a very rich reward." E: Shanks
— + Sat R 147:16 Ja 5 '29 1900w

SPEWACK, SAMUEL (A. A. ABBOTT, pseud.). Mon Paul; the private life of a privateer. 255p $2.50 Macaulay

Jones, John Paul—Fiction 28-13449

A new recital of the life of John Paul Jones, with the accent on his gallantries.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Je 10 '28 80w

"A slight, entertaining, somewhat fictionized sketch of the curious and colorful career of John Paul Jones."
N Y Times p9 My 20 '28 680w

SPICER, ROBERT S. British engineering wages. 159p $3 Longmans [10s 6d E. Arnold]

331.2 Wages [28-21542]

A survey of the engineering industry in England over the last 70 years, particularly in regard to wages; a statement of the internal problems affecting wage rates today; and a suggestion for future remedies. Much of the statistical material is in tabulated form.

"Much of his book is highly controversial, and will certainly rouse strong Trade Union opposition. But it makes an interesting and stimulating contribution to a problem that badly needs thinking out afresh, in the light of modern technical developments."
+ New Statesman 31:234 My 26 '28 250w

"A monograph of this type, dealing in detail with the facts and problems of wages in a single industry, is a valuable addition to the more general literature on wages and sets an example which might usefully be followed for other important industries."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p363 My 10 '28 70w

SPINKA, MATTHEW. Church and the Russian revolution. 330p $2.50 Macmillan

281.9 Russia—Church history. Church and state in Russia. Russia—History—Revolution, 1917-. Bolshevism—Russia. Greek church 27-23319

A student of church history with a knowledge of the Russian language, Dr Spinka went to Russia to study the conflict between church and government—particularly the Russian orthodox church—during the Revolution. He examined public documents, and conferred with leaders of church and state. His volume gives an unbiased report of his findings.

Boston Transcript p4 Ja 18 '28 350w

"The author has wisely confined himself largely to this history of the effects of the Orthodox church institution, where he is on familiar ground. Indeed, a more exact title for the book would be 'The Russian Orthodox Church and the Revolution.' In this field it will have permanent historical value. It is inadequate and even ill informed as a general review of the religious situation in Russia when it dismisses the protestant movements in a few brief paragraphs." K: Borders
+ — Christian Century 45:50 Ja 12 '28 800w

"A work by one who is a trained investigator, a historian who is master of the Russian language, who spent months in Russia studying his subject at first hand and who is entirely impartial in his attitude toward his material. He brings us the unbiased conclusions of one who has had the privilege of personal interviews with the leaders of church and government, who has associated with the common people and who also frankly spreads upon the pages of his book abundant source material gathered from documents and manifestoes of government and synod as well as various other publications from which the candid reader may form his own judgments. " R. E. E. H.
+ Crozer Quarterly 5:245 Ap '28 1000w

"The conflict between the Russian church and the Soviet government, and the controversy within the church itself, have been discussed widely abroad in books and periodicals. Most of this discussion has been based on fragmentary materials of the impressions of short visits and even casual interviews. Here finally the student is given a full and carefully documented account, the most important documents being given in their complete texts. . . The author brings out clearly the divisions in the Russian church, within the Soviet Union, and in the 'emigration,' and notes the recent efforts towards the re-establishment of unity. Each group is carefully analyzed with respect to its policy and viewpoint, and also its leadership." S: M. Harper
+ J Religion 8:305 Ap '28 700w
No Am 225:adv Ja '28 20w
Times [London] Lit Sup p295 Ap 19 '28 80w

SPINOZA, BENEDICTUS DE. Correspondence of Spinoza; tr. and ed. with introd. and annot. by A. Wolf. 502p il $5 Dial press [15s Allen & U.]

B or 92 [28-20659]

A translation of the correspondence of Spinoza, edited with introduction and annotations by Professor Wolf of the University of London, author of "The Oldest Biography of Spinoza." The letters contain many passages which are of importance in interpreting Spinoza's philosophy.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p13 Ja 13 '29 800w

"Mr. Wolf's work is admirable." J. C. Meredith
+ Int J Ethics 39:122 O '28 230w

"Professor Wolf has rendered an important service to the history of thought and to the understanding of Spinoza."
+ New Statesman 31:328 Je 16 '28 1550w

Reviewed by Alan Porter
Spec 140:838 Je 2 '28 850w

"The preliminary essays, the text, and the annotations are each in their separate way a finished product; and the critical acumen with which Professor Wolf has examined the philosophical implications of the letters is far removed from 'spade-work.' "
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p422 Je 7 '28 900w

SPRAGUE, JESSE RAINSFORD. Making of a merchant; with an introd. by John Allen Murphy. 209p $1.75 Morrow

Department stores—Fiction 28-12161

"The story of a man, the story of a store, the story of a community, the story of the country, are all in more or less degree woven together into this account of how a farmer's boy became a well-to-do and important merchant. Apparently it is an autobiography that is fairly accurate in the portrayal of some man's life, for the Peter Sherwood who tells it in the first person seems an entirely real sort of person and the experiences that make most of the body of the narrative have all the flavor of genuine experience."—N Y Times

Booklist 25:123 D '28

Boston Transcript p8 My 26 '28 380w

"It is the kind of book that could come only out of intimate knowledge of the innermost life of merchandising. And therefore it does not matter in the least whether Peter Sherwood is the real name of the man who lived this merchant's life or how Jesse Rainsford Sprague came to know so much about him. For the story of his forty years of storekeeping is filled to the brim with the knowledge of merchandising he has gained and with rich wisdom about life and people."
+ N Y Times p18 My 6 '28 410w

St Louis 26:280 S '28

"The story modestly appears as fiction, the story of a life, the history of a business. The reader who engages in other pursuits than that of merchandizing will find it no less interesting in detail than merchants themselves will find it."
+ Sat R of Lit 5:154 S 22 '28 180w

Wis Lib Bul 24:220 Jl '28

SPRINGS, ELLIOTT WHITE. Above the bright blue sky; more about the war birds. 275p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran

European war, 1914-1918—Aerial operations—Fiction 28-24620

The first of the collection is an article on the joys of flying by one who has tasted all of them and never tires of the taste; the remaining eight are stories of the war birds in France.

"The book is readable; it carries the reader along at the same mad pace that was the normal life of the war-time aviator."
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p11 N 4 '28 120w

"The heroes are very real heroes—real in their heroism and real in their simple, frank, unbunkable boyishness—and the author's style is suited to the men. 'Above the Bright Blue Sky' is, from start to finish, frank, free from bunk, and sprightly."
+ N Y Times p22 O 28 '28 380w

SPRINGS, ELLIOTT WHITE. Leave me with a smile. 288p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Heinemann] 28-9051

The story of an aviator from the south who after the war has an unusually difficult time straightening out his love affair, finding his niche in business, and in living up to his father's expectations for him as the son of the house.

"The book has pace and fire and a clean, hard style. To be sure, it falls off at the end. The episode of Henry's misalliance with a little mill-worker is melodramatic, his renunciation of Phyllis is unconvincing, but one can forgive much in a book which is written with vigor and savage sincerity." E. H. Walton
+ — Bookm 67:330 My '28 180w

"Of course this is well written, but its falsity is, in spite of that, quite apparent. In no way does the outburst fit the occasion. Just why Mr. Springs ruined a novel, often brilliant, sometimes poignantly beautiful and in some respects true, by a crudely artificial ending, he alone can know. The disturbed reader can only make futile guesses." C. K. H.
— + Boston Transcript p3 Ap 28 '28 530w

"The first novel of a returning war hero is a little like a German barrage along toward the armistice—about three-quarters of duds. An explosive, abrupt style fringing on the Hemingway is knocked for a row of ash cans by stilted, bombastic cliches that will make you wince." J. M. March
— N Y Evening Post p15 Ap 14 '28 550w

"He knows how to write. If he errs in this book, it is on the side of emphasis rather than on the side of style. He has schooled himself to be brief, succinct—at times he approaches the word-economy of Ernest Hemingway, but never quite. Always there is the telling piece of description. . . One feels that the bitter ending has been tacked on in order to preserve the cynical tone of the novel when the conventional ending would actually be more logical and satisfactory. But, it is sufficient that in certain passages he has achieved moments of rare and glorious beauty."
+ — N Y Times p12 Mr 4 '28 750w

"The degradation of the man is presented with harsh justice; set, moreover, against his father's narrow rectitude. Winton's deterioration has an impressive dramatic quality. The general description of the social character and history of the cotton areas in the South is very well done, and this, too, is of dramatic value in providing a background for Winton's vacillations of motive."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p646 S 13 '28 450w

SPURGEON, CAROLINE FRANCES ELEANOR, comp. Keats's Shakespeare; a descriptive essay. 178p $10 (25s) Oxford

821 Keats, John. Shakespeare, William

"The seven-volume Shakespeare, once the property of Keats, which Professor Spurgeon's happy industry has discovered, or rediscovered, in Mr. George Armour's library at Princeton, U.S.A., is the veritable Shakespeare which Keats took with him in April, 1817, when he set out from London for the Isle of Wight, there to 'endeavour after the long poem' which was 'Endymion.' . . We may safely say that no single concrete book was ever so intimately connected with the poetic life of Keats as this particular Shakespeare, one of whose seven volumes he 'unboxed' on the morning of Tuesday, April 15, 1817."—Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by Percy Hutchison
N Y Times p2 D 30 '28 1750w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 14 '28 1150w

"Apart from the intimate autobiographical significance of these volumes and some of their markings, they have light to throw on the truly astonishing independence of Keats's poetic imagination. The close and frequent markings of The Tempest and A Midsummer Night's Dream show that Keats was reading these two plays in particular with eager critical attention—a young verbal artist studying the master—and it is highly probable that he chose these two particular plays as being in closer harmony than others with the tone of his own intended poem."

SPURGEON, C. F. E., comp.—Continued

Times [London] Lit Sup p931 N 29 '28 1550w

SQUIRE, JOHN COLLINGS, and others. Contemporary American authors; with an introd. by Henry Seidel Canby. 236p il $2 Holt

810.4 Authors, American. American literature—History and criticism 28-10317

A collection of British criticisms of contemporary American authors, drawn from the London Mercury. Contents: Introduction, by H: S. Canby; Robert Frost, by J: Freeman; Willa Cather, by Alexander Porterfield; Sinclair Lewis, by Milton Waldman; Theodore Dreiser, by Milton Waldman; Edwin Arlington Robinson, by J. C. Squire; Edith Wharton, by Osbert Burdett; Joseph Hergesheimer, by J. B. Priestley; Nicholas Vachel Lindsay, by E: Davison.

Booklist 24:394 Jl '28

"If we seek to reduce the material of these studies to a common denominator we find it, without prodigious exertion, in the vague but convenient label 'Americanism.' With the exception of Mr. Priestley, who is engaged in more frivolous pursuits, and has therefore written an admirable study of Joseph Hergesheimer, all these English critics (even those who were, as I understand, born in the United States) are chasing a shadow which they are pleased to call Americanism, but which is really the shadow of an international Mrs. Harris." Ellen Glasgow

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 My 13 '28 4000w

"These eight American authors are treated with genuine understanding (save in the case of Edith Wharton), with forbearance, and often with an admiration the more delightful because it is tempered with discrimination. Ellen Glasgow, Edna Ferber and Alice Brown are three American women who deserve the studious attention of English critics. Perhaps a second series of London Mercury articles will accord them honor at some future time." D. F. Gilman

\+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 21 '28 1900w

"These are 'literary essays' par excellence. One can object to nothing in them; indeed, their un-American coolness and skepticism are welcome and intelligent. Yet on the whole they are almost unreadable. They are so soberly genteel, so level, so even. Their judgments are so clearly and dully just."

— Nation 127:207 Ag 29 '28 100w

Reviewed by Conrad Aiken

N Y Evening Post p9 My 26 '28 900w

Reviewed by M. M. Colum

\+ Sat R of Lit 4:997 Je 30 '28 900w

Wis Lib Bul 24:160 My '28

Reviewed by Harold Armitage

Yale R n s 18:413 winter '29 520w

STACPOOLE, HENRY DE VERE. Mystery of Uncle Bollard. 295p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Cassell]

28-14548

Clyde is hunting for the murderer of Jimmy Tearle, originator of a scheme for the large-scale production of artificial pearls. Uncle Bollard suggests that he go to the South sea islands, on the "Colleen Bawn" and look for Neuberg. Clyde does so, and, not without some danger and excitement and a little love interest besides, discovers all that he wants to know.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 My 6 '28 100w

Boston Transcript p2 Je 9 '28 80w

"It is not a very profound mystery, and does not cloud the sunny atmosphere of the book."

Nation and Ath 42:232 N 12 '27 70w

N Y Evening Post p9 My 12 '28 60w

N Y Times p17 Je 10 '28 180w

"Stacpoole has done better, but he always spins a good yarn." W. R. Brooks

Outlook 149:114 My 16 '28 70w

"Swift, but crude, narrative, in which a criminal with no personality is chased down by pursuers no more distinguished in kind."

— Spec 139:785 N 5 '27 130w

Times [London] Lit Sup p769 O 27 '27 100w

STAFFORD, RUSSELL HENRY. Christian humanism. 253p $2 Willett, Clark & Colby, 44 S. Dearborn st., Chicago

252 Sermons. Humanism 28-6644

Sermons preached in the Pilgrim Congregational church of St Louis. "By this term [Christian humanism] is meant a primary preoccupation with the betterment of individuals and society in this world, and an approach to the high mysteries of God." (Preface) The author is now pastor of the Old South church in Boston.

Reviewed by J: H. Holmes

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p23 Je 10 '28 300w

Boston Transcript p3 Je 9 '28 500w

"These sermons make solid reading. The style is strong and straightforward with no apparent attempt at popularity. The sermons are unadorned with poetical quotations, with the single exception of one verse of a familiar hymn. They contain few illustrations and have no recourse to extended historical or literary allusions. They betray no effort at eloquence or fine writing. Their style is sometimes frankly or almost forbiddingly philosophical." C. S. Patton

Christian Century 45:350 Mr 15 '28 600w

N Y Times p13 Ap 1 '28 250w

"Excellent and stimulating book for thoughtful church people."

\+ Springf'd Republican p10 Je 12 '28 300w

STAGG, AMOS ALONZO. Touchdown! As told to Wesley Winans Stout. 352p il $2.25 Longmans

796.33 Football 27-19751

"Amos Alonzo Stagg is known to thousands as a great foot-ball coach. . . The story of his early life—of how and why he turned from the ministry to teach, lead and inspire on athletic fields, his experiences with our great American games and especially with the men he has trained to play them—are interestingly told in 'Touchdown.' For most readers 'Touchdown' will have three strong interests—the life story, simply told, of Stagg himself; the interesting history of the beginning and development of American college football; and a most readable account of the more dramatic athletic contests and happenings of his busy life."—N Y Evening Post

---

Booklist 24:275 Ap '28

"While 'Touchdown' does not tell in so many words of the great personal influence of this athletic mentor, readers will find plenty to cause them to ponder the point that universities and colleges do well to look for more in a coach than the ability to turn out winning teams. 'Touchdown' is well worth reading, and Chapter XIII, 'The Coach's Creed,' should be read by every one interested in college athletics." L. W. Maxwell

\+ N Y Evening Post p15 O 15 '27 550w

N Y Times p20 O 2 '27 280w

St Louis 26:40 F '28

"This book has lively interest for the general reader as well as the devotee of sports, or of this sport."

\+ Springf'd Republican p14 O 7 '27 820w

STALIN, IOSIF. Leninism; tr. from the Russian by Eden & Cedar Paul. 472p $2.50 Int. pub. [7s 6d Allen & U.]

335 Lenin Nikolai, pseud. (Vladimir Ilich Ulyanov). Communism. Russia—Politics and government [28-19529]

The general secretary of the Communist party of the Soviet union expounds Lenin's political philosophy, the core of which is the proletarian revolution and the dictatorship of the proletariat, and explains how this theory has been applied in the policies ruling the present Soviet state.

Reviewed by Arthur Ruhl

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Jl 29 '28 1000w

N Y Times p1 Jl 29 '28 220w

"If Stalin's book is intended, as the preface suggests, to throw light on 'the concrete problems of Socialist construction,' it is a very poor illuminant. For it consists partly of lectures on the creed, and partly of reports to the fourteenth party conference (1925), and the author is always much more anxious to denounce than to inform, to throw brickbats rather than shed light."

— Spec 140:910 Je 16 '28 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p437 Je 14 '28 880w

STAMM, FREDERICK K., comp. Reformed church pulpit; introd. by Joseph Fort Newton. 329p $2.50 Macmillan

252 Sermons 28-2250

These twenty-five sermons by ministers of the "Reformed church in the United States" represent the message of the Reformed church pulpit. Each sermon is prefaced by a brief biographical note.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Mr 18 '28 150w

"These sermons touch life, all life, vitally, vigorously and victoriously." T. C. R.

\+ Boston Transcript p3 F 11 '28 120w

Christian Century 45:350 Mr 15 '28 110w

"This work is not a collection of tiresome homilies on threadbare themes, but a group of timely, challenging messages from men of vision and action." Rittenhouse Neisser

\+ Crozer Quarterly 5:375 Jl '28 500w

STANDING BEAR, LUTHER, Sioux chief. My people the Sioux; ed. by E. A. Brininstool; with an introd. by William S. Hart. 288p il $4 Houghton

970.2 Indians of North America—Social life and customs. Oglala Indians 28-9294

The frank and simple autobiography of an Indian chief, the son of a chief, who was a member of the first class at Carlisle. He tells of his life at home and school, and after his return to the reservation, of his marriage and his work for the advancement of his people. Some of the illustrations are from the author's own drawings, the rest from photographs.

Booklist 24:396 Jl '28

"There is nothing in the book which, from the point of interest or value, is not worthy of publication; but the volume is so thoughtlessly conglomerate in arrangement that little of the material can carry the full impact of its meaning. If it had been properly co-ordinated, it might easily have been one of the most interesting biographies and source-books on Indian modes of life."

— \+ Bookm 67:xvi Jl '28 150w

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 21 '28 600w

Christian Century 45:606 My 10 '28 50w

Cleveland Open Shelf p89 Jl '28

"Chief Standing Bear lacks the grave and poetic qualities of some other Indian writers, but he has a keen eye for facts, and the account he gives us of his people and their tribal life is one of the most engaging and veracious we have ever had." Van Wyck Brooks

\+ Ind 120:436 My 5 '28 1050w

"There is dignity to Standing Bear. He is touching without being mawkish. The publishers are to be congratulated on not refurbishing his syntax. It may not always be flawless but it leaves an honorable impression, which is more than can be said for the hasty little word of introduction by William S. Hart, the moving picture actor." C. A. Chapman

\+ New Repub 55:232 Jl 18 '28 300w

New Statesman 32:supxiv D 1 '28 150w

"In it is packed material which, with proper editing, would have made two excellent books: one a description of the customs, manners, mores, of the Oglala tribe of the Sioux nation, the other an amazing biography." Margaret Whipple

\+ N Y Evening Post p9 My 26 '28 250w

"Chief Standing Bear's book is a naively written, capable and very interesting autobiography which is well worth the reading of any one sensitive to the historical value of such a narrative."

\+ N Y Times p20 My 13 '28 360w

"Chief Standing Bear's book is not faked. It is true as Pepys, or Evelyn, or Wilfred Blunt, or Carl Sandburg. There's a sort of noble self-revelation in it; a bluntness and directness, very wholesome, which make an indelible impression." C: Finger

\+ N Y World p10m Ap 15 '28 480w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:590 N '28

Wis Lib Bul 24:190 Je '28

STANLEY-BROWN, KATHARINE, comp. Song book of the American spirit. il $2 Harper

784.8 Songs, American 28-6276

"Twenty-eight songs including Negro spirituals, cowboy melodies, and old-time favorites such as 'My old Kentucky home,' 'Jingle bells,' and 'The quilting party.' Each song is illustrated."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

---

Cleveland Open Shelf p136 D '27

N Y Evening Post p15 D 3 '27 150w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:70 Ja '28

"The nicest thing about 'The Song Book of the American Spirit' is the wallpaper at the front and back. It has pictures of musical instruments, drums, trumpets, fiddles, and a banjo, and also people and other animals of many kinds. The pictures that go with the songs are pretty, too. 'The Song Book of the American Spirit' should make American children sing more, and if they keep right on singing as they grow older, they will be that much happier by the time they find out what it really means to be happy." Sigmund Spaeth

Sat R of Lit 4:620 F 18 '28 280w

STARR, JOHN WILLIAM, Jr. One hundred years of American railroading. 336p il $3.50 Dodd

656 Railroads—United States 28-22234

The story of railroad progress in the United States is in itself a fascinating one. By bringing out the human element in the story, indescribing the individual contributions of inventors, road builders, engineers and financiers, the author has produced a book that will interest the young reader as well as the adult, and may be put to stimulating use in the schools. The illustrations follow the progress of the story.

"The chapters cover the subject as the railroad lines cover our country, and they are filled with vast information and brightened by many interesting anecdotes."

\+ Boston Transcript p3 S 29 '28 250w

STARR, J: W:, jr.—Continued

"For all of his material Mr. Starr went to authentic sources, and the combination of dependability and readability makes the book an important contribution to the industrial history of the nation."

+ N Y Times p5 S 23 '28 480w

"The story of American railroad systems, as unfolded in Mr. Starr's book, is intensely dramatic."

+ R of Rs 78:adv38 O '28 60w

STARRETT, VINCENT. Seaports in the moon; a fantasia on romantic themes. 289p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran

28-10628

First there was Christopher Columbus who dreamed of the passage to the Indies, and then there was Ponce de Leon who dreamed of the Fountain of youth. But it was Juan Perez de Ortubia who discovered the fountain and filled the precious vial which caused all the commotion. From hand to hand it passed, down the centuries, touching the lives of such famous ones as François Villon, Don Quixote, Rabelais, Cyrano, Edgar Allen Poe, and others, until finally the troubled waters found repose in a fish globe.

Bookm 67:xxiv Jl '28 150w

"Mr. Starrett delivers to his public an intensely entertaining and moving book in which imagination runs riot but yet is kept obedient to a perverse logic that is the logic of the Fourth Dimension of living. In 'Seaports in the Moon' the impossible is the possible and the symbol is the word made flesh. I regard 'Seaports in the Moon' as one of the most delightful excursions into the Fourth Dimension of living that I have run across in a goodly number of moons." Herbert Gorman

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 Mr 25 '28 1150w

"The book is a series of pictures, of anecdotes which lose nothing because they are imaginary. It is amusing and appealing, and withal it offers a problem worthy of consideration."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 6 '28 280w

Cleveland Open Shelf p108 S '28

Only once in so many seasons is it given to us to read such a fascinating tale as this of Mr. Starrett's. Across its pages flash some of the most glamorous figures of history and fiction, all in search of the elixir of youth. Humor, irony, erudition, imagination flit quietly in and out of the narrative."

+ Ind 120:311 Mr 31 '28 1500w

Reviewed by R. C. B. Brown

N Y Evening Post p13 Mr 24 '28 230w

"Those who are acquainted with these old worthies will certainly resent Mr. Starrett's extremely cavalier treatment of their favorites, while those who don't know them may well wonder what it is all about. In short, it is a Gargantuan task and inevitably does not quite come off. Some of the characters such as Long John are pleasantly reconstructed, and many of the scenes are highly diverting." Hulbert Footner

— + Sat R of Lit 4:846 My 5 '28 400w

Springf'd Republican p7f Je 3 '28 360w

STEBBINS, MRS LUCY POATE. Old Adam's likeness. 302p $2 Houghton

28-17201

The background of the story is Beechwood Farm, in the Alleghany foothills, which has been in the possession of the Boone family for generations. To this fine old homestead Stephen, the youngest of the Boones, brings pretty little Letty Ollitrault. It is an ill-considered marriage which at first brings no happiness to Letty or Stephen, but thru her gentle unselfishness Letty finally wins her way into the proud Boone family and into the heart of her husband.

"It is in the very adequacy with which so many people are characterized, that the weakness of the book lies, as well as its strength. It is as if the author had tried to paint a mural of heroic size on a six-foot canvas. In an effort to divide space fairly, less than justice is done to each." R. B. Sanborn

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p21 S 9 '28 700w

"From beginning to end, it is clear that this story of the Boones is written by one who knows human nature very well. Next to the understanding of human nature and the color and picturesque quality of the Boone family existence the humor is noteworthy in this story. It enlivens what is already memorable story material. It helps give the Boones something of that quality which convinces us that we shall not lightly forget them." D. L. Mann

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 28 '28 1200w

"The worst trouble with the novel is that it is signally unfocused and disjointed. We do not think that Mrs. Stebbins wrote it with any dominating purpose in mind; we doubt whether she knew exactly where her novel was coming out. As a result she has done a spineless, unconvincing piece of work; a novel with no central idea, no outstanding character, no particular mood or attitude."

— Sat R of Lit 5:41 Ag 11 '28 180w

Wis Lib Bul 24:256 O '28

STEEL, BYRON. Java-Java. 275p $2.50 Knopf

28-17098

Mr Steel has given a riotous imagination free rein. It has forthwith flown with two of his bizarre characters, a voluptuous lady and a curly-headed Nordic, from Europe to a Javanese jungle where the lady meets her fiancé, who is diverting himself with a little black girl and is accompanied by an ex-taxi driver. The parties join forces and the jungle provides a potpourri of entertainment for them all.

"There will be those who will take this book with a tremendous matter-of-factness; who will say that it is all pure allegory, in which this-'n-that equals thus-and-so, and can be worked out by mathematics. Others will say that it is pure satire. Others that it is Mr. Byron Steel, with his tongue in his cheek, having a whale of a time. But whether they like it or not—and there will be many who do not—people will be forced to agree that the author of 'O Rare Ben Jonson' has again written an arresting book." R. B. Sanborn

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Jl 15 '28 1050w

"If he believes this mess of humor and sly cynicism to be other than a bit of youthful madness, it seems doubtful if the world will long remember his work. At present it has no form and not a great deal of wit."

— Boston Transcript p4 Jl 25 '28 120w

"Mr. Steel is a skilful shaker of cocktails. He has vigour, speed and wit. His steed is winged, and he soars above reality. . . The reader may, however, in time tire a little of cocktails, cocktails all the way. And the author, it must be admitted, shakes better than he sometimes mixes."

+ — New Statesman 31:620 Ag 25 '28 180w

"With naive candor and romantic zest Mr. Byron Steel takes us flying through a modern wonderland. The whole thing is delightful social satire, punctuated with a good bit of wholesome hokum. But what I like best about the book is that it is a deliberate, healthy attack upon the frustration complex grown so popular with too many serious-eyed and maudlin-minded young novelists." Ruth Lechlitner

+ N Y Evening Post p5 Jl 14 '28 730w

Reviewed by Christine Diemer

N Y World p7m Ag 19 '28 330w

"A most original and entertaining piece of light fiction. It is slightly reminiscent of work by certain other contemporary writers, but it would be misleading to make an explicit comparison. Be it sufficient to say that Mr. Steel, having gaily polished off Ben Jonson last year, now turns clown and gives us a wholly lunatic yet never merely silly novel."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:39 Ag 11 '28 500w

"Now and then amusing in farcical preposterousness."

Springf'd Republican p7f Jl 29 '28 100w

"There is nothing of burlesque or of satire in his method; he relies entirely on extravaganza, which does not quite come off."

— Times [London] Lit Sup p649 S 13 '28 170w

STEEL, MRS FLORA ANNIE (WEBSTER). The builder. 322p $2 Stokes [7s 6d Lane]

The builder is Shahjahan, the great Mogul Emperor of India, his building the Taj Mahal, memorial to Arjamand, his beloved wife. The story concerns the life of Shahjahan and the household within the palace after the death of Arjamand, and centers chiefly upon the jealous intrigues of the emperor's younger son to overthrow his oldest brother, the heir apparent. To add to the bitterness between them, both princes desire the dancing girl Rana-dil. The heir apparent wins her, but loses to his younger brother in the game of war.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 N 11 '28 200w

Boston Transcript p2 O 31 '28 700w

"It is a good tale well told, and the local colour is supplied with a lavish but competent hand."

+ New Statesman 31:96 Ap 28 '28 70w

"It is a fascinating tale that Mrs. Steel has to tell, and on the whole, despite something a little forced and too strongly archaic about her conversations, she has told her story graphically and with moving effect."

+ N Y Times p22 N 11 '28 550w

"This is the last of Mrs. Steel's epics of the Moghul Emperors of India and it is as picturesque and full of colour as its three predecessors. Even Mrs. Steel finds a difficulty in making the characters live, so far removed are they in place, age, and standpoint; but the book is interesting as an historical record and is written with the author's well-known skill and knowledge."

+ Spec 140:776 My 19 '28 70w

"Mrs. Steel, as she writes, is not thinking the thoughts of the men and women of seventeenth-century India, is not living in imagination under the conditions of their lives. Hence style and matter are in disaccord. In a novel so straitly defined in point of time and place it jars on the reader to find mention, even allusive mention, of such things as jazz bands, five-pound notes, the daily Press, Padgett, M.P."

— Times [London] Lit Sup p241 Mr 29 '28 380w

STEEL, MATTHEW. Physical chemistry and biophysics for students of biology and medicine. 372p il $4 Wiley

541 Chemistry, Physical and theoretical

28-1186

"The subject is treated under the following headings: general introduction; the nature and structure of matter; general properties of matter; energy transformations in living matter; general nature of solutions; water, the great solvent; diffusion and osmotic pressure; the nature and behavior of electrolytes in solution; chemical equilibrium and the law of mass action; measurement of hydrogen ion concentration; the colloidal state of matter; catalysis and velocity of chemical reactions; dynamical physical chemistry of the cell."— J Phys Chem

"Although errors and inconsistencies appear to be rather numerous, it may be said that the plan and scope of the book should make it useful to students of biology who have little time to devote to chemistry and physics." D. B. Dill

+ — Am Chem Soc J 50:3128 N '28 360w

"On the whole the book is carefully written, though it seems a bit wordy. . . The fundamental objection to the book as a text in this particular field is the absence of numerical problems. Otherwise it seems to cover the subject completely, fairly accurately and quite lucidly, and it is hoped that in a later edition the lack of numerical problems may be remedied." A. E. Stearn

+ — Am J Pub Health 18:534 Ap '28 170w

Reviewed by W. D. Bancroft

J Phys Chem 32:794 My '28 2000w

Nature 122:270 Ag 25 '28 280w

STEELE, HARWOOD ELMES ROBERT. Ninth circle. 312p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Hodder & S.]

28-6524

This book, written by a Canadian, dealing with the life of members of the Royal Canadian mounted police, is said to be a true story. It tells of the adventures of a lone Englishman in charge of the farthest North station, and of his Eskimo helpers.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Ap 29 '28 90w

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 28 '28 250w

"Well-written and interesting book."

+ N Y Times p18 Ja 29 '28 180w

"The descriptive writing is conscientious; and if the author tends to become a little rhapsodical when talking of the men's deeds, it is the excusable result of enthusiasm."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p990 D 29 '27 110w

STEELE, SIR RICHARD. Letters; sel. and collated with the original mss.; with an introd. by R. Brimley Johnson. 202p $2.50 Dodd [6s Lane]

B or 92

Most of Steele's letters are addressed to his wife before and after their marriage. "There are four great writers of love-letters in English literature: Swift, Steele and the Brownings," writes Mr Brimley Johnson in his introduction to this book. Certainly Steele's letters to "dearest Prue" are rarely simple and natural.

Nation and Ath 42:858 Mr 10 '28 500w

New Statesman 30:702 Mr 10 '28 580w

"Steele's love-letters are marked by an entire absence of self-consciousness and of any striving after effect; his eye is always on the object; his style always natural and spontaneous. . . If Mr. Johnson had added the labours of annotation to those of collation, he would have deserved better of his readers. There is a tantalizing elusiveness about some of those letters."

+ — Sat R 145:169 F 11 '28 650w

"Here is a series of honest Dick's letters written to 'dearest Prue,' his wife, to his daughters, and to some others, which are the honestest expression of simple affection and sweet natural feeling in the language."

+ Spec 140:195 F 11 '28 160w

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p127 F 23 '28 1100w

STEELE, WILBUR DANIEL. Meat. 304p $2.50 Harper

28-5529

The text is taken from first Corinthians: "If meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth." The birth of a defective son to Anne India, almost pagan in her worship of strength and beauty, transforms her into a fear-ridden Puritan who must at any cost protect her young from touching, tasting or seeing anything which would offer temptation to his abnormal senses. The change which this fierce protective instinct brings about in the heretofore sane and healthy family life ruins her husband's happiness, and warps, all but ir-reparably, the lives of her elder normal son and adopted daughter. The story is a strong indictment of the doctrine that the world should be made safe for the weak at the expense of the strong.

STEELE, W. D.—Continued

Booklist 24:366 Je '28

"Wilbur Daniel Steele, unwisely abandoning his short stories, has written a novel which quite escapes classification. It is difficult to say whether Meat is allegory, satire, or straight propaganda, and therein, perhaps, lies its failure. It is written with Mr. Steele's usual crispness and brilliance, but it remains artificial and pretentious." E. H. Walton

— + Bookm 67:331 My '28 150w

Reviewed by Mary Ross

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 F 19 '28 880w

Reviewed by D. L. Mann

Boston Transcript p4 Mr 3 '28 1250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p77 Je '28

"Such a story is by no means impossible, but Mr. Steele has told it in such a way as to make the whole thing dubious and unreal. This is unfortunate, as he has a genuine narrative ability."

— Ind 120:285 Mr 24 '28 70w

"Mr. Steele tells his story in a style which is finely simple, stripped of all unessentials. But if at times he writes with a poetic incisiveness which is wholly admirable, at others, and in the very same paragraph, he resorts to deliberately unexpected twists which are cheap rather than original. It becomes particularly unfortunate when he tries to combine whimsical fantasy or sentimentality with journalese slang. One can only hope for a purer and more successful amalgamation in his next book."

— + Nation 126:302 Mr 14 '28 120w

"This is a bad novel by a master of the short story. Like all of Mr. Steele's stories, it has a dynamic subject—the problem of the protection of the unfit at the expense of the sound—but the author's method of presentation is simply to intensify all his means of expression to a degree of vehemence that defeats its own purpose." D. B. W.

— New Repub 54:228 Ap 4 '28 100w

Reviewed by R. C. B. Brown

N Y Evening Post p13 F 25 '28 250w

"His strokes are swift, sharp, telling—devastating, to use that overworked word. His verbal excellence is marked. . . Perhaps one fault with 'Meat' as a novel is that Mr. Steele concentrates too viciously upon his theme. The sense of life is there, but it is distorted, thrown out of focus. The book becomes a series of points rather than a broad, widening stream. It is short-story technique (and Mr. Steele must get tired of hearing this) forced arbitrarily to fill the space required by the novel."

— + N Y Times p19 F 26 '28 400w

"A remarkably vigorous moral tract dressed as a novel. As a tract it is so absorbing and so exciting that this reviewer, having read it through last night, has not the slightest idea if it is or is not 'art.' Steele's method of writing is well suited to such an exposition. His style is pruned as bare of blurring green and lacy twigs as a spring vine, and is as full of strong sap. His story carries the thesis boldly. . . That Wilbur Daniel Steele is a novelist, we are not quite sure. But no one reading 'Meat' can doubt that he is a tense and powerful preacher." F. L. Robbins

+ Outlook 148:433 Mr 14 '28 520w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:244 My '28

"The disintegration of a kindly, love-encompassed family is splendidly achieved, but a last minute attempt to rebind the broken and changed members—even to so slight a degree as Mr. Steele does attempt it—is much less successful. The lyrical opening of the book, the ominous suggestion that hangs over the delicate fantasy of childhood, and the explicit horror of the main part are all boldly and definitely projected, but when the ending is approached a wavering becomes apparent. It is doubly difficult to understand why the novels of Mr. Steele should have this unsatisfactory quality in their endings, since in his short stories he is past master of crisp terminal technique." Gladys Graham

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:666 Mr 10 '28 650w

"The work has merit as a study in psychology, normal and abnormal, and by way of that, of a question of practical ethics that the individual, the parent, and society are constantly facing. Nevertheless, if one does not care for theme in his stories, he can easily overlook the argumentative element in 'Meat,' and will find the story good reading."

— + Springf'd Republican p7f Mr 11 '28 250w

"Despite his brilliance, his theme and his people have never come alive. What should have been treated with stern realism to tell its lesson has been made unreal by romance and morbidness until we cannot tell moonshine from daylight. The thesis remains: that liquor made into a fetich will destroy you, and sex thwarted will claim its own. One suspects Mr. Steele of being oppressed by prohibition." Leon Whipple

— Survey 60:177 My 1 '28 220w

STEELL, WILLIS. Benjamin Franklin of Paris, 1776-1785. 227p il $3.50 Minton

B or 92 Franklin, Benjamin 28-23638

"Benjamin Franklin, when he went to Paris on behalf of the new American nation, became not only an adroit diplomat but a social lion. He was adored and petted by the wit and fashion of Paris. On the pages of Willis Steell's entertaining book Mirabeau, Beaumarchais, Voltaire, Diderot, Mme. du Deffand and others appear in sympathetic sketches. The atmosphere of pre-revolutionary Paris is well suggested."—Outlook

---

"Mr. Steell's book on Benjamin Franklin in Paris is a pleasant picture of the American sage, the pleasanter because Mr. Steell has omitted to stress the constant stream of annoyances to which Franklin was subjected. He gives conversations and extracts from letters but as he never tells the reader the source of these it is impossible to know whether this material is authentic or not." H. M. Jones

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p9 D 2 '28 350w

Nation 127:sup637 D 5 '28 50w

"This gossipy volume about Benjamin Franklin is only mildly interesting. Written in a pleasant, sketchy fashion, undocumented (in spite of a few references to, and quotations from, letters and memoirs) and even unindexed, it lays no great claim to serious consideration as contribution to general knowledge of history."

+ N Y Times p24 O 21 '28 380w

Outlook 150:995 O 17 '28 110w

STEFANSSON, VILHJALMUR. Standardization of error. (New science ser.) 83p $1 Norton

121 Truth 28-8352

"The noted explorer discourses upon the respectability of error and the serviceability of myth, ranging all the way from Santa Claus and the stork down to the soap industry and the Mayor of Chicago. He states his thesis most engagingly: 'The philosophers of the Middle Ages demonstrated both that the earth did not exist and also that it was flat. To-day they are still arguing about whether the earth exists, but they no longer dispute about whether it is flat. This shows the greater lasting power of a real thing (whether it exists or not, for that point has not been settled), as compared with an idea, which may not only exist, but may also be wrong even if it does exist.' From the springboard, Stefansson plunges into the pool of contemporary teaching and thought, emerging with many a squirming error."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

Booklist 24:345 Je '28

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 D 18 '27 200w

"If you want to laugh yourself into wisdom, read Stefansson's sparkling little gem which radiates light upon this subject. Mark Twain never did anything better."

+ Educ R 75:156 Mr '28 450w

Reviewed by A. E. Murphy
Int J Ethics 38:357 Ap '28 220w

"The famous conqueror of Arctic regions appears in this little volume in a new rôle. For he shows himself to be the possessor of a devastating sardonic humor and a master of the satiric essay."

+ N Y Times p18 Ja 8 '28 450w

St Louis 26:345 N '28

Reviewed by E. M. East
Sat R of Lit 4:679 Mr 17 '28 700w

Reviewed by Bruno Lasker
Survey 61:43 O 1 '28 30w

Times [London] Lit Sup p398 My 24 '28 150w

STEGEMANN, HERMANN. Mirage of Versailles; tr. by R. T. Clark. 360p $5 Knopf [12s 6d Allen & U.]

940.31 Versailles, Treaty of, 1919. European war, 1914-1918—Territorial questions. Europe—Politics 28-16698

Herr Stegemann describes the treaty of Versailles, summarizes the history and political aims of each of the states affected by it, and closes with a statement of Germany's present situation. The concluding sentence is, "The history of Europe will be determined by the defeat of the Treaty of Versailles and the spirit that rules it."

"Mr. Stegemann has skill in synthesis and the sketches of the individual states, once his rather narrow outlook has been accepted, are stimulating. They would carry more interest and authority if they were accompanied by a definition of the laws of strategy and of geography upon which he lays such stress." C: Seymour

+ — Am Hist R 34:132 O '28 500w

Boston Transcript p4 My 26 '28 320w

"Dr. Stegemann's book may be recommended to American readers as the most useful and cogent historical introduction to contemporary international issues in Europe which has been written in any language, and the most important book on post-war Europe since Alcide Ebray's masterpiece, 'A Frenchman Looks at Peace.'" H. E. Barnes

+ Nation 127:296 S 26 '28 530w

New Statesman 31:supxvi My 19 '28 180w

Reviewed by W: MacDonald
N Y Times p1 Je 24 '28 750w

Sat R 145:355 Mr 24 '28 200w

"A disappointing and pretentious book. It has a certain value, perhaps, for English readers who are apt to forget the extraordinarily difficult position in which Germany has been left by the Treaty Settlement. To-day her industrial and economic power is steadily recovering, and there is little doubt that sooner or later she will seek a re-settlement more in accordance with the real importance and size of the German nation. When that time comes it will be good for the peace of the world if we realize her present difficulties and needs; but we fear that Herr Stegemann's book, by its exaggeration and one-sidedness, will antagonize many readers who might otherwise be sympathetic to Germany's claims."

— Spec 140:324 Mr 3 '28 330w

"As a contribution to modern problems this book seems to be really rather a hindrance than a help. Nowhere do we find a clear, hard-cut picture; the author's references to recent events are often misleading. We do not understand the title of the book, if by 'mirage' is meant an atmospheric condition which disturbs the vision and prevents a clear view, then it is the writer himself who is making the mirage."

— Times [London] Lit Sup p175 Mr 8 '28 230w

STEIN, LEO. A-B-C of æsthetics. 271p $3 Liveright

701 Esthetics 27-24251

"Mr. Stein's book is a general study of first principles rather than a particular statement. He describes the processes by which a work of art is understood—assimilated—and defines the aesthetic experience; he analyzes emotion and feeling, and discusses distortion, composition and pictorial seeing in a way that illuminates the approach of a modern painter to his art."—Theatre Arts Mo

---

"The real faults of the book are belligerence and chaos. It does not—as the jacket declares—discuss modern art movements and 'reduce them to order with logic,' nor does it 'relate them in an evolutionary way.' It hardly mentions them. Even greater intellectual merits than this volume holds could not excuse its intolerably flat, muddy and needless verbiage. Mr. Stein, it may be clarifying to know, is a brother of Gertrude Stein." Edgar Johnson

— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p27 N 13 '27 880w

"Adepts will recognize how Mr Stein's deliverances can be inwardly justified. They will recognize in Mr Stein a thinker of originality, at least in this: his utterances show that he has demolished the identity of his influences; he feels, and once or twice makes you feel, that he speaks out of himself only, the simplest of the simple, the clearest of the clear. If, on the whole, his meaning seems obscure, it is precisely because his work is not through and through a communication but the last turn of a soliloquy because you are asked to take his review of his own experiences and meditations as a prospectus for the unfolding of yours." H. M. Kallen

+ — Dial 84:146 F '28 1350w

"The book is filled with apophthegmatic observations of life, the ego, civilization, that should make his volume precious to all lovers of delicious talk. Indeed, the work is so complete in its foreground—the physiology of the esthetic object—that its utter lack of background—the matrix, causality and dynamics of art—becomes the clearer. To render art intelligible by isolating it from those causes and associations which invade the philosophic realm is just about as wise as it would be to employ a language after abstracting the meaning of the words." Waldo Frank

+ — New Repub 42:292 N 2 '27 1200w

"An extraordinary combination of brilliant naivete and charming sophistication, Mr. Stein's essay . . . affords the rare delight of intellectual provocation without being too frequently impertinent. It is almost profound at moments—with an unintelligibility so smart and startling that even Mr. Stein would be forced to recognize himself as a philosopher. I can do no more at present than to salute Mr. Stein as a philosopher—which to Mr. Stein's way of thinking means that I have read his book with great pleasure, but that I do not understand it." M. J. Adler

N Y Evening Post p15 O 15 '27 560w

"Speculation is always interesting, always provocative; and Mr. Stein's book will have served a purpose if it merely help to keep the lamp of intellectual curiosity alight. Aside from the main thesis, the writer has chosen to discuss a good many particular phases; and possibly in these excursions most readers will decide that he proves more remunerative." E: A. Jewell

+ — N Y Times p16 N 20 '27 1100w

Theatre Arts Mo 12:377 My '28 230w

STEIN, LEO—Continued

"An analysis of aesthetic activity that is fundamental in purpose and achievement. Clears up many confusions. A sure island in the swamp of the subject."

+ World Tomorrow 11:41 Ja '28 40w

"This is essentially a sound and a sincere book. A man of ripe and seasoned scholarship, concerned with aesthetics all of his mature life, collects his ideas for our benefit. . . The long awaited 'A. B. C. of Aesthetics' reveals the defects of its conscientious and thorough method of preparation. To be sure, the author maintains a consistent, single-minded position throughout the work. But he spreads a simple thesis over too broad a field." Duncan Phillips

+ — Yale R n s 18:192 S '28 1100w

STEKLOFF, G. M. History of the First International; [tr. from the 3d Russian ed., with notes from the 4th ed. by Eden and Cedar Paul]. 463p $3.50 Int. pub. [12s 6d M. Lawrence]

335 International workingmen's association

The present work is the most comprehensive history yet published in English of the period of the International workingmen's association, generally known as the First international. Part one is devoted to its forerunners and to the history of the association down to and including the Hague congress, in 1872. Part two deals with the history of the Bakunist or anarchist International which, after the split at the Hague congress and the demise of the Marxist International, continued down to its own death in 1881 or thereabout, to call itself the International workingmen's association.

Reviewed by L. P. Edwards
Am J Soc 34:553 N '28 350w

Reviewed by T. H. Marshall
Nation and Ath 42:754 F 18 '28 780w

"There have been a good many small books written about Karl Marx's famous International Working-men's Association; but this large work, now translated from the Russian is the first that can really be called a history. The others have been either too slight, or too much disfigured by contemporary political rancours, to give a clear picture of the facts. We do not say that Mr. Stekloff's study is free from bias. The author is a devout Communist, and writes throughout from the Communist standpoint. He has, however, worked really carefully through the available material, including many new sources; and he does usually so separate fact and opinion that the reader is able to get them clear and draw his own conclusions."

+ New Statesman 31:234 My 26 '28 250w

"Sound, if somewhat too pompous history, backed by quotations from the relevant documents. It is excellently translated."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p191 Mr 15 '28 250w

STELZLE, CHARLES, comp. If I had only one sermon to preach; sermons by 21 ministers; ed. with an introd. 319p $2.50 (8s 6d) Harper

252 Sermons 27-24113

Various denominations are represented in this collection of sermons—Catholic, Protestant, and Jew, as is also the point of view of the liberal and the conservative. There are twenty-one sermons by leading clergymen thruout the United States.

Booklist 24:233 Mr '28

Boston Transcript p4 Ja 21 '28 280w

STENI, L. Prelude to a rope for Myer. 306p $2.50 Dial press [7s 6d J. Cape]

28-21222

A psychological study of the helpless victims of a sordid passion. The man is a sensuous Jew, proprietor of a London cinema; the girl is a cheap Cockney blond. Each has a loathsome fascination for the other which in spite of frenzied quarrels, neither can shake off. This terrible attraction and terrible antagonism is the prelude to a rope for Myer who ends the mad struggle by strangling the girl.

"The story is written with a certain hard brilliancy of detail which gives it a convincing verity, but only a lover of the lurid will be able to take much pleasure in reading it."

Boston Transcript p2 N 10 '28 180w

"This is a first novel, exceptionally well done." T. S. M.

+ New Repub 56:358 N 14 '28 90w

"A fine piece of mannered writing and accurate observation; the Jew, not a Süss or a Sidonia, but one of those weak, mean, amiable, sensual creatures that are by far the commonest suburban example of the race, is well worked out with a sympathy that, the moment it has made its point, becomes a cruel, almost unpleasant irony. The girl, typical of this hard, competent, highly feminine class, is really better still; her few speeches oddly interlarded in the rich prose, are models of the new vernacular." Cyril Connolly

+ New Statesman 30:661 Mr 3 '28 520w

"The remarkably acute selection of incident and the straight definition of form are borne out in a style which proves itself the instrument of a mind experienced, firm and tentatively ironic. There are minor defects in a study of character which displays at times an insight of the first order. And though this is a book which, particularly in the dialogue, smells a little more of the laboratory than of the street, the narrative proper is able and direct." Vincent McHugh

+ — N Y Evening Post p9m O 27 '28 400w

"The story marches along with the same inevitability of impending doom that is found in Sherwood Anderson's short story called 'Brothers.' But it does not arouse the feeling of pity for Myer that is evoked in the tragedy of Anderson's unfortunate laborer. Nor has it the beauty that is often found in Anderson's harsh realism. At times Mr. Steni accomplishes just the opposite of what he is trying to. At the end of many of his unusually long sentences, floundering in a maze of similes, most readers will forget what he is driving at. But in spite of this, the book has a sense of rank vitality and unforgettable power not often found in first novels."

+ — N Y Times p20 O 21 '28 700w

"The book is not well written, and yet has considerable energy and impact. It concerns sordid and pitiful people. In spite of its style, the story gets told with some insight and some drama. The title is a masterstroke." W: R. Benét

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:271 O 20 '28 500w

"Mr. Steni makes no bid for popular favour. We wish that he had found a theme worthier of his powerful gifts of analysis and description; but, at all events, he is an artist. His four or five characters are thoroughly alive, and the hospital and cheap lodging-house scenes are, among others, too drably realistic to be readily forgotten." Gilbert Thomas

+ — Spec 140:239 F 18 '28 150w

"The author's style is immature, heavy and immensely overloaded with similes and metaphors. At the same time, this is a book of undeniable power, serious and concentrated. The soul that was Lucas Myer is extraordinarily well presented, its core of Oriental savagery, its absolute unsophistication compared with that of the timid and smug little journalist Shenniston, and its contrast with that of Lucas's brother Marcus, whose temperament is equally violent but whose passion is all thrown into his art."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p213 Mr 22 '28 380w

STEPHENS, CHARLES ASBURY. Katahdin camps. 254p il $1.75 Houghton

28-11708

It started when the author promised to take four boys with him for a camping trip in Maine. Before they finally got away the party had swelled to seventeen boys, with the guides and a very harassed leader. Loaded down with parental injunctions and quantities of bulkier luggage they departed into the wilderness for six weeks of hazardous but eventually happy camping and returned in safety.

"The story contains a great deal of valuable information on the creatures of the wild, and no reader can as much as scan the book without learning a good deal about woodcraft."
+ Boston Transcript p3 My 16 '28 130w

"The author tells the story with reminiscent humor and with full appreciation of the dramatic quality of most of his incidents."
+ N Y Times p12 Je 24 '28 150w
Sat R of Lit 5:546 D 22 '28 200w

STEPHENS, JAMES. Etched in moonlight. 199p $2.50 (7s 6d) Macmillan
28-6303

The themes of these seven vividly imaginative short stories are grim and eerie. The implication of softness conveyed by the title applies rather to the manner of the telling. The longest is a dream-tale of a rejected lover who, in a moment of frenzied jealousy, closes the door of an old castle on his love and her betrothed, leaving them imprisoned there. He flees away, and then after suffering years of remorse, returns to accept the consequences of his treachery. Contents: Desire; Hunger; Schoolfellows; Etched in moonlight; Darling; The wolf; The boss.

"Since both art and humor depend on a sense of proportion, anyone who recalls James Stephens in his Crock of Gold mood will not be surprised at the perfection of the seven short stories that compose this volume. Some of these tales deal with everyday themes, others with the supernatural, but all are told with a flawless economy of words and situation." Quincy Howe
+ Atlantic Bookshelf p54 Ap '28 450w
Booklist 24:405 Jl '28

" 'Etched in Moonlight' is a collection of seven short stories by an elfin master of phantasy, humor and poignancy. They are not Stephens at his best, for he is a great genius and these stories are sketches set down without having been thoroughly thought out. But slight as they are in revealing to the reader, unacquainted with Stephens's work, the quality of the Irish raconteur, they are better than most of the stories you would be likely to find in any given collection." Burton Rascoe
+ — Bookm 67:185 Ap '28 270w

"This volume of Mr. Stephens is curiously distinct in temper from the romantic Irish writers who flourished at the start of his literary career and from his lustily realistic younger countrymen who have dominated the Irish tradition in later years. It is hard but quiet, without rancor, and utterly simple in the telling, suggestive at times of the moods of Katharine Mansfield's work. In it are woven lines as poetic as any verse he has written." Mary Ross
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Mr 4 '28 550w

"The fanciful 'Etched in Moonlight,' from which story the volume takes its title, the stark tale, 'Hunger,' the unforgettable, 'Desire,' as well as every other in this collection, will leave their indelible imprint upon the minds of their readers. Mr. Stephens's stories are as different from the general run of short story as is his poetry from that of Walt Mason or of Guest. Whether expressing himself in prose or in poetry, the author is ever the poet, the romancer and the mystic, his stories like his poems, a thing of beauty." C. B. V.
+ Boston Transcript p8 F 25 '28 300w
Cath World 128:504 Ja '29 280w

"In Etched in Moonlight James Stephens has accomplished the feat, always hazardous for a writer, of passing from one idiom into another. His new book is in a new manner and deals with a new material, and yet it is as vital and personal as any of the books we think of as being distinctively Stephens'. " Padraic Colum
+ Dial 85:69 Jl '28 900w

"The story which gives the volume its name in particular is clumsily ineffective in a way which must bewilder those familiar with Stephens' other work. There are flashes in the accustomed manner, bits of inverted philosophy, phrases of always surprising beauty; but they are not enough. Stephens seems to have gone modern."
— Ind 120:237 Mr 10 '28 180w
Reviewed by Ernest Boyd
Ind 120:283 Mr 24 '28 920w
Living Age 334:656 Ap 1 '28 300w

"His new book of short tales scales no heights and adds little to a reputation that appears now firmly established and evaluable. The lightness and whimsy of 'The Demi-Gods' are gone, to be replaced by a rigorous depiction of hunger and dulness and frustration, a little set of stern snapshots of modern Ireland. Whether for good or ill, the elves have left Ireland and their disappearance cannot help reflecting itself in the work of the more intelligent Irish writers." C. P. Fadiman
— + Nation 126:244 F 29 '28 250w
Reviewed by Cyril Connolly
New Statesman 30:729 Mr 17 '28 720w

"The opulent imagination of 'The Crock of Gold,' the lusty whimsy of 'Demigods,' the scintillant ecstasy of 'Deirdre,' give place, in this latest book by James Stephens, to an almost disturbingly restrained, lean tight-reined, art. These sentences move like greyhounds—slender, lithe, direct. These stories are like trained athletes, bearing not a superfluous ounce. Yet the whimsical twist and turn that only Stephens can give are here on every page; and more than ever before in his work, the lines are freighted with wisdom." Shaemas O'Sheel
+ N Y Evening Post p14 Ap 14 '28 700w

"The best of 'Etched in Moonlight' should outlast a good deal that is passingly more famous. The three finest stories of the collection are each in their way highly memorable; memorable for imagination, for style, and perhaps most of all for intensity."
+ N Y Times p12 Mr 4 '28 600w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:244 My '28

"The quality of Mr. James Stephens's writing is so obviously distinguished, his work has such plain claims to be considered as literature, that it is disappointing to find oneself thoroughly enjoying only three of the seven stories—'Desire,' 'Schoolfellows' and 'The Boss.' But the whole book, I need hardly say, is one not to be missed by lovers of literature, for unlike so many of its contemporaries, it has the bearing and manner of art." L. P. Hartley
— + Sat R 145:328 Mr 17 '28 330w

"You will find this collection of stories of his sui generis. This makes them but the more impressive." W: R. Benet
+ Sat R of Lit 4:759 Ap 14 '28 500w

"Etched in Moonlight is admirably written; it is full of beautiful pictures; and, incidentally, it contains much epigrammatic wisdom."
+ Spec 140:393 Mr 10 '28 380w
Springf'd Republican p7f Ap 1 '28 1000w
Times [London] Lit Sup p210 Mr 22 '28 450w
World Tomorrow 11:426 O '28 20w

STERLING, GEORGE. Sonnets to Craig; with introd. by Upton Sinclair. 120p $2 Boni
811 28-12110

"This cycle of one hundred sonnets was written by George Sterling a good many years ago, during a period of less than a twelvemonth, to a girl with whom he fell in love literally at sight. They are now published with an introduction by the man who ultimately became

STERLING, GEORGE—Continued
her husband and Sterling's intimate."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

"No saving touch of earth, no common, unique image, no chill and freshening breath of wisdom alters these super-literary raptures. If Sterling's friend had been as critical as he was unquestionably devoted, he would have allowed the sonnets to remain in the metal box on his desk, unseen save by those for whom they had a sentimental value that perfectly compensated for their lack of other distinction." Babette Deutsch

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 Jl 1 '28 700w

"These 'Sonnets to Craig' are a tribute of which any woman might well be proud her life long. But they do not constitute great poetry. It is distinctly doubtful whether they should have been published. Despite what Upton Sinclair says in his foreword, they are essentially the property of one person alone."

— Sat R of Lit 4:994 Je 23 '28 350w

STERN, EDITH M. Scarlet heels. 300p $2.50 Liveright

28-20918

It was not to be expected that the Duc de Ronne and Emily Trent should understand each other. For the duke's code was French, and Emily's American; marriage never entered his thought; it was never out of hers. Their son was born after Emily's marriage to the Comte de Grandbord, who understood and really profited by the affair—he gained a son whom he greatly loved and who loved him truly. The little Vicomte de Grandbord whose story this is was French in all things. Emily's attempt to make an American of him was his tragedy.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p34 S 30 '28 400w

"With no mincing of words and a clarifying economy of diction, the author has presented an interesting story. Her character portrayals are done with a gentle satire and subtle implications. One feels that she is thoroughly cognizant of her subject." H. F. M.

+ Boston Transcript p2 S 15 '28 450w

" 'Scarlet Heels' is light fiction, of course, but light fiction raised far above the banal."

+ N Y Times p16 S 9 '28 430w

"Mrs. Stern's psychological accuracy and elemental sympathy have tempered what would otherwise be a satirical romance into a thoroughly interesting novel of lucid social philosophy."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:248 O 13 '28 240w

STERN, MRS ELIZABETH GERTRUDE (LEVIN.) A marriage was made. 371p $2.50 Sears

28-5642

"The marriage of the title is made by Millie Dreiser after her failure to storm the heights as a concert pianist. Millie herself, for all her keyboard facility, is curiously pallid beside the appealing figure of her mother, who engineers her child's career as infant prodigy in Derrick City and as student in New York and Europe." —Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p9 Ag 26 '28 90w

"Miss Stern has a very flexible style of writing. Without a great deal of depth to her stories, she contrives to give them the implication of truth and substance. Miss Stern, however, is capable of better things."

+ — Boston Transcript p4 Mr 28 '28 180w

"After Millie's marriage, when Mrs. Dreiser sinks more or less into the background, the novel loses the vitality it borrowed from her vigorous personality. Her naïveté and shrewdness, her puritanism and her compromises, her courage and self-sacrifice, lend something of their own determined forcefulness to the first half of the novel. The second part of the book seems like a good deal of fuss and an endless amount of talk about very little, and that little something in which the reader is not especially interested."

— + N Y Times p18 F 19 '28 400w

"There is little plot, interwoven with absurd and affected sentimentality, which is accentuated by a stilted and unsure style."

— N Y World p11m Mr 18 '28 160w

STERN, GLADYS BRONWYN (MRS GEOFFREY LISLE HOLDSWORTH). Debonair; the story of Persephone. 311p $2.50 Knopf [7s 6d Chapman & H.]

28-12884

"Debonair" is the story of Loveday Trevelyan, most modern of the moderns, who herself thus adds up the sum of her sins: "She asks for cheques. She accepts silver coats. She elopes with strange men. She drinks too much champagne. She's untidy, unpunctual, inconsiderate, hard, flippant, disgraceful. She makes up her face, cheeks her mother, won't work, parasite, idler—ungrateful, unreliable, capricious, and flamboyant in her attire . . . hopeless." With these qualifications Loveday enters on the uneasy adventure of marriage. London and the Riviera are her background, and an upright, sensible, doting, but impotent, Victorian mother.

Booklist 24:366 Je '28

"Vigorous, gay, witty, and wise, 'Debonair' is written both of its author's versatility and her understanding." Mary Ross

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Ap 1 '28 1350w

"In a style half-subjective, half-objective, G. B. Stern has produced some good writing in 'Debonair.' She could scarcely help doing so. But on the whole the book is disappointing, and, to tell the truth, rather uninteresting. To us, it is the final straw of this 'younger generation' craze." A. C.

— + Boston Transcript p2 My 29 '28 500w

Ind 120:312 Mr 31 '28 140w

"Her touch on life is as honest, witty, and human as ever, while her style has notably advanced in color and sensitiveness. Debonair, though perhaps not so impressive as one or two of its predecessors, contains undoubtedly some of her best work." Sheila Kaye-Smith

+ Living Age 334:842 My 1 '28 480w (Reprinted from Daily Telegraph)

Reviewed by A. B. Parsons
Nation 126:540 My 9 '28 380w

Reviewed by Raymond Mortimer
Nation and Ath 43:18 Ap 7 '28 120w

"Debonair is a good novel, but not quite good enough for G. B. Stern to have written." D. B. W.

+ — New Repub 55:233 Jl 18 '28 250w

"There are girls almost like Loveday. They are a social menace. A book about one of them could only be acceptable if it were written in the Sinclair Lewis tradition exposing a female Babbitt in the making. Mrs Stern on the contrary, has glorified the petty ambitions of a worldly flapper, has dealt seriously with her middle class emotions and fundamental stupidity and, finally has succumbed to her rage-provoking Charm. The result is that she has written a clever, tricky, racy, light novel, readable and on the whole worthless."

— + N Y Evening Post p14 Ap 14 '28 780w

"This is the story of a beautiful and unusual English girl who is too headstrong to live conventionally, and too imaginative to live wholly otherwise, and of a mother who feels she understands very little—which is just as well in the long run. They haven't much money and they have breeding, and that makes it all the more trying. It is all very tragic and comic at once—which is always the way with life in the kingdoms of G. B. Stern."

N Y Times p6 Ap 1 '28 430w

Reviewed by J: R. Chamberlain
N Y Times p26 Je 24 '28 60w

"It is not too much to say that this book is enormously clever and readable. Its manner is so tangible and warm and natural, so completely the author's possession, that the characters are instantly evoked and, with their humanness, have something unique about them." Margery Latimer

+ N Y World p11m Ap 22 '28 700w

"The story is a little too determinedly and consciously charming to please the hypercritical, and especially to please the ardent admirers of Miss Stern's best work." Herschel Brickell

— No Am 225:adv Je '28 80w

"Her manner of writing is too bright and overburdened with acute asides for this reviewer's taste. But underneath the brilliant and diverting surface of 'Debonair' lie what are known as good plain truths." F. L. Robbins

— + Outlook 148:672 Ap 25 '28 260w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:548 N '28

"Miss Stern strikes the great Demeter chord of lamentation, and syncopates the theme into very bad jazz. The rush of Loveday's irresponsible adventures is given with a captivating expertise; and most of the characters are lively puppets. In short, the book is a jarring disappointment; but it is not dull." R. A. Taylor

— + Spec 140:477 Mr 24 '28 130w

"It sounds a trifle silly and indeed it is so, but it is not an empty silliness; plenty of things happen, irrelevantly entertaining conversation is flung about, and the puppets are manipulated with admirable liveliness. Fairy-tale riches and beauty and youth and impudence are shovelled out with splendid generosity, and at last a full moon rises upon Charles and Loveday, a moon made of pure honey, and that honey made entirely from white heather. But even if it is a little mixed, it is quite good fun."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p186 Mr 15 '28 450w

STERNE, EMMA GELDERS. White Swallow. [2] 158p il $2 Duffield

27-22953

"Tells of a little Indian boy who lived on the eastern coast of America many years ago, drifted away from home in a canoe, found his way to a wise old hermit with whom he spent the winter and was finally led home by the white swallow which nested in the tree by his father's tepee."—Cleveland Open Shelf

Booklist 24:287 Ap '28

Cleveland Open Shelf p113 N '28

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:509 O '28

" 'White Swallow,' though designed for children under ten, in its simplicity approaches inanity—a sweetish mixture of canoes, papoose, and fairies with a little vague woodcraft and a Prince Charming to top it off."

— Sat R of Lit 4:1007 Je 30 '28 40w

STERNE, LAURENCE. Letters; selected with an introd. by R. Brimley Johnson. 191p $2.50 Dodd [6s Lane]

B or 92 28-5287

A selection of 89 letters of Laurence Sterne from about twice that number which have been definitely authenticated. Grouped according to the recipient, they illustrate the varied aspects of his puzzling character.

"The more rambling, the more inconsequent his letters, the more bewitching. For Sterne was not made to be taken too seriously. Those, like Thackeray, who do so, can only despise him. Mr. R. Brimley Johnson has compiled a pleasant and well chosen anthology from the various Selections of Sterne's letters."

+ New Statesman 29:820 O 8 '27 680w

Reviewed by Edwin Clark

N Y Times p1 Ja 15 '28 1900w

Spec 139:468 S 24 '27 220w

STEUART, JUSTIN. Wayne Wheeler, dry boss, an uncensored biography of Wayne B. Wheeler. 304p il $3 Revell

B or 92 Wheeler, Wayne Bidwell. Prohibition. Anti-saloon league of America 28-19611

"A supposedly 'inside' story of the Anti-Saloon League and its success in 'putting over' Prohibition, written from the standpoint of the late Wayne B. Wheeler, the League's national superintendent. Mr. Wheeler died on September 5, 1927. Mr. Steuart, the author of this biography, had been his confidential secretary."—R of Rs

Reviewed by W: Houghton

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Ag 5 '28 380w

Boston Transcript p3 Jl 7 '28 500w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison

Christian Century 45:883 Jl 12 '28 720w

"As a revelation of the League's methods, the book is exceedingly illuminating. But most of all, it deserves particular praise for the light it sheds upon one of the most amazing men who ever held a government in the hollow of his hand and the way in which it discloses the barreness of 'popular opinion' in the face of modern propagandist methods."

+ Ind 121:93 Jl 28 '28 160w

"Mr. Steuart sets down an appalling record, but he at least does it in a straightforward style and with as little obvious partisanship as such a book could well have." W: MacDonald

Nation 127:663 D 12 '28 320w

R of Rs 78:adv20 Ag '28 50w

"A vigorous and unbiased estimate of the value of the services of Wayne B. Wheeler to the prohibition movement in the United States."

+ Springf'd Republican p7f Jl 15 '28 1350w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple

Survey 60:558 S 1 '28 170w

STEVENS, HENRY BAILEY. Tolstoy. 155p $1.75 Crowell

812 Tolstoi, Leo Nikolaievich, count—Drama 28-19687

A play in seven scenes presenting episodes in the life of Tolstoy from 1878, at the beginning of his years of unrest, to 1910, when he died.

Booklist 25:113 D '28

"He has followed the record, he has used much of Tolstoi's own language, but still the drama has eluded him. Only the externals are there."

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 S 9 '28 110w

Boston Transcript p2 S 15 '28 220w

"I hate to say that it is 'gripping,' but what else can one say of a play that actually does grip, even when read. It is done with great simplicity and sincerity and in consultation with Tolstoy's biographers and his son, Count Ilya Tolstoy."

+ Christian Century 45:1027 Ag 23 '28 120w

"One feels throughout this play the author's earnestness of purpose and feels nothing but admiration for it as such, though his work cannot on that account be recommended either as drama or as sufficient interpretation of the great Russian."

— Ind 121:309 S 29 '28 250w

R of Rs 78:adv34 O '28 50w

STEVENS, JAMES. Homer in the sagebrush. 313p $2.50 Knopf

28-20221

Thirteen short stories which have been divided into three groups: Tales of the Northwest coast; Sagas of the sagebrushers; Idylls of western youth. The author of Paul Bunyan turns his attention toward the northwest and spins yarns of fishermen and dance halls, cowboys, hobos, and the wild life generally of Oregon and Washington of an earlier day.

STEVENS, JAMES—Continued

Booklist 25:123 D '28

Reviewed by Constance Rourke

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 N 25 '28 780w

" 'Little Angel' is recommended to every one, as the best story in an unusually good collection. Here Mr. Stevens displays a talent for quiet satire."

+ N Y Times p9 S 2 '28 650w

"His book is full of the raw stuff of the West, presented in stark, unadorned, unrefined fashion. The strength of the collection is the strength of close observation and unflinching verity; the weakness is the lack of structure and finish. The tales are for the most part crudely formed and some are frankly inchoate . . . Mr. Stevens has given us a book full of vivid and unhackneyed reality; he may yet learn to throw his admirable material into an artistic form that will lift his tales indubitably and impressively into the realm of literature."

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:141 S 22 '28 800w

"It seems as if the Homer of the sagebrush epoch hadn't smoothed off his realism with quite the poetic sensitiveness of the other Homer. But Homers ought to depict their heroes as they are, only more so, and one may take off his hat to Mr Stevens for his presentation of Homeric sagebrush figures, whom one would rather meet in Stevens than in the flesh. Here we may be sure of the heroic quality, be it of the fighter or the liar."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e S 9 '28 230w

STEVENS, LOUIS. All the king's horses. 308p $2 Day

28-7329

Count Jenö, young, handsome, wealthy, is a favorite in Budapest society. The story, which follows a group of society folk from the city to their country estates and back again, is told by a friend of the count's who describes the fall of the count's fortunes and his own success where Jenö has failed, in winning the love of Mariska, a charming, unspoiled dancing girl. A part of the story covers the devastating war years which closely affect the lives of all the characters.

Reviewed by L. M. Field

Bookm 67:332 My '28 150w

"The author, who knows his Magyars, has brought the good old bugle of reminiscence out and played another novelistic tune of yearning—this time a czardas—for the vanished days of golden youth and happiness that lie on the yonder side of the World War's gulf. He plays not untunefully, though at times his sentimental veneer is rather thickly laid on."

F: H. Martens

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 Ap 8 '28 520w

"Mr. Stevens reveals the inexperienced novelist's tendency to introduce too many characters, and to jumble their roles so indiscreetly as to put too great a strain on the reader. However, there is just enough of promise in his work to encourage Mr. Stevens to write another novel—for this is his first."

— + Boston Transcript p6 Jl 3 '28 150w

Ind 120:312 Mr 31 '28 180w

"The odd names and the speed at which new characters are introduced make the story hard to follow, and one gets a general impression of E. Phillips Oppenheim material used without the Oppenheim skill." R. H.

— N Y Evening Post p13 Mr 10 '28 90w

"A good first novel. It is done with a broad understanding and an assured touch and it possesses qualities that arouse high expectations of the work the author has yet to do."

+ N Y Times p32 Mr 18 '28 300w

" 'All the King's Horses' is occasionally difficult to follow. But it is an honest and a moving story, a most attractive addition to the chronicles of post-War hardships. It should please many types of readers; it can offend no one."

+ Sat R of Lit 4:954 Je 9 '28 130w

STEWART, ALFRED WALTER (J. J. CONNINGTON, pseud.). Mystery at Lynden Sands. 306p $2 Little [7s 6d Gollancz]

28-19130

Sir Clinton Driffield on holiday is called on to help Inspector Armadale solve the mystery of the caretaker's death at Foxhills, the Fordingbridge home. Somehow linked with this first mystery is the arrival of a faceless man who claims to be the missing Fordingbridge heir, the theft of some family silver, and the death of a second man on the beach at Lynden Sands.

Reviewed by C: M. Purdy

Bookm 68:233 O '28 120w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Ag 26 '28 130w

"Mr. Connington is lively and his taste in plots inclines to the fantastic; he makes up for their improbabilities by clever, though obviously too hasty, writing." H. E. Dounce

+ — N Y Evening Post p5 Ag 11 '28 100w

"Those who enjoyed the other Connington stories in which Sir Clinton Driffield appeared will not be disappointed in this one."

+ N Y Times p12 S 16 '28 220w

"Mr. Connington gives you all the facts, and gives them to you entertainingly, so that even if you are one of those people who look at a detective story as a story and not as a puzzle, you'll find this one worth an evening." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 149:638 Ag 15 '28 120w

"Sir Clinton is an able, unspectacular, secretive sleuth who, though his methods are somewhat prosaic and long-drawn-out, gives one an impression of plausibility far stronger than that conveyed by showier performers."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:248 O 13 '28 150w

"This is a detective story of the deliberately engrossing kind. The suspense is skilfully maintained; and the fact that the style is good does not lower the dramatic interest. Also, the lady in the case is quite charming."

+ Spec 140:885 Je 9 '28 200w

"Mr. Connington has blended his ingredients into an ingenious puzzle, the heterogeneous parts of which fit into a coherent whole."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p361 My 10 '28 150w

STEWART, ALFRED WALTER (J. J. CONNINGTON, pseud.). Tragedy at Ravensthorpe. 290p $2 Little [7s 6d Benn]

28-5169

There is trouble between the brothers at Ravensthorpe. Maurice is apparently unfair to his younger brother Cecil in the management of the estate. In retaliation Cecil stages a mock burglary to take place on the night of a masked ball. An actual burglary takes place, followed by a tragedy. Sir Clinton Driffield, a friend of the family who is visiting Ravensthorpe at the time, unravels the mystery.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p22 Mr 11 '28 110w

Boston Transcript p3 Ap 21 '28 230w

"A detective story worth casual recommendation. It is written rather brightly, if hastily." H. E. D.

N Y Evening Post p13 Mr 17 '28 70w

N Y Times p26 Mr 4 '28 200w

Reviewed by L. P. Hartley

Sat R 144:282 Ag 27 '27 120w

"This is more than a good detective tale. Alike in plot, characterization, and literary style, it is a work of art. In short, this is one of the best 'thrillers' of the year."

+ Spec 139:359 S 3 '27 150w

Springf'd Republican p7f Ap 29 '28 100w

"The ingenuity of the plot is such that one can easily forgive the use of a formula, especially as the whole mechanism of the story is not by any means mechanical. One minor improbability may be found, for the story turns upon a hereditary disease, but it is very doubtful whether such a disease could be hereditary, and at any rate the reader is not likely to think of it as within the category of possible hereditary diseases, so that this is not perfectly fair."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p964 D 15 '27 250w

STEWART, PERCY MARLBOROUGH. Travel [2] and sport in many lands. 320p il $5 Doubleday, Doran [21s T. Butterworth]

799 Hunting. Fishing. Voyages and travels

The indefatigable quest of sport has yielded the author many trophies and a host of anecdotes and photographs gathered in Africa and Australia, India and Java, the United States and Canada.

"Major Stewart's book is without method, chronological or geographical, and passes from continent to continent and year to year, backwards and forwards as the mood takes him."

New Statesman 31:519 Jl 28 '28 400w

"There are few parts of the world that the author has not visited either as a traveller or one interested in sport. . . A travel book, whether it forms an account of a single expedition or of several, should, generally speaking, give some idea of the present-day conditions which may serve as a guide to future travellers. 'Travel and Sport in Many Lands' certainly does not do this. The photographs of various parts of the world are numerous, but none of them has any special merit. There is a good index."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p507 Jl 5 '28 330w

STILES, PERCY GOLDTHWAIT. Dreams. 80p il $1.50 Harvard univ. press [7s Oxford]

135 Dreams 27-20144

"Dr. Stiles, who is a member of the Faculty of the Harvard Medical School, makes an addition to the limited body of fact-knowledge concerning dreams. Beginning as a young man, the author has kept for thirty years a record of his dreams and has made the account more vivid by frequent sketches, sometimes in colors. The substance of that record makes the basis of this little book."—N Y Times

"Dr. Stiles writes pleasantly, with a quiet humor, and can be safely read by all the New England ladies of both sexes who dream of Upton Sinclair as a bête noir and of H. L. Mencken as Mephistopheles, Jr. Dreams should be made of sterner stuff." S. D. House

— New Repub 55:52 My 30 '28 110w

New Statesman 30:472 Ja 21 '28 250w

"Dr. Stiles modestly disclaims being anything but an amateur in the study of dreams, but any one who is interested in the problem of their significance, and especially any one who has dipped into psychoanalysis either actively or passively, will find his little book suggestive and illuminating."

+ N Y Times p20 Ja 29 '28 330w

Reviewed by Joseph Jastrow

Sat R of Lit 4:426 D 10 '27 700w

"Dr. Stiles's book is a little masterpiece of humorous psychology, conveying observation in a light style and with the aid of ingenious, if hardly elegant, drawings."

+ Springf'd Republican p16 D 16 '27 480w

STODDARD, ANNE, and SARG, TONY. Book of marionette plays. 200p il $2 Greenberg

792 Puppet-plays 28-2688

"Practical material for parents and teachers interested in puppet shows. Concise and clear explanations for the construction of a marionette theatre with full directions for lighting, costuming and properties. Includes the complete text of five marionette plays as presented by the Tony Sarg Players."—St Louis

Booklist 24:252 Mr '28

Boston Transcript p5 F 18 '28 230w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:296 My '28

St Louis 26:103 Ap '28

STODDARD, HENRY LUTHER. As I knew them; presidents and politics from Grant to Coolidge. 571p il $5 Harper

923.1 Presidents—United States. United States—Politics and government 27-24210

For descriptive note see Annual for 1927.

Booklist 24:281 Ap '28

Reviewed by L: Sherwin

Bookm 67:112 Mr '28 110w

"'As I knew them' carries its solid claim to interested reading from the first page to the last page as the procession of documented American history, seen from a special seat in the press gallery or through the reporter's spectacles. Frequently the material is still in the memory of those who have followed American politics. Mr. Stoddard's method freshens memory and enlivens recollection." Anne Hard

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p21 F 26 '28 1050w

"Kindly, rambling reminiscences these. It cannot be said that this volume contains much of value to the historian, though Mr. Stoddard does throw a light upon one intrigue or another. But what can be said of a journalist who at this day still believes the hoary falsehood that the war with Spain was manifest destiny not to be thwarted, and that McKinley really tried to prevent that war? He might at least have read James Ford Rhodes's account of this episode."

— + Nation 126:102 Ja 25 '28 160w

"Though this book is neither history nor autobiography, it has the charm and appeal of both. To me it is one of the most refreshing and wholesome that have lately appeared dealing with the political field." R. M. Field

+ N Y Evening Post p12 Ja 14 '28 1000w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:121 F '28

R of Rs 77:adv4 Ja '28 120w

"Mr. Stoddard has an eye for the picturesque and the dramatic, but he also touches the scenes he recalls with comment which, if not invariably above criticism, is often much more cogent than that to be found in more pretentious discussion."

+ Sat R of Lit 4:801 Ap 21 '28 280w

Springf'd Republican p7f Mr 4 '28 1250w

Wis Lib Bul 24:56 F '28

STODDARD, THEODORE LOTHROP. Story of youth. 343p il $2.50 Cosmopolitan bk.

390 Children. Youth. Manners and customs 28-22423

In a series of pictures of which children form the center Lothrop Stoddard sketches the manners and customs of successive periods of history from the days of ancient Babylon, showing how boys and girls have lived and fared thru the centuries, how they have studied, worked and played, how they have dressed and what they have had to eat.

Boston Transcript p5 N 7 '28 250w

"An unusual historical background and a fine literary equipment make this book distinct and original."

+ Nation 127:552 N 21 '28 70w

"He has written the story with a facile pen and so has made it exceedingly readable. Young people in their early teens ought to find it very interesting, while teachers will discover in it material for many an illustrative tale. For his material he has gone to authoritative sources and the average reader will doubtless be surprised that clay tablets, Egyptian relics and even more modern forms of historical records should yield so much vivid and interesting portrayal of the lives of children in long ago ages."

+ N Y Times p14 O 7 '28 420w

R of Rs 78:adv38 O '28 60w

STODDARD, T. L.—Continued

"There is a wealth of delightful material in this volume, assembled from many sources. Mr. Stoddard not only presents the doings of boys and girls from Babylonia forward to Colonial times in America; he gives a picture of the social background of each age so that the children of the Renaissance, for example, play and study against the color and allurement of those rich centuries." Geoffrey Parsons

+ Sat R of Lit 5:246 O 13 '28 550w.

STONE, JAMES SAMUEL. Cult of Santiago; traditions, myths, and pilgrimages; a sympathetic study. 380p $6 (15s) Longmans

282 Santiago de Compostela. James, Saint, apostle 27-24278

"The conversion of St. James, the fisherman of Galilee, into that 'Padron y Capitan General de las Espanas' who prances above many altars on his magnificent white horse, is one of the strangest transmutations in the strange annals of Christian hagiography. A series of fortunate incidents converted Compostella into one of the great pilgrimage-shrines of the Catholic world, and fostered the growth of a crowd of romantic legends round its tutelary saint. These legends, and much else more or less closely connected with the cult of Santiago and its place in Spanish life, are told by Dr. Stone, who is Rector Emeritus of St. James's Church, Chicago."—Spec

---

"The title of this book is ill-advised, too heavy for the substance, but the temper is delightful, desultory, and imperturbable, with a kind of intellectual charity that is like almsgiving. Neither historical in the strict sense nor anthropological at all, the book is concerned with 'traditions, myths, and pilgrimages.' It offers itself like a pleasant acquaintance made on a journey, cultivated, discursive, and humorous."

+ Am Hist R 33:906 Jl '28 400w

Reviewed by M. P. Redfield

Am J Soc 34:395 S '28 250w

"A collection of delectable fables, and the author's occasional gentle ironies reveal his own intelligent attitude toward them without breaking the promise of his introduction. It is a large and enjoyable volume filled with some of the most incredible and least important material in the world, but not the least interesting."

+ Christian Century 45:178 F 9 '28 200w

"It is intended for readers who know little or nothing about St. James of Spain, but who have time and inclination to explore the byways of the past. If they do not mind excursions to right and to left, if they can be content not to distinguish between actuality and legend, they may be very pleasantly beguiled. They will learn much about many things aside from the cult and legend of Santiago, and they will learn about them from a man who is eminent in wisdom and grace, even though not expert in hagiographical lore or in sifting historical evidence."

+ Sat R of Lit 4:557 Ja 28 '28 250w

"He has read widely, though not deeply, in mediaeval history; and is an adept in the art of intelligent quotation. His book is a rambling and good-humoured chronicle; pleasant to read, though of no great historical worth."

+ — Spec 140:58 Ja 14 '28 200w

"Dr. Stone's pleasant rambling volume is mainly a compilation; but it derives a real interest from the author's evident love of the Middle Ages and from some telling original comments."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p952 D 15 '27 500w

STOREY, WALTER RENDELL. Beauty in [2] home furnishings; (what to choose and why). 297p il $3.50 Henkle

749 House decoration. Furniture 28-18473

"In nine concise chapters Mr. Storey takes up the major pieces of furniture for the modern house or apartment. Period styles, furniture, woods, upholstery fabrics, floor coverings and wall decorations; decorative metals, lighting fixtures and decorative pottery and glassware, tables, chairs, mirrors, cabinets. Mr. Storey tells amateurs what periods and styles can be placed together for obtaining the best results. Excellent descriptive passages present the characteristics of examples of the various styles."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

"Most of the book is reprinted from the 'New York Times' magazine, where Mr. Storey writes a weekly article on interior decoration, and the straightforward timeliness which must characterize newspaper copy is very welcome in book form."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p26 N 11 '28 220w

"The distinctive quality of the volume is that it does not treat its material on conventional lines. It presupposes considerable familiarity on the reader's part with the fundamentals of the decorative arts and turns attention chiefly to modern developments in them."

+ N Y Times p14 Jl 29 '28 420w

STORM, LESLEY, pseud. See Clark, M. M.

STORM, MARIAN. The gallant came late. 374p $2 Putnam

28-21486

The best thing in the story is the tender relationship between a lonely father and his little dreaming daughter who never knows loneliness because she is so busy with the work of the farm. When her father dies Allard goes to New York to train a promising voice and there has her first experience with love, a heartbreaking one. Forsaken by her lover she is rescued by Niel, but the "gallant came late," too late to save her from the drive of a tormented mind.

"The attempt is gallant, but the result becomes a little too simple, too earnest, too noble when the story leaves the clear horizons of childhood and strikes into the more intricate imaginings of maturity." Mary Ross

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 D 23 '28 680w

Boston Transcript p7 N 14 '28 280w

"Miss Storm's story is, interiorly, profoundly true. It seems to me a pity that the concrete episodes she has hit upon to develop the theme should have such a false, almost movie-like atmosphere about them. One does not question the genuineness of the experience Miss Storm has tried to dramatize with these unfortunately chosen episodes or the genuineness of her talent." A. B. Parsons

+ — Nation 127:401 O 17 '28 280w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver

N Y Evening Post p9m D 1 '28 130w

"Told without sentimentality, the story is moving and poignant. Miss Storm has a trick of making one feel places without describing them. Allard herself is an amazingly real person, as are all those having to do with her but Raoul. It seems too bad that the man she loves cannot have been more tangible, but his very lack of definite traits emphasizes the more positive qualities of Allard and his own inadequacy."

+ — N Y Times p6 S 16 '28 480w

Sat R of Lit 5:492 D 8 '28 380w

STRACHEY, GILES LYTTON. Elizabeth and [2] Essex; a tragic history. 296p il $3.75 Harcourt [15s Chatto & W.]

B or 92 Elizabeth, queen of England. Essex, Robert Devereux, 2d earl of 28-26937

In "Elizabeth and Essex" there is less of irony than in Strachey's other biographical studies. The great queen, most accomplished woman of her age, who at fifty-three admitted to intimacy the handsome Essex, then a youth of twenty, and her ambitious lover both appear in this tragic history as figures of romance.

"It retains (perhaps even intensifies) all his brilliance while abandoning some few of his mannerisms. Easier to read than any of the 'easy' books turned out by lazy authors for a lazy public, it achieves that ease not by vulgarity, but by means of a concision and perspicacity entirely classical in their simplicity and it discards because it does not need every cheap device by which popularity is bid for. . . 'Elizabeth and Essex' makes it clear that Strachey belongs, not merely in the list of contemporary wits, but with the great writers of all time." J. W. Krutch

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 D 9 '28 2700w

Reviewed by Addison Cowles

Boston Transcript p7 D 8 '28 1050w

"His Elizabeth is a real woman, and Essex is a real man. Neither is a mere lay figure, an automaton moved about at the will of the biographer. Both are strong, both are powerful, both are mighty, Elizabeth holding herself continuously beyond the permanent grasp of the man who sought to wield authority through a woman." E. F. Edgett

+ Boston Transcript p5 D 29 '28 780w

"Elizabeth has wrung respect from even his skeptical mind, and he has made no effort to utilize unsuitable occasions for the exercise of his ironic gifts. Telling a complicated and absorbing story with matchless ease, he has rightly assumed that it needed no adventitious ornament, and he has exercised the whole of his extraordinary skill in reconstructing from the voluminous documents a narrative which pauses only to sketch an unforgettable portrait or to speculate with calm detachment upon tangled motives which patience alone cannot even partly unravel." J. W. Krutch

+ Nation 127:717 D 26 '28 630w

"If here and there he chips away a fragment to shape his story, he achieves his purpose completely. He infects the reader with his own sympathy for the passions he describes. We execrate the treacherous Bacon, we burn with Essex to commit resounding follies, and with Elizabeth we answer actively to his exciting presence. History has fallen into the hands of dull scientists and epigrammatic charlatans. But if Mr. Strachey ever omits the facts, he always knows them. To our continual solace and delight, he keeps history an art." Raymond Mortimer

+ Nation and Ath 44:295 N 24 '28 900w

" 'Elizabeth and Essex' has a style in full harmony with the manner of the great age which it celebrates: but it is a style romantic and passionate, instead of intimate and insinuating. It is no disparagement to say that Mr. Strachey has not found himself in the Elizabethan Age as in the Victorian." R. M. Lovett

+ New Repub 57:168 D 26 '28 1350w

"On his portrait of the great Queen, sketchy as it is, Mr. Strachey may be congratulated. But with his other portraits in this volume there seems, as we have said, to be something wrong. One does not question his scholarship nor his painstaking accuracy of detail. But he belittles every man he mentions. That is probably a more or less inevitable result of the method which he has elaborated for himself. It precludes direct praise and almost all forms of expressed admiration, and for that reason perhaps the perspective of the whole picture is awry." C. S.

— + New Statesman 32:256 D 1 '28 1550w

" 'Elizabeth and Essex' is more than clever, more than icily just; it is penetrating and true. It is not only Mr. Strachey's best book; it is a great book." Edgar Johnson

+ N Y Evening Post p9m N 24 '28 900w

"With this book Mr. Lytton Strachey has set another jewel blazing in the crown of English letters. If there is such a thing as imperishable prose being written in our time, Mr. Strachey has done it here. The magic of these pages draws one back again and again. This is a book impossible to read but once; the style haunts one; the effect of the whole is pure enchantment."

+ N Y Times p1 D 2 '28 3350w

Outlook 150:1372 D 19 '28 70w

" 'Elizabeth and Essex' disposes once and for all of the notion that Lytton Strachey is just a witty iconoclast. Careful research, an immense documentation and a felicitous style combine here in a narrative as exciting as any novel. The author does not himself adopt the license of his imitators. He does not imagine his facts, nor put into the mouths of his people words for which there is no warrant. His sources are authentic and are so skilfully used that the vast labor entailed is not apparent to the uninitiated. To quote his own description of Bacon's essays, the book is written 'in a succession of gnomic sentences from which every beauty but those of force and point' has been strictly banished." Ernest Boyd

+ Outlook 150:1415 D 26 '28 1050w

"Mr. Strachey is very like Macaulay—and almost as good. . . But, brilliant as they often are, his speculations are not always convincing and sometimes noticeably fail in boldness." E: Shanks

+ — Sat R 146:768 D 8 '28 1800w

"We have never seen anything better, of the kind, than the pictures that he has drawn of Elizabeth, of Essex, of the Secretary, Sir Robert Cecil, and, last but not least, of Francis Bacon. On the other hand, we cannot feel equally convinced that Mr. Strachey's latest effort is at all points good history; it is not comparable in this respect with his 'Queen Victoria.' He does not know his sixteenth century as he does his nineteenth." R. B. Merriman

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:511 D 15 '28 780w

"The Queen lives most vitally. The portrait of the Earl of Essex is less convincing. . . After the Queen, Robert Cecil emerges as the greatest of the figures here portrayed. . . Mr. Strachey's Bacon is admirable and dissected with especial skill. . . At the end of Elizabeth and Essex there is a bibliography which is disturbing to the creeping critic—the pedant—who reads such things; for it omits at least five of the most important sources for the life of Essex. But, doubtless, with the general reader Elizabeth and Essex will enhance Mr. Lytton Strachey's great reputation." G. B. Harrison

+ — Spec 141:sup777 N 24 '28 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p959 D 6 '28 1800w

STRACHEY, MRS RACHEL (COSTELLOE) (RAY STRACHEY). Shaken by the wind; a story of fanaticism. 317p $2.50 Macmillan [7s 6d Faber and G.]

28-4067

"The story of one of the ecstatic cults which flourished in the more isolated communities of America in the mid-nineteenth century, and of the havoc that it plays with a family. The plot is conventional. From the entrance of Brother Rufus Hollins, the spellbinding prophet, one knows that the thick streams of his eloquence will readily convert father Sonning to his hysterical doctrine; that he will debauch the adopted Sonning daughter under the guise of spiritual freedom and mystical unity, nearly ruin the son, who loves her, and finally anathematize the Sonning mother, whose remaining shreds of sense do at last save the family."—Outlook

---

"The author's grandmother, Hannah Whitall Smith, left her a large number of documents on which she has based this novel. A turn of phrase here and there gives the book an odd, old-fashioned charm. But a fundamentally religious point of view struggles irreconcilably in the author's mind with an inevitable modernity. Hence her characters suffer, but her narrative is well told and interesting." J: Gerard

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 F 5 '28 860w

"The story is well constructed, moving to its tragic climax with the stern inexorableness of honest drama. There is no period of American church history which has more to offer the reader in search of color, and Mrs. Strachey has handled her materials with fine effectiveness."

STRACHEY, RACHEL—Continued

+ Christian Century 45:476 Ap 12 '28 100w

"Such a vivid picture of a sordid aspect of religion is sure to arrest attention, and the subject becomes so interesting that we may forget some of the novel's technical defects."

+ — Living Age 334:845 My 1 '28 200w

"It is perhaps a fault in 'Shaken by the Wind' that the chief character is not intimately imagined. But religious hallucination is such a difficult subject that a writer may well be tempted to treat it with discretion, though that is only a second-best. The sympathetic detachment, the simplicity and occasional beauty of the narrative, however, make it noteworthy." Edwin Muir

+ — Nation and Ath 42:87 O 15 '27 60w

"The conclusion of the book is a masterstroke, and the detachment of the author, while it makes the book a little difficult to read, allows the tempo to accelerate as she sifts delicately the strange alloy of sex, cupidity and devotion; of egotism and hysteria, that unite the two preachers and their little band. No pity is wasted on the participants, because it is obvious that they are so happy, and also that most readers will supply a little from the fund that is always reserved for the vanishing credulity of simple people. Incidentally, the book gives a pleasant picture of America, of kind and thrifty people, at ease in country surroundings and entirely removed from the perils of standardised civilisation." Cyril Connolly

+ New Statesman 30:supxiv N 5 '27 380w

N Y Evening Post p15 Ap 14 '28 80w

" 'Shaken by the Wind' is unevenly written, and although it has one or two excellent brief bits, it is, on the whole, forced and thin. In only one instance toward the end of the second half, when, with her son lying ill, Sarah and Rufus meet in a mental and physical conflict, does the story reach moments of suspense. Even then, somehow, it falls flat."

— + N Y Times p9 F 12 '28 530w

"The book fails in characterization; but its facts, founded on papers in the author's possession, are strong. Ray Strachey manages to tell a melodramatic story with poise, and she foregoes the joys of satire. Reading the book, it is possible to question whether we are not yet, even in our supposedly sophisticated communities, a nation of joiners, ripe for any cult. We may not be shaken by such wind as blew upon the Sonnings, but it does not take a very heavy breeze to make us quiver like aspen leaves." F. C. L. R.

+ — Outlook 148:396 Mr 7 '28 180w

"An inventory gives a very poor idea of the quality of the book; the sure characterization, direct and subtle, the even excellence of the style which is always quiet enough for each point both to stand out and to fall into its place; the streaks of madness and sincerity in Rufus himself. 'Shaken by the Wind' is in a different class from 'Elmer Gantry.' Mr. Sinclair Lewis takes the most brilliant shots of our time. When he attacks, he attacks with all the fury and knowledge of a man who is fighting himself. Miss Strachey loads no dice. Serene, detached, economical, sensitive, her insight never fails, her humour never obtrudes, her tenderness never falters. Almost alone among American writers she possesses the gift of irony. In addition to all of which, Sarah and her sister Anna are among the most delightful women ever created by woman." L. P. Hartley

+ Sat R 144:554 O 22 '27 560w

"There is an exciting plot, some 'strong' (though adequately restrained) scenes, and a few well-drawn characters, of whom Sarah Sonning, with her unshakable common sense and patient endurance, is the best. The main defect of a clever and engrossing book is the element of caricature which seems to imply that the exception is the rule."

+ — Spec 139:515 O 1 '27 180w

"Viewed as a semi-historical tale and as an inquiry into the psychology of religious emotionalism set in the midst of strict repression, 'Shaken by the Wind' is an exceedingly interesting book. As a novel it is uneven, flatness and puppet-like action alternating with a true sense of human values."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7f Ap 8 '28 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p688 O 6 '27 480w

STRAHAN, KAY CLEAVER (MRS W. N. STRAHAN). Desert Moon mystery. 314p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Gollancz]

28-7955

Desert Moon ranch, home of Sam Stanley, an ex-cow-puncher millionaire, is sanctuary to a number of souls in distress. The newest comers are the twin daughters of Sam's divorced wife, Danielle and Gabrielle. Danny is a quiet, gentle girl, the antithesis of her sister in character, tho very like her in looks. Horror descends on the ranch when Gaby is found brutally murdered. Crime succeeds crime, and clues abound. A young woman detective solves the mystery, and the ranch housekeeper who had a flurried hand in events, tells the story.

"The book is excitingly equipped with the thrills, secrets and what-not demanded by your true crime addict, all cleverly manouvered with a technical skill surprising in a newcomer; secondly, it carries a line of good, unpretentious English, manifestly employed by the author in the full consciousness that she is not describing the Fall of Troy; for the rest, it is a godsend in the way of a mystery that the whole family can read without littering up the home and cursing the children with a taste for trash. In a word, 'tis an event which you'll miss at your own risk." Will Cuppy

+ Books (N Y Evening Post) p30 Ap 15 '28 500w

"It is so good that we ourselves were fooled to the very end, which is a rare occurrence. It is written like a story, and not like a detective story, and all the characters, from the pleasant sensible Mary, who writes the chronicle, to Chad the ventriloquist, are quite worth the story without any murders. The horror of which there is plenty, is not bloody, and it is relieved, delightfully by Mary's sense of humor."

+ Boston Transcript p2 My 23 '28 350w

Reviewed by R. A. Simon

N Y Evening Post p13 Ap 21 '28 130w

"A good story, neatly told—and the author plays fair. The end will surprise you, yet you'll wonder why you didn't see it earlier."

+ Outlook 149:36 My 2 '28 80w

STRANGE, JOHN STEPHEN. Man who killed Fortescue. 310p $2 Doubleday, Doran

28-21589

The man who killed Fortescue was never discovered—a young woman was tried for the murder and acquitted, and the case remained a mystery. A year later a writer of detective stories who is near a solution of the Fortescue case is killed on a Fifth Avenue bus in New York. Joan Archer, the girl of the previous trial, is implicated in the second tragedy. But Detective Ormsberry believes in her innocence and does not give up until he finds the double murderer.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p9 Ag 19 '28 100w

Boston Transcript p6 Ag 22 '28 220w

N Y Times p12 S 16 '28 160w

"It is a little better than average detective story."

Sat R of Lit 5:251 O 13 '28 130w

STRAUS, RALPH. Charles Dickens; a biography from new sources. 340p il $4 Cosmopolitan bk. [16s Gollancz]

B or 92 Dickens, Charles 28-22252

The author, a director of Chapman and Hall, Dickens' original publishers, has had unusual opportunities to consult hitherto unused sources. The book, which is written in the manner of the new biography, sheds new light on Dickens' domestic troubles.

"Neither highly jazzed nor solid psychological analysis, but a piece of sound journalistic craftsmanship addressed straight to the reader who runs rather than to the special student. . . A more reflective biographer than Mr. Straus would hardly rest content to set forth the hurry and restlessness of Dickens's career without an attempt to trace the results of dissatisfaction and lack of integration in his writing. Mr. Straus blandly ignores the problem, with the comment that Gissing and Chesterton have said all that needs to be said about the books." G: F. Whicher

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 O 7 '28 520w

"One hardly knows what to admire most in this book: its deftly manipulated scholarship, its thorough but never maudlin sympathy with its subject, its style both exuberantly Dickensian and adroitly waggish, or its inclusion of invaluable material perhaps justifiably withheld by Forster. This is decidedly the most informative, illuminating, and charmingly written bit of Dickensiana that has appeared for years."

+ Nation 127:459 O 31 '28 150w

"A vivacious, entertaining narrative." R. M. Lovett

+ New Repub 56:253 O 17 '28 620w

"In its kind the book is agreeable and satisfactory; in details, living and comprehensive, in style, decidedly readable. Mr. Straus is wise, of course, in abstaining from criticism of Dickens's books, and concentrating on the man's life, public and private. And it follows, naturally, that the reader is safe from being dragged into that silly game of 'identifying' country inns, doorsteps, bedrooms, beadles, bullies, what-not, which has long befogged the wits of adepts in the Dickensian cult."

+ — New Statesman 31:699 S 15 '28 750w

Reviewed by Lionel Trilling

N Y Evening Post p8m D 22 '28 680w

"Mr. Straus's narrative is a moderately extended bit of happy reporting. . . Dickens was himself once a reporter; and the breezy, somewhat inconsequential, but ever shrewd manner of Mr. Straus would have taken mightily (at least on occasion) with the novelist." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p1 S 30 '28 600w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

No Am 226:adv N '28 90w

"Mr. Straus in his easy, almost conversational narrative has done good service in seeing Dickens as he was, not trailing the clouds of glory which gild criticism."

+ Sat R 146:362 S 22 '28 900w

"Especially valuable to young and less well-informed readers, because it is concise, complete in all essential detail, and written with warm intellectual sympathy and nice discrimination." J. R. Towse

+ Sat R of Lit 5:266 O 20 '28 90w

"Mr. Straus was right to avoid loading his pages with dogmatic essays on the novels; but we think he could have used the novels more than he has done to illuminate Dickens's inner life, and that his portrait in the end would have had more majesty. For if 'Ephesian' has only succeeded in daubing a cad, Mr. Straus, with far more good nature and delicacy, does finally escort to the Abbey the remains of rather a small personage, a vivacious Bohemian with a broken heart."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p673 S 27 '28 500w

STRAUS, RALPH. The unspeakable Curll. ltd ed 322p il $10 McBride [30s Chapman & H.]

B or 92 Curll, Edmund [28-10955]

"Of actual details of the personal life of Curll there is little on record. He appeared in London, 1706, after serving his apprenticeship, with a wife and son, and set up as a new bookseller in the Fleet Street part of town. In the course of his existence as a bookseller Curll, without so much as a by your leave, printed the works of Prior, Gay, Swift, Addison, Pope, in pirated editions that sold in competition with the authentic publication. To be unprinted by Curll was a slight to a writer's ability."—N Y Times

---

Reviewed by Jacob Zeitlin

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 Je 17 '28 480w

"His account portrays Curll as a liar, forger, carelessly immoral wretch, but withal, an amusing figure. He was a fighting spirit and the tactics of his enemies were no better than his own. This study has some of the robust spirit of its chief character and is free of the pedantry which thrives on musty records and heavy documentation." Edwin Clark

+ N Y Times p15 My 13 '28 1350w

"Mr. Straus's biographical sketch is an interesting account of a truly remarkable man. It is plentifully illustrated, and in addition to a full list of Curll publications it includes the title-pages of several in facsimile."

+ Sat R 144:891 D 24 '27 360w

"The story of Curll and his 'top-shelf' books has been told before, but never with this knowledge, this wealth of illustration, this unfeigned and unconcealed sympathy with the humor and vitality of an irrepressible scoundrel."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p945 D 15 '27 550w

STRAUSS, RICHARD. Correspondence between [the author] and Hugo von Hofmannsthal, 1907-1918; tr. by Paul England. 355p $5 Knopf [18s Secker]

B or 92 Hofmannsthal, Hugo Hofmann, edler von 27-25804

"All Richard Strauss's best operatic work has been done in conjunction with Hugo von Hofmannsthal. The correspondence between Hofmannsthal and Strauss from 1907 to 1918 was first published in Germany in 1925 and has now been translated into English by Paul England in a straightforward colloquial style which reads well. Reading these letters we see the genesis of Elektra, Der Rosenkavalier, Ariadne auf Naxos and Die Frau ohne Schatten—all Strauss's most successful operas—and we learn how much the musician owed to the dramatist." —New Statesman

---

Reviewed by P: Bowdoin

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 Mr 18 '28 800w

"As a record of the necessary collaboration between librettist and composer in the construction of operas this book is unequalled."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 14 '28 150w

"Nobody reading this correspondence through can doubt that Hofmannsthal was superior to Strauss in general culture and sensitiveness and that the musician owes the poet an immense debt; he was always stimulating the artist in him and it is to Hofmannsthal even more than to Strauss that we owe the finest opera of modern times, Der Rosenkavalier."

New Statesman 31:126 My 5 '28 950w

"Although this assortment of correspondence ought to be source material of immense value, it reveals comparatively little of the mechanics of operatic construction. Von Hofmannsthal indulges in long explanations of his work and Strauss makes a few concise suggestions for the reshaping of scenes which do not please him. But there is not the illuminating shop talk that might have been expected. To counter-

STRAUSS, RICHARD—Continued
balance this disappointment, there is an extraordinary, unconscious exposition of the two men." R. A. Simon
— + N Y Evening Post p13 F 4 '28 700w

"The value of these letters lies in the insight they give us into the creation of the operas. From the concessions which composer and librettist make to one another it is possible to deduce some of the canons of opera as an art-form. Apart from their importance as showing 'how the wheels go round,' the letters place both the writers in a favourable and sympathetic light."
+ Sat R 145:356 Mr 24 '28 350w

STRAWN, ARTHUR. Sails & swords; being [2] the golden adventures of Balboa & his intrepid company, freebooters all, discoverers of the Pacific. 341p $3.50 Brentano's

973.1 Balboa, Vasco Nuñez de. America—Discovery and exploration 28-23977

"By its outward appearance and by the title a passerby might take this book for a venture into the literature of adventure. But it is in effect a history of Vasco Nuñez Balboa, who left Spain for America in his twenty-fifth year. Mr. Strawn tells us how he discovered the fact that no English written history of Balboa existed. So he dug into the old historians, accepting and rejecting with unfailing sanity."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

"Mr. Strawn has produced a spirited history and has done his job in a workmanlike manner." C: J. Finger
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 D 9 '28 600w

Boston Transcript p2 N 17 '28 500w

"Arthur Strawn has told the story dramatically, picturesquely, yet with dignity and apparently only after a careful study of all historical sources. And what a story it is!"
+ Nation 127:sup637 D 5 '28 200w

STREET, CECIL JOHN CHARLES (JOHN RHODE, pseud.). Lord Reading. 286p il $3 Stokes [10s 6d G. Bles]

B or 92 Reading, Rufus Daniel Isaacs, 1st marquess of

Rufus Isaacs broke away from school at an early age and set sail for India as ship's boy. He was to return to India, after many years, as viceroy. This story of his life describes his rise thru his career at the bar and in the House of commons to the viceroyalty of India.

"His first effort is to present the career of his subject, and in doing that with a gravity consistent with good biographical work, he gives in smooth, judicious, clean-cut English a succinct and commensurate epitome of a remarkable life, a biography which in a broad sense is made better for the depth and clarity with which it is written."
+ Boston Transcript p4 O 20 '28 1950w

"Excellently devised and written biography." E. F. Edgett
+ Boston Transcript p7 N 17 '28 150w

Reviewed by Haslam Mills
Nation and Ath 43:566 Jl 28 '28 480w

"It is a worthless book—foolish and ignorant. We hope that one day a biographer will give us a record that is really worthy of a great man and a great career."
— New Statesman 31:544 Ag 4 '28 500w

Sat R 145:844 Je 30 '28 280w

"It is a great pity that Lord Reading has not secured a more competent biography. A less distinguished piece of work than Mr. Street has written it would be hard to imagine. We know no more about the influences which went to make this remarkable man than before we read the book."
— Spec 140:943 Je 23 '28 480w

STREET, CECIL JOHN CHARLES (JOHN RHODE, pseud.). Murders in Praed street. 298p $2 Dodd [7s 6d G. Bles]

28-5865

One after another, six apparently innocuous individuals are murdered in Praed street, London. Each victim has received on the eve of his death, a white disk marked with a number in red. Dr Priestley enters the case when the seventh man has received this warning symbol. He discovers the connecting link between the murders, establishes the motive, and runs down the murderer.

"Though complicated, the denouement is credible enough, and the not unhappy ending thoroughly thrilling." Will Cuppy
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p22 Mr 11 '28 180w

"Mr. Rhode has characterized entertainingly and convincingly these unsuspecting victims and their environment, and thereby makes his grim tale plausible and not without humor. The present reader has enjoyed this narrative, and is inclined to recommend it to the judicious as a mystery story that will probably keep them sitting up—even if they discover the hint that points to the solution—and that may be read also with respect for its workmanship. Which, of course, is always a reward to the judicious."
+ Boston Transcript p4 Mr 17 '28 300w

"Good writing, for a detective story, but with prolix, slow narration." H. E. D.
+ — N Y Evening Post p10 F 18 '28 90w

N Y Times p13 Ap 15 '28 220w

"A mystery novel that is to be recommended." Vincent Starrett
+ N Y World p7m My 27 '28 70w

"A very ingenious tale."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p113 F 16 '28 160w

STREET, CECIL JOHN CHARLES (JOHN RHODE, pseud.). Tragedy at the Unicorn. 308p $2 Dodd [7s 6d G. Bles]

28-20603

While a company of guests is making merry in the parlor of the Unicorn Inn, in his silent room in another part of the house Dr Grinling is murdered. Any one of the guests may have committed the murder. Some of them had sufficient motive. Dr Priestly and Collins the local detective, track down the culprit.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 S 9 '28 70w

Cleveland Open Shelf p124 N '28

N Y Times p26 O 7 '28 220w

Times [London] Lit Sup p618 Ag 30 '28 130w

STREETER, BURNETT HILLMAN, and others. Adventure; the faith of science and the science of faith. 247p $2 (7s 6d) Macmillan

215 Religion and science 28-2521

The essays contained in this volume are the outgrowth of informal discussions on the nature of science and religion, conducted by Canon Streeter and a group of friends. Contents: Introduction; The dynamic of science, by A. S. Russell; Beyond knowledge, by J: Macmurray; Moral adventure, by B. H. Streeter; Finality in religion, by B. H. Streeter; Objectivity in religion, by J: Macmurray; Myth and reality, by C. M. Chilcott; Index.

"Scientists, philosophers and theologians are united by the one idea, 'Adventure'—adventures of the spirit of man. There is a freshness and candor that is refreshing but a confession 'that they have not already attained' which is equally refreshing." T. C. R.
+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 11 '28 350w

"Canon Streeter's latest book will be welcomed as an honest attempt to interpret religion in harmony with the dominant ideals of our age." G. B. Smith
+ Christian Century 45:142 F 2 '28 1150w

"The title Adventure is alluring, in view of its connection with Canon Streeter's name. For research work and thinking are adventures, and Canon Streeter's former works prove that he is an adventurous explorer in history and in philosophy. He is not alone in his adventures." M. G. E.

+ Crozer Quarterly 5:254 Ap '28 450w

J Religion 8:502 Jl '28 100w

Reviewed by H: N. Wieman

J Religion 8:645 O '28 420w

New Statesman 30:504 Ja 28 '28 220w

"This intelligent grappling with the age-old problems in the terms of this day and generation, this combination of vigorous thinking and persuasive writing, marks this book as easily the best religious book of the past six months. It is an adventure to read it, a profitable one, a thrilling one." E. B. Chaffee

+ Outlook 149:74 My 9 '28 480w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:325 Je '28

Sat R 145:69 Ja 21 '28 650w

Spec 139:1055 D 10 '27 580w

"Whatever limitations the authors of these papers may have prescribed for their thinking, what they say is of real interest for all persons who are seriously engaged in reinterpreting religion in the modern world."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 F 7 '28 850w

Times [London] Lit Sup p117 F 23 '28 2450w

STRIBLING, THOMAS SIGISMUND. Bright metal. 453p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Nisbet]

28-23105

Agatha comes from California—via New York where she met Calhoun Pomeroy—to the Tennessee home of her husband. Pom, as she calls him, is a practical, matter-of-fact sort of person, while Agatha is a romantic and very modern visionary. She is prepared to like Pom's people and does, tho their Calvinistic view of life puts her constantly on the defensive. With the Baluses alone she feels real kinship. And the Baluses are despised by the rest of the community. In this and other matters, Agatha braves public opinion. Her attitude and actions estrange her from Pom, and she decides to leave. But in the very act of going away she learns that life with the hill people is worth the necessary compromise.

"The story is quite unbelievable mainly because Agatha is an unbelievable character. It is beyond conception that a girl as intelligent, perceptive and humorous as she is represented as being, could, in the first place, have married the hulking Pomeroy; and even if we admit the marriage, she could never possibly have stayed more than twenty-four hours with his impossible people and a group of neighbors who might as well be living in the Ice Age, as far as her temperament is concerned. Agatha, at best, is an excuse for the background which is cleverly and completely drawn." C. P. Fadiman

— + Bookm 68:221 O '28 480w

"I put its weakest point first, the quality of the writing. In every other respect, it is a thoroughly interesting novel, and an important document as well. It adds very definitely to Mr. Stribling's stature as a novelist, although it will certainly not make him any more popular among his home-folk. And it has a fine humor that is very much its own." Herschel Brickell

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 S 30 '28 1100w

"Mr. Stribling has written a powerful book. Every character he brings before us is clearly outlined. Every situation is the logical result of the one which has preceded it. He writes with mastery, with a delicate wit, superimposed upon a fine feeling for what is pathetic and inevitable. Aware as he is of the tragic implications in the material he has selected, he has molded it all into an intensely absorbing novel." D. F. Gilman

+ Boston Transcript p5 S 29 '28 1500w

Reviewed by E. F. Edgett

Boston Transcript p7 O 27 '28 180w

"There are, in the course of the book, occasional scenes that recall the descriptive power and human naturalness of 'Teeftallow,' but in the reviewer's opinion, this is not only lighter but duller metal." D. B. W.

— + New Repub 57:51 N 28 '28 200w

"However exciting and readable 'Bright Metal' may be, it fails of first-rank quality. One is forced to admit that the shock of actuality one gets from the immediate reading of Stribling's pages is about the same as that deriving from a stenographic report in a newspaper of a trial."

— + N Y Times p6 O 28 '28 980w

"In this latest novel we have Mr. Stribling's lancet-like realism applied not only to the ignorance and intolerance and bigotry of the isolated Tennesseans, but their honesty, courage of opinion, and very human heart-burnings. As a consequence 'Bright Metal' approaches the universal and will be read with understanding and appreciation for its human values as well as for its picture of folkways." Maristan Chapman

+ Sat R of Lit 5:211 O 13 '28 700w

STRONG, ANNA LOUISE. China's millions. [2] 413p il $4 Coward-McCann

951 China—History—Republic, 1912- 28-25070

A trained observer who was in China during the disturbances of the summer of 1927 describes her experiences in the war zone and on a trip across northwest China with Borodin and other Russians returning to Moscow. Miss Strong's chief interest is in the emergence of important new political groups in China—organized peasants, workers, students, women—the special problems of each and their attempts to achieve organization and freedom.

Boston Transcript p5 N 10 '28 350w

"China's millions is a remarkable contribution to contemporary history as it is being made in a part of eastern Asia. Miss Strong gives us a series of pictures from the recent revolution, by a trained observer who knew how to get by the 'smoke screen' in troublous times such as she encountered in central China in the summer of 1927." O. J. Todd

+ Survey 61:311 D 1 '28 620w

STRUNSKY, SIMEON. King Akhnaton, a chronicle of ancient Egypt. 306p $2.50 Longmans

28-20464

The life and times of the Egyptian heretic, King Akhnaton, father-in-law of the famous Tut-ankh-amen, as written by Bek, a young intimate of the king's household. There is a curious resemblance between the life of Akhnaton and that of Woodrow Wilson, and the League of Aton, for which Akhnaton gave his life, seems in some ways not unlike the League of Nations.

Booklist 25:124 D '28

"In an historical narrative that is easy and pleasant reading, he makes many points that are worth gathering up about the most important political issue of our time: the preservation of the peace of the world."

+ Bookm 68:xxviii N '28 110w

"If one prefers to read his 'King Akhnaton' as an enjoyable fictional evocation of the original of one of history's repetitions it is possible to do so. But many will feel that as an illuminating character study of a late enigmatic and for a time commanding figure in American political life his novel is worth a ton of official biographies, memoirs and 'the man as I knew him' literature. And all readers will feel at home in this world supposed to be so far removed from our own, for in essence it is our own." F: Martens

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 S 2 '28 800w

Cath World 128:507 Ja '29 160w

Cleveland Open Shelf p136 D '28

STRUNSKY, SIMEON—Continued

"Superficially this is a carefully documented historical novel. Actually it is a subtle roman à clef in which a parallel is drawn between the ideals of Akhnaton and those of Woodrow Wilson. We have learned to expect from Mr. Strunsky witty and incisive political analysis. We are not disappointed. As a novel, however, the book is not at all points satisfactory, suffering as it does from the great weakness of all romans à clef."

+ — Nation 127:sup377 O 10 '28 110w

"As easy to read as it is hard to classify." D. B. W.

+ New Repub 56:256 O 17 '28 150w

"It has been necessary for Mr. Strunsky to take some liberties with the factual background of his novel, but there is revealed a fine understanding of the conditions that existed during the reign of Akhnaton and an equally fine understanding of the conditions that existed during the reign of Woodrow Wilson." Herschel Brickell

+ N Y Evening Post p5 S 15 '28 800w

"The paralleling of the Paris Peace Conference is achieved with superb subtlety. The nations of the modern world have their counterparts in those of the dusty past made glamourous. The outstanding statesmen whose names filled the papers ten years ago are here in strangely recognizable guises. It is the triumph of this book that it gets at the fundamental story through the lives of minor characters no less than the titans of the scene." C: Poore

+ N Y Times p6 S 9 '28 660w

No Am 226:adv O '28 80w

Reviewed by Elmer Davis

Sat R of Lit 5:119 S 15 '28 980w

"The author has a talent for portraiture, and is readable even when he writes hastily and defies grammar."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p761 O 18 '28 130w

STUDDERT KENNEDY, H. A. See Kennedy, H. A. S.

STUDIES in early Christianity; ed. by Shirley Jackson Case; presented to Frank Chamberlin Porter and Benjamin Wisner Bacon by friends and fellow-teachers in America and Europe. 467p $4.50 Century

225.6 Christianity. Bible.New Testament—Criticism, interpretation, etc. Church history—Primitive and early church 28-10970

"The authors of this volume of essays on New Testament Topics include about twenty of the leading new testament scholars of the United States and Germany. Three of the essays are in German. . . The essays are almost all severely technical. Some deal with the use of Greek words; others with phases of the teaching of Jesus and Paul; others with textual problems." —Christian Century

---

"The less original thinkers among the students of theology will find plenty of excellent suggestions in the body of the various essays. Surely this is a book worthy of the two fine scholars to whom it is dedicated."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 2 '28 400w

"As illustrations of scholarly method, they are of the first importance even apart from the value of their contents." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 45:828 Je 28 '28 500w

"Although the separate essays were written independently of one another and with no thought for making an orderly book, there is a surprising lack of repetition. And what is more important, each essay is a real contribution." M. S. Enslin

+ Crozer Quarterly 5:493 O '28 260w

J Religion 8:497 Jl '28 60w

"The volume itself is worthy of those whom it seeks to honor." M. S. Enslin

+ J Religion 8:633 O '28 2300w

St Louis 26:374 D '28

"A valuable series of essays by a group of distinguished scholars."

+ World Tomorrow 11:376 S '28 20w

STURT, GEORGE (GEORGE BOURNE, pseud.). Small boy in the 'sixties; with an introd. by Arnold Bennett. 240p $4.25 Macmillan [10s 6d Cambridge univ. press]

B or 92 28-17029

"Wheelwright and son and grandson of wheelwrights, George Sturt (by real profession an author) passed his innocent boyhood in a stuffy little stationer's shop in the somnolently peaceful—almost eighteenth-century—atmosphere of the comfortable and respectable town of Farnham, in Surrey. In this book Mr. Sturt has done for a little country town what Richard Jeffries did for the countryside of Wiltshire. And done it much in the same way, by accurate and detailed record of human trifles, infused with a vivid imagination and a seeing eye, and set out in a beautiful limpid prose."—Spec

---

"A sincere tribute to a fine man, which helps us to understand more fully the author of 'The Wheelwright's Shop' and 'The Bettesworth Book,' those unpretentious, yet distinguished, memorials to the English laboring classes." J: Gerard

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 Mr 18 '28 730w

"The book should become a classic. What Gilbert White did for Selborne, George Sturt did (relatively) for drowsy little Farnham on the weed-rimmed river Wey." F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p3 Ja 21 '28 880w

Reviewed by E. F. Edgett

Boston Transcript p5 Mr 24 '28 380w

Nation and Ath 42:542 Ja 7 '28 700w

"The prose of this book is eminently stable. Although the author's death occurred about a year ago, it looks as though he had given A Small Boy in the Sixties its final revision, and he had already written a preface to it. In Mr. Bennett's agreeable introductory memoir there is mention of a journal at which Mr. Sturt was working for a number of years. It should be well worth publishing, at any rate in part, if only for the further light it would throw on a really original man."

+ New Statesman 30:802 Mr 31 '28 530w

"It is obvious that many readers would find but flat fare in this book, but those who can savor the charm of a child's view of a world and a time that are a little more than half a century gone yet seem ages away will find in Sturt's recollections of houses and shops, housework and washing, brewing and wine-making, chimney sweeps, smock-frocked farmers, games and labors, a banquet of delights." Shaemas O'Sheel

+ N Y Evening Post p8 My 19 '28 520w

N Y Times p4 Jl 15 '28 680w

"Mr. Bennett calls Sturt's writing 'authentic literature.' These recollections of boyhood in themselves justify him. It is more than truthful. It shows sensitive observation and mirrors a spirit of quietude and peace."

+ Sat R 145:43 Ja 14 '28 450w

Sat R of Lit 4:674 Mr 10 '28 50w

"All of it is a real transcript of life. 'Quaintness' and sentimentality he abhorred; truth he worshipped and recorded; and the result is a piece of undying economic history."

+ Spec 139:1009 D 3 '27 350w

"Sturt, although he had the cause of the agricultural labourer and the local craftsman at heart, was a Selbornian; natural history, in which he was more competent than the majority, attracted him less than human beings and the rural world of their making; he was fortunate in his childhood, passed among people, dwellings, habits and objects which were all or almost all strikingly personal and impressively valued; and 'A Small Boy in the Sixties' is the distinct yet multitudinous picture of them with the pale rays of a setting sun gleaming on gable and playground and countenance."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p929 D 8 '27 1500w

SUCKOW, RUTH. Bonney family. 296p $2.50 Knopf [7s 6d J. Cape]

28-3333

In her story of a minister's family in a small Iowa town Miss Suckow has painted a quiet interior, with no strong lights or shades. The story extends over some twenty years during which the four children grow up and are educated, the mother dies, the second son is killed in battle, and Mr Bonney brings a new bride to the house. Then Sarah, least loved and cherished of all the children, but most faithful and dependable, begins to think about a life of her own, which for her means a life of service, since she has no charm, only an as yet untouched reservoir of strength and tenderness.

Booklist 24:285 Ap '28

"It is a comprehension of the exquisite, interactive relationship of people and nature and things which—as it illuminates Frost's poetry—illuminates Ruth Suckow's fiction. Out of such a matrix her characters emerge with a particularly genuine, human, non-literary existence; and in 'The Bonney Family' she has created a notable new group." Ferner Nuhn

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 Ja 22 '28 950w

"Not since Louisa Alcott's 'Little Women' has there been such a vividly tender story of family life, without a trace of sentimentality and entirely lacking in spiritual hypocrisy." D. F. Gilman

+ Boston Transcript p3 Mr 10 '28 1650w

Ind 120:513 My 26 '28 130w

Nation 126:274 Mr 7 '28 130w

"The artist balances her figures and values with sure delicacy. The father's bright simplicity, the mother's opaque abnegation, the clear naïve dependence of the twins, lead up to and emphasize the sturdy solidity, the depth of emotional coloring, of Sarah's portrait, which emerges as the focal point of the composition —and the story becomes hers as it approaches her unquestioning self-sacrifice and the anticlimax, after her father's second marriage, of her return to what remains of personal opportunity. Miss Suckow's narrative pictures are naturalistic rather than realistic in any critical sense. Her American interiors have the social quality of Morland's English scenes rather than the satirical harshness of Hogarth's —the harshness that characterizes much of our contemporary realism. While presenting the the facts of simple, common lives with meticulous fidelity, she confesses faith in verities beyond the facts." D. B. Woolsey

New Repub 54:106 Mr 7 '28 300w

"Miss Suckow knows the life of her small towns through and through, and presents their people with an understanding not inferior to that of Mr. Sinclair Lewis, a sympathy equal to that of Miss Willa Cather. There is not, to be sure, very much incident in the book, the delightful centre of which is Sarah Bonney, the most successful of recent additions to the order of big and good and plain heroines." G. W. K.

+ New Statesman 31:332 Je 16 '28 250w

"One fault is too much evidence of the notebook. Another is occasional overemphasis. But this book is high literature." S. O'S.

+ — N Y Evening Post p12 F 4 '28 100w

" 'The Bonney Family' is to be likened to Dutch painting, for there is the same quietude of manner, the same absence of startling coloring, the same uninterrupted rhythm. Not every one is likely to care for so placid a style, as not every one cares for Dutch painting. But those who do care for the novel will care deeply and, perhaps, increasingly." P. A. Hutchison

+ N Y Times p2 Ja 22 '28 1400w

Reviewed by J: R. Chamberlain

N Y Times p2 Je 24 '28 120w

"Miss Suckow makes no bid for attention. She is impersonal and objective, she sees the whole scene clearly, she knows what she wants to do, but her gentleness and compassion make you feel that you have shaken hands with all the characters. More than that, the agony of the characters is so real that at times you want to tear them out of the book and comfort them. It is certainly a rare performance to have made good people, in this age, likeable and exciting." Margery Latimer

+ N Y World p11m F 26 '28 600w

"These people are good to read about. 'The Bonney Family' would be excellent for reading aloud—if parents still read and children still listen." F. C. L. R.

+ Outlook 148:397 Mr 7 '28 160w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:322 Je '28

"The story has no movement, it is like a succession of pictures. Miss Suckow's work is thoughtful and thorough and sympathetic and perceptive and truthful: if only she could make it a little meretricious!" L. P. Hartley

+ — Sat R 146:86 Jl 21 '28 150w

"To those who do not care for the quiet, minute art of the Dutch genre painting or for its counterpart in literature, Miss Suckow's books will have little attraction; but in her own style and field she has produced work that will assuredly live." Allan Nevins

+ Sat R of Lit 4:666 Mr 10 '28 950w

"With all the competence of her serene and distinguished manner, Ruth Suckow again absorbs her readers in the little towns of Iowa and the decent loyal struggles of home-loving families. Kindled by her peculiar intimacy, clarified by her contemplative tenderness, the quiet fortunes of the Bonneys glow with an irresistible human interest." R. A. Taylor

+ Spec 140:946 Je 23 '28 300w

Springf'd Republican p7f Mr 25 '28 420w

SUDERMANN, HERMANN. Mad professor; tr. by Isabel Leighton and Otto P. Schinnerer. 2v 375;368p $5 Liveright

28-29243

A student at the university of Königsberg is tremendously drawn to the professor of psychology and his courses. The intermittent meetings of professor and student occasion glimpses of college life in Germany as it was in Sudermann's youth, but the chief interest of the story is in the character of the professor, his theories and his love affairs.

"As a character study pure and simple it suffers from a prolixity of philosophical and political asides, interesting in themselves, but whose cumulative effect is definitely to retard and confuse the drama of the narrative and make the fate of Professor Sieburth less inevitable than logical. As in all of Sudermann's work, there is food for sober and detached reflection in 'The Mad Professor.' It is a novel more interesting as a discussion than as an essay in life and character, and it suffers from the retardation and heaviness peculiar to its method." Eugene Lohrke

— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 D 9 '28 720w

"In this ambitious character-drawing of a metaphysical iconoclast, Sudermann has shown a remarkable depth and sincerity. One feels that he believed in Dr. Sieburth and his theories, even though the world had cast him out. It is as though the author was telling, with biographical sincerity, the story of an erratic, but dearly loved, teacher. So strong is this impression that one is inclined to sink the author's personality in that of Fritz Kuhne, the young Cheruscan whose whole life was altered by the teachings of the 'Mad Professor.' " H. F. McDade

+ Boston Transcript p4 D 8 '28 1650w

SUDERMANN, HERMANN—Continued

"'The Mad Professor' will not take rank with 'The Song of Songs' as a masterpiece, but the theme is the same—futility. While Lilly Czepanek is a fresh, spontaneous incarnation, Sieburth is apparently derived from self-consciousness and very imperfectly rendered. But the world which Sudermann pictures in this last book is far more significant than the half world of 'The Song of Songs.'" R. M. Lovett

+ — New Repub 57:143 D 19 '28 1050w

"Königsberg, with its fraternity students, with its wine cellars, with its professors seeking medals and higher positions, with the wives of the professors who, like witches, sit in judgment and determine the fate of each new arrival; with its politics, its brothels and endless metaphysical discussions—all Königsberg—alive, pulsating, breathing, is in 'The Mad Professor.' Not merely a canvas, not merely wax figures, not merely a recreation, but the genesis of a world by a master artist." Paul Eldridge

+ N Y Evening Post p11m D 8 '28 550w

"His chosen theme inhibits Sudermann's real power of dramatic construction and psychological analysis, and with this theme itself, as the second volume progresses, he fumbles with increasing ineptitude. The march of the symbolic tragedy flags, halts, and loses itself among the erotic misadventures of the hero." Garrett Mattingly

— Sat R of Lit 5:538 D 22 '28 800w

SUETER, MURRAY FRASER. Airmen or Noahs; fair play for our airmen; the great "Neon" air myth exposed. 448p il $7.50 (25s) Pitman

629.13 Aeronautics. Aeronautics, Military. European war, 1914-1918—Aerial operations. Neon, pseud. 28-24917

Rear-Admiral Murray F. Sueter, R.N.A.S., makes energetic and pointed reply to the charges of "Neon" in "The great delusion" (Book Review Digest, 1927) that airplanes are impractical and unreliable in peace or war, by surveying the achievements of aircrafts of every type. His lengthy book is very informally written and copiously illustrated.

"Admiral Murray Sueter's book is a counterblast to 'Neon's' Great Delusion. His book is written in a cheerful, informal style, and makes entertaining reading."

+ Nation and Ath 43:626 Ag 11 '28 60w

"His book, in the form he has written it, is bad. It is ill-proportioned, intolerably verbose, hastily put together, devoid of close argument and, except in one or two chapters, essentially uncritical. But in many respects the admiral is on the side of the angels. Morever, like the hearty work of all those who enjoy themselves on paper, his book has a bluff vitality which conquers boredom. And those who are able to provide better arguments than the Admiral gives will find his facts often useful and sometimes extremely entertaining." B. G.

+ New Statesman 31:454 Jl 14 '28 780w

"We wish his book had been more carefully edited (split infinitives and mixed metaphors don't matter, but his redundancy is sometimes exasperating) and that he had protested a little less. However, there is not a page which is not readable, and hardly one that does not contain some wit or wisdom." F. Y. B.

+ — Spec 140:912 Je 16 '28 220w

"If 'Neon's' book disturbed the minds of many, Admiral Sueter's can only increase that disturbance. The characteristic features of the book, which cripple it as a serious contribution to the study of a problem of profound interest and importance, are the striking absence of reasoned argument, the loose statements, the irrelevant narrative and the acrimonious invective; and a sense of humour, verbal and pictorial, of a kind thoroughly enjoyed in the early period of our schooldays."

— Times [London] Lit Sup p610 Ag 30 '28 1550w

SULLIVAN, ALAN (SINCLAIR MURRAY, pseud.). John Frensham, K.C. 293p $2 Dutton 28-25818

John Frensham, K.C. has been happily married ten years when his first love returns to England to testify in the divorce case of a friend. Frensham is the prosecuting attorney. At first sight of his ex-love he is enthralled again. He contemplates leaving wife and small son and giving up the case. The hackneyed situation is worked out, however, to a conventionally happy ending.

"It is an interesting problem, it is worked out skilfully and logically. Cleverly devised, intensely interesting is this story of an intrinsically honorable man, almost submerged by an overwhelming love, and of the two women who loved him."

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 24 '28 400w

"Twenty years ago the theme would have possessed a certain timely interest, and the blatant sentimentality might have passed, in part at least, unchallenged. Mr. Murray builds his story, with a fine flurry of pathos, around characters of ineffable goodness."

— N Y Times p30 N 25 '28 320w

SULLIVAN, ALAN (SINCLAIR MURRAY, pseud.). Sands of fortune. 300p $2 Dutton 28-15157

Made suddenly rich by the caprice of a relative, each member of the nice Crewe family follows his bent; father, a lovable writer of pot-boilers, goes to the country to produce a magnum opus, mother is launched in society by the charming daughter of a peer, son buys a partnership in business, and daughter sets up a studio in Chelsea. With plenty of love interest sprinkled over the pages the author makes a cheerful, wholesome story of this shift in the Crewe family fortunes.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 S 2 '28 120w

"First novels always have a fine flair of the unexpected. Mr. Murray's is a good piece of work, modern to a hair, but pre-eminently sane."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ag 15 '28 320w

"The author, while content to travel in well trodden paths, gives a certain freshness of his own to a subject that one would have thought too hackneyed for any one to attack again."

+ N Y Times p11 Je 24 '28 480w

"The father is a likeable little man; the other characters in the book are feeble puppets. But doubtless many readers enjoy a little Mayfair, a little dancing, a little Chelsea, a little finance, a little perfunctory love-making, all quite agreeably put together."

— + Spec 138:205 F 5 '27 100w

"An entertaining story with some sound philosophy in it."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p128 F 24 '27 100w

SULLIVAN, ALAN (SINCLAIR MURRAY, pseud.). Verdict of the sea. 264p $2.50 Dutton [7s 6d Hurst & B.] 28-3332

Having loaned all his money to the girl's brother, and lost thereby all chance of marrying the girl, Denham staged a suicide, changed his name, and went to sea as a deckhand on the Naomi. The exciting events of the voyage proved a temporary antidote to disappointment, and meanwhile the ship on which the girl was also making a voyage of discovery, drew nearer and nearer the Naomi. They converge off Malacca Town.

"There is little in the story or in the writing to make it notable, but it supplies love and adventure for what it lacks in wit and talent."

Bookm 67:xxx Jl '28 130w

Boston Transcript p4 F 8 '28 520w

N Y Evening Post p13 F 11 '28 90w

"In this volume Mr. Sullivan writes in a less imaginative and therefore a less fascinating vein than in his previous novel, 'In the Beginning.' He gives us nothing at all out of the common run of adventure stories, and has made not only his setting but his characters and his situations distinctly conventional. The theme is one which, while somewhat hackneyed, is not without its possibilities; and the finished product, while marked by no particular vim or vividness, is interesting in the way that the average adventure story is interesting."

— + N Y Times p14 F 12 '28 420w

"For essentially minor sea fiction the story is highly entertaining and skilfully told."

+ — N Y World p7m Jl 8 '28 100w

Pratt p44 autumn '28

Sat R of Lit 4:707 Mr 24 '28 130w

"An exciting tale that is thoroughly enjoyable, despite its improbabilities."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p473 Jl 7 '27 170w

SULLIVAN, ALEXANDER MARTIN. Old Ireland; reminiscences of an Irish K. C. 302p il $5 Doubleday, Doran [21s T. Butterworth]

941.5 Ireland—Politics and government [28-9683]

The author, son of a popular Nationalist leader, was the last King's sergeant to be appointed in Ireland. His entire background was political and his parental home was the social center of the Irish movement. He writes of the Ireland of his father's day and of the turbulent times surrounding the birth of the new Ireland. The well known political and legal figures of two generations are all here—Parnell, Gladstone, Sir Peter O'Brien, Christopher Palles, Tim Healy, John and William Redmond, James Larkin, Sir Roger Casement, McSwiney, De Valera and others.

"He writes in no spirit of bitterness, but in a calm though hardly impersonal vein, of the many changes that have come about since he was a little boy in his well loved 'Green Isle.' He shows not only a sympathetic but critical understanding of Ireland's turbulent history, and his mellow spirit permeates his chronicle whether he writes of triumph or failure in the various episodes which have taken place within his memory."

+ Boston Transcript p5 O 6 '28 200w

"The highly personal, caustic, and at times really formidable impressions Serjeant Sullivan gives of famous members of the Irish Bar and Bench, the mingled invective, affection, and contempt, are explicable only when one has realized the peculiarly racial spirit of the Law Library at the Four Courts in Dublin. . . The mingled truth and prejudice, the painfully rhetorical fury of these pages, will enable the historically minded to realize how passionate in party feeling and how uncontrolled in language was that older Ireland of public animosities from which the new evolved, in a period of European turmoil violently, and at such cost of moral confusion."

Times [London] Lit Sup p988 D 29 '27 900w

SULLIVAN, HERBERT, and FLOWER, WALTER NEWMAN. Sir Arthur Sullivan; his life, letters & diaries; with an introd. by Arnold Bennett. 393p il $5 Doubleday, Doran [21s Cassell]

B or 92 Sullivan, Sir Arthur Seymour. Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 27-24103

Herbert Sullivan is the composer's nephew and the first of his biographers to have had access to the Sullivan archives. The result is the fullest and most authoritative life of Sullivan yet written. The many quotations from his diaries and from the letters exchanged between him and his librettist, Gilbert, make clear the mystery of the differences between the two. There is a list of the composer's works, as complete as possible, and a bibliography.

Booklist 24:281 Ap '28

"The bibliographies, prepared by William C. Smith of the British Museum, are strangely uneven in value. The list of Sullivan's compositions is the most nearly complete that we have; I do not find, however, a collection of operas that he edited, sometimes in collaboration with Joseph Pitman, during the 'Seventies. I miss several hymns, too, which Sullivan, as a pupil of the Rev. Helmore, harmonized for Helmore's collection. These details aside, the latest of the Sullivan biographies is easily the best." I: Goldberg

+ — Bookm 67:115 Mr '28 1050w

"Driven by a pious zeal of exploration and disclosure, they have written a book, heavy with corroborative detail, intended to give artistic versimilitude to a quite bald and unconvincing exposition of Sullivan's real place in music and the theater. That is so often the way of biographies (model 1885), which rest on the rather dull assumption that letters and diaries and an infinitude of facts make the picture of a man." Donald Douglas

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 N 27 '27 1200w

Reviewed by Ernest Boyd

Ind 120:115 F 4 '28 920w

New Statesman 30:252 D 3 '27 750w

Reviewed by R. A. Simon

N Y Evening Post p12 N 26 '27 900w

Reviewed by H. I. Brock

N Y Times p7 My 27 '28 1400w

Pratt p35 spring '28

St Louis 26:107 Ap '28

"The book is for the most part poorly written, and sinks below its own level whenever, at the approach of a chapter's end, the writer seeks to rise above it on the impotent wings of pretentious rhetoric. The judgments on Sullivan's music are entirely lacking in discrimination."

— Sat R 145:355 Mr 24 '28 580w

"Few of these facts are new, of course. But the letters and diaries reprinted here do add much valuable corroborative detail, which, as Pooh-Bah would say, helps to give verisimilitude to what was often but a bold and unconvincing narrative. And Mr. William C. Smith, of the British Museum, has met a long-felt want by contributing a really exhaustive Gilbert and Sullivan bibliography." Clennell Wilkinson

+ Spec 139:733 O 29 '27 500w

"It is a fascinating human document, a narrative that contains a fine impression of two large natures, each fighting to retain his artistic integrity in a union which for its perfection demanded a merging of the two."

+ Theatre Arts Mo 12:74 Ja '28 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p759 O 27 '27 1250w

SULLIVAN, JOHN WILLIAM NAVIN. Beethoven; his spiritual development. 262p $3.50 Knopf [7s 6d J. Cape]

B or 92 Beethoven, Ludwig van 28-467

"Mr Sullivan's book is an analysis of Beethoven's music in relation to the emotional experience that prompted him to expression. He denies that Beethoven was a 'philosopher' in music; 'music can no more express philosophical ideas than it can express scientific ideas.' The point of view from which Mr. Sullivan analyzes many of Beethoven's works and differentiates the 'styles' in which he wrote is interesting criticism and is sometimes paired with some acute philosophizing."—N Y Times

---

Reviewed by Axton Clark

Bookm 66:684 F '28 380w

SULLIVAN, J: W: N.—Continued

"Whether or not he throws any new and surprising light upon Beethoven's character he at least tells an interesting and persuasive story." P: Bowdoin

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 Ja 15 '28 900w

"The study is intensely appealing, intensely provocative. The marvel of Beethoven's genius as unapproachable as Shakespeare's, was never more sympathetically presented. Yet, paradoxically, is revealed as clearly his strange, in many respects forbidding personality." F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ja 14 '28 480w

Boston Transcript p5 F 4 '28 400w

Dial 84:526 Je '28 100w

Nation and Ath 42:402 D 10 '27 90w

"It is the striking merit of Mr. Sullivan's book that it explains Beethoven to the unmusical philosopher."

+ New Statesman 30:290 D 10 '27 1200w

"Some of Mr. Sullivan's ardent propositions about Beethoven may not command universal assent; but he, too, is engaged in the agreeable and useful task of setting Beethoven still more firmly on a high pedestal. His glowing and eloquent discussion of many matters relating to Beethoven's art is of real interest." R: Aldrich

+ N Y Times p9 Ja 1 '28 450w

Reviewed by Montgomery Belgion

Sat R of Lit 4:520 Ja 14 '28 550w

Spec 140:124 Ja 28 '28 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p869 N 24 '27 2100w

SULLIVAN, JOHN WILLIAM NAVIN. Gallio; or, The tyranny of science. (To-day and to-morrow ser.) 57p $1 Dutton [2s 6d K. Paul]

504 Science—Philosophy. Science—Addresses, essays, lectures 28-6294

A brave little book which dares to admit that science has been taken too seriously and to set limits to its authority. "What science does not assume," writes Mr Sullivan, "does not thereby not exist. It gives, and it appears that it must forever give, a partial description of the universe. . . The teachings of science, so far as the spiritual problems of men are concerned, need no longer be regarded as stultifying; they are merely irrelevant."

Booklist 24:314 My '28

"Mr. Sullivan writes with beautiful expertness in the epistomology of modern science and with the limpidness of style which comes from knowing the fundamentals and all the implications of the problems under discussion."

+ Bookm 68:xxii S '28 130w

"Mr. Sullivan writes amusingly, but without suggesting much that is new." L. S. K.

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 14 '28 70w

"Mr. Sullivan's essay possesses a real distinction of thought and manner."

+ New Statesman 29:222 My 28 '27 500w

Pratt p13 winter '28

St Louis 26:314 O '28

Sat R of Lit 5:1f5 S 8 '28 250w

Spec 138:604 Ap 2 '27 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p323 My 5 '27 200w

World Tomorrow 12:523 D '28 20w

SULLIVAN, OSCAR M. Empire-builder; a biographical novel of the life of James J. Hill. 372p $2.50 Century

Hill, James Jerome—Fiction 28-11234

The story of James J. Hill during the years of his building of the Great Northern railroad is seen thru the eyes of a young lawyer who is in his employ. Lucien Ryder is the lawyer and his own love story figures largely in the development of the plot.

"The author tries to stick close to the facts of Hill's career, so close that frequently whole pages read like 'The Financial and Commercial Chronicle,' but as a biography of the great empire builder the book is wholly inadequate. As a novel it is weak. The style is commonplace, there is nothing intriguing about the plot, and the characters are mere counters."

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Jl 29 '28 150w

"Colorful historical events are here described with all the freshness and romance that attended their actual occurrence."

+ Boston Transcript p5 Je 16 '28 250w

"Viewed either as fiction or fact, this 'biographical novel' about James J. Hill fails to satisfy. As a work of fiction it is thin and jejune, and as a biography it is highly sentimentalized. Example—Hill is favorably compared with Leonardo da Vinci."

— Nation 127:69 Jl 18 '28 50w

N Y Times p9 My 6 '28 400w

"Running through the book is a thread of varying romance and human happiness and unhappiness which ties the financial and legal interests of the book into a fairly exciting, if not very distinguished novel."

— + Springf'd Republican p7f Je 24 '28 230w

SUN YAT-SEN. Memoirs of a Chinese revolutionary; a programme of national reconstruction for China. 253p $3.50 McKay [10s 6d Hutchinson]

951 China—Politics and government. China—Civilization. China—History—Republic, 1912- [28-11331]

The book contains Dr Sun Yat-Sen's Programme of national reconstruction for China which was the title he chose for it in the first edition (published in Russian) in 1918. Dr. Sun Yat-Sen also gives his opinions of Chinese character, and states, not very clearly, the philosophic theory on which his program of reconstruction is based.

Boston Transcript p6 N 7 '28 330w

Nation and Ath 42:sup434 D 10 '27 140w

Sat R 144:863 D 7 '27 280w

Times [London] Lit Sup p966 D 15 '27 50w

SURDEZ, GEORGES. Demon caravan. 293p $2 Dial press 27-24671

The romantic adventure of a French officer of the Foreign Legion in North Africa. Captain Paul Lartal with a handful of native soldiers sets out to capture a band of Arab raiders. He captures instead a young girl who comes as a spy to his camp in the desert, and is led thru her to an old Berber fortress in the mountains, and to the mystery that lies behind it.

"He leaves the reader with something more than the excitement and thrill of the moment. Afterwards, the reader will have memories and a little better knowledge of what North Africa looks like."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 14 '28 250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p55 Ap '28

"Vivid pictures of North Africa make the setting of this realistic tale of startling adventures."

+ N Y Times p18 Ja 29 '28 220w

SURENDRANATHA DASA-GUPTA. Hindu mysticism; six lectures. (Norman Wait Harris foundation lectures, 1926) 168p $2 Open ct.

294.5 Hinduism. Mysticism 27-15507

" 'Hindu Mysticism,' lectures delivered at Northwestern University in 1926, traces the development of this phase of Indian thought from the magic of the Vedas, through the Upanishads, the Yoga of Patanjali, various forms of Buddhism, the rise of Bhakti (emphasis on love), on down through the little-known mystics of the seventeenth century."—Sat R of Lit

"The presentation of the historic stages of the mystic development is simply and beautifully done. It is a masterly handling of an infinitely complex theme." A. E. Haydon
+ J Religion 8:618 O '28 950w

"In this excellent little book Professor Dasgupta outlines with clearness and critical balance the main course of Hindu religious development from the Rig Veda down to modern times, including the intervening notions of the Brahmanas, the Yoga system, and Buddhism, the chief omission being Jainism."
+ Nation 126:495 Ap 25 '28 130w

"S. Dasgupta, professor in the University of Calcutta, one of the ablest delegates to the Philosophical Congress at Harvard in 1926, and and author of 'A History of Indian Philosophy' and 'Yoga as Philosophy and Religion,' is probably as well qualified to deal with this subject as is anyone now living. . . It is an admirable book. Here one gets the real thing instead of fictional distortions of it." E. S. Bates
+ Sat R of Lit 4:609 F 18 '28 280w
Times [London] Lit Sup p356 My 10 '28 580w

SUTHERLAND, JOAN (MRS RICHARD KELLY). Onslaught. 287p $2 Harper [7s 6d Cassell]
28-3980

Against his better judgment Lionel Kent takes Simone, his bride, to the scene of his work in Panama. His brother follows and their young cousin Dolores, and still later Dolores's brother. Then the stage is set for the dénouement of the story which had its beginning in England where all three men were in love with Simone, and Dolores had begun to love Lionel. The work of the sanitation commission in Panama is the background of the story.

Boston Transcript p4 Mr 21 '28 150w
N Y Times p9 F 12 '28 280w

"Miss Sutherland's story should have been an uncommonly fine one. But unfortunately, she has written merely a hectic melodrama in which two brothers, the elder an officer of Gorgas's staff, the younger a member of the engineering corps, strive to save themselves and each other from moral destruction by a French vampire whom they both love and the older has married."
— + N Y World p9m My 13 '28 120w

"The characters are competently drawn, and there is plenty of colour and excitement."
Spec 139:785 N 5 '27 100w

"As a whole this tale is interesting, though slightly unpleasant."
Times [London] Lit Sup p912 D 1 '27 220w
Wis Lib Bul 24:256 O '28

SUTTON, FRED ELLSWORTH. Hands up! stories of the six-gun fighters of the old wild West; as told by Fred E. Sutton and written down by A. B. Macdonald. 303p il $3 Bobbs
27-18952

These are true stories of famous bad men of the border and the equally proficient gunmen of the law who hunted them, as told by a man who lived thru those strenuous times and was himself cowboy, ranger, and deputy marshall. Illustrated from photographs.

"I find it excellent. There is the material for an epic in this book." E: H. Bierstadt
+ Bookm 66:585 Ja '28 100w
+ Boston Transcript p3 O 22 '27 200w

" 'Hands up' is good as informative, unvarnished record of fact. At the same time it reads better than any Western 'romance' I know." Ruth Lechlitner
+ N Y Evening Post p11 O 1 '27 580w
Times [London] Lit Sup p700 O 4 '28 730w

SWEM, CHARLES LEE. Werewolf. 287p $2 Doubleday, Doran
28-23275

There was a secret about the Thistlestane family which Dick Thistlestane's college chum David did not know, so for some time he worked in the dark. His loyalty to Dick and, after Dick was murdered, to Dick's sister Jane was remarkable. Together Jane and David learned the ghastly family secret, but the solving of the identity of the werewolf was left to another, after one more murder had been committed.

"Mr. Swem enters the mystery field with an understanding of the uncanny and a full-blown talent for producing thrills therefrom." Will Cuppy
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 O 7 '28 120w

"Here is a new author with a gift of story telling, the power to keep his readers in suspense until the end and to bring his events to a thrilling climax, and the ability to do all this in terse and unlabored English."
+ Boston Transcript p3 O 6 '28 350w

SWIFT, LOUIS FRANKLIN, and VAN VLISSINGEN, ARTHUR. Yankee of the Yards; the biography of Gustavus Franklin Swift. 218p $3 Shaw, A.W.
B or 92 Swift, Gustavus Franklin. Meat industry and trade 28-3572

"Story of the life of Gustavus Franklin Swift, the founder of Swift Company, written by his son. Recites in detail how an immense business was built up through small economies and attention to minute details. It is also a contribution to economic history in describing the growth of the meat and packing industries."—Am Econ R

Am Econ R 18:102 Mr '28 40w

"As a biography, 'The Yankee of the Yards,' is important only as an inspiration for butcher boys who may see in this career a dream of doing likewise." H: F. Pringle
— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 F 26 '28 920w
Boston Transcript p5 Ja 14 '28 620w
Cleveland Open Shelf p35 Mr '28

"His story is an epic of American business which, as these authors tell it, makes fascinating reading."
+ N Y Times p12 Je 17 '28 500w
Reviewed by Arthur Strawn
N Y World p11m Mr 4 '28 250w

SWIFT, LUCIUS B. How we got our liberties. 304p $2.50 Bobbs
323.4 Liberty. Political science—History. United States—Politics and government
28-10288

The story of the winning of human liberties is told thru centuries of struggle from Magna charta to the Declaration of independence and the American constitution.

"He has written just enough to rekindle the circumstances out of which each new phase of the individual liberty we now enjoy, was developed. Moreover, he has made these bits of history interesting. His style is crystal clear and uninvolved so that without losing sight of the essential facts, he has been able to enhance the dramatic values of each incident." W. E. H.
+ Boston Transcript p2 My 26 '28 380w
Nation 127:325 O 3 '28 180w
N Y Times p19 Je 18 '28 400w
Outlook 149:476 Jl 18 '28 150w

"The plan of 'How We Got Our Liberties' is excellent. Unfortunately, the execution of this plan leaves much to be desired. Nearly all the topics which he treats have been made the subject of recent able monographs which he does not mention or appear to have read." Zechariah Chafee, Jr.

SWIFT, L. B.—Continued
— + Sat R of Lit 5:215 O 13 '28 750w

"A primer-like and naive study of the origins of our liberties. . . Mr. Swift's book will be an easy first step. It gives a digest of how hard the fight has been and sets forth historical backgrounds in an interesting, if not always realistic, manner. The long chapter on religious liberty in England and the United States will serve as an introduction to our present conflict. But do not stop with him. He is not always complete or sound." Leon Whipple
— + Survey 60:558 S 1 '28 140w

SWINGLE, DEANE BRET. Textbook of systematic botany. (McGraw-Hill publications in the agric. and botanical sciences) 254p il $2 McGraw
580.1 Botany 28-8724

A textbook presenting in logical sequence the principles of plant taxonomy and nomenclature and discussing representative families of plants. The book is applicable to all parts of the country.

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:386 Jl '28

SWINNERTON, FRANK ARTHUR. Brood of ducklings. 324p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Hutchinson]
28-29235

This mellow story is a study of the relationships between a father, his two motherless daughters, and their lovers. Ferdinand Meadows is a sensitive, cultivated gentleman who lives a life of ease and refined luxury, devoted to his daughters and enjoying their confidence until their secret love affairs erect a barrier between them. The story is a somewhat old-fashioned treatment of the conflict between the old and the new generation, but ending happily, with Ferdinand fairly reconciled to his prospective sons-in-law and even a bit elated over the new freedom that comes to him with the shedding of his responsibility for his daughters' welfare.

"'A Brood of Ducklings' is a thoroughly competent novel, well made, nicely sustained in suspense, replete with subtlety and discrimination. If it seems a considerable ado about not very much, why, so are the lives of most of us." Mary Ross
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 N 4 '28 700w

Reviewed by D. F. Gilman
Boston Transcript p8 N 17 '28 1300w

"His novel is padded with insignificant details about the weather, the streets, and the clothes of his characters. As a result the story moves at tortoise speed, and it is difficult to take the slightest interest in the fortunes of the persons described." Raymond Mortimer
— Nation and Ath 43:735 S 8 '28 90w
New Repub 57:227 Ja 9 '29 280w

"Mr. Swinnerton's style suffers from his desire to describe . . . and describe . . . and describe. It is the greater pity because there is no doubt that Mr. Swinnerton's characters are alive—they remain alive even when they are not actually on the stage, and when they return they have developed or changed." R. E. Roberts
+ — New Statesman 31:760 S 29 '28 400w

"There is no sloppy writing, no definite weakness in this Swinnerton. Yet nothing definitely stands out. The moments of suspense are empty and the problems seem somehow eluded." R. P.
N Y Evening Post p8m N 17 '28 200w

"The book impresses one with its naturalness; its undoubted fidelity to the meandering, the less troublous cross-currents, in the lives of many a family group." Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p5 N 4 '28 860w

"One looks in vain in Mr. Swinnerton's later work for the passionate intensity of 'Nocturne.' That thrilling lyric cry has ceased to sound; and in its place we have orchestral effects subtle, interesting and mature, but less original. 'A Brood of Ducklings' has, however, a certain novelty of theme and treatment." L. P. Hartley
— + Sat R 146:334 S 15 '28 380w

Reviewed by W. F. Kohn
Sat R of Lit 5:425 D 1 '28 400w

"Very little happens. But the main characters, and the daughters' various friends, are drawn with great delicacy; the dialogue is at once lively and natural; and there is quiet charm of atmosphere." Gilbert Thomas
+ Spec 141:409 S 29 '28 100w

"The sensitively intimate affection of Ferdinand and his daughters, with the fluctuations in its confidence under the stress of experience, is depicted with delicacy and penetration. Mr. Swinnerton's handling of his theme has both freshness and beauty; and considering that Ferdinand, through whose eyes we mostly see, is a character almost tiresome in his shy refinement, it is a proof of mastery that the emotional interest of these reactions never flags. The thread of story, though slender, is enough to keep one's curiosity awake to the end."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p646 S 13 '28 560w

SWINNERTON, FRANK ARTHUR. Tokefield papers. 265p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Secker]
824 27-21258

"He writes on such things as 'Advice,' 'The Duty of Being Agreeable,' 'Cats,' 'On Thinking Well of Oneself,' 'Tact,' 'On Feeling Inferior,' 'Respectability,' 'On Giving Way to Things.' Mr. Swinnerton's great virtue is that he immediately makes us realize that these things are interesting."—Nation and Ath

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Mr 25 '28 180w

"His essays are all written with a humorous touch, and some of them go far in penetrating into life and its eccentricities."
+ Boston Transcript p7 N 26 '27 150w
Cleveland Open Shelf p35 Mr '28

"A truly admirable volume of essays. His subjects are of popular and everyday interest, as those of the essayist should be. The first essay in the volume, on 'Carmichaels,' is perhaps the best; it is a just and witty description of an easily recognizable human type, somewhat in the style of the old 'character' writers. One would like Mr. Swinnerton to give us a volume of these. Only in one, 'The Advantages of Disaster,' does Mr. Swinnerton seem to descend to special pleading; his arguments in favour of the petty irritations of life are flimsy." Edwin Muir
+ — Nation and Ath 42:658 Ja 28 '28 250w

"Mr. Swinnerton's style is perfect for this kind of thing: it is almost hopeless. His sentences are cast in a wearisome pattern, and it is almost as tiring to hear the iterated thud of the final noun as it must have been to write it." T. S. Matthews
— New Repub 54:276 Ap 18 '28 350w
New Statesman 30:supxvi D 3 '27 50w

Reviewed by Percy Hutchison
N Y Times p5 O 30 '27 420w

"Mr. Swinnerton cannot be undistinguished all the time, but he maintains a disconcerting level of commonplace. In his foreword Mr. Swinnerton admits that the homiletic note in these papers may be irksome to some minds and we agree. It is because we honour the novelist that we regret this medley of prattle and preaching."
— + Sat R 144:919 D 31 '27 150w
Sat R of Lit 4:868 My 12 '28 150w

"The last essay, 'What I demand of Life,' is partly autobiographical. Mr. Swinnerton tells his own story with simplicity and candour, and these passages are the most interesting in an engaging book."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p109 F 16 '28 250w

SYKES, JAMES. Mary Anne Disraeli; story of Viscountess Beaconsfield; foreword by A. G. Gardiner. 246p il $2.50 Appleton [10s 6d Benn]

B or 92 Beaconsfield, Mary Anne (Evans) Disraeli, viscountess . 28-24109

Within the limits of a rather small book Mr Sykes has separated fact from legend concerning the amazing woman who for thirty-three years apparently contented Benjamin Disraeli and whose career she certainly furthered. Enough interpretation is added to provide an engaging picture of Mary Anne Disraeli.

Boston Transcript p2 N 17 '28 550w

Reviewed by E. F. Edgett
Boston Transcript p10 D 8 '28 280w

"The book is readable and interesting, and most people will agree with Mr. A. G. Gardiner, who has contributed a foreword to it, that 'in restoring the picture of Mary Anne Disraeli and clearing it of the accretions of the gossip-monger, the author has incidentally thrown a new and agreeable light on the most baffling and enigmatic figure in the annals of British statesmanship.' But no less true is another remark of his, viz., that 'in spite of the not unattractive presentment that Mr. Sykes offers of [Mrs. Disraeli], the mystery of Disraeli's marriage to her remains unsolved.'"
Nation and Ath 44:21 O 6 '28 480w

"There is not very much after all to be made out of this surprising woman and her story. Mr. Sykes finds 150 pages more than enough, and he has evidently collected all there is. Mr. Sykes has performed his task with competence and kindly feeling, but he is at times careless."
+ — New Statesman 31:701 S 15 '28 780w

Reviewed by Joseph Collins
N Y Evening Post p9m O 27 '28 400w

"Mr. Sykes is the first biographer to sort fact from fiction in her legend. No doubt prudently, he hazards few suppositions, and perhaps is not fully alive to the psychological interest of his subject. But, clearing away many errors by diligent research, he has produced a thoroughly readable book." T. E. Welby
+ Sat R 146:299 S 8 '28 1400w
Spec 141:332 S 15 '28 230w

"A book which is at once moving and entertaining. It is full of love and full of laughter. And it is, apparently, the first time that any serious attempt has been made to give the facts about a person whose story has hitherto been a tissue of fictions."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p681 S 27 '28 980w

T

TABB, JOHN BANISTER. Poetry; ed. by Francis A. Litz. 492p $3 Dodd

811 28-18053

A complete collection of the poetry of Father Tabb, much of it familiar and well loved, with a critical and biographical introduction by Professor Francis A. Litz.

Booklist 25:65 N '28

"There are poems in this volume which fit about every human mood, from the humorous to the deeply religious. All lovers of true poetry will welcome Tabb's poems collected in one volume." F. W. C.
+ Boston Transcript p3 Ag 4 '28 500w
St Louis 26:355 N '28

"A complete volume of Father Tabb's poetic brevities has long been a standing need to students of American poetry. Here we have a most satisfactory book, well printed, and with an interesting introduction by the editor."
+ Sat R of Lit 5:179 S 29 '28 150w
Wis Lib Bul 24:251 O '28

TAGGARD, GENEVIEVE (MRS ROBERT L. WOLF). Travelling standing still. 56p $2 Knopf

811 28-21037

A selection, made by the poet herself, of her work over the period of the last ten years.

"The work is brilliant, modern, and quick with restless energy, but there is a subtly recurrent longing for Arcadian leisureliness and calm."
Booklist 25:113 D '28

"Certainly the effect of reading through this little book is to enhance one's earlier feeling that Miss Taggard is one of the most soundly gifted of the younger poets, and that her verse, in its unobstructive way, is always pure in quality and true in workmanship even when it is not literally perfect." Newton Arvin
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p23 O 28 '28 900w
Boston Transcript p3 O 20 '28 320w

TAGORE, SIR RABINDRANATH (RAVINDRANATHA THAKURA). Fireflies. 274p $2.50 (6s) Macmillan

891.4 28-6995

Fragile short poems, of two or three lines each. Each poem has a page to itself, the page decorated with designs by Boris Artzybasheff.

Booklist 24:394 Jl '28

"Although the two and three-line poems, of which this volume is comprised, are excellent in their way, Tagore has more substantial gifts to bestow on the world. As a piece of artistic craftsmanship, the book is a joy to any book lover, and in the decorations by Boris Artzybasheff is a delicacy peculiar to the East."
+ — Bookm 67:xv Jl '28 150w
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 My 6 '28 150w
Boston Transcript p7 My 19 '28 180w

"These delicate moth-wings of elusive wisdom carry a good deal more of the peculiar spiritual urbanity and serene detachment of their author than his longer and more pretentious poems. Limpid as water-colour vignettes, they are characteristically East Indian in tone.
Dial 85:73 Jl '28 100w

"Except in rare instances and to a slight degree, in those instances, one finds nothing in this volume worthy of excitement or admiration. The imagery is blurred and diffuse and not peculiarly apt when it has been grasped, and the 'little gems of thought' as the jacket blurb calls them, might almost be classed as egregious."
— + Ind 120:317 Mr 31 '28 150w
Living Age 334:750 Ap 15 '28 100w

Reviewed by Austin Clarke
Spec 141:sup783 N 24 '28 50w
World Tomorrow 12:522 D '28 60w

TAINE, JOHN. Green fire; the story of the terrible days in the summer of 1990; now told in full for the first time. 313p $2 Dutton

28-11529

The world of 1990 lies in the power of two great intellectuals; one whose every thought is destructive, the other constructive. Both are on the track of great discoveries. If Jevic wins, the whole universe will disperse. Against this titanic power and against time MacArthur fights and wins.

TAINE, JOHN—Continued

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Ap 29 '28 100w
N Y Times p9 My 13 '28 220w
Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 149:35 My 2 '28 150w

TALLMADGE, THOMAS EDDY. Story of architecture in America. 311p $3.50 Norton
720.973 Architecture—United States 27-23393
For descriptive note see Annual for 1927.

Booklist 24:199 F '28
Bookm 67:xxxiii Mr '28 550w
New Statesman 30:702 Mr 10 '28 920w
Reviewed by R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p1 Ja 29 '28 1650w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:105 F '28

"Mr. Tallmadge has written a book which, placed beside 'Sticks and Stones,' will give to anyone who is interested in the architecture of the United States not only a complete view of its development from the cultural life of the people, but an intimate and intelligent knowledge of the architects whose influence has been most powerful, both for good and for bad, and of the manner by which the cultured life of the people has been transmuted into their dwellings and their places of business." Aymar Embury II
+ Sat R of Lit 4:646 Mr 3 '28 850w
Springf'd Republican p8 Mr 3 '28 190w

"Mr. Tallmadge has precisely the right amount of enthusiasm to carry him through the wastes of nineteenth century architecture. Yet he is also able to be amusing—indeed, his whole book is amusingly and lightly written—when he comes to the more extraordinary nineteenth century styles in architecture. But his enthusiasm keeps him from a too detached or humorous enjoyment of the social-historical sense. Such enjoyment may well be given to the reader of his book; but Mr. Tallmadge himself has not had too much of it, and therefore his book is the better as history."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p209 Mr 22 '28 780w
Wis Lib Bul 24:250 O '28

"In Tallmadge's story the elements of the mosaic are honestly acknowledged, but the joints are somewhat too insistent. The development is pictured truly enough, on the whole, but depth and perfection are lacking. There is the tone of a sketch, rather than a finished work." Fiske Kimball
— + Yale R n s 17:591 Ap '28 350w

TANAQUIL, pseud. See Le Clercq, J. G. C.

TARBOUX, JOSEPH GALLUCHAT. Electric power equipment. 455p il $5 McGraw
621.311 Electric engineering 27-17540
"Text-book for advanced students. Intended to impart a general knowledge of the characteristics, operation, and application of the common types of equipment in use in power-stations and for power transmission."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

Booklist 24:105 D '27
N Y New Tech Bks 12:49 O '27
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:157 Mr '28
Pratt p17 winter '27

TARKINGTON, BOOTH. Claire Ambler. 253p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran
28-3166
This light and engaging story is another of Booth Tarkington's pictures of American youth. It is told in three episodes. Claire Ambler is the center of each: in the first a flapper of eighteen, already at her work of heart-breaking and just beginning to think; then at twenty-one, just as casually breaking hearts but experiencing for a moment the meaning of love and the willingness to sacrifice for that love; finally, in the face of her twenty-five years and the horrors of possible spinsterhood, accepting a prosaic marriage.

"Never has he written better than in Claire Ambler, never written with such precision without being a precisian, never with a finer ease and economy produced so exactly the effect he wished to produce. The book is, however, a single portrait, rather than a picture of society, and several of the characters seem a little made-up instead of being created. But Claire herself is superbly drawn." R. M. Gay
+ Atlantic Bookshelf p50 Ap '28 430w
Booklist 24:285 Ap '28

"The first part of 'Claire Ambler' is exquisite, breath-taking, understanding, poignant, human, vital, real, significant—all the complimentary adjectives in the critical vocabulary. The second part is cinematic, pro-Fascisti, snobbish, melodramatic, propagandish, and still darn good entertainment. The third part is not so good. The taste left in the mouth is decidedly brown." Burton Rascoe
+ — Bookm 67:83 Mr '28 1100w

"'Claire Ambler' lacks the scope of 'Alice Adams,' the fresh spontaneity of 'Seventeen'; but it is a good, competent, clear-sighted book." R. B. Sanborn
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 Ja 22 '28 620w
Reviewed by E. F. Edgett
Boston Transcript p4 Ja 14 '28 1600w
Cleveland Open Shelf p53 Ap '28
Reviewed by Raymond Mortimer
Nation and Ath 43:144 My 5 '28 60w

"Being the work of a thoroughly practised craftsman, the story is actual enough—with the exception of Claire's miraculous singing, which is rubbish; and should any reader complain of its slightness, Mr. Tarkington may justifiably retort, 'How could a novelist do more with a brittle piece of femininity like that?" G. W. K.
+ — New Statesman 31:85 Ap 28 '28 220w
Reviewed by H. E. Dounce
N Y Evening Post p12 Ja 14 '28 900w

"It is not Mr. Tarkington's plots which enthrall his readers; it is his ability to reproduce the flavor and the essence of American youth that has made his books, including the present volume, both popular and critically considerable." J: Carter
N Y Times p5 Ja 15 '28 1650w

"It is done with his customary smoothness and ease, and one feels somehow that it might have rivalled Alice Adams and The Flirt. But this goal it never reaches. This is a diverting book, but on the whole an inconsequential one." Herschel Brickell
— + No Am 225:adv Mr '28 150w

"'Claire Ambler' is fragile matter, almost too fragile to bear the weight of binding. But even so, it is the best possible light reading."
+ — Outlook 148:156 Ja 25 '28 650w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:139 Mr '28
Pratt p39 spring '28

"An engagingly light tale, with an old-fashioned treatment—in a good sense—of a new-fashioned theme—also in a good sense, it never penetrates that theme so deeply as to be uncomfortable but just deeply enough to impress the reader pleasantly with its accuracy. One's chief quarrel with Mr. Tarkington is that he did not say more when he knew so much." Grace Frank
+ — Sat R of Lit 4:549 Ja 28 '28 580w

"It is an easily written indulgent little study, not too profound—for who would break a butterfly like Claire upon the wheel of analysis?"
Spec 140:805 My 26 '28 230w

"Among all Mr Tarkington's fictional persons she is perhaps the one in whom readers will find the least to stir a modicum of liking, the one with the least excuse or mitigation for being what she is, the one with the least to offer in exchange for a bit of our human sympathy. Yet Mr Tarkington's method has not changed; he has selected a type less admirable and tolerable, but he has portrayed her with the same easy, natural, convincing cumulation of characteristic behavior. . . 'Claire Ambler' will probably rank with Mr Tarkington's best work." R. W. Neal

+ Springf'd Republican p7f F 19 '28 680w

"This makes rich, dream-like reading, but it records nothing peculiar to 1928. A southern belle on the grand tour in the Fifties might have wrought such havoc with her beauty, her sympathy, and her ignorance. The flapper is no more selfish than any lovely girl; perhaps she is less dangerous because of her sophistication. Claire is thin woven but charming, and rather spoils her creator's thesis." Leon Whipple

+ — Survey 60:177 My 1 '28 250w

"Claire is, it is true, a product of the age, but her creator possesses sufficient psychological vision to perceive that this age (or any other) stretches back a good many years. Accordingly it is a distinct pleasure to note how frequently the tale conjures up a recollection of Henry James."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p484 Je 28 '28 480w

Wis Lib Bul 24:91 Mr '28

TARKINGTON, BOOTH. The world does move. 294p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran

917.3 United States—Social life and customs 28-28979

"Mr. Tarkington gives us a very clear picture of his attitude toward the world of to-day. Unhampered by the discipline of the novel form, he turns a rather troubled eye to a number of things that bother him: automobiles, the amazing growth of American cities, the vulgarity of the modern theater, the consequences of prohibition, the changed status of women, the alarming antics of the younger generation, the no less alarming antics of the older generation. All these disquieting phenomena are of recent vintage, and in discussing them Mr. Tarkington almost invariably turns, by way of comparison, to the gay nineties."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

"Although Mr. Tarkington's sympathies are definitely with the old order, there is rarely bitterness in his tone; rather a resigned and almost genial regret for the inevitable formulæ which he adopts for the presentation of his comparisons are sometimes childish. 'The World Does Move' will prove a pleasantly informal case-book for coming sociologists." G. T. Hellman

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p21 N 25 '28 780w

"Mr. Tarkington writes gracefully and graciously, as is his wont. One cannot quarrel with the gentle whimsy of his thought nor with the smooth ease of his informal prose. And it must be added that the book is undeniably American in its wholehearted hopefulness; it breathes the content of a well-fed generation. But one is privileged to doubt its worth as an answer to all the questions—spiritual and otherwise—that face us and the rest of the world." Herschel Brickell

+ — N Y Evening Post p9m N 17 '28 600w

N Y Times p11 D 30 '28 1050w

"The attraction of Mr. Tarkington's remarks in this book and of his books in general is that while he is full of humor and ministers to entertainment and is a story-teller and sees to it that his stories are readable, in the back of his mind he is a serious man, examining life with a deeper comprehension of its processes and proceedings than any other American writer now successfully implicated in the production of works of fiction. That is why one cares to listen to him speculating about the purpose and the probable outcome of what is going on." E. S. Martin

+ Sat R of Lit 5:393 N 24 '28 1150w

TARN, WILLIAM WOODTHORPE. Hellenistic civilisation. 312p $6 Longmans [16s E. Arnold]

938 Hellenism. Civilization, Greek [27-25936]

Here is sketched the civilization of the three Hellenistic centuries from the death of Alexander in 323 to the establishment of the Roman empire by Augustus in 31 B.C. Several chapters are given to an account of the influence of Hellenism on the Jews, in parts of Asia and in Egypt.

New Statesman 30:176 N 19 '27 1050w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:228 Ap '28

"His book will be in future indispensable to the general reader who wishes to acquire a comprehension of the ancient world. But even he can do little with the political side of the period: these dry bones, apparently, will not come to life. But he shows that the age at large was anything but dry or dead. His chapters on trade, literature and learning, science and art, philosophy and religion, are as fascinating as he has given us a right to expect that he would make them." E: Shanks

+ Sat R 144:549 O 22 '27 120w

Reviewed by Hetty Goldman

Sat R of Lit 4:826 Ap 28 '28 350w

Times [London] Lit Sup p328 My 3 '28 850w

TASKER, ROBERT JOYCE. Grimhaven. 241p $3 Knopf

365 Crime and criminals. Prisons. California.State prison, San Quentin 28-23009

Robert Joyce Tasker is serving an indeterminate sentence in San Quentin. Not quite twenty-one when he entered prison he is now twenty-five. He writes, frequently with the detachment of a spectator, of his prison experiences and his fellow convicts, and of their effects on him in the gradual shaping and maturing of his mind.

"It is a lifelike and vivid picture of prison life. To me the book is genuine; I sense the honesty of its feeling and the straightforwardness of its purpose. Tasker has lived through the things that do not count; he has set down the things that were of permanent importance to him." W. D. Lane

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 O 7 '28 1250w

"[The book] comes to us sponsored by the omnipresent Mr. Mencken. It is in small need of anyone's sponsorship. Its own individual merits entitle it to mature consideration. It is the relentless baring of a soul, the pitiless analysis of life behind walls that are built to hide and do not shelter." H. F. M.

+ Boston Transcript p5 O 13 '28 250w

Reviewed by E. C. Lindeman

New Repub 56:280 O 24 '28 820w

"This author, who was sent to San Quentin prison to serve 'five years to life' for first degree robbery, compels us to realize the full horror of being shut up like some dangerous beast. What the convict can or cannot do, and how it affects such a man as Tasker—sensitive enough to have noted when he first glimpsed the prison that 'the architecture was abominable,'—are made unforgettably plain in his grim book." Rex Hunter

+ N Y Evening Post p8m O 20 '28 180w

"The book is not one pleasant to read, although in the struggle of the convict-author to climb upward when all things, both without and within, conspire to drag him under, gives something of the light of dawn to the otherwise hopelessly gray narrative."

N Y Times p40 N 25 '28 1250w

TASKER, R. J.—Continued

"Since Robert Lowrie, years ago, wrote 'My Life in Prison' and popularized thereby the cause of prison reform, nothing from a convict's typewriter has approached the sheer force and competence of Grimhaven." D. A.

\+ World Tomorrow 12:521 D '28 180w

TATE, ALLEN. Mr Pope, and other poems. 52p [2] $2 Minton

811 28-20433

The first collected volume of verse by one of the founders of the Fugitive, a journal which marked a new movement in American poetry.

"Clarity is not conspicuous in Mr. Tate's poems. It is exceedingly difficult to catch his central idea. If this obscurity is willful, Mr. Tate should discipline himself severely, for he possesses a strong dramatic sense and a pictorial discernment which would be impressive if not blurred by erratic exposition."

\+ — Boston Transcript p4 S 15 '28 250w

Reviewed by Yvor Winters

New Repub 56:255 O 17 '28 600w

TATE, ALLEN. Stonewall Jackson, the good soldier. 322p il $3.50 Minton

B or 92 Jackson, Thomas Jonathan. United States—History—Civil war—Campaigns and battles 28-12052

This is a military life of the great Confederate general but the background of his boyhood and the hard life of the barren frontier is carefully drawn. The book is effectively written, in short, clipped sentences, from ample knowledge of its subject and in deep admiration.

Booklist 24:401 Jl '28

"His work falls somewhere between the proper provinces of the character study and pure history, and, in spite of a not inconsiderable dramatic effect, is valuable as neither. Mr. Tate's failure to cite sources clearly and his indecisive marshalling of facts render his work useless for reference purposes. The breathless, choppy quality of his style detracts materially from its purely narrative force."

— Bookm 68:xxxvi O '28 150w

Reviewed by W: E. Dodd

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 Ap 22 '28 2250w

"One of the most delectable, shrewd and instructive of military biographies, a wholly delightful and often challenging piece of work which belongs as of right in that series of Biographies of Unusual Americans." S. L. Cook

\+ Boston Transcript p2 Ap 28 '28 1500w

"Mr. Tate's book about this extraordinary, cold, quiet, ambition-driven man has both freshness and feeling and is well written. I should add that he is to be complimented on the skill he has shown in the difficult task of describing the actual movement of General Jackson's battles." Raymond Holden

\+ Nation 126:593 My 23 '28 900w

"There are three—yes, four—things for which this biography is notable. In the first place we would mention the lapidary style. Scarcely a sentence is over a line long. The style marches with the hero. Like him it is terse; if affected, affected only in brusqueness, smacking of a deal sitting-room and of the street. It is a cross between Ludwig and Trader Horn. Fortunately, the second thing that stands out is the hero. The reviewer believes that it is through love of him that the book is written. And I defy anyone of uncynical mind to read this book and not to have another hero in his heart. The third thing to be noted is that the battles that Stonewall Jackson fought are actually described—even mapped. Not even Ludwig dared to do this with a Napoleon. The author is almost as courageous as his hero. The last noteworthy feature of the book is the intensity of its Confederate patriotism and the zest with which it eats into the copper." A. W. Vernon

\+ New Repub 54:sup404 My 16 '28 750w

Reviewed by H. E. Dounce

N Y Evening Post p8 My 19 '28 1600w

Reviewed by C: W. Thompson

N Y Times p3 My 6 '28 2000w

"An eminently fair and readable book. Mr. Tate, who is a Southerner, does not try to gloss over any of the mistakes of Jackson, which has been a fault in some previous biographies, but to show him whole." Herschel Brickell

\+ No Am 225:adv Je '28 210w

"The author admired, or even loved, his hero, but he did not love him enough that he could discuss flaws as well as greatness. In some of his battle scenes Mr. Tate does some excellent short bits of description. For the greater part, however, his style tends to an abruptness that is disconcerting. He seems to be as devoid of a sense of humor as was his subject." D. R. Maué

— \+ Outlook 149:113 My 16 '28 580w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:490 O '28

"Allen Tate has retraced Jackson's campaigns and retold the story of his part in the war in a vivid, connected narrative."

\+ R of Rs 77:adv26 Je '28 100w

TAUSSIG, CHARLES WILLIAM. Rum, romance and rebellion. 289p il $4 Minton

326.1 Rum. Slave trade. New England—History 28-11981

A history of the part played by rum in the history of colonial America and of its relation to the New England molasses and slave trade. These three formed a circle. Molasses imported from the West Indies made the rum which became the currency of the slave trade, the traders taking cargoes of rum to Africa to exchange for slaves. A graphic account is given of the colonial rum traders and rum runners and of the horrors of the slave ships.

Booklist 25:12 O '28

Reviewed by D. C. Seitz

Bookm 67:448 Je '28 280w

"My first objection is that he, in common with numerous other 'debunkers,' constantly assumes that our ancestors were hypocrites when they did something at variance with present standards; and my second is that he, also in common with numerous other writers today, presents with the pomp of a discoverer facts most of us have always known." W. P. Eaton

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 Je 3 '28 1250w

"A cheap smartness, a seeking after sensational anecdote, a vaunted Olympian liberalism of The American Mercury type, and a superior and patronizing attitude toward the past —all these too often characterize the work of our new Bancrofts and Prescotts whose undoubted readableness does not offset their frequent superficiality. If Mr. Taussig's 'Rum, Romance and Rebellion' is not a perfect specimen of the new method of rewriting history, it is at least fairly representative and to it the foregoing general remarks are reasonably applicable. If its polyglot material is less well arranged and digested, it is at least free of the more obvious vulgarities which mar so many of its contemporaries." J. F. S.

Boston Transcript p3 Ap 21 '28 350w

"His book is a well-written but rather ill-natured and costive critique of the morals and sincerity of an age that is past. It is all true, but it lacks that quality of imagination necessary to reconstruct the processes of a dead mentality."

\+ — Ind 120:533 Je 2 '28 280w

"Mr. Taussig's spirituous volume seems at once neither important nor unimportant, yet not uninteresting reading for those who care for the picaresque."

N Y Times p5 Ap 22 '28 1150w

"Well written and pithy." Tom Davin
+ N Y World p11m Ap 29 '28 300w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 149:75 My 9 '28 130w

"If Mr. Taussig has any axe to grind, neither head nor handle protrudes in his pages; he tells the story with only an occasional suggestion of relish, and lets it go at that. There is nothing particularly new in what he writes, and the critic must be partisan indeed who can discover in his book the temper of the muckraker." W: MacDonald
Sat R of Lit 5:35 Ag 11 '28 850w

TAUSSIG, FRANK WILLIAM. International trade. 425p $3.50 (15s) Macmillan
[2]
380.1 Commerce. Foreign trade 27-19999

"Professor Taussig has tried, first to re-state the classical theory in such a way as to clear up its ambiguities, and then to submit it to a very necessary process of verification from the available figures of actual international transactions. The result, on the whole, is to confirm the general soundness of the classical theory, and at the same time to bring out emphatically certain points which are often slurred over by its experiments."—New Statesman

"A careful and scholarly discussion of the theory of international trade. . . For the most part the presentation is convincing, clear, excellently phrased." H. G. Brown
+ — Am Econ R 18:706 D '28 2900w
Booklist 24:148 Ja '28

"Readers who are not professional economists may easily be deterred from pursuing Professor Taussig's study to the end by the exceeding dry abstractness of its earlier chapters. For he begins with a formal, and unduly prolonged, restatement of the classical theory of international trade, and in this he out-Ricardoes Ricardo in the remoteness of his treatment from the actual facts of the world's commerce. But later he comes down to concrete realities with a really penetrating analysis of the course of trade in recent years among certain of the leading countries engaged in international commerce."
+ New Statesman 31:368 Je 23 '28 320w

"The book deserves careful reading; it has a bearing on many current problems."
+ Spec 140:202 F 11 '28 150w

"Professor Taussig's book is explicit and clear; although it is confined to the general theory of international trade, and does not seek to discuss the practical problems of policy which international trade raises, it illuminates these problems at every turn; and it so supplements analysis by illustration that a very subtle train of interdependent reasoning is brought within the powers of anyone who is prepared to read the book through. This clarity of exposition is perhaps the first of the characteristics that will make the book supersede other treatises on the subject."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p230 Mr 29 '28 1150w

TAYLOR, EDITH EVERETT. Not Magnolia. 242p $2 Dutton
28-4882

The love story of a southern college girl. Even after his commitment to an insane asylum Leigh considers herself bound to her cousin Stephen and steadfastly repulses Oliver. Time, and Stephen's release from the asylum, with some help from Aunt Beulah, teach her the truth about her own heart.

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
Bookm 67:462 Je '28 100w

"Leigh's adventures in college with her roommate Hildegarde, the forceful Claudia, the mournful Nancy Ellen and the scientific Miss McKinkle have reality and authenticity. Beyond that the most that can be said for 'Not Magnolia' is that in Buddy Wade it contains a perfect portrait of the Southern jellybean." Sara Haardt
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 F 12 '28 750w
Boston Transcript p2 My 9 '28 300w

"This story is recited by Miss Taylor with about the usual degree of skill—which is to say, not much skill at all; yet it has in places a certain freshness which tells of the sincerity of the author."
— + N Y Times p16 F 26 '28 320w
No Am 225:adv Ap '28 90w

"Miss Taylor writes well in places, especially in her expository passages; some of her characters, in particular Buddy Wade, who imbibed incredible quantities of liquor and was tricked into marrying Claudia, a girl who knew what she wanted and got it, during one of these drinking bouts, are also well done. But that is about all that one can say of 'Not Magnolia.' In retrospect it appears a slight and disappointing novel."
— + Sat R of Lit 4:868 My 12 '28 330w

TAYLOR, GEORGE ROBERT STIRLING. Cromwell. 333p il $4 Little [12s 6d J. Cape]
B or 92 Cromwell, Oliver. Great Britain—History—Puritan revolution, 1642-1660
28-11515

A new and provocative view of Cromwell which emphasizes the contradictoriness of his character and career: "at one moment a soldier, the next a saint; now a statesman, and then something very near a simpleton. At Huntingdon a pious mystic; at Drogheda—and elsewhere—nothing but a murderer, who escaped the hand of justice only because he himself controlled the army and the police force. A democrat who took up arms to save his country from the rule of a tyrant; and then ruled it by major generals and sergeants, as Charles Stuart would never have dared to do in his haughtiest moments of divine right."

Bookm 67:xviii Jl '28 180w

"The author adds little to what has already been written about Cromwell and his period. And in his interpretation he is unfortunately a little contemptuous of all that previous historians have done. But the narrative is vivid and at times eloquent. Though it cannot compare with the studies of Morley and Firth, it will be useful to readers who like their biographies in the modern vigorous style." A. L. Sachar
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 Ag 12 '28 700w

Reviewed by S. L. Cook
Boston Transcript p3 Ap 14 '28 1650w

"His book bristles with debatable matter, and one rather feels that views so subversive should have been supported by more elaborate documentation. But Mr Taylor has eschewed references in the determination not to be dull; and dullness is the last fault of which one could accuse him. His narrative though written in a rather slipshod style and with a good deal of unnecessary repetition, makes lively reading. It is a vivid picture of a period in English history which will always be found interesting, even if Mr. Taylor will not allow us to call it heroic."
+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 My 2 '28 500w
Ind 121:69 Jl 21 '28 250w

"A shrewd, hard-headed, wise, and witty volume that is only slightly marred by repetitions, and that shows a vast amount of knowledge easily borne by its jaunty author."
+ Nation 127:69 Jl 18 '28 120w

"He is scarcely fair to Cromwell's achievements as a whole, but he draws his backgrounds well, and his omissions are few. It is only taking the longer view, and comparing his work with the best that has been written on the subject, that one is forced to suggest that he has, in attempting to erect a vantage-point for the whole wood, only added to the trees."

TAYLOR, G: R. S.—Continued

\+ — Nation and Ath 43:52 Ap 14 '28 650w

"Mr. Taylor is perspicacious as a biographer and a shrewd judge of persons and of their immediate effect upon their age, but he is far less satisfactory when he attempts to review the broader aspects of history. He sees the movements of politics and economics in isolated patches, he fails to see that all history is inter-related, and this narrowness of historical vision vitiates his rather summary rejection of the Commonwealth as an episode without permanent results. Yet it is this very narrowness of view that makes him so neat a portraitist."

\+ — New Statesman 31:24 Ap 14 '28 530w

N Y Evening Post p10 Je 16 '28 180w

Reviewed by Hiram Motherwell

N Y Times p11 My 27 '28 850w

Reviewed by Harry Salpeter

Outlook 149:315 Je 20 '28 700w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:490 O '28

R of Rs 77:adv26 Je '28 80w

Sat R 145:600 My 12 '28 480w

"It is certainly worthy of attention, if only for the fact that it trails a distinctly provocative historical coat, and we would very emphatically recommend it to our readers."

\+ Spec 140:581 Ap 14 '28 150w

"At many times the author shows penetration and discernment; his language is always trenchant and even vivid; moreover, he has equipped himself for the task by a critical study of the best authorities. The book is a notable contribution to Cromwellian studies, as well as an interesting example of the new interpretation derived by modern writers from the study of the seventeenth century."

\+ Times [London] Lit Sup p324 My 3 '28 750w

Wis Lib Bul 24:253 O '28

TAYLOR, GRIFFITH. Environment and race; a study of the evolution, migration, settlement and status of the races of man. 370p il $7.50 (21s) Oxford

572 Ethnology. Man—Influence of environment. Race problems 28-6943

"This is an ambitious book. Both the problems it considers are among the most complex and pertinent of those that perplex the modern world, and they are developed with a great mass of detail. The first section plots for five continents and the islands of the seas the migrations and ethnic relationships and relative status of all racial groups. The second and third sections consider the future of the white race, and, on the basis of many years' first-hand study of Australia argues from statistics of rainfall and natural resources that Australia will never achieve a front rank among the White peoples. This place, he believes, will be taken by the United States."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

"Taken as a whole, and despite its serious discrepancies, Environment and Race is a very significant contribution to the study of race, its value being due mainly to two factors: the author's originality and vigor of thought, and his freedom from the traditional points of view that make it difficult for the schooled anthropologist to approach the problem of race with the freshness of vision that Taylor, as primarily a geographer and geologist, brings to it." E. S. C. Handy

\+ — Am Anthropol 30:685 O '28 2200w

Booklist 24:314 My '28

Reviewed by Ruth Benedict

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 Ja 22 '28 1600w

Boston Transcript p4 O 11 '27 750w

Reviewed by A. C. Haddon

Nature 121:532 Ap 7 '28 1150w

"The book is of real interest, although many anthropologists and ethnologists will not agree with the author's insistence on the all-importance of physical environment. It is well illustrated with many maps and graphs, but some of the latter seem unduly complicated."

\+ — New Statesman 30:86 O 29 '27 450w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan

N Y Times p1 Ja 8 '28 550w

"Such books as this help people give up their absurd notions about other races and their claims of superiority for their own race. And that will make, some day, for agreement as to how the resources of the world may be shared by all." Bruno Lasker

\+ Survey 59:591 F 1 '28 1100w

TAYLOR, HENRY OSBORN. Human values and verities. 282p $2.75 (8s 6d) Macmillan

171 Truth. Worth 28-25368

The book studies the verdict of human experience on what is good and desirable in the individual and the race, following the changing ideals of mankind thru the centuries as they have been sought along the avenues of science, philosophy, religion, art.

Reviewed by Nathaniel Cantor

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 O 14 '28 650w

Boston Transcript p3 My 23 '28 600w

"The writer is more fluent and agreeable in his manner of statement than subtle in his criticism or startling in his originality. Only occasionally is he even arrestingly suggestive." J. C. Meredith

— + Int J Ethics 39:118 O '28 180w

"There is nothing dogmatic about the author's final validities. His convictions are urbane and mellow and tolerant. But also they are usually obscure—not, I think, because they attempt to deal with final things, but because of the predilection for organizing the discussion around faculties and banking issues up with discursive historical reminiscences." T. V. Smith

— + J Religion 8:616 O '28 900w

"No thinking person can fail to find something in this book: fact, sentiment, interpretation that will appeal to him. No one to whom thought is repellent should read it. It has the fascination of biography and the appeal of psychology. The author is able to be honest when talking about himself without being dull." Joseph Collins

\+ N Y Times p14 Je 3 '28 970w

Reviewed by H. M. Kallen

Sat R of Lit 4:999 Je 30 '28 1000w

TAYLOR, KATHARINE HAVILAND. Youngest one. 360p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran 28-16854

The three Breese girls were very different; Beata, the eldest, was placid and platter-faced; Harmony was pugnacious, but Valette was charming and lovely. The two older girls had prosaic love affairs and marriages. Valette, who had always loved William Tarrent found him a cad at best, and went upon the vaudeville stage. Finally she came to love Eric, the shy, awkward boy who had loved her from school days and suffered so much for his love.

Boston Transcript p5 Je 23 '28 300w

"The accounts of the various parishoners of the Sunday-school picnic, the supper the Altar Guild gave for the member of the Men's Club, and the attitude of the vestry toward a rector who 'had a private income,' which made his eccentricities matters to be smiled over and indulged, are all entertaining and well done. Well done, too, is the picture of the relations of the three sisters to one another and to their parents, while here and there one finds bits of fairly shrewd comment."

\+ — N Y Times p19 My 20 '28 510w

"Portions of the story are skilfully written and pleasant reading, but they fail to compensate one for the grind of plodding through the whole book."

— + Sat R of Lit 5:130 S 15 '28 250w

TAYLOR, NORMAN. Guide to the wild flowers east of the Mississippi and north of Virginia. 357p il $3 Greenberg

581.97 Flowers—North America 28-10068

"This is a companion volume to 'A Guide to the Trees,' by Professor Curtis of Columbia. Mr. Taylor is the Curator of the Botanic Garden in Brooklyn. He describes more than 1200 species of flowers, furnishing drawings of over five hundred of them. In the back of the book, on yellow paper, is a 'Finding List' which is a great convenience. Every flower discussed in the book bears a number. The finding list groups certain of these numbers under their proper months and according to whether the flowers are then to be found in the woods, in moist or wet places, in fields or dry places, or as escapes from gardens."—Sat R of Lit

Booklist 25:16 O '28

"The near-literary flavor of the old amateur flower books is gone; there is not a line of poetry quoted in the book; but the descriptions remain scrupulously untechnical. For those who have not a Schuyler Matthews 'Field-book' full of notes of previous discoveries or who find the old standby not quite inclusive enough this pocket guide, prepared by the curator of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, will satisfy a long-felt need."
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 My 20 '28 180w

Boston Transcript p4 Ag 1 '28 200w

"I had no idea that a system so easy to use, and so comprehensive and accurate could be devised. It makes one dizzy to reflect upon the erudition and toil that must have been required to achieve this lucid simplicity. Months of study and research would be needed to get for oneself the elementary botanical information which is here presented in a few words and pictures. Indeed, the 'picture glossary' is so clear that it almost projects itself into an attentive mind." Marian Storm
+ N Y Evening Post p8 Je 23 '28 200w

"This is the simplest and quickest method of reference in regard to locating any wild flower one runs across in a walk through the country that we have ever seen. The work is a concise, thoroughly workable, and popular guide."
+ Sat R of Lit 4:991 Je 23 '28 150w

Springf'd Republican p7f My 26 '28 100w

TAYLOR, MRS RACHEL ANNAND. Leonardo the Florentine; a study in personality; with a note on the author's work by Gilbert Murray. 580p il $6 Harper [31s 6d Richards press]

B or 92 Leonardo da Vinci. Renaissance. Art, Renaissance 28-28574

Mrs Taylor's book is much more than a study of the great Florentine, Leonardo da Vinci. It is an evocation of the spirit of the Renaissance, a restoration of the cities in which the artist dwelt—Florence, Milan, Amboise—and of the patrons who influenced the development of his art—Lorenzo de' Medici, Lodovico Sforza, Cesare Borgia.

Booklist 25:117 D '28

"This vast and beautiful book is one of the most extraordinary works on Leonardo da Vinci that has ever been written... It is a long book, much too long—nearly 600 pages of sustained and chaotic ecstasies. But a profound and splendid book if taken slowly. To my knowledge there is no living writer whose vocabulary is more extensive and flexible." T: Craven
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 S 23 '28 1800w

Boston Transcript p9 O 6 '28 500w

"This is, indeed, a remarkable book, one not to be exhausted at a first reading, for it contains fold within fold of learning, depth beyond depth of sympathetic understanding, height beyond height of enthusiasm that is sometimes so rapturous as to be not entirely comprehensible, but which, though it makes the reader giddy is invariably stimulating." S. C. C.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 S 12 '28 1700w

"It is only a pity that so much useful information, founded, obviously, on patient and profound research and a scholarly knowledge of the subject, should be served up in a literary style of a grandiose and jewelled ornateness worthy almost of the Borgias themselves."
— + Nation and Ath 42:sup430 D 10 '27 110w

N Y Evening Post p8m D 29 '28 110w

"To be welcomed as unquestionably the most important study of Leonardo in many, many years. No one has ever penetrated so deeply into the heart of Leonardo the man as the author of this book. Endowed with a deep sympathy, an intuitive understanding and a wealth of erudition, Mrs. Taylor was able to give us an interpretation of the human Leonardo absolutely unsurpassed to the best of the present reviewer's knowledge." H. L. Matthews
+ N Y Times p11 S 23 '28 1350w

"Because her descriptive faculty is so admirable, and because her knowledge of Renaissance Italy is so profound, Mrs Taylor is better in her highly colored pictures of cities, courts, and the brilliant companies of poets, artists and warriors of the time, than in other aspects of her book. Her artistic judgments are too sharply individual." Allen Nevins
+ — N Y World p7m S 9 '28 900w

"Mrs. Taylor, who is literally in love with the Renaissance, has applied her student's knowledge, her poetic sensibility, and her aristocratic wisdom to understanding and explaining the most enigmatic and in some ways the most representative figure of that volcanic and magnificent period... To galvanize so much dead and gone lumber into drama—into more than drama, into spiritual reality—is a supreme imaginative feat. This work is not only a recreation of Leonardo da Vinci, it is a recreation of the entire Renaissance." M. C. Canfield
+ Sat R of Lit 5:67 Ag 25 '28 1450w

"The whole book is like some great and rich reliquary, enclosing the authentic relics of beauty's eremite, Ser Leonardo, with an innumerable pomp of jewels. From what quarry did Mrs. Taylor mine her sentences? No one has ever written a book quite like this. . . Something of Leonardo's invincible and virgin spirit, of his magic and mastery, has been set down for us by Mrs. Taylor. No one will ever see more than she has told us of that proud soul. She has wrought a setting worthy of the crowning jewel of the Renaissance."
+ Spec 139:sup661 O 22 '27 1000w

"Mrs. Taylor is one of those rare students of a period who do not permit much learning to blunt the edge of a keen and poetic imagination. The present work is an attempt to elucidate a strange and most elusive personality. It is history and biography; but the facts of history and biography are subordinated to an attempt to reconstruct the adventures of Leonardo in the realms of intellect and art, and to discover the secret of the Mona Lisa smile. As for the criticism, it is lyrical in its enthusiasm, feminine in its intensity, and culminating even at times in that frenzy of excitement which rendered the Delphic priestess inaudible and unintelligible. But it is essentially stimulating."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p755 O 27 '27 1600w

Wis Lib Bul 24:304 N '28

TAYLOR, WILLIAM SENTMAN. Morton Prince and abnormal psychology. 136p $1.75 Appleton

132 Prince, Morton. Psychology, Pathological. Subconsciousness 28-12093

"Professor Taylor appears as sympathetic interpreter and, once or twice, as special pleader in this smallish volume about an eminent and practicing psychologist. He devotes special attention to a comparison of Dr. Prince's contributions with those of other leaders in the field of psychopathology."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

TAYLOR, W: S.—Continued

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 N 4 '28 90w

"Professor Taylor has attempted to present in systematic form the chief elements of Dr. Prince's psychology. The result, perhaps due to the nature of the work, is not altogether happy. It would seem to be much easier for the reader to go directly to Dr. Prince's chief work, 'The Unconscious,' which, although not short, is in the long run more comprehensible and profitable than any abridgment with supplements from other sources."
— Boston Transcript p6 Je 2 '28 150w

TEASDALE, SARA (MRS ERNST B. FILSINGER), comp. Answering voice; love lyrics by women. new ed 219p $2.25 Macmillan

821.08 Love poetry. English poetry—Collections 28-19969

A new edition of a book which first appeared in 1917. Fifty new poems have been added in this edition.

Booklist 25:88 N '28

Reviewed by Helen Pearce
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p22 S 9 '28 500w

Boston Transcript p6 Ag 29 '28 220w

St Louis 26:386 D '28

"What this collection needed—and still needs—is not a mere addendum but a drastic revision. . . A lesser poet might offer 'The Answering Voice' in its present form, but not one from whom readers have a right to expect more. This is not to say the collection is either flat or unprofitable. Within the self-imposed limitations of 'love lyrics by women' there are a handful that bear the breath of permanence. For these, at least, we should be thankful."
+ — Sat R of Lit 5:257 O 13 '28 430w

TEMPSKI, ARMINE VON. Dust; a novel of Hawaii. 323p $2 Stokes [7s 6d Murray] 28-6081

Saxon Kingsley undertakes the reconstruction of a deserted island of Hawaii. The difficulty of the job is increased by a gang of opium runners, and by the unaccountable hostility of Saxon's backer. The youth has powerful friends, however, and among them finds a brother and a sweetheart.

Boston Transcript p2 Je 2 '28 520w

"With imagination and feeling the author describes the fight of her hero to reclaim the island, and her picture of Kahoolawe is one not to be forgotten. There is another story she tells not so well: her hero's effort to solve the mystery of his birth. This plot works out to a dramatic conclusion, but in its windings is too frequently melodramatic, due to the author's redundant and trite phrasing and her tendency to sentimentalize."
+ — Ind 120:365 Ap 14 '28 150w

"One feels on closing the book that 'Dust' could have been written without lovely Nollie Huntington in Saxon's life at all—for the real love of his life was Kahoolawe—'a world he had created out of dust.'"
+ — N Y Times p12 Mr 11 '28 450w

Sat R of Lit 4:895 My 19 '28 60w

Times [London] Lit Sup p550 Jl 26 '28 450w

TERHUNE, ALBERT PAYSON. Water! 318p $2 Harper 28-6522

The plot of the story centers around a contest for water rights in a New Jersey valley. The engineer for the development company has faith in the integrity of his concern, and wages war on the private interests which oppose the development plan. A collie and a girl in the opposing camp take an active part in the fray, the former, at least, starring in several of the scrimmages that occur in the course of the story. Tho the engineer's confidence has been misplaced, everything turns out well.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Ap 8 '28 100w

"The story has more and better fights to the square inch than any modern story one can recall. Not simply the dog, but everybody mixes in. His story is full of life, adventure, the sporting spirit, physical courage and all that makes a 'he-man's' book. And it brings that adventure close home to the effete East, without getting out onto the last frontier." T. C. R.
+ Boston Transcript p10 Mr 31 '28 330w

"If the author knew as much about water-supply engineering as he does of dogs, he would have written some parts of his book differently, but for the average reader his legal and engineering anomalies will not matter."
Eng N 100:979 Je 21 '28 300w

N Y Times p24 Ap 1 '28 250w

Springf'd Republican p7f Ap 15 '28 200w

Wis Lib Bul 24:127 Ap '28

TERRY, CHARLES EDWARD, and PELLENS, MILDRED. Opium problem. 1042p il $5 Com. on drug addictions, 61 Broadway, N.Y.

178.8 Opium trade 28-18296

"Three years have gone to the testing of this epoch-making volume, 'The Opium Problem,' and to the formation of the book many years more than three. 'The Opium Problem,' is an outgrowth of a report to the committee on drug addictions. Now the details of every aspect of this study have been tried out: extent, development of the problem, etiology, general nature, pathology, symtomatology, types of users, treatment, and control international as well as national, state as well as municipal."—Springf'd Republican

"The work shows conscientious study, expert compilation and sound judgment, in addition to which its arrangement and wording make it easily available not only to the expert student, but to the social worker or layman who desires information on this most important subject. . . It can be said without hesitation that it is the most important contribution to the problem extant, and it can be commended to all classes of readers. The make-up of the book is good." M. P. Ravenel
+ Am J Pub Health 18:1441 N '28 350w

"Here at last is an investigation without the limitations of any bias whatsoever—social or psychologic or medical. One good illustration of the book's nonpolitical, unprejudiced outlook is that for the first time, and without rancor, the story of the international efforts at control has been told on a straight fact basis without interpretations or comments, and without any attempt to place responsibility on nations or on individuals." Jeannette Marks
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 7 '28 1850w

TERRY, CHARLES SANFORD. Bach; a biography. 292p il $7.50 (21s) Oxford

B or 92 Bach, Johann Sebastian

"In his life of Bach Dr. Terry has refrained from attempting an appreciation of the composer's music and has kept strictly to a 'record of Bach's career.' But that career, pieced together with the aid of every available scrap of material, becomes in Dr. Terry's hands an extraordinarily vivid and human tale. Dr. Terry, naturally, utilized what discoveries have been made by Bach investigators since Spitta. It is the result of his own researches, however, that has enabled him to bring out more clearly the contour of Bach's life and throw new light on Bach's family and ancestors."—Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by P: Bowdoin
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 D 16 '28 800w

"As a work of reference the book will be invaluable; there is no fact or incident connected with Bach which Mr. Terry has not exhaustively investigated, even its most trivial details. But that it brings before us with any clearness the figure and character of Bach, the man, cannot be claimed for it. The fault is not Mr. Terry's; it is the fault of time and of oblivion. The truth is that Mr. Terry tells us everything that is known about Bach, the man, but that everything is very little."

+ Nation and Ath 43:738 S 8 '28 280w

"Unquestionably the best Bach biography in any language. . . It is the book of an enthusiast and scholar." Carl Engel

+ Sat R of Lit 5:424 D 1 '28 210w

"The great value of this biography is that it tells the story with such exceeding care for proportion and detail that at the end we feel that we are taking leave of a man of single purpose, of real humility and unique courage. The volume contains a large number of illustrations which help the reader to re-create Bach's environment and to visualise the people with whom he came into contact." Basil Maine

+ Spec 141:451 O 6 '28 320w

"This biography is a book which every musician must have on his shelf and will take down the more frequently for reference because it is nothing but a biography."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p531 Jl 19 '28 1150w

THADDEUS, VICTOR. Julius Caesar & the grandeur that was Rome. 321p il $5 Brentano's

Caesar, Caius Julius 27-23286

" 'Julius Caesar and the Grandeur That Was Rome' recreates the ancient Roman in a way to entertain the modern analyst. Caesar's heredity, his youth, his ambitions and his motives are probed. Any whitewashing which may have clung to the name of Caesar is removed in the interests of 'accurate' biography. Caesar, the bandit adventurer, steps into the footprints of the more legendary Caesar, the far-seeing statesman."—Springf'd Republican

---

"The book is placed in the list of best-sellers under the head of 'non-fiction' and is described as a 'modern interpretation of the great Roman.' Neither the classification nor the description is accurate. Mr. Thaddeus gives us many or most of the incidents of Caesar's life as Suetonius, Plutarch, Cicero and Caesar himself have narrated them, and he imagines a great many more to fill the interstices of the picture. One may not object to that. But he also misstates a number of the facts he relies upon, and so to many of the incidents which he elicits from his imagination there is the important objection that they cannot have happened. If this is interpretation, it is not modern, since it has the respectable antiquity of caricature." Max Radin

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 F 19 '28 950w

"A deep scorn tinges Mr. Thaddeus's whole outlook. At the very beginning we are conscious of the weakness of his method. . . Mr. Thaddeus would have been more convincing if he had been less emphatic." D. L. Mann

— Boston Transcript p4 D 31 '27 850w

"The trouble with this book is that it has too much of everything: too much color, inflated diction, melodrama, fiction, and 'sex appeal,' and decidedly too much use of the present historical tense."

— Nation 126:302 Mr 11 '28 110w

N Y Evening Post p13 D 31 '27 320w

"Mr. Thaddeus has produced a semi-precious work of the 'gift-book' category. He gloats, as well as debunks, in a manner suggestive of Saltus's 'The Imperial Orgy.' " J: Carter

— N Y Times p11 D 18 '27 1250w

"A moving and extremely readable story of the great proconsul and the grandeur that was Rome."

+ No Am 225:adv Ja '28 20w

"The foreword is undignified and the illustrations are remarkably vulgar in concept and execution. They sound the note for the book, which is constantly promising with wealth of scholarship and constantly disappointing with outlook and style inadequate to the scope and weight of the subject."

— Outlook 147:379 N 23 '27 60w

"One might call it a novel based upon a few passages of Plutarch. But this particular fiction is utterly reckless with the facts. Caesar's birth is placed fifty years too late; the society in which he is made to move might as well be in China or Egypt; the senate that he has to deal with is certainly not the Roman senate and the characters of the book betray no resemblance to the persons who bore their names in history. It would require twenty-five pages to record the errors. It incorporates a number of far-fetched passages from Roman authors to give it a tone of verisimilitude, it mentions enough names of historical personages to carry conviction to the unwary." Tenney Frank

— Sat R of Lit 4:470 D 24 '27 820w

"Both by straightforward narration and attention in details of character the author has produced a book that is graphic but not convincing."

Springf'd Republican p7f F 26 '28 350w

THADDEUS, VICTOR. Voltaire, genius of mockery. 291p il $5 Brentano's

B or 92 Voltaire, François Marie Arouet de 28-23400

"The book contains a fair share of the biographical facts to be found in any standard work upon the subject; in it the author very judiciously breaks the monotony of his own style by frequent quotations from Voltaire's writings. . . It would seem that Mr Thaddeus has sought to 'popularize' Voltaire, yet it will be in the nature of a miracle if his words reach any considerable audience."—N Y Times

---

"From the cheap and inaccurate subtitle to the bibliography compiled mainly from secondary sources, this is about as poor and pretentious a presentation of a great subject as we are likely to see. It is vulgar because it aims to disgust the reader with every person on the stage, aside from Voltaire and Frederick of Prussia. It is stupid because its author has seen and has recounted only the most obvious phenomena in the life of Voltaire and of his age. It is dull because it is repetitious, exclamatory, telegraphic." L: Galantiere

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 O 14 '28 580w

" 'Voltaire' is not altogether spiritless writing, but it comes so close to the edge of dullness that it leaves behind only the memory of a yawn. Such a book should be considered once, twice, and three times before it is ever set up in type." S. H.

— Boston Transcript p5 O 27 '28 500w

"It is a superficial study, based apparently upon secondary sources, which sheds little or no light upon the qualities that make Voltaire such a unique and fascinating character. It would seem that Mr. Thaddeus has sought to 'popularize' Voltaire, yet it will be in the nature of a miracle if his words reach any considerable audience. He has almost performed one of the most difficult feats a writer can do, which is to produce a dull life of Voltaire." C. B. Chase

— N Y Times p5 O 14 '28 1550w

"Voltaire, if it were worth the trouble, might well rise and slay Victor Thaddeus with a word. From all such maladroit biographers, good Lord deliver us. . . He writes in ignorance of his period, in despite of sources. Such material as he uses is obvious and common property. The vulgarity of his style is worthy of the cheapest of 'de-bunking' specialists. His translations, even, are at times incorrect. The only things in the book that are worth anything are the illustrations and the quotations."

— Outlook 150:1128 N 7 '28 130w

"A new and sharply etched portraiture of the French philosopher. Deeply sympathetic with his subject, the author yet refuses to distort the truth of history in the interest of Voltaire. Imaginative power pervades this biography."

THADDEUS, VICTOR—Continued
R of Rs 78:adv40 N '28 30w

THANE, ELSWYTH, pseud. (ELSWYTH THANE [RICKER] BEEBE) (MRS WILLIAM BEEBE). His Elizabeth. 269p $2 Stokes
28-7494

A light-as-thistledown love story in which a poet finds in France the little girl of his childhood, lets her go because she is not really his Elizabeth at all, and then hurries to England to find her again.

Booklist 24:405 Jl '28

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 Ag 26 '28 280w

Boston Transcript p2 Je 16 '28 260w

"Too long, perhaps are the complications and conversations; but, Barriesque in its humorous sentiment, this novel is entertaining."
+ — Ind 120:313 Mr 31 '28 70w

"It is a gay trifle, with a sly wisdom in its folly that is very refreshing."
+ New Statesman 31:402 Je 30 '28 100w

"'His Elizabeth' is not a story which can be safely recommended to every one. It is a gay, insouciant, half-humorous little love story, appropriately adorned with the scent of white lilacs in the moonlight and roses in Provence. It is nicely plotted, and runs a light-hearted, youthful course through complications as ephemeral as the tears of its heroine. And it is grotesquely, laughably unconvincing and painfully trite."
— + N Y Times p10 Mr 11 '28 400w

"Clumsy work is irritating enough (and this is clumsy, certainly, for all its affected grace), but there is nothing on earth more irritating than sapless work, and this is both clumsy and sapless."
— Sat R of Lit 4:803 Ap 21 '28 360w

Times [London] Lit Sup p569 Ag 2 '28 140w

THAYER, LEE (MRS EMMA REDINGTON [LEE] THAYER). Darkest spot. 322p $2 Sears [7s 6d Hurst & B.]
28-5983

"Here we have a little orphan newsgirl of respectable antecedents strangely drawn into the pother surrounding the murder of a rich lady who owned an emerald necklace and a wild nephew, who is suspected of the crime. 'I want Peter Clancy!' exclaims Jack when accused of the deed, and the famous detective finally straightens out some better than average clews with the aid of the orphan aforesaid, all going to show that the darkest spot is just before the dawn. A sick horse plays an entertaining role when the plot is thickest."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 F 5 '28 90w

"In spite of the recourse to stock tricks, the story is decidedly above the average."
+ — Boston Transcript p6 F 11 '28 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p78 Je '28

N Y Times p20 F 5 '28 180w

"The plot is adroitly and plausibly unwound, with no resort to the usual detective high-jinks, and holds one's interest to the end."
+ N Y World p10m Mr 4 '28 120w

THIESS, FRANK. Devil's shadow; tr. from the German by H. T. Lowe-Porter. 379p $3 Knopf
28-22354

The gateway to life (Book Review Digest, 1927) was the first of a tetralogy depicting the post-war generation in Germany. Of the group of adolescents in the former book several reappear here, and Caspar Müller, student of philology at the university of Berlin, is the protagonist. The old order has changed; the old standards are destroyed; society is in a state of chaos and the opportunist reigns. Caspar is young, intelligent, selfish. He sinks whatever ideals he ever had, and grabs what he can of love and money, as actor, journalist, blackmailer, embezzler, finally rising to the peak of his ambitions as agent of an enormous organization for the merchandising of love.

"Of the few first-class novels built from strictly modern themes that have come out of Germany since the war only two or three have attempted to penetrate the post-war psychological outlook very deeply. To Frank Thiess in two novels, 'The Gateway to Life,' and his latest novel, whose title has been somewhat fantastically rendered into English as 'The Devil's Shadow,' belongs some of the credit of having systematically explored and exploited the war's after effects on German society as a whole." Eugene Lohrke
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 O 14 '28 850w

"The book is a crescendo of nightmare. Perhaps life is like that in Germany, for some young men. But there are others. Let us hope that Herr Thiess will tell us of them." T. S. Matthews
New Repub 56:308 O 31 '28 270w

THOM, DOUGLAS ARMOUR. Everyday problems of the everyday child; with an introd. by Grace Abbott. 349p $2.50 (10s 6d) Appleton
136.7 Child study. Children—Management
27-20573

"A sensible, authoritative, readable discussion of the mental life of children as it affects their physical and social well-being; written for the benefit of parents and teachers by the director of the habit clinics of Boston whose work has given him wide experience as to the help needed by both parents and children."—J Home Econ

---

Booklist 24:238 Mr '28

"Dr. Thom's 'Everyday Problems of the Everyday Child' should prove helpful. It gives a large number of actual cases from the habit clinics of Boston, and covers nearly every phase of juvenile woe and parental perplexity. It is written clearly and simply, though without literary charm." Margery Mansfield
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 Ja 1 '28 350w

"Likely to become a standard handbook."
J Home Econ 20:50 Ja '28 40w

"The reviewer's task is simplified so far as an estimate of Dr. Thom's book goes; he may be content with the statement that it is the best book on its subject." Joseph Jastrow
+ N Y Evening Post p13 Ja 7 '28 700w

"In spite of occasional faulty construction, the book should have considerable appeal for the rank and file of parents for whom it is evidently meant. The language is simple and non-technical; the problems chosen for discussion are those which practically every parent encounters in a more or less serious form. Persons who are interested in the practical aspects of child welfare should find much that is helpful in Dr. Thom's clear-sighted analysis of the essential factors in the cases which he describes." F. L. Goodenough
+ — Sat R of Lit 4:504 Ja 7 '28 260w

"This book will appeal directly to parents, for whom it is written in a clear and helpful manner, practical for everyday situations." Louise Brink
+ Survey 59:397 D 15 '27 480w

Times [London] Lit Sup p30 Ja 12 '28 80w

Wis Lib Bul 24:121 Ap '28

THOMAS, ELBERT DUNCAN. Chinese political thought; a study based upon the theories of the principal thinkers of the Chou period; foreword by Edward Thomas Williams. 317p $5 Prentice-Hall

320.9 China—Politics and government. Political science—History 27-14585

"The author has taken a single dynasty, the Chou, which held the peacock throne from 1122 to 240 B.C., and has made a searching study of the political ideas which gain ascendancy then. This may seem like concentration on detail until one remembers that the Chou dynasty saw the careers of Lao-tze, Confucius, Mo-ti, Mencius, as well as a host of other thinkers whose standing as the classical sources of Chinese thought is only a trifle secondary to that of the four great masters. When this fact is held in mind, it is plain that Dr. Thomas, by dealing with the thought of this single dynasty, is really dealing with Chinese orthodoxy from that date to this."—Christian Century

---

"American political scientists, whose appetite for knowledge concerning the political theory of the Celestial Empire was stimulated by Professor Pott's 'Chinese Political Philosophy,' will receive this new book on the same subject with much satisfaction. It contains more information than the earlier work and conveys a deeper understanding of the Chinese attitude toward the state and government." A. N. Holcombe

+ Am Pol Sci R 21:890 N '27 520w

Boston Transcript p5 Jl 16 '27 600w

"Dr. Thomas has done one of those pieces of work easily blighted by being labeled 'scholarly,' but which is of lasting importance to the person who wishes really to understand what lies behind present-day Chinese expression. He has made his study exceedingly comprehensive." Paul Hutchinson

+ Christian Century 45:316 Mr 8 '28 130w

St Louis 26:347 N '28

THOMAS, EVAN EDWARD. Ethical basis of [2] reality. 262p $4.20 Longmans

111 Reality. Individuality [27-15041]

"A study of the subjective structure of reality. The author briefly reviews those philosophers who have made contributions to successive theories of knowledge, in the hope of finding some principle which may serve as the cohesive factor in all human existence. This long critical detour is made, he says, in order to arrive at the position that reality must be the construction of finite minds; and all that is left is to discover what kind of reality such minds can build and how they set about it."—Churchman

---

"Dr. Thomas, late fellow of the University of Wales, does not add anything particularly new and significant in bringing traditional philosophical idealism down to date, in his 'Ethical Basis of Reality.' Portions of his argument carry considerable conviction, but there is scant appreciation of some of the problems raised by modern science. . . . Such men as Lloyd Morgan and Alfred Whitehead, with their intimate contact with modern science, present much stronger support for religious convictions than does this book steeped in Bosanquet and other philosophical idealists." Reinhold Niebuhr

— Christian Century 45:1106 S 13 '28 220w

THOMAS, JERRY. Bon vivant's companion; or, [3] How to mix drinks; ed. with an introd. by Herbert Asbury. 169p il $3 (7s 6d) Knopf

663.8 Liquors 28-23653

A famous bartender published in 1862 a book of rules for mixing his most successful concoctions. Introduced in a eulogistic sketch by Herbert Asbury and embellished with suitable illustrations from contemporary sources, the Bon vivant's companion makes a new appearance.

"One feels grateful to Mr. Herbert Asbury for his revival of a major authority, with his almost too zestful introduction (the plaintive gusto of the sufferers under Volstead is very affecting), and some diverting contemporary cuts of New York's night life sixty years ago. The earnest student will find it invaluable."

+ New Statesman 32:supx N 3 '28 320w

Reviewed by F: F. Van de Water

N Y Evening Post p9m N 24 '28 180w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks

Outlook 150:1294 D 5 '28 180w

"Mr. Asbury knows as much concerning the old bartenders of New York as he proved he knew about the old gangs. His introduction concerning Thomas, introducing him as a classicist among drink-concocters and a figure of great port and dignity, is a fine tribute. And the illustrations he has chosen for the volumes, from among old prints and illustrations, are gorgeous and delicious."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:496 D 8 '28 380w

"Mr. Asbury has collected a number of entertaining illustrations.The introduction is a lament for the past glories of wet America, the days of bartenders and saloons, and above all the days of 'Professor' Jerry Thomas, Prince of Mixers. Here we are shown the bar-tender as an artist, and not merely a seller of drinks, and may observe the fruits of his life's study."

+ Spec 141:831 D 1 '28 70w

THOMAS, LOWELL JACKSON. European skyways; the story of a tour of Europe by airplane. 524p il $5 Houghton

629.13 Aviation. Aeronautics—Voyages. Europe—Description and travel 27-23476

For descriptive note see Annual for 1927.

Booklist 24:273 Ap '28

"Owing to the rather confused style in which it is written, 'European Skyways' cannot be regarded either as an informative journal of air travel or an interesting history of aviation in general. It contains, however, some very good photographs."

— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p22 F 26 '28 550w

"As he puts it, he had twenty-five thousand miles of skylarking, and the book he has made out of this is a happy joy-ride too. He looks out of his cabin window, exclaims how new the earth looks and how easy geography becomes when studied vertically, and writes it all down, with appropriate little pieces of coloured history, in his slapdash and vivid American prose. And when he is bored with that he fills up his book with first-class yarns." B. G.

+ New Statesman 32:160 N 10 '28 280w

Reviewed by Russell Owen

N Y Times p8 D 25 '27 300w

"Informative and entertaining, but seems rather tame stuff to come from the adventurous biographer of Col. Lawrence and Count Luckner."

+ — N Y World p11m F 5 '28 120w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:173 Mr '28

R of Rs 77:adv4 Ja '28 60w

Springf'd Republican p10 Mr 9 '28 680w

Times [London] Lit Sup p745 O 18 '28 880w

Wis Lib Bul 24:22 Ja '28

THOMAS, LOWELL JACKSON. Raiders of the [2] deep. 363p il $2.50 Doubleday, Doran

940.451 European war, 1914-1918—Naval operations 28-25937

From the survivors of the German U-boat crews, whom he travelled over Germany to find, Mr. Thomas gleaned these first hand stories of under sea warfare, its thrills and horrors. With photographs of the U-boats, their crews and their victims.

"For us the most important chapter in the book is the one dealing with the sinking of the Lusitania, and this presents a new picture of a much discussed situation. If this version is true, we must abandon the idea that the whole was a carefully hatched plan with the undersea ships sent out expressly to sink the Lusitania and all its passengers."

THOMAS, L. J.—Continued

+ Boston Transcript p3 D 1 '28 130w

"Mr. Thomas has collected in this volume many stories of the U-boat warfare of the Germans gleaned from the lips of surviving officers. It contains, therefore, first-class historical material, especially as he has checked the German narratives wherever possible by information from Allied sources, chiefly British. . . Mr. Thomas has rendered a genuine service by collecting these narratives—especially that of the cruise of one of the six boats assigned to attack the American coast—while the witnesses were still available."

+ Nation 127:sup637 D 5 '28 200w

"A thoroughly unsympathetic subject, so presented as to be thoroughly interesting, a dramatic story of individual daring—this is the newest effort of the man who wrote 'With Lawrence in Arabia' and 'Count Luckner, the Sea Devil.' In 'Raiders of the Deep' Lowell Thomas has told the German story of the German submarines in the war."

+ N Y Times p20 D 2 '28 550w

THOMAS, WILLIAM ISAAC, and ZNANIECKI, FLORIAN. Polish peasant in Europe and America. 2v $15; text ed $10 Knopf

914.38 Peasantry—Poland. Poles in the United States. Poles—Social conditions 27-25039

"This exhaustive study, originally published in five volumes, has proved of such value to students of the social sciences that it is now being made available to a wider public. The present edition is a revision, but not an abridgment. Eight years were spent by the authors in assembling the material for this examination of the economic and social development of the Polish peasant. (Books [N Y Herald Tribune]) "In pursuit of their purpose the authors utilized the best type of sociological materials available—personal life records, wherever possible, such as letters and other vehicles of personal expression and confession. The Polish peasant is studied in his home environment, and we glimpse almost at first hand the psychology and organization of the isolated peasant communities in Poland and their evolution into integral parts of the Polish national body." (Nation)

"There have been many studies of particular social groups, but nothing so important nor so painstakingly descriptive of an immigrant society has ever been printed. The amount of information to be had from letters, press clippings, case records, and court reports is astonishing and should be encouraging to sociologists who desire facts on which to base their theories." Ellsworth Faris

Am J Soc 33:816 Mr '28 1200w

"Much of the content, of course, will be found to lie outside the interest of the average reader, but the letter series included in the documentary sources have a decided fascination aside from the light they throw on the authors' thesis. From a practical viewpoint the findings concerning the effects of emigration are of greatest value."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 D 11 '27 110w

"Though the book is of primary interest to those having to do with social experiments, the extraordinary letters could easily be made of comparatively popular appeal. We know of nothing else in literature exactly like them. Through them the Polish peasantry, which elsewhere in the text tends to become a cold abstraction, is revealed in warmly alive infinitely differentiated personalities." M. L. S.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ja 7 '28 680w

" 'The Polish Peasant' does not merely bear rereading. It is a source of perennial refreshment because of the diverse sources of interest it supplies. The ungarnished materials—letters, etc.—would alone justify the book. The various sectional introductions and annotations transcend in scholarship and readability the vast mass of sociological verbiage that clutters our libraries; while the general introduction, and more especially the famous Methodological Note, seem the sine qua non of basic sociological procedure. No longer can any student of social affairs be condoned for his failure to own and to be thoroughly conversant with this classic." Solomon Bluhm

+ Nation 126:301 Mr 14 '28 600w

"The republication of this sociological classic in a two-volume edition constitutes one of the major events of the season. No one interested in social experience and research need now be without this distinguished work."

+ New Repub 54:304 Ap 25 '28 70w

Reviewed by Herbert Solow

N Y Evening Post p7 Je 9 '28 200w

"The republication of this monumental work in two volumes, instead of five in the original edition, without abridgement and at a price about one-third of the original, is an event of significance in American social science, and incidentally in American book manufacturing. In the decade passed, nothing has challenged its right to first place in the growing list of scientific monographs on peoples and cultures." L. Wirth

+ Survey 60:559 S 1 '28 480w

THOMAS, WILLIAM STURGIS. Field book of common gilled mushrooms; with a key to their identification and directions for cooking those that are edible. 332p il $3.50 (15s) Putnam

589.22 Mushrooms 28-15151

A handbook of the common gilled mushrooms of the United States, "designed to assist persons who are interested in identifying some of the species found growing in fields, woods and dooryards." There are descriptions arranged and numbered alphabetically according to botanical names of one hundred and twenty-eight species of these mushrooms. Three chapters on mushrooms as food give general directions for cooking and a collection of special recipes. The book contains sixteen color plates illustrating ninety-six species of mushrooms and many illustrations in black and white.

Booklist 25:16 O '28

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p13 Jl 15 '28 180w

Boston Transcript p3 Je 23 '28 40w

THOMPSON, CHARLES JOHN SAMUEL. Mysteries and secrets of magic. 320p il $3.50 Lippincott [10s 6d Lane]

133 Magic 28-26439

Describes the rites and practices of magic cults from earliest recorded times, and among all peoples. Sorcery, witchcraft, love potions, magic talismans and charms, spells and curses, and all the other paraphernalia of the black arts are included. Illustrations from early sources.

"It is true that Mr. Thompson is a rather flavorless writer, but he knows his material well enough and sets it forth in ample measure. He is more of a narrator than an analyst, however, and the serious student of the phenomena of magic will hardly find anything in the book that he has not known before."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 My 13 '28 150w

"His material is of sufficient interest and variety to tempt his readers to make further researches into the dark matters he covers so broadly and hastily. The book is illustrated with many curious old drawings and engravings. It is an excellent presentation for the benefit of the general public."

+ Ind 120:413 Ap 28 '28 100w

"A book fascinating to any one interested in superstitions."
N Y World p9m My 13 '28 320w

"There is no general theory, no connecting thread running through the book, and some of the facts are so lightly treated as to be almost unintelligible. Nevertheless it is a very entertaining book to dip into, and there are a lot of interesting illustrations. Also, if you want to practice a little magic in your spare time, there are complete directions. Some of the materials, of course, are difficult to get." W. R. Brooks
Outlook 149:277 Je 13 '28 250w

Sat R 145:139 F 4 '28 90w

"In his book we find no psychological insight into what really happened, no metaphysical system, no irradiant heights or depths putrefying with black flames. There is nothing here but incredible and shrivelled specimens of fragmentary processes, spells, pentacles, secret names, with numerous illustrations from old manuscripts; the disjecta membra of the ancient art, cast up on the shore of Time. One may pass a very pleasant hour turning the leaves of this book." S. F. Damon
Sat R of Lit 4:881 My 19 '28 160w

Times [London] Lit Sup p658 S 20 '28 550w

THOMPSON, CHARLES JOHN SAMUEL. Mysteries of history; with accounts of some remarkable characters and charlatans. 319p il $4 Lippincott [12s 6d Faber & G.]

920 Biography. History—Curiosa and miscellany [28-20113]

A varied gallery of historic characters, rogues, and charlatans is here gathered, with accounts of mysterious deaths and poisonings.

"Altogether the book is an entertaining account of human gullibility."
+ New Statesman 31:136 My 5 '28 230w

N Y Evening Post p9m O 27 '28 70w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 226:adv N '28 50w

Sat R 145:736 Je 9 '28 680w

"On the whole, this is a disheartening book. So many mysteries of real distinction await Mr. Thompson's attention. . . . Their discussion would seem to be better worth while than the rather aimless tracking of bygone and insignificant adventurers."
— Spec 140:sup729 My 12 '28 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p361 My 10 '28 360w

THOMPSON, DOROTHY (MRS SINCLAIR LEWIS). New Russia. 330p il $3 Holt

914.7 Russia—Social conditions. Russia—Politics and government. Bolshevism—Russia [28-21722]

A comprehensive report on all phases of life in the new Russia—economic, cultural, social—written by a keen, intelligent observer who spent considerable time in Russia, sending the articles which appear in this book to the New York Evening Post. To the original articles Miss Thompson, who is now Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, has added much of personal feeling and impression.

"It is, in its main outlines, a familiar enough story to those who read the books on Russia. But Dorothy Thompson succeeds in throwing new lights on the cinema screen of Russia. Her chapters on the schools and on 'Lame Eros' use novels and short stories as their literary background instead of government statistics." L: Gannett
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 O 14 '28 480w

'Written to be read, 'The New Russia' is a many-sided book: in addition to its value as a study of a nation in the throes of a ruthless epochal experiment in government, it is also of interest to business men and investors, while there is as much attention devoted to literature under 'Leninism' as there is to foreign trade possibilities." M. H. C.
+ Boston Transcript p4 O 6 '28 480w

Dial 85:540 D '28 80w

Living Age 335:156 O '28 50w

"Where Miss Thompson makes her special contribution to the discussion of the Russian situation is in her analysis of Communist doctrine and its application to the everyday life not only of its devotees but of all Russians. Russian communism, as she sees it, is a new religion unapplied and even opposed to a knowledge of any god—unless, indeed, that god is Lenin." Norah Meade
+ — Nation 127:322 O 3 '28 950w

Reviewed by A. I. Nazaroff
N Y Times p7 D 2 '28 630w

Reviewed by Paul Sifton
N Y World p7m S 2 '28 900w

"Miss Thompson's book is noteworthy for its fairness and for its comprehensiveness; it gives equal attention to such practical matters as the outlook for more trade with Russia, and such cultural matters as the enormous output of books under the Soviets." Herschel Brickell
+ No Am 226:adv O '28 70w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:587 N '28

"Few writers have succeeded so well in presenting the mental attitude of the modern Russian. Her book is more than a compilation of newspaper letters. It embodies Miss Thompson's thoughts and deductions about Russia's present and future. American business men and investors will find in it worthwhile information bearing on Russian trade possibilities."
+ R of Rs 78:adv36 O '28 100w

Reviewed by P. B. MacDonald
Sat R of Lit 5:452 D 8 '28 200w

"Well written, with engaging emphasis on the human element. The relegation of the Gosplan —State Planning Commission—to a parenthesis, is an unfortunate omission for the general reader. On the other hand, the fourth and the last chapters are real contributions to lay understanding." L. L. W. Wilson
+ Survey 61:176 N 1 '28 150w

THOMPSON, EDWARD JOHN. Suttee; a historical and philosophical inquiry into the Hindu rite of widow-burning. 165p $2.50 Houghton [7s 6d Allen & U.]

393.9 India—Social life and customs. Hinduism. Suttee [28-22788]

"Mr. Thompson, who has written much about India, seems not only to have lived there but to have given thorough-going study to her history, literature and religion. His reseaches and studies have enabled him to write with authority of the origin and history of the rite of suttee, its prevalence, the reasons that gave it such compelling power, its prohibition by the British, the struggle against it by a few of the more advanced Hindus, the situation concerning it today. In the concluding chapter, the author discusses at some length, and very interestingly, the effect that suttee has had on the Indians themselves, their civilization and their literature, and shows it to have been merely one factor in a social development that has in some of its phases had for them disastrous results."—N Y Times

---

Reviewed by Evan Cotton
Nation and Ath 42:944 Mr 24 '28 620w

New Statesman 31:617 Ag 25 '28 680w

"It is not so sensational a work [as Katharine Mayo's] and it has the advantage over hers of being a thoroughly scholarly inquiry and the outcome of extensive and intimate knowledge of India. It is, in fact, so scholarly in purpose and method that its deepest appeal will be to the specialist—the anthropologist, the social scientist, the student of social developments. But even the ordinary reader with little concern for any of these things is likely to be fascinated by the sheer horror of the subject and the realism of the accounts of the rite's practice."

THOMPSON, E: J:—Continued

+ N Y Times p12 S 9 '28 430w

"A very able and broad-minded study of a custom which it is singularly difficult for Western people to understand."

+ Spec 140:sup468 Mr 24 '28 600w

"Mr. Thompson's descriptions of actual suttees are written with tragic intensity and power."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p181 Mr 15 '28 850w

THOMPSON, EDWARD JOHN. These men, thy friends. 319p $2.50 Harcourt [7s 6d Knopf] 28-5638

The campaign in Mesopotamia in 1916 as seen and felt by a group of men who served in it. Their experiences, their comments, their criticisms, are put down in this story of the war written from a perspective of ten years.

Booklist 24:405 Jl '28

Reviewed by J: Farrar

Bookm 67:294 My '28 180w

Bookm 67:xxiii Ag '28 150w

"Mr. Thompson plucks his beauty and his philosophy from a maelstrom. He discovers whatever answer there is in the face of ever-present, inescapable putrefaction. His recognition of the magnificence of the human spirit came in a time when the patterns of life were smashed and in the grip of a whirlpool where they were hurled into violent new relations and only in motion was there a semblance of form, with a terrible beauty of its own." J: Farrar

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 Mr 25 '28 830w

Boston Transcript p5 Ap 21 '28 330w

"I wish that all admirals and generals could read this book—and weep! At least they will say it is honest and written by one having experience. How finely written, with what restraint and fervor, they may not know, but I, in my humble way, testify to it as the work of a Christian and a gentleman who is also an artist."

+ Ind 120:311 Mr 31 '28 320w

"Mr. Thompson, like Mr. Mottram and Mr. Montague, sees the War with a suggested personality. Making allowance for this, his narrative is an extremely honest and fine piece of work." Edwin Muir

+ Nation and Ath 42:87 O 15 '27 150w

Reviewed by T. S. Matthews

New Repub 55:206 Jl 11 '28 180w

"This is the kind of book that is too close to history to have a plot, too close to life to have a bias, and gives a restrained and accurate picture of the thoughts and feelings of ordinary men in very extraordinary positions; also, of the way an army will behave in a miserably unfriendly landscape as it slowly realises the quite phenomenal incompetence by which it is guided from above." Cyril Connolly

New Statesman 29:815 O 8 '27 560w

"Noble and living book." Rex Hunter

+ N Y Evening Post p13 Ap 21 '28 550w

"It is something new in war novels and something like the very best of all the fiction that has come out of the conflict. There is no glory here, only the trivia of war, accepted without anger and with patient philosophy." Raphael McCord

+ N Y World p11m Mr 25 '28 260w

"Another war-book, a good one. Vivid and arresting; Mr. Thompson draws character with sure, powerful strokes. But excellent as his work is, it is at times a little stodgy; the reader longs to have his interest solicited and cajoled, instead of treated with respectful indifference." L. P. Hartley

+ — Sat R 144:483 O 8 '27 80w

"The book is unequal. There is too much missionary conversation. The mood is often unfair, even petulant. In his satire the author sometimes uses a bludgeon when a prick would be sufficient. His historic vision, while finely effective sometimes, is incomplete. The people of his admiration are so given to discussion that they occasionally lose individuality and become points of view. But it is a record of brave and pitiful and agonizing experience, a worthy 'Anabasis' for this frieze of khaki figures, desperate, amazed, prevailing, where cruel Assyrian kings have passed with their captives." R. A. T

+ — Spec 139:579 O 8 '27 580w

Springf'd Republican p7f Je 3 '28 1150w

"There is so much art in the whole book that it is very difficult to say where Mr. Thompson's book is a novel as in some more psychological parts it undoubtedly is, and where it is not. It is a question of greater or lesser dependence upon life and actual facts, and it is impossible to draw any accurate or definitive lines between what is art and what is life. Nor indeed is it necessary to do so, for to take the book at what it is perhaps begging the question to call the lowest estimate, it is a travel book or history which is never dull and always seems revelatory. In fact, one may say, so convincingly veracious an historian does Mr. Thompson appear to be, that if this is not an important novel, or even a novel at all, it is at least an important book."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p906 D 1 '27 600w

Wis Lib Bul 24:192 Je '28

THOMPSON, EDWARD RAYMOND (E. T. RAYMOND, pseud.). Portraits of the new century (the first ten years). 369p $4 Doubleday, Doran [12s 6d Benn]

920 Great Britain—Biography 28-11230

Character sketches of the men who dominated the first ten years of the century in England. Politics is represented by such men as King Edward VII, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, George Wyndham, Lord Curzon and Lord Cromer; letters by Henry James, Kipling, Shaw, Wells, Bennett and Galsworthy; the army by Kitchener and Lord Roberts; the navy by Beresford and Fisher; business by Lord Leverhulme; the press by Lord Northcliffe, Pearson, Spender, Gardiner and Garvin.

"Speaking generally, E. T. Raymond is much better when he gets away from the politicians. He has excellent sketches of such widely different men as Kitchener and Arnold Bennett. I should not accept his personal judgments as a rule." S. K. Ratcliffe

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p11 Je 3 '28 380w

Boston Transcript p8 My 26 '28 330w

"The impression the volume gives is certainly rather of having been pieced together than conceived originally as one whole. Nevertheless the background itself emerges with no lack of clarity. Mr. Raymond writes very well indeed, and his portraits are in the main astonishingly acute and accurate."

+ — Nation and Ath 42:912 Mr 17 '28 600w

"In 'Portraits of the New Century' there is no effort to do more than present lightning sketches; but the work is skilfully constructed, phrases that linger falling from Mr. Thompson's pen with the boldness and seeming carelessness of the skilled practitioner." J. W. T. Mason

+ Sat R of Lit 4:927 Je 2 '28 800w

"Mr. Raymond is brilliant and disappointing by turns. Everything he writes about Fleet Street or the Law Courts is particularly polished. Every lawyer or journalist that he touches with his pointed pen comes to life instantly. . . A criticism that Mr. Raymond makes in regard to another writer is applicable to himself. He is very clever, but is he right? At times one doubts it." F. Y. B.

+ — Spec 140:326 Mr 3 '28 300w

"Mr. Raymond seeks to put us at our ease by exhibiting the great men of twenty years ago as very ordinary people with the ordinary weaknesses writ rather large. He says of Alfred Lyttleton that 'he hated to probe far into anything lest he should come upon the disagreeable.' He himself finds his disagreeables on the surface and is well content with them—so content, indeed, that in rendering all the warts he forgets to draw the portrait."

Times [London] Lit Sup p162 Mr 8 '28 670w

THOMPSON, JAMES WESTFALL. Economic and social history of the middle ages (300-1300). (Century hist. ser.) 900p il $5 Century

940.1 Middle ages—History. Europe—Economic conditions. Europe—Social conditions
28-13688

This comprehensive text is a history of the Middle Ages written from the point of view of economic and social interpretation. Consideration of medieval England is omitted except when and where England's relations touched the Continent. The book is well furnished with maps, and has bibliographies and an index.

"The treatment is thorough and scientific. The maps themselves are revelations, and it is significant how prominent a place trade routes have in them. Another marvel is how so much could be condensed into a single volume."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 21 '28 250w

"This is a serious and substantial book of nine hundred closely printed pages, full of information on many topics not often treated by writers in English, and stimulating in many of its suggestions and rapprochements. The author's reading is extraordinarily wide, both in the contemporary sources and in modern works, from which he quotes freely. Like all books of history which are more than mere narratives, this volume oscillates between the poles of broad generalization and a mass of concrete detail, and the danger is always present of running to either extreme. On the whole, however, the balance between the two elements is well held, especially in the descriptive chapters toward the close, and the volume will take a high place among university manuals." C: H. Haskins
+ Sat R of Lit 5:84 S 1 '28 450w

THOMPSON, JAMES WESTFALL. Feudal Germany. 710p $5 Univ. of Chicago press [25s Cambridge univ. press]

943.02 Germany—History—843-1273. Holy Roman empire—History—843-1273 28-9152

"The work is neither narrative nor systematic, but a connected series of studies of significant phases of German institutions between the ninth and twelfth centuries, such as the church, the economic basis of political and social life, the struggle between local rights and imperial centralization. A curious chapter deals with the sentiment of Europe toward the Germans in the Middle Ages."—Sat R of Lit

---

"The narrative is accompanied, page by page, with voluminous notes for which the author apologizes, but which add very greatly to the scholarly value of his book." E. E.
+ Am Hist R 34:104 O '28 900w

Reviewed by H. H. Maurer
+ Am J Soc 34:384 S '28 1000w

"The years of research that have gone into the making of this work have not dimmed its intensely human interest, nor detracted from the freshness or dramatic force of its material. It is an epic in which Professor Thompson the poetic dramatist frequently overshadows Professor Thompson the scholar."
+ Bookm 68:xx S '28 280w

"Though clearly intended for use as a textbook, this imposing study of a field much neglected by American medievalists has a value transcending the school. Particularly praiseworthy is Professor Thompson's clear explanation of the complicated and highly important series of wars from the ninth to the twelfth century which resulted in the recovery of three-fifths of modern Germany from the Slavs. One regrets that the author should have seen fit to devote so little of his conscientious scholarship to a clarification of the social and economic life of the medieval Germans."
+ — Nation 126:594 My 23 '28 90w

"Professor Thompson's component chapters are in many cases monographs complete in themselves, so that there is some inevitable overlapping. A little superabundance of material, however, in a work covering an almost untilled field of European history, can easily be forgiven. It must be added that the history is so profusely documented that the author half apologises for his notes and trusts they will not be mistaken for a parade of learning. The volume, moreover is finely printed, has several maps, some useful chronological tables, and an admirable index."
+ — New Statesman 31:366 Je 23 '28 810w

Reviewed by E. B. Barrett
N Y World p11m O 7 '28 650w
St Louis 26:195 Je '28
Sat R of Lit 4:869 My 12 '28 350w

THOMPSON, JOHN BAPTISTE DE MACKLOT (OZARK RIPLEY, pseud.). Modern bait and fly casting. 250p il $2 (8s 6d) Appleton

799.1 Fishing. Fly-casting 28-2387

Illustrated with pictures of reel, fly and rod, this little treatise on bait and fly casting is written informally, by one fisherman to another, and is based on the experience of expert anglers.

"Even were Mr. Ripley's name less well known than it is there could be no question in the mind of any reader that the author of 'Modern Bait ad Fly Casting' knows exactly what he is talking about and deals frankly and fairly with his subject." Fred Fletcher
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Ag 12 '28 350w

"This is a book which not only brings back memories; it kindles the determination to acquire new memories. And it tells how to make them pleasant ones." D. R.
+ Boston Transcript p4 Mr 3 '28 500w

"Mr. Ripley has had much experience in fishing in various parts of the United States and Canada, especially in the good angling regions in the vicinity of the Great Lakes, and his habit of keen observation and of thinking about what he has observed has enabled him to accumulate a large fund of practical wisdom upon which he has drawn for the material of this volume."
+ N Y Times p24 F 19 '28 200w

"It is a worthy volume, deserving of a place on the library shelves of those fortunate folk to whom trout, bass, and pike mean something more than a rather uninteresting morsel which precedes the fowl." Sterling Patterson
+ Outlook 148:196 F 1 '28 380w

"Mr. Ripley discusses bait casting fully and from ample experience as a means of catching fish—chiefly the small-mouthed bass and trout, but also pickerel and muscallonge, and a few other species. His style is clear and direct."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p175 Mr 8 '28 280w

THOMPSON, JOHN GIFFIN. Urbanization; its effects on government and society. 683p $6 Dutton

352 City and town life. Democracy. United States—Politics and government. Social conditions 27-23838

The book discusses the consequences of the worldwide cityward trend, with the attendant depopulation of the rural areas. These consequences are considered mainly from the political point of view—the effect on democracy, on political forms and activities, the efficiency of government, preparedness for war, etc.

THOMPSON, J: G.—Continued

"Students of municipal government will find a great deal of helpful illustrative material in John Griffin Thompson's volume. There is an extraordinarily complete index."

\+ Am Pol Sci R 22:226 F '28 110w

"The documentation, which is carefully arranged at the end of each chapter, reveals a remarkable amount of careful study, much of which is in publications not inaccessible, but not too well known. It is pertinent at this point also to mention the excellence of the index. At times the text appears to take on a bit of the elusive, as it were, a shortcoming due no doubt to the inability of treating such subject-matter in scientific form. But minor defects here and there are compensated for by the total contribution made by the author in pioneering in this field. He supports with distinct ability his thesis in behalf of urbanization." A. S. R.

\+ — Boston Transcript p4 Ja 25 '28 350w

J Religion 8:336 Ap '28 20w

"The chief value of 'Urbanization' lies not so much in the preciseness of its conclusions as in the encyclopedic variety of its materials. The author has collected well-nigh all the important sources for an examination of the questions in which he is interested; his footnotes comprise an adequate reading list for courses in municipal government, political history and theory, and economic evolution. The very scope of the book precludes very much specialization, but some pertinent material is to be found on practically any detailed question affecting the quality and color of the city." P. B.

\+ Springf'd Republican p7f Je 3 '28 820w

World Tomorrow 11:135 Mr '28 150w

THOMPSON, SYLVIA (MRS THEODORE DUNHAM LULING). Battle of the horizons. 322p $2.50 Little [7s 6d Heinemann]

28-14825

The "battle of the horizons" is the conflict of temperament and ideals that is fought out between a rich and romantic American girl and the English family into which she marries. Understanding comes after a comparatively brief but stormy period of adjustment.

Booklist 25:31 O '28

Reviewed by Garreta Busey

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Jl 1 '28 1100w

"Not only is the admirable literary style of the earlier novel preserved, but it is more evenly sustained. The story itself [is] more convincing, more appealing." Frances Bartlett

\+ Boston Transcript p3 Je 16 '28 1450w

"If you read 'The Hounds of Spring' you will notice that now its young author has enlarged her scene and chosen a subject of wider appeal—the marriage of a rich American girl to an Englishman of moderate means. The same sturdy qualities of excellent novel writing remain: keen observation—at last an American heroine who rings true!—and an ability to imply the symbolical in painting the concrete."

\+ Ind 121:69 Jl 21 '28 180w

"Rather mediocre, rather likable and well-intentioned variation on the old theme of the American venturing to amalgamate his crudities with European subtleties." A. B. Parsons

— + Nation 127:160 Ag 15 '28 200w

"The early scenes are competently done, with the cleverly contrasted young people of the family group. Miss Thompson succeeds in presenting the vague and pretentious notions of her American girl, and her attempts at 'uplift,' although her talk has little of the vocabulary and none of the cadence which she would have brought from Washington." G. W. K.

\+ — New Statesman 31:195 My 19 '28 240w

N Y Evening Post p8m D 1 '28 100w

"The merit of 'The Battle of the Horizons' is to be found in its appeal as a popular story. It has the cinematographic quality of speed. It contains a plausible, if superficial, picture of conditions in post-war England, with the members of the Graham family serving as mouthpieces for conflicting elements."

N Y Times p11 Je 17 '28 850w

"A charmingly written story, peopled with a number of interesting characters."

\+ N Y World p7m Jl 15 '28 230w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:432 O '28

" 'The Battle of the Horizons' is not a success. In trying to present the difference between the American and the English point of view Miss Thompson has bitten off a bigger bit than she can chew. In detail she is often correct; she has a good ear for dialogue and her Americanisms are well observed and accurate. But the picture as a whole never comes together." L. P. Hartley

— + Sat R 145:812 Je 23 '28 110w

"Like 'The Little French Girl,' though less completely and less successfully it juxtaposes two civilizations and attempts to see each through the eyes of exponents of the other. Miss Thompson manages her dialogues exceptionally well: the clever people speak cleverly, the superficial ones are adroitly made to give themselves away. Here then is a discerning, entertaining story with many a neatly observed detail that stamps the author's approach as thoughtful, her talent as authentic." Grace Frank

\+ — Sat R of Lit 4:1018 Jl 7 '28 800w

"Miss Thompson's people are all very likeable, though lacking in vision: their weakness is that they lose colour [towards the end]. . . This is an ingenuous, well-to-do novel, frequently blurred by carelessness of style, with just enough social sentiment to convey the dim generosity of youth."

\+ — Spec 140:691 My 5 '28 250w

"Sylvia Thompson is a good story-teller, and to one who wishes a fast moving tale this one may be recommended. Here are met many interesting people—so interesting, in fact, that any one of them would make the foundation for a novel of the introspective type. Yet the work misses being good literature. . . It does not approach the standard set by 'The Hounds of Spring.' "

\+ — Springf'd Republican p7f Jl 15 '28 400w

"Miss Sylvia Thompson gives a feeling of security in the first pages of The Battle of the Horizons that rouses high expectations. . . It is with keen reluctance after so much enjoyment—enjoyment that touches the emotions—that we own disappointment [toward the end]. It is as though some hidden conduit of sentiment burst suddenly and swamped the author's fine critical point."

\+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p354 My 10 '28 480w

Wis Lib Bul 24:224 Jl '28

THOMSON, CHARLES GOFF. Time is a gentleman. 285p $2 Macmillan

28-24475

In his attempt to restore a sugar plantation in the Philippines which has been abandoned since his father's mysterious death out there, Mackenzie Duell has Sotto for enemy and Lundu for friend. The former is a villainous half-breed, the latter a huge, simple-minded Malay. The house boy and cook are also trustworthy friends and the worst that Sotto can do is check-mated by them. Furthermore, even in the matter of Feliza Mulvane, time is a gentleman and heals all wounds.

"Characters are given verity principally by long, platitudinous speeches. Flights into the exotic fall with Icarian wings. Native dialects slip into patterns strangely like those of Milt Gross. Yet the book's naivete is refreshing."

— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p27 N 11 '28 80w

"There is romance woven surely through every chapter of the story, but the finest romance of all is to be found in the relationship between Tai Fu, the Chinese, and the Duell family. This alone would win a host of friends for the story."

+ Boston Transcript p3 N 17 '28 200w

THOMSON, GEORGE MALCOLM. Caledonia; or, The future of the Scots. (To-day and to-morrow ser.) 95p $1 Dutton [2s 6d K. Paul]

914.1 Scotland [28-10895]

An exceedingly pessimistic view of Scotland, present and future, in which the author finds that "Scotland is sinking slowly in an economic and racial quagmire, sinking steadily, in ignorance—and with the motion of one climbing up to a peak. She is an annex, half-industrial, half-sporting, of English civilization and to-morrow she will be a proletarian state, brainless, blind, resentful, and submerged, populated by a nation of machine-minders doing the bidding of foreign capitalists."

Booklist 25:23 O '28

"The author's points are well made and amply verified."

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 26 '28 220w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson

N Y Times p6 My 20 '28 930w

"As a piece of incisive writing and powerful, though restrained, invective, Caledonia is specially notable."

+ Spec 139:sup847 N 12 '27 200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p823 N 10 '27 250w

THORNDIKE, ARTHUR RUSSELL. The slype. [2] 330p $2 Dial press [7s 6d R. Holden]

28-26856

The cathedral of Dullchester was the scene of great excitement. The minor canons were disappearing, one by one, and no word came back to their wondering families. It might have been a trick of the dean's; he had a prodigious sense of humor. But the dean disappeared too, and the cathedral's most ardent worshipper, Miss Tackle, and the dean's herd of prize pigs, and even a mechanical toy. Grisly shrieks began to come from the slype, and—then the lost all came back except one pig! Great was the story thereof.

Booklist 25:125 D '28

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 O 7 '28 90w

"The story is an unusually long one and it proceeds at a leisurely pace, but there is no cause for complaint in that. No one will care to hurry when he can spend his time in the company of such delightful people as the Dean, the Paper Wizard and Joyce's Boy, to mention only a few of those who make 'The Slype' a book to be read and put by for future rereading."

+ N Y Times p26 O 7 '28 230w

"An exciting story told in a pleasant narrative style with considerable skill, and a whole portfolio of Dickensian characters, drawn against a rich background make The Slype an almost perfect piece of light fiction."

+ Outlook 150:1290 D 5 '28 110w

"The story progresses slowly, though always amusingly, with a full savoring of its unique characters. The book is chiefly recommended to those unfortunates who have to read themselves to sleep nightly, for it is thoroughly interesting without being thrilling."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 2 '28 130w

THORNDIKE, EDWARD LEE, and others. Adult learning. (Studies in adult educ.) 335p il $2.25 (10s) Macmillan

136.5 Education of adults. Ability, Influence of age on. Psychology, Physiological

28-15147

The authors have collected and arranged a large amount of data on the relation between age and the ability to learn. Most of the tests were conducted with adults. It is expected that the information obtained should be useful to all those interested in adult education in its various forms.

"On the whole we feel with J. B. S. Haldane that this sort of 'psychology' is fairly poor physiology."

— Bookm 68:xxii S '28 80w

"This investigation has been in an almost unexplored field. . . Here is abundant material for developing both a technique and a theory of 'adult learning.'" J. E. Kirkpatrick

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p9 S 2 '28 750w

J Home Econ 20:827 N '28 60w

"The facts brought out in this book concerning changes in the ability to learn from about the age of fifteen to the age of forty-five, and especially from age twenty-five to age forty-five, will come as entirely new evidence to most readers. The conclusion of these investigators is that adult ability approaches more nearly to that of the late teens than has generally been supposed."

R of Rs 78:adv23 Ag '28 120w

THORNTON-COOK, ELSIE. Their majesties of Scotland. 450p il $6 Dutton [21s Murray]

923.1 Scotland—Kings and rulers. Scotland—Queens 28-27794

History of the kings of Scotland and their queens from Macbeth in the 11th century to Henry "IX" in 1807. The book contains a genealogical table, bibliography and index.

Boston Transcript p3 Ag 25 '28 400w

"The portrait reproductions which accompany this volume are delightful, as is the text itself to those readers whose knowledge of Scottish history is in its infancy. With the later sovereigns Mrs. Cook allows her readers' interest to flag."

+ — New Statesman 31:336 Je 16 '28 180w

N Y Evening Post p5 Ag 11 '28 90w

"The romances of history are the most thrilling of all stories, and among all histories none is more romantic than that of Scotland. This story of 'Their Majesties of Scotland' is well told, though it contains some probably typographical blunders." L. M. Field

+ N Y Times p9 Ag 19 '28 1500w

"It makes interesting reading and affords a good summary of the subject, particularly valuable as histories of Scotland, such as those by Lang or Burton, are in many volumes."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:195 O 6 '28 300w

"Delightful book of popular history, full as it is—one might almost say, made up as it is—of quotations from contemporary sources."

+ Spec 140:882 Je 9 '28 330w

"This book is hardly important, for it is simply narrative and its rambling style is an indication of the author's handling of her material. Its value is that the facts are presented readably and truthfully, and not sentimentalized."

Springf'd Republican p10 Ag 29 '28 350w

"Though the author has an uncritical eye for authenticity, she has contrived to pick up a good deal of picturesque detail, including some lively touches about queens and princesses who were living women in their stormy day and now are names in a genealogy. But if Mrs. Cook's psychology may be inaccurate in individual cases and is profound in none, she has at least the notion that history was made by human beings, so that for all her inveterate 'favour and prettiness' she is probably at least no more inaccurate than those solemn academics to whom it is purely an affair of movements."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p361 My 10 '28 400w

THORP, WILLARD LONG. Economic institutions. (World today bookshelf) 306p $1.50 (6s 6d); pa 80c Macmillan

330.973 United States—Economic conditions 28-6423

The author, who is professor of economics in Amherst college, describes the present economic system of the United States examining its four fundamental institutions: machine technique; the price system; private property; business enterprise.

Reviewed by J: Ise
Am Econ R 18:502 S '28 80w

Booklist 24:348 Je '28

"An excellent primer of economics. His little book contains a large body of well-chosen facts, combined with a judicious mixture of accepted theory stated in non-technical fashion."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 S 23 '28 150w

"The lucidity of definition, the unprejudiced outlook of the author, his clear and concise treatment of moot questions, make the book a marked one in its field." R. R.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 13 '28 550w

"In a simple style the author succeeds admirably in making visible the structure of modern life at its economic base. The treatise as a whole comprises for all its simplicity and unpretentiousness a singularly clear and vivid presentation of the important data that make up many much larger volumes on economics." T. V. S.

+ Int J Ethics 38:494 Jl '28 150w

"His brief summaries of the criticisms of our present economic order and the proposals for its reform are uniformly candid and fair. He does not, in the brief space of this book, attempt to 'solve' all our present difficulties, but he raises the more important problems for further study."

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 9 '28 170w

Times [London] Lit Sup p594 Ag 16 '28 60w

Wis Lib Bul 24:158 My '28

THOULESS, ROBERT HENRY. Control of the mind; a handbook of applied psychology for the ordinary man. 211p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [5s Hodder & S.]

150 Psychology, Applied [28-16939]

A popular handbook of mental exercise which explains how to apply the principles of psychology to the control of habits and emotions, the practise of the memory and concentration and the destruction of the inferiority complex.

Boston Transcript p2 Je 9 '28 200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p939 D 8 '27 110w

"The book may be recommended as of real value, both as a practical help and theoretically as an introduction to some very important parts of psychology. Its lucidity and sanity make it of special use for those who know little of the subject; but those also who have studied psychology more deeply will find it a very valuable synthesis of a confusing subject, and one marked not by extravagant theories but by sound common sense."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p588 Ag 16 '28 1300w

THURSTON, ERNEST TEMPLE. Jane Carroll. 346p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Putnam] 28-9465

An English society woman finds her first real interest in life when an Irish patriot comes to London seeking support for the Irish cause. Recognizing that love for this man is her mainspring, Jane Carroll throws herself wholeheartedly into his plans. Her husband, understanding much, accompanies her to Ireland. In a bleak spot on the coast where the spirit of rebellion runs high, the story reaches its dramatic climax.

"Incontestably this story is not a great one, but it has elements of greatness in it. It has hints of perfection without the magnitude to bring perfection into being."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 Jl 8 '28 520w

Boston Transcript p2 My 2 '28 400w

Reviewed by Robert Hyde
N Y Evening Post p13 Mr 17 '28 250w

"The working out of the tale is satisfactory enough except for the part Jane Carroll plays in it. The great fate that the author has prepared us for runs a bit thin in the realization. Mr. Thurston is quite capable of providing a few more thrills at the finish and we wish he had. He has a good narrative sense. The suspense begins on the second page, and the plot marches steadily onward. The book is well written except for a certain tendency to lushness. A little judicious pruning, or better, more restraint would improve matters considerably."

+ — N Y Times p22 Mr 18 '28 520w

" 'Jane Carroll' has, in a rather paradoxical juxtaposition, both solidity and suspense. From the very beginning the reader senses the inevitable tragedy and yet is led from chapter to chapter in alert interest. The novel has texture and depth; the beauty of Jane Carroll and the spirit of John Madden transcend the telling of their story and invest the book with some of that radiance that is granted only to love, star-crossed."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:73 Ag 25 '28 250w

"Mr. Thurston has never written a more romantic and readable story."

+ Spec 139:618 O 15 '27 100w

"In a book that gives the sentimental and the pseudo-romantic great opportunities Mr. Thurston has treated the relationship between Jane and John Medden in so sincere and delicate a way that the few incidents which might, in another setting, have appeared false, fall naturally into proper perspective. 'Jane Carroll' must have been an extremely difficult novel to write, but Mr. Thurston has overcome the difficulties triumphantly."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p688 O 6 '27 480w

THWING, CHARLES FRANKLIN. The American and the German university; one hundred years of history. 238p $2.25 (10s) Macmillan

378.43 Colleges and universities—Germany. Colleges and universities—United States. Germans in the United States 28-6944

Dr Thwing's purpose is to study the influence of the German university on the American in the three ways in which it has most made itself felt: the matriculation of American students in German universities; the presence of German teachers in American universities; the influence of German university methods on teaching and methods in American universities.

Am J Soc 34:570 N '28 100w

Booklist 24:386 Jl '28

Cleveland Open Shelf p72 Je '28

"Academically competent as a survey, though somewhat colourless in its conclusions. The author's study lacks the clarity of conviction; it is almost too reticent to be important."

— + Dial 85:177 Ag '28 100w

J Home Econ 20:446 Je '28 70w

N Y Times p24 Mr 18 '28 380w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:560 N '28

St Louis 26:313 O '28

Springf'd Republican p10 Je 8 '28 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p553 Jl 26 '28 350w

THYNNE, MOLLY. Draycott murder mystery (Eng title The red dwarf). 305p $2 Stokes [7s 6d Nelson]

28-7869

John Leslie enters the sitting room of his farm house and finds there the body of a beautiful unknown woman. As he cannot furnish a complete alibi he is arrested, tried for the murder and convicted. But the girl to whom he is engaged will not abide by this and with the help of some of her influential friends succeeds in freeing him.

"In this opus you encounter little or none of the bathetic agonies of the ordinary thriller, and at the same time get a lively and romantic tale, including love." Will Cuppy

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Ap 8 '28 100w

Cleveland Open Shelf p124 N '28

"There is an amateur detective in this story who from time to time comes upon important information which the author sees fit to withhold from the reader, much to the latter's annoyance. One can not help feeling that with this information the mystery would be a mystery no longer. It seems a rather cheap way of keeping up the suspense until all is revealed in the concluding chapters."

— N Y Times p13 Ap 15 '28 180w

"Miss Thynne sustains the interest to the end."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p361 My 10 '28 110w

Wis Lib Bul 24:163 My '28

TICKNOR, CAROLINE. May Alcott; a memoir. 315p il $3 Little

B or 92 Alcott, May (Mrs Ernest Nieriker)

28-6016

May Alcott, the youngest daughter of Bronson Alcott, who appeared as Amy in "Little women," was an artist of some note. Her pictures were hung in two of the Paris Salons, and her copies of Turner's masterpieces were given to students to study in the South Kensington museum. From her journals and letters and those of her family, the author has retold the story of her life.

Booklist 24:320 My '28

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p6 Ap 29 '28 880w

Cleveland Open Shelf p88 Jl '28

Reviewed by D. B. Woolsey

New Repub 54:253 Ap 11 '28 320w

"A clear and vivid portrayal of a charming, vital personality." F. F. Kelly

+ N Y Times p38 Mr 18 '28 180w

Reviewed by Ruth Suckow

N Y World p10m Ap 1 '28 550w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:344 Je '28

St Louis 26:194 Je '28

"One finishes Miss Ticknor's book with the feeling that she has made a solid contribution to our conception of one of our few really important American families; important because they expressed the best of the early American type. For you can't barge about for several years among the letters and diaries of the New Englanders of the two generations represented by the Alcotts without realizing that they do portray the type of thought and endeavor that gave us whatever intellectual or spiritual distinction we had or have among nations." H. W. Morrow

+ Sat R of Lit 4:907 My 26 '28 1200w

"With grace and the vividness of an artist hand Caroline Ticknor has told the story. The reader feels a subtle sympathy between the author and the theme, that, to some, is the crowning grace of biography. Miss Ticknor's intuitive understanding of the personality she portrays is always in evidence." Lilian Whiting

+ Springf'd Republican p7f Jl 15 '28 1800w

Wis Lib Bul 24:126 Ap '28

TIETJENS, EUNICE STRONG (HAMMOND) (MRS CLOYD HEAD). Boy of the desert. 182p il $2.50 Coward-McCann

28-25352

The boy of the desert is a six year old Arab boy named Abdul Aziz. Abdul lived in a village on the shore of the Mediterranean. The book tells of his life in the village, and of a wonderful journey to the desert with his mother who was a Bedouin. Line drawings by Will Hollingsworth illustrate Abdul's adventures.

Reviewed by C. L. Skinner

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 O 14 '28 380w

" 'Boy of the Desert' is a delightful story, and a highly entertaining one, the more so because it gives an accurate, interesting and sympathetic picture of the way in which an Arab lives and thinks."

+ Boston Transcript p2 D 8 '28 250w

"Miss Teitjens' story of an Arab boy has the grace of style and the merit of freshness, and though compounded of simple incidents and charged with matter of an informative nature manages to be consistently interesting and never aggressively didactic." Amy Loveman

+ Sat R of Lit 5:350 N 10 '28 150w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 16 '28 100w

TIGHE, MRS MARY (BLACHFORD). Keats and Mary Tighe; ed. by Earle Vonard Weller. ltd ed 333p $3.50 Century [16s Milford]

821 Keats, John 28-16643

A once fashionable book of poems entitled "Psyche," by an Irish poetess, Mrs Mary Tighe, during its short-lived vogue attracted the youthful fancy of John Keats and had some influence on his first poetic composition. Mr Weller has made a minute and painstaking examination of Mrs Tighe's poetry to establish the nature and extent of her influence on Keats. Her "Psyche," in the 1811 edition is reprinted, with parallel passages from the works of Keats.

Boston Transcript p4 S 22 '28 320w

"Though we may consider that Mr. Weller exaggerates the influence of Mrs. Tighe's poetry on Keats—as is natural enough in any enthusiast with a pet thesis to uphold—and that the time expended on tabulating the often far-fetched 'parallel passages' is mostly love's labor lost, yet in reviving the memory of Mary Tighe and reprinting her once fashionable 'Psyche' he has done a very interesting thing, for which he deserves our thanks." R: Le Gallienne

+ N Y Times p2 S 9 '28 1750w

"There is material in Mr. Weller's book for a most interesting essay. It affords no excuse for a book. . . For Mr. Weller's handful of positive discoveries we are grateful. Mrs. Tighe, undoubtedly, had some influence on Keats's writing; but the influence was insignificant when compared to the influence of Spenser himself. Mrs. Tighe deliberately imitated Spenser; so did Keats for a little while. Much of the verbal material which Mr. Weller thinks Keats owed to Mrs. Tighe they simply both owed to Spenser."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p615 Ag 30 '28 1700w

TILDEN, FREEMAN. Spanish prisoner. 287p $2 Doubleday, Doran

28-11057

"In this novel Mr. Tilden tells of the Spanish adventures of a Californian realtor and his family; there is excitement as ruffians grow bold, Spanish young men amorous, and Latin temperaments unpredictable. Through it all, Mr. Tilden passes shrewd comment upon the American ways of thinking and feeling. His realtor is not unworthy to stand beside George F. Babbitt."—Sat R of Lit

"A mildly amusing story. . . The reader of this book will learn little about international

TILDEN, FREEMAN—Continued
thievery, or about life in Spain, but he will have an agreeable hour's reading."
— + N Y Times p13 Jl 1 '28 430w

"This novel should be gratefully received, for today light fiction does not flourish. Mr. Tilden is urbane, inventive, and intelligent; he gives us delightful dialogue, and his style is always gracious."
+ Sat R of Lit 5:110 S 8 '28 160w

TILLYARD, AELFRIDA CATHERINE WETENHALL. Spiritual exercises and their results; an essay in psychology and comparative religion. 216p $2.25 Macmillan [7s 6d S.P.C.K.]

248 Spiritual life. Mysticism 28-12840

"In this book, students of mysticism and religion are informed of the practical methods employed by present-day Hindus, Buddhists, Mohammedans, and Christians in training their souls for communion with ultimate reality. The elements of spiritual exercise (the adopting of a definite posture, the regulation of the breath, the banishing of intruding thoughts, concentration, and the repeating of sacred sentences) are fully explained and evaluated. The religious and ethical prerequisites of true mysticism are emphasized; and the difference between the ordinary hypnotic state and the hypnotic consciousness, produced by spiritual practices, are clearly brought out."—Int J Ethics

---

"The book is a supplement to the works of Von Hügel, Inge, and Underhill on mystical religion, without being in any degree comparable to them in ability. From the sociological point of view its value is very much lessened by the fact that the only spiritual exercises considered are those practiced by religious individuals in isolation." L. P. Edwards
— + Am J Soc 34:404 S '28 280w

Reviewed by D. L. Evans
Int J Ethics 38:486 Jl '28 330w

"Her method is more descriptive than psychological or analytical, but the book is a very good account of how the mystics are trained and what results follow."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p295 Ap 19 '28 140w

TILNEY, FREDERICK. Brain from ape to man; a contribution to the study of evolution and development of the human brain; with chapters on the reconstruction of the gray matter in the primate brain stem, by Henry Alsop Riley; foreword by Henry Fairfield Osborn. 2v 1,120p il $25 Hoeber [5£ 5s H. K. Lewis]

591.48 Brain. Evolution. Apes. Man—Origin 28-14363

"The major purpose of the book is to study the processes by which the brain came into existence, and to estimate or suggest the way in which it has progressively adapted itself so as to distribute its predominant powers effectively and conservatively. It assembles and discusses the evidence of evolution contained in the brain of the primates: the brain from ape to man: brain evolution from mammals to man and the brain from fish to man. Readers who wish not to be bewildered by scientific minutiae and technical details will find in the summaries of the various sections sufficient statement of fact and interpretation bearing upon the correlative evolution of structures in the brain stem and the behavior development of animals to instruct them in thought and orient them in fancy."—N Y Times

---

"While there are probably not a dozen living men competent to judge these volumes in the sense that they would be able to check by their own experience the anatomical details presented, it would be unfair to say that the work is designed only for special students. Simply to turn the pages, look at the illustrations and read the chapter headings is as fascinating an experience as the general reader could desire." Logan Clendening
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 O 28 '28 1100w

Boston Transcript p3 Jl 28 '28 930w

"Dr. Tilney's two heavy volumes contain a curious mixture of generalities about habits and probable ancestry of lemurs, monkeys, apes and men, apparently intended for general readers, and long technical neurological descriptions which can be read only by experts. In fact, the book is rather hard reading on both sides. The neurologist finds it unsatisfactory for lack of sufficient precision in description, and the more popular passages are marred by a fondness for highbrow technical words when the meaning could be better expressed in very simple language." C. J. Herrick

New Repub 56:130 S 19 '28 980w

"Dr. Frederick Tilney, practicing physician and Professor of Neurology in Columbia University, has made a contribution to anthropology which entitles him to be ranked as one of the outstanding men of science of his generation. 'The Brain From Ape to Man' testifies his industry, intelligence, insight and inspiration." Joseph Collins
+ N Y Times p11 Je 10 '28 1600w

"The style is direct, lucid, earnest; the illustrations are abundant and in the main excellent, and there are many question- and thought-provoking statements, suggestions, surmises. What, in these two large volumes, the general reader needs, can appreciate, and forthwith use in his business of living, might readily be put into one small volume. Pity it will be if it is not done." R. M. Yerkes
+ Sat R of Lit 5:210 O 13 '28 1150w

TINKER, EDWARD LAROCQUE. Toucoutou. 312p $2.50 Dodd

28-11172

A story of race prejudice in New Orleans in the 1850's. Toucoutou is brought up as a white child by black Claircine. She marries a young patrician, and learns later that Claircine is really her mother. The humiliation of the young couple is intensified by the cruel treatment of their former friends. Unable to endure it longer they flee from New Orleans.

"Mr. Tinker gets his effects simply; the story is unusually easy to read and it brings vividly to life a period in fascinating history of New Orleans that now seems as remote as ancient Chaldea, in view of the existing skyscraper-esque phase of that ancient city's culture. The book is handsomely made after designs by the author, and contains an interesting forenote on the word Creole and a good, brief glossary of creole words and phrases." Herschel Brickell
+ Bookm 67:462 Je '28 200w

"In episodes Mr. Tinker has amassed a vast amount of picturesque detail—so vast, in fact, that it often gets in the way of his story. If it were a shade less picturesque or a shade less dramatic, his book would be quite hopeless. There is an air of artificiality about the whole, as if Mr. Tinker had determined to cram in all of his carefully collected data, whether his plot and characters could assimilate them or not. His characters, as a result, are heavy and wooden and rarely articulate. Toucoutou herself is as stilted and affected as she is meant to be vivid and exotic; even her tantrums and wild flashes of temper seem academic." Sara Haardt
— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Ap 29 '28 1050w

"Beautifully, humorously, starkly and pathetically he depicts life in exotic New Orleans. He makes Toucoutou a vivid and appealing character."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 11 '28 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p91 Jl '28

" 'Toucoutou' is remarkably successful in the re-creation of a unique atmosphere, which was not in the least like anything else in the United States, or in the world, for that matter, and it is as if one were admitted into the innermost lives of a strange people as the book is read." Herschel Brickell

+ N Y Evening Post p12 Ap 21 '28 720w

"For all the shortcomings one may discover in Mr. Tinker's story, 'Toucoutou' succeeds in some measure simply because there was no great Louisianian novelist of 1850 to leave a monument to his era. . . The most fascinating portions of the book are the externals, such as the lengthy description of the havoc wrought by yellow fever, the tale of the negro uprising in Santo Domingo and the bits about the old French Market. They make one long for a history of New Orleans, written by Mr. Tinker with as much of the con amore spirit as he has evidently brought to the confection of 'Toucoutou.' "

+ — N Y Times p9 My 6 '28 500w

"There is a side of Louisiana life revealed here that has hitherto been largely neglected and Mr. Tinker has built up his backgrounds and created his atmosphere so skilfully that a remarkable illusion of first-hand contact with the people and the places in the story is established."

+ No Am 225:adv Ap '28 130w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:432 O '28

"Its backgrounds are admirably built up, carefully detailed and convincing; they have a Belascoesque solidity and realism so solid and real as to throw into relief the faulty character drawing, which is the principal defect in what is in the face of its faults often a highly interesting book."

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:953 Je 9 '28 330w

TIS, pseud. See Furst, H. E. A:

TODD, ARTHUR JAMES. Three wise men of the East, and other lectures. 240p $2.50 Univ. of Minn.

915 East (Far East)—Industries. Education —East (Far East) 28-1269

"While in India, Professor Todd interviewed three distinguished men, Mahatma Gandhi, Rabindranath Tagore, and Sir Jagadis Chunder Bose, the scientist. He gives his impressions of the three men and states his estimate of their worth. The other lectures in the book deal with The impact of industry on the Orient, and Educational ferment in the East. The author is Professor of Sociology in Northwestern university."—Wis Lib Bul

---

"While Professor Todd states that his essays make no pretension to being anything more than opinion, a careful reader will discover in them a mine of information which is accurate and frequently statistical. The reviewer disagrees with him only at one point; when he says that in China there is no common language except English. Mandarin is fast becoming a national spoken language. No one needs to be reminded that China, unlike India, has a written language which is understood by all who can read." C. C. Wu

+ — Am J Soc 33:840 Mr '28 320w

Am Pol Sci R 22:501 My '28 60w

Booklist 24:349 Je '28

Reviewed by Lyman Bryson

Bookm 67:311 My '28 170w

"It would be easy to point out a number of slips in this book, as the seeming representation of Pali as a living speech, the use of the term 'Hindu' for 'Indian,' the misspelling of proper names, and perhaps more important errors, but scarcely worth while. Mr. Todd went to the Orient to observe, study and learn, and unlike many visitors who want to write about the other side of the world, seems to have drawn his conclusions during and after his visit, not before. His observations on social conditions, although by the nature of things not exhaustive, are objective, sober, reasoned, modestly related and worthy of our reflection."

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 Mr 4 '28 330w

Wis Lib Bul 24:89 Mr '28

TOMLINSON, EVERETT TITSWORTH. Three boys in Alaska. 224p $1.75 (5s) Appleton

28-9737

The real adventures of three boys during a summer spent in Alaska are the basis of this story. The three are chums, freshmen in college. One of them, an Eskimo, invites the other two to go home with him for the holidays. Their experiences in a new and fascinating environment make good reading for older boys. A map of the scene of their adventures forms the end papers of the book.

"The three boys get mixed up in a bit of a mystery which provides excitement and uncertainty and they do and see a great many things that keep them and will keep the book's readers deeply interested from beginning to end."

+ N Y Times p12 Je 24 '28 140w

Times [London] Lit Sup p413 My 31 '28 70w

TOOKER, HELEN V. The 5:35. 332p $2 Doubleday, Doran

28-7947

The story of a suburban family in which the daughter's romance is obscured by a temporary attraction for the wrong man, and then by her mother's determined opposition to the right one. Seeing the harm her proprietary attitude has done in the son's case, the mother changes her course in time to save the daughter's happiness.

"The style of the book is frequently homely and colloquial, but it has a flair for humor and a deftness of character handling sufficient for its purpose."

+ Bookm 67:xxxv My '28 90w

Boston Transcript p3 Ap 25 '28 1280w

"Miss Tooker has written a conscientious study of the kind of family tyranny that is disguised as affection and duty. In Mrs. Fleming she has personified the maternal impulse to order the lives of children 'for their own good.' This character is so clearly delineated that one suspects the existence of an unconscious sitter for the portrait. Neil, the motivating force in the story, is engagingly alive. The author's style is fluent and unforced, and she has an ear for the ring of genuine conversation." R. C B. Brown

+ N Y Evening Post p11 F 18 '28 320w

"If the author had a more compact style and could rise above the sloppy environment of her character she would write a better book."

N Y Times p9 F 12 '28 550w

Springf'd Republican p7f Ap 15 '28 160w

TOP drawer; random recollections, by one who was born in it. 250p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Cassell]

28-3172

Professing to abhor scandal, yet dealing it out with sly relish, this author, who admits he is an aristocrat, imparts to his so called recollections of English high life something of the flavor of Magdalen King-Hall's "I think I remember."

"This pleasant bit of mockery of the human race is put out as being the product of a blue-blooded gentleman from England, so it may be sheer perversity which makes us suspect the sex, definitely doubt the nationality and dare swear the blood in question is no bluer than a satirist's ought to be. And everybody knows a satirist requires a dash of cayenne pepper in his blood. At any rate 'The Top Drawer' is engag-

TOP DRAWER—Continued
ing foolery and presents us with the portrait of almost all the climbers except ourselves." Lorine Pruette

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 F 19 '28 800w

"Seriously, the book is amusing, and amusingly the pretended autobiographer is serious, so that all in all it is a more than usually clever social satire, throughout. It amounts to a series of ingenuously sophisticated tales calculated to divert the bedtime hour of whomsoever you will." S. V. V. W.

+ Boston Transcript p4 F 4 '28 600w

"From its pages there emerges a portrait of a perfect bounder, cad and uncomprehending nincompoop, the picture of a hypocrite par excellence. The author, whether he was born in the top drawer or not, knows his ground too well; he has created a vain, shallow and silly aristocrat, and the book sounds vain, shallow and silly."

— N Y Times p13 Ja 15 '28 450w

"Rather an amusing satire—though a little of it will go a long way."

Times [London] Lit Sup p718 O 13 '27 150w

TORREY, CHARLES CUTLER. Second Isaiah; [2] a new interpretation. 477p $5 Scribner

224.1 Bible. Old Testament. Isaiah 28-19672

"The author finds Isaiah, chapter 34, 35, 40-66, to have been, not a product of the Hebrews' experience in the exilic period, but the work of a religious idealist in Palestine about the year 400 B.C. References to Cyrus and the return from Babylonia, now seen in this part of Isaiah by most critical scholars, are regarded as later interpolations which have resulted in failure heretofore to understand the true character and religious significance of this ancient prophet who is primarily an exponent of a timeless spiritual religion for all mankind rather than a political deliverance for Israel."—J Religion

"His translation into metrical form, his introduction and his exegetical and critical notes show scholarship of the highest order. His literary treatment of the book and its author are sympathetic and appreciative of the genius and vision of the prophet." T. C. R.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 2 '28 580w

J Religion 8:496 Jl '28 110w

St Louis 26:346 N '28

"The book is everywhere marked by wide and accurate learning, literary discernment, historical imagination. No worthier contribution to Old Testament study has been made in recent years." E. F. Scott

+ Yale R n s 18:399 winter '28 900w

TOWNROE, BERNARD STEPHEN. Slum prob-[2] lem; with an introd. by Sir J. Walker Smith. 220p $2.25 (6s) Longmans

331.833 Housing—Great Britain. City planning. Tenement houses [28-23210]

A study of the slums of England, Scotland and Wales by a member of England's Ministry of health. Mr Townroe's investigation of insanitary and crowded areas has been first hand and extensive. His survey describes methods employed by various communities to combat the slum evil, and includes a chapter on American slums.

"Here is a book by an experienced ex-civil servant with a real talent for writing and for arranging difficult material. Yet, in spite of Mr. Townroe's great care to avoid irrelevances, to suppress over-statement, to bring together in a compact form all the means at present being employed to effect slum clearance, one stops reading with rather less respect for the author than one had at the beginning, and with a positive feeling of resentment that the slum problem persists in such a way as to give weight to those piece-meal remedies of which Mr. Townroe has chosen to make himself a smug and coolly reasoning advocate."

— Sat R 146:687 N 24 '28 1150w

"In spite of the useful information here assembled, for actual help in deciding as to what our immediate procedure should wisely be we must seek counsel from someone a little more definite than the author of this book."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p831 N 8 '28 1300w

TRACY, HENRY CHESTER. English as experi-[2] ence. 323p $2.50 Dutton

820 English literature 28-24289

"Mr. Tracy throws a refreshing beam of light along the path of English literature. Joyous reading, writing and criticism, are in substance his criteria of the true experience of English. With quotations from Layamon, Chaucer, Lyly, Jonson, Spenser and others, he lays for the student a foundation in the reading of English which prepares him for the incomparable richness of Shakespeare, the lucidity of Johnson, and the style and critical penetration of Addison and Steele."—Boston Transcript

"I wish Mr. Tracy could be as vivid and human about the best writing of today as he is about that of the past. He frankly prefers W. H. Hudson and Thoreau to Joyce and although he mentions perspective only twice we feel that he is exploring the safer experiences in English prose. Mr. Tracy sincerely experiences his words and there is something fresh and cool in everything he says. The excitement of the prose which is singularly sharp and clean keeps one reading straight through without skipping or plunging aimlessly." Margery Latimer

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 D 16 '28 650w

"The value of such a volume is obvious, and in merit and purpose it may properly be bracketed with the splendid lectures of Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch." R. S.

+ Boston Transcript p7 N 28 '28 380w

TRACY, LOUIS. Women in the case. 316p $2 Clode

28-12546

"There are three women in the case. Esmée Bermore is the granddaughter of Lord Farndale, whose death, apparently by poison, is under investigation by the officials at Scotland Yard. The second woman in the case is Mrs. Sinclair, who calls herself Esmée's aunt. She comes with Esmée to England from Buenos Aires and these two are the last persons known to have seen Lord Farndale before he died. The third woman is Lord Farndale's sister, Lady Doone, who knows more about her brother's history than she cares to disclose. What appears in the beginning to be a simple murder case proves in the end to be but the culmination of a series of events that had their beginning many years ago."—N Y Times

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Je 10 '28 90w

"Mr. Tracy does not write 'problem novels.' He does not stress sex, his young people are always clean and wholesome and his detectives are not super-human even though they hold high rank at Scotland Yard. If one likes a good detective story, not unduly horrible but with plenty of exciting adventures, here is one which is much better than the average."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 27 '28 310w

N Y Times p17 Je 10 '28 100w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks

Outlook 149:157 My 23 '28 150w

TRAGETT, MRS MARGARET RIVERS (LARMINIE). Galatea. 384p $2.50 Houghton [7s 6d Chatto & W.]

28-19678

Pygmalion was a horse who won the Derby Sweep and Emmeline Wynter was the holder of the winning ticket. Poor Emmeline at thirty-two wore unbecoming hats and cared for an imaginary invalid of a father. Life began to look quite different to Emmeline on seventy-three thousand pounds, and Galatea, as her cousin Jack called her, set out to see the world. The world was very kind to this gentle new Galatea and then suddenly very cruel. But Jack, faithful and also kind, was there to help her.

"On the whole, Mrs. Larminie has done a sincere, convincing piece of work. With skill and keen perception she has woven a story that is alive with pathos and humor, that touches discerningly the pain and ecstacy of experience, and that paints truthfully and delightfully the coming to life of her heroine." Jean Douglass

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 Ag 19 '28 480w

Boston Transcript p4 S 8 '28 330w

Cleveland Open Shelf p121 N '28

"It is pleasant to record that here is a story that tells what happened to a girl who suddenly acquired a lot of money and yet manages to be entirely natural and credible."

+ N Y Times p6 Ag 19 '28 520w

"It is a great pity that Miss Larminie has stultified her talent by binding it to a plot which is subtle and sensational, but never successful. Throughout the book we are conscious of the superiority of the workmanship to the design; it is not easy to see how both can have proceeded from the same mind." L. P. Hartley

— + Sat R 145:366 Mr 24 '28 210w

Springf'd Republican p6e D 16 '28 170w.

Times [London] Lit Sup p258 Ap 5 '28 250w

TRAIN, ARTHUR CHENEY. Ambition. 439p $2.50 Scribner [7s 6d Nash & G.]

28-6169

A rising young lawyer marries a beautiful and apparently straightforward girl who has told him all about herself and her four-year-old child. They have been married for some time before Simon discovers, among other things, the real reason for Clarice's candor. As Simon continues to rise in his profession Clarice develops ambitions that are distasteful to him. He finds a sympathetic friend in his secretary who stands by until Clarice, still ambitious, divorces him for a wealthier man.

Booklist 24:366 Je '28

Reviewed by L. M. Field

Bookm 67:333 My '28 90w

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p21 Je 17 '28 130w

Boston Transcript p4 F 29 '28 1350w

" 'Ambition' is in Mr. Train's usual, suave magazine-serial manner—clean, smooth writing and a clean, smooth plot." T. S.

+ N Y Evening Post p13 F 25 '28 90w

"A smoothly flowing, always entertaining story."

+ N Y Times p6 F 26 '28 750w

"It is obvious that Mr. Train knows just what he wants to say, and he knows how to say it. The plot is conventional, but the author shows his usual ability in making a slight story entertaining." Kathleen Kelemen

+ Outlook 149:276 Je 13 '28 450w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:322 Je '28

Sat R of Lit 4:830 Ap 28 '28 480w

"The easy, natural flow of Mr. Train's narrative carries us pleasantly along, and, though his purpose is to expose the superficiality and selfishness of a certain type of modern woman, his characters never degenerate into puppets. The scenes of legal life deserve special praise."

+ — Spec 140:742 My 12 '28 100w

"There is thoughtfulness in Mr Train's conception of this story, and the combination of circumstances is so linked together that the reader's interest never wanes."

+ Springf'd Republican p7f Ap 1 '28 160w

Times [London] Lit Sup p689 S 27 '28 110w

Wis Lib Bul 24:92 Mr '28

TRAIN, ARTHUR CHENEY. Horns of Ramadan. 291p $2 Scribner

28-23661

A perfectly stereotyped yarn of the Foreign Legion. An American youth is jilted, joins the Legion, campaigns in Morocco, has a brief desert idyll with a Berber girl, and, wounded, meets the girl from home who has followed him to Africa.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 N 4 '28 100w

"In 'The Horns of Ramadan' Arthur Train retains some of the old humor of the Tutt stories. He describes well—although Africa is a delightfully easy place to describe because of the romantic glamour that surrounds any part of it. But, because of a rather slim and unconvincing plot, the author is severely handicapped. He cannot cause the book to be effective through words alone."

+ — Boston Transcript p3 O 27 '28 150w

"Mr. Train deserves credit for certain detailed pictures of Moroccan life in its superficial aspects; but it is difficult to understand why, in order to peruse ten or twelve pages of such descriptions, one must wade through nearly three hundred pages of glaringly careless writing and a series of incredible adventures lacking even the dubious merit of originality."

— + N Y Times p52 D 2 '28 480w

Wis Lib Bul 24:307 N '28

TREAT, PAYSON JACKSON. Far East. (Harper's hist. ser.) 549p $5 (15s) Harper

950 East (Far East). Eastern question (Far East). China—Foreign relations. Japan—Foreign relations 28-15605

Traces the political and diplomatic history of China and Japan down to 1927, giving enough of the history of surrounding countries to make a rounded treatment. "The purpose of this survey of the political and diplomatic history of the Far East is to furnish a text-book for students and a reference work for general readers in a field which is rapidly assuming more importance and merits greater consideration." (Preface)

Booklist 25:115 D '28

"In 'The Far East' he does what he sets out to do simply and clearly and authoritatively in a work admirably adapted for classroom or general reference use. He skims the long centuries before the foreigners became important in China and Japan, and he moves through the intricate maze of diplomatic maneuvers with a skill born of familiarity, and, for the most part, with balance."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 O 14 '28 350w

"A specialist in the history of the East who knows how to make his writings both attractive and accurate here furnishes a survey of the West's political and diplomatic relations with the great countries of the Orient that meets an urgent need and is sure to be counted with." E. N.

+ Boston Transcript p4 S 1 '28 880w

Reviewed by Lyman Bryson

New Repub 57:145 D 19 '28 160w

N Y Times p8 D 30 '28 300w

"The Philippine problem in its relation to the whole situation in the Far East is gone into thoroughly and intelligently." Herschell Brickell

+ No Am 226:adv N '28 60w

TREND, JOHN BRANDE. Spain from the south. 256p il $5 Knopf [10s 6d Methuen]

914.6 Spain—History. Spain—Description and travel 28-17868

The author is both traveller and historian. He starts his Spanish journey at Algeciras and gets as far north as Toledo. Much learning about art and literature is combined with the description and history.

TREND, J: B.—Continued

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 Je 3 '28 600w

"Mr. Trend knows his Old Spain richly and well, and furnishes among other things a group of valuable translations from the Moorish poets."

\+ Nation 127:143 Ag 8 '28 50w

Reviewed by Sylva Norman
Nation and Ath 43:51 Ap 14 '28 410w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 226:adv Jl '28 90w

"Mr. Trend has not made his book the indispensable guide he seems to have set out to write, but he has written a volume that is certain to make its readers wish to pursue the subjects he touches upon further. What he has to say about places and things to see has the great merit of accuracy and his comment is that of an intelligent student of Spanish life, sympathetic, but not sentimental."

\+ — Sat R of Lit 4:1027 Jl 7 '28 400w

"There is much learning in these pages—philology, art, music, history, literature; but it is so lightly put and so skilfully interlaced with life that the reader comes to the end of the volume with appetite undiminished. When so much had to be crowded out for lack of space, it was perhaps a pity that the last three chapters—on the Castilian tongue, a Castilian autobiography (that of Contreras), and the Second Part of 'Don Quixote'—were not reserved for a different volume; but they are valuable in themselves."

\+ Times [London] Lit Sup p142 Mr 1 '28 880w

TRENT, LUCIA, and CHEYNEY, RALPH, eds. [2] America arraigned! with an introd. by John Haynes Holmes. 95p $1 Dean & co., 112 4th av., N.Y.

811.08 Sacco, Nicola—Poetry. Vanzetti, Bartolomeo—Poetry 28-4111

A collection of poems on Sacco and Vanzetti.

"This Sacco-Vanzetti anthology is both good poetry and good propaganda. Not only are the contributors eminent in many cases; all of them have been stirred by their subject to significant and impressive utterance."

\+ Nation 126:169 F 8 '28 30w

"The principal distinction of the volume lies in the courage and public spirit of the writers in expressing themselves on this subject. Except for one fine poem by Edna Millay, most of the verse itself is banal." E. W.

— \+ New Repub 53:331 F 8 '28 150w

Springf'd Republican p7f Je 3 '28 420w

TREYNOR, ALBERT M. Hands up! 288p $2 Dodd

28-5870

One moonlit evening in Mexico Willie Curzon acquires in a very short space of time a handsome sombrero, a veiled bride, and an unsavory reputation, to all of which he has been a total stranger. There follows a lively intrigue in which he is forced to play the part of the gentleman to whom hat, bride and reputation properly belonged, from which Willie emerges slightly breathless, but still in possession of the bride.

"Mr. Treynor provides a large assortment of the thrills essential to a Western and uses an ancient trick effectively in yanking the hero to eventual happiness—for there is a Gringo wonder girl on the premises just made for him. A readable open spacer." Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Mr 25 '28 100w

"The same good old-fashioned melodrama that clever writers have been scribbling these many years. Mr. Treynor does it neither better nor worse than his countless predecessors. For those who read for the fun of it, this should prove a hair-raising story of adventure. For those who miss that pleasure, 'Hands Up' becomes just one more."

Boston Transcript p4 Ap 11 '28 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p92 Jl '28

N Y Times p18 F 26 '28 220w

TRINKLER, EMIL. Through the heart of Afghanistan; ed. and tr. by B. K. Featherstone. 246p il $4 Houghton [15s Faber & G.]

915.8 Afghanistan—Description and travel [28-19897]

"Herr Trinkler came into Afghanistan across the bleak and snow-clad Russian frontier in the north. He travelled by caravan and passed through many unexplored districts where his British maps (there are no others) were often at fault. Throughout his journey he was careful to take daily observations, and to collect geological specimens for his employers, the German Trading Company at Kabul, whom he was on his way to join as a scientific adviser. He has all the good traveller's natural curiosity, and he seems to have fallen in love with Afghanistan at first sight—with Herat in particular. If some of the facts he draws attention to are familiar even to arm-chair travellers he does manage to pass on his own first impressions very vividly."—Sat R

Boston Transcript p2 Je 23 '28 780w

"For his account of Afghanistan we have reason to be grateful to Dr. Trinkler, both for the charm of his writing and for adding a volume to the scarce supply of literature on the subject." V. Sackville-West

\+ Nation and Ath 43:213 My 19 '28 520w

"It is extremely well written. To the reader who has seen Afghanistan through the Afghan eyes of Sirdar Ikbal Ali Shah, Dr. Trinkler's book is exactly what is needed to round off the picture. Dr. Trinkler has evidently a profound passion for the East, and the passion finds real expression in his every-day descriptions."

\+ New Statesman 30:798 Mr 31 '28 350w

N Y Times p2 Ag 26 '28 400w

Sat R 145:356 Mr 24 '28 280w

"An excellently illustrated and very pleasantly written travel-book (a little over-sentimental at times, perhaps)."

\+ Spec 140:471 Mr 24 '28 130w

TRITES, WILLIAM BUDD. The gypsy. 173p $2 Stokes [5s Gollancz]

28-5563

Admitting failure, the artist has come to Spain encouraged by his wife to look for subjects there. He finds a gypsy girl, a perfect model, and is maddened, obsessed by her. With his secret consent the girl and her ghoulish mother poison the wife. Then, having married the gypsy and made over all his possessions to her, in a mounting climax of horror, the man waits his own doom.

"The theme suggests Dostoievsky and demands longer treatment. It is doubtful if in its compressed, novelette form it could have been anything but melodramatic. The treatment is brief and inadequate and never quite reaches the emotions."

— \+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p35 Ap 15 '28 500w

Boston Transcript p8 Ap 14 '28 300w

Cleveland Open Shelf p66 My '28

"Mr. Trites again has a touch of genius, and his odd, quiet, ghastly little book, The Gypsy, is not likely to be easily forgotten by anybody who has read it. His artistic restraint is admirable, and I must record my appreciation of a skilful study in the decay of a human soul." P. C. Kennedy

\+ New Statesman 27:740 O 9 '26 100w

N Y Evening Post p10 F 18 '28 80w

N Y Times p7 Jl 31 '27 430w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:245 My '28

"It is so good as to raise the question: What is a masterpiece if this is not one?" L. P. Hartley

+ Sat R 146:365 S 22 '28 430w

"Material that has been done and redone a hundred times! Yet here is an author telling it with all the emotions of glorious discovery. His is not a concocted tale thrown off between jobs, but a creation achieved by skill and careful artifice. He has searched his mind for the most gripping word, cast out all unessentials, yet remained ardent, fired with feeling, to the very end. The tragedy is inevitable. One lays down the book and pauses long." B. K. Scherman

+ Sat R of Lit 4:666 Mr 10 '28 480w

"It is certainly a brilliant and original piece of work, though it just misses entering into the perfection that should receive a thing of such brevity and intensity."

+ — Spec 141:376 S 22 '28 230w

" 'The Gypsy' has the Greek quality of spiritual horror. It has pathos. It has a sense like Conrad's for the one significant particular. It has a power of style like Conrad's, but at the opposite extreme from his method of infinite detail. But it owes no debts, its author is under no obligations. It is exotic and it is real and universal. It is new and it is as old as passion, fascination, will-lessness, deceit, greed, devotion, unscrupling murder. The appreciative reader too seldom comes upon its like."

+ Springf'd Republican p7f F 19 '28 300w

"A queer little story, written competently and neatly, but it is without the exciting or the significant interest the author seems to want to create."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p792 N 11 '26 350w

TROTSKY, LEON, pseud. (LEV DAVIDOVICH BRONSTEIN). Real situation in Russia; tr. by Max Eastman. 364p $2 Harcourt [7s 6d Allen & U.]

947.084 Russia—Politics and government 28-19471

In the documents denied a hearing and suppressed in Russia, which are gathered in this volume, Trotsky makes vigorous denial of Stalin's charges against him and brings counter charges against Stalin, his political as well as personal enemy, in a summary of the state of affairs in Russia, from the Trotsky side of the case, since the death of Lenin.

Booklist 25:114 D '28

Reviewed by B. C. Vladeck

Bookm 68:352 N '28 180w

"Mr. Eastman's aim is to show that the Stalin-Trotzky row is no mere case of dog-eat-dog or failure to understand or accept party discipline, but a real and far-reaching conflict of principle... The long-distance American reader, even one who has a certain first-hand smattering of the background of the wrangle, can scarcely hope that this bit of special pleading will clear up the tangled matter with any finality. About the best he can do is to regard this as one side of a desperate fight and get what he can from it, measured against what is known of the other side and his own common-sense." Arthur Ruhl

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 Ag 19 '28 1250w

Boston Transcript p3 Ag 11 '28 480w

Reviewed by J. B. S. Hardman

New Repub 56:332 N 7 '28 1650w

"In this volume Trotsky again proves himself a polemical writer of the most amazing force and clarity. Every sentence carries conviction; he piles fact on fact, epithet on epithet, quotation on quotation, to build a monumental structure on which to expose the shame of Stalin." Herbert Solow

+ N Y Evening Post p9 O 6 '28 1050w

"Trotsky is a fanatic with few scruples as to the means by which he advances his cause. He is impatient, short-tempered, and at times cruel, but he is probably honest and certainly a born leader. If one could share his premises, as Mr. Eastman does, it would not be hard to sympathize with his wrongs."

N Y Times p1 Jl 29 '28 900w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:498 O '28

"The story is told with force and brilliancy."

+ R of Rs 78:adv26 S '28 120w

Springf'd Republican p7f Ag 19 '28 900w

Reviewed by L. L. W. Wilson

Survey 61:176 N 1 '28 110w

TRUESDALE, JOHN R. Credit bureau management. 297p il $5 Prentice-Hall

658.882 Credit 27-17340

"Describes in detail the organization and operation of retail credit reporting services. Considers also credit associations."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

---

"This provides material which has not hitherto been accessible in a single volume."

+ Am Econ R 17:718 D '27 90w

Booklist 24:235 Mr '28

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:392 Jl '28

TUCKER, LOUIS. In the hills of Galilee; stories of the time of Christ. 256p il $2 Bobbs

232.9 27-23487

"In a human way, with an eye for the humorous, the pathetic, the appealing in all its daily incidents, Mr. Tucker tells the story of the life of Christ with the purpose of making it humanly interesting to young people. He bases it all on the incidents of the biblical narratives, but he treats these events with the modern touch which interprets them in terms that give them reality and interest to the youth of today."—N Y Times

---

Churchman p19 Ap 28 '28 60w

N Y Times p14 Mr 1 '28 110w

"These are imaginative sketches of real and supposed incidents in the life of Jesus and those who come in contact with him. They are full of atmosphere and movement with many touches that make vivid the stories of parables and miracles. This book would be a valuable contribution to children's religious literature if the author had not let his imagination run away with his historical conscience."

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:920 My 26 '28 180w

TUCKER, LOUIS. When he came to himself. 349p $2 Bobbs

Prodigal son—Fiction 28-8591

Palestine and Rome during the life-time of Christ are pictured in this life of a prodigal son, who spent his fortune on riotous living, was captured by bandits, contested in the Roman games, was galley slave and friend of kings and senators.

Reviewed by F: H. Martens

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 Je 3 '28 550w

"At times it is difficult to distinguish between the historical and the fiction, and this in itself is high praise. The pageant always moves. There is no padding of long speeches. The author never forgets that he is in the first century—but he never stops to preach and moralize. The whole presentation grips one and holds one's interest from start to finish." T. C. R.

+ Boston Transcript p5 Je 9 '28 330w

"Considering 'When He Came to Himself' neither as a parallel to 'Ben Hur' nor as a scholastic feat but as a novel, it proves to be a good readable tale."

+ N Y Times p24 My 6 '28 450w

Sat R of Lit 5:39 Ag 11 '28 170w

TULLY, JIM. Shanty Irish. 292p $2.50 Boni
28-23677

"It is a tale, or rather tales, of rough 'shanty Irish' who spend most of their time and most of their money soaking up whisky in front of shining bars. Tully would have you believe it is based on the true stories of his grandfather Hughie and others when he was a young lad learning how to drink. . . Two families who came from Ireland when the potato famine of '46 drove so many to the then hospitable shores of America are the principal actors. Brawls and battles, drinking contests in the old days, and always sentiment, make up the scenes and action."—Boston Transcript

"Jim Tully's Shanty Irish leaves one breathless, though not with awe. Mr. Tully gets his effects quickly—not a doubt of it. Good literature, however, like good liquor, cannot be made in a couple of evenings." Norah Meade
— Bookm 68:348 N '28 130w

"Mr. Tully's curious mixture of windiness, low comedy and under-dog portraiture plentifully besprinkled with cuss words is but the shell of actual life. Old Hughie is meant to be a 'virile characterization,' but he is actually a highly colored pasteboard figure jerkily manipulated by the inexpert author." Herbert Gorman
— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 N 18 '28 550w

Boston Transcript p5 N 3 '28 280w

"He is still far gone and unrepentant in his besetting sin of sentimentality, which takes the form of making his characters, in the midst of the most hardboiled remarks, drop into locutions which remind one of Donn Byrne writing about King Arthur. Even if they actually talked that way, Mr. Tully should not have told them. But in an attempt to do Mr Tully justice, in a sphere where he should be the first to admit that justice is non-existent, it must be added that some of the bar-room yarns his people tell are both grand and glorious." T. S. M.
— + New Repub 57:173 D 26 '28 150w

" 'Shanty Irish' is biographical, and has all the effect of a novel. Mr. Tully, author of 'Jarnegan,' among other things, is like no other writer. And, indeed, Mr. Tully, in a manner of speaking, does not write; he spits forth images, words, sentences, as a machine gun spits forth bullets. And as in modern warfare the machine-gun gunner aims at a target and not at the approaching troops, so that the latter must pass through a zone of fire, so Tully, aiming at his individuals, hits mankind. The book, while depicting a family, is racial in scope." Percy Hutchison
N Y Times p4 O 14 '28 950w

"It's too bad that the story was not confined to old Hughie, for the other parts of the book are pretty badly done, smacking as they mostly do of a raw and naïve translation of a Russian writer. Child-like simplicity in writing can sometimes become idiotic." Ben Wasson
— + Outlook 150:1215 N 21 '28 90w

TUNIS, JOHN ROBERTS. $port$; heroics and hysterics. 293p $2.50 Day
796 Sports 28-23298

Mr Tunis is tennis writer for the New Yorker and the New York Evening Post. In these provocative chapters he shows up the great sports myth for what it is, gives the side of the Olympic games usually ignored by the press, and denounces the rapid commercialization of amateur sports, particularly tennis, golf, and football.

"An admirable picture of what the printing press has done to sportsmanship in America." Stuart Chase
+ Nation 128:108 Ja 23 '29 650w

R of Rs 78:adv42 N '28 30w

"The book has faults, but the faults certainly are not lack of sincerity, or lack of vigor, or pusillanimity, or lack of information; the outstanding trouble with it is that at times Mr. Tunis talks his information so rapidly and shouts so vigorously that neither he nor the reader is able to hear himself think. The horrors of the situation are flung out in a merciless bombardment; and the resulting effect, although diverting always, is frequently confusing."
+ — Sat R of Lit 5:256 O 13 '28 450w

TUPPER, TRISTRAM. The river. 348p $2.50 Lippincott
28-20921

On the scene of Jorgensen's battle with Black Mountain described in "Jorgensen" (Book Review Digest, 1926) Allen John, a lad of seventeen, spends a year in the construction camp in which Jorgensen is now resident engineer. The mountain was the antagonist in the earlier book. The river which flows near it is the ally in the present story of a youth, just reaching manhood, in the grip of his first passion. He loves Rosalee, a girl of the camps, despised a little by the engineers' wives, but to Allen John as lovely as his thoughts of her. Not even Kitty, who is of his own class, can turn Allen John from his allegiance. When the year of his youth runs out, it is the river that sets him free and makes of him a man.

For biographical sketch of Tristram Tupper see Wilson Bulletin 3:424 Ja '29

Booklist 25:124 D '28

"The characters are stock fiction personalities moving obediently and heavily to an old and sentimental tune."
— Bookm 67:xxiv Ag '28 130w

"The faults of the book are faults of technique, namely, the result of first-person technique. But the main strength of the book successfully carries it through." Lawrence Lee
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 Je 24 '28 700w

"There is much that is sheer beauty in this story. The loveliness of the prose, the passages of beautiful interpretive description, the symbolism of it all make it a story much out of the ordinary." D. L. M.
+ Boston Transcript p6 Je 9 '28 480w

"What makes 'The River' something distinct is not its people, not its characterization, not its plot, but the prose. This prose carries with it overtone and undertone. All through the book runs the sound of the river."
+ N Y Times p8 My 27 '28 580w

Reviewed by G: Joel
N Y World p7m Jl 1 '28 80w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 149:358 Je 27 '28 130w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:549 N '28

"Remembering 'Jorgensen,' we find 'The River' disappointing. This latest novel by Mr. Tupper has some of the qualities that made the earlier work unusual and gratifying. It is sensitive, picturesque in setting, and decorated with a few characters out of the common run. But the whole affair is weak and confused where 'Jorgensen' was clear and vigorous; Mr. Tupper seems not to have had the power to repeat himself effectively."
— + Sat R of Lit 5:109 S 8 '28 200w

Springf'd Republican p5f Ag 5 '28 320w

TURNBULL, ARCHIBALD DOUGLAS. John Stevens; an American record. 545p il $5 Century
B or 92 Stevens, John 28-12356

Here is told the story of a notable family of American engineers—Colonel John Stevens, and his three sons. John Stevens, 1749-1838, was the foremost engineer of his day. He invented the screw propeller and operated steamboats on the Hudson three years before Fulton's Clermont; built the first ocean-going steamship and the first iron-clad vessel; ran the first successful steam-carriage on rails in America (1825); and built the first steam ferry in the world.

His sons, like himself, were inventors and one of them, Edwin A. Stevens, founded Stevens institute of technology.

Booklist 25:117 D '28

Reviewed by J. T. Adams
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 Jl 1 '28 650w

"Mr. Turnbull has been embarrassed by a double task. Having access, as no writer has previously had, to the intimate papers of the Stevens family, he has felt an obligation to rehabilitate a forgotten fame. To do this he has introduced the records of the Fulton controversy to a degree pertinent chiefly for the special student of the subject. His other undertaking, the portrait of Colonel Stevens himself and the narrative of his really remarkable achievements and prophecies, is for the general reader the outstanding feature of the book."
+ N Y Times p3 My 27 '28 1550w

Reviewed by E. C. Beckwith
N Y World p7m Je 17 '28 230w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 225:adv Je '28 80w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:490 O '28

Pratt p42 autumn '28

"The work of Col. John Stevens (1749-1838) entitles him to rank in history as the first outstanding American engineer. Much of his story would have been lost to us but for the researches of a naval engineer, Mr. Archibald Douglas Turnbull, in the Stevens family papers. He has uncovered an amazing record—one of which every American should be proud."
+ R of Rs 77:adv26 Je '28 100w

TURNBULL, MARGARET. Rogues' march. 310p $2 Lippincott

28-20463

Juliet Jackson, red-headed reporter, gets an inside line on the story of the murder of a film sheik and the connection of a young society girl with the case. Juliet for one paper and Abel Buckman for another, try to ferret out the truth from the tight-lipped girl and from Dan Cornell, assistant District Attorney who throws up his job to become the girl's lawyer, and who tells at last all that he knows.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Je 10 '28 90w

"Miss Turnbull does know how to tell a story. She can give it the day by day suspense that is any good newspaper reporter's greatest ally, but she also knows when to let the bars down sufficiently to allow her readers to get a step ahead of the actors and watch drama catch them up in its net of irony. It does add interest in a mystery novel to have the author an expert in story-telling and human beings, as well as in automatic pistols and the other accessories from the hardware counter." W. E. H.
+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 20 '28 1250w

Springf'd Republican p7f Ag 19 '28 180w

TURNER, JOHN EVAN. Nature of Deity; a sequel to "Personality and reality." 248p $3.50 Oxford [10s Allen & U.]

211 God [28-4897]

"The present volume is the latest of a series in which Dr. Turner has been developing a system of philosophy, culminating in a natural theology of the theistic type."—Int J Ethics

Boston Transcript p6 My 12 '28 240w

"An illuminating and valuable discussion of the idea of God. It is clearly written, free from technical jargon, and well balanced. It shows a sound insight into the essential nature of man's religious life. It is refreshingly free from onesidedness." J. A. Leighton
+ Christian Century 45:572 My 3 '28 840w

Reviewed by R. M. Blake
Int J Ethics 38:357 Ap '28 180w

"It is written in an easily comprehensible style, free from unnecessary metaphysical jargon. Again, it is strong (where Hegel was weak) in its respectful treatment of the results of the natural sciences. Indeed, if any criticism were to be offered in this connection, it would be that Dr. Turner has accepted these results too uncritically, and built upon them too confidently." W. M. Horton
+ — J Religion 8:649 O '28 350w

"Dr. Turner has written, from the point of view of pure philosophy, one of the most valuable and balanced treatises on the Nature of Deity which has appeared for some time." Evelyn Underhill
+ Spec 138:564 Mr 26 '27 380w

TURNER, JOHN HASTINGS. While the gods grinned (Eng title Sea urchin). 379p $2 Putnam

28-17929

The lively odyssey of a California waif, the foster child of a peripatetic swindler, who is sent by a rescue society to a convent in France. Fay escapes and makes her way to the coast on a canal barge, with a dismayed but gentlemanly bargeman. She stows away on a cargo ship bound for England, is shipwrecked and finally reaches Cornwall where live two ready-made maiden aunts, in perpetual feud with their neighbors, Sir Trevor Trebarrow and his son. The new-found niece enters the feud via the son's heart, and with characteristic energy ends it.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 Ag 19 '28 90w

Boston Transcript p8 Mr 31 '28 200w

"All that need be said about the story is that it is entertainingly told and that it will probably hold the reader's attention throughout. The author does not reach or attempt to reach any heights of narration or any subtleties of character development, but he has succeeded in reciting a pleasant tale in a manner sufficiently agreeable."
+ N Y Times p11 Je 24 '28 400w

TURNER, WALTER JAMES REDFERN. Musical meanderings. 206p $2.50 Dutton [6s Methuen]

780.4 Music [28-27604]

Essays on matters musical, reprinted from the New Statesman and other periodicals, in which Mr Turner expresses with vigor his enthusiasms and dislikes.

"He is one of the best journalistic musical critics, if only because one can always read him. He has a lively mind and is nothing if not 'provocative.' His judgment is perhaps not as sound as it is vigorous, and he will see part of a problem so violently as to be blind to the problem itself."
+ — Nation and Ath 43:368 Je 16 '28 60w

"It is characteristic of Mr. Turner that he is always going to extremes, that he does not, like so many critics, hesitate and qualify his opinions, lest the general verdict or the passing of time should prove him to have been rash. Whether we agree with all those opinions or not, they are stated with a conviction and a certainty which nowadays are rare."
New Statesman 31:92 Ap 28 '28 400w

"A preacher with a vigorous style never lacks an audience, denounce it how he may, and Mr. Turner mingles some very shrewd and penetrating criticism in every sermon... The wild (and sometimes ill-mannered) talk and the schoolboy assertiveness which are to be found in almost every essay merely conceal but do not extinguish the author's power of knowing the really great things in music for what they are when he hears them."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p274 Ap 12 '28 250w

TYLER, MRS ALICE FELT. Foreign policy of James G. Blaine. 411p $3.50 Univ. of Minn.

327.73 Blaine, James Gillespie. United States—Foreign relations 28-6279

"Now for the first time is the diplomacy of the plumed knight made the subject of a volume. Mrs. Tyler has carefully used the inedited as well as the printed material available on her theme in the United States. The manner in which Blaine uncannily forecasted certain features of our foreign policy is suggestively delineated. The section devoted to the Berlin Conference of 1889 on Samoa, which utilizes inedited material from our Department of State, is perhaps the most original feature of the book."—Nation

---

"This is a straightforward, carefully organized, fully documented account." T. C. Smith
+ Am Hist R 33:676 Ap '28 400w

Am Pol Sci R 22:501 My '28 110w

"This summary of Blaine's work as foreign minister is the first accurate, dispassionate study of this phase of his life and service. It is a good piece of historical work put into popular form." T. C. R.
+ Boston Transcript p7 Ja 28 '28 350w

"In the main she has done her work well. Students of American diplomacy would have found this instructive study more illuminating if the author had garnered comments on Blaine's Pan-American policy by publicists of South America."
+ — Nation 126:700 Je 20 '28 100w

"This excellent, admirable, interesting book concerns not only Blaine's great project but all the other phases of his foreign policy. The book is important and valuable, and yet, by reason of its style, wholly readable. The only adverse criticism is that the author is somewhat too censorious of Blaine."
+ N Y Times p8 Jl 15 '28 800w

Reviewed by R. J. Davis
Sat R of Lit 4:972 Je 16 '28 580w

Times [London] Lit Sup p190 Mr 15 '28 230w

World Tomorrow 11:376 S '28 20w

TYNAN, KATHERINE. See Hinkson, K.

U

UNAMUNO Y JUGO, MIGUEL DE. Agony of Christianity; tr. by Pierre Loving; with an introd. by Ernest Boyd. 183p $2 Payson & Clarke

239 Christianity 28-10542

In this book a Spanish philosopher describes the agony of the struggle to be a Christian—the clash between the Christian ideal and the demands of life and the world.

Booklist 24:383 Jl '28

Reviewed by S. P. Lamprecht
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 Ap 29 '28 1100w

"It is difficult to bring cold, calculating criticism to bear on a flaming torch, a fiery agony, and a struggling soul. And De Unamuno is all this and is personal as well. It has all the fervor of a confession of faith and all the abandon of one who speaks his own mind in letters, in government and religion. The outburst will stimulate some who do not agree with him and inevitably arouse the antagonism of many others." T. C. R.
Boston Transcript p5 My 26 '28 300w

Sat R of Lit 4:748 Ap 7 '28 300w

UNAMUNO Y JUGO, MIGUEL DE. Mist [2] (Niebla); tr. from the Spanish by Warner Fite. 332p $2.50 Knopf

Augusto Pérez loses himself frequently in a mist of ideas. This young Spanish gentleman has fallen in love with a vision he passed on the street. What time he is not awkwardly wooing the lady he spends in agitated thoughts of his life and the romance of it. Eugenia is betrothed to another, and when it becomes clear to Augusto that she is trifling with him, he contemplates suicide. He takes his troubles to the author who reminds the unhappy youth that his life is not his own to dispose of, since the end, as the beginning, rests with the author who invented it.

"There are, of course, a world of philosophical overtones in this story, wherein a delicate balance between the tragic and the comic elements is observed. And there is sufficient story to make 'Mist' an excellent introduction to the more difficult works of the Spanish philosopher." Herschel Brickell
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 N 11 '28 980w

"The first of Señor Unamuno's works of pure imagination to appear in English is more an ironic exercise in dialectic than a novel. The central character is designedly rendered vague and elusive so as to offer Señor Unamuno an opportunity for some ingenious reflections on the world of illusion and the world of reality. A slight work in itself, 'Mist' is interesting for the insight it gives into the curious hard and biting quality of modern Spanish humor, which is never satiric and yet never good-natured in the English manner." C. P. F.
+ Nation 127:sup639 D 5 '28 100w

"An extremely wise and diverting book. . . A brilliant commentary on humanity, which could only have been written by a philosopher who was also an artist and by a direct spiritual descendant of the author of Don Quixote."
+ N Y Times p8 D 2 '28 680w

UNDERHILL, EVELYN (MRS STUART MOORE). Man and the supernatural. 252p $2 Dutton [7s 6d Methuen]

248 Spiritual life. Supernatural 28-4891

A religious mystic here deals with the deeper experiences of the soul, the flashes of spiritual reality that are sometimes revealed to human beings and that transform their lives.

Reviewed by W. K. Fleming
New Statesman 30:628 F 25 '28 350w

"This book has the tolerance of true conviction. Miss Underhill must be thanked for this study, which is (I think) the best she has given us yet." F. R. B.
+ Sat R 144:916 D 31 '27 880w

"The interest and value of this book is twofold. It is a contribution to Christian apologetic, distinguished by the delicate taste in things spiritual characteristic of the author; and it marks a final stage in the spiritual evolution of a deeply religious modern mind. It is theology, and it is autobiography." J. M. Murray
+ Spec 139:sup572 O 8 '27 780w

"Readers will find that the author's arguments and pleas become a specially impressive exposition of what faith in the supernatural implies, the satisfaction it brings, the gifts it confers, and the work it accomplishes in the individual and the community. This volume increases our indebtedness to a writer who manifests spiritual insight and mental alertness in no ordinary degree."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p828 N 17 '27 220w

UNDERWOOD, LEON. Siamese cat. 269p il $3 Brentano's

28-7309

"Sam, the Siamese cat, started his career with a trip to England as a unit in a cargo of Siamese kittens stowed away in bales in the hold of an exporting ship. He enjoyed this trip immensely, becoming a great favorite of everyone from the captain down, and at this tender age he began the study of human nature which prompted him to become an idealist and a reformer among cats. Nancy, daughter of the English pilot who came aboard the ship, was adopted by him as a mistress, and she learned to converse with him in cat language."—Springf'd Republican

Bookm 67:xxx Je '28 150w

"No one wishes to deny Mr. Underwood a most individual talent. Many of his pages show a dialectic distinct and shining; and now and then one is bowled over by a wise or a funny sentence. He has whimsy without becoming whimsical and he imitates no one except himself. His illustrations are superb and adorable; and yet it may be questioned whether apart from his habit of turning a cat into a human being he has written a book that does what it sets out to do. It doesn't quite come off." Donald Douglas

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 Mr 18 '28 830w

"The kind of self-indulgent fantastic nonsense which obviously tickled the author's private fancy, but will seem rather futile and, at its best, incomprehensibly charming to anyone else. The author's own pleasant woodcuts prevent the book from being a total loss." R. L.

+ — New Repub 55:102 Je 13 '28 50w

"Mr. Underwood is hopelessly all thumbs and butter-fingered in the handling of words. Some of his fantastic ideas are good and many of them are commonplace; he does not succeed in staying inside his cat's consciousness. But make no mistake—this book is one to possess, eminently worth the price, just as a picture book. The generous number of wood cuts (or are they linoleum cuts?) are, as triumphantly fantastic art, all that the text is not." Shaemas O'Sheel

— + N Y Evening Post p13 Ap 21 '28 210w

N Y Times p19 Ap 29 '28 680w

"Mr. Underwood is a distinguished painter and engraver. The cuts he has done for his book, jacket and cover decorations and interpolated illustrations of the text, are almost uniformly interesting, and have humor and fantasy. As for his narrative, it is a nonsense story webbed with satire; but we must confess that we found it very tedious."

— + Sat R of Lit 4:745 Ap 7 '28 280w

"The attempts of Sam, an enlightened cat to introduce some of the attributes of human civilization into the cat world have given Mr Underwood an opportunity for much absurd foolery, some of it rather tepid and jejune, and many digs at the established order of things in the human world."

Springf'd Republican p7f Ap 1 '28 550w

UNDERWOOD, OSCAR WILDER. Drifting sands of party politics. 422p $3.50 Century

328.73 Legislation—United States. United States—Politics and government 28-8619

Senator Underwood considers the influence on Congress of organized wealth, interests, classes and prejudices—forces that our legislators have not been able to resist and which have, in the main, made the laws and run the government in recent years.

Booklist 24:349 Je '28

Reviewed by Silas Bent

Bookm 67:434 Je '28 520w

"To one who desires a readable and succinct review of some famous party issues in American politics, a review written by a participant and hence one who ought to know, this book will prove interesting and profitable. Our chief disappointment is that we did not find all that we thought we might find from the writing of a man who has for so long held so conspicuous a place in American politics." A. S. R.

+ — Boston Transcript p3 My 9 '28 330w

Reviewed by W: MacDonald

Nation 127:228 S 5 '28 680w

Reviewed by C: W. Thompson

N Y Times p1 Je 3 '28 1950w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

No Am 225:adv Je '28 50w

R of Rs 77:adv10 My '28 90w

R of Rs 78:112 Jl '28 60w

Springf'd Republican p8 Jl 4 '28 520w

Reviewed by Nels Anderson

Survey 61:41 O 1 '28 100w

Wis Lib Bul 24:159 My '28

UNDSET, SIGRID. The axe; tr. from the Norwegian by Arthur G. Chater. 341p $3 (12s 6d) Knopf

28-4666

"It is a story of thirteenth-century Norway, cold, dark, brooding as the northern winter, briefly and fiercely passionate as its hot, sudden summers. In plot it follows a familiar romantic plan; Olaf, foster son of Steinfinn, betrothed in childhood to Ingunn, Steinfinn's daughter, outlawed for killing a kinsman, returns after years to find Ingunn the mother of a child by a wandering and despised Icelander, and takes her away with him into a future already clouded with tragedy."—Outlook

For biographical sketches of Sigrid Undset see Wilson Bulletin 3:370 D '28, and Boston Transcript p1 Ja 12, '29

Booklist 24:323 My '28

"All emotion, all thought, all experience are in 'The Axe', as in every great book. Compared to it, these others, apparently closer for our time and place, can see only as much of life as the fish sees of the river down which he swims." A. B. Parsons

Bookm 67:213 Ap '28 280w

"To a few, at least, it is safe to prophesy the first volume of 'The Axe' will recommend itself as a beautiful and distinguished work of fiction. There is in the prose of her new work a limpidness like that of quiet waters which have collected in a pool beneath a cataract. For the action of the novel is always violent, and often headlong. Yet the treatment is simple, calm and clear. It adds to the pleasure of its reading that Arthur Chater, the translator, has caught the beauty of its style and meaning." Eugene Lohrke

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 F 12 '28 760w

"Sigrid Undset writes in a manner totally divergent from the American or even English method of telling a tale. She works slowly, irresistibly toward great climaxes in men's lives. She has a keen eye for describing all that surrounds these crises and she understands how to render them dramatic. For the rest, the general atmosphere is of the foreboding, grim quality that hangs over so many of the tales of the Northland, in particular most of those wrought by Ibsen."

+ Boston Transcript p2 F 11 '28 260w

Cleveland Open Shelf p122 N '28

Reviewed by Edmund Blundell

Nation and Ath 42:852 Mr 10 '28 110w

"The book is powerful, although broken in progression—crystalline in its simplicity and effective in dramatic illusion. Reading it, one awaits the further development of Olav Audunsson's saga with the special eagerness aroused by the promise of veracious and original art." D. B. W.

+ New Repub 55:130 Je 20 '28 230w

"Miss Undset's composition is static, but never wooden. Scenes of violence and sequences of rapid incident she treats with simple competence; but the more suave curves of her narrative are drawn with a slow beauty and certainty. She is a master in the depiction of de-accelerated emotional development. Her book has the massive dignity of long-meditated works." C. P. Fadiman

+ N Y Evening Post p12 Mr 17 '28 950w

UNDSET, SIGRID—Continued

"A powerful, intense and memorable story proving the richness of Sigrid Undset's method."

+ N Y Times p6 F 5 '28 510w

Reviewed by Ruth Suckow

N Y World p10m F 12 '28 800w

"A fine book deeply moving in content, icy in detachment, fiery in emotional quality. In interesting contrast to the contemporary novel, where character is built by the exposition of the inward sources of conduct and feeling, Sigrid Undset's work shows the development of character through the action of the story. She deals, whatever her setting, with the eternal conflicts and problems of humanity." F. C. L. R.

+ Outlook 148:398 Mr 7 '28 250w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:194 Ap '28

Pratt p45 autumn '28

"Despite its sordidness, there is a bracing quality in the novel as a whole. The landscape backgrounds are done with fine sympathy and reserve. The picture of medieval Norwegian life and customs is most interesting, particularly in the complicated legal questions that arise as to blood-money, marriage tithes, etc. These are skilfully woven into the main story. In fact, so complete is the representation that on laying down the book one has to rub one's eyes in order to be sure that one is in modern America, not on the estate of an ancient Norwegian baron." C: W. Stork

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:930 Je 2 '28 750w

"The story has its thrilling moments. But it is mainly remarkable for its long succession of hauntingly vivid descriptions, alternately idyllic and realistic, of Norwegian scenery, life, and character." Gilbert Thomas

+ Spec 140:393 Mr 10 '28 180w

World Tomorrow 11:426 O '28 40w

UNITED STATES STEEL CORPORATION. Methods of the chemists of the United States steel corporation for the sampling and analysis of gases. 3d ed 187p il pa $2 Carnegie steel co.

545.7 Gases—Analysis 27-21756

"New edition deals fully with apparatus and methods, but is much more than a manual of methods and therefore has an appeal wider than to the chemical laboratory. It presents much original information on sampling, analysis, measurement, and combustion of gases and is thus of value to combustion engineers and others interested in fuel economy."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:93 F '28

UNRUH, FRITZ VON. Way of sacrifice; tr. from the German by C. A. Macartney. 181p $2.50 (6s) Knopf

28-16932

This narrative of the advance of a German unit of shock troops to take part in the attack on Verdun expresses the revolt of a sensitive and highly imaginative mind against the horrors and futility of war.

"'The Way of Sacrifice' will carry no very general appeal. Beautifully done and at times poetically conceived, its limitations grow too rigidly from the distortions of its method. Its greatest value possibly is as a document penetrating the veiled hinterland of the German war neurosis. It is a lesser work than the 'Ninth of November,' but it shares with it the distinction of being one of the few powerful books in any literature that the war has produced." Eugene Lohrke

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 Je 3 '28 830w

"Von Unruh belongs to Germany's military aristocracy. But he has the mind of a poet and a clairvoyant insight. Only a poet can achieve his kind of realism. He reveals the horror of war as it appears on the surface. But he also sees the inner tragedy." Reinhold Niebuhr

+ Christian Century 45:731 Je 7 '28 230w

Cleveland Open Shelf p122 N '28

"Written under the most torturing circumstances, it bears the impress of almost unbearable strain, not all of which is communicated to the reader. Von Unruh's unconcessive style has been rendered with an awkward literalness by the tactless translator; so that at most one sentence out of three becomes thoroughly comprehensible."

— + Nation 127:20 Jl 4 '28 70w

"I do not know what von Unruh's book is like in the original German, but I am confident it is not like this translation. I presume it is the work of an American who may know German but who certainly does not know English." Raymond Mortimer

— Nation and Ath 43:564 Jl 28 '28 130w

"The most interesting book about the War we have seen for a long time. It is written in a highly emotional, increasingly strained style, that bursts sometimes into hysteria and sometimes into the kind of ecstasy of despair that seems to threaten everything. A revolutionary book; the General Staff did well to suppress it." T. S. Matthews

+ New Repub 55:206 Jl 11 '28 350w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

N Y Evening Post p9 My 19 '28 960w

"'Way of Sacrifice' is war literature of an unusual sort, conceived in savage indignation and brought forth in the frustration of despair. It is said by the publisher to have undermined the morale of more than one German regiment, but this is probably romance. Save for a sort of deliberately lurid and insane background, it is too close to the facts to be subversive."

N Y Times p8 Je 3 '28 1300w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

No Am 226:adv Jl '28 80w

"After making all due allowances for the inevitable effect of the horrors of war upon such a temperament as that of Herr von Unruh, the book remains distorted to the verge of madness—totally unlike anything that ever happened, in war or peace."

— Sat R 146:366 S 22 '28 130w

"I see no occasion for cheers in behalf of a book written in turgid—as only German can be turgid—prose, reminiscent of the romantic period. . . [But] despite all I have said, the thing is undoubtedly effective. Not as craftsmanlike as Barbusse, Fritz von Unruh has nevertheless achieved as damnatory a piece of pacifist propaganda as you will ever come across. Moreover, even the turgid diction does not mar the fine, graphic quality of some of the descriptive passages." L: Sherwin

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:1033 Jl 14 '28 730w

"Doubtless the book has its place in the dossier of war-literature; but it sounds as if written in a brilliant hysteria." R. A. Taylor

Spec 141:60 Jl 14 '28 150w

"A volume which deserves the attention of intelligent persons to whom the problem of war remains a provocative and disturbing thought."

+ Springf'd Republican p7f Jl 29 '28 480w

"The style, no less in the English than in the German, demands concentration on the part of the reader. It is expressionistic German, and the German of Fritz von Unruh, and yet when translated it still bears the stamp of the author. The book deserves a wide welcome in England, both for its art and for the greatness of its leading thought."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p532 Jl 19 '28 850w

UNTERMEYER, LOUIS. Burning bush. 109p $2 Harcourt [6s Cape]

811 28-11421

Mr Untermeyer's first volume of poetry since 1923. This, his maturest work, is reprinted from various periodicals.

Booklist 25:21 O '28

"He is a musician above all, and the present volume which marks a distinct advance over his past performance, shows a technical achievement that it would be difficult to match. His shrewd rhymes, his fine assonances, his careful rhythms, are a continual delight to the ear. True he has not quite cured himself of the cleverness that sometimes rises to defeat his poetic purpose. But he has given over the easy challenge, the noisy vehemence of his earlier verse, and won a more troubling quiet." Babette Deutscn

+ — Bookm 67:443 Je '28 180w

"'Burning Bush' is a well-fused and tactfully restrained revelation of a romantic masculinity troubled by maladies of the soul and flesh. It has its faults, but they are well outweighed by lyrical excellencies and emotional intensities that belong peculiarly to the poet. Any attempt to evaluate this work must include, first of all, a testimonial to the technical dexterity manifest in practically every poem. The poetical quality has been indicated already." Herbert Gorman

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 Ap 22 '28 1100w

Boston Transcript p5 Je 16 '28 180w

Dial 85:538 D '28 50w

"His musical sense is strong and his technique varied. The inconsistent and continual stings of emotion that living enforces upon him charge his verse with a frequently upsetting vitality and an undoubted sincerity. He is at his best in this volume, I think, in his elemental pictures, the 'shifting rock' 'turning on its tireless bones.'" Helen Pearce

+ Nation 127:20 Jl 4 '28 350w

"The subjects of many of his poems are those usually accepted as poetic, 'Rainbow's End,' 'Berkshire October,' 'Any Sunset,' etc.—but he nearly always succeeds in giving a turn to these subjects which is new. . . 'Long Feud' is an entirely successful accomplishment, and may stand as representative of the best of Mr. Untermeyer's work. It is sharp and clean, it makes its effect at once, and the expression is well suited to the thought." Theodore Spencer

+ New Repub 55:258 Jl 25 '28 250w

New Statesman 32:16 O 13 '28 100w

"The five years which have elapsed since 'Roast Leviathan' appeared have witnessed the late full flare of a flame which once was harassed and blown askew too frequently by the gusty equips of the mountebank. It burns fiercely now, and more steadily. A fine command of technique has waited a long time for imperative emotion to give it valid subject matter. 'Burning Bush' is the fulfillment." A. K. Laing

+ N Y Evening Post p8 Jl 7 '28 400w

Reviewed by Margery Mansfield

N Y World p7m Jl 1 '28 650w

"A man in whom the poetic glow, so often spent with youth, appears to borrow warmth and vigor from maturity. I am not yet ready to call him a great artist, but I have reached even now the stage where I should be angry with anybody who made a point of denying him that title." O. W. Firkins

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:84 S 1 '28 650w

Springf'd Republican p5f Ag 12 '28 830w

Wis Lib Bul 24:251 O '28

World Tomorrow 11:426 O '28 30w

UNTERMEYER, LOUIS. Moses. 390p $2.50 Harcourt

Moses—Fiction 28-21887

The life-story of Moses, who led the children of Israel "out of the house of bondage." With a heritage half Hebrew slave and half Egyptian royalty, this Moses according to Mr Untermeyer, is pictured as a man in whom a will to power fought with a human weakness for the pleasures of the earth. Urged on by a mighty inner power he led the complaining children of Israel out of Egypt and across sea and land to their new country, but he himself failed to reach the land of contentment.

"In spite of the originality of the author's conception, and the inherent interest of his material, the book is more than a little tedious. . . Nor do the numerous lyrical passages, some borrowed directly from the Bible, others scriptural pastiche, which the author has interpolated to relieve the matter of fact character of the narrative, succeed in giving it depth and color." Babette Deutsch

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 O 7 '28 800w

"We congratulate the poet on this large accomplishment. Some of it is good, some less good. But all of it represents strenuous thought and a lively poetic imagination."

+ Boston Transcript p2 N 3 '28 350w

Cath World 128:508 Ja '29 130w

Cleveland Open Shelf p136 D '28

"Milton could have painted a powerful though wicked Moses, whom we should still revere; Byron might have succeeded in creating a Don Juan Moses whose heroism and leadership would inspire us in spite of his vices; but Mr. Untermeyer has made of Moses a pitiful hero, a lustful prophet, half mystic, half hypocrite, whom we dislike and contemn. In part, at least, Mr. Untermeyer's fine writing and high descriptive power are lost as a result." E. B. Barrett

— + N Y Evening Post p11 O 13 '28 480w

"The situations rise above the distressingly modern diction and a drama so vivid, so absorbing unfolds that one waits breathlessly for the outcome. Except for occasional jarring phrases (Moses in one lapse says 'It won't be long now') the story is told in a style that bespeaks the poet. Paragraph after paragraph is alive with beauty. This is most true of the last part of the book."

+ — N Y Times p6 N 11 '28 800w

"The author has had the happy thought of weaving together with the story of the Lawgiver two figures now of interest to our times, Akhnaton and Tutankhamen. This background presents ample opportunity for a luxuriant exotic tapestry which Untermeyer, the poet, exploits with some success. . . Unreal dialogue and diffuseness handicap the poetry and spiritual element of the book." A. N. Wilder

+ — Outlook 150:1211 N 21 '28 350w

"Mr Untermeyer's handling of his material shows some imaginative vigor. While the modernism of this diction is frequently incongruous, the poet's touch is seen in many passages."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e N 11 '28 680w

Wis Lib Bul 24:307 N '28

World Tomorrow 12:522 D '28 50w

UNTERMEYER, LOUIS; MANNES, CLARA; and MANNES, DAVID, eds. New songs for new voices. 258p il $5 Harcourt

784.8 Children's songs. Songs 28-27601

A book of new songs for children by old and new composers. Most of the settings have been composed especially for this volume which should fill a happy office at school and at home. Illustrated by Peggy Bacon.

Booklist 25:129 D '28

"We conceive of this book's use as especially in the home, for the whole family, where such amusing descriptive music as that for 'Alas I am a Heavy Child' and 'Three Policemen' will find ready audience, as will also the lullabies and the folksongs. Progressive schools trying to get away from the cut and dried in their special assemblies will also welcome it. 'New Songs for New Voices' is decidedly a book to own and enjoy." Marcia Dalphin

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 O 21 '28 1200w

"Harcourt, Brace are to be congratulated on the book not only as a contribution to the mu-

UNTERMEYER, L:, and others, eds.—Continued
sical education of the next generation, but as a piece of bookmaking." Ernestine Evans
+ Nation 127:547 N 21 '28 80w

"It is a pleasure to find that most of the songs here included avoid successfully the mannerisms of conscious simplicity, and to recognize the spontaneity of the impulse which has produced almost all of them. There is little of affectation or even of the insistent whimsicality so frequently encountered in the work of clever artists who are for the moment engaged in being child-like. There is, rather, a large number of attractive little poems, decidedly appealing reflections of the varied emotional episodes of juvenile life, furnished with good tunes simply but considerately developed." E. F.
+ New Repub 57:24 N 21 '28 250w

"One of the outstanding books of the year." Herschel Brickell
+ No Am 226:adv D '28 70w

"A family songbook with settings in which freshness and modernity of treatment are not incompatible with melody and not over the heads or the hands of amateur pianists." M. L. Becker
+ Outlook 150:1335 D 12 '28 60w

" 'New Songs for New Voices' is by way of being an oasis in an especially arid desert. Granted its almost inevitable shortcomings, it does present a collection of songs for children that has been edited by people who possess both taste and a knowledge of their subject. ..What weaknesses the book has are in the music. The words have been set painstakingly and always competently, but not always, to my mind, in such a manner as to make them easy for children to sing." Deems Taylor
+ — Sat of Lit 5:246 O 13 '28 520w

UPJOHN, ANNA MILO. Friends in strange garments. 148p il $1.75; school ed 92c Houghton

Children in Europe 27-19155

These stories describe in word and picture the life and customs of the children of the many countries of the Near East and southern Europe. They are simply and interestingly told and full of interesting detail.

Booklist 24:167 Ja '28
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:230 Ap '28
Wis Lib Bul 24:93 Mr '28

UPSON, WLLIAM HAZLETT. Me and Henry and the artillery. 271p $2 Doubleday, Doran

28-14698

Short, humorous stories about the artillery in the Great war, in which "me" and "Henry" figure most of all. The stories have appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. Contents: The sun of St Mihiel; Little Freddie; Dirty work in the Argonne; The Croix de Guerre; November 11, 1918; Two elegant mules; Charlie the gloomhound; Souvenirs; Good old grandpa; Good old army! Good old war!

"If Mr. Upson has made no startling contribution to the humor of soldiering, he has none the less turned out a not unentertaining vernacular account of what happened to a couple of Hackensack doughboys in the closing months of the World War in France and later in Germany." I. F. Moore
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p11 Ag 26 '28 40w

"One of the very few collections of really good 'buck private' yarns that have come out of the World War."
+ Boston Transcript p4 Jl 28 '28 150w

Reviewed by Robert Wolf
Nation 126:671 Je 13 '28 850w

V

VACHELL, HORACE ANNESLEY. Dew of the sea, and other stories. 407p $2 Putnam [7s 6d Cassell]

27-23636

Light and cheerful stories of love, and business, or both. Contemporary England is the scene. Contents: Dew of the sea; The greatest gift; Treasure trove; Bert's beano; Romance, rattlesnakes and middlemen; The Bosscackle twins; The new member; The dissemblers; The regeneration of Hilary Vance; Plain Jane; The shrimp; Out, pounce, piggy!; The second resurrection of Quix; Narcissa—and a photographer.

"If variety be taken as the measure of a successful volume of short stories, and if diversity of material constitute variety, then Horace Annesley Vachell's fourteen tales must be granted a large degree of success. But in another kind of variety the book is lacking; variety, that is, of treatment. Mr. Vachell's method grows wearing after a time, particularly if you do not happen to care for the method. Most of the stories are trick stories, written primarily for their trickiness." R. B. Sanborn
— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Ag 5 '28 550w

Boston Transcript p4 My 19 '28 150w

"With so accomplished a writer as Mr. Vachell, the tales are, of course, quite readable, but it cannot be said that they are either very distinguished or particularly original."
— + Spec 138:157 Jl 23 '27 50w

Times [London] Lit Sup p486 Jl 14 '27 430w

VACHELL, HORACE ANNESLEY. Men are so selfish! (Eng title Miss Torrobin's experiment). 385p $2 Putnam [7s 6d Cassell]

28-3169

That men are selfish and thoughtless in their relations with women was the chief tenet in Aunt Marcia's creed. For this reason she gave her consent to her nephew's plan to impersonate his sister at a house party. She believed that the experience would teach him a lot about girls, and might also cure his yearning for the stage. Jim went to the houseparty, with his sister Pat as his maid, and things turned out as Aunt Marcia intended they should.

Booklist 24:323 My '28

"The story has its serious as well as its humorous side, and however ridiculous the experiment may seem to be, no one can question that it has its good points." D. L. M.
+ Boston Transcript p5 Mr 24 '28 350w
New Statesman 30:258 D 3 '27 150w
N Y Evening Post p13 Mr 17 '28 80w

"Although the story's skeleton is grotesque and the dialogue almost unintelligible British slang, there is yet verity in the somewhat banal characterizations. The feminist axe gets a good deal of grinding, but the farce, notwithstanding the ludicrous plot, is saved from effeminacy. In the pages of grouse-shooting and deer-stalking on the Scotch moors there is good sport, for any man or woman, selfish or otherwise."
+ — N Y Times p13 Mr 4 '28 280w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:365 Jl '28

"The mere story runs merrily enough; but the style has a tittupping effect most irritating to the nerves." R. A. Taylor
+ — Spec 139:681 O 22 '27 120w

"Mr. Vachell, compromising cleverly between farce and seriousness, makes a most readable book, but some readers will probably prefer him when he forgets his plot and writes of grouse-shooting on Scottish moors, of an epic struggle with a seventeen-pound salmon, and of a stalk of a deer which ended in Jim, happily restored to masculine clothes, missing a simple shot."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p820 N 10 '27 160w

VALE, CHARLES, pseud. See Hooley, A.

VALENTINE, DOUGLAS, pseud. See Williams, V.

VANBRUGH, SIR JOHN. Complete works; the plays ed. by Bonamy Dobrée; the letters ed. by Geoffrey Webb. ltd ed 4v $25 Random house [£3 3s Nonesuch press]

822 [28-18054]

"Three volumes contain the plays and 'A Short Vindication' (Vanbrugh's answer to Jeremy Collier), while the fourth holds as many of his letters as have been collected. The plays have been edited, with an introduction, by Bonamy Dobrée, and Geoffrey Webb has performed the same service for the letters. Bibliographies, theatrical histories and explanatory notes make the edition satisfactory to students; and twelve plates, including a magnificent portrait of Vanbrugh by Kneller, add to the interest and attractiveness of the fourth volume."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p36 Ap 15 '28 780w

"We must be grateful for the enterprise which gives us so scholarly an edition as this of Vanbrugh. Mr. Dobrée and Mr. Webb are both agreeably erudite." Raymond Mortimer

+ Nation and Ath 43:48 Ap 14 '28 600w

"It is indeed a real pleasure to find such editing as Mr. Dobrée's, so careful and yet so unobtrusive and sensible. His introduction is admirable and very brief, giving a skeleton of Vanbrugh's biography but very little criticism."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p287 Ap 19 '28 1800w

VAN BUREN, MAUD, and BEMIS, KATHARINE ISABEL, eds. Mother in modern story. 365p $2 Century

Short stories—Collections. Mothers 28-11320

Contents: Mother and the girls, by Alice Booth; The mother of Gennesaret, by A. S. Turnbull; Mrs Ripley's trip, by Hamlin Garland; Mother Martin's wing, by C. W. Parmenter; Mother gets back on the job, by B. S. Aldrich; The mother, by Ruth Sawyer; The little gold key, by E. B. Delano; Mother's business, by J. W. Tompkins; A cooky-jar mother, by F. H. Townsend; So not to be alone, by C. H. Rhone; The little mother, by E. M. Colson; The mother, by R. H. Schauffler; Mother Harvey's strategy, by O. H. Prouty; The raspberry dress, by A. J. Carver; The mother in paradise, by Eugene Field; The revolt of "Mother," by M. E. W. Freeman; The return, by D. E. Norman-Smith; The mission of Jane, by Edith Wharton; The mother, by Alphonse Daudet.

Booklist 24:405 Jl '28

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Je 24 '28 100w

Boston Transcript p2 My 23 '28 170w

Cleveland Open Shelf p92 Jl '28

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:322 Je '28

Wis Lib Bul 24:192 Je '28

VANDERBLUE, HOMER BEWS, and CRUM, WILLIAM LEONARD. Iron industry in prosperity and depression. 193p il $7.50 Shaw, A.W.

669.1 Iron industry and trade 27-4622

"A presentation of the result of a series of investigations in the iron industry to apply definite statistical methods for the analysis of recorded data, and with the aim of developing a method of forecasting conditions in the industry. Part I deals with prices and production of iron and steel, which respond quickly to changes in the general business situation and hence have been looked upon as a barometer of trade. Part II deals with regional production of pig iron. Part III discusses forecasting conditions in the industry."—Manufacturing Ind

"The book should be of wide interest, not only because of the specific data presented on the iron industry, but because of the statistical methods used."

+ Chem & Met Eng 34:503 Ag '27 110w

Manufacturing Ind 13:382 My '27 300w

VANDERCOOK, JOHN WOMACK. Black majesty; the life of Christophe, king of Haiti. 207p il $2.50 (7s 6d) Harper

Christophe, Henri, king of Haiti. Haiti—History 28-7779

A highly romanticized life of Henry Christophe, the slave who became king of Haiti. The rise and fall of the negro empire, derived from the French revolution, guided by Toussaint L'Ouverture, and brought to a moment's dignity and grandeur by King Henry I, Black Majesty, is dramatically sketched.

"The book, in content, in format, in illustrations, is beautifully done. It deserves careful attention from all scholars and sincere admiration from all intelligent readers." D. L. Hunt

+ Ann Am Acad 140:346 N '28 270w

Booklist 24:406 Jl '28

"Mr. Vandercook's style is beautifully adapted to the telling of such a story as Christophe's. On the surface it is simple, clipped and sparing of gesture. But it has an intensity of mood which allows the accumulation of a vast dramatic effect, without a wearisome recourse to authority in the controversial issues."

+ Bookm 67:xviii Je '28 300w

" 'Black Majesty' is a gorgeous tale, a historical romance or a biographical romance as you choose, as exciting as 'Quentin Durward,' as beautifully written as 'Ariel.' There isn't a dull or badly written page, but it is scarcely possible to turn three pages without encountering inaccuracy, anachronism or theatricalization of one sort or another... Yet there emerges a great portrait, an emotionally and hence basically true portrait, of a great and much misunderstood man." W. B. Seabrook

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 Mr 4 '28 1500w

"The writer has endowed a picturesque and almost legendary figure with new vividness of truth and sympathetic understanding. That much may be expected of any modern biography. He has done more. He has cast the great part and staged the big scene in the pageant-drama of a race. He has come closer than anyone else to writing in exquisite prose the Haitian epic." Ernest Gruening

+ Nation 126:541 My 9 '28 360w

Reviewed by T. S. Matthews

New Repub 55:50 My 30 '28 350w

"As a story it is full of fascinating and romantic touches. But it has three more or less serious faults. In the first place it is written in a rather pretentious style. The second fault is that a good many of his facts appear to be wrong. The third is that he seems greatly to have overestimated both the actual abilities and the achievements of his hero... As a whole the book is an unsatisfactory mixture of history and fiction, which makes it impossible for the ordinary reader to guess where history ends and fiction begins."

— + New Statesman 30:772 Mr 24 '28 750w

"He has a decidedly human historical sense, amid the swift rush and shift of political fortunes. Happily, however, he is a psychologist who sticks to the evidence concerning the figure before him, and does not (as is so much the mode) put into that head all sorts of soliloo-

VANDERCOOK, J: W.—Continued
quies spun out of his own. He has a colorful gift for the picture, always, and a warm, vigorous lucid stroke in writing. But withal, there is something missing. Perhaps it is the accent of style found in the masters." R. C. Holliday
+ — N Y Evening Post p12 Ap 21 '28 840w

"It is an interesting story, told in the 'gripping' fashion of the day's demand. As for its being biography, biography is almost anything today; but when it comes to biography my heart is in the coffin there with Boswell, and I must pause till it comes back to me." C: W. Thompson
+ — N Y Times p10 Ap 1 '28 1300w

" 'Black Majesty' is a brilliant painting of a Negro avatar; an extravaganza portrait of the most extraordinary black man who has appeared in the New World with the blazing background of barbaric Haiti a hundred years ago. The book is superbly conceived and effectually done. In it John Vandercook has surpassed in vivid writing his first Negro book, 'Tom Tom.' " F: O'Brien
+ N Y World p10m Ap 8 '28 1200w

"Mr. Vandercook's studiedly concise style heightens the essential drama of his narrative, which follows in all important details the true account of the rise and eventual ruin of Christophe. Mahlon Blaine has done some fine illustrations for this book, which is quite short, but which makes up in the attractiveness of its format for its brevity."
+ No Am 225:adv My '28 90w

"Mr. Vandercook has made of it a highly glamourous and dramatic story. There are some slight historical inaccuracies, but one would be ungrateful indeed to complain of these in the light of the heightened dramatic effect of the story." Milton Byron
+ Outlook 148:598 Ap 11 '28 250w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:344 Je '28
Pratt p40 autumn '28
St Louis 26:194 Je '28

" 'Black Majesty' has a certain vivid grace. If read as a fluent tale with a biographical basis, but not as history, it will be enjoyed." G. M. Shelby
+ — Sat R of Lit 4:846 My 5 '28 900w

"The story of this man can be read and reread. It is told here so vividly and with such sympathetic insight that even those who are well acquainted with it will find fresh beauty in the life of this great man."
+ Spec 140:571 Ap 14 '28 130w

"A glowing, richly woven story of Haiti under her three black kings. In Black Majesty the Negro reader will find related his heritage of an ancient glory, his right to a royal lineage, the blurred and faded outlines of a once shining coat of arms. . . Aside from the vigorous, often purely poetic style in which it is written, this book has larger and more enduring values. It should serve as a social and moral stimulus to twelve millon people who can well afford the incitement of such short-lived brilliance as is herein inscribed." Countee Cullen
+ Survey 60:183 My 1 '28 500w
Times [London] Lit Sup p278 Ag 19 '28 570w
Wis Lib Bul 24:160 My '28

VAN DE WATER, FREDERIC FRANKLYN. Elmer 'n Edwina. 289p $2 (7s 6d) Appleton
28-5636

Humorous stories of the adventures in school and out of nine year old Elmer and Edwina his devoted satellite, known to each other as Buffalo Bill and Antelope Edward.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Je 3 '28 110w

"Although his Sunday School superintendents and ministers and aunts and teachers seem a bit overdone, and his little girl playmates a trifle unnatural, there is nothing unreal about either Elmer or his chubby little slave. They are really most amusing, and one wonders how the author ever manages to think of so many adventures so different and yet so much alike."
+ — Boston Transcript p2 My 19 '28 200w
N Y Evening Post p13 Mr 3 '28 90w

"Any one who writes nowadays about children for grown-ups must expect to be measured by the standard of 'Penrod' and 'Seventeen.' Mr. Van de Water's 'Elmer 'n Edwina' comes triumphantly out of such a comparison, for it is written with a notable sense of that humor of character and situation of which children usually in their most tragic moments, are, for their elders, unfailing sources."
+ N Y Times p16 Je 10 '28 510w
Times [London] Lit Sup p258 Ap 5 '28 80w
Wis Lib Bul 24:225 Jl '28

VAN DE WATER, FREDERIC FRANKLYN. Hurrying feet. 273p $2 Appleton
28-17215

Corporal John Scarlett of the New York state troopers was much perturbed when he heard that the beautiful Debrett estate near his patrol was to be reopened. His Buddy could not understand it. Then Wade P. Debrett disappeared and weird happenings took place on the estate. The troopers were called in and there was much secrecy and the sound of hurrying feet. And Corporal John Scarlett had a hand in it all.

Reviewed by C: M. Purdy
Bookm 68:234 O '28 40w

"A thoroughly readable item." Will Cuppy
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p9 Ag 12 '28 100w
Boston Transcript p6 Ag 22 '28 220w

" 'Hurrying Feet' is easily above the run of the mystery mill, but what we want from 'F. F. V.' now are more books like 'Elmer 'n' Edwina.' " H. E. Dounce
+ — N Y Evening Post p5 Ag 11 '28 120w
N Y Times p12 S 16 '28 200w
N Y World p7m Ag 5 '28 130w

"A good yarn for hot summer reading, since it's not overstuffed with unnecessary padding." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 149:517 Jl 25 '28 130w
Sat R of Lit 5:251 O 13 '28 100w

"The story is filled with action and the mysterious circumstances under which several characters are found disabled and two slain keep the reader on edge until the mystery is suddenly cleared up in a manner that it is certain will amaze even the most expert in mystery story puzzles."
+ Springf'd Republican p7f Ag 19 '28 120w
Times [London] Lit Sup p689 S 27 '28 90w
Wis Lib Bul 24:254 O '28

VAN DE WATER, VIRGINIA BELLE (TERHUNE) (MRS FREDERIC FRANKLYN VAN DE WATER). Heart of a child; some reminiscences of a reticent childhood. 225p $1.50 Wilde
B or 92 28-26155

In these memories of her childhood Mrs Van de Water shows something of the heart of an unusually sensitive and reticent child, feelings which even now it is difficult for her to express. A childhood that might have been ideally happy was clouded by fears about her family, her religious state, death, and all kinds of childish miseries. The little book is a sincere portrayal of child psychology.

Booklist 24:281 Ap '28

"A somewhat sentimental, but sincere and genuinely poignant little book, a picture of an inarticulate and misdirected childhood that should be of as much use to thoughtful parents as she hopes."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 7 '28 200w

VAN DINE, S. S., pseud. Greene murder case. 388p $2 Scribner

28-9658

The gloomy Greene mansion in New York is the scene of a double tragedy. The eldest sister is shot and killed, the youngest, a sister by adoption, is wounded by an unknown intruder. While Philo Vance and his friend Markham the district attorney, are at work on the case the two Greene brothers are killed. This leaves alive in the sinister household the mother who is a helpless invalid, Sibella her daughter, and Ada the adopted sister. Philo Vance discovers the guilty person in time to save the last surviving member of the family.

Booklist 23:323 My '28

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Ap 8 '28 130w

"Once again S. S. Van Dine has written a detective story that is inimitable and a joy to read. Even the most astute follower of the literature of mystery and crime will probably be unable to discover the culprit until the fifth from the last page. And it is not some stranger thrown in at the last moment for that purpose, either." K. S.

\+ Boston Transcript p6 Ap 28 '28 310w

Cleveland Open Shelf p78 Je '28

Dial 84:522 Je '28 280w

"This is the best detective story I have read this year." Raymond Mortimer

\+ Nation and Ath 43:144 My 5 '28 250w

New Statesman 31:300 Je 9 '28 130w

"This is the detective story of the season and the best I have read since Mary Roberts Rinehart's 'The Red Lamp.'" H. E. Dounce

\+ N Y Evening Post p12 Mr 24 '28 1150w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:322 Je '28

"His story is carefully planned, well articulated and the interest is sustained throughout. But Mr. Van Dine, it seems to us, endows his amateur detective with insufferable affectations, and writes with remarkably little distinction of style." Amy Loveman

\+ — Sat R of Lit 4:760 Ap 14 '28 220w

Spec 140:692 My 5 '28 100w

"The vividest and most baffling murder mystery story of the spring season."

\+ Springf'd Republican p7f Ap 1 '28 380w

Times [London] Lit Sup p361 My 10 '28 180w

Wis Lib Bul 24:163 My '28

VAN DOREN, DOROTHY (GRAFFE) (MRS MARK VAN DOREN). Brother and brother. 314p $2 Doubleday, Doran

28-21591

The first part of the story gives us the family life of the Downings. Mrs Downing is the true head of the house, dependable and kind she tends her small brood, and takes under her care a pale little moron named Laly. Ellery, the eldest son, leaves home and with his going the second phase of the story begins —the relationship and the contrast between Ellery and John. Everything goes wrong for Ellery; he marries the moronic Laly, his talents come to nought, and he turns to money making. Everything goes right for John; he wins artistic success and marries the girl he (and also Ellery) loves. The friendship of the brothers remains steadfast thruout.

Booklist 25:124 D '28

Reviewed by A. B. Parsons

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 S 16 '28 700w

"As a whole there is much to recommend this story. In especial Mrs. Van Doren has pictured here an appealing little group, where two brothers of very similar nature are shown working out their destinies in very different ways. It is the sort of story which might easily have sunk into sentimentality, but instead it has been kept well within the plane of real emotions." D. L. M.

\+ Boston Transcript p5 Ag 29 '28 800w

"It all fits too neatly into a pattern. Dorothy Van Doren has a nice gift for characterization, her analysis of the relationship between the two brothers is delicate and good, but she reminds one of a cool, detached chess player, moving pawns across the board with exquisite skill." E. H. W.

\+ — New Repub 56:310 O 31 '28 150w

"'Brother and Brother' does Mrs. Van Doren credit. She has drawn the members of this family in the round. They are plausible—with the exception, perhaps, of the extraordinarily flabby wife bestowed upon the hapless Ellery Downing."

\+ N Y Times p6 Ag 19 '28 500w

VAN DOREN, MARK. Now the sky, & other poems. 113p $2 Boni

811 28-23676

"Mr. Van Doren's work is of marked simplicity of utterance, an elusive veil for weightier thought."—N Y Times

---

Booklist 25:113 D '28

"There is a perpetual undercurrent of effective and subtle thought in 'Now the Sky;' an instant sensitiveness to beauty; a special power to set free the splendor that hides in apparently slight materials. Mark Van Doren writes with the quietness of good breeding, which implies more passion than most clamor expresses. . . His utterance is too certainly his own ever to be tempted by the false astonishment of eccentricity." Robinson Jeffers

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 D 2 '28 850w

Reviewed by Percy Hutchison

N Y Times p4 N 11 '28 120w

VANE, DEREK. Sign of the snake. 303p $2 Macrae Smith co. [7s 6d Hurst & B.]

28-8134

Dick Verner was a friend worth having; he stuck by Tony Lavant all during the trial and beyond it. Tony was accused of murdering the "Snake," a blackmailer or worse. Lady Gwen Storre, a charming, pampered beauty, stuck by Tony too, and that was where all the trouble arose. For Lady Gwen had a devoted husband, and Tony loved his own wife. Devotion and good sportsmanship came to the fore and a certain measure of peace resulted for Verner, Tony and Tony's wife.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 O 21 '28 80w

"It will be a clever devotee of mystery novels who is able to apprehend the murderer before the author is ready to point at him the accusing finger." F. M.

Boston Transcript p5 N 10 '28 400w

"This differs from the usual run of mystery stories in that the nature of the crime is not specified at the outset and the reader is left to discover it as he goes on. The plot is quite neatly contrived."

\+ Times [London] Lit Sup p937 D 8 '27 60w

VAN EVERY, DALE. A. E. F. in battle; introd. by Maj. Gen. Hanson Edward Ely. 385p $3 Appleton

940.4 United States. Army A.E.F. European war, 1914-1918—United States. European war, 1914-1918—Campaigns 28-12176

The author has made into one graphic narrative an account of the American forces in France, including every division, and every engagement of importance into which they were thrown.

Booklist 25:66 N '28

Boston Transcript p3 Jl 28 '28 200w

VAN EVERY, DALE—Continued

"Such a book is decidedly worth writing, and very likely, decidedly difficult to write. For figures lie outrageously, especially those summing up achievements of military units. Waging his way through these restrictions, Mr. Van Every has done so well that one can't help wishing he had done a little better. Many of his judgments are excellent. . . Nevertheless, the force of his observations is somewhat blunted by Mr. Van Every's apparent eagerness to deal credit all around. Only by the closest application does the reader discover that all of the divisions in France—the Americans, that is—did not perform equally well. . . Nor in choice of minor detail is Mr. Van Every always fortunate." T: Boyd

+ — N Y Evening Post p6 Je 9 '28 780w

"Thus far, it is the only book of its kind. Every engagement in which organized American military units took part in France and Belgium is given a chapter. . . Mr. Van Every has an accomplishment to his credit in turning out a book that is both accurate and readable."

+ N Y Times p10 S 2 '28 780w

"It has the advantages of accuracy and readableness, and should prove very useful as a reference book. Also it answers once and for all the reports that the American troops did nothing of real consequence in the War. It is a brave story as Mr. Van Every details it, and one very much worth the telling." Herschel Brickell

No Am 226:adv Jl '28 70w

"The writer is to be congratulated in steering clear of all controversial matters, though he does not hesitate to give the facts. He does not permit himself to champion the cause of any organization, his sources are undoubtedly reliable, and he indulges in no speculations. The book is written in a most interesting style and is an invaluable reference book for the library." J: W. Wright

+ Portland Evening News p5 N 6 '28 500w

R of Rs 78:adv28 Jl '28 70w

"A readable work which gives a very clear picture of the actual armed combat between the forces commanded by Gen Pershing and those of Germany . . . the deeds of the Americans are not magnified, nor are those of the enemy depreciated."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 My 23 '28 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p715 O 4 '28 330w

VAN GOGH, VINCENT. See Gogh, V. Van

VAN HOESEN, HENRY BARTLETT, and WALTER, FRANK KELLER. Bibliography, practical, enumerative, historical; an introductory manual. 519p $7.50 (27s 6d) Scribner

010 Bibliography. Reference books—Bibliography. Library science 28-17678

Written by two university librarians, the one assistant librarian of Princeton university, the other librarian of the University of Minnesota, this comprehensive handbook of bibliography is based upon teaching experience with upperclass and graduate students. The opening chapter is a discussion of methods of reading, research, collection, and preparation of material. Then follow chapters on subject bibliographies, library science, general reference books, and special, national and universal bibliographies. The last three chapters deal with the history of writing and of printing, book decoration, bookselling and publishing. The book closes with a bibliographical appendix of seventy-eight pages, enumerating the various bibliographies dealt with in the text.

Booklist 25:51 N '28

"The first satisfactory handbook to the subject which has hitherto appeared in the English language. It covers, briefly but comprehensively, all phases of the subject. There will be those who would have wished that the author, with his colleague, had devoted more attention to the details of book-description, of composition, of punctuation, of style, and of format, and less to the history of writing and printing in former times. There will also be those who have wished that there had been in the text less copious references to the literature of the subject. But whatever objections one may have to Mr. Van Hoesen's organization of his material, or to the embarras de richesses which some of his chapters contain, it must be confessed that his book affords a guide to the subject of bibliography such as English readers have not yet had the privilege of consulting." W. S. Wallace

+ — Canadian Hist R 9:253 S '28 600w

"Two university librarians offer in a single volume a brilliant résumé of bibliography in its modern aspects, adapting their work to the needs of the reader who is seeking to expand the range of his reading and giving many helpful suggestions at the same time to the man or woman who may have something to contribute to the world's stock of knowledge but is unfamiliar with the tools of authorship. The book leaves one with the feeling that bibliography is by no means remote from our everyday interest."

+ R of Rs 78:adv28 S '28 70w

St Louis 26:345 N '28

"A student who has worked through this book under a competent teacher will know a good deal more than most bibliographers, but he will not be a bibliographer. We have found it extraordinarily interesting, and the classified lists at the end of the book will bring to the notice of English bibliographers a considerable number of papers and treatises which up to the present have escaped notice on this side of the Atlantic. It should be in the library of every college and teaching institution of the country."

+ Sat R 146:584 N 3 '28 250w

"The manual is almost certain to be of assistance to librarians and teachers of English. The bibliographies should also prove helpful to teachers in several of the other departments in secondary schools." G: A. Works

+ School R 36:795 D '28 300w

"Our examination of both text and bibliographies has left us with a high respect for Mr. Van Hoesen and his collaborator Mr. Walter. The information they offer attains a high standard of accuracy and was well up-to-date when the manuscript was submitted to the publishers (on June 1, 1927). In most cases the compilers write with first-hand knowledge of the books they record, and they have supplemented their own judgment by recourse to specialists. If it be necessary that all these subjects should be dealt with in a single volume approximately of this size, the authors deserve credit for a gallant attempt to achieve success where success seems to us unattainable within the covers of a single volume."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p688 S 27 '28 260w

VAN LOON, HENDRIK WILLEM. Life and times of Pieter Stuyvesant. 336p il $4 Holt

B or 92 Stuyvesant, Peter. New York (city)—History—Colonial period 28-23642

"The book deals much more exhaustively with his times than with Stuyvesant himself, who remains merely one of the central figures in the comedy of Nieuw Amsterdam. The first half of the book, in fact, is given up to historical background; Holland of the early seventeenth century, the unsuccessful Dutch attempts to discover a Northeast Passage to the markets of Cathay, the voyage of Hudson, the accident of Dutch colonization in the New World."—Bookm

---

Booklist 25:117 D '28

Reviewed by T. S. Matthews

Bookm 68:231 O '28 330w

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Ja 6 '29 400w

"The work as a whole is entertaining reading, presenting as it does Mr. Van Loon's interpretation of history which stresses developments in terms of economic and social trends, rather than military and political. The breezy slang of his previous works is not so noticeable, and he goes straight into his subject. He follows out his contentions convincingly. . . His latest book is below Mr. Van Loon at his best. There are far more suitable targets for him to turn his artillery upon." F. E. J.

+ — Boston Transcript p6 Ag 29 '28 500w

"Mr. van Loon's habit of seeing things in the large, of painting huge landscapes with broad strokes of Rubenesque color, is not quite fit for this task. The figure of old Pieter Stuyvesant is almost always submerged beneath a mass of Dutch and Colonial historical data—data that are not presented with that journalistic elan which the author's many followers have come to expect. Occasionally Pieter stumps around, brandishes a formidable fist, and bellows vast Dutch oaths with all the verve of Long John Silver himself; but too often he is as peacefully somnolent as Baltus Van Tassel in 'The Legend of Sleepy Hollow.' "

— Nation 127:665 D 12 '28 100w

"Mr. Van Loon attempts to add to the stock of real information about Stuyvesant by researches in Holland, but the records of New Netherlands were not nearly as well preserved as those of Massachusetts and Virginia. The important new material which he contributes is scanty, perhaps due to no fault of his. His actual contribution is the application to the work of his own novel methods. There are the characteristic illustrations, in impressionistic, silhouette style, by the author, his marked simplicity of words as if writing for children, his recurring processions of short paragraphs, his humor, cynicism or realism (as one chooses to regard it) and his undoubted faculty of being remarkably interesting to many." A. S Will

+ — N Y Times p3 S 30 '28 1450w

R of Rs 78:adv34 O '28 80w

VAN METER, RALPH ALBERT. Bush fruit production. (Farm and garden lib.) 128p il $1.25 Judd

634.7 Berries 28-13922

A small manual by the professor of pomology at Massachusetts agricultural college. Presents simple directions for the successful cultivation of raspberries, red, black, and purple blackberries, dewberries, currants, gooseberries, and blueberries.

Booklist 25:16 O '28

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 My 20 '28 140w

VAN SANTVOORD, SEYMOUR. Saint Francis; the Christian exemplar. 157p $1.50 Dutton

B or 92 Francis of Assisi, Saint 27-22434

A brief study of the character and faith of Saint Francis of Assisi and of the Franciscan legend.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p11 Ap 8 '28 80w

"The book, while not highly critical is nevertheless a sound study, and the very evident objectivity of the author's treatment of his subject lends significance to his appreciation of the little Umbrian."

+ Cath World 127:122 Ap '28 130w

"The book will serve the purpose of familiarizing a fresh group of readers with the salient facts about St. Francis. But Mr. Chesterton has done the same thing much more brilliantly than Mr. Van Santvoord."

J Religion 8:328 Ap '28 110w

VAN TYNE, CLAUDE HALSTEAD. England and America; rivals in the American revolution. (George Watson foundation. Lectures for American history, literature, and institutions) 192p $2.50 Macmillan [6s Cambridge univ. press]

973.3 United States—History—Revolution [28-11581]

Lectures on the American revolution delivered before various student bodies of Great Britain by the head of the department of history, University of Michigan.

"Professor Van Tyne's style is made readable by a keen sense of humor and illumined by a skillful selection of material. The lectures are competently written in the full light of twentieth-century scholarship and for students and intelligent laymen are a valuable résumé. Babbitts and one hundred per cent. Americans should be led to them only after prolonged preparation." F. J. Hinkhouse

+ Am Hist R 33:885 Jl '28 480w

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 Ap 8 '28 550w

"There is almost as much need for such illuminating treatment of the subject as Mr. Van Tyne gives in these lectures in the United States as there can possibly be in Britain, and one wishes that his little book might be read in every home and studied in every history class in this country."

+ N Y Times p11 Ag 26 '28 480w

Reviewed by C. F. Mullett

Pol Sci Q 43:308 Je '28 280w

Pratt p38 autumn '28

Sat R 144:776 D 3 '27 80w

"Wise and witty lectures."

+ Spec 139:1098 D 17 '27 230w

"It is a small book, but admirably lucid and well written; and for those who have not time to read the seven volumes of Osgood's monumental work, or the more compressed but equally scholarly works of George Beer, it provides an excellent summary of the questions at issue."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p120 F 23 '28 600w

VAN VECHTEN, CARL. Spider boy; a scenario for a moving picture. 297p $2.50 (7s 6d) Knopf

28-19963

The astonished author of a Broadway hit becomes a celebrity overnight. Hollywood seizes the new lion, stars and producers fight over him, and he is bullied into signing a contract for a scenario he is neither expected nor allowed to write. An actress carries out her threat to marry him and complete subjection to Hollywood impends. The story is light, and lightly written.

"Mr. Van Vechten has suddenly developed the qualities he previously lacked, namely, authorial humility and objectivity. Except, perhaps, in certain playful references to living literary and artistic lights, the personality of Mr. Van Vechten is practically eliminated from 'Spider Boy.' By this act of artistic self-sacrifice, Mr. Van Vechten has raised himself from a virtuoso in words to a true humorist. . . Mr. Van Vechten's picture is in keeping with the traditions of American humor at its best. Mark Twain, I feel sure, would have enjoyed 'Spider Boy' immensely." Edwin Bjorkman

+ Asheville Times p6 Ag 19 '28 520w

Booklist 25:31 O '28

"Mr. Van Vechten would be very happy if he had attained his object, which was to concoct a witty and fantastic satiric extravaganza out of the absurdities of Hollywood. He has not attained it. He has not even manufactured a passably farcical situation." C. P. Fadiman

— Bookm 68:223 O '28 130w

VAN VECHTEN, CARL—Continued

"Very slyly, Mr. Van Vechten slips into 'Spider Boy' the entire sociological, philosophical, financial and artistic conception of the motion pictures. . . For beauty of sustained effort, for limpidity of its choice of the right words of a clear and flowing narrative, 'Spider Boy' takes first place. Mr. Van Vechten has gone through and left behind all smartness of pose. He handles 'this raucous medley of personalities, this group of indissoluble egos' as flesh and blood and not as decorations." Isa Glenn

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 Ag 19 '28 3200w

"The book is riotously funny viewed in a certain light. It has all the farcical aspects of a group of children playing at a new grown-up game. Everything is out of proportion in this fourth largest industry, and yet like Ambrose you gradually come to like it." D. L. Mann

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 25 '28 1800w

" 'Spider Boy' would like to be a mad, farcical, nonsensical extravaganza in which the insanities of Hollywood and super-productions and temperamental movie stars and Hebraic entrepreneurs are to be touched off with the neatest of hands. But it is not. It is a wearisome and flat burlesque."

— Nation 127:275 S 19 '28 130w

Reviewed by Raymond Mortimer

Nation and Ath 43:735 S 8 '28 30w

"Mr. Van Vechten excels in the pleasure-giving quality of fiction—and not since 'The Blind Bow Boy' has he given so much pleasure as in 'Spider Boy.' " R. M. L.

+ New Repub 56:107 S 12 '28 140w

" 'Spider Boy' is as gay as a piece of music by Rodgers and Hart." Vincent McHugh

+ N Y Evening Post p5 S 15 '28 1150w

"Mr. Van Vechten, since 'Peter Whiffle,' has been a virtuoso of novel technique. He always had his discursive interludes of comic idiosyncrasies. Never before have they dovetailed in such a perfected pattern as is displayed in this roistering farce of a mummer's wonderland. The studded style is restrained to apt usage, and the crackle of his simplified prose gives an ingratiating movement that sends the story spinning on from laugh to laugh." Edwin Clark

+ N Y Times p5 Ag 19 '28 1400w

"It has been a long time since Mr. Van Vechten has written so highly entertaining a book as this, or one that had beneath its surface mockery, what seemed to be so much sound observation." Herschel Brickell

+ No Am 226:adv O '28 120w

"In contradistinction to Van Vechten's previous work, addressed to a special public, 'Spider Boy' seems to have been written with the intention of amusing the average reader; but, to quote Queen Victoria, we are not amused. The best thing about the book is the fitness of style to subject."

— + Outlook 150:830 S 19 '28 430w

Pratt p45 autumn '28

"Mr. Carl Van Vechten has struck a very happy line of farce in 'Spider Boy.' . . Not all Mr. Van Vechten's jokes are good ones, he spreads them too thick; but the general effect is irresistibly funny and light-hearted." L. P. Hartley

+ — Sat R 146:277 S 1 '28 80w

"The humour may be too broad for many English readers, but the story is excellent fun of its kind." Gilbert Thomas

Spec 141:250 Ag 25 '28 70w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 23 '28 520w

"Satirical extravagance of this kind comes very easily to Mr. Van Vechten. There are passages in this new novel of his in which he descends to rather wanton farce, moments in which his humor is of precisely the slapstick variety favoured by Hollywood; but for the most part his satire is pointed and extremely entertaining. The story itself is thinnish, but it flows with a rollicking facility."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p604 Ag 23 '28 500w

VAN WATERS, MIRIAM. Parents on probation. (New republic dollar bks.) 333p pa $1 New republic

173.5 Parents. Family. Children—Management 28-2523

"A keen bird's eye view of this enlightening book may be gained from a casual acquaintance with these titles: The Family in Search of a Goal, Problems Peculiar to Parents, Nineteen Ways of Being a Bad Parent, Some Modern Obstacles to Successful Parenthood, Who is the Legal Owner of this Child? 'I Would Rather Die Than Go Home,' Parents in Search of Education, The Glorious Adventure of Being Grown Up."—Bookm

---

Booklist 24:268 Ap '28

Reviewed by S. D. House

Bookm 67:317 My '28 310w

"She places the family in historical perspective, and child and parent in the great human drama. She is not afraid of literary and scientific references and her mind plays over her subject like a ray of light. As a result parents who would never read a sociological book, may find this one (which they will read for its practical advice) an enrichening experience." Margery Mansfield

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p22 My 13 '28 700w

"No parent can read this volume without a clearer conception of his or her duty and task in respect to the rearing of a family."

+ Boston Transcript p6 My 12 '28 220w

Reviewed by Tess Slesinger

N Y Evening Post p12 F 25 '28 800w

"It is perhaps enough to say that Miss Van Waters's nineteen dont's are a good deal too many. Not that I question the validity of nearly all of them or the fine insight that marks her comment on some of them... Better than nineteen rules would be two or three fundamental laws for parental behavior. Out of her own catalogue Miss Van Waters could easily draw up such a miniature syllabus." Simeon Strunsky

N Y Times p4 F 5 '28 1950w

"Her theories about the mistakes of parents spring directly out of the actual experiences which she records; a minor criticism of her book is that possibly in some instances her accounts of cases ramify more intricately than the layman will assimilate and properly apply, but as a rule her stories are clear and forceful as well as sympathetic and full of penetration of obscure human motives. The chapters on antagonisms between parents and children and on leadership among children and adolescents are among the most valuable in the book; they will be new and suggestive to many thoughtful but inexperienced readers." M. C. Dodd

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:685 Mr 17 '28 780w

"Survey readers are Dr. Van Waters' best audience and we hereby urge them to buy and read and give away this volume, which surely should be runner-up to her Youth in Conflict."

+ Survey 59:529 Ja 15 '28 250w

VARBLE, RACHEL M. Red cape. 248p il $2 Little

28-19290

The adventures of a twelve-year-old princess who fled her country during a revolution. She found shelter with some kindly peasants, but soldiers came searching for her. So she borrowed the red cape which had once belonged to the real Red Riding Hood and went away to look for work and a safe hiding place. When the revolution ended the Princess Fay reëntered her own country in triumph. But she never forgot the months she spent as a wanderer in a little red cape.

Boston Transcript p4 S 8 '28 130w

"This is a well constructed tale, a little out of the usual in setting, realistically written, and with enough growing-up interest to satisfy the rather difficult reader of eleven or twelve."

Sat R of Lit 5:358 N 10 '28 130w

VASSILLI, COUNT PAUL, pseud. See Radziwill, C.

VAUGHAN, HILDA (MRS CHARLES MORGAN). Invader; a tale of adventure and passion. 339p $2.50 Harper [7s 6d Heinemann]
28-17647

Welsh shepherds up in arms against the English landlord form the dour background of this story. Daniel Evans, a tenant farmer, loves the land which he works and hopes with all the powerful strength of his suppressed being to become the owner of it. Then a new owner, an English owner and a woman at that, comes to Wales. Daniel has made enemies enough in all conscience by his cruelty and closeness, but this is a question deeper than personal fear and hatred. As one man the Welsh unite to drive out the usurper and succeed. The charming love story of the country doctor and the girl who accompanies the English woman lightens the darkness.

Booklist 25:72 N '28

"The characters are types, cut and dried; and they are not even living types, but mechanical creations to represent a certain class of persons."

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p25 S 23 '28 250w

"An exceptional example of good realism mated with a good story." J. F. S.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Jl 25 '28 950w

Cleveland Open Shelf p122 N '28

"The idealistic doctor and the charming girl who float on the surface of Hilda Vaughan's tale might have been manufactured by any well-disposed romanticist; but the tempestuous, avaricious, ruthless love of her Welsh farmers for their bleak mountain soil is conveyed with a passionate realism that makes the book notable." A. B. Parsons

+ — Nation 127:401 O 17 '28 350w

"With skill, distinction, and ingenious characterisation does Miss Vaughan present the struggle of this unsympathetic Englishwoman against the boycott and organised trickery of Daniel Evans and his neighbors. On the other hand, Miss Vaughan lets us down badly in her attempts to portray the Englishwoman's friends."

+ — New Statesman 31:706 S 15 '28 150w

"Hilda Vaughan uses the pungent Welsh dialect effectively in 'The Invader.' It is a dour and unlovable people that Miss Vaughan portrays with so much honesty, sardonic humor and sympathy."

+ Outlook 149:715 Ag 29 '28 280w

" 'The Invader' is a memorable story; its broadest and slightest effects are exquisitely harmonized and proportioned, and Miss Vaughan may well be proud of it." L. P. Hartley

+ Sat R 146:277 S 1 '28 220w

"The rustic Welsh are notoriously hostile to their landlord class, a racial characteristic which is given vigorous play as the motive of this distinctive, richly entertaining novel."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:110 S 8 '28 230w

"The Invader is a very sensitive and beautiful piece of work. It is not quite free from caricature. But it presents, upon the whole, a balanced and convincing study of human wills in conflict." Gilbert Thomas

+ Spec 141:250 Ag 25 '28 250w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 16 '28 900w

"A novel that is obviously worth while to read, a novel made up of strong and careful writing and of characters who have their feet planted firmly on their Welsh soil, and who have an authentic existence outside the covers of a book. But, running through the book from the first page to the last, is a jagged thread of clumsiness that rips up the progress of the narrative and catches and diverts the reader's attention. It is a technical clumsiness, the clumsiness an amateur playwright shows in getting his people on and off the stage."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p604 Ag 23 '28 480w

VAUGHAN, WAYLAND FARRIES. Lure of superiority; a study in the psychology of motives. 307p $3; student's ed $2.40 Holt
150 Psychology. Behaviorism (psychology)
28-14266

This study in the psychology of motives discusses the process by which a man transcends his physical or mental handicaps, seeking to overcome his sense of inferiority or to compensate for it in some other field of activity.

Reviewed by A. H. Sutherland

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 N 18 '28 300w

"Professor Vaughan has given us an original and highly impressive contribution to the literature of psychology." E. N.

+ Boston Transcript p3 Jl 7 '28 830w

"It is derivative in scope and content, containing little original material but explaining, without the obstruction of too many technical terms, how the will to achieve often operates most forcibly with handicapped personalities. . . In manner and frequently in matter Mr. Vaughan's work is reminiscent of certain 'success' and popular psychology works, although his approach is more academic than many and his topic arrangements provide an effect of novelty." Halsey Raines

N Y Times p9 Jl 29 '28 750w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

No Am 226:adv S '28 50w

Reviewed by Paul Jones

World Tomorrow 12:519 D '28 250w

VEAL, T. H. P. Disposal of sewage; a text-book for the use of engineers, sanitary inspectors, and students. 173p $4.25 Van Nostrand
628.3 Sewage disposal

"The essentials of sewage treatment are here clearly outlined. That the outlook of the author and most of his illustrative examples of practice are British add to the value of the book for readers outside Great Britain, all the more so because practice in other countries is not overlooked. . . After a historical chapter the author takes up sewage quantity and analyses, preliminary processes, sedimentation, bacteria beds, bio-aeration (activated-sludge process), land treatment, sludge disposal, plant layout and costs, and rural problems."—Eng N

"The book possesses much value as a condensed story of the development and progress of the science of sanitation in England. The larger number of illustrations help much in visualizing the mechanical methods employed." G. L. Robinson

+ Chem & Met Eng 35:429 Jl '28 180w

Eng N 100:787 My 17 '28 250w

"This book gives a very interesting picture of sewage disposal as practiced in England. . . From the American viewpoint the weakness of the book lies in its failure to indicate the high state of development attained in the activated-sludge process of sewage disposal, which is probably the most satisfactory and mose efficient method known today. However, any student of sewage disposal will find the book well worth having, if only for its fine presentation of British methods." J: A. Wilson

+ Ind & Eng Chem 20:776 Jl '28 280w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:466 O '28

VEDETTE, pseud. See Williams, V.

VEILLER, BAYARD. Trial of Mary Dugan; a melodrama of New York life, in three acts. 144p il $1.50 French
812 28-12905

The trial of Mary Dugan, of the Follies, is for the murder of her lover, who was found in her apartment dead from a knife-thrust in the back. Her lawyer, West, does not seem over-excited in her defense; the case looks black for Mary Dugan. The big surprise of the case is the appearence of Mary's young lawyer brother from San Francisco. He takes the case at a moment's notice and saves his sister from almost certain sentence of death.

VEILLER, BAYARD—Continued

Booklist 25:21 O '28
Wis Lib Bul 24:190 Je '28

VENNER, NORMAN. Brief candle. 307p $2.50 Bobbs
28-21417

Oliver Honey may live as a semi-invalid indefinitely; without such care he has but six months to live. Oliver chooses the latter course. He winds up his affairs and sets out, in the time that is left to him to discover what life means, to him and to others. A plump little widow has something to tell him; a tramp offers other ideas; a rector and his wife and a daring young heiress contribute their credos. None of these is enough. Still unsatisfied, in a last painful, heroic gesture, generous, ironic, Oliver gives his life to save others.

"Frequently Mr. Venner becomes so aroused by his hero's adventure that he utilizes him for little better than a peg upon which to hang his theories. Nevertheless, we recommend 'Brief Candle' as an honest and beautifully written novel."
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 O 7 '28 400w
Boston Transcript p2 O 13 '28 430w
N Y Times p35 N 18 '28 500w

"The book is well above the average in achievement."
+ Sat R of Lit 5:491 D 8 '28 300w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 7 '28 230w

VEQUIN, CAPINI, pseud. See Quinn, V.

VERGA, GIOVANNI. Cavalleria rusticana, and other stories; tr. by D. H. Lawrence. 301p $2.50 Dial press [6s J. Cape]
28-20569

Short stories translated from the Italian. Upon the title story is based the opera of the same name which is famed the world over.

Booklist 25:124 D '28

"Aside from the preface, which is good criticism, vigorous and thoughtful, there is a good deal to be said for Verga's short stories, which, written with an attempted detachment, are informed with a very great and very deep pity for the peasants." Herschel Brickell
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p23 O 21 '28 430w

"The only serious impediment to 'Cavalleria Rusticana' is discussed by Mr. Lawrence and explained away; it is the obstinate ferocity of the climaxes, which exhibit the knife and crowbar in all their glory." Edmund Blunden
Nation and Ath 42:852 Mr 10 '28 180w

"Mr. Lawrence suggests that Verga is a greater and more important artist than Tchekov. This volume gives one reason to think that he may be right."
+ New Statesman 31:338 Je 16 '28 220w
Reviewed by Vincent McHugh
+ N Y Evening Post p8m O 20 '28 1200w

" 'Cavalleria,' 'La Lupa,' 'Jeli' and 'Rosso Malpeto' are the best stories in the book. The others are either more trivial, more conventional, or less effective in treating the same situation of revenge. But these four are enough to keep any name alive."
+ — N Y Times p8 O 14 '28 620w

"The stories deal, simply and badly, with the stark realities of peasant life—love, lust, jealousy and revenge. But Mr. Lawrence, who contributes an interesting biographical and critical preface, is right in claiming that Verga's characters are less 'merely physically and materially functioning' than Zola's, with which they are often compared."
Spec 140:847 Je 2 '28 80w
Times [London] Lit Sup p168 Mr 8 '28 500w

VERONA, GUIDO DA. Woman who invented love; La donna che inventò l'amore; tr. from the Italian by May M. Sweet. 336p $2.50 Dutton
28-16717

A dramatic story, translated from the Italian, of a woman who inspired the love of many men, and died the victim of one of them. Antonella, adored daughter of a money-lender, is seduced by a young officer, the Count of Montefalcone, who is forced into marriage with her. To make sure of her husband's devotion she engages in a flirtation with Prince Lanzo. The affair rouses Don Massimo, an old family friend, to such jealous frenzy that he kills Antonella and himself.

Boston Transcript p4 S 15 '28 90w
Reviewed by Vincent McHugh
N Y Evening Post p5 Ag 18 '28 200w

"An Italian best-seller, Guido da Verona's is a thrilling story. It is melodramatic beyond question, but da Verona knows how to tell an exciting tale, and he has done it well in this yarn of life among the upper classes of his native land." Herschel Brickell
+ No Am 226:adv Ag '28 70w

"A writer of the 'speak-you-cursed-woman' school, he provides inhibited and frustrated readers with vicarious emotions. The result is a lush mess guaranteed to please anyone with a taste for overripe fruit."
— Sat R of Lit 5:11 Jl 28 '28 180w

"Whether or not Da Verona intended it so, the story is an indictment of Roman society."
Springf'd Republican p7f Jl 15 '28 380w

VESTAL, STANLEY. Kit Carson; the happy warrior of the old West; a biography. 297p $3.50 Houghton [15s Hodder & S.]
B or 92 Carson, Christopher 28-7536

In a non-literary, zestful style that fits the subject, Mr Vestal retells the story of the picturesque career of Kit Carson, "the greatest of the frontiersmen," who was mountain man, plainsman, pathfinder, soldier, and peacemaker with the Indians.

Booklist 24:363 Je '28

"Direct, unpolished, Kit Carson emerges from the wilderness an exponent of the basic virtues. Mr. Vestal has given him a vivacious life-size portrait in a very readable book. Here and there he has overlooked an important fact. He stresses too much the physical prowess, the clear wit, the fine courage of his hero, destroying by neglect the side of Carson that might be called his 'soul.' But the man, the personality, of Carson is left real enough, and as one finishes one feels that this is the way the story of King Arthur's knights would sound if all the glamor of re-interpretation were removed." Sydney Greenbie
+ — Bookm 67:320 My '28 130w
Reviewed by C: J. Finger
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 Mr 18 '28 1200w
Boston Transcript p4 Ap 25 '28 400w
Cleveland Open Shelf p89 Jl '28
Dial 85:358 O '28 100w

"The book is a happy blend of facts, out of which arises true romance, and of enlightened interpretation. The style is at once succinct and poetic." J. F. Dobie
+ Nation 126:650 Je 6 '28 320w

"It is condensed, swift and vivid, attempting in narrow compass a character sketch of the famous scout, a study of the life of the mountain men and buffalo hunters." Allan Nevins
+ New Repub 54:sup401 My 16 '28 650w

"A true tale well and simply told." F: H. Martens
+ N Y Evening Post p5 Ag 18 '28 230w

"When pestilent blatherskites hang his memory about with rags and tags, when they name him with flattery on their lips, they make of themselves contemptible nuisances upon whom every true frontiersman would tread with deserved scorn. Kit Carson, indeed, was no hero. He was a man through and through. To make that clear has been Mr. Vestal's self-appointed job. It is what he had to say and he has said it in direct and forcible manner." C: J. Finger
+ N Y World p10m Mr 18 '28 920w

"A fine biography that is an addition of first importance to the number that have recently been done upon American frontier characters."
+ No Am 225:adv My '28 150w

"As thrilling a story of Indian fighting and the pioneer days on the Western frontier as one could find within the pages of a book. It is written in a thoroughly readable and interesting style and presents Kit Carson as a man rather than as a character or a hero." Milton Byron
+ Outlook 148:596 Ap 11 '28 280w
St Louis 26:194 Je '28

"A racy narrative; picturesque, strong in local color, and admirably written. Mr. Vestal knows his country and his characters both white and red—and two in one. If the narrative is somewhat episodic, and confined to the high-lights in Carson's career, nevertheless it would sketch him truly; and if it is upon the motion-picture order, it is a good motion-picture, and to the vogue." E. L. Sabin
+ Sat R of Lit 4:817 Ap 28 '28 1450w

"In his effort to give authenticity to his new portrait of Kit Carson and to avoid making him out the incredible hero which earlier biographies tended to do, Mr Vestal has nearly committed the mistake of giving too much attention to background with the result that while his picture of the hero and his setting is perhaps truthful, it just barely comes to life. This is an impression which persists until one approaches the end of the book. In the last few chapters, Mr Vestal seems to have let himself go a bit and the result is that Kit Carson glows in those pages and one feels the honesty, the courage and the resourcefulness of this little man who was both feared and respected by the Indians and who was one of the truly great figures of the Old West."
Springf'd Republican p12 Ap 13 '28 650w

"In spite of his initial flourishes, Mr. Vestal is a thoroughly competent vates. He so describes Kit Carson as to confirm the claim made for him that it was he who won for the United States the Indian stronghold of the South-West. The adventures in which Carson bears the chief part would make a gorgeous film, yet he is more interesting than they are."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p733 O 11 '28 780w
Wis Lib Bul 24:126 Ap '28

Reviewed by R. H. Gabriel
Yale R n s 18:185 S '28 380w

VIAUD, JULIEN. See Loti, P., pseud.

VICTORIA, queen of Great Britain. Letters of Queen Victoria; second series; a selection from her majesty's correspondence and journal between the years 1862 and 1885; pub. by authority of his majesty the king; ed. by George Earl Buckle. 3v v 3, 1879-1885. 738p il $9 Longmans [25s Murray]

B or 92 Great Britain—History—19th century. Europe—Politics

The third and concluding volume in the second series of Queen Victoria's letters covers the years from 1879 to 1885.

Booklist 24:363 Je '28

Reviewed by A. W. Sachar
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 Ap 15 '28 900w

Reviewed by Edmund Noble
Boston Transcript p2 F 18 '28 1350w

"The first two volumes in the second series of Queen Victoria's Letters contained some long, dreary tracts. But this third volume is quite different; owing to the amazing lack of discretion in the Queen at this period of her life, it is of the greatest interest, human, political, and historical." Leonard Woolf
+ Nation and Ath 42:617 Ja 21 '28 1100w
New Statesman 30:465 Ja 21 '28 2100w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson
N Y Times p3 F 5 '28 1600w

Reviewed by L. F. Abbott
Outlook 148:478 Mr 21 '28 780w
Sat R 145:59 Ja 21 '28 1300w

"The editing is excellent, and the typographical work almost perfect. As a source for the period, this series is invaluable; yet of exceptional interest also. The events discussed are not yet in the limbo of forgotten things, and for some, at least, there will be many a name and place mentioned which will strike the chords of memory." W. S. Hayward
+ Sat R of Lit 4:735 Ap 7 '28 850w

"In no other monarchical country would the Sovereign have given permission for some of the letters in this volume to be published. The first thing which it is necessary to say is that a wondering admiration is excited by the openhandedness, the frankness, and the complete confidence in his subjects with which the King has acted in this matter. . . These letters have been admirably edited by Mr. Buckle with just the right amount of concise explanation."
+ Spec 140:85 Ja 21 '28 2350w

"This third volume has been awaited with much interest, and it is perhaps the most important in an important group of books." H. K.
+ Springf'd Republican p7f Mr 4 '28 1500w

"The volume fully equals in importance and attractiveness its two predecessors. As in them, Mr. Buckle has done his editing with something of the craft of the perfect stage-manager, whose triumph is to be unnoticed in his work. But he must not be allowed to escape our gratitude; a less skilful hand might have halved our pleasure and profit."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p35 Ja 19 '28 3100w

Reviewed by S. K. Ratcliffe
Yale R n s 17:794 Jl '28 1350w

VIERECK, GEORGE SYLVESTER, and ELDRIDGE, PAUL. My first two thousand years; the autobiography of the Wandering Jew. 501p $2.50 Macaulay

28-22577

Cursed with perennial life and youth, Isaac Laquedem becomes a perpetual wanderer. From the time of Christ, when his doom is pronounced, to the twentieth century when in an hypnotic trance he tells the connected story of his wanderings, he is a witness to the coming of the new and the survival of the old in every age. He has examined all learning and all philosophies; he has explored all the mysteries of sex, and triumphed in all save one, the conquest of Salome. "His story is an erotic interpretation of history."

"Instead of leaving the reader stimulated, this would-be entertaining and philosophic tome leaves him prostrated. The quality of life, so difficult to define, so essential to any healthy piece of literature, is absent."
— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 N 18 '28 650w

"The story captures the reader's interest in the beginning and holds it enthralled through every short chapter to the very end of the five hundred and one pages. The number is significant. It recalls those gentle tales of the thousand and one nights." T. S.
+ Boston Transcript p2 O 10 '28 580w

"The halfpenny cynicism in which the authors revel is of the type which results from a protracted adolescence. The greatest mystery of it all is that the authors, if not the book, come commended, however guardedly, by no less persons than Sigmund Freud, George Bernard Shaw, and Havelock Ellis." W: Seagle

VIERECK, G: S., and ELDRIDGE, P.—Cont.
— Nation 127:578 N 28 '28 450w

" 'My First Two Thousand Years' has occasional defects, but, outweighing these, are pages of beauty, clearly seen and transcribed, and chapters of adroit and smiling satire; and throughout there persists the restless reach of man toward a forever elusive finality." Fulton Oursler
+ — N Y Evening Post p8m N 10 '28 700w

"Cartaphilus's speculations and comprehensions about life, as without growing older, he watches others grow old and idle; his amatory experiences, his judgments of great men of history, his increasing self-knowledge—all these give the book substance and intellectual stimulation, as well as a very occasional brilliance. But in no major sense does the book triumph over its inherent difficulties. It is not history surveyed from a high philosophic peak, but history regarded by two intelligent minds. It is all human experience collected and annotated, but not interpreted with any profundity. So is its irony without depth, its wit without freshness."
— + N Y Times p28 O 28 '28 680w

"This is in many respects an astonishing book, and in all respects one that deserves attention." Herschel Brickell
+ No Am 226:adv N '28 90w

VIERESSAEV, V. V. Deadlock; tr. from the Russian by Nina Wissotzky and Camilla Coventry. 384p $2 Century [7s 6d Faber & G.]

The conflicting armies of the Reds and Whites sweep across a small town in Russia leaving a backwash of class hatreds and suspicions. Professor against artisan, workman against peasant, the village is torn with dissension. In the midst of it walks Katia Ivanovna, the professor's daughter, holding on to dignity and sanity, helping where it is possible, and hoping for peace.

Reviewed by Dorothy Brewster
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 O 21 '28 600w
Cleveland Open Shelf p123 N '28

"The story unfolds a swift and vivid sequence of events leading to an inconclusiveness which is itself significant."
+ Dial 85:265 S '28 60w

"To call the book a novel seems a misleading euphemism for a series of ill-focused snapshots of the sufferings and cruelties inflicted on peasant and burgess alike. Out of the hodgepodge one impression detaches itself with force—that of the tragic and unbridgeable gulf that exists between man and man; but that the author should find it necessary to illustrate the hopeless nature of this disparity at such length is to be deplored."
— Living Age 334:845 My 1 '28 230w

"A very interesting book. The original, like the translation, has, one imagines, no great literary value; but the author's unpretentious fidelity to the facts under his nose gives an impression of immediate reality to the fantastic horrors he describes." Edwin Muir
+ Nation and Ath 40:802 Mr 12 '27 120w

"While the author's real purpose is to give us all the balancing pros and cons that lead to the deadlock, he also manages to write a vivid, solid, and often very exciting novel, populated with a large and varied collection of absorbingly distinct characters." Robert Littell
+ New Repub 55:26 My 23 '28 580w
N Y Times p9 My 13 '28 450w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:432 O '28

"For anyone with a strong stomach 'The Deadlock' is an instructive and illuminating book, not as a study of individuals but as a record of primitive tribes." L. P. Hartley
+ Sat R 143:401 Mr 12 '27 700w

"Not the least noteworthy of the novel's qualities is the healthy air which blows through it. There is none of that neurasthenic despair which comes from the refugee's sedentary long-distance brooding. One gets the feeling that the author has actually lived, breathed and worked—however uncomfortably—amidst the scenes he describes. And doing so, he knows that even Bolsheviks are people." Arthur Ruhl
+ Sat R of Lit 4:866 My 12 '28 480w
Spec 138:386 Mr 5 '27 130w

"The book moves in jerks like a kaleidoscope, clear-edged patterns come and go, but there is no real beginning, no continuity, no real end—the march of events, in fact, has all the untidiness and unexpectedness of life. The translation, by Nina Wissotzky and Camilla Coventry, is admirable."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p142 Mr 3 '27 500w

VILLARD, OSWALD GARRISON. Prophets true and false. 355p $3.50 (15s) Knopf
920 United States—Biography. Statesmen, American 28-15599

A gallery of vigorous portraits of men and women in public life, drawn by the editor of the Nation. Some of the studies were first published in the Nation in a series called Presidential possibilities. Contents: Alfred E. Smith; Herbert C. Hoover; Charles E. Hughes; William E. Borah; Charles G. Dawes; Frank O. Lowden; James A. Reed; George W. Norris; Albert C. Ritchie; A. Victor Donahey; Thomas J. Walsh; Charles Curtis; Woodrow Wilson; Colonel E. M. House; Robert M. La Follette; William J. Bryan; Franklin K. Lane; Robert Lansing; Philander C. Knox; Henry Cabot Lodge; Leonard Wood; Henry Ford; William R. Hearst; Henry Lee Higginson; Anna Howard Shaw; Abraham Jacobi; Karl Bitter.

Booklist 25:27 O '28
Reviewed by Silas Bent
Bookm 68:346 N '28 120w
Reviewed by W: M. Houghton
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 Je 24 '28 1050w

"His book is packed with the fruits of his experience. There is no futile speculation or gaudy theorizing in it; it is direct, specific, harsh, realistic. The men and women he discusses, in the main, are men and women he has known intimately and seen with clear eyes. They never appear as the mere embodiments of ideas; they are done in the round, and with due care for the warts. . . Mr. Villard is shy of rhetoric, but he knows very well how to write. He gets his effects simply, but with the quiet assurance of an old journalist." H. L. Mencken
+ Nation 127:90 Jl 25 '28 880w

"The short study of the supreme tragedy of Woodrow Wilson is one of the best things in a volume remarkable alike for special knowledge, penetration, and power of the pen."
+ New Statesman 31:648 S 1 '28 200w

"Mr. Villard is both a gifted journalist, with a fine journalistic tradition behind him, and an inveterate defender of under dogs and minority causes. He is a shrewd observer of human nature and also at all times something of a propagandist. The present book of sketches exhibits him in all these rôles. It is workmanlike, conscientious and eminently readable, but it rarely pretends, much less attains, to anything like aloofness. He is not likely in any instance to utter the last word in critical biography." R. L. Duffus
+ N Y Times p7 Je 24 '28 1050w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:492 O '28
R of Rs 78:112 Jl '28 70w
St Louis 26:358 N '28
Sat R of Lit 5:71 Ag 25 '28 550w
Spec 141:139 Jl 28 '28 500w

"Despite the welcome outspokenness of Mr. Villard's opinions and the spirit of his language, the reader will wish that the author had oftener weighted down his impressions with calmly objective analysis."

— + Springf'd Republican p12 Jl 6 '28 840w
World Tomorrow 11:426 O '28 30w

VINAL, HAROLD. Stranger in heaven. 65p pa $2 Vinal

811 27-18244

"Mr. Vinal is a publisher as well as a poet and he now pours some of his own wine into one of his bottles; an attractive bottle it is, and the wine also is good."—Boston Transcript

---

"He shows his increasing skill at working with fragile petals, at singing over them with a simple lyric cry, at calling on the constellations for aid, and remembering the Bible with an ancestral instinct." C: Divine
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 O 2 '27 180w

"Sincerity and a very definite achievement mark this collection of verses."
+ Boston Transcript p8 O 15 '27 200w

"Grace, competence, music, brevity, grace. . . are the qualities of these sonnets and not unadmirable lyrics. Their charm, which is of the past, atones partly for their lack of vision; and a persuasive eloquence takes the place of the strangeness which can come only from a new sensibility."
Dial 84:71 Ja '28 40w

"His purely pictorial sonnets are good; his macabre bits are even better. 'Two in a House' and 'Waiting Coach' would distinguish any volume; 'Bread of Life' and 'Widow' in their limited greys surpass all the purple patches in this or Mr. Vinal's previous books."
+ Sat R of Lit 4:475 D 24 '27 420w

VOGT, WILLIAM C. Bait-casting. 102p il $2.50 (10s 6d) Longmans

799.1 Fishing. Fly-casting 28-13923

The author, a well known expert with fly-rod and bait-casting rod, gives in this book the benefit of his experience for other less expert fishermen. Contents: Rods and reels; Experiments with bait-casting lines; Artificial baits; Learning to bait-cast, strike, and play a fish; How to find fish; Weather, haunts, and instincts; Special problems: muskellunge, pickerel, and pike, river fishing, chubitis and bullitis; Theories and experiments; How to take care of fish.

Booklist 25:63 N '28

"Without question Mr. Vogt is really an expert in bait and fly casting, and his book bears the stamp of that authority. The book is of convenient size to fit into the fisherman's pocket or into some odd corner of the pack, and it is full of useful information without undue verbiage."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 14 '28 250w

"He has the knack of putting his advice clearly and briefly; and the originality of many of his terse and racy anecdotes makes his book good reading. Its attraction is enhanced by the abundant technical and scenic illustrations."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p539 Jl 19 '28 100w

VOLLARD, AMBROISE. Degas, an intimate portrait; auth. tr. from the French by Randolph T. Weaver. 149p il $3 Greenberg [12s 6d Allen & U.]

B or 92 Degas, Hilaire Germain Edgar 27-24363

"In this small volume M. Vollard does for Degas what he previously did for Renoir and Cezanne. The famed eccentricities of the painter, his reputation as a sort of ogre, furnish the theme for most of Vollard's notations; the cumulative result is an impression that Degas had a very marked inferiority complex—he was, in fact, soft and timid, and when fame brought its accompaniment of constant annoyance from the stupid and the sycophantic he had to protect himself by extraordinary roughness and gruffness."—N Y Evening Post

---

Bookm 67:xxviii My '28 200w

"This short volume by M. Vollard, far from being 'an intimate portrait,' throws no ray of light on that subject. It is nothing but a rambling series of anecdotes, some of them amusing, some of them stupid, few of them illuminating, a peddler's pack of such studio gossip as one has learned to expect from Vollard. The preface by Harold Van Doran is a straightforward piece of writing, and except for its laudation of the pages which it precedes, intelligent." Babette Deutsch
— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p13 My 6 '28 530w

"The book has been conceived and executed in the conversational mood and style. The charm of such intimate biography is indisputable, and in this particular case is enhanced by the added attraction of the amusing genius and diverting eccentricities of Degas himself." M. E. M.
+ Boston Transcript p4 D 28 '27 750w

"This portrait, composed for the most part of flat anecdotes, is scarcely worthy of Degas, the artist. The most important part of the volume is the sixteen reproductions in gravure of Degas' work."
— Ind 119:661 D 31 '27 120w
Nation 127:93 Jl 25 '28 140w
Nation and Ath 43:333 Je 9 '28 450w
New Repub 55:53 My 30 '28 180w

"It is aptly called a portrait, though of the suggestive incompleteness of a sketch, built up of little touches. The man Degas comes to life; but twice as long a book would have been twice as good." Shaemas O'Sheel
+ N Y Evening Post p13 Ja 28 '28 550w

"So deftly are these trifles assembled that Vollard's translator would seem to be quite justified in asserting that 'in a few swift and vivid flashes the figure of the master stands out clear and poignant, drawn with the same verve and subtlety as are to be found in one of his own delightful pastels for which he is so justly famous.'" E: A. Jewell
+ N Y Times p16 Je 3 '28 600w

"As compared with M. Vollard's rich reminiscenses of Cézanne and Renoir, the present volume on Degas is thin pickings. Save for its sixteen fine illustrations, neat make, and obvious eligibility as a gift, it is of small importance."
— + Sat R of Lit 4:557 Ja 28 '28 220w
Spec 141:224 Ag 18 '28 90w
Times [London] Lit Sup p107 F 16 '28 880w

VOLZ, EMIL CONRAD. Home flower-growing. (Rural science ser.) 342p il $3.50 (15s) Macmillan

716.2 Gardening. Floriculture 28-9304

From the professor of floriculture, Iowa state college, comes a book on house and garden flowers written with interest as well as with authority. Professor Volz describes the planting and care of a great variety of in-door and out-door blooms, and adds a word on the arrangement of flowers in the home and for special occasions. The illustrations are many and attractive.

Booklist 25:19 O '28

Reviewed by R. S. Lemmon
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Je 17 '28 330w

"Here is a variety of reading that will delight the heart of the garden lover. It represents the very latest word along certain lines." F. P. H.
+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 18 '28 120w
J Home Econ 20:445 Je '28 30w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:336 Je '28
Wis Lib Bul 24:221 Jl '28

VORONOFF, SERGE. Conquest of life; tr. by G. Gibier Rambaud. 201p il $3.50 (15s) Brentano's

612.602 Glands, Ductless. Transplantation (physiology). Rejuvenation 28-22093

Dr Voronoff begins with an explanation of the now familiar functions of the glands of the human body and continues with a description of his experiments with gland transplantations in animals and the resulting rejuvenescence. From these operations Dr Voronoff draws his widely heralded conclusions concerning human rejuvenation.

"The Conquest of Life is sensibly, and even modestly, written. Dr. Voronoff does not repeat the preposterous claims that have been made by other people for his methods of grafting and 'rejuvenation.' He has been most successful, as this book plainly shows, in his experiments on animals—bulls, rams, stallions and goats. The accounts which he gives of these experiments, together with photographs, are striking, and, so far as they go, convincing. There is no doubt at all that Dr. Voronoff's discoveries are of the first importance to agriculturalists. But his treatment of human beings is, even on his own showing, less remarkable."

New Statesman 32:198 N 17 '28 300w

Reviewed by L. M. Fishbein, M.D.
Sat R of Lit 5:423 D 1 '28 1100w

VORSE, MARY MARVIN (HEATON) (MRS ROBERT MINOR). Second cabin. 319p $2 Liveright

28-25816

The author takes us second cabin from Germany to New York with a medley of comfortable housewives, bearded doctors, salesmen, "picture brides," and women and girls of certain charms and uncertain virtue. We watch the reactions of these varied contacts, and follow the growing attachment of one of the picture brides, a country girl who is to marry a man she has never seen, and Christiansen, a mechanic, on his way to a better job and more luxuries for an invalid wife. The sense of isolation, intensified by a storm at sea, which holds the characters in a tense grip, breaks as the ship docks, and life is suddenly normal, commonplace.

"Portraits elbow each other for space in this crowded gallery, and the least of them shows a fine talent for catching personality in a gesture or a phrase. But that the personalities are frequently lackluster cannot be denied. Mrs. Vorse sets herself a stiff handicap when she elects to interpret her inarticulate second-cabin bourgeois in words of one syllable."

— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 N 18 '28 180w

"Only by the stretching of a definition to the limits of its elasticity can 'Second Cabin' be called a novel. There is no unified plot, and the interest is not focused sharply upon any single group of characters. At best, Mary Heaton Vorse has but given us a superficial picture of the second cabin, and it is a picture that may reasonably be questioned as presenting mostly one-sided impressions."

— N Y Times p30 N 18 '28 450w

W

WADE, HENRY, pseud. See Aubrey-Fletcher, H: L.

WADE, MRS MARY HAZELTON (BLANCHARD). Boy who found out. 216p il $1.75 Appleton

B or 92 Fabre, Jean Henri Casimir 28-23985

This story of Henri Fabre, written for children, shows how a country boy's lively interest in the plants, insects, and animals about him and his patient observation of them, led to the discoveries of a great naturalist.

"This book is written especially for children. The language is simple and straightforward, and the continuous problems with which Fabre found himself beset are described in a manner that a child can understand, and visualize."

+ Boston Transcript p5 N 17 '28 130w

"There is inspiration in this simple account of his brave fight, in which the author has caught the atmosphere of French peasant life admirably. Its readers will doubtless be impelled to go to Fabre's works themselves."

+ Cath World 128:378 D '28 110w

"This book is no marvel of English style; it is juvenile (as evidently intended) in manner and point of view. . . It is a delightful story, whether one has read any or all of Fabre's books, or turns from this book as an introduction to read them." J. P. G.

+ Survey 61:384 D 15 '28 150w

WADSLEY, OLIVE. Traceries. 313p $2 Dodd [7s 6d Cassell]

28-22661

While at finishing school in Germany Santa Gordon falls deeply and romantically in love with Max von Dornen, an Austrian officer. An immediate marriage is arranged, but before it can take place the war sends Santa home to England and Max to the front. With the rest of her set Santa serves as she can, her loyalty to Max keeping her out of love affairs. But as the years pass without word of him Santa falls more and more in love with Mickey. At the close of the war she has just promised to marry him when a letter comes from Max.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p19 O 28 '28 150w

"One feels that Miss Wadsley is at her best when she remains amid the insularity of Great Britain. Her descriptive bit of other countries leaves one cold, as would a page from a tourist's guide."

Boston Transcript p3 O 27 '28 200w

"The interest of the tale does not entirely centre around Santa. The portrayal of her home—a vague mother, and a weak, amusing brother—the life at the front—the furtive independence of women after the war, are excellently done. It is not, however, in the perfection of detail, but in the rounded effect of the book as a whole that its strength lies."

+ N Y Times p6 O 14 '28 380w

WAGNER, LEOPOLD. Saunterings in London; with a few bars' rest. 294p il $4 Houghton

914.21 London—Description [28-25769]

"The author's aim is to point out those interesting features that are omitted from the usual guide books, and it is astonishing how much he has dug up. The book is literally packed with good matter. 'Saunterings' does not express it at all; 'delvings' would be better. In London they have a feeling for the old and they do not let it go without regret. Very often an interesting momento of the old building will be preserved in the new, such as a quaint architectural ornament, an ancient sign, a charming doorway, and so on. In some cases a part of the facade of the old building has been incorporated in the new. This is the sort of thing that Mr. Wagner lovingly collects for his kindred spirits; this and taverns!"—Sat R of Lit

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p29 D 9 '28 100w

"This delightful book is not altogether to be recommended for general reading. The author is so deeply versed in his subject as to have become a little abstruse. It is not the book to take on one's first visit to London—unless it is to be a long and leisurely one; but for subsequent visits there could scarcely be a better book. It is a sort of advanced reader for the lover of London; an entrements for the London epicure."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:258 O 13 '28 300w

WAINWRIGHT, NEAL. The coward. 379p $2 Payson & Clarke
28-9837

The story of a wealthy woman and her protegé, a would-be writer whom she tries very hard to make a man of. He comes to a belated realization that he is a shirker and a coward and that his protectress has loved him very generously, and finally produces the promised book.

Reviewed by R. Hyde
N Y Evening Post p15 Ap 14 '28 70w

"The book is redundant with the sort of Bohemian material which made such profitable meat for Michael Arlen. And for this, if for no other reason, it is destined to go a long way. Mr. Wainwright's ideas are not sparse. He has numberless things to say about love, and society, and intoxication . . . all of which, in themselves, have a certain novel value. Had his book less of a conscious striving for sensuous effects and fewer stilted conceits, it would rank along the 'Blind Bow Boy' level. As it is, its flamboyant mannerisms, its excessive alliteration, and its 'ticking, clicking, dotting, dashing Western Union' sort of atrocities effect a considerable discount."
— + Sat R of Lit 4:829 Ap 28 '28 300w

WAKEFIELD, HENRY RUSSELL. They return at evening; a book of ghost stories. 266p $2 Appleton [7s 6d P. Allan]
28-17214

Ten ghost stories, of a haunting gruesomeness, told in a deliberately moderate style. Contents: That dieth not; Or persons unknown; "He cometh and he passeth by!"; Professor Pownall's oversight; The third coach; The red lodge; "And he shall sing. . ."; The seventeenth hole at Duncaster; A peg on which to hang—; An echo.

"Ten excellent stories. . . If you care for apparitions, black magic and graceful narrative don't miss this." Will Cuppy
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p9 Ag 19 '28 130w

"This collection of supernatural tales, read just before retiring, will indeed make the back hair to rise and the flesh to creep. Analyzed in the cold light of day, they seem not too well constructed technically and written with a perhaps overcasual regard for the importance of character. However, ghost stories are not meant to be considered at all, let alone at daylight."
+ Ind 121:117 Ag 4 '28 150w

"Why none of Mr. Wakefield's ghost stories raises one's hair or makes one's flesh creep, is difficult to understand, for many of them are quite good ghost stories. Had they been told, as Mr. Wakefield tells them, twenty years ago, beside the fire on a stormy night, almost any one of them would have spoilt the night's rest of the company. As it is, one can only suppose that the ghostly thrill is another lost illusion."
— + New Statesman 30:738 Mr 17 '28 70w
N Y World p7m Ag 5 '28 100w
Springf'd Republican p7e S 16 '28 280w
Times [London] Lit Sup p223 Mr 22 '28 160w

WALDEN, ARTHUR TREADWELL. Dog-puncher on the Yukon; with an introd. by Walter Collins O'Kane. 289p il $3.50 Houghton [16s T. W. Laurie]
917.98 Yukon river—Description and travel. Klondike gold-fields 28-15596

A veteran of trading by dog-sledge, pioneering, and prospecting days in Alaska, the author of this adventurous record has been chosen to accompany Commander Byrd on his expedition to the South Pole. Mr Walden, who is a breeder, trainer, and racer of dogs, will have charge of the sledge dogs of the expedition.

Booklist 25:67 N '28

"The dog-puncher's story gives lively entertainment and food for thought. And one reader finds inspiration here for the old northern toast 'To the Man on Trail!' " C. L. Skinner
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Jl 8 '28 880w
Cleveland Open Shelf p139 D '28

"A volume that is not unworthy to be placed by Mark Twain's 'Life on the Mississippi.' Mr. Walden has Mark Twain's love of breaking a narrative at any point to relate a salty adventure, his eye for the grossly picturesque, his sentimentality about mountains, his everlastingly conversational tone, and not a little of his Brobdignagian robustness."
+ Nation 127:sup381 O 10 '28 120w

Reviewed by S. T. Williamson
N Y Times p4 Jl 1 '28 1400w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:588 N '28
R of Rs 78:adv20 Ag '28 30w

"All the old properties are described—the Skagway mess, the White Pass difficulties, the short rations, the vigilance of the Mounted Police, the Dawson madness. Occasionally a new story salts the pages. But there is a sincerity, an air of eye-witness truthfulness which, coupled with a very clear and straightforward telling, vivifies the old scenes."
+ Sat R of Lit 5:91 S 1 '28 110w

"Sprinkled throughout the book is plenty of humor, all presented in a way that keeps the reader pleased and seeking more."
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 9 '28 620w
Times [London] Lit Sup p988 D 13 '28 550w
Wis Lib Bul 24:252 O '28

WALDMAN, MILTON. Sir Walter Raleigh. (Golden hind ser.) 255p $4 Harper [12s 6d Lane]
B or 92 Raleigh, Sir Walter 28-11640

If the biographer does not attempt to explain the enigma of Sir Walter Raleigh's character, he does, in this account of his career make clear the many-faceted genius of the man, with all its brilliance and its flaws. Illustrated from portraits, and from maps of Sir Walter's travels.

Booklist 25:27 O '28
Reviewed by C: J. Finger
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 My 27 '28 850w

"Nothing in the sphere of a terse, condensed, popular biography could be more competently planned out than this desirable book. The balancing of difficult and confusing material is superb. The character-drawing, however, both in Raleigh's own case and in that of his overpowering contemporaries, is the crux of the undertaking; and here we feel that Mr Waldman is a good deal too rough-and-ready. Such clue-words as 'pagan' and 'puritan' are bandied about with less discrimination than the subject deserves."
+ — Dial 85:175 Ag '28 100w

"Mr. Waldman has attempted the most difficult biographical task, that of making credible and understandable the contradictory career of a poet who found chief expression in spectacular action. On the whole, he is successful, and chiefly because he does not try to make his hero consistent. The fascinating career of the gifted adventurer who survived his own generous, if irregular, era only to fall a victim to the meanness of the next, is carefully and interestingly portrayed." Bartlet Brebner
+ Hist Outlook 19:290 O '28 330w

"This is a commendably judicious, temperate, and generally competent book. Mr. Waldman, as editor of a series of biographies on great explorers and adventurers, has set a high standard for his associates."
+ Nation 127:69 Jl 18 '28 30w

WALDMAN, MILTON—Continued

"Without introducing any fanciful theories of his own, Mr. Waldman has produced a wonderfully complete picture of this versatile and baffling genius—this Elizabethan Alcibiades. There is a welcome chapter on Raleigh's writings, in prose and verse; and the book ends with a moving description of his courageous death—all the more effective because it is written with restraint."

+ New Statesman 31:18 Ap 14 '28 880w

N Y Times p14 Ag 12 '28 500w

"Milton Waldman's study is an attempt to regain for Raleigh some of the laurels which former biographers like Hume and Gardiner have taken from him. But it is far from being as uninterrupted paean of praise for the robust and adroit Elizabethan. It is a judicious weighing of evidence and no attempt at biographical skin-lifting to remove blemishes. Raleigh emerges as a man of admirable, even rare qualities, mingled with too much that is base and regrettable." Arthur Strawn

+ N Y World p10m My 6 '28 300w

Reviewed by Harry Salpter

Outlook 149:315 Je 20 '28 230w

"Though his book cannot be said to have enabled us to understand Raleigh—no one has ever done that—it has provided us with a kind of inventory of his variegated character, it has summed him up wisely and honestly, and without indulging in any exaggerated praise it has left us more than ever lost in admiration before the figure of this brilliant Englishman."

+ Sat R 145:439 Ap 7 '28 660w

"Mr. Waldman's analysis of Raleigh's character is one which commends itself to common sense, not biassed to preach on any special text. With his hero, Mr. Waldman is discriminating, and by no means wholly laudatory." M. J. C. M.

Spec 140:sup373 Mr 10 '28 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p159 Mr 8 '28 730w

Wis Lib Bul 24:253 O '28

WALKER, ERIC ANDERSON. History of South Africa. 623p il $5 (12s 6d) Longmans

968 South Africa—History 28-5040

"This is a history of Africa south of the Zambesi, from the time of the Portuguese discoveries to the fall of the Smuts Ministry and the termination of the British South Africa Company's Charter in 1924, tracing its political, constitutional and economic development. In the story an attempt has been made to show the interaction of the various States and Colonies upon one another and of world forces upon all of them, rather than to follow the history of each particular State. The main theme is not the struggle between the British and Afrikander sections of the European community for predominance, but the relations between white men on the one hand and the Bantu and coloured folk on the other."—Publisher's note

---

"A most thorough, minute, and scholarly record and interpretation of events in South Africa from the earliest times down to 1924. The author has tried to be impartial, a most difficult task, and he has the ability to turn a happy phrase which here and there enlivens the steady outpouring of the stream of facts. The book has an excellent bibliography."

+ Am Pol Sci R 22:487 My '28 70w

Booklist 24:318 My '28

Hist Outlook 19:243 My '28 200w

"Especially in his survey of the last forty years, the author writes, as he says, with the utmost restraint and abstains from pointing morals and adorning tales. So much of that forty years' history has been travestied for British consumption with particularly nauseous kinds of glamour. . .that it is refreshing to those who have had a closer acquaintance with the naked facts of that period, and it may, one is fain to hope, be a salutary corrective to still persistent illusions, to read this austere narrative."

+ New Statesman 30:534 F 4 '28 720w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:349 Je '28

"He deals with the whole of South Africa as if it were one from the beginning and not only since union, including in it also Southern Rhodesia. He thus gives us a better conception of the interplay of its component parts, and the history of South African native policy which this book contains is the best yet written. In dealing with the racial and political wrangles of the Europeans of South Africa Professor Walker is at a disadvantage. They are all so recent and can still raise such fierce animosities. No one will read him with complete agreement."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p79 F 2 '28 630w

WALL, THOMAS FREDERICK. Applied magnetism. 262p $8 Van Nostrand

538 Magnetism [27-24477]

"Deals with principles and applications of magnetism, and with magnetic testing."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

---

"The author's own work and experience enable him here to give a tolerably complete, if not always a critical, account of the present state of our empirical knowledge of a now very extensive subject. The treatment of the theoretical parts of the subject is less happy, being both incomplete and, in places, confused; but as this side of the subject is still in a state of flux, this cannot be regarded as detracting seriously from the merits of an otherwise good book." G. H. L.

+ — Nature 121:240 F 18 '28 180w

N Y New Tech Bks 12:37 Jl '27

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:151 Mr '28

Times [London] Lit Sup p339 My 12 '27 80w

WALLACE, EDGAR. The clever one. 300p $2 Doubleday, Doran

28-23108

He was very clever, for he worked all alone and completely baffled the police of three nations. Every year more perfectly forged notes came into circulation and the police could not discover the source. Then there was a badly bungled murder and Inspector Bourke began to see light. Justice was meted out all along the line until it came to the Clever One. Once more he was very clever.

Booklist 25:125 D '28

"As usual, Mr. Wallace scatters clews to everything but his characters, and the upshot is a highly pleasurable thriller of the believe-it-or-not type." Will Cuppy

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 S 9 '28 100w

"It is a typical Wallace thriller that will appeal to the especial reading public who devour mystery and crime."

+ Boston Transcript p1 S 15 '28 130w

N Y Times p26 O 7 '28 160w

"Mr. Wallace has done for the detective story what Henry Ford did for the automobile. We haven't statistics at hand, but we believe that his output must be considerably larger than that of his chief competitor, Mr. Fletcher. And all this with no sacrifice of quality. If you buy a Wallace thriller you know you're going to be thrilled. Like the Ford, they're standard products with plenty of power, and they'll always run." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 150:1044 O 24 '28 140w

"The book is the best Wallace we have come across. It is very good."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:282 O 20 '28 130w

WALLACE, EDGAR. Feathered serpent. 325p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Hodder & S.]
28-17200

On the same day each of three people received a warning in the form of a feathered serpent. What could it mean? The three were a London musical comedy star, a successful broker, and a bookmaker. The next day the bookmaker was murdered. Peter Dewin, a young newspaper man with a keen nose for crime solved the mystery with the help of a rather unusual little typist.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Jl 1 '28 100w

"Good second rate work, handled effectively, but without much enthusiasm."
Boston Transcript p4 Jl 25 '28 150w

"Somehow this latest book seems thin and sketchy scarcely more than a short story amplified for the purpose of quieting an insistent publisher. The book is diverting enough—as why not with such an author? But with such an author—why not a book something more than merely diverting?"
— + Ind 121:69 Jl 21 '28 150w

N Y Times p16 Jl 15 '28 150w

Reviewed by E. C. Beckwith
N Y World p7m Je 24 '28 100w

"From the moment when Dewin, the reporter, starts to investigate the strange cards bearing the representation of a feathered serpent the story moves so swiftly and entertainingly that we defy you to lay it down until you have reached the end. We also defy you to guess the murderer's name." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 149:358 Je 27 '28 130w

"There is little originality in the weaving and solution of its plot. But anyone who has not already read most of his books will find The Feathered Serpent full of thrills and surprises."
Spec 138:872 My 14 '27 100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p357 My 19 '27 110w

WALLACE, EDGAR. Squealer. 312p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Hodder & S.]
28-3438

There was someone known as The Squealer who had a hand in all the jewel robberies of the underworld. If the robber would not divide with The Squealer he shortly found himself in jail. And yet the police did not even know who their benefactor was. Then one of The Squealer's victims was murdered. Scotland Yard and especially Inspector Barrabal took action. The Squealer was shortly where he had sent so many others.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 Ja 22 '28 100w

"The story is cut to the regular Edgar Wallace pattern and affords lovers of detective fiction an entertaining mystery."
+ Boston Transcript p4 Ja 28 '28 90w

Cleveland Open Shelf p78 Je '28

"There is a love story which is rather more vital to the plot than is the case in most mystery yarns, and there is humor of excellent quality, particularly, in the passages dominated by the eccentric newspaper reporter."
+ N Y Times p14 Ja 15 '28 280w

"The story has all the thrills for which Mr. Wallace's readers have learned to look with well-justified confidence, and the final disclosure of who-is-who is in accordance with his best precedents."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p549 Ag 11 '27 310w

WALLACE, FREDERICK WILLIAM. In the wake of the wind-ships; notes, records and biographies pertaining to the square-rigged merchant marine of British North America. 282p il $6 Sully [21s Hodder & S.]
387 Merchant marine—Canada. Shipbuilding
28-28331

A continuation of the story of the shipbuilding and seafaring ventures of the maritime provinces of Canada, begun in an earlier volume, "Wooden ships and iron men," (Book Review Digest, 1924). The author describes Quebec's shipping era and the exploits of New Brunswickers and Nova Scotia-men.

"It is a cornucopia of valuable and interesting historical detail gathered from various perishable sources."
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p43 Ap 15 '28 420w

"Obviously the scope of Mr. Wallace's subject might be forbidding. But so clear and concise is his method of presentation, that although his notation of Canadian sailing ships (and of the most famous ones he tells the history) surpasses in length the immortal 'list' of the Iliad, it never becomes confused or wearisome. And his enthusiasm for these ships and the men who sailed them is refreshing." F. B.
+ Boston Transcript p4 D 21 '27 780w

"Mr. Wallace has done a great deed for Canada in compiling a mass of information about our foreign-going shipping in the age of sail. . . One is struck with the tremendous amount of painstaking research and compilation required, to separate, as Mr. Wallace has done, the entries regarding our four thousand foreign-going sailing vessels from the collection of British and American data of a century, in which they have been embedded without distinction." C. H. J. Snider
+ Canadian Hist R 9:73 Mr '28 800w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:258 My '28

"Since the author has aimed at making his record as full as possible, he is sometimes dry reading; but the life of which he tells ensures that he is not dry for long. His pages are full of storms and shipwrecks, of mutinies and pirates and captures; and numerous illustrations of men and ships increase the value of the record."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p7 Ja 5 '28 530w

WALLIN, JOHN EDWARD WALLACE. Clinical and abnormal psychology; a textbook for educators, psychologists and mental hygiene workers. (Riverside textbooks in educ.) 649p il $3 Houghton
132 Psychology, Pathological. Mental tests
27-18286

"Dr. Wallin, Director of the Bureau of Special Education and of the Psycho-Educational Clinic of Miami University, is a clinical psychologist of long experience. In this volume he has attempted to describe the equipment, general procedure, and special techniques of the behavior clinic. Part I describes the general set-up of the clinic, the standard equipment, the scope of clinical examination, and the significance of behavior norms and deviations from these norms. Part II discusses the general level of intelligence and specific intellectual abilities and disabilities. Part III deals with motor abilities. In Part IV under the subject 'Emotivity,' Dr. Wallin discusses the measurement of emotional, temperamental, and character traits." —Am J Soc

---

"Neuropsychiatrists, if they read this book, might perhaps disagree with several phases of it. The elusive difference, according to the author, between the clinical psychologist and the psychiatrist, gives to the latter quite different proportions. . . Where the author deals with his own subject and within his special field he is clear, concise, critical and worth reading. The bibliography is valuable." M. R. Kaufman
+ — Am J Pub Health 18:954 Jl '28 500w

WALLIN, J: E: W.—Continued
Reviewed by Harvey Zorvaugh
Am J Soc 33:1012 My '28 520w
Educ R 75:251 My '28 230w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:196 Ap '28

"The chief quality of the book is its comprehensiveness, and its virtues and defects are the corollaries of this quality." B. D. Lewin, M. D.
+ — Survey 60:124 Ap 15 '28 320w

WALLING, ROBERT ALFRED JOHN. That [2] dinner at Bardolph's. 306p $2 Morrow [7s 6d Jarrolds]
28-1742

"Sam Allison is a young Englishman who has given up the practice of the law to devote himself, not too enthusiastically, to writing. He is well on the way to become a recluse, when suddenly he finds himself deeply involved in a murder mystery. In the beginning his connection with the case is accidental and involuntary; later on his chief interest is to shield his friends who are under suspicion. And then a girl comes into the story and into his life."—N Y Times

"A literate handling of a love and money plot." Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 F 12 '28 130w

"Without having any great originality of plot, the book belongs to a superior order of detective story due to its humor, its good literary finish, and the variety of its excitements."
+ Boston Transcript p1 F 25 '28 120w
Ind 120:93 Ja 28 '28 130w

"The story is unusually well told. . . As a general rule the love interest in a detective story is so clumsily handled that it seems out of place. But this story is different."
+ N Y Times p14 Ja 15 '28 260w

"A fine galloping story without a dull moment in it."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p937 D 8 '27 220w
Wis Lib Bul 24:127 Ap '28

WALPOLE, HUGH. Anthony Trollope. (English men of letters; new ser.) 205p $1.25 (5s) Macmillan
B or 92 Trollope, Anthony 28-14585

Referring frequently to the autobiography, which Mr. Walpole acknowledges must be the corner-stone of any book about Trollope, and quoting from original reviews of Trollope's novels, Mr Walpole gives us an illuminating study of the novelist and his work, for which he has an enthusiastic regard, and at the same time succeeds in drawing a vivid portrait of the man. "This world of Trollope's," he writes, "is mellower than any other. An English sun shines down upon it, English hedges bound it in, the little streets of little English towns have their place in it. It is a country where it is always afternoon; the sturdiness and courage of his own honest spirit pervade its atmosphere."

Booklist 25:69 N '28
Reviewed by G: F. Whicher
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 Ag 5 '28 700w

"From a technical point of view, Mr. Walpole's contribution to the English Men of Letters is not good biography. Its manner and method are too formless. But what it does do is to give us one of the most compact views of Trollope and his work we have ever read, and its success there will amply atone for its biographical deficiencies. It should do much to arouse a still wider interest in Trollope's rapidly advancing reputation." E. F. Edgett
+ — Boston Transcript p2 Jl 14 '28 1650w

"One who has never been in Barsetshire will be as comically bewildered with this book as if he were seized by the enthusiastic friend of a vast Victorian family and made to listen to intimate chatter about the dull doings of a hundred people, variations of the same humdrum pattern, none of whom he has met. To the tranquil army of Trollopians, on the other hand, it will be a delight." Barrington Gates
+ — Nation and Ath 43:428 Je 30 '28 980w

"The book is a little uneven, and its transitions are sometimes abrupt. It has a few errors and slips; there are sentences in which the grammatical precision might detect false concords; and the jingle 'amateur immature,' on p.173, will we hope, be banished in the next edition. Nor do I always agree with the critical judgments; but Mr. Walpole gives them with such modesty as to disarm antagonism." E. E. Kellett
+ — New Statesman 31:228 My 26 '28 1850w

"That Mr. Walpole has been held down by his subject is evident. He has not given us a brilliant book. Trollope does not offer material for a brilliant book. But it is a pleasant study of a pleasant novelist, and should help not a little in the rehabilitation now going forward."
N Y Times p2 Ag 19 '28 1450w
Pratt p29 autumn '28
Reviewed by E: Shanks
Sat R 145:733 Je 9 '28 1300w
Sat R of Lit 5:240 O 13 '28 450w

"A more comprehending study than this one could not wish for. The external life of the indefatigable novelist and no less indefatigable Civil Servant is sketched clearly, then follows the chronicle of his work, and analysis of it, and finally a most convincing study of the character of the man as portrayed in his work and his conduct." R: Church
+ Spec 140:802 My 26 '28 980w

"The study is superficial, with a good deal of repetition; it consists far too largely of statements of personal preferences among Trollope's characters, and seems to contain more quotation than one would think necessary. It is neither an introductory book on Trollope, nor is it a detailed criticism assuming fairly close familiarity with the author under discussion. There are one or two passages of acute writing which make the bulk of the book even more disappointing."
— + Springf'd Republican p10 S 13 '28 430w
Times [London] Lit Sup p409 My 31 '28 1300w

WALPOLE, HUGH. Silver thorn; a book of stories. 333p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Macmillan]
28-25551

A collection of short stories, many of which have been published in magazines. Contents: The little donkeys with the crimson saddles; The tiger; No unkindness intended; Ecstasy; A picture; Old Elizabeth (a portrait); The etching; Chinese horses; The tarn; Major Wilbraham; A silly old fool; The enemy; The enemy in ambush; The dove; Bachelors.

"Readers will find a bit of Polchester, and a bit of London, and the whimsy that has neither time nor place; they will find the same imaginative vision and fine strength that characterize all of Hugh Walpole's work. For this, in a sense beyond that of most collections of short stories is a book of parts indicating a whole." R. B. Sanborn
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p9 D 2 '28 1050w

"It is difficult to decide which of the fifteen tales we like the best. All are so charmingly told, with such a firm yet tender touch." G. B.
+ Boston Transcript p8 D 8 '28 480w

"Mr. Walpole is interested here in the pathos of ineffective people, but he does not succeed, I think, in making it seem important." Raymond Mortimer
Nation and Ath 44:112 O 20 '28 20w

"His ability to make much of the secrets behind the daily lives of quiet, gentle people is admirably displayed. And because he is so much in sympathy with them he writes about them with an affectionate understanding that is sometimes soothing and sometimes exasperating. It is an able, amiable book."

+ N Y Times p6 N 18 '28 660w

"Many novelists, from an innate knowledge of life, can say a character does so and so, and such is the authority behind their utterance, we believe them: it could not have happened otherwise. Mr. Walpole's power is of a different sort. He brews a thunderstorm in the conciousness, which discharges its energy in the form of action. There is sheet lightning and forked lightning: 'The Silver Thorn' has its share of the more perilous kind." L. P. Hartley
Sat R 146:582 N 3 '28 500w

"Mr. Walpole is rich in imagination and his angles are many. He is touching in 'A Silly Old Fool,' sardonic in 'No Unkindness Intended,' charming in 'The Little Donkeys with the Crimson Saddles,' fanciful in 'Ecstasy,' and so on. One need not go through the whole list, although, taken all in all, it is perhaps 'The Dove,' with its suggestion of mounting terror, that is the finest story in the volume." R: Curle
+ Sat R of Lit 5:459 D 8 '28 650w

"Every page of the book betrays an intimate understanding of the dread, the danger, and the beauty that sleep in the depths of apparently ordinary and simple folk. The style is intimate, too, flexible and easy, and almost confidential." R. A. Taylor
+ Spec 141:557 O 20 '28 190w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 25 '28 150w
Times [London] Lit Sup p754 O 18 '28 380w

WALPOLE, HUGH. Wintersmoon. 446p $2 Doubleday, Doran
28-4880

A story of post-war London society and of two sisters who symbolize two ways of life. The elder, Janet, conservative and dutiful, stands loyal to her traditions, while Rosalind, the younger, represents the modernism of the younger generation. Janet's marriage to Lord Poole is one of convenience, entered into, on her side, to provide for her dearly loved Rosalind and on his side, because Wintersmoon needs an heir. They achieve a fine friendship, growing on Janet's part into a passionate love for her husband, which, unfortunately, he is slow in reciprocating. Rosalind's marriage, like her character, is sharply contrasted with Janet's, the one ending in tragedy and the other developing into a truly spiritual union.

Booklist 24:285 Ap '28
Bookm 67:464 Je '28 120w

" 'Wintersmoon' is suave, well mannered and completely objective—a little old-fashioned perhaps, a little too much in the worthy British tradition of restraint and polite conduct to suit modern appetites, but it has for Americans the glamour that studies of the English aristocratic world have always had for us; it is packed with minute observation and it is tempered by humane understanding of the troubles that afflict these lordly folk." Harrison Smith
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 F 26 '28 850w

"Hugh Walpole's new novel is just a well-written and otherwise undistinguished Walpole item—which is the saddest thing that one can say about a novel by a man who has done so much in the past." K: Schriftgiesser
Boston Transcript p4 F 25 '28 1500w
Reviewed by E. F. Edgett
Boston Transcript p9 Mr 31 '28 630w
Cleveland Open Shelf p104 S '28
Ind 120:189 F 25 '28 180w

"Mr. Walpole, writing in his usual facile and competent style, gives us a story that is interesting and ingeniously motivated, people that are natural and alive. As a contribution to the understanding of a shifting and critical period in English life this book is singularly unpenetrating."
+ — Nation 126:354 Mr 28 '28 200w

"The writing is never poetic, though it is sometimes meaningless. Nor do the characters give the illusion of having a life of their own. Mr. Walpole can describe what he sees, an unusual gift. But too often he does not keep his eye on the ball." Raymond Mortimer
— + Nation and Ath 43:18 Ap 7 '28 780w

"Mr. Walpole is unfair to the new fashioned, and while making the true point, that the so-called Victorian element in the upper classes is now as dominant as it ever was, he is unable to be impartial about any other. It is otherwise a worthy and dull glorification of the best English qualities, tainted with romantic snobbery, and hopelessly Punchified when compared to Mr. Perrin and Mr. Traill. This is the best of Mr. Walpole's recent books, but not otherwise memorable." Cyril Connolly
— + New Statesman 30:796 Mr 31 '28 130w
Reviewed by L: Sherwin
N Y Evening Post p13 F 25 '28 1100w

" 'Wintersmoon' falls just short of being satisfying. The reason for its lack of the final ingredient so necessary to a masterpiece is rather difficult of capture. The characters live, move and breathe; the story is well built, the pauses and the emphases fall in the right places. What, then, is precisely the matter? The answer is to be found in Mr. Walpole's pervasive, almost excessive, amiability." J: R. Chamberlain
+ — N Y Times p5 F 26 '28 1150w

"Deft, polite, and yet lifelike. Reading it is like giving yourself to an old, dignified house whose walls and furniture have absorbed generations of living, whose chairs and lounges are almost vocal with memory. You are held by that house, half-caught, your voice growing dimmer as your ears catch the life of the past. You resent your partial obliteration but it is extremely comfortable. You resent your passivity. You are frightened because you fit so well into what has been made by other people." Margery Latimer
+ N Y World p11m Mr 18 '28 550w

"The characterizations are brilliant, the dialogue sparkling. The book is a small but substantial world. Romantic fundamentally, touched lightly but sharply with satire, Hugh Walpole's comedies of manners follow the solid, comforting tradition, and follow it well." F. C. L. R.
+ Outlook 148:396 Mr 7 '28 200w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:195 Ap '28
Pratt p39 spring '28
Reviewed by L. P. Hartley
Sat R 145:442 Ap 7 '28 860w
Reviewed by E: T. Booth
Sat R of Lit 4:645 Mr 3 '28 450w

"In the midst of so much sensationalism, so many sex stories, it is indeed a relief to come upon such a strong yet simple book and one written in such beautiful style. Mr. Walpole has long been a master of his craft, but in this book he excels himself. It is one of the most delightful stories we have read for a long time."
+ Spec 140:478 Mr 24 '28 280w
Springf'd Republican p7f Mr 25 '28 330w

"A very honest, able and sympathetic novel which shows Mr. Hugh Walpole at his best. It is not great; but it is interesting, lively in characterization, often moving, and fairly presented."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p186 Mr 15 '28 700w
Wis Lib Bul 24:127 Ap '28

WALSH, EDMUND ALOYSIUS. Fall of the Russian empire; the story of the last of the Romanovs and the coming of the Bolsheviki. 357p il $3.50 Little

947.08 Russia—History—Revolution, 1917-
Bolshevism—Russia 28-13121

Father Walsh was in Russia from 1922 to 1924 administering Catholic relief in cooperation with Herbert Hoover—and for seven years he has been gathering material for this history. The book covers the events leading up to the Revolution, the fall of the empire and the massacre of the Romanovs, the establishment of the provisional government and the advent of Bolshevism.

WALSH, E. A.—Continued

"This book may make no real contribution to our knowledge or understanding of the Russian Revolution, but it presents some vivid pictures of the chief actors in the drama, who are allowed to tell in their own words—so far as is possible—the story of the events through which they were passing. Father Walsh has no love for Bolshevism, but his history is written with what objectiveness he could muster and it is not propaganda." F. R. Dulles

Bookm 67:697 Ag '28 320w

Reviewed by L: Gannett

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Ag 12 '28 1000w

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 7 '28 900w

"Out of a welter of books about Russia comes this illuminating and convincing clearing-up of the situation. The situation needed clearing up, and the book is therefore doubly welcome; for it not only makes the Russian problem plain and simple, at last, but it makes enormously interesting reading." C. P.

+ Cath World 128:113 O '28 850w

"Among the many books about the Russian tragedy published in the last year, that of Father Walsh is most remarkable. Manifold knowledge of the history of the country and of its population, deep understanding of the causes and the facts of the revolution, impartial evaluation of events and actors therein—these are the qualities which impress the reader of this book, from its first chapters. Never before has the story of the Russian drama been told with such deep insight into its complexity, and for this task Father Walsh is peculiarly fitted."

+ Ind 120:606 Je 23 '28 220w

"This sort of scholarship may be calculated to split the ears of the groundings in extremely unsophisticated audiences, but it seems curiously inadequate for a volume described by its publishers as 'an authoritative history.'" Harold Kellock

— Nation 127:90 Jl 25 '28 640w

Reviewed by J. D. Clarkson

New Repub 56:157 S 26 '28 520w

"The fact that Father Walsh writes as a gentleman and a scholar, with a historian's sense of perspective, instead of making his book an excuse for cheap, jingoistic propaganda, will probably lead to his being placed on the famous blacklist which the Daughters of the American Revolution indorse, but the average Son or Daughter of Common Sense ought to enjoy and profit by its reading." F. H. M.

+ N Y Evening Post p9 Je 2 '28 210w

Reviewed by C: Johnston

N Y Times p3 Jl 1 '28 1400w

"The author takes what will appear to most thinking people as an extremely romantic view of conditions before the Revolution, but even with this prejudice in mind, his book makes exciting reading." Herschel Brickell

+ — No Am 226:adv O '28 130w

"It is excellently well written, and by a man who has the proper temper for such work, a solid knowledge of history, a scholar's detachment, and an idealism which has survived experience."

+ Outlook 149:476 Jl 18 '28 80w

R of Rs 78:adv28 Jl '28 70w

"Specially valuable to the man in the street is the rich and colorful background which Father Walsh fills in and which includes not only the Revolution of 1905, and the outstanding features of the whole revolutionary movement in Russia during the last century, but other significant currents going clear back to Rurik. Scarcely less useful is the ingenious and informative way in which the author has picked out and dovetailed quotations and paraphrases from all sorts of significant contemporary sources."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:119 S 15 '28 900w

Wis Lib Bul 24:223 Jl '28

WALSH, JAMES JOSEPH. Laughter and health. (Appleton popular health ser.) 197p $1.50 (5s) Appleton

157 Laughter. Mental physiology and hygiene 28-4782

A cheerful and sensible little book written for the layman, on the prophylactic benefits of laughter. The author, who is medical director of Fordham university school of sociology and professor of physiological psychology, Cathedral college, describes the physiology of laughter and its direct effect upon the organs and upon the mind.

Booklist 24:345 Je '28

"Cheery and common sense book."

+ Cath World 127:378 Je '28 230w

J Home Econ 20:362 My '28 20w

"The book is intended for lay readers, but it is thoroughly scientific and dependable in its presentation of the physiological problems involved and its discussion of the subject. Those who have read the author's previous books on various phases of conservation of health will know that he is always lucid, interesting and up to date."

+ N Y Times p28 Mr 18 '28 420w

Survey 61:247 N 15 '28 70w

Wis Lib Bul 24:188 Je '28

WALSH, MAURICE. While rivers run. 375p [2] $2 Stokes [7s 6d Chambers]

28-13561

When Alistair MacIan meets Margaret Brands he forgets the young actress over whom he has so recently quarreled with his Scotch cousin, and becomes an ardent devotee of red hair, of salmon and trout fishing, and of the yarns of Margaret's uncle Aelec. This pleasant story, in its setting of Highland braes and burns, introduces a number of appealing characters, and two romantic heroines, red haired Margaret, and the beautiful actress, Norrey Carr.

Booklist 25:124 D '28

"This Scottish tale has a certain sturdy charm. . . 'While Rivers Run' is really a good story, told in a lusty style."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p44 S 30 '28 200w

"It is a modern tale of modern life, refreshing in its simplicity and pervaded with the cool breezes of the moors and hills. It contains plenty of incident. It holds one's attention through every one of its nearly four hundred pages. If the reader has any Scottish blood in him, this story will be to him a pure delight." G. B.

+ Boston Transcript p3 S 15 '28 500w

"In this vigorous story of love, sport and adventure in Moray, the author of The Key Above the Door celebrates again the excellences of the Gael, Scottish and Irish. It is a windblown story of modern people."

+ New Statesman 31:572 Ag 11 '28 100w

"A story which, owing to its wholesomeness, its agreeable dialogue, and its kindly, though not too profound, presentation of character, is a source of considerable pleasure and interest to the reader."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p594 Ag 16 '28 170w

WALSH, RICHARD JOHN, and SALSBURY, MILTON S. Making of Buffalo Bill; a study in heroics. 391p il $5 Bobbs

B or 92 Cody, William Frederick (Buffalo Bill) 28-25342

"Mr. Salsbury was the son of Nate Salsbury, Buffalo Bill's partner in the show business, and Mr. Walsh had access to private records through him that give his book completeness and authenticity. He shows in it how Buffalo Bill became a great American myth, and sifts out fiction from fact in the life of the Western Scout who became one of the greatest showmen of our times."—No Am

---

"There is a mighty good book about Buffalo Bill, good because of its interest, its vigor, its sincerity and the clever way in which the author separates the meretricious from the solid." C: J. Finger

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p22 D 9 '28 380w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

No Am 226:adv D '28 90w

"Mr. Walsh's book should be read not only because it is an interesting study of a peculiar American type, but because it is of immense significance in its analysis of the materials and methods that go to the construction of a popular idol." E. H. B.

+ Outlook 150:1374 D 19 '28 250w

"Mr. Walsh writes well and unobtrusively, and one follows Cody's unbelievably spectacular career as a showman with persistent interest." Bernard De Voto

+ Sat R of Lit 5:335 N 10 '28 880w

WALTER, ALEXIA E., and WALTER, H. C. The patriot. 349p $2 Dutton [7s 6d Methuen] 28-17639

Sir Edgar Stanton, investigating the Mornington murder, finds that not only the unknown woman who dined there but several other persons visited Mornington's rooms on the fatal night. One of these is tried for the crime and acquitted. In the end the guilty man escapes, not greatly to Sir Edgar's regret, for this is no common murderer but a patriot who is avenging his country of its war-time traitors.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Ag 26 '28 100w

"The number of false leads presented to the reader is equaled only by the number of yawns presented to the authors by way of cheers for their efforts."

— Ind 121:165 Ag 18 '28 80w

"Here is a crime story in which the detective work is entirely English, professional and convincing. Nevertheless, the reader's interest is sustained even if it is rarely quickened into excitement. The authors, moreover, have a keen social sense and a real knowledge of character, and never descend to crude sensationalism."

+ — New Statesman 31:56 Ap 21 '28 70w

"The masked unknown who killed Mornington, London profligate, war-profiteer and traitor to his country, accomplished a worthy deed, but an insufficiently important one to justify the nearly 350 pages here devoted to it. The authors seem to have spoiled what might have been a fairly good detective story by a too exhaustive and conscientious attention to everything conceivable except an orderly solution of the crime."

— Sat R of Lit 5:92 S 1 '28 120w

"This clever and exciting detective story is unusual on two accounts: the criminal (a murderer) gets away, although his identity is discovered, and there is no amateur sleuth to show Scotland Yard how to go about its own business."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p258 Ap 5 '28 100w

WALTER, ELLERY. World on one leg. 325p il $5 (21s) Putnam

910 Voyages and travels 28-22228

The high-hearted recital of a young man who started to work his way round the world. He got as far as Honolulu and after a series of operations lost a leg. Whistling up his spirits, he kept on, on crutches, and earned his way round the world and back. His book is not so much remarkable for what its young author saw and did, but for the way in which he did them, and the spirit which carried him thru.

"Unabashed assurance is the dominant note in these memoirs. The author's literary skill is confined to the graphic and bald narrative of adventure, with himself well in the foreground. When he shook hands with Mussolini his greeting was 'Howdy, Benito!' One can only regret that he did not call on the Pope."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p25 N 25 '28 150w

"His story is the very remarkable story of a very remarkable boy. He tells it with artlessness and optimism. The sights the boy saw, the horrors he lived through, the contrasts in experience and observation, the physical torture he endured, and the constant uncertainty of the future—all these he sets down in a simple and direct fashion."

+ N Y Times p22 O 21 '28 530w

"Here is something very different—'The World On One Leg.' Travel book, biography, success story,. inspirational essay—we cannot put our finger on what this book meant to us because it is all those things and more." Milton Byron

+ Outlook 150:1172 N 14 '28 70w

Times [London] Lit Sup p1008 D 20 '28 820w

WALTON, ROBERT PETRIE, and others, eds. Comprehensive survey of starch chemistry. v 1 604p il $10 Chemical catalog co.

Starch. Starch—Bibliography. Dextrine. Dextrine—Bibliography. Diastase. Diastase —Bibliography (28-11729)

"Twenty authoritative monographs by European and American chemists, dealing with the various theoretical and industrial phases, and containing an extensive and fully abstracted bibliography compiled by Mr. Walton. The work is a veritable cyclopedia of the subject. A second volume, surveying the patent field, is promised. Mr. Walton is in charge of the Chemical Section of the Division of Science and Technology, The New York Public Library."—N Y New Tech Bks

---

"Each of the two parts of this book—the symposium and the bibliography—covers material that is amply sufficient in itself to justify publication. Together they comprise a survey of the field of the starches and their congeners that makes the book of extraordinary value, both to the student and to those trained workers whose activities are concerned with these substances." W. A. Boughton

+ Am Chem Soc J 50:2051 Jl '28 300w

"If the book as a whole, and more especially the portions devoted to industrial applications, were read for the purpose of finding faults much might be found to criticize, for as might be expected, some chapters cover their field more thoroughly and show signs of more careful preparation than others, and in places there is a lack of completeness. The excellent way in which the field has been covered in such a brief text far outweighs such faults and it is much to be hoped that the second volume, which is to cover patents in this field, will be as satisfactory" R. E. Greenfield

+ — Chem & Met Eng 35:429 Jl '28 280w

"These chapters are a most interesting survey of the subject valuable to both scientist and the technologist. The work is a scholarly treatise and deserves the highest recommendation." C. S. Hudson

+ Ind & Eng Chem 20:665 Je '28 220w

Reviewed by W. D. Bancroft

J Phys Chem 32:1751 N '28 4700w

N Y New Tech Bks 13:26 Ap '28

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:566 N '28

WAPLES, DOUGLAS, Problems in classroom [2] method; a manual of case analysis for high-school supervisors and teachers in service. 609p $2 Macmillan

371.3 Teaching. High schools. Education, Secondary 27-14940

"The author of Problems in Classroom Method has attempted to provide assistance to classroom teachers in high schools by relating theory to practice in the study of teaching problems. The treatment is divided into two parts. Part I presents forty-one difficulties in classroom procedure which are studied as case problems. The case problems are definitely stated; the principles of education which apply are listed; the solutions which have been proposed by teachers who collaborated with the author are presented; and constructive criticisms of the proposed solutions are offered. . . Part II contains a classified list of 424 typical difficulties which have confronted high-school teachers. The difficulties are followed by suggestions for their solution drawn from professional literature and from the contributions of teachers in actual service and in training. The second part of the book is to be used as a case book."—School R

"The book has all the definiteness of a notebook written in a laboratory of teaching. It has the excellence of connecting its details with a convincing educational philosophy. Its aim is not speculative but executive, even to the extent of giving a chapter on 'how to use this book.' "

+ Educ R 75:217 Ap '28 520w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:560 N '28

"With this book available, there is no longer any valid excuse for failure on the part of teachers in secondary schools to apply educational principles to classroom practice." W. C. Reavis

+ School R 36:474 Je '28 580w

WARBASSE, JAMES PETER. What is cooperation? 170p 50c Vanguard press

334 Cooperation 28-193

"A discussion of the consumers' cooperative movement, its principles, methods and accomplishments."—Subtitle

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Mr 25 '28 30w

"The name of its author is a sufficient guarantee of the competence and fairness of this discussion of the principles, achievements and possibilities of the cooperative movement. In this little book he makes a clear and simple exposition of its principles and methods and describes some of the achievements of cooperation."

+ N Y Times p18 Ja 22 '28 300w

"Compactly and lucidly stated."

+ R of Rs 77:adv16 F '28 80w

WARD, CHRISTOPHER. Saga of Cap'n Iohn Smith. 168p il $2 Harper

811 28-13390

This rollicking saga of Cap'n John Smith spins a pleasant tale of his career and takes departure from the history books in regard to his famed romance.

"This is savage satire showing that humorists can get in a rage on occasion; they're on human. For the most part, though, the book is just irrepressible fun, a tour de force in light verse and a godsend among humorous books. In a world where that sort of thing is none too abundant 'The Saga of Cap'n John Smith' is a grand event." Will Cuppy

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Je 3 '28 1000w

Boston Transcript p3 Jl 7 '28 330w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison

Christian Century 45:1027 Ag 23 '28 250w

"The good captain stands by nobly through his formative years and well on into Book II; then gradually he wilts. The author, however, carries on unwearied to the end, even though the reader has lost all interest long before the flapperish Pocahontas comes on the scene."

— + Ind 121:69 Jl 21 '28 170w

Nation 128:114 Ja 23 '29 50w

"Mr. Ward's parodistic skill has been acclaimed frequently and with justice, but the Saga is not much more than a bright collection of rhymes, including some rhymes that are not rhymes at all. For the most part, it is a good specimen of what used to be called 'newspaper verse.' " R. A. Simon

+ — N Y Evening Post p7 Je 9 '28 150w

WARD, MRS FLORENCE JEANNETTE (BAIER). [2] Second Eden. 314p $2.50 Macrae Smith co.

28-24472

Diana Wayne has been happily married for ten years. With her husband and Kent Amlie, their closest friend, Diana is joint owner of a newspaper which the three have built together. At one blow their happy relations are destroyed when Diana discovers her husband's infidelity to her and his treachery to the paper. In this shakeup of her world Kent remains the one steadfast figure, and it comes about eventually that Diana enters a second Eden with him.

"The author deftly manages Diana's transitions from young matronly content, through marital and business sorrows, to her second Eden."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p22 N 11 '28 120w

"Dry material for fiction in the hands of most, Miss Ward uses it amazingly well, so that it becomes vitally moving and interesting. If she had been as successful with Diana's own difficulties, the book could only be praised. As it is, 'Second Eden' is excellent in spite of the failures of the plot." E. P.

+ — Boston Transcript p5 N 24 '28 500w

"The interest of the story is so well sustained that, in spite of a certain thinness of conception, 'Second Eden' must be granted a substantial measure of success."

+ — N Y Times p6 O 21 '28 500w

"Humor is totally lacking, and Miss Ward is an example of the hideous enslavement to the cliché. There are sentences, even whole pages which should simply be struck out. But there is considerable feeling for character, and a satisfying, detailed, but not dragged-in reality of background, which comes from knowledge of the subject in hand."

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:523 D 15 '28 250w

WARD, JAMES. Essays in philosophy; with a [2] memoir of the author by Oliver Ward Campbell. 372p il $6.50 Macmillan [16s Cambridge univ. press]

104 Philosophy [28-11745]

"This collection of Ward's miscellaneous papers, following on the publication of his 'Psychology Applied to Education,' completes his works. It consists of twelve essays on philosophical subjects written at various dates from 1879 to 1924, and is prefaced by a pleasantly written memoir ninety-five pages long, contributed by his younger daughter. The essays, considering the period of time they cover, are remarkably alike in tone, temper and style. They are for the most part 'popular' in character, and taken together they make a very good introduction to philosophy."—Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by Brand Blanshard

J Philos 25:582 O 11 '28 1750

"They have a historical value; the knowledge of German thought is amazing, and there is much that is instructive in the philosophico-scientific ones, but as a help to solve the problems which face modern philosophy—they are useless." W. J. H. Sprott

— + Nation and Ath 42:92 O 15 '27 880w

"The essays are the product of a competent and able but limited and by no means great intellect. Ward's powers are inferior to those of such thinkers as Bradley and Bosanquet." Axton Clark

+ — N Y Times p36 Mr 4 '28 1000w

"Although the essays are primarily addressed to a popular audience, they exhibit many of the qualities which are characteristic of Professor Ward's more important works. Chief among these qualities are brilliance and originality of conception, clarity of statement, cautiousness in conclusion, and maturity in judgment, all of which proceed from and are based upon a broad critical faculty."

+ Spec 139:262 Ag 13 '27 150w

Springf'd Republican p10 Jl 12 '28 780w

"Ward's style was not the least of his merits, and all these essays are admirably written, with characteristic touches of humour, and not a few passages of real eloquence. The book as a whole is a worthy memorial of a fine character and a fine intellect."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p756 O 27 '27 980w

WARD, PAUL WILLIAM. Sovereignty; a study of a contemporary political notion. 201p $2 Hill bookstall, 163 Marshall st., Syracuse, N.Y. [7s 6d Routledge]

320.157 Sovereignty [28-12375]

Professor Ward traces the emergence of the theory of sovereignty, and analyses the theory as it is presented by contemporary writers.

Reviewed by H. D. Lasswell

Am J Soc 34:558 N '28 180w

"Within its limited range the book is useful and lucid. To some aspects of his problem Professor Ward fails to give due appreciation." L: Rockow

+ — Nation 127:231 S 5 '28 580w

"This is a useful little book. Its defect is that its author sometimes loses himself in citations from his authorities and fails to dominate his argument."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p135 F 23 '28 170w

WARNER, FRANCES LESTER (MRS MAYO DYER-HERSEY). Unintentional charm of men. 200p il $2 Houghton

814 28-22370

Witty, penetrating essays on the unconscious charm of the male of the species in his activities grave or gay.

"Miss Warner belongs to the sprightly school of essayists, being less concerned with the novelty of her theme—or its importance—than with the verbal felicity with which she may exploit it. She is highly amused at man in his domestic aspect—ministering to the furnace, puttering about the house, playing with the children. To such topics she brings an engaging wit."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p30 D 2 '28 150w

"Rarely is one treated to so much humor combined with common-sense." A. E. L.

+ Boston Transcript p5 O 13 '28 380w

Cleveland Open Shelf p130 D '28

"Frances Lester Warner has drawn many mirthful chuckles from readers of the Atlantic Monthly, and the title she has chosen for the collection under consideration is in her best vein. But after plunging enthusiastically into the subject with her, it is disappointing to find that she was merely going to say, in a variety of ways, that that's the only kind of charm men have—which, after all. . . She is frequently piquante—in a nice way. There is nothing hilarious or surprising in her mild wit. It is rather a rich, smooth cream of jest in the Atlantic style. Its place is as inevitable as its subject should be, in the home." D. B. Woolsey

+ — New Repub 57:77 D 5 '28 200w

Wis Lib Bul 24:303 N '28

WARNER, SYLVIA TOWNSEND. Time importuned. 88p $2 Viking press [5s Chatto & W.]

821 [28-26851]

The second book of poetry by this English novelist, better known as the author of "Lolly Willowes."

Booklist 25:113 D '28

"Like her 'Load of Fern' Sylvia Townsend Warner's book of poetry brings; 'Warmth, scent, colour . . . the wild earth's well-being into shelter.'" Genevieve Taggard

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 S 16 '28 950w

"The form of Miss Warner's pieces is often irregular, yet the essence, emerging like a butterfly from a cocoon, is poetic and satisfactory. Though not nearly so gifted, she is a reminder of W. H. Davies. 'Time Importuned' does not equal in quality and variety 'The Espalier,' published three years ago. It is thinner stuff and less colorful." Laura Benet

+ — N Y Evening Post p5 S 8 '28 280w

"It has for some time been a question for amateurs of distinguished writing whether verse or prose would ultimately claim the author of 'The Espalier' and 'Lolly Willowes.' 'Time Importuned,' therefore, was eagerly awaited in the hope that it would dispose of the question once for all. Unhappily, it does no such thing. At the end, invigorated, amused, and even excited by the book, we are bound to ask ourselves whether the same result would not have been achieved if Miss Warner had written her poems in prose... I am puzzled, sure only of Miss Warner's real talents, but still uncertain in which of the sister-arts they will ultimately find their full achievement." Humbert Wolfe

Sat R 146:18 Jl 7 '28 400w

"Miss Warner's domain, manifest from the first as a definite territory, has always been bounded on all sides by subtlety; it is as prescribed in its limitations as the country of Edith Sitwell or Lizette Woodworth Reese. But, in its borders, Miss Warner's mind ranges with keen gravity. Even the most sombre poems have the flash and intensity of sudden flight. Nothing is pompous or padded in either phrase or emotion; no line bears more than its just weight of color and substance. This distinction of utterance reveals itself wherever one turns the pages."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:219 O 13 '28 850w

"Miss Sylvia Townsend Warner, the novelist, writes verse in a smooth and selfconsciously educated manner. She has a remarkable skill of technique, and she can write with a peculiar and lucid charm of country things."

+ Spec 140:915 Je 16 '28 60w

"If in some of her verses she is too ingenious, and in few, if any, of them deeply imaginative, the majority of them reveal an individual and finely organized sensibility. And the best of them are those in which the formal discipline is least assertive, in which she allows her mood to dictate its own melody."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p665 S 20 '28 650w

WARREN, CHARLES. Making of the Constitution. 832p $6 Little

342.73 United States—Constitutional history. United States.Constitution 28-27550

"For the first time in a single volume all the contemporary material relating to the formation of the Constitution has been brought together and the history of the Constitutional Convention is presented, day by day. Mr. Warren has assembled the letters of the public men of the day, the delegates and others, and has printed also the editorials and articles from contemporary newspapers, presenting thus not only the thoughts of the men who were at work upon the Constitution or were otherwise influential in the country, but the conditions and the public opinion of that time."—N Y Times

WARREN, CHARLES—Continued

"Mr. Warren has with remarkable skill accomplished the difficult feat of recounting the day-by-day story of the debates and at the same time treating the subject by topics. . . Mr. Warren has discovered no new documentary material of importance. It could not be expected, therefore, that he would shed much new light on this memorable page of our history. He has, however, rewritten the page in most interesting and helpful fashion." H. L. McBain

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p24 N 25 '28 900w

"One of the ablest treatises yet written on the evolvement of this great charter. . . Mr. Warren has done an unusual thing. He has proved that a history which is really profound can also be fascinating." S. L. Cook

+ Boston Transcript p4 N 17 '28 1550w

" 'The Making of the Constitution' measures up to every demand of authoritative history, alike in its scholarly research, its liberal humanitarianism and its smoothly flowing style."

+ N Y Times p13 N 25 '28 500w

"A book of great value which approaches the story of our charter of liberty from a novel angle." Herschel Brickell

+ No Am 226:adv D '28 70w

WARSHOW, HERMAN THOMAS, ed. Representative industries in the United States. (Am. business ser.) 702p il $5; students' ed $4 Holt [18s Allen & U.]

670 United States—Industries. United States—Manufactures 28-13679

The contributors to this volume are twenty-one leaders of American industry, each writing of the particular industry with which he is identified. While not exhaustive, the book offers a comprehensive survey of the country's leading industries.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 Ag 26 '28 90w

"This volume in the American Business Series is filled with up-to-date information on most important American industries, each of which is described by a specialist. Each writer tries to show the relation of his particular industry to American industry as a whole."

+ R of Rs 78:adv18 Ag '28 100w

WARSHOW, ROBERT IRVING. Jay Gould; the story of a fortune. 200p il $3.50 Greenberg

B or 92 Gould, Jay 28-11513

"This is a breezy yet convincing biography of the 'five-foot consumptive Napoleon of finance' whose utterly unscrupulous genius for turning everything he touched into gold makes King Midas and Aladdin look like third-raters."—Nation

Bookm 68:xx S '28 320w

"It contains nothing significant for the well informed student of the period, but, with a modicum of mental effort, will give the less informed reader an insight into how business was done in the amazing decades in which Gould ruled and how more than a few of our great and now highly respected fortunes have been acquired."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 Ag 19 '28 150w

Boston Transcript p7 Jl 3 '28 480w

"It is a competent, entertaining sketch, if nothing more, and very little more indeed could be done with the subject." Van Wyck Brooks

+ Ind 120:628 Je 30 '28 1050w

Nation 127:69 Jl 18 '28 70w

"His story of how Gould accumulated the largest fortune possessed by any man of his time is told with unbiased frankness." E. C. Beckwith

N Y World p7m Jl 15 '28 120w

"To the elucidation of this career Mr. Warshow's slender volume of 180 pages makes a regrettably small contribution. It is based almost entirely on secondary sources of the most obvious kind. It brings forward no new information of any note. Mr. Warshow has given us merely a journalistically written outline of Gould's life, playing up the more picturesque events in a way which will appeal to the general reader, but nowhere getting beneath the surface."

— + Sat R of Lit 4:1057 Jl 14 '28 430w

"The book is probably not a permanent contribution to American social history, but it is readable and reasonably accurate. It is reasonably well printed and illustrated, and the publishers should be encouraged in this kind of undertaking."

Springf'd Republican p10 Je 21 '28 950w

World Tomorrow 11:426 O '28 20w

WARWICK, GEORGE, pseud. See Deeping, W.

WASHBURN, CHARLES GRENFILL. Life of John W. Weeks; introd. by Calvin Coolidge. 349p $5 Houghton

B or 92 Weeks, John Wingate 28-23639

This biography of John W. Weeks, former senator from Massachusetts and Secretary of war, is written by a colleague in the House of representatives and prefaced by a tribute from President Coolidge. Illustrated from photographs.

"This book will not enter the class of literary biography but remain for the use of future historians of an important era in American history as an authority and a source. . . A biography as well written as this and concerning a man like Weeks is worthy of room among the important records of Massachusetts." S. L. Cook

+ Boston Transcript p2 O 6 '28 1650w

Reviewed by E. F. Edgett

Boston Transcript p7 N 10 '28 180w

R of Rs 78:adv38 N '28 40w

"Mr. Washburn's straightforward account of Mr. Weeks, in which are embodied a large number of 'tributes' from Cabinet associates, army officers, and other public men, is of course eulogistic in tone. In some ways it glosses over the Tory qualities of the man."

Sat R of Lit 5:323 N 3 '28 480w

WASHBURN, ROBERT COLLYER. Samson. 310p $2.50 Sears 28-22059

"Mr. Washburn has cooked a savory stew. Like all stews, it is composed of ingredients whose taste is often familiar even while the form is strange. Large chunks of bible-meat swim about gravely in a sauce in which one recognizes the spirit of Cabell, the manner of Erskine, and the burlesque attitudes of Donald Stewart. . . Mr. Washburn gives us Samson as a man overwhelmed by his own myth: that is to say, by what people demand of him. He follows the Bible story closely; when it suits him, he even takes whole pages from the Old Testament. Thus, on one page you will find a famous psalm, word for word; and on the next a phrase such as 'Words are bunk.' For Mr. Washburn the old Jews talk French when it suits them."—Sat R of Lit

"Not since 'Helen of Troy' has such a delicious book appeared. There is humor and satire and subtle intrigue."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 O 7 '28 330w

"A novel which, in spite of certain obvious defects, introduces to the public a writer with an unmistakable gift for the composition of beautiful and living prose. The defects of the book derive almost exclusively from its self-consciousness, its awareness of audience. First of its faults is a tendency toward facetiousness. Another fault, perceptible with less frequency, is the excessively literary quality of its satire, which becomes at last derivative and overwritten. In all the more solemn moments of the tale these blemishes—due above all to a dangerous desire to please—are washed away in the torrents of a richly lyrical style." V. S.

— + New Repub 56:358 N 14 '28 220w

"He has written a book which is sometimes indelicate, often intelligent, and always impudent. It is sly; but it is crude. One imagines Mr. Washburn saying to himself, 'Now I am being very vigorous.' But he is never vigorous. He is vulgar; and he is amusing. He is witty; but he is careless. . . I cannot help feeling a regret for the beauty and the passion of the old story, here lost in laughter—for the tragedy lost in burlesque." Robert Nathan

— + Sat R of Lit 5:211 O 13 '28 480w

WASHBURNE, CARLETON WOLSEY, and STEARNS, MYRON MORRIS (JOHN AMID, pseud.). Better schools; a survey of progressive education in American public schools. 342p $2.50 Day

371.3 Education—United States. Teaching. Public schools—United States. Education —Experimental methods 28-17071

The authors of New schools in the Old World (Book Review Digest, 1927) turn their attention to progressive schools in the United States which in different parts of the country have been successfully working out new educational ideas.

Booklist 25:55 N '28

Reviewed by Agnes de Lima

Bookm 67:708 Ag '28 280w

"Many of the books on school are boresome to the ordinary reader. This isn't. Its stupidities are the real ones practiced upon children all over the country. Its remedies are actual performances carried on in the places mentioned. Its reforms are no wild and glad projects generated by a fountain pen pumped full of enthusiasm. It is a chronicle of an educational science winning its way by trial and proof." W: McAndrew

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Ag 12 '28 1000w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:560 N '28

R of Rs 78:adv20 Ag '28 100w

Reviewed by N. M. Seeds

Survey 61:244 N 15 '28 330w

WASHINGTON, GEORGE. Washington speaks for himself; [ed.] by Lucretia Osborn. 323p il $3.50 (15s) Scribner

B or 92 27-24711

For descriptive note see Annual for 1927.

"A chronological volume in which he tells all that is salient about himself. The result gives us the soldier, patriot and gallant gentleman that he was." D. C. Seitz

Bookm 67:207 Ap '28 40w

"She has done her editorial work extremely well and I think on the whole that this is a better book than Stephenson's Lincoln. Nevertheless, we do not here see the whole of the real man." J. T. Adams

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p6 Mr 4 '28 1000w

"It does not make a strictly continuous narrative but needs to be studied in connection with a good life to fill the gaps. For example, no mention is made of the Tory plots against Washington in New York in 1776, except a four-line allusion to some unspecified letters. But it is a highly interesting collection of source material for the matters upon which it touches, and these of course include the most important incidents in his career." W. E. Garrison

+ — Christian Century 45:283 Mr 1 '28 140w

"It is as interesting as an autobiography." C. G. Bowers

+ Nation 126:157 F 8 '28 50w

Reviewed by Van Wyck Brooks

New Repub 54:sup167 Mr 21 '28 150w

"There is singularly little self-revelation in these documents. Even his painted portraits by Gilbert Stuart are more informing. Our impression of him must be gathered from these; and from what his contemporaries said of him; and from what he himself did not say, rather than from anything he wrote. In the meantime, however, Miss Osborn has made an intelligent and interesting selection."

— + New Statesman 30:598 F 18 '28 110w

"Any one seeking a brief, readable account of Washington with the firm foot always the lower may find it is this book." Joseph Collins

N Y Evening Post p13 Ja 14 '28 180w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

No Am 225:adv F '28 50w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:170 Mr '28

St Louis 26:107 Ap '28

"Miss Osborn, by a skilful selection from letters and other documents, contrives that Washington shall tell his story in his own words, and though perhaps he revealed himself less than most men in what he wrote the result is extremely interesting and valuable."

+ Sat R 145:135 F 4 '28 420w

WASSERMANN, JAKOB. Caspar Hauser; tr. by Caroline Newton. 467p $3 Liveright

28-22355

"The famous and disputed Caspar Hauser was a pretender who never pretended to anything and yet caused an extraordinary unrest which found no end in a hundred years and at last inspired Jacob Wassermann to examine all the evidence afresh and transform historical research into a novel published in Germany in 1908 and now for the first time translated into English."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

Booklist 25:124 D '28

"It is often more a passionate defense than it is a novel even though by most it will be read chiefly for its own sake as a weighty and poetic interpretation of one of the most confused and complex mysteries." Donald Douglas

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 O 7 '28 1450w

"The historical interest of the material obscures Herr Wassermann's purpose to make the seventeen-year-old enigma the symbol for misunderstood childhood. Were it not for his preface, the average reader here, as was the case in Germany, would simply conclude that 'Caspar Hauser' is a first-class historical novel." J: Carter

+ N Y Times p4 S 30 '28 1100w

"The author's interest in his tragic hero is more purely human than in most of his tales, and it transmutes the philosophical element into an other-world atmosphere that has its beauty. I found the novel unsatisfying, yet fascinating." Ruth Suckow

+ — Outlook 150:1256 N 28 '28 220w

Reviewed by Joseph Jastrow

Sat R of Lit 5:464 D 8 '28 1350w

WASSERMANN, JAKOB. Worlds' ends [Der unbekannte Gast]; five stories; tr. by Lewis Galantière. 278p $2.50 Boni & Liveright

27-24344

"Three of the stories are concerned with incidents of those terrible years in eastern Europe toward the end of the war. Throughout their length one is conscious of trampling mobs, of aristocracies sometimes forgetting their fear in a frenzy of hectic pleasure, sometimes fleeing for their lives before the revolutionaries. One of the two remaining stories is similar, the scene being laid in one of the spasmodic revolutionary outbreaks of czarist Russia. The other (first in the book) is of a rather different type, its protagonist being a German farmer who might have lived at any time during the past century."—Springf'd Republican

---

Booklist 24:250 Mr '28

WASSERMANN, JAKOB—Continued

"As a whole, this book could not be included among Mr. Wassermann's more significant works. In 'Adam Urbas,' a pronounced emotional tension is produced, and this story is clearly of value, while a certain amount of sentiment emerges from the use of contrast in 'Lukardis'; but the other pieces do not greatly qualify on either of the two scores for which Mr. Wassermann is generally valued: 'either as social studies or as narratives." Kenneth Burke

\+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 Ja 15 '28 1050w

Christian Century 45:476 Ap 12 '28 80w

"In these five sketches Mr. Wassermann may be judged both at his best and at his worst. Indeed, it seems strange that any one who could have depicted with such faultless restraint, such firm and sober insight, the stubborn character of Adam Urbas could have been guilty of the flagrant theatricality of Jost."

Dial 85:72 Jl '28 80w

"Wassermann has much in common with Dostoyevsky. He shows the same crowding of people and events to achieve a three-dimensional chaos; the same penchant for abnormal psychology, viewed without surprise; the same journalistic approach, broadening out into dramatic scenes. Like the Russian's, his stories lack that hyper-unity to which our magazine public has been trained. They are torn from the fabric of life with loose threads left hanging. . . Foreign, high-colored, fantastic as he is, he nevertheless commands the quality which this literary season knows as real." B. G.

\+ New Repub 54:78 F 29 '28 300w

"Behind his words we feel Wassermann's flaming spirit, his compassionate heart and his questing soul. That is why, despite obvious weaknesses, he will never be without his faithful public." Arthur Herman

\+ N Y Evening Post p12 Ja 7 '28 900w

N Y Times p7 D 4 '27 720w

"The five long ambitious stories in this book are strong but exceedingly imperfect. They are so given over to the message that—as with a man who is ever too eager to speak—a part of the message itself is lost. It is plain that Wassermann's thoughts about these people are more important to him than the people themselves, and so by the end of every story the people have sunk out of sight and the author is at the front, declaiming." Ruth Suckow

— \+ N Y World p8m Ja 1 '28 400w

Springf'd Republican p10 Ja 6 '28 600w

WAST, HUGO, pseud. See Martinez Zuviría, G. A.

WATKINS, RICHARD HOWELLS. Master of revels. 327p $2 Doubleday, Doran

28-21590

John Butler has grown rich and powerful thru a subtle kind of blackmail; he furnishes for the rich immunity for their misdeeds, and has a horde of co-workers in the underworld who supply him with information. Butler draws an aviator into his game on false pretenses. Furious at the deception Clarke swears to uncover Butler's crimes. There ensues a thrilling game of hide and seek between the hero and the villain which grows faster and more furious to the climax on a lonely island swept by the seas at high tide.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Ag 26 '28 110w

"A kind of 'movie' serial in novel form, written with something less than the literary finish of a Nick Carter story and considerably less probability and excitement, while it boasts of a mastermind of iniquity who is even more incredible than the late lamented Professor Moriarty." J. F. S.

— Boston Transcript p8 S 15 '28 380w

"A very ordinary mystery novel, this will probably find some favor with crime story addicts. But it is not for the discriminating reader."

— Sat R of Lit 5:130 S 15 '28 200w

WATSON, ELIZABETH. Story of textiles. (City and country ser.) 83p il $1.25 Harper

677.1 Textile industry and fabrics 28-16134

"Begins with the long ago time when people first began to make cloth, and traces the development to the present-day method of machine looms and roller printing."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

---

Booklist 25:76 N '28

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:509 O '28

WATSON, JOHN BROADUS. Ways of behaviorism. 144p $2 (7s 6d) Harper

158 Behaviorism (psychology) 28-13456

The author, formerly professor of experimental psychology, Johns Hopkins university, directs his book to the public that demands some knowledge of how man behaves. "Behaviorism is the scientific study of human behavior. Its real goal is to provide the basis for the prediction and control of human beings: Given the situation, to tell what the human being will do; given the man in action, to be able to say why he is reacting in that way."

Booklist 25:53 N '28

" 'The Ways of Behaviorism' well exemplifies Mr. Watson at his worst, regrettably so, for—the author informs us—'this book should be looked upon as the author's best effort to make his own position clear to himself as well as to others.' " Alexander Goldenweiser

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 Je 17 '28 1100w

Boston Transcript p2 Je 27 '28 330w

Ind 121:189 Ag 25 '28 180w

J Home Econ 20:679 S '28 60w

Reviewed by Augusta Alpert

New Repub 55:128 Je 20 '28 320w

"In that collection of popular lectures 'Behaviorism' and now again in this book, Watson is the exponent of an evangelical religion, and he preaches it with all of the dogmatic zest and vulgarity of Billy Sunday." M. J. Adler

— N Y Evening Post p10 Je 15 '28 900w

"Dr. Watson believes, absolutely and enthusiastically, that behaviorism is on the only right track in the study of mind and emotion, and just as absolutely he believes in its great possibilities for the future good of the race. Doubting Thomases may demand wider research and more demonstration before they join his followers, but they and all inquirers will find in this book a body of evidence and argument that is clearly set forth and is likely to stimulate their thinking processes."

\+ N Y Times p14 Jl 29 '28 480w

N Y World p7m Jl 15 '28 350w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

No Am 226:adv Jl '28 70w

Reviewed by Joseph Jastrow

Sat R of Lit 5:36 Ag 11 '28 1300w

"This is a stimulating and an irritating book. It is stimulating because it presents in a clear and interesting way the results of a strict objectivity in the observation of behavior. There is nothing new in it; it merely restates in a popular style the point of view for which its author is famous. The book is irritating, on the other hand, in such a variety of ways as to considerably impair the pleasure of reading it. His book is totally devoid of a sense of humor, but it is not at all devoid of other evidences of emotionalism, including the flings and pouts of the author's prejudices." K: A. Menninger

— \+ Survey 61:96 O 15 '28 500w

Wis Lib Bul 24:249 O '28

WATSON, JOHN BROADUS, and WATSON, MRS ROSALIE ALBERTA (RAYNER). Psychological care of infant and child. 195p il $2 Norton [5s Allen & U.]

136.7 Child study. Children—Management. Children—Care and hygiene. Behavorism (psychology) 28-10966

"Human behavior is made and not born. This book shows how, and in plain, straightforward language describes the critical nature of infancy, when the child's future is slanted and its success as an adult practically assured or its failure more or less fore-doomed. The scientific material used by Dr. Watson as a basis for his convictions is largely the result of his own experimental work in the maternity ward of the Johns Hopkins Hospital and in the Harriet Lane Home for Crippled Children and the Heckscher Foundation."—N Y World

---

Booklist 24:383 Jl '28

"Dr. Watson's book truly does what it sets out to do—provide a clear and simple guide that any parent can use to give an infant the safest kind of psychological start." R. O. Kallen

\+ Bookm 67:xviii Ag '28 550w

"Certainly Dr. Watson expounds his theory with a degree of assurance, even flamboyance, which we are not accustomed to in men who have at other times come upon epoch-making discoveries. If, however, one divorces Dr. Watson's book from its (to us) unproved assertions and certain exaggerations, we believe that it will prove serviceable in many ways." Agnes De Lima

— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 My 20 '28 1100w

"The aim to instruct is constantly, and very skilfully, tempered by the aim to make the instruction effective for practice. Few prejudices are allowed to stand in the way of a scientific facing of the child's problems from the point of view of his future happiness rather than the happiness of parents. The whole presentation is remarkably sane in its orientation. Socialization is never lost sight of, but there is a conspicuous absence of illusory sanctions for the emphasis. Instruction is very specific where experimental data are available—in regard to removing undesirable responses as well as to setting desirable responses. Meager as experimental data still are, a page motivated by this empirical temper is worth books of previous pious hope." T. V. S.

\+ Int J Ethics 38:495 Jl '28 250w

Reviewed by Augusta Alpert

New Repub 55:128 Je 20 '28 320w

"This volume of Dr. Watson's does not justify the expectations with which it must have been awaited, if the jacket blurb is to be taken literally. It is another item in the bulk of recent books, which try to popularize psychology for everyday use. . . The present book is a very naive one, written for very naive or very crude parents." A. S. Lorand

— N Y Evening Post p12 Ap 21 '28 950w

"The importance of this book far transcends its size, and its value to parents bears no relation to its price." G: A. Dorsey

\+ N Y World p10m Ap 8 '28 850w

Outlook 149:154 My 23 '28 780w

Pratt p7 autumn '28

Reviewed by F. L. Wells

Sat R of Lit 5:106 S 8 '28 700w

"It is an enormously depressing book to read, if one happens to be the parent of a young child. Dr. Watson wishes mothers to believe that they are wholly responsible for the personality and character which their children will develop, and that heredity counts for practically nothing. . . While very few parents could swallow the bulk of Dr. Watson's theories, most mothers and fathers can find in this book hints and suggestions which will be of value in the training of their children. This is particularly true in regard to the attitudes of fear, submission, etc."

Springf'd Republican p7f My 13 '28 520w

Reviewed by D: Levy

Survey 60:241 My 15 '28 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p649 S 13 '28 220w

Wis Lib Bul 24:219 Jl '28

WATTS, GILBERT SEARLE. Roadside marketing. (Farm and garden lib.) 126p il $1.25 Judd

631.18 Farm produce—Marketing 28-20832

"Presents for the most part the experiences and observations of the author in the management of his own roadside market in Pennsylvania. It is generous with practical hints on how to sell the products of farm, garden and orchard practically on the spot."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

Booklist 25:60 N '28

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 S 16 '28 90w

WAUGH, ELIZABETH, and FOLEY, EDITH. Collecting hooked rugs. 140p il $2.50 Century

745 Rugs. Collectors and collecting 27-6541

"Gives something of the historical background of hooked rugs, and is very valuable in its discussion of the points which give old rugs their value. Well illustrated, with an index."—Wis Lib Bul

---

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p22 Ap 1 '28 100w

Cleveland Open Shelf p127 D '27

Springf'd Republican p10 S 28 '27 250w

"Of interest to collectors and designers alike although the treatment of the technique of rug making is less ample than that of Bowles."

\+ Wis Lib Bul 23:138 My '27

WAUGH, EVELYN. Rossetti; his life and works. 232p il $3.50 Dodd [21s 6d Duckworth]

B or 92 Rossetti, Dante Gabriel A28-2157

A centennial biography of the pre-Raphaelite painter which gives more attention to his painting than to his verse.

Booklist 25:117 D '28

"Mr. Waugh believes that modern æsthetic science, in restricting the appeal of painting to a single pure and isolated emotion provoked exclusively by certain combinations of plastic forms, has by no means discovered the mysterious vital factor common to all works of art, and that Rossetti's painting cannot be ruled out of court by any such arbitrary scheme of reasoning. He supports his contention with admirable lucidity, defining his terms precisely, and translating the technical jargon of the fashionable æsthetic doctors into a language within the grasp of the general reader. The biographical passages are equally well written and with no concessions whatever to the sensational methods in vogue at the moment." T: Craven

\+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 S 2 '28 1800w

Boston Transcript p3 Je 13 '28 650w

Reviewed by Roy Campbell

Nation and Ath 43:212 My 19 '28 680w

"A new biographer has undertaken Rossetti's defence. And herein, perhaps, lies the chief weakness of the monograph; we could have spared Mr. Waugh's lengthy analysis of Rossetti's pictures, as against a detailed and elaborate representation of the entire group. Rossetti is exalted at the expense of his contemporaries. We need a collective, not a single portrait. The conduct of the pre-Raphaelite adventure, its enthusiasm and impetus, is, on the whole, more entertaining than its actual results. For enthusiasm was their primary characteristic, and Mr. Waugh seems to have approached his subject with something of a kindred alacrity and zeal. Flippancy he abhors; anecdote, especially when the anecdote is scandalous, he shows a commendable anxiety to avoid. His treatment is consequently a little sparse and curtailed." Peter Quennell

WAUGH, EVELYN—Continued

New Statesman 31:160 My 12 '28 1850w

"It is restrained without being pedantic, painstaking but not tiresome, impartial and detached, yet by no means lacking in vigorous and independent interpretation. Furthermore, the author has, in scorn of the confession-story, audience-seducing method in modern biography, happily avoided the temptation to traffic in scandal or to retouch in meretricious color the many incidents that a life like Rossetti's offers." Ruth Lechlitner

+ N Y Evening Post p5 Ag 4 '28 650w

"Rossetti the man, the painter, the poet, now comes before the impartial tribunal of a new generation, which weighs in the balance his esthetic sins and virtues, and asks the age old question, 'Has he been found wanting?' Mr. Waugh is not very decisive in his answer. He has his own very definite and very intelligent ideas on the subject, but he is a rarely impartial critic, and seldom yields to the temptation of making generalities. Piece by piece Rossetti is presented to us, the good and bad together, and we may make up our own minds at the end. The problem is stated, but the solution is left to the reader."

N Y Times p5 Je 24 '28 1050w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

No Am 226:adv Ag '28 80w

"The author has told the story of Rossetti's life without sentimentality and without flippancy."

Sat R 145:499 Ap 21 '28 660w

"Mr. Waugh's book is well worth reading, not only for the vivid picture it gives of Rossetti, but for the much needed protest against certain tendencies in modern esthetic criticism. It is refreshing to find an author who is obviously sympathetic with modern art, and who at the same time insists that the impulse to pictorial expression does not necessarily come from the contemplation of form, but quite possibly from 'an emotional state of mind evoked by firelight and singing.'" Arnold Whitridge

+ Sat R of Lit 5:4 Jl 28 '28 1150w

Reviewed by R. A. Taylor

Spec 140:sup719 My 12 '28 1450w

"An extremely sensible and readable book. Mr Waugh writes with terse elegance and unobtrusive wit. He has a good eye for humors of detail and presents them without unnecessary fuss."

+ Springf'd Republican p7f My 20 '28 1200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p341 My 10 '28 4550w

WEALE, PUTNAM, pseud. See Simpson, B. L.

WEAVER, JOHN VAN ALSTYNE. Her knight comes riding. 291p $2.50 Knopf

28-18500

To Fanny, her father was the hero of all the knightly tales he wove for her. But to her mother Pa was no hero. He was a second-rate carpenter who had once been a sailor. Yet in spite of Ma's hard common sense, Fanny grew up with the hero idea firmly entrenched, and when her knight came riding, during the war, it was not surprising that he was a marine, much like Pa in spirit. For a time the little Brooklyn stenographer lived to the full her happiest romantic dream. It ended in heartbreak from which she was young enough to recover, and brought her finally to the sheltering domesticity Ma had always hoped for her.

Booklist 25:73 N '28

Reviewed by G. B. Munson

Bookm 68:86 S '28 330w

"I think that Mr. Weaver's novel is highly interesting. It has its share of those defects which first novels never seem to escape. Even in these days Freud is not as good a tutor for the novelist as Balzac or Dickens and asides from the author should be cleverer or more profound than Mr. Weaver manages to make them. Yet the Freudian elements are of trifling importance and the asides are few. There are pages of thin writing, of course. There are in all books. There are pages, also, of very competent writing, and best of all the tale moves steadily along." Morris Markey

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 Jl 29 '28 1100w

"It is probably impossible for any writer who is not himself of the lower middle classes to understand them thoroughly. So it is seldom that we get a tale of this kind which has more than a picture tinged by its creator's imagination. But Mr. Weaver has imagined a girl in Fanny much more interesting than we should doubtless have found Fanny herself in real life. So it is all for the best."

+ Boston Transcript p10 Ag 8 '28 280w

Cleveland Open Shelf p137 D '28

"Mr. Weaver gives a beautiful exhibition of a boxer dancing skilfully all around a great hulking opponent without ever getting inside his defenses. No one could ask a better theme than the conflict in the individual of those adventurous impulses which send an occasional hardy soul rolling around the world gathering no moss—if moss is to be construed as home, family, income, and position—but gathering a various and possible non-negotiable lore, with the impulse to clothe one's nakedness in a fine mesh of habit and to spend the years achieving security for further years." A. B. Parsons

+ — Nation 127:160 Ag 15 '28 330w

"The story is redeemed by the excellence of Mr. Weaver's character-drawing, the true and lively ring of the dialogue, and the dramatic progression of emotional circumstances." D. B. W.

+ New Repub 56:133 S 19 '28 280w

"The plot, stated baldly, may not seem promising, but it is treated with unusual honesty and a degree of poetic imagination which at times is quite moving. Mr. Weaver is particularly effective in showing his characters as pitiable in their limitations, and yet at the same time depicting them convincingly as themselves, happy in their own small satisfactions. This interesting novel—a first novel, we believe—is the work of a poet who is not afraid to keep close to earth."

+ New Statesman 31:650 S 1 '28 150w

"A curious combination of cynical sentimentality and that seeming paradox, sentimental cynicism." Tess Slesinger

N Y Evening Post p5 S 1 '28 680w

"The novel is not without its faults. Let the faults go hang! It is as hard to be captious with Weaver as it is with O. Henry. Fanny's story is so sympathetically done and it captures so many transient moods in the life of a people that it should catch on at once in popular favor." J: R. Chamberlain

+ N Y Times p7 Jl 15 '28 950w

"It seems to me a much better novel than 'Bad Girl,' with which it challenges comparison because of the similarity of subject, and there are many moving passages in the story of the love between Fanny and her handsome knight—a sergeant of marines." Herschel Brickell

+ No Am 226:adv S '28 80w

"To this reviewer it seems unfortunate that the author has seen fit to introduce at various times upon slight pretext, a suggestion of the Freudian father complex. Apart from the fact that these murky notions are already a little stale, they seem to disturb the artistic values of an unassuming chronicle of plain folk, told in the main with directness, clarity and considerable charm." Mary Shirley

+ — Outlook 150:1128 N 7 '28 200w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:549 N '28

"We are grateful for his precise observation of American life, often humorous, often gently cynical or chiding; we bless him for his ear so delicately attuned to the idiom of the sidewalks, and we note with relief that he is unaffected, that he writes as a modest and forthright gentleman. The novel can be merely good entertainment for those who do not wish to bother themselves with ethical or sociological implications. Probably three out of every five readers will call the book depressing, but even these sensitive plants will have found sufficient amusement and interest along the way to keep them from realizing their depression until the very last chapter." R. B. MacDougall

+ Sat R of Lit 5:39 Ag 11 '28 430w

"The story is readable, but lacks distinction."

Spec 141:199 Ag 11 '28 100w

"Though the story is deficient in creative imagination, it represents honest work, and except for the break in interest at the end, progresses smoothly. Life for an imaginative girl who lives in Brooklyn and works as a typist in lower Manhattan, should never be monotonous."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7f S 2 '28 320w

WEAVER, JOHN VAN ALSTYNE. To youth. 78p $2 (7s 6d) Knopf

811 28-4621

"Some of the poems are narrative, some lyric, but they are all dramatic in the bold presentation of their theme and all sympathetic in their portrayal of the humor, love, despair and pathos that is so closely and inevitably woven into life."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

Booklist 24:357 Je '28

"There is throughout 'To Youth' a vigor and primitive force that is due partly to its spontaneity and partly to its faithful rendition of the life and dreams of crude common folk. The author makes no attempts at nicety of phrases or labored images; he keeps well within his own path of expression."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 F 26 '28 230w

"It is not new—he is saying 'Follow the dream!'—the ancient, futile quest. But he says it beautifully and simply. Weaver may still have his limitations as a poet, but his verses are a valuable contribution to the ballad literature of America."

+ Ind 120:413 Ap 28 '28 170w

"These poems are good—and not because of any 'stunt' in their construction. They range from free verse to sonnets. Only half of them are in American. The other half are in very good English—and are very good poems as well." R. S. Winslow

+ N Y Evening Post p12 F 11 '28 600w

" 'To Youth' contains some of the finest poetry Mr. Weaver has yet achieved; poetry that will be memorable, we believe, and for a long time to come." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p8 F 19 '28 660w

"Weaver writes truly and with convincing sentiment of the ordinary American's preoccupation, where Edgar Guest, for instance writes cheaply and badly. In Weaver's narrative verse we hear the man in the street and his wife and children talking. They convince. Their little concerns take on a certain glory." W: R. Benét

+ Sat R of Lit 5:222 O 13 '28 130w

"Mr. Weaver's material is mostly slang, and although he arranges it skilfully, it remains essentially fortuitous. He has been called a pioneer in American ballad literature, but a ballad is something more than a realistic representation of the talk of the people."

— Times [London] Lit Sup p246 Mr 29 '28 180w

WEBER, MAX. General economic history; tr. by Frank Knight from German. (Adelphi economic ser.) 401p $3.50 Adelphi co. [12s Allen & U.]

330.9 Economics—History [27-14337]

"In this posthumous book Weber is concerned with two general problems: the analysis of the primary institutional forms underlying the phenomena of history; and the analysis of the progressive transformation of these forms. He finds in the history of the West a definite movement from forms dominated by magic and supernaturalism to forms dominated by pure rationalism. In some regions development is arrested by the establishment of rigid customs and traditions, but in Europe a complete emancipation from traditionalism takes place. 'Capitalism' is the purely rationalistic organization of economic life. Its establishment is brought about by the rise of rationalism to dominant influence in all phases of social life, and for this reason adequate appreciation of the transition requires consideration of all classes of historical material."—Am Econ R

"The translator and the publishers have performed a most signal service to English readers in bringing out this excellent edition of the lectures on economic history delivered by Weber shortly before his death. These lectures mark an important step forward in the development of economic history as an organized body of knowledge, furnishing us with a systematic exposition of important phases of the sociological interpretation of economic history. Professor Knight has given us an illuminating translation of an important book." A. P. Usher

+ Am Econ R 18:104 Mr '28 420w

"The special student will find all manner of delight in the illuminating treatment of particular points. The general reader (if he exists) will plow through the book with increasing pleasure." Max Lerner

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 O 16 '27 900w

Boston Transcript p6 Jl 20 '27 250w

"In this posthumous book the most interesting chapter is perhaps the last, where he arrives at the significant conclusion that modern industrial capitalism was for the first time made possible by the formation of a rational ethic in the Renaissance and Reformation." Kingsley Martin

+ Nation and Ath 42:546 Ja 7 '28 180w

"It is succinct and suggestive, although it consists of lectures which the author did not intend to publish. It has not the diffuseness that commonly characterizes lectures; rather it is too compressed and makes reference to much more than is adequately treated. Weber was not primarily an economic historian and was not addressing specialists. The book is, however, one that will compel specialists to think; it gives a background to economic studies that is not available in any other single volume; systematic students and general readers alike therefore will find the considerable effort of reading it amply repay them in the new points of view and the new lines of inquiry it will suggest to them."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p2 Ja 5 '28 980w

WEBSTER, DORIS, and HOPKINS, MARY ALDEN. Marriage made easy. 172p $1.25 Century

793 28-6181

A variation of the question and answer game which offers a painless solution to the problem of choosing the right mate.

"The little volume is an entertaining item for parties, the family fireside or the open air."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p13 My 20 '28 90w

Boston Transcript p4 Mr 10 '28 330w

"Entertaining and amusing. We enjoy its cleverness as we enjoy the cleverness of the prestidigitator who extracts the rabbit from the hat."

+ Ind 120:213 Mr 3 '28 80w

WEBSTER, HENRY KITCHELL. Clock strikes two. 322p $2 Bobbs [7s 6d Hamilton]

28-4240

"The ingredients of this story include a blind old man, a disinherited but forgiven son,

WEBSTER, H: K.—Continued
another son scheming to get his father's money, a burnt will, a daughter killed while trying to elope with a man her father did not wish her to marry, a clock which apparently ticked although it was not going, and a microphone, and they are tangled up into a mystery which holds the reader in its toils and leaves him a little bewildered at the end."—Times [London] Lit Sup

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 25 '28 110w
N Y Times p26 Mr 4 '28 220w
Reviewed by Vincent Starrett
N Y World p10m Mr 4 '28 80w

"It is a polite sort of mystery story which will be read with avidity by nice girls who really like to be scared but not quite confronted with any crude business like murder."
Springf'd Republican p7f Mr 4 '28 310w
Times [London] Lit Sup p785 O 25 '28 50w

WEBSTER, HENRY KITCHELL. Quartz eye; a mystery in ultra violet. 321p $2 Bobbs
28-18757

A mystery-love story of a young Follies girl and a young scientist. Linda saved Wallace Carter's life and proceeded to tell him her woes. Wallace was not only sympathetic but clever and he solved her difficulties—and his own besides.

Booklist 25:125 D '28
Boston Transcript p4 S 5 '28 230w
Cleveland Open Shelf p124 N '28
+ New Repub 56:133 S 19 '28 30w

"A good mystery story which is at the same time a good love story is a phenomenon rare enough to be worthy of special mention. As a mystery story 'The Quartz Eye' is modern to the extent of using ultra-violet rays as an aid in the detection of a criminal; as a love story, it is so old-fashioned that the most innocent-minded can read it without the suspicion of a blush."
+ N Y Times p20 S 16 '28 180w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:549 N '28

"Easily one of the best of the recent detective stories."
+ Sat R of Lit 5:252 O 13 '28 150w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 18 '28 350w

WEBSTER, ROSALIND. They who paddle. 295p $2 Dutton
28-12032

This first novel of an eighteen-year old author describes the efforts of a London society bud to make a career for herself. So conservative is her family that the very young Lady Irain writes her problem plays as Augustus Heron. One of them is a tremendous success, but when the identity of the author is known to her family and her fiancée, they cast her off, horrified that she knows anything about such things as the subject of the play. Irain discovers that "the real her is Augustus Heron," and finds a lover who appreciates the fact.

"Much stress is placed upon the fact that this novel was written by a girl who is still in her teens. It really needed no accentuation for it is well sprinkled with ingenuous bits of conversation which bear the indubitable stamp of the schoolroom." B. B.
Boston Transcript p3 Jl 14 '28 330w
N Y Times p7 Jl 1 '28 380w

WEEKES, AGNES RUSSELL (ANTHONY PRYDE, pseud.), and WEEKES, ROSE KIRKPATRICK. Fool in the forest. 282p $2 Dodd
28-11394

The scene of this romantic tale is Verwood Dene, a farmstead in the New Forest, where the last of the old Hampshire family of Le Cleres, two sons and a daughter, are trying to redeem their diminished lands. The coming of a hired man who conceals his identity under the name of Sam Smith is the beginning of a romance for Cary Le Clere, slaving away her life on the farm all unaware of her beauty, and the means of uniting two fine old English families.

Booklist 24:406 Jl '28
"One of the most charming books I have encountered."
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 My 20 '28 280w

"It is a pleasant change to turn from the many mystery novels and tales of wild adventure, now so popular, to this entertaining love story. It is not in the least tiresome, there is plenty of incident though there is no morbid appeal of sex." G. B.
+ Boston Transcript p4 My 19 '28 330w

"To all those weary of the company of the neurotics, perverts and nymphomaniacs who meander through so much of our latter-day fiction, this charming romance by Anthony Pryde and R. K. Weekes will prove as delightfully refreshing as a glass of cool, sparkling water on a hot and dusty day."
+ N Y Times p17 Ap 8 '28 550w

"Nothing about 'A Fool in the Forest' can ever cause much enthusiasm, and yet for a pleasant romance, the novel does well enough."
Sat R of Lit 5:92 S 1 '28 90w

"Miss Weekes writes with a cooling dash of humour that saves her as a rule from being too sweetly novelettish."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p488 Je 28 '28 200w
Wis Lib Bul 24:164 My '28

WEEKLEY, ERNEST. More words, ancient and modern. 192p $2 Dutton [5s Murray]
422 English language—Etymology. Words
[28-26348]

Lovers of words will find in this book an interesting sequel to "Words, ancient and modern." It deals with compounds, a class of words on which dictionaries give but little information. Such words as banshee, high-flown, hoity-toity, rigmarole, tenter-hooks and wiseacre are among those discussed.

Booklist 24:349 Je '28
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Je 10 '28 100w
Reviewed by G: Saintsbury
Dial 85:62 Jl '28 1100w
New Statesman 30:298 D 10 '27 280w

"The 'small but kindly public' mentioned in the Preface ought to be speedily enlarged, for words are as surprisingly humorous and absurdly imaginative as the wildest of romances. We often wish for more when the writer stops, for words open out vistas of associations."
+ Sat R 144:778 D 3 '27 780w

"It is impossible to give an idea of this delightful book without more quotation than is fair to the author." F. Y. B.
+ Spec 140:197 F 11 '28 430w

WEIGALL, ARTHUR EDWARD PEARSE BROME. Infidelity; being a veracious account of the somewhat farcical "Pennyworth affair." 321p $2.50 Brentano's
28-12075

"The story concerns itself with two truly likeable young English people who get married, but who wish to keep the fact secret from an emancipated aunt of the girl who does not believe in legal entanglements. And at the same time they wish to have the boy's father, a pillar of the church, understand thoroughly that they are properly united by law. Humorous situations arise, and they are really funny, when the two are honeymooning in a French hotel for English people, and all the relatives arrive on the scene."—Boston Transcript

"The chatter is excellent; the complications unbelievably complex. Mr. Weigall draws verbal circles round companionate marriage and the matrimonial laws of England. But on the whole the interest of the story lies rather in situation, in the light tossing about of a vexed question, than in people."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 O 28 '28 450w

"The book is too long for the slight plot, but otherwise it is quite well done. Its characters are charming, even if exaggerated, and its descriptions have a light touch that fit in with the general atmosphere."

+ — Boston Transcript p6 N 10 '28 200w

"If one will be forewarned that the book has nothing to do with marital unfaithfulness and will approach it in a humorous spirit, one will be certain to take pleasure not only in the absurd situations but in the author's occasional keen-edged comments."

+ N Y Times p7 N 11 '28 450w

WEIGALL, ARTHUR EDWARD PEARSE BROME. Paganism in our Christianity. 277p $2.50 Putnam [7s 6d Hutchinson]

230 Jesus Christ. Christianity 28-23820

In this frank examination of the theology and customs of the Christian faith Mr Weigall maintains the historicity of Christ but shows that much of the generally accepted Christian doctrine is derived from pagan sources and not from Jesus Christ at all.

"Mr. Weigall puts together a mass of data to point out the resemblances, some of them confessedly very close, between the Gospel story and heathen legends, and with them he offers us a theory of belief in an historic Christ. There is nothing particularly novel in his tracing out of Pagan likenesses to the Christian revelation. Nearly all of it has been done before, and, we may add, in far more convincing style, in Mr. J. M. Robertson's works."

Spec 141:24 Jl 7 '28 780w

"Readers of this book may dispute its arguments and dissent from its conclusions, but no one will condemn the spirit in which it is written. In these days it is admittedly difficult to fix the exact limits of orthodoxy and heterodoxy, and criticism of the origin and development of Christian doctrine is so diverse in its results that great difference of opinions must be expected among those who are equally entitled to claim the Christian name."

Times [London] Lit Sup p507 Jl 5 '28 300w

WEILL, BLANCHE CALIFORNIA. Behavior of young children of the same family. (Harvard studies in educ.) 220p $3 Harvard univ. press [13s 6d Oxford]

136.7 Child study. Man—Influence of environment. Family 28-13986

"The first part deals with the problem, methods, environment, training, habit clinics and classifications of family situations. The second part gives an analysis of material and discusses the theory and treatment of specific habits from the viewpoint of the habit clinic. The third part gives a general summary of conclusions and side issues suggested by the study of these families. This chapter concludes with an excellent bibliography."—Boston Transcript

Reviewed by E. W. Burgess

Am J Soc 34:406 S '28 230w

"It is a valuable book for the psychiatrist, psychologist and social worker, but with so many works published on habit training from studies made, there is a question often as to its effectiveness outside of being good thesis material."

Boston Transcript p3 Ag 18 '28 180w

"The writer uses records to show clearly and convincingly that the environment for each child, even in the same family, is different and therefore that it conditions a different type of behavior in the several members of a family The book is full of interest for parents, teachers, and others interested in guiding wisely the development of children."

+ J Home Econ 20:769 O '28 60w

WEIR, JOHN WALLACE. Comets and the sun; new theories regarding their structure. 72p il $5 (12s 6d) Longmans

523.6 Comets. Sun 27-17130

The theory submitted by Dr Weir is that comets are contained in, or bounded by, an envelope. The relations of comets to the sun's corona, and other solar phenomena are considered in the light of this theory.

"Cometary physics are very difficult to explain in a perfectly satisfactory manner, and it is unwise to be too dogmatic in condemning any suggestion as being unsound; some of the author's suggestions are, however, rather difficult to accept. Still we may admire the author's enthusiasm for his subject, and his desire to throw new light upon it, even if we are unable to accept all his ideas." A. C. D. C.

Nature 120:615 O 29 '27 220w

N Y New Tech Bks 12:37 Jl '27

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:21 Ja '28

St Louis 25:374 D '27

Times [London] Lit Sup p580 Ag 25 '27 130w

WEISS, FREDERICK ERNEST. Plant life and its romance. 136p il $1.80 (3s 6d) Longmans

581 Plants—Evolution 28-16036

The book is based on twelve radio talks given to English children, and gives a popular account of the evolution of plants. Contents: The most primitive plants; Seaweeds; Mushrooms, toadstools, and moulds; Bacteria, the most minute plants; Liverworts and mosses; Ferns and their life-history; Horsetails and club-mosses; Conifers and their allies; Flowering plants and their origin; The evolution of plants; What the distribution of plants teaches us; The history of the British flora; Index.

"The last chapter on the history of British flora, which tells of the immigration of plants is by far the most entertaining. It is interesting to learn that the daisy, usually regarded as a typically national flower, was a traveller from Central Europe."

+ Spec 141:712 N 10 '28 80w

"This is a good example of the compact and well-proportioned teaching which can be broadcast by a skilful lecturer."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p786 O 25 '28 110w

WELCH, ROY DICKINSON. Appreciation of music. 192p $2 Harper

780.1 Music—Analysis, interpretation, appreciation 27-24324

Written by the professor of music in Smith college, the musical training here outlined is that which comes from practice in listening to music and learning to judge it independently. The different musical forms are studied and various compositions are analyzed. Review and test questions are provided and a book list.

Booklist 24:275 Ap '28

"The book may be heartily commended as sensible, lucid, and practical—an admirable introduction to a fascinating study." P: Bowdoin

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 My 27 '28 300w

"It is an enjoyable experience to have read Professor Welch's book, because he brings even the layman into intimate touch with some of the great masterpieces of music."

+ Boston Transcript p5 Ja 14 '28 210w

"This book belongs among the good ones of its kind. But its kind is not the best for its purpose."

+ — Nation 126:673 Je 12 '28 130w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:288 My '28

WELCH, R. D.—Continued

"Its excellence is due to the remarkable art of selection employed by Mr. Welch in adhering to the purpose defined in his preface. There is helpful analysis of the form of certain famous compositions but rightful restraint from superfluous verbal description of these and Mr. Welch remains free from the verboseness common to much literature which tries to talk about music. His easy and concise style is pleasant to read, and his reduction of material to first principles makes him understandable to the most untrained of music lovers, and a guide for elementary teachers."

+ Sat R of Lit 4:508 Ja 7 '28 200w
Springf'd Republican p10 F 9 '28 110w
Wis Lib Bul 24:87 Mr '28

WELD, HARRY PORTER. Psychology as science. 297p $2.50 Holt [7s 6d Methuen]

150 Psychology 28-5809

This book is an attempt to investigate the problems and viewpoints of psychology regarded as a science.

Boston Transcript p6 Je 30 '28 210w

"Is it not rather late in the day to be writing a book to prove that psychology as we know it is not really psychology? And why write a volume in support of a logical distinction which can have nothing to do with the program of a psychology that is too much alive to be bothered by such pedantry? The logical outcome of the argument is that there are no psychologists, and that there is no science of psychology as yet." C. J. Warden

— New Repub 55:310 Ag 8 '28 550w

WELLES, SUMNER. Naboth's vineyard; the Dominican Republic, 1844-1924; with a foreword by L. S. Rowe. 2v il $7.50 Payson & Clarke

972.93 Dominican Republic—History. Dominican Republic—Politics and government. Dominican Republic—Foreign relations—United States. United States—Foreign relations—Dominican Republic 28-21952

"A historical survey of the Dominican Republic from the time of the French Revolution until the time of the evacuation of the American forces of occupation in 1924. Mr. Welles conceived this study during the period of his service as American commissioner in the Dominican Republic from 1922 to 1925. His position enabled him to study hitherto unpublished archives of the American Department of State as well as to secure information from the various leaders in public affairs of the Republic."—Boston Transcript

"The chief merit of these two volumes of history lies in the frank criticism of the Latin American policy of the United States in the formulation of which the author has been so intimately associated." R. L. Buell

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 N 25 '28 1400w

"There can be no question of the authoritative value of this extensive work." F. P. H.

+ Boston Transcript p5 N 7 '28 400w

" 'Naboth's Vineyard' is a conventional political, military, and diplomatic history, faulty in technique but strewn with important facts. Its viewpoint is liberal on the whole. It is lucidly written, by a man of intelligence, one who apparently puts down his actual views, pro or con, with perfect candor. He could have cut the bulk of his work in half and greatly improved its chances of being read." M. M. Knight

— + Nation 127:524 N 14 '28 930w

Reviewed by Robert Herrick
New Repub 57:196 Ja 2 '29 1000w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 226:adv D '28 80w
R of Rs 78:adv34 N '28 40w

WELLINGTON, ARTHUR WELLESLEY, 1st duke of. Great man's friendship; letters to Mary, marchioness of Salisbury; ed. by Lady Burghclere; with a biographical sketch of Lord Salisbury. 342p il $5 Payson & Clarke [16s Murray]

B or 92 [27-20126]

"Lady Salisbury, the stepmother of the great Robert Cecil, and afterwards the wife of Lord Derby, Disraeli's Foreign Secretary, had known Wellington since she was a little girl. His feeling of fatherly affection towards her was lasting, and he formed the habit of writing to her as a relief from the burdens of his formal correspondence. They were letters, he says, 'apart from all others,' intimate gossip, set down to entertain her, and amusing to the writer because of the amusement they would give the recipient. The most prevading quality of these letters is the methodical energy with which the soldier carries through every task, however trivial, that he undertakes."—Times [London] Lit Sup

"These three hundred pages of letters are so completely devoid of interest, so trivial, inarticulate and generally uninspired, that they become by that fact almost a curiosity. It is hard to imagine another man in Wellington's position who could write so many intimate letters at once so slight in themselves and so useless as a chronicle of contemporary life." F. K. Brown

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p24 O 23 '27 600w
Boston Transcript p8 O 15 '27 760w

"It would be absurd, of course, to attach any great literary value to these letters. They contain a good deal of repetition, and Lady Burghclere's practice of printing her editorial comments before, instead of after, the letters they refer to, does not make them easier to read. But their authorship and date gives them an interest of their own. They were well worth publishing."

+ — New Statesman 29:supxvi My 21 '27 290w

Reviewed by F: H. Martens
N Y Evening Post p12 O 29 '27 130w

"There can seldom have been a more strangely interesting and moving collection of private letters than these which Lady Burghclere has brought together. Historically, no doubt, they are of secondary importance, as referring to one of the least active periods in the great soldier's life. But as human documents they are of surpassing interest. This eager preoccupation with little things, this love and understanding of children, this inexhaustible energy, these rare, curt comments upon public affairs, are, after all, exactly what one would expect to hear of the last days of Wellington, who never said or did a thing that was not strictly 'in character.' It should not be so difficult for an intelligent visitor to guess their authorship, provided that he knows their date."

+ Sat R 143:791 My 21 '27 700w
Spec 138:809 My 7 '27 760w
Times [London] Lit Sup p309 My 5 '27 1050w

WELLS, MRS AMY CATHERINE (ROBBINS) (MRS HERBERT GEORGE WELLS). Book of Catherine Wells; with an introd by her husband H. G. Wells. 323p il $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Chatto & W.]

28-21935

In a long introduction to the stories and poems of his wife, Mr H. G. Wells analyzes her lovely and elusive personality and the expression which she gave to it in her writing, adding some memories of their life together. The stories that follow have a delicate, mystical quality and a certain pervasive melancholy.

"The literary judgment of Mr. Wells seems somewhat at fault as well as his taste in other matters. The short stories in this book of Catherine Wells have qualities of delicacy, tender feeling and a restrained fancy, but the book as a whole belongs to her husband and will attract the reader because his name is conspicuous on the cover." K. A. Porter

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 O 7 '28 780w

"Perhaps the chief interest of the stories is that they help to consolidate the very interesting suggestion which Mr. Wells makes as to his wife's peculiar and complex temperament. She had two personalities, one christened Jane, the other Catherine. Jane was practical. Catherine was a dreamer, mystical, aloof. Both combined, with many others, to form a personality which was one of singular charm and humanity. The book, indeed, indicates a whole character and outlook in a most attractive way."
+ Nation and Ath 43:260 My 26 '28 170w

"Her stories seem productions of a lonely, introverted mind seeking self-expression rather than results of any innate artistic urge. They suggest the careful work of an intelligent person seeking vainly for a medium. . . The stories, in spite of their conventional patterns and sentiment, command some respect, if only for their author's sincerity and depth of feeling." Tess Slesinger
— + N Y Evening Post p5 S 8 '28 280w

"There is a rare sensitiveness of thought and feeling and perception, a jeweled tracery of exquisite phrasing in the short stories, sketches and poems which make up 'The Book of Catherine Wells' that lift them high above the average. Many people talk about a feeling for beauty; few have it; and fewer still are able to crystallize their possession of it in words. That ability was Catherine Wells's, and to a most unusual extent."
+ N Y Times p7 Ag 26 '28 730w

"Catherine Wells' own revelation of herself as shown in her stories is so dimmed by the glow of her husband's presentation in his introduction that the book would have been more satisfactory without his part in it. What a pity he didn't allow these stories to be just themselves." Harriet Hastings
Outlook 150:794 S 12 '28 150w

"Mr. Wells's tribute is candid and detached, and in consequence he succeeds in giving the outsider a definite picture of this brave woman. Her own stories and verses in this volume serve to fill out that picture, showing a very uncommon and yet essentially feminine delicacy of taste, and the fine beauty of her personality."
+ Spec 140:647 Ap 28 '28 140w

"It is well indeed that these stories and poems should have been gathered together in one volume, not only as a memorial to but as a record and expression of a very beautiful personality who in the course of a busy life gathered to herself the admiration and love of all with whom she came into contact."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p332 My 3 '28 680w

WELLS, CAROLYN (MRS HADWIN HOUGHTON). Crime in the crypt; a Fleming Stone story. 304p $2 (7s 6d) Lippincott
28-6755

There are three murders, widely-separated in place and circumstances, but having one similarity: the lone traveler found lying dead in a stone coffin in the crypt of an English cathedral; the Swedish maid shot through the heart while lying in the hammock on the grounds of a large Massachusetts estate; and charming Mrs Clevedon found stretched out dead in a treasure chest in her own room, stabbed to the heart. All the victims were lying down, but no one connected the facts until Fleming Stone, the famous detective, came upon the scene and solved the mysteries.

"Fleming Stone does not make his appearance until near the end of the book, and then all he does is to ask a few questions, think things over a bit and point out the man who committed the crime in the crypt and two other murders. As the moderately astute reader will already have spotted this man as the guilty one, and will have fathomed his motives with a fair degree of accuracy, there is no particular thrill to be had out of Fleming Stone's revelations."
N Y Times p13 Ap 15 '28 180w
Times [London] Lit Sup p606 Ag 23 '28 110w

WELLS, CAROLYN (MRS HADWIN HOUGHTON). Deep-lake mystery. 275p $2 Doubleday, Doran
28-17100

Sampson Tracy was found murdered and his body tricked out in a weird collection of objects. He had been killed by a nail driven into his skull. Draped around him were wreaths; in one hand was an orange, in the other a crucifix. Sticking up from behind his head was a red feather duster, and around all this was a red chiffon scarf. The evidence pointed to his charming niece, Alma Remsen, and it took all the ingenuity of a famous detective to prove she was not guilty.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Je 10 '28 110w
Boston Transcript p4 S 8 '28 150w
N Y Times p17 Je 10 '28 220w

"Managed with unusual inventive skill if with a slight jar of the reader's credulity." E. C. B.
+ — N Y World p7m S 9 '28 100w

"Written pleasantly, in a workmanlike manner, without padding." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 149:358 Je 27 '28 100w

WELLS, CAROLYN (MRS HADWIN HOUGHTON). Tannahill tangle; a Fleming Stone story. 304p $2 (7s 6d) Lippincott
28-25629

"In Miss Wells's latest thriller, one is faced by a double murder, in a locked room. The husband of one of the victims and the wife of the other victim are found hidden in a far corner of the same room. Instead of the eternal triangle it was an infernal square. The result would seem obvious but the reader's suspicions are lured hither and thither, until the infallible Fleming Stone is called to solve the mystery."—Boston Transcript

---

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 N 18 '28 150w

"Like many other stories by Miss Wells, her latest is poorly constructed with vague character drawings."
— Boston Transcript p6 N 14 '28 200w

"It is all quite fourth rate."
— Sat R of Lit 5:440 D 1 '28 150w

WELLS, CAROLYN (MRS HADWIN HOUGHTON). Where's Emily? a Fleming Stone story. 318p $2 (7s 6d) Lippincott
27-21881

Emily disappears from home on the afternoon of her wedding rehearsal. A wide search reveals in a ravine the body of the friend with whom Emily was last seen, and near it, the missing girl's neck piece, and a strand from her diamond necklace. Fleming Stone arrives to help the distracted relatives find Emily.

"A pleasing baffler in Miss Wells's best picnic manner." Will Cuppy
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p30 N 13 '27 80w
Times [London] Lit Sup p153 Mr 1 '28 130w

WELLS, CAROLYN (MRS HADWIN HOUGHTON), ed. American detective stories. 250p $1.50 Oxford

Short stories—Collections. Detective stories 27-25421

Contents: The gold-bug, by E. A. Poe; The twinkling of an eye, by Brander Matthews; The corpus delicti, by M. D. Post; The long arm, by M. E. W. Freeman; The ruby and the caldron, by A. K. Green; The Denton boudoir mystery, by Gelett Burgess; The stolen cigar case, by Bret Harte.

"Except for 'The Gold Bug' and 'Corpus Delicti'—which is hardly a detective story—the tales, as thrillers, seem feeble."
— Ind 120:141 F 11 '28 100w

"Taken all together, the tales in this collection are not so truly representative as are those in the book of mystery stories."
— N Y Times p23 Je 17 '28 240w

WELLS, CAROLYN (MRS HADWIN HOUGHTON), ed. American mystery stories. 232p $1.50 Oxford

Short stories—Collections 27-25419

Contents: The cask of Amontillado, by E. A. Poe; The black cat, by E. A. Poe; The minister's black veil, by Nathaniel Hawthorne; Horror, Anonymous; The mysterious card, by Cleveland Moffett; The mysterious card unveiled, by Cleveland Moffett; What was it? by F. J. O'Brien; The upper berth, by F. M. Crawford; An occurrence at Owl Creek bridge, by Ambrose Bierce; The little room, by M. Y. Wynne; The sequel to The little room, by M. Y. Wynne; The yellow wall-paper, by C. P Gilman; Circumstance, by H. P. Spofford; The lost Phoebe, by Theodore Dreiser.

"The mystery stories are distinctly superior [to the detective stories]. Besides the tales of Poe, we are given some very real horrors, including those two unequaled stories, 'The Yellow Wallpaper' and 'The Upper Berth.' "
+ Ind 120:141 F 11 '28 50w

N Y Times p23 Je 17 '28 220w

WELLS, EDMUND W. Argonaut tales; stories of the gold seekers and the Indian scouts of early Arizona. 478p il $3.50 Hitchcock

917.8 Frontier and pioneer life. Indians of North America—Wars. Apache Indians. Arizona—History 28-305

In 1862 the author, then a boy in his teens, left his Iowa home to join a company bound for the Pike's Peak gold fields. His tales relate to the frontier life of the next ten years in the Southwest, especially in Arizona, and to warfare with the Apache Indians.

"A wealth of material is here, fascinating because it is history—history of stalwart men, fearlessly creating America. What matter if it be ill-told, if it ramble—it was not written for literary worth, but for historical, in order that the world may know some of the actual happenings from the pen of an eye-witness."
+ Boston Transcript p4 D 31 '27 200w

N Y Evening Post p12 Ja 7 '28 180w

"This present account is more interesting than most of the narratives of the journey that have been preserved, because the author had an observing eye and an instinct for picturesque and dramatic happening. Or, perhaps because he was young, these things impressed him more than they did older men."
+ N Y Times p23 Ja 8 '28 380w

WELLS, FREDERIC LYMAN. Mental tests in clinical practice. (Measurement and adjustment ser.) 315p $2.16 World bk.

151.2 Mental tests 27-8579

"The book will serve both as a supplemental manual and as an interpretation of mental tests in clinical use. The author has for many years been director of the psychological laboratory at the Boston Psychopathic Hospital. Upon the basis of his clinical and experimental work there and of his thorough knowledge of the research done in the field of mental measurement, he has ably summarized the practice and interpreted the meaning of mental testing of individuals in various types of clinics: hospital, educational, industrial, or otherwise."—Am J Soc

"This book is one of those rare and delightful demonstrations of complete mastery of the art of scientific authorship. The author moves with masterly precision through a welter of literature carefully classifying arranging and evaluating so that those who follow in his foot-steps may profit most by his experience and genius. He is quick to appreciate and slow to condemn, is gracious even when he disagrees and is enviably clear in expression. The result is so thorough a summary of the literature of mental testing that hereafter no psychologists will care to work long without having Wells within easy reach." E. S. Conklin
+ Am J Psychol 11:318 Ap '28 550w

"The volume is marked by a distinct caution as to fundamental assumptions. There is a frank recognition of the limitations of merely testing the intellectual functions to the neglect of matters of emotional balance and interest. There is, in short, a distinct appreciation of the relation of intelligence measurement to the larger problem of personality adjustment. Each chapter is followed by valuable concrete case studies. And ample bibliographies are included throughout. The book is well written and has that unmistakable mark of humanity and good humor which is evident in the author's own personality." Kimball Young Am J Soc 33:306 O '27 200w

WELLS, HERBERT GEORGE. Mr Blettsworthy on Rampole island. 347p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Benn]

28-28683

Having failed sadly in love and business, young Mr Blettsworthy embarks on a freighter bound for Rio. The ship is disabled at sea, and Mr Blettsworthy is carried ashore by savages from Rampole island who set him up as a sort of lunatic god. One day he comes upon a young woman trying to commit suicide. He plunges into the river to save her—and wakes in Brooklyn. For five years, psychologists tell him, he has been living there, interpreting his life in terms of Rampole island and its savages. From this point Mr Wells abandons fantastic adventure and turns the story over to his theories.

"An extraordinarily good novel." G. B. Munson
+ Bookm 68:338 N '28 260w

"If Mr. Wells bores us occasionally, it is rarely indeed, and he will not bore at all the lover of strange adventure and strange places, for he can tell a story better than most, and this particular story has a trick surprise that will delight the reader of modern ingenuities." A. B. Parsons
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 N 11 '28 980w

New Repub 57:227 Ja 9 '29 350w

"Mr. Wells is indignant, passionate, creative, constructive, because he is the greatest optimist of our time. Whatever he minds he believes he will be able to change. And the enormous number of things that he is able to mind are simply a supply created by the demands of his activity. May neither the demand nor the supply ever run short." Elizabeth Bibesco
New Statesman 31:733 S 22 '28 1400w

Reviewed by Edgar Johnson
N Y Evening Post p9m N 10 '28 900w

"In 'Mr. Blettsworthy on Rampole Island' Mr. Wells has come back. He has come back so heavily and swiftly that he has risen above anything in what we had mistakenly come to regard as his best period." F: F. Van de Water

+ N Y Evening Post p9m N 17 '28 920w

"There is nothing new in this fantasy that becomes a parable at its close, nothing that can't be found in the long list of Wells books, but the old ingredients are whirled together by such a competent hand that the financial product is entirely acceptable to one who likes entertainment."
+ — N Y Times p7 N 11 '28 1050w

"Mr. Wells's new novel provides extraordinarily varied fare—romance, realism, fantasy, prophecy, satire—the materials of 'Erewhon.' The story is simple in its outlines but complex in its general effect, touching as it does almost every mode of existence, from delirium to sanity and from isolated speculation to murder. . . There is much fun, excitement and stimulating reading in 'Mr. Blettsworthy on Rampole Island.' It has the happy carefree manner of the earlier Wells, the directness, the authority and the vitality." L. P. Hartley
+ Sat R 146:276 S 1 '28 1750w

"Here is Mr. Wells at his best, working to a theme so accommodating that he can display the savagery of Swift, the caricatures of his lighter mood and the pastels of a subtle fancy without jostling or confusion. . . The War and its aftermath, with some pages on Sacco and Vanzetti, are telescoped into an unnecessary and inartistic conclusion. The book should have ended on the first evening of Blettsworthy's sanity at the flat on Brooklyn Heights. . . But of Rampole Island we could never have too much." F. Y-B.
+ — Spec 141:269 S 1 '28 1400w

"His long career of swift and prolific literary production has done nothing to dull the freshness of Mr. H. G. Wells's eye. Opening Mr. Blettsworthy on Rampole Island it was hardly possible not to wonder whether, after all these years of voyaging, adventuring and battling in the most arduous realms of the mind, its author would not prove at last a little exhausted, a trifle blase. But not a bit of it: he looks out to-day upon the world in which he lives and finds it as incredible as ever."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p630 S 6 '28 620w

WELLS, HERBERT GEORGE. Open conspiracy; blue prints for a world revolution. 200p $2 Doubleday, Doran [5s Gollancz]

901 Civilization. International federation. Social problems 28-23522

In his latest book Mr Wells envisages a comprehensive outline of a world order capable of preventing wars and controlling those moral, biological and economic forces that would otherwise lead to wars. His conception is neither a utopia nor an anarchistic movement, but a practical creative task for the modern mind.

Booklist 25:107 D '28

Reviewed by Philip Littell
Bookm 68:355 N '28 430w

Reviewed by Mary Ross
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 S 9 '28 1800w

Reviewed by C. B. Palmer
Boston Transcript p3 S 22 '28 1550w

Reviewed by E. F. Edgett
Boston Transcript p7 O 6 '28 300w

"Wells has an alert mind and he cannot write a page without striking fire, hitting off some provocative suggestion. His nervous sharp English is a delight to any person who likes the game of words. But what have we? The first business of expository writing is to be precise. This small book is not a blue print. It is a first sketch, an introduction to future books by Wells." J: Macy
+ — Nation 127:428 O 24 '28 980w
Nation and Ath 43:624 Ag 11 '28 850w

"Interesting and conspicuously sincere as the book is, Mr. Wells's genius is not well suited to this kind of presentation. In the novel form he can suggest the case for the control of population or the stabilisation of prices so as to make them overwhelming. He can show how absurdly some character fears the one and another character misunderstands the other. But when he tries to state the case in essay form, the result is somewhat commonplace and even jejune." A. M. C. S.
— + Nature 122:4 Jl 7 '28 520w

Reviewed by R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p1 S 16 '28 1350w

"Mr. Wells is not his old self. Neither is he at his best in this kind of writing. He has said nothing new, and yet he labors under the delusion that he has created a revolutionary piece of work. . . Nevertheless, there are many people who will enjoy this book. It is well worth reading because, whether or not the reader agrees with the author, he will be stimulated and made to think even if only to refute certain doubtful statements he will encounter." Milton Byron
— + Outlook 150:995 O 17 '28 520w

" 'The Open Conspiracy' is not important except as a readable summary of past conclusions and a hint of great achievement to come."
Sat R 145:667 My 26 '28 420w

"Many interesting prospects are opened up by Mr. Wells, but it is difficult to feel that they are either as possible or as desirable as the author thinks, or that such aims constitute a religion as we understand it. None the less it is a book to be read and marked."
+ Spec 140:769 My 19 '28 230w

"It is impossible not to admire both the ascetic fervour which he preaches to his 'open conspirators'—that self-denying zeal is the way by which great revolutions in human affairs are brought about—and the wisdom of many, if not all, of the political plans which he recommends. But his wisdom, in this book at any rate, stops short with politics; and that will not satisfy the soul of man."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p388 My 24 '28 600w

WELLS, MARGERY. Clothes economy for well dressed women. 95p il $1 Dodd

646 Clothing and dress 27-24961

This little book sets forth briefly the principles of good taste and becomingness in dress and the relation between personality and dress.

"Miss Wells has written a very sketchy little scenario of dress that is good as far as it goes, but that does not go far enough."
+ — Boston Transcript p2 D 24 '27 70w

"While Miss Wells's discussion is confined necessarily to rather general principles, they are principles that are sound and good, both artistically and economically, and her little book will be valuable to all women who wish to make their dress money yield the best results."
+ N Y Times p20 F 26 '28 400w
Wis Lib Bul 24:159 My '28

WELLS, RHEA. American farm. 237p il $2 Doubleday, Doran

28-21740

Two boys, ten and twelve years old, on a Tennessee farm help with the farm work and have a marvelous time the while.

" 'An American Farm' is a disappointing book. It is fairly encyclopædic in scope. Not a thing is left out. But the book lacks flavor. Mr. Wells has lacked the power to make his memories live, and those of us who were brought up on farms know that whatever else was lacking there, a sense of life was not." Marcia Dalphin
— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 S 16 '28 650w

"It is a simple, realistic and graphic account of a kind of life that comparatively few children nowadays know much about."
+ N Y Times p10 S 23 '28 140w

WENTWORTH, PATRICIA (MRS G. F. DILLON). Anne Belinda. 304p $2 Lippincott [7s 6d Hodder & S.]

28-7752

John Maurice Waveney is searching for his young cousin Anne Belinda. Not even her apparently devoted twin sister will tell him where she has gone or why; when he finally learns that she has been spending a year in prison he refuses to believe her guilty of the theft for which she was sentenced and investigates quietly until he uncovers the truth.

"The story moves as fast as possible considering the substance. Artistically speaking, it lacks merit because it gives neither a diffused picture nor a deft manipulation of a slice of life; nor does it have action and excitement enough to make up for its other deficiencies. It is fairly diverting and reasonably amusing, enough so at least to become popular."

+ — Boston Transcript p3 Mr 24 '28 180w

"The style is simple and natural; the novel always entertains. It gives one the feeling that if such things are not likely to happen it is a pity they don't."

+ N Y Times p32 Mr 4 '28 250w

Times [London] Lit Sup p610 S 8 '27 110w

WENTWORTH, PATRICIA (MRS G. F. DILLON). Will-o'-the-wisp. 317p $2 Lippincott [7s 6d Hodder & S.]

28-25353

Folly was an attractive young will-o'-the-wisp, full of the flame of modern youth, but not as flaming as her staid relatives imagined. She it was who gave David all the important clues in the solving of the mystery of his lost wife. But, of course, Folly loved David.

"This undistinguished fiction may be regarded as a cross between the mystery tale of commerce and the old-fashioned society romance for a selected audience. Miss Wentworth writes mostly in dialogue, some of it verging on the silly. The ending is happier than usual."

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p22 N 4 '28 90w

Boston Transcript p4 Ag 18 '28 380w

Springf'd Republican p6e D 16 '28 150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p245 Mr 29 '28 50w

WERNER, MORRIS ROBERT. Tammany hall. 586p il $5 Doubleday, Doran

363 Tammany hall 28-12991

The oldest and most powerful political institution in America was founded three weeks after the Constitution of the United States went into effect. Repeatedly exposed and discredited thruout its long history it has yet shown an extraordinary vitality. Mr Werner makes clear the sources of its power and studies the personalities of the bosses who have ruled Tammany as absolute monarchs during the last seventy five years of its history—Fernando Wood, William Tweed, John Kelly, Richard Croker, and Charles F. Murphy.

Reviewed by Silas Bent

Bookm 67:433 Je '28 320w

"It is unfortunate that Mr. Werner's book covers so much of the story ably told by Mr. Lynch in his 'Boss Tweed.' I feel that the biographical form is better suited to the story of this immortal brigand and that Mr. Lynch makes a more absorbing tale of it. On the other hand, Mr. Werner makes it clear that Tweed typified only the ultimate goal of all the earlier bosses. And the fact that his history starts with the inception of Tammany soon after the Revolution makes possible a sustained, orderly and often tremendously fascinating narrative. The villain of his piece is not Tweed or Croker or Murphy. It is Tammany Hall itself; an organization which he holds up as eternally corrupt, eternally selfish, eternally vicious." H: F. Pringle

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 Ap 22 '28 1350w

Reviewed by S. L. Cook

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 21 '28 2500w

"Here is a great epic narrative of a government of the officeholders, by the officeholders, for the officeholders. Were I a millionaire I'd give a copy of Tammy Hall to every teacher as long as my funds held out."

+ Educ R 76:146 O '28 900w

"His book would be improved by blue-penciling many unnecessary and repetitious pages. With all this, the book is as interesting as it is picturesque. . . Mr. Werner does not pause to moralize. He quoted chapter and verse with grim irony and a certain detachment."

+ — Ind 120:509 My 26 '28 370w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley

New Repub 55:74 Je 6 '28 1000w

"Mr. Werner has drawn a strong indictment of Tammany Hall. The question is whether it is not too strong. Into more than five hundred pages he has crammed one vicious detail after another; incidents that are a stench in the nostrils of right thinking men. The defect of Werner's book is that it is unvaried by 'lights and shadows.' Even as an indictment, it lacks the advantages of contrasts. Nor would Werner have done violence to fact in disclosing the human and appealing side of Tammany, because the organization's whole history is one of a close human touch and its unique power and authority all through the years have been grounded in personal charity." R. M. Field

— N Y Evening Post p12 Ap 28 '28 850w

"In assembling the evidence against the defendant he has searched court records, legislative reports, and all manner of official documents; but he has not stopped there. He has opened hospitable arms to any witness for the prosecution. He has dug up campaign canards often patently false; he lends a pleased ear to gossip of any kind, provided it is hostile gossip; he places side by side, and seems to regard them as of equal weight, statements made under oath, speeches by anti-Tammany spellbinders of the past, and editorial paragraphs from dead and gone newspapers. He even cites as an authority a picturesque novel written by Alfred Henry Lewis." C: W. Thompson

N Y Times p1 Ap 22 '28 1950w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

No Am 225:adv Je '28 50w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:442 O '28

Reviewed by Joseph McGoldrick

Pol Sci Q 43:612 D '28 110w

Pratt p13 autumn '28

R of Rs 77:adv26 Je '28 70w

Reviewed by Nels Anderson

Survey 61:41 O 1 '28 120w

WERTENBAKER, CHARLES. Boojum. 307p $2 Boni & Liveright

28-9850

Stuart is a seventeen-year-old genius self-acknowledged. He is a poet. Evading life at every point, when it comes too close Stuart retreats and writes a sonnet. His college career, which is the period of the book, is a series of such evasions. The roistering life of the campus in which his brother is a leader, seldom draws him in. When we leave him, a bridegroom of three days, he flees the new responsibility for the something different, something beyond, that he will never find, "For the Snark was a Boojum you see."

Bookm 67:xxiv Jl '28 70w

"There is no story to the book. It is not very unusual in itself, but a landmark as the first book of recent years accurately to record the effects of the changing years and to do so with assertiveness and aliveness. Even Mr.

Wertenbaker's style shows his desperate modernity: a terse, hard prose, occasionally breaking into a nervous staccato." Marjorie Johnson
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Je 3 '28 720w

"Will be sufficient entertainment to any reader who enjoys mixed drinks and conversation. It is certainly one of the best—at least, one of the most glowing—pictures of university life that has appeared in some time. The conversation is surprisingly good, and sometimes makes you think of what Hemingway might have written if he had not been to the war." T. S. Matthews
+ New Repub 54:301 Ap 25 '28 140w

"The book is thoroughly amusing, which is its main intention, and often rings truer than the painstaking analyses of such as Floyd Dell. Mr. Wertenbaker suggests that if he wanted to he might grow up and do something real, but at present we are grateful for his humorous treatment of a subject too often examined with beetling brows." T. S.
+ N Y Evening Post p13 Ap 21 '28 90w

"'Boojum' is a college novel conceived in levity and executed with an amusingly inadvertent regard for the traditions it flaunts. It fails as a parody, because the author lacks detachment. But for that same reason it succeeds as a comedy version of the eternal undergraduate story."
+ — N Y Times p14 Ap 29 '28 550w
Springf'd Republican p7f Ag 26 '28 350w

WERTENBAKER, THOMAS JEFFERSON. First Americans, 1607-1690. (Hist. of Am. life ser.) 358p il $4 (17s) Macmillan

917.3 United States—Social life and customs—Colonial period. United States—Civilization 27-24317

"Professor Wertenbaker deals with the first century of English settlement, describing and interpreting Northern and Southern colonists impartially and pointing out the many points of similarity that were at first observable among them, later yielding to variations due to geographical and climatic differences."—R of Rs

——

"Attention should not be concentrated on what may or may not be defects depending somewhat on the point of view of the reader. They are of minor consequence and the virtues of the book are very great. Professor Wertenbaker has given to the American public a highly useful study full of new points of view and fresh interpretation. His simple and restrained style has a distinct charm. Nowhere is his painstaking scholarship more clearly demonstrated than in the excellent bibliography at the end." R. H. Gabriel
+ Am Hist R 33:661 Ap '28 850w

"History written as it is written here becomes more than a mere recounted sequence of events—it becomes a significant and comprehensible current." M. P. Redfield
+ Am J Soc 33:1016 My '28 130w
Booklist 24:246 Mr '28

Reviewed by V. L: Parrington
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 Ja 29 '28 480w

"It would be difficult to think of anything that would lay a better foundation for intelligent patriotism than a careful reading of the whole series." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 45:319 Mr 8 '28 70w

"The chief service rendered by Professor Wertenbaker's book is the forceful portrayal of American origins against the European background." H. E. Barnes
+ New Repub 54:sup162 Mr 21 '28 230w

"It cannot be said he reveals much that is new, but he has handled a great mass of material with his customary grasp." A. S. Will
N Y Times p1 F 19 '28 450w

"Professor Wertenbaker has given an excellent account of the foundation of a new civilization, distinctly American. Fault may be found with the fact that the author has drawn his material almost exclusively from Virginia and Massachusetts. Some account of the social conditions in the other colonies, especially New York, would have provided a more complete picture." N. P. Mead
+ — Pol Sci Q 43:280 Je '28 600w
Pratt p36 autumn '28
R of Rs 77:adv8 F '28 180w

"Professor Wertenbaker has already done good service in exploring the nature of southern society, and what he has to say about the other colonies and sections is equally competent." W: MacDonald
+ Sat R of Lit 4:664 Mr 10 '28 250w

"Professor Wertenbaker's style is vivid and charming; one leaves his book with a keen sense of having read a fascinating story well told." H. E. Wilson
+ School R 36:471 Je '28 350w
Springf'd Republican p8 D 10 '27 280w
Springf'd Republican p10 Je 29 '28 360w

Reviewed by L: S. Gannett
Survey 60:188 My 1 '28 140w
World Tomorrow 11:278 Je '28 80w

"The [first] four volumes [of the series] form an admirable contribution to the present state of popular knowledge. They do in a limited way for the whole American story what Mr. Mark Sullivan is doing for a small section of it. . . The path-breaking historian, when he is not frankly a specialist, is always in danger of lapsing into the cataloguer. At times, these able and gifted authors go the way of all flesh in this respect. But it must not be thought that this one reservation interferes with general praise of the undertaking." N. W. Stephenson
+ Yale R n s 18:184 S '28 140w

WESTCOTT, GLENWAY. Good-bye Wisconsin. 362p $2.50 Harper

28-21484

A group of short stories, with an opening sketch which deftly creates the Wisconsin background that forms their setting. Contents: Good-bye Wisconsin; The runaways; Adolescence; A guilty woman; The dove came down; Like a lover; In a thicket; Prohibition; The sailor; The wedding march; The whistling swan.

——

Booklist 25:73 N '28

"More important than any individual story is the sense they all give of a beautiful and trained style, a style at times over-poetic and at times over-mannered, but which bears within itself many of the qualities of greatness." C. P. Fadiman
+ Bookm 68:220 O '28 750w

"I doubt if it is a reviewer's business to attempt to pass upon the truth and validity of the social criticism in such a book as Mr. Wescott's. It is enough to say that he has interesting things to set down on paper, and that he sets them there with skill, in a prose changed from his earlier efforts, but still delicately strong, refreshing for its ease and flow, and bearing traces of an early discipline in poetry. . . With all their merits, Mr. Wescott's stories impress me somehow as the work of a man whose natural medium is the novel." Herschel Brickell
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 S 23 '28 1050w
Nation 127:431 O 24 '28 130w

"In Mr. Wescott's stories the emotional pattern is sketched on a background which is disproportionate for it and which makes it insignificant; that background is the landscape. . . It absorbs Mr. Wescott and no other reality can quite subsist beside it. . . Mr. Wescott's stories arouse singularly little emotion. They do not fail at this; they do not attempt it. They slip away, they fade; save for an occasional finely discerning passage or phrase they refuse to be memorable." Lionel Trilling

WESCOTT, GLENWAY—Continued
+ — N Y Evening Post p9 S 29 '28 1150w

" 'Good-bye Wisconsin' leaves one with the impression that Glenway Wescott is glad to have this book behind him. It marks, judging from internal evidence, the end of a phase in the author's progression; he has had his say concerning the people, the characteristics, of the region of his birth, and is ready for other things." J: R. Chamberlain
+ N Y Times p2 S 16 '28 1400w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 226:adv N '28 60w

"The short stories in this volume are merely by-products of Mr. Wescott's talent. They lack in a curious way the richly poetic style of his two novels. Excellent and even profound in scattered passages, these stories have a lack of body which is disappointing." Ruth Suckow
— + Outlook 150:1036 O 24 '28 450w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:549 N '28

"It is a continuous pleasure to read his prose, fresh, unstrained, unaffected in description, sensitive and direct in narrative." Theodore Purdy, Jr.
+ Sat R of Lit 5:370 N 17 '28 550w

Reviewed by Hale Schaffner
Survey 61:174 N 1 '28 350w
Wis Lib Bul 24:306 N '28

WESEEN, MAURICE HARLEY. Crowell's dictionary of English grammar and handbook of American usage. 703p $4.50 Crowell

425 English language—Grammar. English language—Dictionaries. English language—Terms and phrases 28-7876

This handbook deals with the chief difficulties of English grammar and usage—the various parts of speech and their uses. syntax, idioms, synonyms and homonyms, colloquialisms, slang, errors of speech and grammatical constructions that need watching. For ease of reference these terms and matters of usage are arranged alphabetically.

Booklist 24:387 Jl '28

"The principal virtues of the volume are simplicity and completeness. Giving a brief paragraph to each word or topic, and arranging them all in alphabetical order, Professor Weseen has produced a book which is simultaneously a guide to grammatical correctness. a dictionary of grammatical terms, a list of words and constructions to avoid, a compendium of current slang, and a stylebook of contemporary usage. His work should prove of great service to students, editors, proof-readers, and young writers." Malcolm Cowley
+ New Repub 55:232 Jl 18 '28 650w
Wis Lib Bul 24:160 My '28

WEST, GEOFFREY. Annie Besant. (Representative women) 174p $2 Viking press [3s 6d G. Howe]

B or 92 Besant, Mrs Annie (Wood) 28-9559

An account of the life of this remarkable woman, and of her spiritual progress from a clergyman's wife in England to president of the Theosophical society in India.

Booklist 25:69 N '28

"Geoffrey West has written an accurate and discerning little book, which is valuable because it is inspired by a critical interest in this extraordinary woman. It is fair and cool, making no extravagant claims for Annie Besant, and quite rightly, summing her up as an impersonal agitator and rhetorician." S. K. Ratcliffe
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 My 6 '28 630w
Boston Transcript p2 My 29 '28 450w
Cleveland Open Shelf p103 S '28

Reviewed by Ernest Boyd
Ind 120:339 Ap 7 '28 630w

"Geoffrey West's study of Annie Besant is concise, clear, and adequate. Although he is no Theosophist, the author explains the spiritual adventures of this deeply religious woman who wandered from Christianity through atheism to Theosophy."
Living Age 334:751 Ap 15 '28 220w
Nation 127:232 S 5 '28 50w

"A genuine and valuable piece of work. Mr. West's account ought to be read by everyone who wishes to be fair in his estimate of an uncommonly gifted and able woman."
+ Nation and Ath 42:194 N 5 '27 230w

Reviewed by D. B. Woolsey
New Repub 55:77 Je 6 '28 650w

"Admirably detached and impartial study."
+ N Y Times p20 Ap 8 '28 400w

Reviewed by Ruth Suckow
N Y World p11m Ap 15 '28 150w

"It is a tribute to Geoffrey West's fair-minded humanity that not only the side of her life which was concerned with social reform and which any one can accept with sympathy, but also the theosophical side, with its suggestion of mystic-shriner absurdities, is presented, in his book, in an entirely sympathetic manner. His book is valuable."
+ Outlook 149:751 S 5 '28 530w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:491 O '28
Sat R 144:673 N 12 '27 220w

"The book is of value as the only impartial, non-Theosophical account of Mrs. Besant's career, but there its value ends. Mr. West has not felt it necessary at any point in the story to go behind the scenes; he moves with light step through the tortuous mazes of the Theosophical movement without evincing the slightest desire to investigate more than the most obvious sources of information. . . A fine opportunity to analyze the nature of a typical propagandist has been altogether missed."
— + Sat R of Lit 4:1007 Je 30 '28 350w
Spec 139:536 O 8 '27 930w
Times [London] Lit Sup p315 Ap 26 '28 400w
Wis Lib Bul 24:161 My '28

WEST, JAMES EDWARD. Lone scout of the sky; the story of Charles A. Lindbergh; with special contributions from John H. Finley, Richard E. Byrd, Clarence D. Chamberlin, and complete instructions on how to make a flying model of the Spirit of St Louis. enl ed 255p il $1 Winston

B or 92 Lindbergh, Charles Augustus [27-25391]

"This story of Lindbergh's flight emphasizes his early life, schooling, and technical training as a preparation for his success. The author is the chief scout executive of the Boy scouts organization. The book includes a detailed plan of a flying model of the 'Spirit of St. Louis' and a glossary of terms used in aeronautics."—Booklist

Booklist 24:326 My '28

Reviewed by D. C. Lunt
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 Jl 15 '28 300w

"With only a few pages devoted to Lindbergh's background and the status of aviation when he flashed in the world's eye, Mr. West plunges at once into the story of the flight that thrilled the world. He tells it very fully and also in graphic style and puts into it all the details about the Spirit of St. Louis—that trusty partner in the famous 'We'—and about the mechanical side of the flight that boy readers want to know."
+ N Y Times p26 N 11 '28 180w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:230 Ap '28

WEST, REBECCA. Strange necessity; essays. 380p $3 Doubleday, Doran [10s 6d J. Cape]

824 Art. Literature 28-28884

More than half this book of literary criticism is filled with the title essay, in which Miss West

offers a definition and defense of art and discusses its necessity to life. Contents: The strange necessity; Uncle Bennett; The classic artist; Gallions Reach; Two kinds of memory; The long chain of criticism; Sinclair Lewis introduces Elmer Gantry; Sherwood Anderson, poet; Battlefield and sky; What is this other continent? The tosh-horse; Tribute to some minor artists.

"Every reader of this book, whether he agree with its opinions or no, must feel the strange fire at the heart of it, and the nobility of the personality behind it. It has also an arrogance of temper which is, I think, the most interesting comment we have yet had in England on the present position of the English women of letters here. . . It is not an exaggeration if one claims that 'The Strange Necessity' and 'The Common Reader' of Virginia Woolf are the two finest volumes of literary criticism written by women in the English language." Hugh Walpole

\+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 S 2 '28 330w

Reviewed by J. W. Krutch

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 N 25 '28 1400w

Boston Transcript p6 D 8 '28 530w

"Miss West is so earnest and so witty that one would like to say nice things about her book. It consists of one long essay of about 200 pages, which gives the book its title, and sundry book reviews which are amusing enough, but not decent material for another reviewer. But the long essay is concerned with a very important question—some of us might be inclined to regard it as the most important of all questions." Herbert Read

Nation and Ath 43:746 S 15 '28 680w

"Apparent perversities of judgment in no wise detract from the intense readableness of nearly all Miss West's essays and reviews. The exception, alas! occupies a good deal more than half of the present volume, to which it gives its title. The Strange Necessity is almost as tedious as Das Kapital, and with much less justification. It is so intrinsically unreadable that the printer's reader will surely be the last and only man who will ever be able to claim that he has read all through the sixty or seventy thousand words of it."

— + New Statesman 31:566 Ag 11 '28 1550w

Reviewed by J: Crawford

N Y Evening Post p8m N 10 '28 1150w

"A book of essays that may be read with pleasure and fury, and the galvanizing quality of criticism can go no further than that. It is suggestive, in the best meaning of the word."

\+ N Y Times p12 D 2 '28 550w

"Her new book shows that we were not wrong in regarding Miss West as a writer of importance. It consists of one long essay which has never been printed before and several shorter ones which have. The shorter pieces represent, quite fairly, the fuel which all these years has kept alive the fire of our interest in her. . . 'The Strange Necessity' is a beautiful and invigorating piece of criticism. I have read nowhere remarks so sound or so illuminating as Miss West's on those two stumbling-blocks of twentieth-century literature, Marcel Proust and Mr. James Joyce." E: Shanks

\+ Sat R 146:153 Ag 4 '28 1350w

"In pages at a stretch the writing is admirable, at others it is involved and in places abominable. Her verdicts are incisive, at times brilliant, but often too smart or a little cheap. She has, with the younger school, assimilated the psychoanalytic formulas, and often applies them with an ingenuous cocksureness that makes one smile. As a critic she is feminine in the sense that if she likes an author she hoists him sky-high with her approval, and if she disapproves he is buried beneath a heap of stones and flattened beneath her shovel." E: Garnett

\+ — Sat R of Lit 5:335 N 10 '28 1200w

"If her conclusions are not more startling than those of most meditators on the nature of Art, her side-issues and illustrative criticisms are alluring, confident, and gay. This is an unequal volume, with dull and heavy pages when she is half-heartedly writing of 'excitating complexes' and so on, and sudden passages of amazing felicity when she strikes a theme proper to her delight, her malice, or her dancing wit."

\+ — Spec 141:193 Ag 11 '28 300w

"The author has an ardent intellect and a trenchancy of expression which, although it runs to the precious now and again, is often invigorating. But she has touched upon so large a variety of topics that it is almost inevitable she should have lost her way at times. More than that, she plunges frequently into obscurity. There are, indeed, scores of sentences of a semi-scientific nature in the first half of the book which yield no more meaning at the second reading than at the first. . . Her judgments are inclined to be a trifle irresponsible, but she delivers them with unflagging vivacity. Her best writing has indeed the effect of good conversation—or rather of brilliant conversation."

\+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p565 Ag 2 '28 780w

WESTON, HAROLD. Bride's progress; a lunch-[2] eon hour comedy. 305p $2.50 Morrow [7s 6d Duckworth]

28-20922

"The incidents of this novel all happen within an hour. The scene is a small restaurant in Italy. The characters are: the giver of the feast, a divorced man of forty that day married to a curiously virginal young woman who has been living with him, platonically, for the last twelve months; the bride, herself; a Dutch woman living apart from her own husband, in love with the bride's; the English Consul who has married them, an amorous tippler; his French wife, smart, immoral and witty; the barrister who wangled the man's divorce, a bon viveur. Guided by the French woman, the talk mainly consists of ill-natured allusions to the married state, and the bride is the butt of nearly every shaft, until after a period of despair she rallies and bears off her man."—New Statesman

Boston Transcript p2 S 19 '28 280w

"The innuendos and epigrams are shallow and tawdry as the comedy of desire unfolds. Mr. Weston, in an amiable desire to interest the sophisticated, has written a canine comedy proving that bedroom literature is not an Anglo-Saxon art."

— Ind 121:309 S 29 '28 230w

"The comedy is drawn out and the dialogue persistently gross; still the wit is there, and the final moral—that with the gloves off Artemis is more than a match for Aphrodite—is thoroughly sound."

\+ — New Statesman 31:234 My 26 '28 140w

"A masterly bit of social comedy, clear-sighted, worldly and wholesome. Its appeal will be to readers of mature minds and civilized backgrounds. Its characterizations are masterly, especially those of Mme. Cheyne and Hilary Bentinck, and its action is well knit and compelling. In spite of being clever, epigrammatic and sophisticated, it is a thoroughly wise and humane piece of writing."

\+ N Y Times p8 S 23 '28 750w

"It is all very smart, lightning character sketches of people who unluckily fail to interest, revelations of a fairly obvious kind concerning third-rate men and women. It is something to have compressed the action of a whole novel into the space of a couple of hours, but it is not enough."

\+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p380 My 17 '28 140w

WETJEN, ALBERT RICHARD. Way for a [2] sailor! 408p $2.50 Century

28-25548

Told in the first person by Jack Lassan, this is a story of his life at sea, from the age of fourteen when he signed up as a deck-hand, till at twenty-three he is homeward bound with the prospect of a second mate's ticket and a waiting Lucy.

WETJEN, A. R:—Continued
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p36 D 2 '28 100w

Reviewed by Arthur Warner
Nation 127:718 D 26 '28 60w
N Y Evening Post p9m D 22 '28 100w

"The book is written in flowing, discursive manner that makes for easy reading. And occasionally the author paints a truly unforgettable picture of the sea—but that is about all that can be said for the novel."
— + Sat R of Lit 5:439 D 1 '28 90w

WEYMAN, STANLEY JOHN. Lively Peggy. 340p $2.50 Longmans [7s 6d Murray]
28-20343

"A historical novel of the days of the Napoleonic wars. The setting of the story is a seaside town in England, all the inhabitants of which have a share in the privateer, 'The Lively Peggy.' Ex-Lieut Charles Bligh, who lost an arm in his majesty's service and later was cashiered for drunkenness, gives the townspeople something else to talk about when he elopes with the proud vicar's daughter, Peggy Portnal, for whom the ship was named. How Peggy's faith in her husband was justified when Lieut Bligh took out the privateer and captured a French man-of-war makes a thrilling, pungent sea tale."—Springf'd Republican

"A sound romantic melodrama."
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p27 O 7 '28 150w

" 'The Lively Peggy' is no intricate character study, no attempt to analyze life deeply as a whole. Its purpose is romance, exactly what Mr. Weyman's purpose always has been, and it fulfills that purpose to the utmost." E. F. Edgett
+ Boston Transcript p3 S 1 '28 1400w
Cleveland Open Shelf p138 D '28

"It is regrettable that Stanley Weyman's last novel, completed just before his death, should prove so poor a specimen of his usually individual and sometimes notable work. Presumably writers—even writers of Stanley Weyman's standing—must produce occasional books of this nature in order to earn a living, but such work should not continue to appear when they, alas! are no longer under the necessity of earning."
— New Statesman 31:650 S 1 '28 180w
N Y Times p6 Ag 19 '28 500w

"This, the last of the Weyman books to be ready for publication before the author's death, is no worthy successor to A Gentleman of France and Under the Red Robe. All the action and adventure takes place off stage, leaving for our direct contemplation only a group of rather dull people living in an English seaport at the time of the Napoleonic wars. We had a hard time getting through it." W. R. Brooks
— Outlook 149:638 Ag 15 '28 80w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:549 N '28

"Spontaneity glows upon every page of his last novel, which is worthy to rank with his best work. It is old-fashioned, of course. It belongs, almost, to the world of Westward Ho! But who, save the fools who can worship no gods but those of the passing moment, would wish Stanley Weyman to have marched with the times? It is a simple enough tale, but one full of cleansing breeziness and mellow beauty." Gilbert Thomas
+ Spec 141:224 Ag 18 '28 300w
Springf'd Republican p6e D 16 '28 110w

WHALER, JAMES. Hale's pond, and other poems. 128p $2 Vinal
811 27-25440

"Of the five poems which made up the collection 'Hale's Pond,' the first four are long dramatic narratives; the fifth might not unfittingly be characterized as a hymn to nature. In the presence of 'Lady of Katahdin' Mr. Whaler is moved as was Coleridge in the presence of Mont Blanc."—N Y Times

Boston Transcript p3 Ja 21 '28 150w

"His poetry [is] at times too lush, and at times too hollow, and it always obscures his merits. For Mr. Whaler is a good poet, though his quality is not to be got by quotation." Theodore Spencer
— + New Repub 55:25 My 23 '28 480w

"The several narrative poems in 'Hale's Pond' are vigorous in the extreme; indeed, too vigorous at times for the medium employed, they cease to be poetry. It is a fine question, this. But poetry compelled to carry a weight of horror and of truth must measure up to its task. One cannot say in advance how this is to be attained; but one is instantly aware when it is not attained. Mr. Whaler is too often thrown off balance, or his verse is thrown off balance, we are not prepared to say which. On the whole, however, the reader is carried forward on the surge." Percy Hutchison
+ — N Y Times p2 Ap 1 '28 300w

"This man has observed as a native, with keen artistic relish; he has something of Robert Frost's gift for thoroughly honest description with the smack of originality. Stuff of strong grain, admirably fresh and authentic."
+ Sat R of Lit 4:656 Mr 3 '28 520w

WHARTON, ANTHONY, pseud. See McAllister, A.

WHARTON, MRS EDITH NEWBOLD (JONES). The children. 347p $2.50 (7s 6d) Appleton
28-20466

Standing at the rail of the liner, Martin Boyne surveyed his fellow-passengers in the act of coming aboard. "Not a soul I shall want to speak to—as usual!" was his comment. Then he saw Judy Wheater carrying a fat, rosy baby up the gang plank and he changed his mind. Judy was only sixteen, but there was nothing inexperienced in the way she herded her troupe of brothers and sisters "and steps" over Europe while her father and mother played at divorce and remarriage. For a whole summer Martin, old bachelor that he was, joined forces with Judy in her gallant attempt to keep her flock together. But the lack of cooperation on the part of the members of a divorce-mad society was too much for them and they failed.

Booklist 25:31 O '28

"Not in disparagement or praise, but merely for placement, let it be said that Mrs. Wharton has written a fine serial for a certain type of audience." G. B. Munson
Bookm 68:336 N '28 280w

"In addition to the light which one is accustomed to associate with her work, it has more than Mrs. Wharton's accustomed warmth, and with the wider tolerance and sympathy which that warmth makes possible it delves deeply into an aggravated instance of the great American dilemma, showing it with courage, vigor and discrimination." Mary Ross
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 S 2 '28 1250w

"Though there is light as well as shade, and sparkle rather than argument, facts mould the development of a fine novel of contrasting moods, written in a very human spirit and in Mrs. Wharton's own admirable style and with her very great facility." S. L. Cook
+ Boston Transcript p2 S 1 '28 1000w
Cleveland Open Shelf p122 N '28

"Competent as Edith Wharton is, 'The Children' is scarcely a credible novel. It is an entertaining tour de force."
Ind 121:285 S 22 '28 280w

Reviewed by C. P. Fadiman
Nation 127:sup370 O 10 '28 520w

" 'The Children' is as slick, efficient, and readable as any of her former books, though perhaps it is just a little tired. For all its merits, 'The Children' falls halfway between being a book of information and a work of art." Francis Birrell

Nation and Ath 44:19 O 6 '28 380w

New Repub 56:160 S 26 '28 220w

"A novel far more than competent. It is in Mrs. Wharton's easier, later manner, less dependent on Henry James (there are bits, even which might have been written by 'Elizabeth'); but it has a seriousness, a gravity of idea, a genuine indignation which we do not as a rule find in her work." R. E. Roberts

+ New Statesman 146:760 S 29 '28 650w

Reviewed by Tess Slesinger

— N Y Evening Post p5 S 15 '28 750w

"We venture to say that 'The Children' is more than likely to prove the most popular novel Mrs. Wharton has ever penned. The portions of the book in which the little Wheater clan plays a predominating part are better than similar pages of 'The Constant Nymph.' There may be just a taint of burlesque, but they are carried through with éclat, general fidelity, revealing pathos, friendliness and good-will. Irrespective of the esthetic volte face of the second part, the youngsters can but carry their assault of the reader's heart to a devastating conclusion." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p2 S 2 '28 1900w

"The writing is, as always in a Wharton novel, fluent, with a brilliant surface of color and a shadowy depth of emotion. The characterization is as naked and revealing as that of a cartoonist—without any of a cartoonist's vulgarity. Elegance and ease, so rare in modern American literature and rarer still in modern American life, richly permeate the book. But for all its aristocracy of manner, 'The Children' is a slight book and thin." Marie Luhrs

— + N Y World p11m O 7 '28 480w

"One of this author's shrewdest and sharpest satires upon the current follies of society. The usual technical excellence, wit, style, and keen intelligence that one has come to expect from Mrs. Wharton are to be found in this latest book of hers." Herschel Brickell

+ No Am 226:adv N '28 100w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:549 N '28

Pratt p45 autumn '28

"It is only too easy to imagine the sordid mess many contemporary novelists would have made of such unpromising material; in Mrs. Wharton's hands it becomes a piece of genuine literature, individual and accomplished in form, full of acute observation and delicate description in which every word is well said and not a word is said too much. . . In the heroine Judith, Mrs. Wharton has really managed to give a new and individual flavour of charm to that age-old character, the child of Nature. Yet with all these merits 'The Children' is not altogether a satisfying book. It is too much the deliberate manufacture of the brain, too little the spontaneous creation of the imagination." L. P. Hartley

+ — Sat R 146:397 S 29 '28 450w

"Judith is one of Mrs. Wharton's most unusual and most delightful creations. . . Except for Judith and one or two of the other small Wheaters, the people of this world of easy divorces and remarriages are pricked out with swiftly satiric strokes. . . If the satire seems squeezed directly on to the canvas in thick, raw blobs at times, nothing could be more suavely mixed or more lightly laid on than its tenderness and gaiety. And whether the author is mocking or mellow, her hand is equally sure, her observation equally keen. Moreover, the very combination of mockery and mellowness, of something preposterous and something universal, gives to the story its peculiarly pleasant, bittersweet flavor." Grace Frank

+ Sat R of Lit 5:84 S 1 '28 1000w

"A certain dissatisfaction in the reader's mind hints that the central situation is too artificial, created as it is by the caprices of valueless people. Mrs. Wharton is best when she is more profound. But here is mirth, compassion, understanding, and many passages of admirable English." R. A. Taylor

+ — Spec 141:306 S 8 '28 530w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 7 '28 550w

"Mrs. Wharton has a sincere artist's preoccupation with her canvas and brushes, with problems of drawing and color, of perspective and shadow and light. Perhaps that is why this picture comes to us lucid as a Zorn etching and unsparing as a Soviet cartoon." Beulah Amidon

+ Survey 61:180 N 1 '28 330w

Wis Lib Bul 24:256 O '28

WHARTON, JAMES B. Squad. 300p $2 Coward-McCann

28-21978

" 'Squad' is a fairly hard-boiled and vivid account of the vicissitudes of eight members of the A. E. F. in France. The eight are types rather than individuals, and apparently chosen for their dissimilarity: a Swede from Texas, a high-school boy from San Francisco, a Serbian miner from Pennsylvania, a boy from Oklahoma, a New York East-Side Jew, a Philadelphia Italian, an Irish roustabout, and the corporal (significantly) from Ohio."—New Repub

---

"All too few, indeed, are the stories which have caught not the accomplishments of war but its spirit; stories that tell not what the A. E. F. did but how it lived while doing it—and all of them have been fiction. 'Fix Bayonets' is one, 'Chevrons' is another, 'What Price Glory' a third—and now 'Squad' makes a goodly fourth." S. L. R.

+ Boston Transcript p4 N 17 '28 850w

"Among all the novels which the war has brought forth it is hard to think of any more poignantly realistic. Here, one feels, is no mere story; here is war itself. It is thus and thus that men, usually very simple men, lived and, if they had bad luck, died. Both as a record and as a literary work 'Squad' is important. As a reporter and as artist Mr. Wharton has with one book gained a distinguished position." Esther Forbes

+ Nation 127:sup636 D 5 '28 480w

New Repub 57:24 N 21 '28 150w

N Y Times p6 N 25 '28 630w

Sat R of Lit 5:564 D 29 '28 320w

"There is in this book vivid, yet honest reporting; a good sense of the dramatic, some capable character-drawing and an excellent idea of what war was like to the average doughboy."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 2 '28 250w

WHEATLEY, MRS VERA. Enchanting danger. 290p $2.50 Dutton [7s 6d Methuen]

28-25354

The four young people of the story had been friends as children. Grown-up, they meet again in the Somerset town of Fratch St Peter. The girls are best friends, the boys are pals. Their story is one of love sacrificed to friendship, in a background of English village life.

"An agreeably realistic story of life in a Somerset village, this novel is notable for the number of shrewd character studies it contains. Miss Wheatley is an acute observer and builds up of little personal traits really convincing portraits. Without any claim to rank with the masterpieces of such fiction, this novel is entitled to a good position on the next shelf."

+ — New Statesman 30:736 Mr 17 '28 70w

N Y Times p30 N 25 '28 320w

"The chief merit of the story is neither in the lovers nor in the plot. The book's main attraction is some delightful minor characters."

Times [London] Lit Sup p173 Mr 8 '28 120w

WHEELER, E. Manufacture of artificial silk; [2] with special reference to the viscose process. 150p il $5 Van Nostrand [12s 6d Chapman & H.]

677.4 Silk, Artificial 28-26705

"Historical outline and the chemistry of the various processes precede concise accounts of manufacture and chapters on properties, uses and economics. In the appendix are laboratory methods for controlling the manufacture of viscose, physical tests of artificial silk, and identification of artificial silk by chemical tests. Patent and periodical references at chapter endings."—N Y New Tech Bks

Booklst 25:60 N '28

"Mr. Wheeler in his very clear and concise account of the normal process as carried out to-day in many factories, devotes considerable attention to the details of mechanical arrangements. The other processes at present operated industrially are described equally skilfully, but more shortly."

+ Nature 121:739 My 12 '28 580w

N Y New Tech Bks 13:25 Ap '28

WHEELER, WILLIAM MORTON. Foibles of insects and men. 217p il $6 (25s) Knopf

595.7 Insects 28-12001

Most of the papers gathered here describe in detail the characteristics of certain insects, and are reprinted from scientific journals. Two or three deal in witty vein with the characteristics of research workers and teachers of entomology.

"A very considerable book, this of Dr. Wheeler. The matured document of a wise, learned, human counselor." Logan Clendening

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 Je 24 '28 1050w

Boston Transcript p3 Je 23 '28 600w

"Taken all in all, it may be said that Dr. Wheeler and his work are among the most interesting and important manifestations of the health of science in the western world. We can do no better than recommend them to all who are interested in vigorous clarity of writing, in honesty and integrity of approach, and in the great subject of human life and its place in the world." Raymond Holden

+ New Repub 55:256 Jl 25 '28 1200w

"Really no more than a haphazard and rather uneven collection of addresses."

New Statesman 31:770 S 29 '28 180w

Reviewed by Joseph Collins

N Y Evening Post p5 S 15 '28 1050w

"There is any amount of fine observation, vividly seen and as vividly written, so that the wayfaring man may read page after page with something of the absorbed pleasure of the Texas ants while they were having their heads shampooed. So much, then, for one element in this complex book. When we come to the other element, presumably referred to in the title as the foibles of men, we are likely to get something of a shock, though it may be a shock not altogether unpleasant. For in this part, that is, in the introduction and in a series of addresses toward the end, Dr. Wheeler lets himself go, and indulges in a lot of playful satire at the expense of dignitaries who are in general treated with some solemnity." C: Johnston

+ N Y Times p4 Jl 29 '28 1550w

"These are scientific papers, not originally written for popular consumption, yet so interesting is the matter, and so well does Professor Wheeler express it, that it cannot fail to entertain the reader." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 149:195 My 30 '28 280w

St Louis 26:351 N '28

"His addresses are characterized not only by the richness of biological knowledge, but also by their satire and wit." B. J. Kunkel

+ Sat R of Lit 5:146 S 22 '28 750w

"A certain bitterness pervading the whole book, coupled with undisguised sarcasm, make the reading far from pleasant. Many of the remarks contained especially in the last three chapters are interesting, vital, and pertinent, others quite unnecessary and unscientific. Another weakness of the author is his attempt at humor which turns out to be as acid as his sarcasm. Such defects apart, the last chapters are wholesome reading for all who are engaged in teaching and research, as forcefully raising questions which are otherwise easily forgotten or brushed aside." Alexander Petrunkevitch

+ — Yale R n s 18:381 winter '29 280w

WHEELER, WILLIAM MORTON. Social insects; their origin and evolution. (Int. lib. of psychology, philosophy and scientific method) 378p il $7 Harcourt [21s K. Paul]

595.7 Insects. Hymenoptera. Termites 28-16212

The twelve lectures which make up this volume deal with the origin and evolution of the truly social insects belonging to a single large division of the Hymenoptera, sub-order Aculeata, and the order Isoptera, or Termites. Professor Wheeler's study of the complex social life of ants, bees, wasps and termites reveals striking analogies to human society.

Reviewed by W: Beebe

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 S 16 '28 1000w

Boston Transcript p6 Ag 25 '28 700w

"The Social Insects is in spite of its subject almost unreadable. The subject of the book can be thoroughly treated in the simplest fashion, without flourish and jargon, as can be seen in Profesor Bugnion's recently published The Origin of Instinct. The Social Insects is very dull, very thorough and it avoids all the difficult and interesting problems of insect life. A prize was conferred on it by the Société Entomologique de France. We do not recommend it to any except students who cannot find the information elsewhere."

— New Statesman 31:334 Je 16 '28 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p529 Jl 19 '28 1500w

WHIFFEN, BLANCHE (GALTON) (MRS THOMAS WHIFFEN). Keeping off the shelf. 203p il $3.75 Dutton

B or 92 Actors and actresses—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 28-24630

Memories of a long, successful life, written by "the oldest and most picturesque actress on the American stage," who is, by the way, an Englishwoman.

"The hardships of her early trouping she looks back upon mistily; the later years of assured success with almost too much modesty. The real story of what it was all about eludes her, as it eludes so many actors writing their memoirs. A dear and wonderful old lady, but she needs the stage to express it." W. P. Eaton

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p40 D 2 '28 180w

N Y Evening Post p9m D 1 '28 60w

"Mrs. Thomas Whiffen is just as charming in writing her own life as she is in playing the lives of others. . . Her autobiography is a thoroughly readable, thoroughly lovable book."

+ N Y Times p3 N 11 '28 530w

Sat R of Lit 5:543 D 22 '28 300w

WHIPPLE, HELEN (DAVIS) (MRS G. M. WHIPPLE). Making citizens of the mentally limited; a curriculum for the special class. 374p $2 Public-school

371.92 Children, Abnormal and backward. Defective and delinquent classes—Education. Education—Curricula 27-27470

A book based on practical experience for the teacher of the special class, which outlines a course of work specially designed for the development of the subnormal child. The material is not arranged according to grade levels, but is intended for pupils whose mental ages range approximately from 4 to 12 years, and whose I. Q.'s range from 60 to 75.

"Two or three valuable books have been published which, like this one, content themselves with describing actual practice in a particular school or in a particular city. Of such books, this will probably be found one of the best, since it represents frankly 'a composite of the best practice of the best teachers' observed by the author during several years of experience as director of special education in Jackson, Michigan, and as supervisor of special classes in the state of Wisconsin." J: L: Horn

+ El School J 28:710 My '28 640w

"Except for a somewhat greater emphasis on drill and concrete material for subnormal groups, the reader is not struck by any essential difference between the curriculum as commonly outlined for normal children and that proposed for subnormal children. . . Several chapters which deal with quite different topics begin by emphasizing the importance of the material of that particular chapter for the subnormal child. Whatever may be the stimulating effect of this emphasis on the reader during the first few chapters, it wears off before he reaches the end of the book and leaves him confused as to what the author thinks is most important. Nevertheless, beginning teachers who are working with mentally deficient pupils will find in it a number of useful suggestions." H. H. Punke

School R 36:633 O '28 880w

Survey 59:786 Mr 15 '28 50w

WHIPPLE, THOMAS KING. Spokesmen; modern writers and American life. 277p $2.50 (10s 6d) Appleton

810.4 American literature—History and criticism. Authors, American 28-13012

The spokesmen of American life and letters whose message Mr Whipple analyzes are, with the exception of Henry Adams, those who won national reputation about the time of the World war. Introduced by an essay on the poetic temper they are: Henry Adams; Edwin Arlington Robinson; Theodore Dreiser; Robert Frost; Sherwood Anderson; Willa Cather; Carl Sandburg; Vachel Lindsay; Sinclair Lewis; Eugene O'Neill; The American situation.

Booklist 25:114 D '28

Bookm 68:xiv N '28 180w

"Mr. Whipple studies and explains literary artists in terms of their environment, not a novel method, but a valuable one when tempered with good judgment. He ends upon a note of carefully considered optimism. All in all he has a fine critical mind, and when the thesis of his book is given the attention it deserves, the American millennium that we all desire will be hastened." S. V. V. W.

+ Boston Transcript p3 Je 16 '28 430w

Dial 85:540 D '28 100w

"Mr. Whipple breaks no new ground, but he writes with discernment and appreciation of nine outstanding figures in contemporary American literature." Ernest Boyd

+ Ind 120:555 Je 9 '28 900w

"Critical essays on our established literary figures, written with an attractive sobriety."

+ — Nation 127:232 S 5 '28 100w

"These studies are very keen and sympathetic literary criticisms." L: Mumford

+ New Repub 56:77 S 5 '28 1400w

New Statesman 31:648 S 1 '28 150w

"Mr. Whipple shows himself in this small volume as an important critic and one likely to become more important. He subjects our fundamental standards to a scrutiny to which books are only handy measuring rods. He is keenly aware of the fundamental defects in our national culture, and, which is of more importance, he contrives to analyze them as few of our latterday Jeremiahs have done." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p2 My 27 '28 1700w

"His analyses of the stupidly ignored among the older writers, the writers in the heyday of their popularity, and the inattentively noticed new writers are excellent. Whipple is an entertaining writer."

+ Outlook 149:395 Jl 4 '28 230w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:579 N '28

St Louis 26:322 O '28

Reviewed by M. M. Colum

Sat R of Lit 4:997 Je 30 '28 900w

Springf'd Republican p10 My 26 '28 780w

"Mr. Whipple makes his points with discretion and considerable ingenuity. His general thesis, of course, is a little obvious; but the merit of his book lies in the perspicacity and breadth of outlook with which he applies it to the actual literary output in the United States at the present time."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p533 Jl 19 '28 720w

Wis Lib Bul 24:222 Jl '28

Reviewed by Harold Armitage

Yale R n s 18:413 winter '29 180w

WHITAKER, ARTHUR PRESTON. Spanish-American frontier: 1783-1795; the westward movement and the Spanish retreat in the Mississippi Valley; with an introd. by Samuel Eliot Morison. 255p $3.50 Houghton

978 Southwest, Old—History. Mississippi valley—History. Spain—Colonies—North America 27-23368

An interesting chapter in the history of the winning of the West is unfolded in this account of the frontier advance and the Spanish retreat in the Mississippi Valley in the years immediately following the Revolutionary war. It is a study of commercial and diplomatic intrigues among backwoodsmen, fur traders, land speculators and the officials of Spain's empire in North America, further complicated by relations with the Indian tribes that were the neighbors of Spanish and Americans.

"The study is carefully worked. The treatment is sane and unbiassed; the analysis of the two powers' strength and weakness is keen and discerning. It is readable as well as historically sound, for the author keeps ever in mind the dramatic aspects of the story, the striking contrasts' presented by 'the personages who move across the stage.' It would be better, from the student's point of view, to have notes at the bottom of each page, rather than at the back of the book, though the form adopted may be more agreeable for the general reader."

+ — Am Hist R 33:671 Ap '28 500w

"Mr. Whitaker's 'The Spanish-American Frontier' is entirely the old-fashioned style—dates, diplomacy and documents. There is a trace of the leaven of new tendencies in it, but the cake has fallen somewhat, though it is still digestible." Sydney Greenbie

Bookm 67:319 My '28 90w

"It is a well documented account, with ample use of Spanish as well as American sources, and with adequate reference to the standard authorities in the field. It deserves and will receive generous recognition from historians and from readers of history who see the continental significance of some of the newer phases of American historical writing. . . The story is told somewhat clankily, after the Tin-Woodman-Marching-Through-Oz approved method of the normal doctoral dissertation. There is too much visible outline paraphernalia." H. I. Priestley

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p21 Ja 29 '28 1050w

"This is a scholarly, concise, and interesting narrative." A. C. Wilgus

+ Hist Outlook 19:181 Ap '28 450w

WHITAKER, A. P.—Continued
Nation 127:93 Jl 25 '28 160w
N Y Times p18 Ap 8 '28 500w
No Am 225:adv Ja '28 30w
R of Rs 78:adv22 Ag '28 90w

WHITCOMB, MRS EDNA PEARL (OSBORNE). We five. 240p il $2 Doubleday, Doran 28-15628

When Roosevelt was president "we five" lived on a farm in Kansas. There were Horace, Florence, Frances, Teddy, and Rose, ranging in age from four to nine. With a thoroly understanding mother and a jolly father, the children spent their days in work and play, enjoying every minute. The end of the story finds them setting out reluctantly for the city, for their father was to be lieutenant governor.

Booklist 25:33 O '28

"It is a lively, charming picture of a wholesome and happy life, and of lovable children."
+ N Y Times p12 Je 24 '28 130w

WHITE, EDWARD ALBERT. American orchid culture. 227p il $4.50 De La Mare
716.2 Orchids 27-21200

This book "is the first attempt to give both the commercial grower and the enthusiastic amateur a purely American production, written by an American, and telling the story of the rise and progress of orchid culture in America. Its author (who prefers to be called its editor), Professor Edward A. White, is head of the Department of Floriculture and Ornamental Horticulture, New York State College of Agriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y." (Publisher's foreword)

Booklist 24:238 Mr '28
Cleveland Open Shelf p48 Ap '28

WHITE, JOSEPH (GIUSEPPE BIANCO, pseud.). On the sixth day. 312p $2.50 Bobbs [7s 6d Cassell]
28-17818

When his wife shelves responsibility for home and child, Michael Poolecrue, painter, settles on her more than he can afford, breaks up their home and takes his small daughter to live on the moors. His devoted care is rewarded by the child's love and trust, and an unusual relation develops between them. For Gillian's sake Michael gives up the woman he would like to marry, and later, Gillian in like case, is ready to forswear love to stay with her father.

"An excellent novel. It holds out an ideal of beauty and responsibility."
+ Boston Transcript p2 My 2 '28 220w
Christian Century 45:979 Ag 9 '28 50w
N Y Times p25 My 6 '28 380w

"The book is sincerely written and shows real promise through the somewhat stiff presentation."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p132 F 23 '28 220w

WHITE, LEONARD DUPEE. City manager. (Univ. of Chicago. Social science studies) 355p il $3 Univ. of Chicago press
352 Municipal government—City manager plan 27-23675

For descriptive note see Annual for 1927.

Reviewed by H. W. Dodds
Ann Am Acad 138:184 Jl '28 850w
Booklist 24:194 F '28
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Ja 29 '28 210w

"The book is not only the latest but on the whole it is also the best presentation of the council-manager plan, with attention centered on the manager. In view of the large percentage of managers who are engineers and the scores of engineers who apply for many of the vacancies, the book should appeal strongly to the members of the engineering profession."
+ Eng N 100:123 Ja 19 '28 550w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:145 Mr '28
Pratt p10 spring '28

Reviewed by C. R. Woodruff
Sat R of Lit 4:788 Ap 21 '28 1000w
Spec 140:234 F 18 '28 780w

WHITE, WALTER PORTER. Modern calorimeter. (Am. chemical soc. Monograph ser.) 194p il $4 Chemical catalog co.
536.6 Calorimeters and calorimetry 28-11433

"The fundamental principles of calorimetric measurement are discussed in detail, including the errors involved and available means of minimizing their effect. Both general and particular calorimetric methods, as well as methods of calibration, are considered. One chapter is devoted to design and application of particular apparatus, including the vacuum-walled and aneroid calorimeters. The concluding chapter deals with calorimeter design as related to attainable precision."—Ind & Eng Chem

"No one should undertake a research in calorimetry without first studying this book." Farrington Daniels
+ Am Chem Soc J 50:3393 D '28 480w

"The book will be especially welcomed by research men interested in obtaining the highest possible calorimetric precision; nowhere else, to the writer's knowledge, are the requirements involved so fully and authoritatively treated." J. D. Davis
+ Ind & Eng Chem 20:664 Je '28 350w

"Although it is written essentially for the specialist in calorimetry, this book is arranged in such a way as to be equally valuable to the general scentific reader. Dr. White has made important contributions to recent developments of calorimetry, and while his book does not completely cover the whole field, it gives a good account of the numerous practical details necessary in obtaining reliable estimates of accuracy."
+ Nature 122:569 O 13 '28 220w
N Y New Tech Bks 13:15 Ap '28

WHITE, WILLIAM ALLEN. Masks in a pageant. 507p il $5 Macmillan
923.2 Presidents—United States. Statesmen, American. United States—Politics and government 28-22309

These vigorous portraits of presidents and politicians drawn from Mr White's memory of them make up a pageant whose background is a continuous history of American politics during the last fifty years. Those who appear in the pageant are Croker, Platt, Harrison, Grover Cleveland, McKinley, Mark Hanna, Bryan, Theodore Roosevelt, Taft, Woodrow Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, Alfred Emanuel Smith, William Hale Thompson.

Booklist 25:118 D '28

"With all of them he has had a reporter's relation, with six of them political relations and with one, Roosevelt, 'a friendship that was precious to me.' This acquaintance plus an incisive mind, a long experience of politics, a large and juicy tolerance for his fellow creatures and a fluent and spirited pen, give him ample equipment for an entertaining, breezy and even eloquent series of biographies. . . Very likely he has interviewed some of them, and no doubt he has watched all of them in action. Yet—and here's the rub—he limns every one of them with the same apparent authority with which he portrays Roosevelt, his intimate friend." W: A. Houghton
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 S 30 '28 1250w
Boston Transcript p2 O 24 '28 1400w

Reviewed by E. F. Edgett
Boston Transcript p7 N 10 '28 100w

"One [of its defects] is Mr. White's irresponsibility about matters of fact. He commits the mistake, and commits it constantly, of relying on his memory for his history, a thing no man should ever do but which most men do." C: W. Thompson
+ — N Y Times p3 O 7 '28 2000w

"A series of delightfully written biographical sketches. It seems to this observer that Mr. White has done one of the best studies of Wilson yet printed." Herschel Brickell
+ No Am 226:adv D '28 100w

"His portraits are not, perhaps, so well-rounded with detailed frankness as Mr. Pringle's but they have the glow of forgotten objects re-burnished. The longer they have been forgotten the more fascinating they appear in revival." Russell Crouse
+ — Outlook 150:1132 N 7 '28 130w
R of Rs 78:adv34 N '28 40w

"William Allen White has painted some extraordinarily fine portraits, and through the careful selection of his subjects has managed to make his book very like a consecutive story of the political life of the country in the last half century. It is impossible for any one to acquiesce in all his conclusions, but just as impossible to question his intention to be just. Most of these portraits are painted from life, the sitters having been in intimate contact with the painter in his work as a journalist. In these the coloring is vivid. The figures actually quiver on the canvas." C. G. Bowers
+ — Sat R of Lit 5:207 O 13 '28 1800w

"Mr. White evidently enjoyed himself writing these papers. His readers will enjoy his gusto and find his pages studded with suggestive, if not always convincing, ideas."
+ — Springf'd Republican p10 O 12 '28 850w
World Tomorrow 12:44 Ja '29 60w

"In its picturesque familiarity and in the occasional audacity of its metaphors, his book is entertaining, but as history it is disappointing." R: Hooker
+ — Yale R n s 18:368 winter '29 900w

WHITE, WILLIAM PATTERSON. Cloudy in the West. 369p $2 Little [7s 6d Hodder & S.] 28-5566

A "sure-enough" lady comes to Rosebud, New Mexico. She has come to claim her brother's mortgaged ranch. Aurelian O'Riley breaks the news of her brother's violent death, and names the murderer, who has never been caught. With renewed interest in the murder and the mortgage, "Reely" champions the visiting lady and braving gun play and sudden death, helps in the solution of the murder mystery.

"Mighty fine book. There's a considerable lot of talk over shooting irons in that story, but it's the kind of talk that makes a feller see thru the smoke, and there's a humor in that talk that'd make a reader grin even after just receiving a notice that the second payment from the income tax was due." Will James
+ Bookm 67:713 Ag '28 180w

"A recommended Western. Mr. White includes Western high jinks, inspired vernacular and amusing full-length sketches of a dozen or so homespun personæ." Will Cuppy
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 F 12 '28 110w

"A delightful and delectable tale of the Wild West in the good old days is this latest and best of William Patterson White."
+ Boston Transcript p5 Ap 14 '28 250w

"Mr. White is a master hand in the use of the picturesque and sardonic dialogue of the old-time West, and no small part of the unfailing entertainment his novels afford is in the conversation of his characters."
+ N Y Times p18 F 26 '28 330w
Wis Lib Bul 24:127 Ap '28

WHITECHURCH, VICTOR LORENZO. Shot on the downs. 311p $2 Duffield [7s 6d Unwin] 28-4663

A man is found dead on the Middlesex downs, with a bullet wound in his head. He has been robbed, presumably by his assailant. The cottagers are of little help to the police, having seen and heard nothing. Among those living nearest the scene of the tragedy are a blind man and his daughter, a poacher, and an elusive Londoner who visits the neighborhood occasionally. One of these is guilty, and the Chief Constable, weeding out the false clues, discovers how and why.

Booklist 25:31 O '28
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 F 26 '28 100w

"The solution is arbitrary, not inevitable, and depends on the accumulation of much uninteresting evidence; and in trying to be unsensational, Canon Whitechurch has succeeded in being merely dull."
— Nation and Ath 42:230 N 12 '27 70w

"His publishers inform us that he began this story without knowing himself who committed the murder with which it deals. Perhaps that is what makes the solution so unexpected and, it may be said, so unsatisfactory. For we confess we should rather have seen the crime fastened upon almost anyone else than the person who is eventually found guilty."
N Y Times p16 F 19 '28 220w

"The story moves quietly and without haste from a logical beginning to a fairly logical end, and the detective work of Col. Chadlington is consistently excellent. One wearies of the two lovers, however, and of the village idiot. On the whole it is a good story, well told and a mystery novel to be recommended." Vincent Starrett
+ — N Y World p10m Mr 4 '28 120w

"As in The Crime at Diana's Pool, the author wrote the first chapter, describing the scene of the crime, before he had conceived the plot of the story. For this reason, and because of the petty failings—so essentially human—rather than the crimes of the characters involved, it is a most satisfactory detective story."
+ Spec 139:785 N 5 '27 130w
Springf'd Republican p7f Ap 29 '28 110w

"The ease and pleasing clarity of his style carry the author well through the questions and answers which necessarily form so important a part of a story of this nature, and the reader is kept well abreast of the various casts of the questing police without being wearied by the detail of their investigations, although he knows that some of them are destined to be fruitless before they start."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p717 O 13 '27 200w

WHITEHEAD, ALFRED NORTH. Symbolism; its meaning and effect. (Univ. of Va. Barbour-Page lectures) 88p $1.50 Macmillan [4s 6d Cambridge univ. press] 120 Symbolism 27-23396

"Popular lectures delivered at the University of Virginia in 1927. A description of the real meaning of symbolism and the important part it plays in the life of the individual and society."—J Religion

---

"What he has to say seems to me neither intelligibly nor well nor truly said. I wondered, as I read this congested text, what his audiences at the University of Virginia, before whom it was first presented, made of it. They must, I am sure, have expected something more lucid and important." H. M. Kallen
— Bookm 66:681 F '28 1450w

"In spite of the unresolved difficulties, perhaps which it is unfair to press against the content of three popular lectures, this volume by Professor Whitehead is useful as an introduction to some of the philosophical problems with which current thought is engaged." S. P. Lamprecht

WHITEHEAD, A. N.—Continued
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 Mr 11 '28 880w

"This book is very suggestive. The maximum benefit will be derived from it if it be taken in conjunction with Professor Whitehead's other recent books."
+ Boston Transcript p5 Ja 14 '28 230w
Cath World 127:508 Jl '28 120w
Ind 120:557 Je 9 '28 130w
J Religion 8:164 Ja '28 30w
J Religion 8:331 Ap '28 130w

Reviewed by Paul Weiss
Nation 126:128 F 1 '28 650w

Reviewed by C. E. M. Joad
Nation and Ath 42:856 Mr 10 '28 1000w

Reviewed by Joseph Ratner
New Repub 55:23 My 23 '28 1500w

"Those who come to this new book must be prepared not only to do some hard thinking on levels which the average reader is generally content to admire from below; but also to follow a demonstration which makes considerable use of technical language, and does not concede over much to the disabilities of the untrained mind." Evelyn Underhill
Spec 140:234 F 18 '28 700w

WHITEHEAD, SIDNEY E. Dielectric phenomena; ed. by T. B. Wedmore. 176p il $4 Van Nostrand [16s Benn]
537.53 Dielectric phenomena. Electric discharge through gases

"Critical summary of published theories and experiments on the spark and corona discharge, the latter including dark, glow, and brush discharges. Opens with a brief outline of the ionic theory of gaseous conduction."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:152 Mr '28

WHITING, JOHN DOWNES. S.O.S.; a story of the World war at sea. (Lantern bks.) 303p il $2 Bobbs
28-20925

Hugh Canfield is a Maine boy who joins the Naval reserve radio corps during the war. S.O.S. is the story of his exciting adventures at sea, in France and with the Coast Guard Service on the coast of Maine. Boys will be interested in Hugh's adventures and the insight they offer of radio in the war.

Boston Transcript p2 N 10 '28 150w

"'S. O. S.' is the rescue of adventure from mediocrity through those book-saving devices—significance and style. No better written nor more courageous book addressed 'for young people' has come my way in years." T. M. Longstreth
+ Sat R of Lit 5:415 N 24 '28 180w

WHITLOCK, BRAND. Big Matt. 284p $2 (7s 6d) Appleton
28-11704

Big Matt is a political boss of the old tradition, to whose clever manipulation Governor Blake owed his nomination and his election by a great majority. After John Blake's election the man who made him had to be taken care of, so Matt was appointed Commissioner of public utilities. The story of Matt's graft, which brought scandal upon Blake's administration and of their loyalty to each other, the governor and the big boss, is a tale of political corruption with a strain of idealism added.

Booklist 25:31 O '28

"Mr. Whitlock seems to have written just another novel. It is entertaining. It moves swiftly enough. Its characterization is fair. But it is a superficial piece of work. . . The chance to do a real picture of the American politican is still open." H: F. Pringle
— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 My 20 '28 700w
Boston Transcript p2 Je 27 '28 800w

"It is as expected as a college lecture and presumably about as close to the realities, less 'gripping' than the headlines to be read any day of similar doings." R. H.
— New Repub 56:107 S 12 '28 60w

"The effect is not quite satisfactory. Mr. Whitlock gives us not much more than a firmly handled sketch for what might have been, with fuller treatment, a good novel.'"
— New Statesman 31:494 Jl 21 '28 150w
N Y Times p8 My 6 '28 850w

"While it falls short of being the great novel about American politics, it begins brilliantly and goes on informatively and interestingly. It does not seem to me to be so good a study of the situation as The Honorable Peter Stirling for example, a political novel that is still excellent reading after thirty-five years, but at the same time it is far ahead of anything recently written on the subject." Herschel Brickell
+ No Am 226:adv Jl '28 150w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:366 Jl '28

"This is a sympathetic book, showing quite ordinary men touched to fine issues of idealism—and always considerably thwarted by an importunate Press." R. A. Taylor
+ Spec 140:776 My 19 '28 100w

"It is well to understand why the character of American politics is as it is, and 'Big Matt' helps to make that clear; because of the human element. Incidentally, it can be recommended as a preventive against the poison-politics of a campaign year." R. W. N.
+ Springf'd Republican p7f My 26 '28 530w

"It is a story, not of love and duty, but of duty and friendship worked out with a quiet understanding and good sense that make it a most enjoyable novel."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p470 Je 21 '28 170w
Wis Lib Bul 24:192 Je '28

WHITMORE, EUGENE RUDOLPH. Keeping young after forty. (Appleton popular health ser.) 208p $1.50 (5s) Appleton
613 Hygiene 28-12216

This sane little book on hygiene discusses the means of keeping fit, physically and mentally. After giving scientific advice as to diet, sunlight and fresh air, work and rest, Professor Whitmore takes up the various systems of the body and the diseases to which they are liable.

Booklist 25:16 O '28

"Its author has a noteworthy faculty for presenting these matters in a simple, lucid, straightforward manner that does not lessen scientific accuracy by being direct, concise and readable."
+ N Y Times p20 Je 17 '28 460w

Reviewed by Morris Fishbein, M.D.
N Y World p7m Je 24 '28 180w
Wis Lib Bul 24:188 Je '28

WHITNEY, ELINOR. Tod, of the fens. 237p il $2.25 Macmillan
28-14003

A story for older boys and girls centering in old Boston, England, in the days of Prince Hal. Jolly Tod of the Fens, a stalwart youth, is one of the chief characters in the book which concerns also Sir Frederick Tilney, mayor of the staple, and his daughter Johanna, and Gilbert Branche, son of a merchant adventurer.

Booklist 25:33 O '28

"Miss Whitney has made a much finer book than the average 'juvenile' story in an historical setting. As the list of sources in the back of the book indicates and as the author says in her acknowledgement of them, 'a real effort has been made to have the details of the story accurate as far as the period setting is concerned.' This has been splendidly done, and the dry facts of reference books are made into a living background for the tale, as well as an excellent picture of one of the most fascinating periods of history." Eugenia Dawson

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 Jl 22 '28 550w
Cleveland Open Shelf p112 N '28
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:509 O '28
St Louis 26:330 O '28

Reviewed by W. S. Hayward
Sat R of Lit 5:351 N 10 '28 70w

"The story as here presented is historically and romantically colorful; and without pretension to depth it is a delightful picture of that long ago time."

+ Springf'd Republican p7f S 2 '28 180w
Wis Lib Bul 24:257 O '28

WHITRIDGE, ARNOLD. Dr Arnold of Rugby; with an introd. by Sir Michael Sadler. 243p $5 Holt [10s 6d Constable]

B or 92 Arnold, Thomas. Rugby school [28-29011]

The writer of this biography, Dr Arnold's great-grandson, has had access to unpublished papers in the possession of the Arnold family. Mr Whitridge's study supplements Dean Stanley's life, emphasizing certain aspects of Arnold's teaching and the effect of his fourteen years' headmastership of Rugby, which changed the face of education all thru the public schools of England.

Reviewed by F: Marcham
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Ag 26 '28 800w

Reviewed by Frances Bartlett
Boston Transcript p4 Jl 7 '28 1450w

Reviewed by E. F. Edgett
Boston Transcript p5 Jl 28 '28 400w

Reviewed by Ernest Boyd
Ind 121:43 Jl 14 '28 230w
Nation 127:sup381 O 10 '28 60w
Nation and Ath 43:213 My 19 '28 620w
New Statesman 31:204 My 19 '28 280w

Reviewed by C: Johnston
N Y Times p6 Jl 8 '28 1500w
Sat R 145:563 My 5 '28 1000w

"The instinct that expounds and judges is so far dominant in Dr. Whitridge that, from the close of Chapter Second, narration merges into essay. Sensible as the essay is, it substitutes valuation for picture and Arnold was too picturesque a man to be capturable in his entirety by an estimate." O. W. Firkins
Sat R of Lit 5:319 N 3 '28 800w

"Sir Michael Sadler contributes an excellent short introduction to Mr. Whitridge's book, in which he deals both with Arnold as a man and with the faults and virtues of his educational practice. Mr. Whitridge's biography is equally good; both sympathetic and measured in judgment. He has had access to family letters never printed before; and his study reveals the liveliness, power, and greatness of Arnold, a name that will endure in English history."

+ Spec 140:686 My 5 '28 580w
Springf'd Republican p7f S 2 '28 900w
Times [London] Lit Sup p477 Je 28 '28 880w

WHYTE, CHARLES. Constellations and their history. 284p $5 Lippincott [10s 6d C. Griffin]

523.89 Constellations [28-14687]

"This book, with its maps and charts, will be useful to people desirous of familiarizing themselves with the star groups of both hemispheres and the more notable individual objects outside the limits of the solar system. Modern ideas as to the constitution of the stars, the extent of the universe, and the processes of stellar evolution are briefly but clearly outlined. The mythological and historical details are an attractive feature, and the author has evidently delved in a number of quarries for his material."—Times [London] Lit Sup

---

"Dr. Whyte has incorporated into his description of the stellar configurations and their chief luminaries an excellent account of the processes out of which the stars arise, of their chemical constitution, and of their magnitudes, distances and speeds."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Je 23 '28 400w
Times [London] Lit Sup p15 Ja 5 '28 80w

WHYTE, LANCELOT LAW. Archimedes; or, The future of physics. (To-day and to-morrow ser.) 83p $1 Dutton [2s 6d K. Paul]

530.1 Physics 28-10613

This little book suggests a definite line of advance for physics, a way in which current physical researches may influence the scientific outlook on the problems of matter, life, and mind.

Booklist 24:391 Jl '28

"On the whole the book is very welcome, and quite worth reading, but it must not be taken too seriously." L. S. K.

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 14 '28 70w
Nature 121:534 Ap 7 '28 280w
St Louis 26:315 O '28

Reviewed by N. C. Little
Sat R of Lit 4:912 My 26 '28 200w

"The value of this conception to the biologist is obvious. It does not resolve all the difficulties attending the attempt to reduce biology to physics, but it makes a beginning possible. And if, as Mr. Whyte thinks, the notion can be successfully formulated and applied to physics itself, the universal science will be born. That some great synthesis is on the way seems clear to all students of contemporary thought. One of the most suggestive accounts of the form that it may take is to be found in this fascinating volume."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p922 D 8 '27 650w

WICKHAM, HARVEY. Misbehaviorists. 294p $3.50 Dial press

158 Behaviorism (psychology). Psychology 28-9964

In this book which he has subtitled Pseudoscience and the modern temper, Mr Wickham uses the weapons of wit and satire in a vigorous attack upon the theories of Watson, McDougall, Freud and Wiggam, Dorsey, Browne and Durant.

Booklist 25:53 N '28
Bookm 68:xxxiv O '28 40w

"The reader who sees and makes allowance for Mr. Wickham's bent can get a vast deal of pleasure and profit from his book. It is full of shrewdness and humor. I confess to many a good laugh, and not at the expense of the author. In his analysis of Dorsey's popular work he is at his best, spotting incongruous passages with unerring eye—and scarcely referring to the wealth of fact that makes up most of the book." H. M. Parshley

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 Jl 1 '28 1050w
Boston Transcript p4 My 12 '28 680w

WICKHAM, HARVEY—Continued

"Mr. Wickham quotes chapter and book from his antagonists and his exhilarating demolition of the 'Misbehaviorists' cannot be accused of unfairness." A. R. B.

Cath World 128:118 O '28 430w

"The cleverness of the book would procure much more appreciation did not its obvious seriousness so clearly point to intellectual haziness, not to say to complete darkness. Even to destroy the current empirical temper is not enough to reconcile men to the night. From the pit they would still cry for light." T. V. Smith

— + Christian Century 45:730 Je 7 '28 580w

"Mr. Wickham's book is by no means perfect, nor do I expect the devotees of the cults which he attacks to agree with him. But it is an interesting commentary upon the public's indifference to intelligent controversy that these scathing and often amusing analyses have received only a few perfunctory notices in the general press." Ernest Boyd

Ind 120:627 Je 30 '28 920w

Int J Ethics 39:124 O '28 100w

"In accusing the Misbehaviorists of almost every crime on the logical calendar, there is hardly a fallacy which Mr. Wickham does not commit himself." H. A. Larrabee

— J Philos 25:607 O 25 '28 1050w

Reviewed by M. J. Adler

N Y Evening Post p5 Jl 14 '28 850w

"Brilliant and admirable book." C: Johnston

+ N Y Times p4 My 6 '28 1450w

"Satirizes the work of the Watsonites, and does it very entertainingly." Herschel Brickell

+ No Am 226:adv Jl '28 50w

"Wickham has not the key to the whole business. For all his brilliancy, he is a Fundamentalist. He has never felt that fine curiosity that characterizes the 'modern temper' (his bête noire) for the understanding of second causes. You, Mr. Wickham, may be satisfied that Paul had a revelation from God. We want to know how! and we have to study psychology, dreams, hysteria, and other things to approach that knowledge. We not only want to know how apples fall and pendulums swing, but why men dream, why they misbehave, and how saints grow." A. N. Wilder

— Outlook 149:275 Je 13 '28 320w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:436 O '28

WICKSTEED, JOSEPH H. Blake's Innocence and Experience; a study of the songs and manuscripts, showing the two contrary states of the human soul. 301p il $8 Dutton [21s Dent]

821 Blake, William

In this large and beautiful volume a painstaking student of Blake provides a minute commentary on the Songs of innocence and of experience. Each poem is examined to discover its hidden meanings and opposite the text of each is reproduced the engraved page as Blake left it.

Boston Transcript p4 O 20 '28 650w

"Mr. Wicksteed in this complete and beautiful volume lavishes upon the 'simple' poems of Blake the same commentator's care that has until now been the lot only of the prophetic books to receive. He has done much to illuminate the deeper meanings of Blake's superficially ingenuous songs."

+ Nation 127:554 N 21 '28 200w

"No one could fail to admire the fervour, the fortitude, and the industry which have gone to the making of this hefty volume, where each chain of songs is examined link by link, scrutinized from every angle, subjected to almost every test that microscopy and psychoanalysis could conceivably impose. When all is said, the three fold questions obtrudes itself yet again: is it necessary to understand Blake in order to enjoy him? Is it desirable to understand him? Is it possible to understand him?" D. M. Stuart

Nation and Ath 43:824 S 29 '28 650w

New Statesman 31:supx O 6 '28 1000w

Spec 141:sup531 O 20 '28 580w

WIDDEMER, MARGARET. Collected poems. 279p $2.50 Harcourt

811 28-22324

Contains the poems included in the author's volumes published under the titles: Factories; Old road to Paradise; Cross-currents; and Ballads and lyrics. There are also a few poems hitherto unpublished.

Booklist 25:114 D '28

"She is not enough of an original, but she is mistress of a verbal music that can be very lovely at times and which is almost always charming. She does not march on the heights that have known the feet of the great poets, but she has discovered many of the 'little roads' to beauty." B. R. Redman

— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 N 4 '28 180w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple

Survey 61:169 N 1 '28 110w

WIDDOWS, MARGHARITA (DEFRIES) (MRS A. E. WIDDOWS). English literature. (Simple guide ser.) 302p il $3 Dutton [7s 6d Chatto & W.]

820.9 English literature—History and criticism [28-20909]

Beginning with Chaucer, and bringing her survey down to Thomas Hardy, the author points out the literary figures in each age who chiefly influenced the course of English letters.

"It manages to be comprehensive without becoming entangled in mere details of classifying and cataloguing; it follows the natural groupings, giving foremost attention to those writers who have most definitely influenced the poetry and prose of their age. Quotations are chiefly from the poets, and they are becomingly brief. And as to America's contribution to English literature, it is, so far as this study is concerned, quite non-existent."

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 Jl 1 '28 130w

"An introduction to English literature should have the power of arousing the reader's enthusiasm; Stopford Brooke seems to have done it; one is afraid that Miss Widdows has not. She is clear and concise, however." Edwin Muir

— + Nation and Ath 43:49 Ap 14 '28 70w

"A quiet but not unpleasing story, with an academic bias, not less to be felt because of the customary avoidance of technical terms; a mixture of softened biography and sympathetic criticism. But Miss Widdows has missed the opportunity of revealing to her intended audience the naturalness of literature, the normal experience which supplies it through those men and women most finely capable of experience, and again its operation on the state of society, its unacknowledged legislation."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p393 My 24 '28 1400w

WIDGERY, ALBAN GREGORY. Contemporary thought of Great Britain. (Lib. of contemporary thought) 253p $2.50 Knopf [5s Williams & N.]

192 Philosophy, English 28-29348

"The author was in effect asked to describe how British philosophers have been thinking since, say, 1900. With apologies for classifying such unclassifiable things as personalities, even personalities in philosophical 'schools,' he groups recent British thinkers under the headings: Naturalists, because of their preoccupation with natural science; Absolute Idealists, who find reality in the ultimates of thought; Pragmatic Humanists, for whom the meaning of life springs from action, utility, enjoyment; Realists, protecting the claims of objects, of things, independent of our subjective knowledge of them; and Theists, who center their attention on God."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

"He seems happier in the company of Theists than of others, and in a conclusion that shows a graceful and flowering understanding he places himself as a 'Maximalist,' a man who accepts the maximum one may accept with full inquiry. The layman, frightened of technical philosophy, can find much simple wisdom in this twenty-page conclusion. It is the best of a sane, religious, humorous and thoughtful book." F. S. Barr

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 Ap 8 '28 530w

Boston Transcript p7 Mr 17 '28 300w

Nation 126:520 My 2 '28 150w

"The scheme is admirable, and the difficulties arising from a purely territorial organization and from a sudden plunge into deep waters have been admirably surmounted by Mr. Widgery. Inevitably, however, these causes, reinforced by a necessarily stringent compression and succinctness, have generated certain obscurities; and the book remains, on the whole, less adapted to the needs of the general reader than to the reclamation of those in the 'splendid idle forties' who, like Antiphon in the Parmenides, have deserted philosophy for horse-racing."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p234 Mr 29 '28 820w

WIEHE, MRS EVELYN MAY (CLOWES) [2] (ELINOR MORDAUNT, pseud.). Too much Java. 288p $2.50 Payson & Clarke 28-27586

Too much Java is an expression of contempt for the white man who marries a native. It aptly describes the union of the Englishman Hanson, in his later dissolute years, with the woman who had been his daughter's nurse. But the phrase is less than just to the delicate beauty of the love between Laura Hanson and Darain, a proud young Minahassian. The tragic story of father and daughter, a study in contrasts, unfolds against its background of the Dutch East Indies, partly thru the reminiscences of two sea captains who knew Laura as a child and were never able to forget her.

" 'Too Much Java' is good romance. It glows with brilliant tropic color; its pages are redolent of the spice isles, and the author has peopled them with picturesque and adventurous spirits."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p28 D 9 '28 230w

"Mrs. Mordaunt differentiates her characters admirably. She makes vivid pictures of the South Sea colonies and the English, Portuguese, Dutch and natives who make up its varied population."

+ N Y Times p9 D 2 '28 450w

WIEMAN, HENRY NELSON. Wrestle of religion with truth. 256p $2.50 Macmillan

201 Religion—Philosophy 27-19143

In the first part of this book, which contains his philosophy of religion, Professor Wieman of the Divinity school of Chicago University applies the experimental method of science to religious experience, and in the second part analyzes existing concepts of religion, devoting chapters to the concept of God, and the scientific and religious tests of this concept.

Boston Transcript p4 N 5 '27 250w

"Dr. Wieman brings the worshipping act to the level of the most critical scientific test and validates it there. One who reads these books of his goes to church and to his closet with a new sense of the rational dignity of worship and communion with God. He gives you back every really precious thing of which science may have seemed to rob you. And he does so because he is a true scientist, because he knows what the scientist is doing, better even than the scientist himself knows." C: C. Morrison

+ Christian Century 44:1332 N 10 '27 600w

"A special plea, by an advocate, for a view of religion which seems to me confused in logic and ungrounded in fact. . . For precision, measurement, and control, which are the inwardness of experimental method in any field of research, Mr. Wieman exhibits the reverse of a strong liking. His strictures on mathematics and mathematical logic are as vigorous as they are uninformed; his references to aspects of current physical theory do not carry with them any great familiarity with its elements and their implications; his uses of the word 'religion' are such that no real religion need ever have existed to give them meaning. His 'philosophy of religion,' consequently, provides an apologetic for an abstraction drawn from no recognizable actual cult, an abstraction invented rather than discerned, inapplicable to any namable faith which is a going concern." H. M. Kallen

— J Philos 25:273 My 10 '28 2200w

J Religion 8:164 Ja '28 70w

"The book is a valuable contribution to our thought about God and about religious experience. It is less uneven than the author's earlier work and it goes further into the ethical implications of his view. What is needed now is a more complete statement of the metaphysical presuppositions of this philosophy, and a further psychological analysis of the way in which the God here described makes himself known among men. It is to be hoped that Professor Wieman will give us this soon." J. S. Bixler

+ J Religion 8:288 Ap '28 1200w

"This book shows religion intellectually at its finest and clearest, frankly accepting modern intellectual methods and conclusions and turning them to its own uses. The author, who teaches the philosophy of religion in the School of Divinity, University of Chicago, possesses a keenly analytical, well-trained and richly stored mind and he brings all its powers to the task of finding in religion vital realities." F. F. Kelly

+ N Y Times p21 D 18 '27 120w

"A sincere and scholarly attempt to commend religion to the thinking men of today." E. B. Chaffee

+ Outlook 148:557 Ap 4 '28 530w

"An up-to-the-minute appraisal of religious methods and religious concepts—relentlessly scientific yet warmly sympathetic; not for beginners, but never pedantic." Patrick Malin

+ World Tomorrow 11:280 Je '28 60w

WIER, L. H., ed. See Playground and recreation association of America.

WIGGAM, ALBERT EDWARD. Exploring your mind with the psychologists. (Making science human) 419p il $3.50 Bobbs

151 Psychology, Applied. Educators. Mental tests 28-24836

In a series of interviews with well-known psychologists Mr Wiggam asked each to explain his particular field of experiment and research concerning the mind. These talks as Mr Wiggam reports them, are simple, direct, and easy to understand. Several of them discuss the methods used by the originator to measure the mind of adults and of children. Among the eleven psychologists interviewed are Professor Thorndike; Dr David Mitchell; Professor Lewis Terman; and Michael Pupin. With portraits.

"Mr. Wiggam hit upon the bright idea of making 'real, living, friendly personalities' of certain eminent psychologists. Mr. Wiggam is an adept in the journalistic art, and boyish enthusiasm carries him along. One almost hears him putting his questions, good, simple, stupid, to Laird or Adams or Mitchell . . . . and the reply thanks to its conversational tone, is intelligible. Perhaps the chief criticism to be made of Mr. Wiggam's work is that he chooses his 'great psychologists' rather arbitrarily." E. B. Barrett

WIGGAM, A. E:—Continued
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p28 N 25 '28 630w
Boston Transcript p4 D 1 '28 650w

"'Exploring Your Mind' should whet one's intellectual curiosity, as well as indicate some of the possibilities and uses of practical psychology outside the correspondence schools."
+ N Y Times p26 N 25 '28 720w

WILBUR, JAMES BENJAMIN. Ira Allen, founder of Vermont, 1751-1814. 2v 544;570p il $12.50 Houghton
B or 92 Allen, Ira. Vermont—History
28-15601

The life-story of the founder of Vermont, who was brother to that more showy individual, Ethan Allen. The history of the founding of Vermont up to the time of its emergence as a state and the quarrels of the early legislature over the situation of the state university are important factors of the history.

"To leisure and means the author has added enthusiasm and indefatigable zeal, and has thoroughly ransacked the archives of Canada, England and France, as well as the American sources. Of the documents which he has found bearing on Allen's life, which, we repeat, was the life of Vermont, he has now embedded all the most important ones in his narrative, reprinting them in full. The result is that his work is not only a clarifying biography, but will always remain an invaluable source book." J. T. Adams
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 S 9 '28 800w

"Mr. Wilbur has done his subject full justice. It is a well drawn picture and not too highly colored. But he has done more than this. He has given us a history of the beginnings of Vermont, which are not like the beginnings of any other State in our Union. As a source book it is safe to hazard that it is more important than any book of Vermont history issued in many years." S. L. Cook
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 7 '28 1500w
N Y Times p24 N 25 '28 1150w
R of Rs 78:adv20 Ag '28 80w

"After a flood of fictionized biographies and psychological histories, it is a relief to read an old fashioned history like this."
+ Sat R of Lit 5:323 N 8 '28 300w

WILCOX, EDGAR ANDREW. Electric heating. 469p il $5 McGraw
697.7 Electric heating 28-13657

"This much enlarged and completely rewritten edition of a work published in 1916 is intended primarily for commercial executives, salesmen, and engineers engaged in creating markets for either heating apparatus or resultant heating loads. Describes the operating characteristics of various heating devices in the domestic and industrial fields and discusses the merits and limitations of both electric and fuel heat in processes to which either may be applied. The fundamentals of heat and electricity are described and there are numerous tabular data to aid the designer."—N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 25:109 D '28

"For a field so broad the volume is remarkably complete, the data in tables always pertinent, concise and accurate in an engineering sense. Errors are surprisingly few and in all cases of a minor nature." C. L. Mantell
+ Chem & Met Eng 35:490 Ag '28 250w
N Y New Tech Bks 13:35 Jl '28
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:571 N '28

WILDER, AMOS NIVEN. Arachne. 85p $2 [2] Yale univ. press
811 28-22482

Thoughtfulness and a love of beauty and the nobler traditions mark these poems by a brother of Thornton Wilder.

"Mr. Wilder is stamped as a very thoughtful young man, who would bring to the making of poetry something of that loftiness of mind and beauty of expression that give Wordsworth his great place." Percy Hutchison
N Y Times p4 N 11 '28 130w

"These poems are his second volume of verse. They bespeak cultivation, a love of the classics, a sense of beauty, and the attempt to follow a high tradition. But they are shadows of greater work that has gone before, shadows occasionally lovely and wistful in their gestures,—always dignified in their postures,—but shadows nevertheless."
— + Sat R of Lit 5:447 D 1 '28 60w

WILDER, THORNTON NIVEN. Angel that troubled the waters, and other plays. 149p $2.50 Coward-McCann [6s Longmans]
812 28-25479

A collection of short, poignant dramatic moments, which have been seized and crystallized into tiny plays by the author of "The bridge of San Luis Rey."

"These minuscule dramas are pleasant reading. They are as insubstantial and as easily ingested as the best macaroons; they dissolve upon the tongue, leaving a pleasant taste as of refined sugar and rosewater. And if Mr. Wilder chooses to go on writing very short plays, it is to be hoped that he will also cultivate the habit of writing very long prefaces, one to each playlet." Isabel Paterson
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 N 18 '28 1600w

"As may be imagined, the present collection is an unequal miscellany with a disrupted general tenor and evidences of shifting method of attack. But it is fascinating reading." M. E. M.
+ — Boston Transcript p11 D 8 '28 700w

"The subjects of these tabloid dramas are religious, though occasionally, as the author confesses, their religious quality may be somewhat 'dilute.' Not even the most orthodox Christian could object to such a sugaring of the pill; but this dilution has weakened their very essence: even as literary hors d'œuvres they are thin stuff. It is impossible not to say, therefore, that 'The Angel That Troubled the Waters' is disappointing. At any rate, it is a pity that this notebook for what must be a more solidly considered achievement should have been ripped untimely from him." T. S. Matthews
— New Repub 57:49 N 26 '28 420w

"Mr. Wilder's miniature plays will yield most to those readers who bring the most to their reading of them. They have the perfection of intaglios, the delicate beauty of finest lace. In them the author of 'The Bridge of San Luis Rey' offers more than is apparent at first glance."
+ N Y Times p2 N 18 '28 880w

"Mr. Wilder may not, with these trifles that hover on the verge of the tremendous, recapture the success which he gained with his stories, but many will find them to be mirrors of an eager mind. It is not the world he stages but his own mind, now darting, now dreaming, but always relentlessly engaged on fascinating mysteries of faith and legend."
+ Sat R 146:615 N 10 '28 420w

"Their value is at best experimental; for their author is by no means master of the medium he has chosen, and too often fails altogether to communicate to his reader the emotion by which his writing seems to have been compelled. . . What Mr. Wilder has attempted is to write lyrics—such lyrics as Blake might have achieved—in the form of prose dialogue.

It is a bold and sincere experiment, but is as yet very far from success."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p826 N 8 '28 820w

WILE, FREDERIC WILLIAM, ed. Century of industrial progress; with a foreword by Herbert Hoover. 581p $5 Doubleday, Doran

609.73 United States—Industries 28-10607

Thirty men, leaders of industry, contribute these chapters on the progress of our most important industries during the last hundred years.

Booklist 25:12 O '28
Boston Transcript p4 Ap 28 '28 1050w

"The book will prove of great value as a reference work as it brings together the high points of progress in those industries which have done so much to make America great."
Ind & Eng Chem 20:664 Je '28 100w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:568 N '28

WILEY, HUGH. "Here's luck!" 297p $2 Sears 28-20342

"The base port of Bordeaux and the neighboring countryside in wartime, its permanent population and its black and white temporary residents in olive drab, are almost the exclusive literary property of Mr. Hugh Wiley. Interspersed with the click of dice and the rustle of fabulous amounts of French currency, alcoholic experiment on the grand scale of Hollywood revels, army phrases and A.E.F. French, pious welfare workers, blustering but ultimately thwarted military police and more of his typical devices, Mr. Wiley flourishes his slapstick again."—N Y Times

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p44 S 30 '28 110w

"Mr. Wiley has caught some of the happy-go-lucky comraderie of the American legionaries in France, but one feels instinctively that he is looking at a vaudeville act and the usual horse play of such a setting rather than reading a narrative of one of the lighter phases of the World War. The pages are full of lively conversation. At many points the selections are interesting and at a few they almost approach that of humor."
+ — Boston Transcript p6 S 8 '28 100w
N Y Times p7 Ag 19 '28 680w

WILEY, JOHN. Queer street. 283p $2 Scribner 28-9655

The story of a family of native New Yorkers in its decadence. The genteel street on which the Skeffingtons lived, with its respectable brownstone houses, was already beginning to get queer when the eldest daughter Maria secured her Italian prince at a price which depleted the Skeffington fortune. Geoffrey's affair with an actress was expensive. Faced with an immediate need for a husband Louisa was forced to marry poor, faithful Mr Potts, a lodger down the street. Anna, the youngest, married out of her class to renew the family fortune. But the Skeffingtons faced all these and other misfortunes with a suavity and pride which deceived themselves, if no one else.

Booklist 25:124 D '28
Bookm 67:xxii Ag '28 120w

"Louisa is utterly selfish and morally weak,—but somehow she stands out as the most interesting character in the book. The author's style is easy and good; sometimes he errs a little on the side of sentimentality, but his numerous flashes of irony and humor exonerate him. He can depict character with very few words, and his dialogue is often a pleasure." Elizabeth Sanderson
+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 My 6 '28 350w

"This is a story of very brilliant character work, and a cynically clever view of life, which yet never loses its sense of faith in ultimate progress—or does it? That is an interesting point to decide, and one the reader will enjoy."
+ Boston Transcript p2 My 2 '28 300w
Cleveland Open Shelf p106 S '28

"The book is interesting and vivid, a thought cynical, and true as a carpenter's square to the life and standards it represents." Florence Haviland
+ — N Y Evening Post p9 My 5 '28 480w

"'Queer Street' is a story of modern New York as we know it and see it and live in it. It is as convincing and unpretentious a record of the upper strata of New York life as has appeared in some time. A good story."
+ N Y Times p8 Ap 8 '28 460w
Sat R of Lit 5:493 D 8 '28 400w

"The story holds, compressed, enough material for two novels. The reader will have his surprise, but is likely to think them sensational, sentimental—or both."
Springf'd Republican p7f My 20 '28 520w
Wis Lib Bul 24:192 Je '28

WILHELM, RICHARD. Soul of China; the text tr. by John Holroyd Reece; the poems by Arthur Waley. 382p $3.75 Harcourt [15s J. Cape]

915.1 China—History. China—Description and travel 28-24966

"Dr. Richard Wilhelm, formerly a German missionary in Shantung, is less concerned with politics than with the people of China and their age-long habits and traditions, and his chapters on his journeys in the interior of Shantung and on his visit to Peking are sympathetic and instructive."—Spec

"Here is an arresting and brilliant book by the former Cultural Attaché of the German legation in Peking. Its pages comprise a narrative and descriptive travel book, a survey of the history of China during the past few decades and a philosophical treatment of the character, customs and mode of thinking of the Chinese people. These elements are so cleverly woven together as to make easy reading even for one who is ignorant of the Far East. Thus those who wish merely to be diverted by a book of travel will be quite as rewarded as the serious student of China, who will find here real stimulation." W. H. Mallory
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 N 4 '28 1150w

"The Germans in the Far East are appreciated because of the allowances they make for mutual misunderstandings, and the simple and patient style in which they acquaint themselves with the life, and lives, among which they move. This excellent book, curious in detail, solid in decision, embodies such humanity. It has been translated in the manner which its quality deserves."
+ Nation and Ath 44:sup228 N 10 '28 100w

Reviewed by Lyman Bryson
New Repub 57:145 D 19 '28 280w

"Herr Wilhelm is a shrewd observer and a genial story-teller. And the moral of his story, as we understand it, is that the old Chinese civilisation, changing though it is, has imperishable qualities which will not only save China from the West, but may even help to save the West from itself."
+ New Statesman 32:88 O 27 '28 410w

"It was largely from this veteran German missionary that Count von Keyserling obtained the raw material for his China chapters. His book which has had an extraordinary vogue in Germany is the picture of an intellectual man who has become at home among the leaders of Chinese thought, who interprets them in a kindly spirit and who pays to them the respect of one who has found their life, morally and spiritually, wholly congenial." Gardner Harding
+ N Y Times p8 N 18 '28 670w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 226:adv D '28 70w

WILHELM, RICHARD—Continued

"There is an absence of personal conceit, of the usual traveler superficiality and of the Western autocrat habit of supercilious contempt for things not quite on all fours with the writer's own home-town Main Street aspect of affairs and events. This renders his book charming." Boyd Carpenter

+ Outlook 150:1291 D 5 '28 500w

"Dr. Wilhelm is at home in every Chinese province and has probably as clear a conception of the 'soul of China' as any European."

+ R of Rs 78:adv36 N '28 40w

"An interesting and thoughtful book which has been carefully translated by Mr. J. H. Reece."

+ Spec 141:501 O 13 '28 100w

"He can write pleasantly enough of scenery and sights, and give interesting descriptions of the literary symposia of Tsingtao, wherein we make the better acquaintance of various notable scholars and officials of the old regime en retraite, including Kang Yu-wei, Ku Hung-ming and Prince Kung. But for those who seek to get at the truth of the evolution of China to-day, his work, as a whole, is likely to do more harm than good, for the reason that it presents a fantastically idealized conception of Chinese culture and of its influence on contemporary affairs."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p920 N 29 '28 1100w

World Tomorrow 12:44 Ja '29 30w

WILKINS, ERNEST HATCH. The changing college. 132p $1.50 Univ. of Chicago press [7s 6d Cambridge univ. press]

378 Colleges and universities 28-7699

"The new president of Oberlin college, coming to that institution from a deanship at the University of Chicago, in his inaugural address challenged the interest of college administrators by what he had to say on the subject of teaching. Much of that address, together with other material relating to the transformations now going on in the college world, is contained in the little book."—R of Rs

"It is the work of a progressive, open-minded and able student of present-day educational problems." J. E. Kirkpatrick

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 Mr 4 '28 450w

Boston Transcript p4 Mr 21 '28 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p72 Je '28

N Y Evening Post p12 F 4 '28 100w

N Y Times p18 Ja 15 '28 330w

"It is a vital, stimulating discussion of very real and present topics."

+ R of Rs 77:adv12 F '28 70w

Survey 59:656 F 15 '28 80w

Times [London] Lit Sup p113 F 16 '28 120w

WILKINS, SIR GEORGE HUBERT. Flying the Arctic. 336p il $2.50 (10s 6d) Putnam

629.13 Aeronautics—Voyages. Arctic regions 28-18565

This narrative of the Wilkins-Eielson flight across the Pole from Point Barrow to Spitzbergen is written by Captain Wilkins and illustrated from photographs of the flight, the preparations for it and the triumphant finale. The recital includes the first unsuccessful efforts in 1926 which paved the way for the final victory.

Booklist 25:109 D '28

"The absence of romantic phrases is not to be regretted in a book which records a series of hair-raising adventures—beginning with the crashing of two planes in 1926; and ending with the stormy landing on Dead Man's Island off the Coast of Spitzbergen in 1928, after twenty hours in the air, during which Wilkins and Eielson had passed over 2,200 miles of Arctic snow and ice, thirteen hundred miles of it have never before been seen by man." C. L. Skinner

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 Ag 19 '28 1100w

Reviewed by I. W. Lawrence

Boston Transcript p4 Ag 18 '28 1600w

"It is a story worthy to go with the best yarns of Polar adventure."

+ New Statesman 32:22 O 13 '28 180w

"Captain Wilkins has the gift of simple narrative which enables him to make his tale of Arctic flying one of magic. Wilkins may not have known it, but his simple book is a fine tribute to himself." Russell Owen

+ N Y Times p1 Ag 12 '28 2000w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

No Am 226:adv O '28 40w

"There are thrills aplenty in the story Captain Wilkins tells, but one gathers from his simple, straightforward way of telling it that the scientist in him has mastered the adventurer."

R of Rs 78:adv24 S '28 150w

St Louis 26:357 N '28

" 'Flying the Arctic' is a book by itself that you cannot summarize. Read for information of true Arctic conditions, it satisfies; taken as an antidote for the hero talk and sob stuff, it has a clarifying tonic value. Its literary quality gives needed proof that sometimes a thing worth writing about is done by a man who knows how to write." Vilhjalmur Stefansson

+ Sat R of Lit 5:117 S 15 '28 1250w

Times [London] Lit Sup p701 O 4 '28 780w

WILLERT, SIR ARTHUR. Aspects of British foreign policy. (Inst. of politics publications, Williams college, Williamstown, Mass.) 141p $2 Yale univ. press [9s Oxford]

327.42 Great Britain—Foreign relations 28-5429

The aspects of British foreign policy which Sir Arthur Willert takes under consideration in these lectures delivered at the Institute of politics, Williamstown, Mass., are those pertaining to: "Peace, security, and trade"; Peace without security; The recovery of Europe; British policy in China; The rise of the nationalist movement; Concession and conciliation in China; The Russian question. Sir Arthur is chief of the Press bureau, Foreign office, London.

"The objectives of British foreign policy are stated to be peace, security, and trade. The changed economic, financial and naval position of Great Britain in the post-war period, which forms the practical basis of this policy, is discussed, but with no special penetration. Lectures IV and V deal with the Chinese problem and are the best in the series." A. Vandenbosch

Ann Am Acad 137:264 My '28 160w

"Sir Arthur's position at the Foreign Office gives him the first-hand knowledge and his training as a journalist the skill to marshall his facts interestingly; the result is a small volume full of pith and discernment."

+ Spec 140:733 My 12 '28 100w

WILLIAMS, ALBERT RHYS. The Russian land. 293p il $1 New republic

914.7 Russia—Social life and customs. Peasantry—Russia 28-1709

"Albert Rhys Williams has been living in Russian villages off and on—not for days and days but for years and years. In 'The Russian Land' he sets down eleven prose etchings from out of the multitude of his experiences."—Nation

Booklist 24:279 Ap '28

"What he has tried to do—and he has succeeded—is to etch little vignettes of life uprooted but striking newer and younger roots into the soil of spirits reborn in travail and bewilderment, but inextinguishable. And that, after all, is what revolution is, in Russia or anywhere else. It is also what life is." Paxton Hibben

+ Bookm 67:196 Ap '28 560w

Reviewed by Ernestine Evans

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 F 26 '28 950w

"The author himself is interesting. Not so many years ago he was pastor of a Congregational Church in East Boston, and now as an avowed Socialist he is seeing and sympathetically interpreting Russia from the inside. This is not statistics or economics or civics, but life that he is giving us. . . Whether you like the interpretation of the Russian people and present conditions or not, you will certainly find this interesting reading."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ja 18 '28 250w

"There are no figures, no summaries, no prophecies, no learned conclusions—there are only first-hand stories of Russian life as Mr. Williams has seen it and lived it. And I am rather inclined to think that if you really would understand Russia this is the best volume of them all." Stuart Chase

+ Nation 126:157 F 8 '28 120w

"His delightfully written report is a welcome addition to the new, clear-headed and dispassionate literature on Russia which has recently begun to appear. The book, chapters of which appeared in the New Republic, is well worth the small cost." H. S.

+ N Y Evening Post p12 F 4 '28 100w

"It would be difficult to find a more delightfull ollapodrida of grave and gay, humorous and tragic—all tending to a better understanding of the individual and social psychology with which the world must reckon more and more in setting its house in order." J. P. G.

+ Survey 59:528 Ja 15 '28 150w

"The battle of the old with the new in religion, in education, in justice, in medicine, in agriculture, among youth, is portrayed with great sympathy and understanding. Williams knows the country intimately and has written one of the best accounts of the new Russia yet to appear." H. C. E.

+ World Tomorrow 11:347 Ag '28 100w

WILLIAMS, ANNE. National traits and fairy-lore; foreword by S. O. Hartwell. 191p il 80c Scribner

398 Fairy tales 28-6411

A collection of fairy tales, two each from France and Russia, and one each from Spain, Italy, Persia and Serbia.

"The characteristics and fairy legends of six nations are represented in this small volume—France, Russia, Spain, Italy, Persia, and Serbia. The author describes those traits and customs of each country which would most appeal to a child, and follows up each description with a particularly characteristic fairy story or two. It is a splendid idea, and of great value to school teacher, and pupil. But it seems a pity that in her desire to choose fairy tales which are so conscientiously typical of each nation, the author has given us stories that are rather involved and long drawn out."

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:199 O 6 '28 130w

Wis Lib Bul 24:128 Ap '28

WILLIAMS, BEN AMES. Dreadful night. 217p $2 Dutton

28-5864

Molly Main is left to spend the night alone in the Main summer home in New England. Hidden in the house is a priceless emerald bought by her husband from an Italian prima donna who has an estate on a nearby island. During the night Capella is murdered and her home ransacked. Still searching the emerald, the murderer comes to the Main's. Molly has been joined by a young girl and a reporter and the three spend the night in a ghoulish game of hide-and seek with the murderous madman and his dog.

Booklist 24:366 Je '28

"Shortish, the tale is well worth while for its harrowing qualities as well as for its spells of impressive and forceful writing." Will Cuppy

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p22 Mr 11 '28 90w

"There are chills and thrills enough to pop the eyes of the most lethargic reader, and the style is unusually urbane." R. H.

N Y Evening Post p13 F 25 '28 90w

"Despite the fact that its tension lessens in the last chapter Mr. Williams's tale of a beleagured household in the fastnesses of a lonely summer cottage settlement is a rattling good yarn that holds the attention from the beginning to the end and causes pleasurable thrills of excitement in the reader."

+ Sat R of Lit 4:655 Mr 3 '28 180w

"As a mere thriller, this is satisfactory enough. But Mr Williams should be doing the serious work of which he is capable."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7f Mr 18 '28 150w

WILLIAMS, BRUCE STOCKTON. State security and the League of nations. (Albert Shaw lectures on diplomatic history, 1927) 346p $2.75 Johns Hopkins

341 League of nations. International law and relations 27-24584

These are the Albert Shaw Lectures on diplomatic history given at Johns Hopkins and now issued in book form. "The lecturer examines with great thoroughness the question of guarantees of security to the lesser states. His work is more than a theoretical discussion of these matters. It constitutes an admirable statement of what has been achieved up to the present moment by the League of Nations."—R of Rs

---

Nation 126:653 Je 6 '28 100w

N Y Times p3 F 19 '28 70w

R of Rs 77:adv8 F '28 150w

"A volume like this is quite indispensable to an understanding of the public mind in European countries. Every American who is seeking the outlawry of war should study this book with great care." K. P.

+ World Tomorrow 11:279 Je '28 100w

WILLIAMS, MRS GERTRUDE LEAVENWORTH (MARVIN). Understanding India. 329p il $3.50 Coward-McCann

915.4 India—Social conditions. India—Social life and customs. Women in India 28-24112

A well written account of the author's travels in India and an interpretation of the country which is neither indictment nor eulogy. Mrs Williams was most of the time unattended and unannounced, gathering her impressions thru friendly encounters with Hindus and Mohammedans, high and low. She compares Indian civilization to that of the Middle ages and believes that material progress similar to that of the West since the Middle ages would take place with equal rapidity in India if she should adopt the machinery of the West.

Boston Transcript p8 N 10 '28 1000w

Reviewed by E. F. Edgett

Boston Transcript p10 D 8 '28 280w

"Gertrude Marwin Williams, after spending the usual five months in India, apparently in the winter of 1924-1925, covering the usual extensive mileage, has written the more or less usual superficial record of experiences and impressions. She devotes a good deal of space to trivial details of personal, but scarcely of general, interest. On the other hand, a lively procession of contrasting types of Indians musters to her roll-call." Gertrude Emerson

— + New Repub 57:supl14 D 12 '28 880w

WILLIAMS, G. L.—Continued

"The best story of travel written concerning India in a generation. The author has an alert intelligence, a heart ready to sympathize equally with kings and children, with eager reformers and with simple jungle folk like the dusky yellow Santals, aborigines of Eastern Bengal. This awakened mind has at its service an excellent gift of vivid writing and a singularly attractive personality with all of whose adventures we find ourselves humorously sympathizing." C: Johnston

+ N Y Times p20 D 16 '28 160w

World Tomorrow 12:44 Ja '29 20w

WILLIAMS, IOLO ANEURIN. Elements of book-collecting. 171p il $3 Stokes [8s 6d E. Mathews & M.]

025.2 Book collecting [28-1735]

For the information of the amateur bibliophile the author writes stimulating chapters on book making, issues and editions, how to describe a book, how to start a collection, why not to collect modern first editions, and kindred matters.

Booklist 24:343 Je '28

"For those who wish to be in the swim, and to blend with their technical talent the old-fashioned habit of buying books, Mr. Iolo Williams has provided a very companionable instructor. Mr. Williams in his colloquial yet scholarly fashion gives us the means of collating and thoroughly mastering a book physically considered." Edmund Blunden

+ Nation and Ath 42:519 D 31 '27 580w

"The beginner in the study of books will find Mr. Williams a useful guide, and his suggestions for the foundation of a collection are stimulating. Mr. Williams himself is attracted by the idea of collecting according to subject, and the value and interest of such self-imposed restriction cannot be denied; but his warnings will not deter a man who thinks he knows a good writer from a bad one."

+ New Statesman 30:570 F 11 '28 250w

"One slips into book-collecting insensibly as a rule; and it is only when we have made some little progress that we being to find that there is a good deal to learn about it. Mr. Williams will be a friend and mentor at this stage."

+ Sat R 144:830 D 10 '27 250w

"He gives inexperienced collectors not only much good advice—notably, never to buy an imperfect book—but the necessary instruction to enable them to detect imperfections."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p928 D 8 '27 820w

WILLIAMS, MORRIS. Stair builder's guide. [2] 259p il $3 Scientific bk. corp.

694.8 Stair building 28-10506

"A treatise on the construction of straight flight, platform, cylindrical and elliptical stairs, explaining the theory and practice so the average building mechanic may understand it, with examples of work ranging from the simplest to the most complex forms."—Subtitle

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:626 D '28

WILLIAMS, VALENTINE (DOUGLAS VALENTINE, VEDETTE, pseuds.). Crouching beast; a Clubfoot story. 303p $2 Houghton [7s 6d Hodder & S.]

28-24947

Clubfoot, the terrible, returns to action, this time on the trail of Olivia Dunbar. Olivia, daughter of an English colonel, was spending the summer of 1914 in a quiet German town. An English secret service man appealed to her for help and at his death Olivia took up his work and with the aid of his friend, Druce, completed the matter successfully. More than once Clubfoot had Olivia in his web, but each time her own quick wit, or that of Druce, saved her.

Boston Transcript p8 N 24 '28 380w

"Mr. William's thrilling news story of spying, mystery, and love will delight his many admirers."

+ Spec 141:669 N 3 '28 60w

WILLIAMS, WILLIAM CARLOS. Voyage to Pagany. 338p $2.50 Macaulay

28-21220

At odds with the intellectual and spiritual environment of his native America, a small-town practitioner goes to Europe in search of something better. Voyage to Pagany is the story of his encounter with the continental attitude toward life in France, Italy and in Vienna as personified in his relations with three women, the last of whom is his sister. She urges him to stay on with her in France and to give expression to his desire to write, but with his problem only half resolved, he sails back to America.

"A Voyage to Pagany is hardly a novel, though the figures of three woman, one of them the hero's sister, tend to lend it a sort of narrative unity; it is really an emotional travelogue. . . Despite certain laxities of style and a general looseness of construction which may be in part designed, it is a fine and exciting book by a conscientious artist of whom we may be proud." C. P. Fadiman

+ — Bookm 68:222 O '28 330w

"The last chapters in the book are the most moving. In these chapters Dr. Williams shows how effective his nervous, alert and sensitive style may become when dealing with human drama. I do not care particularly for the structure of 'A Voyage to Pagany.' In fact, I think that Dr. Williams has practically disregarded all structure, not deliberately, but as though he wrote the book without giving consideration to any such problem. In form it is somewhat like a diary, very beautiful, but not an adequate pattern for a first-rate novel." Morley Callaghan

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 O 7 '28 900w

Boston Transcript p6 D 1 '28 360w

" 'A Voyage to Pagany' is an excellent book in the epic tradition. Dr. Williams' conclusions on American culture are vague, but the novel as a whole is sensitive and quick."

+ Ind 121:309 S 29 '28 200w

" 'A Voyage to Pagany' cannot decide whether it should be a philosophical travel diary or a loose, almost picaresque novel. The result of the dilemma is that the book gives the final effect of a series of vigorous and often beautiful sketches. But the effect is unsatisfactory, and if Dr. Williams intended no more one can only conclude that he did not perceive the possibilities of his own material." C. P. Fadiman

— + N Y Evening Post p8m O 20 '28 820w

"The story, for all its dignity of manner, its scientific clarity and authority, leaves an unpleasant impression."

— + N Y Times p2 S 30 '28 880w

"Not a book that is likely to yield all its goodness to any but an American reader—to a European it is an interesting curiosity, rather enlightening and rather pathetic."

Times [London] Lit Sup p932 N 29 '28 650w

WILLIAMSON, MRS ALICE MURIEL (LIVINGSTON). Alice in Movieland. 281p il $2 Appleton [7s 6d Philpot]

927.92 Moving pictures—Biography. Actors and actresses. Hollywood, California 28-11063

Glamorous chit-chat about Hollywood stars, with photographs of many of them.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Je 3 '28 130w

Boston Transcript p7 Je 9 '28 400w

"Mrs. Williamson (whose book is apparently intended to advertise Mrs. Elinor Glyn) simulates, with some degree of success, complete imbecility." Francis Birrell

— Nation and Ath 42:722 F 11 '28 240w

WILLIAMSON, HENRY. Tarka the otter; his joyful water-life and death in the country of the Two Rivers; with an introd. by Sir John Fortescue. 260p $2.50 Dutton [7s 6d Putnam]

599.7 Otters 28-4104

With great variety of interesting detail Mr Williamson covers the two year life span of Tarka the otter whose haunts were the waterways of Exmoor and Dartmoor, "the Two Rivers country."

Booklist 24:352 Je '28

"If I were to offer a criticism of Mr. Williamson's work, in many ways so admirable, I would say that it lacked the detached, imaginative insight, deep and philosophic, which was the natural heritage of those two great nature writers, Thomas Hardy and W. H. Hudson. . . Mr. Williamson is a capital writer; for pages together his style will be exceptional, but there is weakness in him." Llewelyn Powys

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 Mr 4 '28 950w

"The number of those who will enjoy this book is necessarily limited by its subject and style to nature lovers who appreciate poetry. It is really more of a poem than a story—and the reading should be unhurried, or much of its beauty will be lost. But to many it will bring the excitement of living in a new world —the cruel, fantastic world of animals which it is evident Mr. Williamson has studied and loved."

+ Ind 120:285 Mr 24 '28 120w

Nation 126:463 Ap 18 '28 40w

"When we come to the subject of the book, the otter itself, what do we find? Well, slips of omission and commission that leave one with the impression that the author has never known an otter intimately and personally, but has written from otter-hunting experience. But after all these comments we must give Mr. Williamson credit for his sincere endeavour to paint the life of an otter, and for making his hero a happy, joyful creature, which indeed the otter is; also for his vivid description of water life, the countryside, and of a pack of otter hounds, to say nothing of the otter hunt. The last is the most vivid and lifelike, though to the reviewer the most unpleasant of his many vivid descriptions." Frances Pitt

— + Nation and Ath 42:192 N 5 '27 700w

"Mr. Williamson has observed the Devon countryside with intentness, patience and love. His eyes have noted everything, from the peculiarities of bird flights to the tints and shapes of lichens. His picturesque prose, constantly gleaming with color, is sometimes overwrought to the point of preciosity and occasionally rises into passages of poetic diction." R. C. B. Brown

+ — N Y Evening Post p12 Mr 10 '28 450w

"In keen, sympathetic, accurate and comprehensive observation of wild life, Mr. Williamson's nature tales, of which this is the fourth, are not excelled by any English or American writer. . . It is a pity that, with all his meticulous observation, not only of the otters but of their environment and their relations with other animals and humans, his vivid picturing and his polished literary style, Mr. Williamson has not made a better story. He seems to have been overwhelmed by the immense amount of material he had gathered."

+ — N Y Times p32 Mr 4 '28 550w

No Am 225:adv My '28 90w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:549 N '28

"This book is the life history of an otter told by one who has known and loved the whiskered breed too well to falsify their otter minds and put human glamour upon their otter ways. And yet it is a very beautiful book, a river back of a country exquisitely described below and above the wave; and it is a dramatic book, in which the otter hunt, seen from the otter world is as exciting as an airplane flight or the last act of a human melodrama."

+ Sat R of Lit 4:707 Mr 24 '28 230w

Spec 139:1011 D 3 '27 600w

"Perhaps he has but added the results of imagination and reasoning to the records of observation in order to make his complete picture. It is undoubtedly a brilliant one, presented with great charm and technical skill. . . Mr. Williamson's style is inclined to be precious, and he uses a great number of strange words or words divorced from their ordinary meanings. But the general effect is remarkably live, and we are won over to forgive extravagances by the vividness of his descriptions."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p805 N 10 '27 530w

WILLIAMSON, JAMES ALEXANDER. Sir John Hawkins; the time and the man. 542p il $7 Oxford [20s Clarendon press]

B or 92 Hawkins, Sir John. Great Britain—History, Naval 28-10899

"That English slave-runner, freebooter, and naval hero, Sir John Hawkins, is the subject of another biography. This history begins with 'Old William Hawkins' and includes, of course, the career of John's brother, also named William. It is a fine account of Elizabethan seafaring days, running through the defeat of the Armada and the building up of the British Navy."—No Am

---

"Taking it as a whole this life of Hawkins is a fine scholarly piece of work and easily the most important contribution to Elizabethan maritime history that has appeared in the last decade." Conyers Read

+ Am Hist R 33:863 Jl '28 500w

Booklist 24:363 Je '28

"This book gives the man and his times, not in outline, but in the round. It is a time well worth study to-day, especially by those who imagine that human nature has changed and that nations are not dynamic but static enemies." W: McFee

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 Ap 8 '28 1050w

"As a biography the book is very good; but it is more than a biography. Hawkins himself was deeply concerned in the tortuous foreign policy of his day. These things form the background of the story, and on all of them Mr. Williamson throws new light. His book is a very notable and a very fascinating contribution to the history of maritime enterprise and Tudor policy. It is excellently illustrated."

+ Nation and Ath 42:622 Ja 21 '28 480w

"Mr. Williamson has written a book of real scholarship and distinction, and has written it in an easy pleasant style, with an economy of foot-notes and a prodigality of good illustrations, which should commend it to the general reader. He has unearthed much new material."

+ New Statesman 30:383 D 31 '27 1100w

Reviewed by H. I. Brock

N Y Times p11 Jl 1 '28 2550w

No Am 225:adv Ap '28 90w

"Mr. Williamson has successfully completed a praiseworthy and difficult task; the defect of his book is that we know little more of the essential Hawkins than when he began, and the merit that it considerably lessens the labors of any future historian who shall attempt the living portrait of its hero."

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:707 Mr 24 '28 150w

Spec 140:779 My 19 '28 170w

"Admirable and scholarly work by Mr. Williamson."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p983 D 29 '27 1250w

WILLIS, IRENE COOPER. Elizabeth Barrett [2] Browning. (Representative women ser.) 96p $2 Viking press [3s 6d G. Howe]

B or 92 Browning, Mrs Elizabeth (Barrett) [28-12707]

"Miss Willis maintains that Robert Browning's devotion should not influence our judg-

WILLIS, I. C.—Continued
ment of Elizabeth Barrett's work. Although dealing with the wife of a great man she has —unlike many biographers of women—kept the overwhelming male in the background."—Christian Science Monitor

"It is written in the detached, ironical manner now adopted for biographical portraiture and is valuable because of this detachment." V. S. P.

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 My 2 '28 580w

"While Miss Cooper reveals, with more cleverness than understanding, the pettier side of E. B. B.'s character, she cannot re-create for us the flame her poems lighted in the breasts of contemporaries. But the fact remains that Elizabeth Barrett Browning was for one man, still respected, something wonderful beyond compare. This is her important aspect, and to this aspect Miss Cooper Willis seems to have been almost deliberately unjust."

— New Statesman 31:94 Ap 28 '28 180w

"While her criticism of her subject's poetry would be more valuable, if less subserviated to interpretation of her life and personality, the interpretation within the limits of space imposed is at once just and sympathetic; and behind the morbidities of a sick-room atmosphere and emotions which ring false to a modern ear she has revealed a being who compels our admiration as much as our compassion."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p650 S 13 '28 250w

WILLIS, IRENE COOPER. England's holy war; a study of English Liberal idealism during the Great war. 398p $4 (16s) Knopf

940.342 European war, 1914-1918—Great Britain. Liberal party (Great Britain). Propaganda, British. Press—Great Britain 28-12171

The book is made up of three small volumes "originally published in England in 1919, 1920 and 1921, under the respective titles of 'How We Went into the War,' 'How We Got on with the War' and 'How We Came Out of the War.' " (Preface) In them the author makes a penetrating study of the course of Liberal idealism in England before and after the war, particularly as it found expression in the pages of its chief exponent, the Daily News.

Boston Transcript p4 My 26 '28 280w

"In the flood of war books, Miss Willis's volume sounds an absolutely original note, for, as far as this reviewer is aware, no one has ever before tried to offer a reasoned exposition of the British liberal failure. To a high-minded spirit like the author, the downfall of idealism is in this and every case essentially a tragedy, but the comic elements, which wait on every human incident and which reveal themselves with peculiar sharpness to her impish intelligence, receive due recognition and serve to keep the reader in satanically hilarious frame of mind." Ferdinand Schevill

+ Christian Century 45:731 Je '28 780w

Reviewed by Ernest Boyd
Ind 121:139 Ag 11 '28 980w

Reviewed by Keith Hutchison
+ Nation 127:322 O 3 '28 800w

"This is a book which will give satisfaction to readers of many varieties of opinion. How often, in perusing the authorities which come to us daily, do we have an uneasy sense of having found precisely the opposite in the same authority a few days, or weeks, before; but unless we can give most of our time to clipping and filing and indexing, we much perforce accept our daily ration and suppress the qualms. Miss Willis has done in one case what we should all like to do in others." R. M. Lovett

+ New Repub 55:100 Je 13 '28 1500w

Reviewed by W: MacDonald
N Y Times p1 Je 24 '28 750w

"Her literary style leaves room for an occasional chuckle over the whole mess, without, however, detracting from the thought-provoking side of her work. Even before she has reached the lucid chapter on 'Perplexities' following the Armistice, she has completed her study of the English war mind—which is largely any other mind of any time." D. R. Maue

+ Outlook 149:714 Ag 29 '28 220w

Times [London] Lit Sup p655 S 20 '28 880w

World Tomorrow 11:347 Ag '28 60w

WILLOUGHBY, MRS FLORANCE (BARRETT). Gentlemen unafraid. 285p il $3.50 Putnam

917.98 Frontier and pioneer life—Alaska. Alaska—Description and travel 28-22306

Reprinted from the American magazine where they first appeared, these articles describe Miss Willoughby's childhood in Alaska, and some Alaskan heroes, gentlemen unafraid, whom she has known: Alexander (Sandy) Smith, trailblazer; Scotty Allan and his famous dog, Baldy; George Evans, mining engineer; Captain Sydney Barrington, Yukon pilot; and Dr C. C. Georgeson, plant wizard of Alaska. Illustrated from photographs of Alaskan scenes.

Reviewed by C. L. Skinner
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p28 D 2 '28 380w

"Her book, if it lacks form, is at least full of interesting matter."

+ — Nation and Ath 44:270 N 17 '28 100w

"Miss Willoughby writes with simplicity, charm and restraint, and with admirable objectivity. She makes all Alaska 'come alive.' "

+ N Y Times p13 N 25 '28 530w

"Her book is full of good reading, as well as the history of the Territory from first-hand sources." Herschel Brickell

+ No Am 226:adv D '28 40w

Reviewed by Milton Byron
Outlook 150:1172 N 14 '28 70w

Sat R of Lit 5:490 D 8 '28 200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p988 D 13 '28 650w

WILLOUGHBY-MEADE, G. Chinese ghouls and goblins. 432p il $7.50 Stokes [24s Constable]

398 Folklore—China

Ghost and demon tales of China are gathered from various sources and presented with a brief explanation of the beliefs which appear to underlie them. With illustrations from Chinese art.

New Statesman 31:460 Jl 14 '28 300w

"Some of his older ghost stories are quite off the beaten track. These, however, are exceptions. As a rule, the stories run on much the same lines and there is a good deal of repetition, as was, indeed, inevitable in so large a collection as this."

Sat R 145:844 Je 30 '28 180w

"Mr. Willoughby-Meade has here collected under subject headings a large number of ghost stories, many of which find counterparts in the West. The methods of Chinese spiritualism, with its spirit-writing (with or without planchette), its materializations, voices, and warnings, differ little from what we are used to in Europe. The translations are excellent, and there is a good index. The special section on vampires will attract many readers."

Times [London] Lit Sup p274 Ap 12 '28 110w

WILLS, HELEN. Tennis. 214p il $2.50 (10s 6d) Scribner

796.34 Tennis 28-12201

In a modest and matter-of-fact way Miss Wills talks about tennis, describing strokes and plays, and illustrating her descriptions with sketches of herself and her fellow champions in action.

Booklist 25:19 O '28

"Her text is singularly unexciting, and the best thing in the book is the set of drawings by herself of the great tennis players in action, which are graphic journalism." Edmund Blunden

— + Nation and Ath 43:566 Jl 28 '28 70w

"In the first place, the book is dull. In the second, it is repetitious. Furthermore, there are numerous errors sprinkled through the 214 pages." J: R. Tunis

— N Y Evening Post p8 My 12 '28 540w

"One of the most charming volumes of the many that have been written by great players. Although she is only twenty-two she writes with great sense of style and her illustrations have vigour and verve. Those of herself are particularly charming."

+ Spec 140:886 Je 9 '28 100w

Springf'd Republican p7f Je 3 '28 1150w

"What she has to say about the players of the day is admirable and generously expressed in the drawings; one can see from the attitudes that some characteristic stroke is likely to be successful and why."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p383 My 17 '28 130w

Wis Lib Bul 24:189 Je '28

WILLSON, BECKLES. America's ambassadors to France (1777-1927); a narrative of Franco-American diplomatic relations. 433p $5 Stokes [21s J. Murray]

327.44 France—Foreign relations—United States. United States—Foreign relations—France. Ambassadors. United States—Diplomatic and consular service 28-11899

The book is a companion volume to the author's "Paris embassy; a narrative of Franco-British diplomatic relations." It gives an account of the American ambassadors and their services from Benjamin Franklin to Myron T. Herrick.

"Most readers will value Mr. Willson's orderly and painstaking narrative mainly because of the personal incidents which enliven it. . . The narrative proceeds, never too grave or too gay, almost replete with information and becomingly discreet as it approaches the present time." W: MacDonald

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 Je 17 '28 1150w

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 14 '28 420w

"The author has had full access to the Embassy archives, as well as to available private papers, and he is able to throw much light upon the course of Franco-American relations. These have been far from the 'uninterrupted amity' which is invoked in ceremonial speeches. Mr. Willson brings out many interesting episodes to which American historians, obsessed with the Lafayette tradition, have given less attention than they deserve. He underlines also the dangers and embarrassments of the post-war reaction in Paris, and his book serves as a useful background to the study of present Franco-American relations."

+ New Statesman 31:134 My 5 '28 210w

N Y Evening Post p8 Jl 7 '28 90w

R of Rs 77:adv28 Je '28 60w

"The author has put students of the English-speaking world in his debt by publishing so admirable an account of Franco-American diplomatic relations. Mr. Willson has the knack of presenting historic facts in a palatable form and we can warmly recommend this book to all students of transatlantic diplomacy."

+ Spec 140:502 Mr 31 '28 200w

"The very full and well-chosen quotations from the private letters and public dispatches of the American Ministers and Ambassadors, even when they add nothing substantial to our knowledge, often throw a very vivid new light on men and affairs."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p343 My 10 '28 1450w

Wis Lib Bul 24:219 Jl '28

WILLSON, BECKLES. Paris embassy; a narrative of Franco-British diplomatic relations, 1814-1920. 368p il $5 Stokes [25s Unwin]

327.44 Great Britain—Foreign relations—France. France—Foreign relations—Great Britain. Great Britain—Diplomatic and consular service. Ambassadors [27-19150]

A history of the British embassy in Paris which takes the form of memoirs of the successive occupants of the ambassadorial residence, the Hotel Borghese, from 1814-1920.

Reviewed by T. J. C. Martyn

N Y Times p11 Ja 15 '28 800w

"It is only when Mr. Willson stays too long away from the Rue du Faubourg St. Honoré that his book becomes a little dull. His character sketches of the different Ambassadors are always shrewd, outspoken, and neatly contrasted. Glancing through the list, it would appear that, in despair of ever really understanding the tastes of our Allies, we have made it a matter of policy to offer them as varied a menu as possible."

+ Sat R 143:635 Ap 23 '27 880w

"Not many people are likely to want it to keep, but those who do will feel that a certain sumptuosity is in place; while the library reader will find a good subject handled with lightness of touch but very solid knowledge. Mr. Willson possesses the great art of selection, and he gets his story told without obscuring its main lines; but when he gives it detail, it is full and pictorial." Stephen Gwynn

+ Spec 138:564 Mr 26 '27 430w

"The real interest of this book lies outside the serious topics of diplomacy; it is centered round the life of Paris society as it was known to the different ambassadors and their families. The occasional excursions of the author into the more weighty political affairs are not very happy, and might well have been omitted. The gossiping account of the historical building which was acquired from the Princess Pauline by the Duke of Wellington for the British Embassy affords, however, some amusement and interest."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p258 Ap 14 '27 650w

WILLSTATTER, RICHARD MARTIN, and STOLL, ARTHUR. Investigations on chlorophyll; methods and results; auth. English tr. from the German, by Frank Milton Schertz, and Albert R. Merz. 385p il $4.50 F. M. Schertz, 1305 Farragut st., N.W., Washington, D.C.

581.8 Chlorophyl 28-7697

"Highly specialized treatise on the chemistry, sources and preparation of chlorophyll, and the nature of chlorophyll derivatives."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:624 D '28

WILSON, ALEXANDER DOUGLAS. Devil's cocktail. 360p $2 (7s 6d) Longmans 28-24154

Captain Shannon of the British secret service, goes to India ostensibly as professor of English literature at a university college, but in reality to uncover a Bolshevist plot threatening the peace of the whole world. Among the details of the machinations by the Russian agent and his accomplices is the "devil's cocktail" containing cholera bacilli, offered to Shannon.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p36 D 2 '28 100w

"The author strives conscientiously to provide a thrill on every page; but in sober truth the book is rather silly."

— Times [London] Lit Sup p940 N 29 '28 110w

WILSON, ALEXANDER DOUGLAS. Mystery of tunnel 51. 345p $2 (7s 6d) Longmans 28-7501

Worn out from ten months' hard work Major Elliott of the "Sappers and miners" came to

WILSON, A. D.—Continued
Simla to report the result of his labors. But the Viceroy had gone to Delhi. With his packet of papers close to his body Elliott started to Delhi, but he was murdered in tunnel 51 and the papers stolen. Investigation showed that Bolshevism was gaining a foothold in India and this was only one outcropping. With the coming of Sir Leonard Wallace, chief of the British intelligence service, things began to happen, and then to straighten out.

"Agreeably light in manner." Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 My 6 '28 90w

"It is well written, its characters are interesting, its episodes exciting."
+ Boston Transcript p3 My 26 '28 300w
N Y Times p23 My 6 '28 150w

"The mystery is only fair, and the book is much too long. Recommended to domestics and seventeen-year-olds." Vincent Starrett
N Y World p7m My 27 '28 60w
Springf'd Republican p7f Ag 19 '28 170w
Times [London] Lit Sup p398 My 24 '28 230w

WILSON, SIR ARNOLD TALBOT. Persian gulf; with a foreword by L. S. Amery. 327p il $7 (25s) Oxford

955 Persian gulf. Asia, Western—History
28-18894

"This learned 'Historical sketch from the earliest times to the beginning of the twentieth century' is really a book for scholars and students. Sir Arnold Wilson has resided for eighteen years on the shores of the Persian Gulf, and there is probably nobody who has studied so profoundly the long and obscure history of this portion of the globe. He takes us back into the dawn of history, and so through the classical age to the Mahometan era, to the coming of the Portuguese, the English and the Dutch, and to the rising importance of the Persian Gulf in international politics."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

"Piracy, the slave trade and the growth of Arab principalities are discussed, and the book's value is heightened by a bibliography of remarkable fullness. It is, indeed, an historic summary and work of reference not likely to be superseded for many years."
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 S 23 '28 200w

"Sir Arnold is an authority on the ancient civilization of Mesopotamia. The book possesses a good index, a useful bibliography, and a summary of scientific research. It is well illustrated."
+ Spec 140:942 Je 23 '28 110w

"Having the invaluable gift of selection, combined with a personal and intimate knowledge of his subject, he has produced in this volume a most comprehensive and trustworthy presentation of a great chapter of history."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p323 My 3 '28 1600w

WILSON, MRS DESEMEA (NEWMAN). See Patrick, D., pseud.

WILSON, ERNEST HENRY. More aristocrats of the garden. 288p il $5 Stratford

715 Gardening. Trees. Shrubs. Climbing plants
28-10789

The keeper of the Arnold Arboretum provides a complementary volume to his "Aristocrats of the garden" (Book Review Digest, 1926). It discusses certain of the better known group of shrubs and trees, tells how they should be planted to insure the best results and how they may be increased.

Booklist 24:392 Jl '28

"Those who know its predecessor will automatically desire this excellent successor. Mr. Wilson writes with clear directness and charm." R. S. Lemmon
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 My 13 '28 480w

"The chapter on trees best adapted to the planting of streets in cities and towns and highways in the country and the methods of planting necessary for success deserves the widest possible reading. The illustrations are beautiful and, for lovers of tree and plant beauty, fascinating."
+ N Y Times p18 Ap 15 '28 420w

"A book packed with interest, and should be read by every botanist and gardener."
+ Sat R of Lit 4:1036 Jl 14 '28 250w

"Written entirely for the benefit of gardeners in the United States, this study of some of the finest trees, shrubs and climbers may, mutatis mutandis, be profitably read by British planters. Most of the subjects described ought to flourish exceptionally well in our islands."
Times [London] Lit Sup p316 Ap 26 '28 140w

WILSON, HEWITT. Ceramics; clay technology. 296p il $4 McGraw

666.3 Clay. Clay industries
27-19048

"The author is well and favorably known in ceramic circles, an associate professor of ceramic engineering at the University of Washington, Seattle. This book is the first general text on ceramic problems from recent physical-chemical viewpoints and as such is a valuable contribution to ceramic literature. The subject matter is logically arranged. The book is well printed and illustrated with a large number of graphs and a few halftones."—Ind & Eng Chem

---

Booklist 24:197 F '28

"It is a book which will be of great value to those interested in ceramic problems and one which every ceramic man will be glad to have on his desk for ready and repeated reference." L. I. Shaw
+ Ind & Eng Chem 20:104 Ja '28 300w
N Y New Tech Bks 12:50 O '27

WILSON, MRS LUCY LANGDON (WILLIAMS). New schools of new Russia. (Vanguard studies of soviet Russia) 230p 50c Vanguard press

379.47 Education—Russia
28-12519

An American teacher of long experience describes in brief space Soviet Russia's new educational program, which has meant a fundamental reorganization of her entire educational system. What makes the story of education in Soviet Russia different from that in any other country, writes Mrs Wilson, is that "for the first time in history, a people has a new cultural ideal on which to build. On these realities—the world of nature, the world of work, and the world of human relations—they are building their schools."

Reviewed by Agnes de Lima
Bookm 68:237 O '28 110w
Educ R 76:83 S '28 580w

"This study devoted to the Soviet educational program and achievements, is especially commendable because of Miss Wilson's admirable personal detachment and her ability to see what is being done solely in the light of its interest and importance as an educational scheme. One guesses that she is not in sympathy with the political and economic principles of the Russian Government, but whatever her convictions on that score they do not bias her attitude toward the Russian school system."
+ N Y Times p21 Je 3 '28 480w

"Her observations, as set forth in this little book, bear the marks of maturity and freedom from prejudice. She gives us an amazing amount of information about the actual workings of the Soviet school system."
+ R of Rs 78:adv28 Jl '28 110w

WILSON, MARGARET (MRS G. D. TURNER). Daughters of India. 369p $2 Harper [7s 6d J. Cape]
28-10867

This rather plotless story of an American missionary in India gives nevertheless a series of clear pictures of native life. Davida, the heroine, is a person whose sympathies have left intact her sense of humor, so that neither the pathos nor the irony of a situation is lost on her. She moves, a not wholly visualized figure, among her native friends, sharing their problems and those of her fellow missionary John Ramsay, and reaping with him the bitter fruits of the rescue of an outcast.

Booklist 24:406 Jl '28

"The book brightens and takes on life whenever Miss Bhose appears. At such moments Miss Wilson is at her best—and that can be very fine. . . Davida's 'bright' remarks, her Quixotic generosity, her deep and hidden love of the dead missionary . . . these never quite fuse into a living and cogent personality. Nor do any of the other characters Miss Bhose always excepted, ever quite walk off on their own legs." Raymond Weaver

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 My 13 '28 820w

"Miss Wilson's story gives the habits and conditions of life in that particular part of India very clearly, but it lacks the challenge to the imagination it seems always just about to promise. The plot is weak, and the ending, so far as the plot itself is concerned, is flat." J. W. M.

+ — Boston Transcript p4 Je 9 '28 300w

"The story is of small consequence except as it provides a way of presenting Davida, John Ramsay, the head of the mission, and Miss Bhose. These are fully rounded and individual characters, and in the delineation of Ramsay, in particular, there is much subtlety. Miss Wilson has the gift of dramatic presentation. When we say that the plot does not impress the reader, we do not mean that there is a lack of impressiveness in the writing. We mean, rather, that she could almost dispense with plot, so completely does she convince us that these scenes are real experiences in the lives of real men and women."

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 My 9 '28 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p122 N '28

Reviewed by A. B. Parsons

Nation 126:723 Je 27 '28 400w

"I recommend 'Daughters of India' strongly as a well-written and most intelligent book. It may not be literature, but it holds the attention throughout. And this is the eventual criterion of a novel." Raymond Mortimer

+ Nation and Ath 43:80 Ap 21 '28 780w

New Repub 56:27 Ag 22 '28 230w

"This extremely ingenuous account of the life of Indian women at home has the form of a novel, but is nothing more than a day-to-day reminiscence of the zenana. The author, Mrs. Turner, has the double advantage of writing as an American and as an observer of zenana mission work from the inside during several years of residence in the Punjab. The simplicity and kindliness with which the picture is drawn serve to emphasise its profound sadness. Some of Mrs. Turner's noticeable inaccuracies might easily have been avoided."

— + New Statesman 31:618 Ag 25 '28 150w

N Y Times p8 Ap 22 '28 600w

Reviewed by J: R. Chamberlain

N Y Times p26 Je 24 '28 60w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:549 N '28

Pratt p45 autumn '28

"The narrative asserts itself from time to time, only to be submerged under avalanches of feminine talk, most of it addressed to the American missionary Davida, round whom the action, such as it is, takes place. One cannot regret the dialogue. It is so amusingly phrased that one forgets that its content is sometimes serious. . . 'Daughters of India' is an unusual novel, and I thoroughly recommend it to anyone who is prepared to overcome the slight difficulty of reading it." L. P. Hartley

+ Sat R 145:568 My 5 '28 480w

"There is no denying that the book is amusing, that once started it will hardly be laid aside until it is finished, but for all that it remains unsatisfactory. The parts never quite fuse into a whole."

— + Sat R of Lit 5:41 Ag 11 '28 330w

"To Miss Wilson our gratitude is due for the balm, and also for a vivid and attractive little book. There is not a page of politics in it, not a word of propaganda; the most sensitive of Indian nationalists could not place the author in any conspiracy for insulting India, or prejudicing the Simon Commission, or similar malevolence."

+ Spec 140:622 Ap 21 '28 450w

Springf'd Republican p7f My 20 '28 700w

"So vivid is the narration that the reader can scarcely avoid the conclusion that the imaginary Davida Baillie is a convenient, but rather thin, disguise for the real Margaret Wilson. Miss Wilson never halts for a moment in her story-telling to impress on her readers the fact that she knows the life of India; but her picture of the inconsequence, untidiness, quarrelsomeness, kindliness, general topsy-turvydom of an Indian basti testifies to an intimacy of knowledge attained by few foreigners. . . For its knowledge, humour, insight, this modest little novel deserves to take rank among the classics of Anglo-Indian fiction."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p354 My 10 '28 550w

Wis Lib Bul 24:164 My '28

WILSON, PHILIP WHITWELL. Explorer of changing horizons: William Edgar Geil, 1865-1925. 371p il $4 Doubleday, Doran

B or 92 Geil, William Edgar. Voyages and travels
27-24328

William Edgar Geil was an explorer, evangelist and lecturer. A layman, not ordained by any church, he had the whole world for his parish. His travels were amazingly wide and wherever he went he became a sympathetic interpreter of the people and their civilization. His biography reveals a striking personality and a life full of incident and adventure.

"Geil must have been, with all his Baptist prosiness, a colorful personality, and, closing the book, one is sorry to have so much clearer a picture of P. W. Wilson than of W. E. Geil."

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 N 20 '27 220w

"In the main it is a travel book rather than a biography. True, it gives the facts of the man's life, but nowadays we expect more than that. What few glimpses we are given of the character behind, do not, let us hope, depict the whole." W. T. B.

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 7 '28 400w

"It must be admitted that the spiritual implications behind Mr. Wilson's admirable reconstruction of his 'Explorer's' life are often lost in our naïve interest in the places described. The average contemporary reader will find there is much more to appeal to him than in usual missionary biography."

+ N Y Times p2 My 27 '28 600w

"Geil was famous in English-speaking countries, in Protestant proselytizing circles, and, besides, had great note as an orator, an American patriot, and a lecturer on his wide travels. Between missions to Godless people, he peered into common and uncommon corners of the world, wrote a dozen books, and lectured. Wherever he went, he carried the Bible, Old Glory and a frock coat. He was reckoned the greatest unacrobatic revivalist of this era. His

WILSON, P. W.—Continued
biographer has written this large book about Dr. Geil with glowing enthusiasm." F: O'Brien
+ N Y World p11m F 12 '28 1100w
Sat R of Lit 4:762 Ap 14 '28

WILSON, ROBERT MCNAIR. Napoleon the man. 621p il $5 Century [21s J. Murray]
B or 92 Napoleon I, emperor of the French 28-8760

Thruout the book Napoleon is referred to as "The Man." The author claims to have portrayed a new Napoleon, the soldier of democracy and the friend of humanity, whose ideal was peace and a united Europe.

Reviewed by F. H. Winterburn
Bookm 67:585 Jl '28 250w

"This book is disarmingly old-fashioned. But for a few modern touches which mar the perfection of the pastiche, it might have been written in France exactly a hundred years ago. It sets forth the 'Legend,' in the most usual sense of the term, as though it were a new Evangel. The book is full not of downright inaccuracies but of loose statements which betray the amateur. Withal, as popular history, the book is not without merit. It moves trippingly along. The chapter heads would be excellent titles on the screen." Albert Guerard
— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 Jl 29 '28 550w

Reviewed by L: R. Gottschalk
— Nation 126:672 Je 13 '28 250w

"Unlike Herr Ludwig, he has completely failed in his dangerous attempt to write a popular, dramatic reconstruction of Napoleon's efforts and ideals."
— Nation and Ath 42:624 Ja 21 '28 420w

"People who are sufficiently interested in Napoleon to be receptive to the expression of unorthodox opinions about him will enjoy Dr. Wilson's book if they like the way it is written. Dr. Wilson appears to believe that to write in the popular manner means to address himself to an audience of children. Possibly he is right in this, but his style is so ingenuous that one is teased by the thought that perhaps he has been equally guileless in his estimate of Napoleon. Nevertheless, his sources are excellent and his opinions interesting." F. C. L. R.
— + Outlook 149:156 My 23 '28 200w
Springf'd Republican p7e S 16 '28 600w

WILSON, ROMER, pseud. (MRS E: J. H. O'BRIEN). Life and private history of Emily Jane Brontë (Eng title All alone; the life and private history of Emily Jane Brontë). 292p il $4 Boni
B or 92 Brontë, Emily Jane 28-15812

From her own environment of the Yorkshire moors, Romer Wilson builds up the background of Emily Brontë's life and offers an interpretation of her genius. The malign influence of the moor, the gloomy and unwholesome atmosphere of Haworth parsonage where lived grim Patrick Brontë and his six motherless children, the dislike of Charlotte Brontë for the younger sister, Emily's day-dreaming habit—these and other unhappy elements went into the making of Emily Brontë and that work of genius, "Wuthering Heights."

"The whole illusion of biographical truth is continuously compromised; and one closes the book with a muddled memory of facts about the Brontës and impressions of Miss Wilson's philosophy. The book is not, properly speaking, a biography; it is an incoherent incantation." Newton Arvin
— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 Jl 8 '28 1050w

"Her enthusiasm for her subject compensates one for a certain immaturity and provincialism in her manner of writing, a lack of polish and philosophical detachment. Hers is a personal interpretation, and as such it does succeed in leaving in one's mind a vivid and moving impression."
+ — Dial 85:443 N '28 70w

"This is a book that you must either accept or reject; there is no compromise possible. Miss Wilson makes no bones about it; she admits constantly that her conclusions are the result of feeling and poetic sympathy. She may be totally wrong; but there is no one who can prove it; and there are many who will find her portrait of a greatly misunderstood genius marvelously convincing." C. P. Fadiman
Nation 126:723 Je 27 '28 850w

"Over and over again, where Miss Wilson is explaining the psychology of one of the Brontës in less mystical and oracular terms she shows a lack of understanding of character and evidence which hardly encourages one to accept her ex cathedra statements about the soul of Emily. She clearly has a personal dislike of Charlotte; but the suggestion that Charlotte was a malign and dominating influence in Emily's life or that she completely misunderstood Emily is really fantastic. There is no evidence at all for the picture of the relations between the two sisters drawn by Miss Wilson in this book." Leonard Woolf
— Nation and Ath 43:178 My 12 '28 650w

Reviewed by R. M. Lovett
New Repub 55:229 Jl 18 '28 1050w

"There are no fresh facts in this book. 'Private History' means the history of Emily Brontë's soul, which is naturally a matter of conjecture. . . Nevertheless Miss Romer Wilson is so genuinely convinced that she is watching 'the very pulse of the machine,' and so excited herself by her discovery of Emily's 'Dark Lover' or Alter Ego and his dæmonic possession of her soul, that she imparts for a time the glow of her own conviction; while her gifts as a novelist enable her to assemble undoubtedly authentic details into vivid pictures of the life in Haworth Parsonage. Still, I do not approve."
New Statesman 31:123 My 5 '28 1500w

Reviewed by R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p4 Je 17 '28 1550w

"Romer Wilson, herself a novelist of parts, and peculiarly fitted by temperament and surroundings to write of the Brontës, presents a study of the inner life of Emily Brontë (mercifully free of the turgid phrases of psycho-analysis) as profound as any we have ever seen outside of fiction, where the greatest psychological studies are to be found, and she writes with an intensity of prejudice which is entirely typical of the modern romantic biographer." F. L. Robbins
+ Outlook 150:792 S 12 '28 1200w
Pratt p38 autumn '28
St Louis 26:359 N '28

"At times the approximation between the subject and her biographer is almost frightening. It is almost as though Emily were speaking in a harsh muffled voice through alien lips, or as if Miss Wilson were in turn giving lodging to Emily as her Dark Hero. . . To many it will seem a wild romance in the Brontë manner rather than a biography. Even as that it is memorable. But to some it will seem something more, and they will find it difficult to admit even to themselves how actual it is. But they will at least confess that here is a book of biography like no other." Humbert Wolfe
Sat R 145:668 My 26 '28 900w

"The book by Romer Wilson, although it contains little or nothing that is new, yields more to the reader on second reading than on first. On first reading one is repelled by its schoolgirlish romanticism and sentimentalism. But where it touches on Charlotte the book is at its best, and in those parts which reveal the author's own mental and emotional experiences. It is at its worst where it deals with Emily. 'I know Emily herself now,' she states reassuringly in her preface. Well, perhaps she does.

but she has certainly not made credible the woman who wrote 'Wuthering Heights.'" M. M. Colum

— + Sat R of Lit 5:81 S 1 '28 3000w

"One always tends to linger at some distance from Emily, putting off, as it were, this uncomfortable being for future consideration, content at the moment to give an uneasy respect to this demon-woman. Miss Wilson will have none of that procrastination, for she compels us to an intimate acquaintance, at the same time naturalizing the horrors and making a humane relationship possible. Like a master musician, a Busoni or a Cortot, she interprets the involved composition and discovers it as a melodic coherence. . . Her book, therefore, is to friends, and it moves the reader as only life itself does; warm, swift, subtle, with all the ache and tenderness of the eternal contact of flesh and spirit." R: Church

Spec 140:sup721 My 12 '28 980w

Springf'd Republican p5f Ag 5 '28 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p446 Je 14 '28 550w

WILSON, ROMER, pseud. (MRS E: J. H. O'BRIEN), ed. and comp. Green magic. 448p il $2.50 Harcourt [7s 6d J. Cape]

398 Fairy tales

"A collection of the world's best fairy tales from all countries." (Subtitle) Contents: Puss in boots; Fortunatus and the wishing cap; The round castle of the Red sea; The wolf's bride; The musicians of Bremen; Rapunzel; The shirt collar; The Ut-Röst cormorants; The bridal march; The nightingale; The Lake Princess; Ali Baba; The man who understood animals' conversation; The brotherless girl; The water king and Vasilissa the wise; Foolish John; The golden apple-tree and the nine peahens; Stan Bolovan; The golden twins; Perseus; The "Merry Dun of Dover"; The life and perambulations of a mouse; Tom, Dick and Harry.

Reviewed by Sylvia Lynd

New Statesman 32:supxx D 1 '28 220w

"One of the best collections of stories this year. The stories are fairy tales from different countries, and while some of the stories are sure of a welcome because of their tried and true popularity, it is refreshing to have others included that are newly translated." M. G. Bonner

+ N Y Times p8 D 16 '28 120w

"This is a highly appetizing collection of tales, and there can be nothing but praise for the way the editorial work has been done. Miss Brunton's illustrations are well enough, though we in our childhood preferred—and still prefer—something less mannered and self-conscious."

+ — Sat R 146:516 O 20 '28 180w

Reviewed by B. E. Todd

Spec 141:sup861 D 8 '28 60w

WILSTACH, PAUL. Italian holiday. 382p il $4 Bobbs

914.5 Italy—Description and travel 28-24046

Account of a journey thru Italy which began in the Bay of Naples, progressed across the southern part of the peninsula, to Bari, Venice and Trieste on the Adriatic, thence to Rome, and last to the hill towns of Umbria and Tuscany.

"Here is a volume one can pick up anywhere at any time and delightedly read a chapter or two. Each chapter is practically a story in itself. What Mr. Wilstach tells his readers is the result of careful and sympathetic inquiry, and it is constantly evidenced that he is not content with being a casual or a superficial observer of people and things."

+ Boston Transcript p2 N 10 '28 230w

"The material he presents is informative without being boring, pleasant without being affectedly intimate, and something more than superficial without being solid or didactic. It is the experience of a tourist with curiosity and imagination, a tourist who has, moreover, a very considerable background of historical and classical information, which he brings to bear entertainingly on the places visited."

+ N Y Times p51 D 2 '28 400w

WILTSHIRE, MARY. Burying road. 311p $2 Dodd [7s 6d Hodder & S.]

28-11395

The new vicar of Bishops Cannings wins from the first the admiration and affection of his people. They approve of his attentions to a gentle daughter of the parish, and resent the intrusion into the affair of a married woman of unusual personality. Her coming disrupts the peace of the community and brings to the vicar a painful problem and a deep, precarious joy.

Booklist 24:406 Jl '28

"If one has grown weary of new novels in which phrases writhe in the throes of literary neurasthenia, and characters cleverly release their inhibitions at the end of each chapter, and the motif is sounded as subtly as the trumpeting of a boys' band, he will delight in this latest book from the pen of an Englishwoman. Lest all this be misleading, I hasten to declare that 'The Burying Road' is not without dramatic complications of an intense order. However, as the story is told quietly and with rare recourse to heroics, the darkness of neurotic complexity is unfolded with the least boredom to the reader." E. E. Feinberg

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 My 13 '28 600w

"This is a curious tale, vibrating with personalities, but strangely sentimental toward the end. Mary Wiltshire knows her countryside well and portrays it delightfully."

+ Boston Transcript p5 Jl 7 '28 380w

Cleveland Open Shelf p121 N '28

Reviewed by R. Hyde

N Y Evening Post p15 Ap 14 '28 60w

N Y Times p22 Ap 8 '28 700w

"In the simple routine of parish life and in the character sketches of these rather ordinary people the author has done very well. This part of the book has a simple, slow-moving reality. But when drama and temptation and wickedness enter in, there is less to be said for it."

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:807 Ap 21 '28 230w

"The light element predominates in this pleasant book; the talk is generally natural and amusing, and the village worthies are depicted with enough malice to give a clear-cut edge to their portraits."

Times [London] Lit Sup p452 Je 14 '28 220w

Wis Lib Bul 24:164 My '28

WINDLE, SIR BERTRAM GOGHILL ALAN. Religions past and present; an elementary account of comparative religion. 308p $3 Century

290 Religions. Religion—History 27-18915

"What Professor Windle, professor of anthropology in the University of Toronto, has done in a modest volume of less than three hundred pages of text is to concentrate rather heavily on the anthropological approach to the study of comparative religion. The origin, the distinctive and the universal features of primitive religions, and the various phenomena which have attracted scores of investigators, are presented in pleasant and readable language, with a great deal of reference to other authorities."—Boston Transcript

Reviewed by Edna Kenton

Bookm 67:198 Ap '28 150w

"Professor Windle is not only a devout Christian but a devout Catholic. Readers must bear this in mind. For his material the author relies on fairly well known ethnological treatises, although even here he shows an undue partiality for works of Catholics like Father Schmidt and

WINDLE, B. G. A.—Continued

Bishop Le Roy and such dogmatic treatises as those of Jevons. No one objects to propaganda whether it is Catholic, Jewish, atheistic or scientific, but it should be labeled as such. That is the one thing that Professor Windle does not do, and this vitiates his book from beginning to end." Paul Radin

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p27 Mr 4 '28 700w

"The book is very easy to read, and can be read with profit."

+ Boston Transcript p5 O 1 '27 130w

"Perhaps the two most outstanding things that recommend the work to the educated non-specialist reader, are the balance and judgment of the author and his literary skill in presenting an extremely complicated subject in orderly fashion and in an easy, pleasing and vivacious style. The main traits of religious culture are illustrated and brought home with a wealth of concrete examples chosen with fine discrimination from the great storehouse of facts." J. M. C.

+ Cath World 126:712 F '28 400w

"There is still a need for a lucid and simple story of the religions of the world. Religions Past and Present, in spite of its tempting title, is not the book we seek; yet it claims attention, for it represents the way one professor of anthropology instructs a popular audience in the religious history of the race. . . The history of religions deserves the service of consecrated scholarship. It is therefore a great pity that a name highly revered in other branches of learning should be attached to a faulty book in this field." A. E. Haydon

— + J Religion 8:121 Ja '28 880w

"The book is full of facts. But the reader looks in vain for a dramatic picture of a human family struggling after God. Christians who have a religion deeper than church or priest are going to be disappointed with this book; not on account of what is in it, but on account of what is not in it." C: S. Brown

Survey 59:782 Mr 15 '28 180w

Wis Lib Bul 24:219 Jl '28

WINGATE, LITITIA BERYL (TUCKER) (MRS ALFRED WINGATE). Servant of the mightiest. 351p $2.50 Brentano's [7s 6d C. Lockwood]

Genghis Khan [27-18602]

"Based upon historical facts, this story is an imaginative record of the life of Chingiz Khan, the founder of the Mongol dynasty in China, whose character and exploits bear comparison with those of Alexander, Frederick the Great, or Napoleon."—Spec

---

"Brilliant as sometimes is her rather ornate text, she does not reconcile her romance with facts as we know them and make her idea authentic. Her book is more like material for a De Mille 'movie' than history." W. N. Brown

— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 O 2 '27 450w

"Everything in the novel is interesting from the point of view of the historian, but one must have a fair, if elementary knowledge of the period to appreciate its magnitude. As a story it lacks coherence. . . Her book is the result of years of labor. It ought to find a place in all college libraries, because it will interest anyone who has travelled in the distant lands which she describes."

+ — Boston Transcript p5 S 10 '27 350w

"The trouble with her book is that it tries to bridge the impassible gap that divides austerity from sentimentality. At times she writes with superb detachment; but more frequently she endeavors to idealize her subject by representing him as a superman who combined the various traits of Torquemada, Napoleon, and Lon Chaney. She is also fond of breaking her narrative by inserting windy preachments and dissertations on history—in brief, she should read less of Jane Porter and Walter Scott, and more of Dumas." R. F. Dibble

— + Nation 125:401 O 12 '27 250w

"Except for the author's occasional attempt to defend or palliate actions that seem impossible of palliation, the book is deserving of high commendation for telling an interesting story not only interestingly but in a style marked by patches of real beauty and even of exaltation."

+ — N Y Times p9 S 25 '27 530w

"In terse, vigorous, narrative style, Mrs. Wingate follows the amazing career of Tamerlane's great predecessor, and her pictures of life in thirteenth-century Turkestan are full of 'atmosphere.' This is an original and interesting book, almost more than a novel, yet eminently readable."

+ Spec 138:163 Ja 29 '27 130w

WINGFIELD-STRATFORD, ESME CECIL. ² History of British civilization. 2v 1332p $12 Harcourt [42s Routledge]

942 Great Britain—Civilization. Great Britain—History

This historian tells the story of the development of the English people from the Stone age to the World war as a living and continuous story which integrates their history—political, economic, literary, artistic.

"Dr. Wingfield-Stratford has written a successful piece of humanised history in which the course of our culture is intelligibly traced. He is not deep; he is not a memorable writer; he makes none of the penetrating judgments upon men and events that mark the great historian; but the very sketchiness of his survey will be an attraction to those whom the activities of scientific historians have left with a conviction that history is something to suffer and not to enjoy." G: Sampson

+ New Statesman 32:126 N 3 '28 1500w

"His book is not so much a narrative as a commentary. He has read widely though not deeply, and his statements of fact need thorough revision. He is mainly concerned to express his own views on the rightness or wrongness of historical personages and national movements, and his animadversions, in the eighteenth century manner, are sometimes entertaining. But to those who do not know their history Mr. Wingfield-Stratford is not a guide to be recommended."

— + Spec 141:491 O 13 '28 120w

Times [London] Lit Sup p771 O 25 '28 1600w

WINKLER, JOHN KENNEDY. W. R. Hearst; an American phenomenon. 354p il $4 Simon & Schuster [12s 6d J. Cape]

B or 92 Hearst, William Randolph. Newspapers—United States 28-13853

The author is on the whole a friendly critic of Hearst's newspaper exploits and adventures in politics, tho forced to the conclusion, in the final chapter, that "the average citizen is willing to be amused or entertained by him but has no confidence in his intellectual sincerity." Mr Winkler sums up the Hearst philosophy in his own phrase: "Get excited when the public is excited!"

Reviewed by C. R. Woodruff

Ann Am Acad 139:215 S '28 400w

Booklist 25:27 O '28

"I doubt whether Mr. Winkler's book gives us a quite clear notion of Hearst's social significance, although he attempts to do so, or whether he makes plain the influence Hearst has exercised by indirection over other newspaper publishers. I think Hearst himself will like the book; more than that, I think it a useful, although uncritical, picture of an amusing and interesting factor in the modern American press." Silas Bent

Bookm 67:587 Jl '28 550w

"Mr. Winkler, being an excellent reporter, has told the story of Heart's exploits with a swiftness and pace worthy of the newspaper he once adorned. His biography, whatever its defects as an analysis of character, becomes a fascinating tale as the chapters in this man's life unfold. . . If Mr. Winkler, a friendly critic, has not given the final portrait it is because he has, in most cases, given Hearst the benefit of every doubt." H: F. Pringle

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 My 27 '28 1550w

"Mr. Winkler has been a friendly critic of Hearst, but he has written as fair a book as it would be possible to write of a living man." K. S.

+ Boston Transcript p2 My 29 '28 950w

"His is the first effort to treat at length what is indeed an American phenomenon albeit a very unhappy one. Here are gathered more of the facts which go to make up the life-story of Mr. Hearst than have yet been made accessible. None the less, Mr. Winkler could have dug out a good many more. . . For the rest, Mr. Winkler handles his matter well and entertainingly and gives in the main a valuable and entirely honest picture of one of the most singular and unhappy figures of our times." O. G. Villard

+ — Nation 127:428 O 24 '28 500w

"For the most part, Mr. Winkler's account is a sympathetic and friendly one. He sees his subject as a greatly misunderstood man and feels undoubtedly that while Mr. Hearst's journalistic crimes have had full attention, his virtues deserve appreciation." Loren Palmer

N Y Evening Post p8 Je 2 '28 2600w

Reviewed by C: W. Thompson

N Y Times p1 My 27 '28 1800w

"A thoroughly readable study of the career of one of the prophets of modern journalism. Mr. Winkler knows the Hearst organization from the inside, and he has filled his book with stories that will entertain every newspaperman who lays his hands on it, as well as a good many thousands of others." Herschel Brickell

+ No Am 226:adv Jl '28 180w

Reviewed by D. R. Maué

Outlook 149:357 Je 27 '28 580w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:491 O '28

R of Rs 78:112 Jl '28 80w

R of Rs 78:adv24 S '28 200w

Sat R 146:552 O 27 '28 200w

Spec 141:665 N 3 '28 800w

"Mr. Winkler's 'Hearst' takes its place with a large company of mediocre journalistic surveys of 'lives and times,' which present little more than a gathering of material from newspaper and periodical files, seasoned now and then with personal associations. However, Mr Winkler shows competence in assembling his material for readable effect and he aims at reasonable independence in analysis and interpretation. He tells fluently the external story of Mr Hearst's career, but seldom seems close to Mr Hearst. The chapters about Mr Hearst's youth and Harvard experience do not sound very authentic."

— + Springf'd Republican p7f My 26 '28 1100w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple

Survey 60:484 Ag '28 530w

WINSTON, ROBERT WATSON. Andrew Johnson, plebeian and patriot. 549p il $5 Holt

B or 92 Johnson, Andrew 28-7534

Years of painstaking study have gone into this full-length biography of the much misunderstood man who rose from the tailor-shop to the presidency and who suffered trial for impeachment. Mr Winston shows that sixty years after, a revival of national and popular interest in Andrew Johnson is setting in and the Supreme Court of the United States has declared invalid the old Tenure of office act under which Johnson was impeached and tried. He was an "obstinate, narrow-minded leader of lost causes," but sincere in his motives and brave in the performance of his duties.

Booklist 24:401 Jl '28

"Mr. Winston's portrait is that of a strong and simple man at bay, and whatever future researches may yield in the way of corroboration or contradiction he has written many absorbing chapters on one of the most raucously exciting periods of American political history." Eugene Lohrke

Bookm 67:436 Je '28 180w

"The book has its faults. It is a plea, and pleading is dangerous. Johnson's shortcomings are often too lightly dealt with, and Jefferson Davis and even Thaddeus Stevens sometimes get less than their deserts. But the average reader will bring a corrective bias with him and the book as a whole is a real contribution to American biography." Avery Craven

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 My 27 '28 1450w

"Whether Judge Winston comes from Confederate antecedents or not is a question. Presumably he does, yet he looks at the history of the times through Johnson's eyes. No Northern partisan could have done it better. He may have another vision of his own, but most remarkably does he see Johnson's and write in sympathy with it. He is not unaware of Johnson's mistakes and his defects, but he is thoroughly alive to his vital belief in his policy and alive also to that policy's basic righteousness. He has produced one of the most important biographies of its day. Not merely because his neglected subject deserves this recognition, but because he has been able to do him ample and sympathetic justice, a justice too long delayed." S. L. Cook

+ Boston Transcript p2 Mr 24 '28 2400w

"He has sought to rehabilitate Andrew Johnson, and he has succeeded. He has done justice to a man to whom his contemporaries and posterity through many years had been anything but just." E. F. Edgett

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ap 7 '28 350w

"This must be regarded as in many ways the most important American biography of the current season."

+ Christian Century 45:736 Je 7 '28 250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p89 Jl '28

"A well-documented, fair-minded, and distinguished book shows Andrew Johnson to have been a sober, well-mannered, far-sighted, and patriotic President."

+ Ind 121:141 Ag 11 '28 430w

"At length we have a full-length and intensely interesting and illuminating biography of Andrew Johnson. Judge Winston spent many years in scholarly research at his task. Out of the pages of his book steps a new Andrew Johnson who happens to be the only Andrew Johnson; and the rehabilitation of the reputation of a courageous and effective champion of popular rights and civil liberty has begun." C. G. Bowers

+ Nation 126:645 Je 6 '28 1000w

"Judge Winston has accomplished his task so well that all who love the real history of their country must wish him long years and other congenial subjects. This is, in fact, the first adequate biography of the impeached President; and it offers a good deal that is new to scholars and more that will seem new to the so-called educated public." W: E. Dodd

+ New Repub 55:205 Jl 11 '28 1200w

"Purely as biography, the hero of this book scarcely justifies the thoroughgoing and able attention Judge Winston has given him. Andrew Johnson's influence on American history could be dealt with in a few pages. Yet this is not to deny much of value and of charm in the book to the increasing number of lovers of American folk history. The man himself is over-shadowed by the fascination of his times." E: M. Barrows

N Y Evening Post p8m N 10 '28 480w

"This book is a fine contribution to American biography. It is far from being Ludwiggian; it evinces years of patient study, and yet it is alive with human interest; not dragged in in movie fashion, but made such by the story it tells and the way the story is told." C: W. Thompson

+ N Y Times p3 Mr 18 '28 1550w

WINSTON, R. W.—Continued.

"Judge Winston has done an excellent piece of work, brushing away the debris of falsehood, and giving us a portrait of a great and picturesque statesman with fine fidelity to the truth." C. G. Bowers

+ N Y World p10m Mr 25 '28 950w

"In contrast to the number of recent biographies that have been strongly iconoclastic Judge Winston's book seeks to restore a neglected figure to its rightful place in the nation's history. This is a readable book for the layman, and of value to the historian because most of its source material is original."

+ No Am 225:adv Ap '28 220w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:300 My '28

Pratt p41 autumn '28

R of Rs 77:adv8 My '28 250w

R of Rs 77:670 Je '28 780w

"In spite of shortcomings, it is a notable piece of biography that Judge Winston has given us. Its faults are the faults of special pleading, but its research has been thorough, its judgments are just, as well as generous, and it recovers human qualities of sincerity, courage, devotion, and simple kindliness that have been too long forgotten. It would be too much to expect that any writer, however friendly, should be able to change all the black to white, for the record has been made and it must stand, but even the stormiest life may be explained and its brighter lights set off against its shadows. This much, at least, Judge Winston has successfully done." W: MacDonald

+ — Sat R of Lit 4:1000 Je 30 '28 1150w

Wis Lib Bul 24:162 My '28

"In general, the great amount of detail concerning relatively unimportant persons and incidents, while it adds to the realism of the book and the information of its readers, somewhat lessens the grip upon any but the reader who is a self-starter. And this is unfortunate, for the book with its historical soundness, its vigorous, spontaneous, and sympathetic style, should have wide reading. Mr. Winston has done an enviable piece of work. Especially winning is the way he has made his hero's early years live." M. S. Gerry

+ — Yale R n s 18:415 winter '29 600w

WINTERICH, JOHN TRACY. Collector's choice. 211p $2.50 Greenberg

090 Book collecting 28-11279

"This pleasant volume follows much the same lines as the author's earlier 'A Primer of Book Collecting,' although Mr. Winterich disclaims any wish to 'boil the same cabbage twice.' One of the most succulent chapters is that concerned with English and American editions of the same book. And there is a 'bibliocatechism' at the end which will test your bookish knowledge to the utmost."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

Booklist 25:51 N '28

"If you have survived up to the present in a tranquil state of immunity from the virus of book collecting and wish to remain in that condition stay resolutely away from Mr. Winterich's book. The germ, in its most insidious and most attractive form, is here, and it takes a strong constitution to withstand it."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p11 Jl 1 '28 150w

Ind 120:629 Je 30 '28 160w

"Already known to the book collecting fraternity by his previous volume, 'A Primer of Book Collecting.' Mr. Winterich again demonstrates his wide knowledge and his ability to write about it entertainingly. For the collector who is making his first excursions into an unknown field it is rich in advice, information, the sort of guidance he most wants, while those more expert will, with the deep satisfaction known only to them, compare their own wealth of experience with its full measures of wisdom."

+ N Y Times p14 Jl 15 '28 480w

"There is about Mr. Winterich's writing a quality of moderation and balance that makes him, in a time of facile enthusiasms, when book-collecting seems verging on the commonplace, a distinguished figure in his particular field." G. H. T.

+ Sat R of Lit 5:444 D 1 '28 550w

Springf'd Republican p10 Je 1 '28 350w

WINTERS, YVOR. Bare hills. ltd ed 62p $2 Four seas

811 28-7168

"Poems by Mr. Yvor Winters have been appearing for several years in the little magazines, and he has previously published, in pamphlet form, two collections of verse, which acquire a certain interest in the light of the mature style of the present volume. There is always a variety of reasons why certain gifted poets are not immediately taken up. Mr. Winters' limited public fame may be set down to a single cause—the fact that he is starting out as an Imagist some years after the decline of the publicity that accompanied the movement of that name. The circumstance is a little unfortunate for Mr. Winters."—New Repub

"His poetry is gaunt, gray and harsh. It is also cold, with that burning cold that belongs to ice. His book, which contains poems that have been pared down to one line, takes its quality from a singleness of effect sustained through some sixty pages of varying humors. There is an integrity about it which derives from the poet's metaphysical passion—a passion colored by his sharp apprehension of physical things, and having its issue in a profound disenchantment with the world." Babette Deutsch

Bookm 67:441 Je '28 270w

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 Je 17 '28 60w

Dial 84:522 Je '28 120w

"Much of Winters' poetry hobbles along on the necessary limitation of the Imagist technique. But he has cleared up the problem so intelligently that he knows just how far the method will take him. The result, in the poems is a classical precision of statement, a kind of naked elegance, which no other contemporary poet commands." Allen Tate

+ — New Repub 54:sup165 Mr 21 '28 630w

"I am almost certain that he has a fundamental misconception of the art of poetry in his deliberate exclusion of the broad deeply fixed emotional associations of readers of poetry. This makes him a precise but narrow poet, gives him only a shallow portion of his reader's psychology to affect and deprives him of the greater magic." G. B. Munson

N Y World p8m My 20 '28 500w

"A rather arrogant attention to manner seems to repress relentlessly the fine instinct of the poet. The effect of his particular form is much less forceful than the substance which he arbitrarily dismembers. . . 'The Bare Hills' proves often that a gift and power above originality are at the command of the writer." G: O'Neil

Outlook 149:33 My 2 '28 240w

WINTON, GEORGE BEVERLY. Mexico past and present. 296p $2 Cokesbury press

972 Mexico—History. Mexico—Politics and government 28-10591

"We have in this volume an outline of the history of Mexico and its people from the early days up to the present, but this history presented not for its own sake or to plead a cause, but to furnish opportunity for the reader to acquaint himself with the essentials of the history, and through these to understand the Mexico of today, its problems, the purposes and efforts of its leaders, and the opportunities which it offers both for its own people and as a national neighbor of the United States."—Crozer Quarterly

Booklist 25:23 O '28

"The most comprehensive and comprehensible of the recent books on Mexico. It covers the ground historically from Cortez to Calles with as much fulness as most readers will need, and discusses at length the various tendencies and movements, toward both reform and reaction, which constitute the elements of the present Mexican problem."

+ Christian Century 45:638 My 17 '28 200w

Reviewed by F. G. Lewis

Crozer Quarterly 5:373 Jl '28 320w

"This informative and interestingly written book comes at a timely moment. It is singularly adapted to the needs of the average reader who wants to find out what all the frequent troubles in Mexico are about, what has been going on down there during the last two decades since liberal and progressive ideas have been fighting for their life in the Constitution and in practice, and what ought to be his own attitude, as an American, toward the Mexican people and Government."

+ N Y Times p14 Jl 29 '28 480w

"The sureness of his touch and his complete familiarity with his material are evident to anyone who pretends to know Mexico. . . Dr. Winton's volume makes no pretense of supplying new information to those already familiar with Mexico. To the many little acquainted with that country, he offers a well-balanced exposition, pitched in a moderate key, of Mexico's whys and wherefores from Toltec times." Ernest Gruening

+ Sat R of Lit 5:271 O 20 '28 580w

"He writes clearly, concisely, dispassionately, but with great sympathy and understanding. The book is thoroughly readable." A. B. Greene

+ World Tomorrow 11:309 Jl '28 320w

WINWAR, FRANCES (MRS B. D. N. GREBANIER). Golden round. 325p $2 Century

28-20753

"In this romance of thirteenth-century Italy we have the rise and fall of a court favorite, the wicked, gay Pier, who rose to be treasurer to his Imperial Highness, the great Frederick, and married one of the beautiful women of his time. But his fate was that of many another famous man, for the fair lady urged him to be disloyal to his emperor, and Pier was torn between two loyalties."—Boston Transcript

---

"In spite of Miss Winwar's sensuous power and colorful detail, her characters remain the flat and lifeless images of a gorgeous medieval picture."

— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p17 O 28 '28 250w

"Miss Winwar writes a very naughty little tale. We have here no book for the young."

Boston Transcript p1 O 6 '28 150w

"Miss Winwar tells the story against a startlingly vivid panorama of the early Renaissance. It is not the first time she has chosen this period as a setting for a novel; 'The Ardent Flame,' in which she wrote of Francesca da Rimini, won her many admirers. 'The Golden Round' will assuredly be equally appreciated."

+ N Y Times p20 O 7 '28 480w

WISEHART, MARION KARL. The kiss. 415p $2 Century

28-5869

A sympathetic pastor, moved by the recital of an emotional woman, kisses her. The kiss weighs on the conscience of the woman, who confesses to her husband. His brooding jealousy makes of it a public scandal which drives the minister from his pulpit and his profession.

"Only a man thoroughly acquainted with the philosophy as well as the technique of a reporter could have written so convincingly of the results of newspaper publicity. The book is one of suave irony rather than satire. The author never permits a desire for caricature to muddle his perception of facts. As a result, most of his characters have an authentic individuality. The woman in the case is particularly well drawn. Only the minister seems a bit vague."

+ Bookm 67:xxxiii My '28 130w

"His novel is moderately entertaining, but without distinction of style or treatment."

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Mr 25 '28 130w

"The story moves steadily with remarkably vivid portrayal of character in working out the reaction of the various individuals to the rapidly changing conditions. It is all very true to life; very moving in parts, and pathetic in others, and a remarkable study in consequences of seemingly inconsequential matters, when even slightly warped out of perpendicular." F. M.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 7 '28 650w

"When 'The Kiss' starts off in its colorless-naïve style, reminding us of Sherwood Anderson at his least silly, we settle back to slog our dogged way through another dull and conscientious work. But as careful chapter succeeds careful chapter, and the colorlessness is tinged with increasing life, we forget to be conscientious, and become engrossed." T. S. M.

+ — New Repub 54:228 Ap 4 '28 180w

Reviewed by H. E. Dounce

N Y Evening Post p12 Mr 31 '28 580w

"The small-town aspect, the characterizations, the newspaper feature of this novel are lifelike. It is most faithfully detailed. Out of its chronicle, so objectively set down, arise a number of questions. Doubtless this novel will cause talk. The ethics of editors, the invasion of private life and the broad, free use that is made of it, call for criticism. It is no wonder that reporters are suspect and considered as harbingers of evil in a snooping age."

+ N Y Times p6 F 26 '28 550w

"It will be better to read 'The Kiss' just for its story. Perhaps newspaper men ought not to write fiction. They have been too close to the world as it is."

Springf'd Republican p7f Ap 1 '28 250w

WISTER, OWEN. When West was West. 449p $2.50 (7s 6d) Macmillan

28-14000

This new collection of short stories reprinted from magazines, carries on the tradition of the popular "Virginian." Contents: Bad medicine; Captain Quid; Once round the clock; The Right Honorable the Strawberries; Lone Fountain; Absalom and moulting pelican; Skip to my Loo; Little old scaffold; At the sign of the last chance.

Booklist 25:31 O '28

Reviewed by Will James

Bookm 67:713 Ag '28 90w

"Nine meritorious short stories evoking the authentic color of the old West by the author of 'The Virginian,' no less. All are well worth reading for their grace of manner and their restrained, if sufficiently lively plots." Will Cuppy

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Jl 22 '28 110w

Boston Transcript p3 Jl 21 '28 450w

"It is a contribution to American fiction, and to the history of its place and period." E. F. Edgett

+ Boston Transcript p5 S 1 '28 230w

"Nearly all the stories are spun out to too great length and not one is destined to live beyond the year in which it is published, but they show the harvest of a quiet eye and the craftsmanship of a man who knows how to write entertainingly—and not the least of whose good gifts is his sense of humor."

+ — Cath World 128:506 Ja '29 250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p139 D '28

Reviewed by H. E. Dounce

N Y Evening Post p5 Ag 4 '28 960w

WISTER, OWEN—Continued

"Owen Wister has not lost his ability to tell a yarn breezily and dramatically. And he is still notable for being one of the comparatively few writers of Western tales who seems to know what he is talking about." C. G. Poore

+ N Y Times p7 Jl 1 '28 800w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:432 O '28

Pratt p45 autumn '28

"The stories make great demands on one's attention, but do not always give full measure in return. One is more conscious of the cleverness of what they leave out than of the interest of what they put in. But they are skilfully written, and preserve the broad nineteenth-century American humour." L. P. Hartley

Sat R 146:158 Ag 4 '28 180w

"With one's reading habits altered to meet the incisive brevity, the subjectivity, and the dramatic intensity of the contemporary story, it is not easy to read stories written so wholly in the manner of nineteen-hundred as are these of Owen Wister. They are long and leisurely, burdened with detail, and such drama as they disclose—and some of them are fantastically melodramatic—is given a quality of drugged, liquid distance such as one sees in a cinema fight shown in slow motion."

— Sat R of Lit 4:1055 Jl 21 '28 250w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 14 '28 280w

"Mr. Wister is no sentimentalist: his stories show a full appreciation of the grim humor that was to be found in the play of human passions in the free but monotonous life of the bush where restraints were few. This quality, together with a finished craftsmanship, comes out particularly in the little group of stories centering round O'Neil City in Flanagan county, Texas."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p592 Jl 5 '28 570w

Wis Lib Bul 24:225 Jl '28

WITTKE, CARL. History of Canada. (Borzoi ² hist. ser.) 415p il $7.50; text ed $5 (25s) Knopf

971 Canada—History 28-21914

Dr. Wittke, who is professor of history in Ohio State university, has written an historical textbook that summarizes the main developments in the history of a country of which comparatively little has been written. He emphasizes the constant inter-relations of Canadian and United States history and the importance of Canada's part in the development of British imperial policies.

"Informing and attractively written, newcomer in a field which has been most inadequately dealt with by historians, the volume supplies for students, teachers and general readers what may well be called a long felt want." E. N.

+ Boston Transcript p2 S 22 '28 750w

"Professor Wittke's aim has been the closest possible compression. His thirty chapters are composed on the text-book plan, and they allow him no scope for any flow of narrative. He is careful and has striven to be impartial. The British or Canadian reader, however, would contend that the story of the Loyalists in the American Revolution might have been more adequately summarised, in the light of Professor Vantine's work, and that a modern historian should not accept Longfellow's version of the Acadian deportations, as romantically presented in Evangeline."

New Statesman 32:58 O 20 '28 160w

Sat R 146:618 N 10 '28 180w

"Professor Wittke has undertaken to tell a story rich in accomplishments, shot through with problems, pregnant with snares, and he has carried it out with eminent success. He knows the literature and sources of his subject as a scholar and he approaches his purpose with an objective and judicial mind. We may say at once that his volume will not only be of great value to readers in the United States but that citizens of Canada will do well to read it and to see themselves through foreign eyes." W. P. M. Kennedy

+ Sat R of Lit 5:555 D 29 '28 900w

WODEHOUSE, PELHAM GRENVILLE. Meet Mr Mulliner. 308p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d H. Jenkins]

28-9057

The genial Mr Mulliner tells a number of hilarious yarns about various members of the Mulliner family.

Reviewed by L. M. Field

Bookm 67:333 My '28 70w

Boston Transcript p2 Mr 24 '28 380w

"Although all of these short stories are not of Wodehouse's best, most of them are entertaining and original. 'The story of William' is a masterpiece."

+ — Ind 120:285 Mr 24 '28 90w

New Statesman 30:152 N 12 '27 100w

"Mr. Wodehouse happily illustrates the fact that lightning may strike not twice, but many times, in the same place. All his bolts, to be sure, are not indubitably from the blue, nor are they equally brilliant; but (except when he deals with golf) his pleasant absurdities may be relied upon to go on being commendably funny." Edgar Johnson

+ N Y Evening Post p13 Ap 21 '28 530w

N Y Times p20 Mr 4 '28 400w

"This is an interesting collection of more or less connected short stories in which one not only meets Mr. Mulliner, but also comes to know most of his relatives and to find them very interesting and charming people."

+ N Y World p11m Ap 8 '28 160w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:433 O '28

"This is, unlike 'The Small Bachelor,' a book to be read in snatches, and we hazard an opinion that it was written in the first instance for periodical publication. That is not a denunciation but an explanation of its peculiar qualities. And these exaggerations of Mr. Wodehouse's power of exploiting the humorous situations he has created show how great is his gift of humour."

+ Sat R 144:555 O 22 '27 130w

Sat R of Lit 4:707 Mr 24 '28 80w

"Those who are suffering from mental fatigue and depression should certainly meet Mr. Mulliner, and listen at ease when with succinct style, with grave and sympathetic manner, he relates the amazing yet seemingly inevitable accidents that befell his surprising relatives. There is a considerable artist in Mr. Mulliner: his polite exactitudes and careful understatements, and his noble fluencies on the conduct of life, greatly heighten the absurdity of the cunningly evolved situations. The humour in this particular work of Mr. Wodehouse is not all recondite; but it will make you laugh—if you be human."

+ Spec 139:515 O 1 '27 120w

"It would appear at first that Mr. Wodehouse has become more farcical, but it is clear that the farce is only a convention used so that he may get farther away from life, and the farther removed from life his characters are the more alive and convincing they become. That this should happen is extremely mysterious, but perhaps it is in part due to Mr. Wodehouse's sense of style. His style is not in the least literary, but it is so singular and appropriate that it seems to keep alive his extraordinary constructions. But style alone could not do all this, and one must fall back upon a description of Mr. Wodehouse as a good fantaisist, which is, of course, no explanation at all."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p964 D 15 '27 300w

WODEHOUSE, PELHAM GRENVILLE. Money for nothing. 333p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d H. Jenkins]

28-25549

Mr Wodehouse's characters and his style are the same, but his humor is always fresh and his plots new. In this latest offering, John, the good but slightly dullish hero, saves the family heirlooms and gets the best of his curmudgeon uncle, ends a stubborn feud between the uncle and his neighbor, Patricia's father, and reverses Pat's unfavorable decision concerning himself. All this is not accomplished single handed. John has the connivance or the opposition of a goodly assortment of characters.

Booklist 25:125 D '28

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p21 N 4 '28 230w

"There is a very amusing skit on certain sorts of detective story woven into 'Money for Nothing,' and a lively version of the latest sort of dishonest health establishment. A good P. G. Wodehouse, perfectly adapted to railway-carriage reading." Francis Birrell

+ Nation and Ath 43:680 Ag 25 '28 110w

"This most recent perpetration is well up to the Wodehouse standard."

N Y Times p7 O 7 '28 500w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:549 N '28

"His characters are stock characters; but that is no drawback, for it seems necessary that the felicitous conversation of the comedy of manners should come from the mouths of puppets. But they are fantastic puppets and are transported by Mr. Wodehouse's art, partly by his gift of fantasy and partly by his sense of style, to an immaterial and remote world. Nowhere is Mr. Wodehouse's peculiar gift of detached creation better to be observed than in his American criminals."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p633 S 6 '28 200w

WOLBER, JOSEPH GREGORY, and ROSE, OTTO K. Practical and technical electricity; house wiring. (Am. electrician ser.) 2nd ed 336p il $5 Goodheart-Willcox co., inc., 2009 S. Michigan av., Chicago

621.328 Electric wiring, Interior 28-17630

"Textbook on wiring buildings for lighting purposes. Many of the illustrations are taken from trade literature."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:390 Jl '28

WOLF, H. D. Railroad labor board. 473p $4 Univ. of Chicago press

331.1 United States. Railroad labor board. Railroads—United States 28-7421

A survey of "the problems which the Board had to meet, the manner in which it met them, and the events and circumstances which led to its abolition. As an introduction . . . a review is given of the changes made in wages, hours, and working conditions during the period of government operation. In conclusion a short account is given of the machinery which has replaced the Railroad Labor Board, and of the present outlook for industrial peace on the railroads."—Preface

"Mr. Wolf's excellent study leaves little to be desired. Perhaps it might appropriately have included a more critical consideration of the Daugherty injunction against the shopmen, since this was to some extent based on the Board's attitude in characterizing them as 'outlaws' and since it resulted in the increased hostility of labor. Nevertheless the book is thorough, scholarly, and careful. It deserves to be generally accepted as the standard authority on the Railroad Labor Board." E: Berman

+ Am Econ R 18:313 Je '28 920w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:448 O '28

Survey 59:401 D 15 '27 70w

WOLF, M. HERBERT. Hank Miller. 437p $2.50 Greenberg 28-17645

"With absolute fidelity to the characterization of Henry Mueller, Mr. Wolf's novel records the evolution of an average human being. From the Cleveland carpenter shop of youth, through the turbulent years in Chicago and World war France, and back once more to Cleveland, the author carries his groping, gesticulating German-American. Everywhere, even in the manhood period when expediency changes Mueller to Miller, there is a complete portrayal of futility and insignificance. The strength of the book lies in its consistent presentation of detail; its weakness in the disorder of this mass of observation."—Sat R of Lit

"One is forced to admit the author's earnestness, but one's interest smoulders through the more than 400 pages and never quite breaks into a flame."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p13 O 7 '28 120w

Boston Transcript p4 Jl 25 '28 110w

"Hank is neither very wise nor very likable . . . Mr. Wolf makes no attempt whatever to sort or arrange his mass of material. The story simply tells itself. It is a good American story, but it seldom achieves any great distinction or poignancy or beauty."

N Y Times p9 Jl 8 '28 580w

"In the sense that the author's point of view never wavers and the atmosphere is entirely appropriate, 'Hank Miller' is a finely created portrait; it is stark realism of the better sort that just misses morbidity and does not compel the reader to pity. But the novel is uninteresting. Nowhere is the slightest attempt made to order or analyze the material, and the story piles up incident upon incident with such lack of unification that at the end the reader is left without a clue to the identity of the real Henry Mueller."

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:41 Ag 11 '28 220w

"As a study of American life of a certain kind the material of the book has some sociological but not much literary value."

Springf'd Republican p7e S 23 '28 260w

WOLFE, MRS FRIDA A., and WOLFE, A. T. How to identify oriental rugs. 54p il $5 Harper [10s 6d Benn]

745 Rugs, Oriental [27-20079]

"This volume is by experts who have visited the master weavers in their own homes, from Smyrna to Bokhura, it tells of the qualities of the Turkish, Persian, Caucasian, Afghan and Chinese carpets, both new and old, and illustrates the text with excellent illustrations, some in colour."—Spec

Booklist 24:108 D '27

"Frida Wolfe and A. T. Wolfe are so steeped in rug lore and terminology that they forget that 'the amateur, the general reader, and the busy man who wants a reference in a hurry' (for whom they porport to be writing) have no such acquaintance with technicalities of weaving and design. To anyone who has already familiarized himself with the general aspects of the subject, this new volume—remarkably complete despite its brevity, and including silk rugs and Chinese rugs, which some writers omit—will be welcome as a handy compendium."

+ — Bookm 67:xxiv Je '28 180w

"This is a book of particular interest to the owner or prospective owner of Oriental rugs. Here is an abundance of information concerning the principal families of Oriental rugs and suggestions as well as to the surroundings in which certain varieties of the rugs appear to best advantage."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 Ag 14 '27 120w

"A delightful book for the general reader."

+ J Home Econ 20:363 My '28 50w

Pratt p22 winter '28

St Louis 26:102 Ap '28

"Everyone who loves beautiful things should get this book: it is amazingly cheap at the price."

+ Spec 138:775 Ap 30 '27 90w

"A few minor points of criticism may be summarily dealt with. There are one or two obvious misprints, and with a little more attention to proof-reading, carpets made at Merv would not have been described as Caucasian, and Azérbaijan would have been rightly located in the north-west of Persia. The book contains some good advice. The recommendation to choose carpets in good daylight is well worth following."

WOLFE, F. A., and WOLFE, A. T.—Continued

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p449 Je 30 '27 600w

WOLFE, HUMBERT. Cursory rhymes. 124p il $2 Doubleday, Doran [6s Benn]

821 28-17025

In these amusingly illustrated verses for children Mr Wolfe chooses such appealing subjects as Poems against doctors, The bluecoat boy, The new doll's house, The zoo, The return of the fairy, and Convalescence.

"One doesn't expect to see fairies, children, and famous men leap out of the same book into the light of every day, yet that is precisely what will happen when you lift the primrose yellow covers of Humbert Wolfe's Cursory Rhymes. It is no more a children's book in the ordinary sense than is 'Kensington Gardens.' Both books are uncommonly revealing of childhood as a major part of human life and living. They belong to readers of any age, but children are not very likely to find them without introduction." A. C. M.

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p6 S 2 '28 830w

"To be humorous, fanciful and poetic is rather a large task, but Humbert Wolfe has filled it." B. B.

+ Boston Transcript p7 N 10 '28 250w

"Humbert Wolfe cannot divest himself altogether of his grown-up cleverness. But he has many virtues. If he is not the child, he does not yield to that detestable child worship which assumes the child is an angel compared to the man."

+ Living Age 334:466 Mr 1 '28 750w (Æ, in the Irish Statesman)

Nation and Ath 42:sup432 D 10 '27 20w

"Freshness is lacking. His devices are obviously just devices; they are too mathematically correct, too deliberately calculated, to remain covert instruments of expression; they click, for the most part, quite emptily. Of amusing exception—and, strangely enough, more ordinary in style—is 'The Return of the Fairy.' " Elling Aannestad

— + New Repub 56:357 N 14 '28 300w

Reviewed by Vincent McHugh
N Y Evening Post p5 S 22 '28 450w

Reviewed by J. D. Tasker
Outlook 150:1174 N 14 '28 70w

"In writing a book of verses ostensibly for children, Mr. Humbert Wolfe has wisely followed the line of least resistance; that is to say, he has written with not even one eye on his audience, and solely to please himself, perhaps knowing—for he cannot pretend to complete innocence—that thereby he will please everybody."

+ Sat R 144:860 D 17 '27 630w

"In his latest contribution, Mr. Wolfe attempts a return to his earliest métier—not, I believe, with conspicuous success. The reasons are not far to seek. It is an older poet who considers the Nursery—and one, I suspect, who is not genuinely fond of it. Nor one, I might add, who understands it. The note of naïveté seems forced; the archness is calculated; the humor not merely adult and trickery, but bookish." L: Untermeyer

— Sat R of Lit 5:291 O 27 '28 550w

"There are many pitfalls for the writer of 'verses for children,' but Mr. Humbert Wolfe in his Cursory Rhymes has neatly avoided them all and managed—surprisingly, when one considers the difficulties of a large-scale poet in such a field—to give us that enchanting thing, a book of childhood verse which is neither patronizing nor affectedly nonsensical."

+ Spec 139:927 N 26 '27 200w

WOLFE, HUMBERT. Dialogues & monologues. 248p $2.50 Knopf [7s 6d Gollancz]

824 English literature. Poetry 29-1221

Seven essays, several of them in the form of dialogues, in which an English poet speculates upon the following subjects: George Moore; The craft of verse; English bards and French reviewers; The difficulties of the poet; Public servants in fiction; Modernism in verse; "Drum" [memories of Bradford and Oxford].

"Mr. Humbert Wolfe makes a very stylish entry as a literary critic. His gestures are so entertaining that it is difficult to pay close attention to what he is saying. This book should be read once merely because its author may at any time fulfil his lavish promise; it may then be necessary to remove from one's eyes the dazzle of epigrams, jokes, and miscellaneous imagery and focus them on what, after all, Mr. Wolfe has succeeded in saying." Barrington Gates

— + Nation and Ath 44:212 N 10 '28 700w

"This volume is a surprise; it is a really dull book. A first reading leaves us with the impression, first, that Mr. Wolfe wrote these essays rather because they were demanded of him than by an interior compulsion; secondly, that he has chosen, in most of them, a form and a manner which are not at all natural to him, and thirdly, that his interest in literature is not very great."

— New Statesman 31:764 S 29 '28 1000w

Reviewed by Ernest Boyd
Outlook 151:112 Ja 16 '29 980w

Sat R 146:330 S 15 '28 700w

"In this half-teasing and altogether engaging volume Mr. Humbert Wolfe hovers brilliantly over the aesthetic quarrels of the day. He is himself a Romantic, though needlessly apologetic about it: he is a musician of string and reed, though he has friends among the saxophone players. So, while his manner is charming his indecision is sometimes exasperating, for he is loth to hurt the feelings of any contemporary."

+ — Spec 141:336 S 15 '28 580w

WOLFE, HUMBERT, tr. Others abide. 119p $1.50 Doubleday, Doran [6s Benn]

881.08 Greek poetry—Collections. Greek poetry—Translations into English. Anthologia graeca 28-8164

Poetic translations from the Greek anthology which as far as possible remain faithful to the Greek originals.

Booklist 24:357 Je '28

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p16 Ap 1 '28 60w

Nation and Ath 42:122 O 22 '27 250w

"Better than skill in cracking a terse whiplike phrase or in plucking an appropriate epithet (abilities unquestionably Mr. Wolfe's, but none the less attributes of all true poets) is the evoking, in this small book, of something of the Greek Spirit." Harriet Sampson

+ N Y Evening Post p12 Mr 3 '28 1050w

"We like Mr. Wolfe's renderings of these fascinating and elusive verses. He seems admirably to have solved the vexing problem of reproducing the lightness of the original without becoming merely cheap. He is amazingly facile." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p8 F 19 '28 150w

"Mr. Wolfe understands that a translator is not a deputy but a representative. From the broken winebowls and the faded wreaths, from the votive gifts and tombstones and the songsheets of the golden lads, he has made an anthology which is English as well as Greek."

+ Sat R 144:399 S 24 '27 900w

"The excellence of the versions from the Greek Anthology which Mr. Humbert Wolfe has made is not diminished by the fact that we can watch the poet performing, on each quick occasion, his self-chosen and particular task, and enjoy his skill for its own sake. Mr.

Wolfe's widely proven lyric power, his wit and satire meet appositely in Others Abide, and they are tempered and quickened by the lovely necessity." Austin Clarke
+ Spec 139:sup550 O 8 '27 480w

WOOD, ARTHUR EVANS. Community problems. (Century social science ser.) 589p il $3.75 Century

360 Social problems. Cities and towns—Civic improvement 28-6428

Professor Wood classifies his study of community problems under the headings housing, health, play and recreation, and Americanization, in each case stating the problem and discussing the ways in which various communities have met it. The author is Associate professor of sociology at the University of Michigan.

"All problems affecting community welfare cannot be dealt with in a single volume, yet Prof. Wood's survey of such issues is wide, and his painstaking presentation of the ways in which communities of different types are planning and organizing to further the efficiency and socialization of their inhabitants brings a lesson of high value." E. N.
+ Boston Transcript p7 Ap 28 '28 700w

"The chapters are crammed with factual data reasonably up-to-date and readably presented." Nels Anderson
+ Survey 60:517 Ag 15 '28 100w

WOOD, CLEMENT. Outline of man's knowledge; the story of history, science, literature, art, religion, philosophy. 654p il $5 Lewis Copeland co., inc., 119 W. 57th st., N.Y.

001 History. Science. Literature. Art. Religion. Philosophy 27-21643

"The book holds the latest fruits of man's researches in every important expedition after truth; together with the relationship between these facts. The material has been gathered in a lifetime study—this author's lifetime; it represents the thinking achievements of the lifetime of the human race."—Introd.

For biographical sketch of Clement Wood see Boston Transcript p1 D 15 '28

"No subject is left out. But in part because of this very anxiety to get everything in there is no chance to include really significant information about anything. Doubtless one may conceive a possible book of 614 pages which would constitute a valuable discussion of things in general, but such a book could not possibly be written in the manner which Mr. Wood has adopted." J. W. Krutch
— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 F 5 '28 1400w

"Mr. Wood has imagination, balance and rare power of interpretation. Science is portrayed by him as lucidly as the most prosaic events in history. There is perhaps no more intelligent elucidation of the Einstein theory than that in this volume, and there is the scholarly restraint in the main, in the presentation of other subjects." F. P. H.
+ Boston Transcript p3 D 31 '27 550w

Reviewed by C: W. Thompson
— N Y Times p2 Ja 8 '28 1550w

"In a one-volume survey of history, science, literature, art, religion, and philosophy, one great difficulty lies in the selection of the points to be treated. Such authorities as James Harvey Robinson, and Henry Fairfield Osborn have commended Mr. Clement Wood's judgment in the exercise of this editorial function and have praised the accuracy, interest, and enlightening power of his treatment. He has certainly escaped the dullness that has commonly been associated with condensations of this kind. His is readable throughout."
+ R of Rs 77:adv11 Ja '28 80w

St Louis 26:59 Mr '28

"Even if there is no disproportion in devoting practically a third of the 'Outline of History' to the United States, Mr. Wood ought at least to have sufficiently familiarized himself with the work of Charles A. Beard (or with that of Lecky fifty years ago), not to have repeated the hoary legend that the tyranny of George the Third was responsible for the American Revolution. 'The Outline of Science,' on the other hand, although by far the best part of the book, goes to the opposite extreme of cocksure insistence upon the very latest word in physics and psycho-analysis. 'The Outline of Literature'—curiously, since Mr. Wood himself is a poet of no mean ability—merely wavers between the banal and the bizarre. 'The Outline of Art' is little more than a collection of names, 'The Outline of Religion' might have been written by a less eloquent Bob Ingersoll, 'The Outline of Philosophy' is negligible." E. S. Bates
— + Sat R of Lit 4:499 Ja 7 '28 700w

"The revelations of the author's self-assurance are after all salutary, for they serve as warnings to those who might be tempted to make use of this volume for more serious pursuits than very light entertainment. . . If one will take the time to check dates and facts, and strike out the very many obvious personal opinions, there is at least left a pioneer gesture in the harmonizing of human knowledge."
— + Springf'd Republican p6 F 20 '28 300w

World Tomorrow 11:184 Ap '28 30w

WOOD, CLEMENT. Shadow from the bogue. 274p $2 Dutton

28-6758

"How a giant canebrake rattlesnake got into a Greenwich Village apartment and fatally bit the occupant, how another artistic type got shot in Times Square and how it all got straightened out down in Louisiana in the midst of feuds, lynchings and other horrible deeds in the bogues and bayous around Pushepatapa Creek. Keep your eye on the Ku Klux Klan leaders and Professor Schmidt, who solves the cryptogram."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

"A cooked-up yarn written to thrill and divert, but without anything very serious in it about Life. It is, we may as well note as we pass, moderately successful in doing what it was apparently written to do." Herschel Brickell
+ — Bookm 67:461 Je '28 130w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 Mr 25 '28 90w

"As a whole the story is sufficiently amusing, and out of the medley the author has managed to achieve an unexpected unity. . . The style is poor, and the characters are mere copies of a long series of conventionalized models."
— + Boston Transcript p4 Ap 7 '28 100w

"The story, for its kind, is passably good reading."
N Y World p11m Ap 8 '28 90w

" 'The Shadow From the Bogue' not only is a top-notch yarn, but is unusually substantial for a story of its type."
+ Springf'd Republican p7f Ap 22 '28 280w

WOOD, JUNIUS BOYD. Incredible Siberia. 261p il $4 Dial press

915.7 Siberia—Description and travel. Siberia—Social life and customs 28-6825

The vicissitudes of travel in Siberia, the character and customs of its people, and the sometimes ludicrous regulations—and ir-regulations—of its government, have furnished the author with amusing copy for his book which is illustrated from photographs.

Booklist 25:25 O '28

Reviewed by A. B. Maurice
Bookm 67:459 Je '28 110w

Reviewed by Lawton Mackall
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 Ag 26 '28 700w

WOOD, J. B.—Continued

Boston Transcript p4 Ap 14 '28 800w

"The poverty and bleakness of the peasant life, the incompetent and methodical officialdom, the eternal talk, are set against a background of dark forest and broad rivers, barren steppes and wild mountains, and above all seas of Siberian mud. Mr. Wood has enlivened the story of his travels through a sense of humor."

Ind 120:485 My 19 '28 90w

"His book is readable, sincere and convincing."

+ N Y Times p6 Ap 22 '28 400w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:497 O '28

" 'The Russian peasant has two diversions—arguing with his wife and getting "naleemonetzia," meaning "full of lemons," the Russian equivalent of "pie-eyed." ' When the pages of a book constantly yield touches of information, and characterization like this—chanced on wholly at random—the reader is sure not only of being entertained, but of being provided with first-hand matter from which to judge accurately for himself what is what with relation to the subject."

+ Springf'd Republican p12 S 21 '28 450w

WOOD, PEGGY (MRS JOHN V. A. WEAVER). A splendid gypsy: John Drew. 64p $1 Dutton

B or 92 Drew, John 27-24615

Miss Wood writes with animation, with tenderness and a great affection for the "splendid gypsy," the story of John Drew's last cross-country tour, in the all-star revival of Trelawney of the Wells. The article appeared originally in the Saturday Evening Post.

Reviewed by M. J. Moses

Bookm 67:110 Mr '28 80w

"Her pride as an artist, her admiration of Drew, and the brave, affecting picture of his last days on the stage are caught simply and charmingly in her modest little book, which she calls 'A Splendid Gypsy.' John Drew would have liked it." W. P. Eaton

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 F 5 '28 100w

"Sympathetically written, this is a sincere tribute to one of the personalities of the modern stage."

+ Ind 120:117 F 4 '28 150w

"Miss Wood has put an extraordinary amount of interesting matter into her tiny volume. It is full of glimpses, both off stage and on, of the many famous members of the cast, amusing anecdotes dot its pages, there is much casual reference to how things are done on the other side of the footlights, and throughout appears the fine figure of the gallant gentleman who had spent more than half a century on the stage and was going gallantly to his last exit."

+ N Y Times p4 Ja 1 '28 600w

"She has spun her anecdotes informally, but her eye for detail is unusually satisfactory. And the very triviality of her method, backed as it is by an unreserved admiration for John Drew, paints a pleasing and often moving miniature of this well-loved player for which his many admirers will be grateful."

+ Theatre Arts Mo 12:152 F '28 220w

WOOD, THOMAS DENISON, and LERRIGO, MARION OLIVE. Health behavior; a manual of graded standards of habits, attitudes, and knowledge conducive to health of the physical organism, and of personality, home, community and race. 150p $2 Public-school

371.7 School hygiene. Children—Care and hygiene 27-12881

"A manual designed for those who plan or cooperate in programs of health education. Includes scales for the health habits, attitudes, and knowledge which should be acquired by the child before entering kindergarten, by completion of the third grade, the sixth grade, the ninth grade, the twelfth grade, and for adults, the subject matter being grouped under various heads and subheads which together present an exhaustive analysis of health behavior."—J Home Econ

"Here is a book which will prove of definite value and usefulness in the preparation of a course of study in health education. Teachers and supervisors of health education will find it a valuable reference if they are working in communities which have not developed a detailed health education outline. Health officers will find it of value in presenting a picture of the desirable scope of health education at each age level." C. E. Turner

+ Am J Pub Health 18:87 Ja '28 330w

"The authors of Health Behavior have restricted their material to health facts but facts that children may practice. In making this restriction, the authors are in line with modern educational theory and practice. They have also graded the material so as to adapt it to the various stages of child development. The book therefore makes a valuable contribution for the class-room teacher." E. G: Payne

+ El School J 28:477 F '28 120w

J Home Econ 19:705 D '27 50w

Reviewed by Haven Emerson, M.D.

Survey 60:437 Jl 15 '28 320w

WOODBURNE, ANGUS STEWART. Religious attitude; a psychological study of its differentiation; introd. by Shailer Mathews. 353p $2.50 Macmillan

201 Religion—Psychology 27-21248

The author, a member of the faculty of Madras Christian college, brings to his study of the psychology of religion a first-hand acquaintance with the religion of India as well as with Christianity. His chapters deal with the psychological method in the study of religion and with the relation between religion and magic, science, art, and morality.

"While there is nothing radically new in his presentation of his subject, he approaches it with earnestness and an open mind."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Ja 8 '28 100w

Boston Transcript p4 Ja 25 '28 180w

"The book is enriched with enlightening illustrations from the religions of India, where the author has been teaching. Somewhat verbose, somewhat given to elaboration of the obvious, the book is clear and instructive. Woodburne has done solid and careful work free from sensationalism. For his restraint and discipline in an age when these are unpopular virtues he is to be commended." E. S. Brightman

+ — Christian Century 45:16 Ja 5 '28 430w

J Religion 8:332 Ap '28 30w

WOODBURY, HELEN (MRS TRELL W. YOCUM). Uncertain treasure. 295p $2 Little

28-671

Follows the well-charted course of early marital life out of honeymoon harbor, thru the straits of financial worries, past the rocks of jealousy, over the shoals of incompatibility, and into the port of beginning again.

Booklist 24:285 Ap '28

Bookm 67:xxxv My '28 90w

"This is a volume to bring diversion to those persons who will read anything to pass time, and who prefer, rather than not, to have the rhythm of marital incompatibility syncopated."

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Ja 29 '28 150w

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 21 '28 500w

"If Miss Woodbury produced a moron for a heroine she was much more successful in her hero—he is lovable, interesting, very real. The plot is one of infinite possibilities, but one demanding unusual skill in its handling, and if Miss Woodbury has not achieved complete success the blame may be laid to her too great ambition."

— + Ind 120:365 Ap 14 '28 160w

N Y Evening Post p12 F 4 '28 120w

"This sort of story has been told before. It has been told with such frequency that these days it must be done with remarkable shrewdness and freshness to convince us altogether. The present story is motivated plausibly, but perhaps too conventionally to seem convincing."

N Y Times p8 Ja 8 '28 350w

Sat R of Lit 4:850 My 5 '28 50w

Wis Lib Bul 24:57 F '28

WOODBURY, ROBERT MORSE. Workers' health and safety; a statistical program, with the aid of the council and staff of the Institute of economics. (Inst. of economics. Investigations in industry and labor) 207p $2.50 Macmillan

331.823 Accidents—Prevention. Occupations—Diseases and hygiene 27-14588

"This volume emphasizes the need of statistics in relation to the problem of industrial health and safety. Part One covers the field of accident data available, with a program for the development of a new series of statistics to meet present requirements, while Part Two performs a similar service in regard to the workers' health."—Survey

---

"The book gives the impression of having been written without the author ever going into a factory or meeting a mill superintendent or a production manager. It may, however, be a helpful thing to outline an ideal statistical program. The chiefs of the federal and state bureaus, where industrial accidents and health responsibilities are involved, may perhaps benefit by such a statistical ideal. This book, however, does not reach deep enough into the heart of the problem to carry conviction of the possibilities or certainties of prevention." A. B. Emmons

— Am J Pub Health 17:957 S '27 330w

"Even the most casual survey of this book should convince the reader that present programs for the prevention and alleviation of accidents and ill health are greatly handicapped by the lack of uniform statistics for the entire country covering hazards, causes, the extent of losses suffered by the worker, and the effects of existing remedial measures. The book is well organized, well written, and readable as well as scholarly." C: S. Tippetts

+ Ann Am Acad 134:224 N '27 220w

"The book is the clearest and most helpful presentation of the subject that has come to the reader's attention and should be of great value to either the individual or organization interested in the procuring, tabulation and classification of statistics pertaining to industrial accidents and health." Mary Eluerkin

+ Management R 17:35 Ja '28 800w

Manufacturing Ind 14:144 Ag '27 350w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:206 Ap '28

St Louis 26:6 Ja '28

Survey 59:401 D 15 '27 50w

WOODMAN, CHARLES MELLEN. Intimacy with Jesus. 182p $1.75 Macmillan

232 Jesus Christ 28-9267

A Quaker clergyman presents in an inspirational way some aspects of the life of Jesus which bring him into more intimate fellowship with mankind and help to an understanding of his spiritual and living personality.

Boston Transcript p3 Je 23 '28 200w

Reviewed by M. G. Evans

Crozer Quarterly 5:363 Jl '28 480w

J Religion 8:498 Jl '28 60w

WOODS, EDWARD AUGUSTUS, and METZGER, CLARENCE B. America's human wealth; the money value of human life. (Int. life underwriters lib.) 193p $2 Crofts

330.1 Man. Life. United States—Economic conditions 27-17248

"It is the purpose of this book to inquire into the various estimates of the money or economic values of human beings that have been made from time to time throughout history and to treat briefly but fundamentally the reasons underlying such calculations."—Preface

---

"In Chapter Three, the title of which is 'Modern Estimates of Human Life Values,' the authors make no mention of the reviewer, or the most significant modern work in this field, that of Dr. Louis I. Dublin. In the judgment of the reviewer, a book which makes so serious an omission does not merit the confidence of the reader." R. E. Chaddock

— Am J Pub Health 18:398 Mr '28 110w

N Y Times p33 Mr 4 '28 620w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:147 Mr '28

WOODWARD, KATHLEEN. Jipping street; childhood in a London slum. 150p $2.50 Harper

B or 92 London—Poor 28-12538

A simple story, movingly told, of a childhood lived in one of the meanest streets of a London slum, a street invaded by brewery, tanyard and hospital smells. But Jipping street, ugly and malodorous tho it was, held the child with strong bonds and the unknown world outside where she must go to work was a place of fear and uncertainty.

Booklist 25:118 D '28

"This book has real literary distinction." A. B. Parsons

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 Je 17 '28 750w

Boston Transcript p2 Je 6 '28 800w

Christian Century 45:907 Jl 19 '28 110w

"A most vivid and compelling miniature of a working-class youth. Yet, when all is said and done, it remains a Whistler etching." Robert Wolf

+ — New Repub 55:207 Jl 11 '28 260w

"It is hard to dissociate this book, with its grim reality and passionate feeling from the personality of its author, who was known three years ago in London as a brilliant young journalist, who had been for several years on the staff of one of the daily papers. With the publication of her 'Queen Mary of England' last year came considerable recognition, and a definite break from the routine of newspaper life. This second book achieves an artistic success and beauty to which the first did not aspire, and marks Miss Woodward out as a gifted young writer." Isabel Boyd

+ N Y Times p12 My 27 '28 980w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:582 N '28

"There is grimness enough in her book but no glamour; horror but no romance. It is the bare and fearful story of her own upbringing in a Bermondsey slum. . . Miss Woodward has a good style though she a little overstrains the uses of repetition: her book is not only an account, but a creative account, of what it is good for us to know."

+ — Sat R 146:512 O 20 '28 420w

" 'Jipping Street' is a book to be read by all those who love exquisite writing—in at least two dictionary meanings of the adjective, by all too-scientific social case workers, and by the Watsonians, for we, with Miss Woodward, tremble when we consider Jipping Street and its like 'in the light of our ever-advancing psychology; for the psychologist would give us as little reason to hope as the theologian he would displace, if it be true that early influences are so potent, so impressing, so inescapable.' " Worth Tuttle

Sat R of Lit 4:945 Je 9 '28 750w

WOODWARD, KATHLEEN—Continued

"Jipping Street belongs to the literature of revolt; we hope Miss Woodward will write a continuation so that we may hear how, from being a fifteen shilling a week factory girl, she became a writer of such vivid (although sometimes ungrammatical) English."

+ Spec 141:367 S 22 '28 180w

"Miss Woodward has written an unpretentious, memorable story. Jipping Street is a vivid experience."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p715 O 4 '28 120w

Wis Lib Bul 24:253 O '28

WOODWARD, WALTER HARRY. Profits in bank stocks. 112p $1.50 Macmillan

332.6 Stocks. Banks and banking 27-18369

This little book is written to show the investor the advantages of buying bank or insurance stocks as a safe and profitable investment.

"Mr. Woodward has not attempted to write a critical analysis of the status of shares in financial institutions as an investment. Rather he has discussed the subject with an enthusiasm born of experience, which has resulted in a book partial to bank shares as an investment. Moreover, it appears that he had the general reader in mind, since the volume is written in simple and non-technical language, with no disposition to go deeply into the various problems which are referred to here and there in his discussion." E. A. Kincaid

+ Am Econ R 18:135 Mr '28 780w

Booklist 24:194 F '28

Boston Transcript p4 S 24 '27 120w

R of Rs 76:adv16 D '27 220w

WOODWARD, WILLIAM E. Meet General Grant. 512p il $5 Liveright

B or 92 Grant, Ulysses Simpson 28-27597

A highly readable and realistic life of Grant which far from being inconoclastic, leaves the reader with a sense of the author's appreciation of the strength and pity for the weakness of his subject. The background of the times is sharpened with colorful detail, and even the minor figures who appear are real persons.

"The historian will accept this volume as it deserves to be accepted; as one more popular biography. Mr. Woodward's story of the man Grant is as well done as it can be without looking into other than secondary accounts, but there are far too many errors in both fact and interpretation to make it standard work. . . But the general reader will not be interested in short-comings. He will be charmed by the clear thumbnail sketches of Lee, Rawlins, Sherman and others, and he will delight in the numerous clever bits of writing that are to be found in all parts of the book." Avery Craven

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 N 18 '28 1800w

"It is only fair to say that Mr. Woodward has furnished us what it is safe to hazard will be one of the durable biographies of Grant. In spite of the reputation he has earned at the hands of those who felt almost personally aggrieved at his Washington, a careful reading of Grant discloses no bias against him on Mr. Woodward's part. He may be unfair, here and there, but particular searching of his pages does not reveal a line written with unfair intent." S. L. Cook

+ Boston Transcript p2 N 10 '28 2250w

"We cannot conceive of Woodward writing an uninteresting book, and this one is really fascinating, beautifully phrased, and will prove one of the most popular biographies of the season." C. G. Bowers

+ Nation 127:sup628 D 5 '28 780w

"At times one is annoyed by the author's seeming effort to 'jazz' his writing. This is to be regretted. Mr. Woodward does not need to be ultra-modern to attract a wide reading public. Particularly since he has produced the best biography of Grant that has thus far appeared." H. J. Carman

+ — N Y Evening Post p8m N 17 '28 780w

"Mr. Woodward is a good writer, and has written an interesting book. Why does he not quite put Grant across? Probably it is because he is a victim of an accursed fashion, the fashion of the last few years in writing history. . . And then he has a way of being cocksure and wrong, all through the book." C: W. Thompson

— + N Y Times pl N 11 '28 1900w

"Mr. Woodward has given us the man as no one else has ever been able to do it; and one's only adverse criticism of the book is that it precipitates too hastily and with insufficient detail the final catastrophe. But this is relatively unimportant: it counts for little beside the fine effort with which Mr. Woodward has painted the general course of Grant's life." Van Wyck Brooks

+ — Outlook 151:72 Ja 9 '29 800w

WOOFTER, THOMAS JACKSON, ed. Negro problems in cities; a study made under the direction of T. J. Woofter, jr. (Inst. of social and religious research) 284p il $2.50 Doubleday, Doran; Inst. of social & religious research

326 Negroes—Moral and social conditions 28-8612

A study of Negro neighborhoods, housing, schools and recreation in sixteen American cities. The cities studied were Philadelphia, New York, Buffalo, Indianapolis, Chicago, Gary, Dayton, Louisville, Lexington, Knoxville, New Orleans, Memphis, Charleston, Winston-Salem, Lynchburg and Richmond.

Booklist 25:12 O '28

J Religion 8:504 Jl '28 20w

"The Negro like the Jew is fast becoming a city dweller. Out of this movement come new problems of cultural adjustment as to mode of living, housing, organization, civic regulations, contacts, education, and recreation. All this is accurately and concisely discussed in the present study. There are surprisingly few inaccuracies. The book suffers from the absence of a study of the industrial problems of the city Negro—problems which underlie most of the others named." R. W. Bagnall

+ — Nation 126:491 Ap 25 '28 430w

WOOLF, LEONARD SIDNEY. Imperialism and civilization. 182p $2 Harcourt [5s Hogarth press]

321.03 Imperialism. Civilization. League of nations. World politics 28-11724

The book is concerned with the movement of nineteenth century imperialism and the reaction against it. In the author's view, it is not the clash of races, religions or nationalities which is at the root of the revolt of Asia and Africa against Europe but the conflict of different civilizations under the impulse of imperialism. He considers this conflict in detail as it has developed in Asia and Africa. In the last chapter he deals with the contribution which the League of nations can make to the problems of civilization which imperialism has failed to solve.

Booklist 25:107 D '28

Boston Transcript p5 My 26 '28 400w

Reviewed by L: S. Gannett

Nation 126:490 Ap 25 '28 430w

"This examination of the legacy of nineteenth-century Imperialism is valuable for the light it throws on those major problems of world policy which are too often obscured by national passions and racial antipathies. . . It is a notable and stimulating piece of work."

+ New Statesman 31:56 Ap 21 '28 500w

— N Y Evening Post p9 My 12 '28 90w

St Louis 26:347 N '28

Reviewed by H: K. Norton

Sat R of Lit 5:8 Jl 28 '28 650w

Spec 140:425 Mr 17 '28 200w
Times [London] Lit Sup p275 Ap 12 '28 130w
Wis Lib Bul 24:219 Jl '28

WOOLF, VIRGINIA (STEPHEN) (MRS LEONARD SIDNEY WOOLF). Orlando; a biography. 333p il $3 Harcourt [9s Hogarth press] 28-24699

"Her hero was born during the reign of Elizabeth, lived on through the reigns of James and Charles, changed sex one night in Constantinople some time in the seventeenth century, and is living this moment in England, a very up-to-date young woman of thirty-six. These are anomalies out of which Mrs. Woolf weaves something at once grander and finer than anything she has yet done; a fresco of a whole race through one of its members, almost of all history through a single mind and heart."—New Repub

---

"There does not seem any reason at all to doubt that in this book has been issued a poetic masterpiece of the first rank. . . It is written in prose; but that is a matter of the way marks fall on a page. Exploratory beauty, turning dark jungle into a safe habitation for the spirit, is here as it is in the work of the greatest of those who in the past used verse for their medium. . . The book is full of minute beauties; it is full of explanations of phases of being that have not before been visited by the writer. It demands careful reading and the completest consent to receive novelty. In fact, it has got to be read as conscientiously and as often as one would play over a newly discovered Beethoven sonata before one is satisfied one had got everything out of it that the composer had put in." Rebecca West
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 O 21 '28 2550w
Boston Transcript p6 N 24 '28 820w

"The elegance and ease of her prose and the pleasures of her satire and observation survive the breakdown of the biography's inherent interest." V. S. P.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 N 14 '28 850w

"What can one say of such a book, except that its fantasy is delicious, its poetry exquisite, and that the images into which its scholarship is distilled make one often catch one's breath with delight?" Dorothy Brewster
+ Nation 127:577 N 28 '28 860w

"Could anyone but Mrs. Woolf, having been visited with an idea of such brilliant fantasy, invest it with passionate flesh and blood and make it live, work, love, write, philosophize, and indeed suffer every human vicissitude except decay and death through 350 years of English history? . . . It is because Mrs. Woolf audaciously flouts material fact in order to clarify spiritual fact—because she is so powerfully persuasive in this tricky, dangerous business of establishing poetic truth—that her tricks become enchantments and her method an artistic delight. In this book she is like a tight-rope walker attempting an impossible feat with this impossible Orlando on her back. At times we hold our breath, knowing that the laws of the material world are against her. There are ugly moments when she falters, scrambles, almost falls. Will she be dashed into the pit of bathos? But no, she rights herself, she has an infinite resource in balance. And in the end she lands Orlando safely on the other side." Barrington Gates
Nation and Ath 44:148 O 27 '28 900w

"Something at once grander and finer than anything Mrs. Woolf has yet done. . . The work is unusual in a deeper sense than the mere novelty of its pattern. If it belongs to any tradition it is to the small secret tradition which harbors such works as 'Gulliver's Travels' and 'Tristram Shandy' and 'Candide,' among which works it may finally stand, to the almost certain amusement of Orlando's biographer, a masterpiece." W: Troy
+ New Repub 57:23 N 21 '28 500w

"This book must be read in a spirit of agreement. Unless you can sympathise with the author's unspoken desire to catch in one moment the vision of several generations, to know contradictory sensations, to be both within and without, in the valley and on the hills, desperately alive and young, and yet with the wisdom that only comes—and then so rarely—with years, don't try to read Orlando—it will only annoy. But a sympathetic and imaginative reader will, we think, find this a most fascinating volume. It is in its kind perfect."
+ New Statesman 32:162 N 10 '28 1200w

"The book is propaganda. It is propaganda for a point of view and for a way of feeling, for grace and wit themselves, for brightness and for sharpness, for 'natural desire' for 'happiness! divine happiness! and pleasures of all sorts,' for 'anything, anything that interrupts and confounds the tapping of typewriters and the filing of letters.' It is propaganda against 'those dreams which bloat the sharp image . . . dreams which splinter the whole and tear us asunder.' It is propaganda for that economy of thought and emotion which allow grace and wit." Lionel Trilling
N Y Evening Post p8m N 10 '28 900w

"In the last thirty-odd pages the book springs startlingly to life. Up to this point it has seemed a pleasant narrative made notable by a number of passages of great beauty and by occasional bits of vivid description, but marred by a rather self-conscious facetiousness on the part of the author, an addiction to parenthetical whimsicalities that are not particularly effective. In the closing pages of the novel Mrs. Woolf welds into a compact whole what had seemed to be a series of loosely connected episodes." C. B. Chase
+ — N Y Times p7 O 21 '28 1350w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 226:adv D '28 240w

"We are bound to take it as the final evidence needed to establish Virginia Woolf as a superb poetic talent. . . We believe that 'Orlando' will not open all its beauties to the casual reader nor cease to disclose new excellences to him who reads it for the seventh time."
+ Outlook 150:1210 N 21 '28 380w

"The wild goose [is] chased by Orlando for three centuries, by Mrs. Woolf through three hundred pages with spasmodic ingenuity. . . Mrs. Woolf has abundant fantasy, acute perceptions, a sense of beauty, virtuosity of style, and we are ready to travel with her, without stupid complaints that we shall never get anywhere in particular, never sit down comfortably to enjoy, with sage and onion stuffing, a bird that, however, must have grown rather too sinewy with incessant flight."
+ — Sat R 146:474 O 13 '28 980w

"The unusual merit and complete originality of 'Orlando' are due to Mrs. Woolf's daring choice of a theme which involves the philosophy of literary history and the most acute and perceptive analysis of the English literary mind. The book must be read for this or it will not be truly read at all. Yet this by no means exhausts the attractions of a book that is likely to remain as a characteristic contribution to the literature of this era, and certainly strongly bids for such eminence by its admirable style, by its free and contemplative spirit, its wit, and its audacity." H. S. Canby
+ Sat R of Lit 5:313 N 3 '28 2450w

"The historic passages are extraordinarily vivid; they sound like personal reminiscences. In the earlier part the prose sometimes swings into the sombre cadence of Sir Thomas Browne. Orlando is an enchanting figure, all dreams and glamour, such a creature as does appear and reappear in the generations of some ancient families. The photographs do not seem to be quite in unison with the text, though one or two are charming. The note of private mystification is out of place in a work so witty, audacious, and distinguished."

WOOLF, VIRGINIA—Continued
+ Spec 141:547 O 20 '28 250w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 25 '28 1250w

"It is a fantasy, impossible but delicious: existing in its own right by the colour of imagination and an exuberance of life and wit. . . A page or two are enough to put us in a fairy-like command of time and space, and we are borne forward on a prose so swift and sparkling that it leaves us almost breathless and sated with good things. Never, pernaps, has Mrs. Woolf written with more verve; certainly she has never imagined more boldly."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p729 O 11 '28 780w

WOOLLCOTT, ALEXANDER. Going to pieces. 256p $2.50 Putnam

792 Theatre—United States 28-9857

Essays of characteristic flavor, chiefly on the stage and stage folk by the former dramatic critic of the New York World. The papers not concerned with the theatre have to do with the author when younger, with croquet, and Lizzie Borden.

Booklist 25:19 O '28

"If he would make up a book of his sympathetic impressionistic pictures of plays and performances he admires, it would be an invaluable record for the students of the future. As it is his effervescence escapes in the foam of pretty small beer—pleasant while it lasts but not very nourishing." W. P. Eaton
— + Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 Ap 29 '28 650w

"As such collections of previously expressed sentiments usually go, this one runs an amiable course, making for pleasant reading without the necessity either of reaching any given conclusion or absorbing any definite moral. And the style makes for additional pleasure."
+ Ind 121:93 Jl 28 '28 100w
N Y Times p2 Ag 12 '28 630w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:487 O '28
St Louis 26:354 N '28

WORK, MONROE NATHAN, comp. Bibliography of the Negro in Africa and America. 698p $12; also sold on service basis Wilson, H.W.

016.326 Negroes—Bibliography 28-17150

This comprehensive bibliography of books, pamphlets, public documents and periodical articles relating to the Negro in Africa and America contains more than 17000 entries covering the most important publications up to 1928, and including many references in foreign languages. The material is arranged under 74 carefully classified chapters and is provided with an author index. The compiler, Dr Work, is himself a Negro, Director of records and research at Tuskegee Institute and well known as the author of the "Negro year book."

"Research students of American race relations will be forever in debt to Dr. Work for the assistance he has given them in making available in classified form the thousands of titles of books, articles, pamphlets, etc., by and concerning Negroes. There are minor criticisms of the sort which can be made against any comprehensive bibliography. They should not be interpreted as an indication of an unfavorable attitude towards such a tremendous piece of research. The minor sins are atoned for and shoved far into the background by the virtues of the achievement as a whole." Donald Young
+ Ann Am Acad 140:348 N '28 120w

"Out of an enormous, chaotic literature Mr. Work has patiently organized his material. And herein lies the greatest feature of the book. It is a triumph of classification. It would seem that every imaginable phase of the vast subject has been separated and placed in a logical sequence. In the main it is a most satisfactory work to refer to, and students of any special aspect of negro literature will find it a mine of information and a source of pleasure."
+ N Y Times p41 N 25 '28 880w

WORLD ALLIANCE FOR INTERNATIONAL FRIENDSHIP THROUGH THE CHURCHES. Building international goodwill; by various writers. 242p $1.50 Macmillan

341 Peace. International cooperation. United States—Foreign relations 27-13014

"Protagonists of world peace furnish the contents of this volume for which Mr. Fred B. Smith provides a foreword on behalf of the world alliance for International Friendship through the Churches. Jane Addams, Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, James T. Shotwell, and Archbishop Keane are the more notable contributors."—Outlook

Am Pol Sci R 21:921 N '27 60w
Reviewed by F. R. Dulles
Bookm 66:96 S '27 230w

"The chief criticism which may be directed against these essays is that their note of idealism results in a disregard of political realities."
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p23 N 20 '27 150w

"Many readers, it is quite true, will hold opinions at variance with some of the views held by the authors of this book. Nevertheless, here is a volume to invite much provocative thinking." C. B. V.
+ Boston Transcript p4 Ag 6 '27 360w
Outlook 146:517 Ag 17 '27 30w
R of Rs 76:222 Ag '27 90w

"It is the best reading in this field available for many times its cost or bulk. It should be in the hands of every person who cares enough about the future of America in her world relations to read beyond the headlines."
+ Springf'd Republican p10 N 8 '27 500w

WORLD'S best short stories of 1927; with a foreword by William Johnston. 342p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran

Short stories—Collections (25-25757)

The third annual anthology of best short stories offered by the New York World. "The collection offers much wider variety than any other anthology, presenting a much more faithful picture of the year's fiction than can be found elsewhere for among the magazines are included not only literary magazines like Harper's the widely popular ones like Cosmopolitan, and the women's magazines, but also such widely read publications as the Popular, Adventure and Short Stories."—(Foreword)

Booklist 24:123 D '27

"It is entirely free from cultural aims; though at first glance the title may be misleading, with its suggestion of a cosmopolitan sweep. In spite of realistic tricks in dialect and description, reality has a minor place in this anthology—which may explain the omission of Ernest Hemingway's 'Fifty Grand' published in the Atlantic Monthly for June, 1927, and surely the best short story that any magazine has revealed this year." Rose Lee
— N Y Evening Post p15 O 22 '27 400w
N Y Times p26 D 11 '27 400w

"They are a mechanical, standardized, commercial article. Only one story really escapes from the mould and touches that 'fresh living current'—Harold W. Brecht's 'Paradise Regained,' from Harper's, a moving little tale." Ruth Suckow
— + N Y World p8m D 25 '27 180w

"A good collection. They are all well written, with at least passable professional competence; certainly there is no inexcusable bad writing. They are diversified and individual in substance and treatment." J: Macy
+ Sat R of Lit 4:517 Ja 14 '28 330w
Springf'd Republican p7f Ja 15 '28 120w

WORTH, JEAN PHILIPPE. Century of fashion. [2] 230p il $7.50 Little

391 Costume

A son of the founder of the house of Worth has left this record of his own and his father's part in the development of fashion during the last century, the gowns they designed and the beautiful women who wore them, beginning with the Empress Eugénie, whose patronage brought fame to the shop in the Rue de la Paix. There are many illustrations.

"This book is filled with pictures and enchanting descriptions of dresses and of the ladies who wore them. It is a book to delight most women and to make economists go mad." Lettie Gay

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p14 D 16 '28 250w

"Whether as an amusing and authoritative review of dress and fashion, as a series of intimate but respectful anecdotes of court and society and stage or as an official record of the establishment and history of the world's foremost fashion house, this book must please." M. E. M.

+ Boston Transcript p5 N 7 '28 900w

"The book is notable for its dignity and reticence. An intensely interesting personal record, a unique aspect of a historic epoch, 'A Century of Fashion' is in all things very French. And it is wholly charming."

+ N Y Times p18 N 4 '28 580w

Sat R of Lit 5:496 D 8 '28 380w

WREN, HENRY DOUGLAS, and WREN, DENISE. Handcraft pottery for workshop and schools. 162p il $3.75 (12s 6d) Pitman

738 Pottery 28-21911

Made explicit by the use of photographs, sketches, and diagrams, the book gives directions for designing handcraft pottery, and for moulding, casting, decorating, and firing it.

Booklist 25:63 N '28

"The book embodies the results of many years actual experience in pottery making as well as in training students in the craft."

School Arts M 28:ix D '28 120w

WREN, LASSITER, and MCKAY, RANDLE. Baffle book. 201,85p $2 Doubleday, Doran

793.7 Detective stories. Puzzles 28-29558

A new sort of game. Several mysteries are propounded, the clues stated and diagrams offered where necessary. The solution of the crime is left to the reader who may verify his deductions with the solutions printed, upside down, in the back of the book.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 N 18 '28 150w

"The authors have cleverly combined two of the major passions of the presentday 'reading public' for game books and mystery stories—and have done it extremely well. The ingenuity of their problems is only rivaled by their variety."

+ N Y Times p18 N 11 '28 450w

WREN, PERCIVAL CHRISTOPHER. Beau ideal. 373p $2 Stokes [7s 6d Murray]

28-18111

For love of John Geste's wife Isobel, Otis Vanburgh, an American, goes out to North Africa to search for John, who is held captive by an Arab tribe. With the Legion as background John and Otis and their several friends perform deeds of extraordinary valor and self sacrifice. The last of the Gestes is saved and restored to his wife while Otis sadly agrees to marry the Angel of death, a sloe-eyed desert beauty whom he distinctly does not want. This last chivalrous gesture of the Beau Ideal is spared him, however; the author has a surprise for Otis.

"These three Geste books have held a large public. Although well written and absorbing, they are amazingly theatrical in their emotional appeal. A good deal of it strains the credulities to the breaking point." I. W. Lawrence

+ — Boston Transcript p4 Jl 21 '28 1500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p138 D '28

"Percival Wren is enjoying a popularity that will pass. It is to be hoped that in the future he will leave the bones of the Geste family in peace."

Ind 121:141 Ag 11 '28 210w

"You get the whole story of the trilogy—'Beau Geste,' 'Beau Sabreur' and this 'Beau Ideal'—not once but several times, in this present invaluable volume. It is a very comprehensive job. Not only do the characters and author tell you the story of the first two books at intervals, when there does not seem to be much else to write or talk about, but the course of the present story is summed up neatly, every so often."

— N Y Times p6 Jl 29 '28 660w

"Not an atom of reality in this book, but the action, what there is of it, is exciting." W. R. Brooks

— + Outlook 149:517 Jl 25 '28 240w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:550 N '28

"Such tremendous sentimentality is bound to be successful; that is, it is bound to be anything but cavier to the general. We are periodically astounded at the possible depths of bathos and mock-heroics. . . . In spite of the above paragraph to the contrary, 'Beau Ideal' is a beguiling yarn. It has the unexpectedness, the vividness, the dash to carry us over the rough spots of coincidence and incredibility. Major Wren puts together the familiar elements of the adventure story in a fresh way and gives new backgrounds for old situations."

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:91 S 1 '28 300w

Reviewed by R. A. Taylor

Spec 141:110 Jl 21 '28 100w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 4 '28 340w

"There are signs in this last book that Major Wren found the material that made so sound a book of 'Beau Geste' wearing a little thin. There are too many, far too many coincidences, the hiatus between one adventure and the next is too long."

— Times [London] Lit Sup p606 Ag 23 '28 110w

WREXE, ALEXANDER. Maid among men. 207p $2 Putnam

27-19642

A pretty French girl of good breeding and no money enters service as lady's maid to a wealthy woman returning to America. The maid's lot is not a pleasant one, but an uncommon sort of person known to her as a ship's stoker, renders it less disagreeable. He is known to Etianne's employer in quite another rôle, and is present to rescue the French girl when an unworthy trick is played upon her. The romance has its happy conclusion back in France.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p22 N 20 '27 100w

"The story is good enough, for a host of readers. It has the fine virtue of cleanliness; it is nicely told and makes easy reading, but it gives a false idea of wealth."

+ — Boston Transcript p4 D 17 '27 160w

"For the benefit of cynical readers it may as well be admitted that all this is hokum. But, in fairness to Mr. Wrexe, it must be added that it is hokum of a very beguiling order."

+ — N Y Times p9 Je 10 '28 400w

"If American employers really treat their maids in the way depicted in this volume the American domestic service problem is amply explained, but, of course, no one acquainted with American life will for a moment believe in this caricature. However, the story possesses a certain swing and brightness which may perhaps be held to justify its existence."

WREXE, ALEXANDER—Continued

— + Spec 140:276 F 25 '28 90w

"That pleasant, and unfortunately rare, production, a light story lightly and delicately handled."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p60 Ja 26 '28 350w

WRIGHT, CHARLES, and FAYLE, CHARLES ERNEST. History of Lloyd's, from the founding of Lloyd's coffee house to the present day. 475p il $10 (25s) Macmillan

368 Lloyd's, London 28-16297

This story of the rise of Lloyd's from a coffee house founded in 1689 to the great corporation of underwriters which is unique among financial institutions of today is made into a handsome volume, and is illustrated from old prints, facsimiles, and photographs.

"It is a well documented history of Lloyd's. It is something more than even a history of a world-famous corporation; it can also be regarded as a close study in one branch of mercantile evolution, for here is a very specialized aspect of 'big business' shaping itself under our eyes during the course of well over two and a half centuries."

+ Christian Science Monitor p8 Jl 18 '28 580w

Reviewed by Barrington Gates

Nation and Ath 43:214 My 19 '28 720w

"This History is an admirable account, written by men who are learned in their subject, containing enough detail to make the story alive, but not enough to bore or bewilder the lay reader. The book is handsomely got up, and its interest is enhanced by its many illustrations, grave and gay. It should have a circulation far beyond Lloyd's men, for it does, as its authors claim, throw 'new light on the commercial, naval, and social history of Great Britain.' "

+ New Statesman 31:232 My 26 '28 630w

"The whole story of its two centuries and more of active life is filled with interesting development and significant contact with both national and world affairs. Its history, now fully and authoritatively told for the first time, is invaluable for students of finance and commerce and is interesting also for the student of general history because of its constant and intimate influence upon political and social developments."

+ N Y Times p17 S 2 '28 480w

"Mr. Wright and Mr. Fayle are certainly entitled to claim the grade of A1 for the result of the minute and laborious investigation which they have made into the history of Lloyd's. The hull is handsome and solid, and the equipment of photographs and facsimiles is marked by that distinction which the reading world has long associated with the name of Mr. Emery Walker."

+ Sat R 145:668 My 26 '28 660w

Reviewed by H. M. Tomlinson

Sat R of Lit 5:3 Jl 28 '28 1100w

"This volume provides a complete and authoritative history of Lloyd's. A more astonishing story of how a great institution was born, developed, and transformed can seldom have been told."

+ Spec 140:736 My 12 '28 1000w

Times [London] Lit Sup p371 My 17 '28 900w

WRIGHT, EUGENE. Great horn spoon. 320p il $4 Bobbs

915.4 India—Description and travel. East (Far East)—Description and travel 28-23069

Another youthful adventurer has set out by himself to explore the secret places of the earth. If this chronicle of his travels is less heady than Richard Halliburton's "Royal road to romance" it is none the less interesting: for working his way on a freighter bound out of New York to India Mr Wright thrust aside the safely traveled routes to meet strange and thrilling experiences in remote corners of India, Borneo, Arabia and Java. His narrative is illustrated with drawings by Bob Fink.

"It is an astonishing tale and one that holds one spellbound from first to last. It is a modern Odyssey in which the hero lost no followers because he had none. It is a panorama of high lights and swift action, of dangers and hardships lightly faced, painted with an impersonal objectivity, a keenness of observation, and a felicity of expression that reminds one of H. M. Tomlinson rather than of Richard Halliburton." Edwin Bjorkman

+ Asheville Times p8 O 14 '28 660w

Booklist 25:68 N '28

"They say that Mr. Wright is very young; if he continues to travel and write about it his reputation should be made long before he reaches the age of Trader Horn. His travels and adventures in Borneo make, perhaps, the most fascinating part of the book." Stanley Walker

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p6 S 30 '28 450w

"Of all the dozens of travel books, tales of entries into strange lands and far, which I have read because I have wanted to or have had to, from a purely literary point of view, this is the best." K: Schriftgiesser

+ Boston Transcript p4 O 6 '28 1350w

"There are color and romance and enough material for a dozen adventure novels or a score of travel books in 'The Great Horn Spoon.' . . [But] we are growing old. We like adventure dosed out just the least little bit more homeopathically."

N Y Evening Post p11m D 8 '28 250w

"Exceedingly entertaining volume. It is swift in tempo, exuberantly youthful, largely devoid of humor, but full of exotic glamour, bold similies and adjectives of color. Furthermore, it contains passage after passage of an intensely poetical character." Halsey Raines

+ N Y Times p6 D 30 '28 1050w

WRIGHT, RICHARDSON LITTLE. Forgotten ladies; nine portraits from the American family album. 307p il $5 Lippincott

920.7 Woman—Biography. United States—Biography 28-27856

Episodes in the lives of several forgotten charmers, all of whom lived in America at one time in the story. They range in time from the Indian wife of Captain Dubois back in 1725 to the rebel spy, Belle Boyd, of Civil war fame.

"Many readers may find the charm of the book in its discursiveness. The quality appears again in the charming profusion of portraits, cartoons, maps and caricatures by which the book is illustrated. Here again the author often turns aside from strict sequences and includes illustrations which have only a slight connection with his narratives. Not one of them should be withdrawn. They are an unqualified delight." Constance Rourke

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p20 D 9 '28 450w

"He writes in charming style and with historical insight."

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 15 '28 300w

"Fascinating material about American women from the days of the Indian frontier to the Civil War, women who, indeed, do not deserve to be forgotten. But although Mr. Wright deserves much credit for unearthing them, he has been so literary, so involved, so relentlessly witty in dealing with them that they are in danger of sinking back to an ill-merited oblivion."

+ — Nation 127:sup638 D 5 '28 60w

Reviewed by Gardner Harding

N Y Times p8 D 23 '28 1600w

"Mr. Wright, resurrecting them all for your amusement, has done you a good turn. The book is amusing as well as informative." J. D. T.

+ Outlook 150:1375 D 19 '28 70w

WRIGHT, SYDNEY FOWLER. Deluge. 395p $2.50 Cosmopolitan bk. [7s 6d F. Wright]

28-6764

In a cataclysm which sweeps most of England under the sea, Martin and Claire are among the few survivors. Since the man has lost wife and children, and the woman her husband, they mate with each other. In the rude state of society which now exists, the decent men have organized to protect the women from the ruffians. Martin is called to head the group and there finds Helen, his wife. The solution of the triangle is left to Helen and Claire.

Booklist 24:366 Je '28

"It seems unfortunate that creators of Utopias are seldom willing to let their plan speak for itself, but must enhance its value by flaunting the imperfections in the existing order. Aside from this, the book is vigorously conceived and beautifully written."

+ — Bookm 67:xxxiii My '28 150w

" 'Deluge' is of the breed that has fathered droves of illegitimate Wild West stories, of the stuff on which 'movie' palaces are built. But it is a pure strain, for the most part unmarred by the pretty sentimentality which emasculates most efforts to yield to the childish fun of reckless, life-and-death adventure. Preposterous? Of course. But try it." Mary Ross

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 Mr 11 '28 480w

Boston Transcript p4 Mr 24 '28 700w

"This is not simply a story of the Deluge and the consequent rebuilding of civilization, but an adroit and dramatic story of human relations."

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 11 '28 430w

Cleveland Open Shelf p108 S '28

"It is an enthralling tale, an adventure story and much besides. One can hardly endure the long suspense of their dangers. Only in his scathing comments and sweeping indictments of postwar civilization does the author show his youth. Aside from these rather jejune assumptions of a greater wisdom, the book is so striking in conception, so sure and vigorous in performance that it might be the work of a far older hand—except perhaps that an elder would not have preserved the imaginative vigor this book demonstrates."

+ — Ind 120:313 Mr 31 '28 250w

Nation 126:619 My 30 '28 150w

"The descriptions of the flood are plausible, but, as a whole, the book lacks topography; it is too like a flood happening anywhere, and could be done far more convincingly if places and place names were used more. One would like to know if it still would be possible to walk from Petersfield to Eastbourne along the downs, rather than indulge in Mr. Wright's rather heavy, Teutonic mysticism, or triangle dramas and preoccupation with nameless hills and fields and cows. Still it is a vigorous piece of imagination, and an escape from almost every other modern novel, in a form which the sequel will perhaps explore even further." Cyril Connolly

— + New Statesman 30:662 Mr 3 '28 220w

"The book, taken as a whole, is vastly amusing. The author combines a lurid imagination of considerable sweep with a curious liking for factual detail. There are times when the author's imagination falters; the pace of the story is uneven. But the present reviewer recommends 'Deluge' as an antidote for ennui."

+ — N Y Times p5 Mr 4 '28 880w

No Am 225:adv My '28 100w

"He has built his book on direct action and setting, eschewing the delights of characterization, philosophical meandering, rioting his imagination in the super-natural, and so has avoided the pitfalls into which the inept romancer is likely to tumble. The only weak spots in the book are occasional lapses into moralizing over the emasculating effect of modern civilization."

+ — Outlook 148:511 Mr 28 '28 260w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:322 Je '28

"Mr. Fowler Wright has evidently enjoyed himself in giving a robust story of adventure, which is both stimulating and amusing."

+ Sat R 144:672 N 12 '27 220w

"A London reviewer of Mr. Wright's novel, after quite inevitably referring to the earlier H. G. Wells in this connection, added these remarks, 'Others have written fantasies of unknown worlds. Mr. Fowler Wright creates one.' The latter sentence is no less than the truth. 'Deluge' lives and breathes with actuality in its every detail. It is energized by a profound scorn for the artificial environment our modern industrialism has made for us." W: R. Benét

+ Sat R of Lit 4:645 Mr 3 '28 560w

"Deluge is in part a satire on our modern civilization, and Mr. Wright is a man of very decided opinions, spirited and rather wordy. Sometimes his opinions are hard to interconnect, but he expresses them all very boldly, without qualms or hesitations. He seems to have enjoyed himself thoroughly in writing Deluge, and an author's enjoyment is infectious." Alan Porter

+ Spec 140:200 F 11 '28 250w

"The reader might expect a rivalry with Verne or Wells. But this story is not like theirs. Verne's chief survivor would have been a sociologist surveying the wreck en masse rather than domestically. Both would have explained the catastrophe carefully. S. Fowler Wright is negligent on that side. But the many readers who are content to ignore non-human Nature, and almost ignore politics, and hear only the adventures and loves of individual men and women, will find this an exceedingly good story."

Times [London] Lit Sup p963 D 15 '27 250w

World Tomorrow 11:41 Ja '28 30w

WRIGHT, SYDNEY FOWLER. Island of Captain Sparrow. 297p $2 Cosmopolitan bk. [7s 6d Gollancz]

28-17817

Charlton Foyle drifts from his ship in a small boat and comes to an uncharted island. It is a strange island containing a temple blood-red with human sacrifice, where live the few remaining members of a dying civilization. There is also a crew, half-human, half satyr, who hold ghastly hunting parties. The gardening on the island is done by huge birds ten feet high. But in the forest lives a charming French-English girl who has been dodging the human satyrs for two years, and in saving her Charles finds happiness.

"This is not a satire of modern society, but a swift, exciting yarn, with a touch of improbable fantasy which gives it spice." E. H. Walton

+ Bookm 68:99 S '28 180w

"Henry Seidel Canby, in speaking of Mr. Wright's earlier novel, 'Deluge,' mentioned it as a book for highbrows, lowbrows and middlebrows. The statement is equally true of 'The Island of Captain Sparrow.' It is for all those who like a roaring adventure tale—and who are willing to be kept up at night until the tale is done." R. B. Sanborn

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 Jl 22 '28 1100w

Boston Transcript p5 Ag 29 '28 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p108 S '28

"A brilliant book. The author keeps his imagination in control and writes in a good matter-of-fact way about these creatures of his fancy. The story is exciting and it is interspersed with terse, hard-headed, and agreeably disagreeable comments on human nature." Raymond Mortimer

WRIGHT, S. F.—Continued
+ Nation and Ath 43:397 Je 23 '28 80w

"The book is never really exciting; it begins too slowly and the narrations of various people whom the hero encounters are too long, like the self-imposition of Wagnerian bores. Certainly it is not a book for the very young; but it is well written and one is grateful to the author for his thoroughness and his freedom from responsibility." G. W. K.
— + New Statesman 31:195 My 19 '28 180w

"One could not wish for brisker or more generous entertainment." Marian Storm
+ N Y Evening Post p9m O 27 '28 750w

"Everything that the small boy heart could wish is in this book. There are the island and the mysterious footprints from 'Robinson Crusoe,' the miraculous cave from 'Monte Cristo,' the abundant, soul-satisfying details of daily living from 'The Swiss Family Robinson,' and from G. B. S. the rippling, tickling fun and the enthusiasm for a vegetable diet."
+ Outlook 149:594 Ag 8 '28 330w

"It is a well-constructed story, and the end is very exciting. But Mr. Fowler Wright makes rather too strong demands on the imagination. The birds as big as camels who do the gardening on the island, and the French girl who lives for two years naked on the tree-tops and remains self-possessed and beautiful, put a strain on one's credulity." L. P. Hartley
+ — Sat R 145:501 Ap 21 '28 110w

Reviewed by Elmer Davis
Sat R of Lit 5:20 Ag 4 '28 580w

"The gravely chronicling style invests the remarkable story with a pleasing air of veracity."
+ Spec 140:885 Je 9 '28 120w

"Strange, freakish, impossible—but Mr. Wright has crystallized universal romantic notions into a holding tale."
Times [London] Lit Sup p429 Je 7 '28 330w

WRIGHT, WILLARD HUNTINGTON, ed. Great detective stories; a chronological anthology. 483p $2.50 Scribner

Short stories—Collections. Detective stories
27-23604

Seventeen detective stories chosen to illustrate the evolution of this type of literary art, from Edgar Allen Poe to H. C. Bailey, with an introduction by the compiler. Contents: American and English stories: The murders in the Rue Morgue, by E. A. Poe; The biter bit, by W. Collins; The doctor, his wife, and the clock, by A. K. Green; The Boscombe Valley mystery, by A. C. Doyle; The Lenton croft robberies, by A. Morrison; The pathologist to the rescue, by R. A. Freeman; The straw man, by M. D. Post; The Knight's cross signal problem, by E. Bramah; The oracle of the dog, by G. K. Chesterton; The murder in the mayor's parlor, by J. S. Fletcher; The butler, by B. Copplestone; Three dead men, by E. Phillpotts; The little house, by H. C. Bailey; Continental stories: Footprints in the snow, by M. Leblanc; The Swedish match, by A. Chekhov; Well-woven evidence, by D. Theden; Strange tracks, by B. Groller.

"Extra special treat for gooseflesh fanciers, complete with erudite if controversial introduction by the compiler and biographical sketches of the authors." Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 D 25 '27 60w

Christian Century 45:577 My 3 '28 50w

Dial 84:434 My '28 180w

Reviewed by L: Sherwin
N Y Evening Post p13 Ja 28 '28 120w

"Designed to show the evolution of the detective story, and incidentally, to furnish entertainment, which it does satisfactorily." Herschel Brickell
+ No Am 225:adv Ja '28 60w

"A reading of these 18 specimens of the modern detective story impresses the reader with the sameness of method of nearly all the authors in working out puzzles in crime. In fact, some of the explanations are so strange that they are reminiscent of the elaborate contrivances of Goldberg, the cartoonist, for killing mosquitos or keeping cool in summer."
Springf'd Republican p7f Ja 29 '28 450w
Wis Lib Bul 23:290 D '27

WYCHERLEY, GEORGE. Buccaneers of the Pacific. 444p il $5 Bobbs

910.4 Buccaneers. Pirates. Pacific ocean
28-7755

In the opening chapter the author sets the scene and explains the title, differentiating between buccaneers, privateers, and pirates. In the following chapters he relates the exploits in the Pacific of Drake, Cavendish, Morgan, Cowley, and others. Illustrated from old prints, with end papers from contemporary maps. Indexed.

Booklist 25:25 O '28

"His style is unfortunately a little pedestrian; yet the matter of the narrative again carries the book along. The breathless daring and impudence of these Englishmen (to whom, by the way, the author limits his story) will hold any one who is not stone-cold to swashbuckling." Axton Clark
+ Bookm 67:582 Jl '28 180w

"A meaty, varied tale it is. The author's style occasionally mock serious, is eminently suited to his rich material."
+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p8 Ag 26 '28 150w

Boston Transcript p4 Ap 11 '28 900w

Christian Century 45:577 My 3 '28 130w

Ind 120:413 Ap 28 '28 120w

"In a deplorable style compounded of slang and archaisms he tells the story of those English rovers who, beginning with Drake, sailed round Cape Horn, looted the silver fleet on its way from Callao, attacked the Manila galleon off the California coast, held a few Dons for ransom, and finally sailed homewards by way of the Spice Islands." Malcolm Cowley
— New Repub 54:278 Ap 18 '28 150w

Reviewed by F: H. Martens
N Y Evening Post p13 Mr 17 '28 130w

"Although Mr. Wycherley's style is a bit opulent of adjectives, it is always vivid, brisk, dramatic and very entertaining. His book is more interesting and valuable than such works usually are, because he takes a comprehensive view of his theme, giving it a setting of the political, economic and social conditions that fruited in piracy, and occasionally casting his eye upon the results to modern times of these piratic adventures. The illustrations are all from old prints and maps."
+ N Y Times p19 Ap 8 '28 380w

" 'Buccaneers of the Pacific' has no merit outside the extraordinary interest in the daring men who were the highwaymen of the ocean before steam gave victims and police the advantages of speed and direction." F: O'Brien
— + N Y World p11m Ap 1 '28 1150w

"The book is written from first-hand records and reliable secondary sources. Frequently the words of the sources are used in the narrative. This is always done with skill and apparently with sound interpretation. It is to be regretted that Spanish source material could not have been used to supplement the sources on which the book is based, and that the far-reaching historical consequences of the acts of some of these men are not indicated." W: H. Ellison
+ — Yale R n s 18:395 winter '29 300w

WYCLIFFE, JOHN, pseud. See Bedford-Jones, H:

WYLIE, ELINOR (HOYT) (MRS WILLIAM ROSE BENET). Mr Hodge & Mr Hazard. 256p $2.50 Knopf

28-8711

Mr Hazard is an unlucky idealist, a man of noble mind and deep feeling, with a great capacity for suffering and a genius for making himself uncomfortable. After an absence of fifteen years he chooses to revisit London during an epidemic of influenza and suffers a severe attack. While in the country, recuperating from his illness, he meets Lady Clara Hunting and her two lovely daughters. The beautiful Lady Clara takes pity on the shy and shabby man and carelessly, out of her bounty, gives the poor poet a taste of Heaven. The brief idyl is shattered by the heavy-handed Mr Hodge who is no respecter of geniuses. Elinor Wylie begs the reader not look for the portrait of a real poet, living or dead, in the person of Mr Hazard but to regard him as a composite miniature of the whole generation of early nineteenth century romantics.

Booklist 24:366 Je '28

"Tremendously moving, pathetic, absorbing. If you do not find in it the warmth and beauty of a profound understanding of the mortal heart, I shall be disappointed. If you prefer to find it clever, jewelled, satirical, I suppose you will not be disappointed; for it is Mrs Wylie's special gift that her stories glow with the almost unholy light of enchanting and finished prose." J: Farrar

\+ Bookm 67:293 My '28 280w

"Readers who incline to the party of Mr. Hodge, that is, who are blunt and downright, will possibly say of 'Mr. Hodge and Mr. Hazard' that it is a slender story told in a brittle style. But so might a group of visiting Scythians, familiar with the plain, adequate handiwork of their tents and villages, have looked with wonder, and perhaps with scorn, upon the figures in a workshop in Tanagra." Carl Van Doren

\+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 Mr 18 '28 1250w

Boston Transcript p8 Je 30 '28 150w

Dial 84:522 Je '28 80w

"Her more sentimental readers will luxuriate gently in this book which is redolent of the Shelleyan sadness, the Shelleyan volatility, and the Shelleyan level of arrested development, commonly called Absorption in Beauty. Whether one is moved or not really depends upon one's education—a fact significantly indicative of the depth of the book. There are many, however, who will reject with impatience Mrs. Wylie's boring hero and her simplified minor characters (such as that naive incarnation of vulgar villainy, Mr. Hodge) and remain enthusiastic over Mrs. Wylie's prose." C. P. Fadiman

— + Nation 126:454 Ap 18 '28 480w

"Her language, like the figures which inhabit it, is fragile, often brittle as the glass it delights to honor; and though it shivers sometimes on the edge of preciosity, it never falls over into pathos. There is nothing lush nor rank in the formal garden of her pages; all is trimmed, swept, clipped and ordered; but there are flowers. The landscape over which her domain extends is cultivated to the extreme, the horizons (apparently) neatly indicated, and the weather apt to be as magically fickle as on Prospero's isle; the inhabitants, who may strike you at first as a queer and rather inhuman lot, have a disarming way with them of slipping into gestures whose natural and simple grace speaks to the heart. They are never simple for long, and that is one of their charms." T. S. Matthews

\+ New Repub 54:226 Ap 4 '28 500w

"It is the lightest of light comedies, with delicate wistful touches, and is redolent of the period in which it is set."

New Statesman 31:206 My 19 '28 170w

"This is her finest book. She has found the alchemy by which she blends fancy with flesh and blood and makes it real." Isa Glenn

\+ N Y Evening Post p12 Mr 24 '28 1350w

" 'Mr. Hodge and Mr. Hazard,' is a fresh and rare blending in prose of the delicate comedy with gentle irony that made 'The Orphan Angel' memorable." Percy Hutchison

\+ N Y Times p9 Mr 18 '28 1150w

Reviewed by J: R. Chamberlain

N Y Times p2 Je 24 '28 100w

Reviewed by Harry Salpeter

N Y World p10m Mr 25 '28 1000w

" 'Mr Hodge and Mr. Hazard' is Elinor Wylie's best novel. In it she takes her shortest step away from lyric poetry."

\+ Outlook 148:635 Ap 18 '28 450w

"The book is full of strange fancies, sometimes happy, nearly always far-fetched. It is full, also of apparent non sequiturs, a most dangerous literary device. The mind tires of providing bridges for the wilful lacunæ of Miss Wylie's thought. The passion and poetry and cleverness of 'Mr. Hazard and Mr. Hodge' are buried so deep beneath mere elaboration and ingenuity that one can scarcely see them." L. P. Hartley

— + Sat R 145:670 My 26 '28 320w

"A comedy—high, tenuous, ironic: for the poet in Elinor Wylie is doubled with a sprite more impish, with clear, quick, ruthless eyes." L. W. Dodd

\+ Sat R of Lit 4:718 Mr 31 '28 1100w

Reviewed by R. A. Taylor

Spec 140:741 My 12 '28 260w

"Mrs. Wylie has painted larger and more impressive canvases than this fragment in the life of a poet, yet none with a clearer or more delicate beauty, like that of the pictures which the midnight frost traces on the window-pane, perfect and sure in themselves, yet destined to fade in the light of the next inevitable day." Mary Ross

\+ Survey 60:398 Jl 1 '28 350w

Times [London] Lit Sup p397 My 24 '28 320w

World Tomorrow 11:348 Ag '28 50w

WYLIE, ELINOR (HOYT) (MRS WILLIAM ROSE BENET). Trivial breath. 80p $2.50 (7s 6d) Knopf

811 28-16478

Elinor Wylie's new collection of verse is a rare little volume, beautifully made, and printed in type of special design.

Booklist 25:21 O '28

"It is successful to the degree marked by the presence in Mrs. Wylie of a fine and sudden brain. It is unsuccessful as often as the elements spoken of intrude themselves upon the graver scene which she has chosen for her muse." Mark Van Doren

\+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 Je 24 '28 1050w

Reviewed by H. B. Armitage

Boston Transcript p3 Jl 7 '28 1250w

"Elinor Wylie is not a false prophet, nor a siren with hollow musics of dream-winds, nor a woman making indiscreet revelations of her personal affairs and feelings, nor a moaning pessimist, nor any of those bad things which make poets only fuelers of bonfires in many cases. It is needless to go on at length about the varied virtues found herein: the only way to know good poetry is to read it, and that is just what everyone ought to do in this case." J. R. S.

\+ Christian Science Monitor p8 Jl 18 '28 480w

Dial 85:266 S '28 50w

"In spite of its briefness, the volume contains more substance and depth than any of her previous collections of poems. There are few poems here concerned with the decorative or the unreal. There are fewer with the urge of escape toward a more preferable reality. Her certitude of being is more profound, and her analysis keener than before. Still developing as a poet, she apparently demands of her talent more solid and synthesized results. She makes glittering pictures with fine words, and here and there builds up a fantastic philosophy and consolation; but as well, she analyzes with an even detachment her sorrow, separation, an unsatisfying perfection, and the failure of the flesh." Helen Pearce

WYLIE, ELINOR—Continued

+ Nation 127:185 Ag 22 '28 850w

"Whether Elinor Wylie elects to carve a cameo in pink and cream, or, as more rarely, is ambitious to cast a savage head in bronze, she has the tools, the materials, the skill requisite to her purpose. A lyric of hers contrasting English and Latin that appeared in an earlier volume shows her peculiarly sensitive to the qualities of language. . .The make-up of the book in all respects, but especially in point of typography, beautifully harmonizes with the smooth immaculateness, the high polish, the orbed and pointed character of her verse." Babette Deutsch

+ New Repub 55:286 Ag 1 '28 680w

"In her latest book of poems, 'Trivial Breath' you may touch bronze and china and bone and gold, each finished with a perfection of detail. They seem to gleam in a remote daylight, streaming through high old casements, or glimmer under innumerable candles or catch fire from braziers of burning coal. And here this poet strikes her deepest note." Lola Ridge

+ N Y Evening Post p5 S 8 '28 1000w

"Her poetry comes, clean, involved, precise; cold and delicate in temperament; like fine glass blown into designs not weird or grotesque but of the most intricate and broad imagery." Christine Diemer

N Y World p7m Jl 15 '28 360w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

No Am 226:adv Ag '28 90w

"There is such a dense cloud of learning here that, with the exception of six very good lyrics, the meanings of the poems are obscured beyond discovery. . . Let it be plain: this is not the intellectual complexity of a Browning nor the emotional frenzy of a Shelley; it is a mass of heterogeneous knowledge, inarticulate in words and words and words." J. D. Tasker

— + Outlook 149:435 Jl 11 '28 450w

"Her music, practically unfailing, ranges from the gossamer delicacy of 'Desolation is a Delicate Thing' to the hard athletic vigor of 'The Innocents' and 'Minotaur.' With all her lightness, gaiety, and elegance of diction, her often worldly, and often-sophisticated accent, such as we find in a wholly delightful poem 'Miranda's Supper,' she is also capable of rugged energy and the abrupt vigorous intonation of an old Puritan hymn." A. H. Branch

+ Sat R of Lit 5:267 O 20 '28 1050w

Reviewed by Austin Clarke

Spec 141:sup783 N 24 '28 70w

Springf'd Republican p7f Jl 8 '28 1250w

WYLIE, PHILIP. Heavy laden. 268p $2.50 (7s 6d) Knopf

28-9741

"In Mr. Philip Wylie's 'Heavy Laden' we have the spectacle of two generations—one of them fiercely puritanical and the other essentially materialistic—meeting in the usual bewilderment. Hugh MacGreggor is a militant parson, the kind of man who cleans up small towns and wins the rewards of God—a fashionable parish near New York and a comfortable nook in the country club. Set against him is his daughter, Ann, who represents that new generation that partakes of all the prohibited sensations of full-blooded youth."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

"Mr. Wylie has written his novel in a style that is patched from a number of modern methods. It is often swift, staccato, and inclined to an undue acceleration. At the same time it is obvious that he commands his medium and handles it with no small degree of dexterity. The constant intrusion of the author in the scheme of things, his appearance, as it were, very like a showman before a booth wherein his puppets are going through their painful divagations, is not objectionable, but I would have préferred a little less of it. . . Mr. Wylie possesses the power of realistic portrayal, and both his Hugh and his Ann become full-length personages. The keen visualization, the swift tempo, the unmistakable sincerity and the gusto (there is no other word for it) in 'Heavy Laden' fashion it into one of the most promising first novels that I have read in a long time." Herbert Gorman

+ — Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 Ap 8 '28 1050w

Nation and Ath 43:370 Je 16 '28 130w

Reviewed by T. S. Matthews

— New Repub 54:301 Ap 25 '28 270w

"This is a spectacular first novel. Bursting with vitality, it sputters and thunders by turns, telling the story of a vigorous minister of the gospel and his headstrong daughter through the medium of a style which is such a welter of impressionism, bombast, excellent writing and sensationalism at all costs as can hardly be contained between book covers."

N Y Times p6 Ap 1 '28 450w

Reviewed by Margery Latimer

N Y World p11m My 6 '28 750w

" 'Heavy Laden' is a memorable novel entirely aside from its sensationalism or its propaganda. It probably never can be put in free circulation by public libraries; it will disgust all those who have a definite notion of what is decent in a novel and what should not be mentioned. As likely as not it will do more harm than good—simply because it will be so often misunderstood. But to those who do see what Mr. Wylie is driving at, who by experience and by temperament can sympathize with him, the novel will be a notable success. No one can deny its occasional brillance; no one can be lukewarm in his attitude." Robert Macdougall

Sat R of Lit 4:945 Je 9 '28 650w

WYNDHAM, HORACE COWLEY. Crime on the continent. 316p il $3 Little [12s 6d T. Butterworth]

343.1 Murder. Crime and criminals

Writing in a rather florid style the author rehearses a number of celebrated trials which roused widespread interest on the continent. Most of these are murders in high life.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 N 18 '28 100w

Reviewed by Leonard Woolf

Nation and Ath 42:279 N 10 '27 80w

"Mr. Wyndham has not made the best of his opportunity."

— New Statesman 31:458 Jl 14 '28 220w

"A well written and an entertaining book." E: H. Bierstadt

+ Outlook 150:1254 N 28 '28 90w

Sat R 144:702 Jl 16 '27 280w

"It must be confessed that the posy which Mr. Wyndham culls for us is on the whole a highly perfumed one ('horrible repasts of blood and sex' is his own term for some of the flowers in his bouquet), but, as far as a very taking style and an insouciant gaiety of outlook can do it, its rankness is considerably offset; the blood is discreetly sawdusted over."

Spec 138:61 Jl 9 '27 680w

Times [London] Lit Sup p507 Jl 21 '27 180w

"Apart from the interest in the stories of the crimes, there is much in the judicial procedure, so markedly different from our own, to attract the reader's attention."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p571 Ag 2 '28 220w

WYNDHAM, HORACE COWLEY. Crimes in high life; some society causes célèbres (Eng title Judicial crimes). 323p il $6 Dodd

343.1 Trails. Crime and criminals

Narratives of a dozen causes célèbres in English society life. Contents: Introduction; Trial of Queen Caroline; Case of Colonel Blood; Case of the Earl of Cardigan; Case of Admiral Codrington; Case of the Hon. John Colborne; Case of the Countess of Elgin; Case of Lady Ellenborough; Case of Lady Honyman; Case of Viscount Palmerston; Case of Baron de Vidil; Case of Governor Wall; Case of Sir Robert Wilson.

"All sixteen are well worth reading. The selection is good; the research is good; the writing is good." E: H. Bierstadt

+ Bookm 66:585 Ja '28 160w

"'Crimes in High Life,' though possibly a volume you will not care to read with its title prominently exposed to the public view, is rich in entertainment values and hints on conduct which the customer is permitted to find and digest for himself." Will Cuppy

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 S 18 '27 900w

WYNNE, ANTHONY. Red scar. 318p $2 Lippincott [7s 6d Hutchinson]

28-24470

One man very much engaged with the affections of several women, the man found stabbed, the disappearance of his body and the finding of a charred skeleton in the burned car of the suspected murderer, led the police to believe that the evidence was clear. But Dr Hailey, the Harley Street specialist, thought otherwise, and almost gave his life to prove that his theory was the correct one.

"The manner in which the double mystery is solved is ingenious and very absorbing."

+ Boston Transcript p3 Ag 18 '28 180w

N Y Times p12 S 16 '28 180w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen

N Y World p7m Ag 12 '28 160w

Sat R of Lit 5:250 O 13 '28 150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p433 Je 7 '28 110w

WYNNE, PAMELA, pseud. See Scott, W. M.

WYNNTON, PATRICK. Lady Zia (Eng title Zia). 291p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Hodder & S.]

28-19244

Penhaven steps from a transcontinental train in the woods near Calendhaute and into the adventure of his life. For there he encounters Lady Zia, who dares him to call at the Schloss Ruskoff. He gains admission to the Schloss by a ruse, and interrupts a secret meeting of the Gray Battalion, a military unit under General Ruskoff, Lady Zia's husband. Penhaven is forced to swear fealty to the battalion. He becomes the iron general's friend, and unwillingly, falls in love with his wife for whose sake Ruskoff dreams of empire. Out of these circumstances the Englishman's gallant adventure grows, in the manner of Graustark and Zenda.

"A dash of romance, innocence, a soupcon of scrivening subtlety or of almost anything would have helped. They do these things better in Graustark." Will Cuppy

— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 O 7 '28 80w

"Mr. Wynnton possesses a masterly, if light, touch for stories of this description. Impossibly charming, it will nevertheless hold the reader's interest, which is, after all, the main object of almost any work of fiction."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 22 '28 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p138 D '28

"A fast-moving tale of love and intrigue among comic opera soldiers."

— + N Y Times p13 Ag 12 '28 400w

"A good romantic yarn in the Zenda tradition." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 149:753 S 5 '28 90w

"The tale abounds in high-flown action, is better written than it deserves to be, and seems to show an improvement over the author's preceding work."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:110 S 8 '28 130w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 16 '28 270w

"Plot, counter-plot, violence, and death follow in this vividly written romance."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p173 Mr 8 '28 160w

Y

YARD, ROBERT STERLING. Our federal [2] lands; a romance of American development. 360p il $5 Scribner

336.1 United States—Public lands. Forest reserves. National parks and reserves. Natural resources. Indians of North America—Reservations 28-29623

Federal lands is the term Mr Yard applies to all lands owned and held by the government, and includes public domain, National parks and forests, wild life sanctuaries, Indian reservations, oil and mineral reservations and water power. His book gives an account of each of these, with excellent photographic illustrations.

"Mr. Yard is amply qualified to write authoritatively on this broad subject. In his position as Executive Secretary of the National Parks Association his opportunities have been unsurpassed to observe the terrains of which he writes, to study the activities of Congress and the lobbies by which Congress has been influenced, and to gain access to the records which betray the sordid details of national improvidence. He is a zealous, but far from indiscriminate proponent of conservation and reclamation." R. S.

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 8 '28 730w

"After reading Mr. Yard's book nobody will have any excuse for not knowing a very great deal about the lands that belong to the United States Government. And after merely glancing at Mr. Yard's book almost everybody, we think, will want to read it. It really is absorbing. It is, also, beautifully illustrated with photographs that illumine the text. It is a thoroughly satisfactory book."

+ N Y Times p42 N 25 '28 450w

YATES, DORNFORD, pseud. (CECIL WILLIAM MERCER). Berry and co. 295p $2 Minton [3s 6d Ward, Lock]

28-8131

"A joyous tale of the adventures of the six irrepressible young people to whom we were introduced in Jonah and Co. These diverting adventures are centered round their English country home, 'White ladies.' "—Wis Lib Bul

---

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Jl 1 '28 400w

"Dornford Yates has no theses to sustain nor social problems to posit and solve. His sole purpose is to amuse, and he pursues it with the urbane loquacity of a parlor magician. His patter flows unceasingly, and very seldom does it fail to be humorous." R. C. B. Brown

+ N Y Evening Post p14 Ap 14 '28 240w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:366 Jl '28

YATES, DORNFORD, pseud—Continued

"The tone of high good humor is held throughout the tale, and the ridiculous situations at the author's command seem endless. As he himself says, he writes of people pleasant in their lives, who are out to take their fun where they find it. Anyone looking for a little sparkling vicarious fun can readily find it in 'Berry & Co.'"

+ Sat R of Lit 4:765 Ap 14 '28 150w
Wis Lib Bul 24:163 My '28

YATES, DORNFORD, pseud. (CECIL WILLIAM MERCER). Perishable goods. 261p $2 Minton [7s 6d Hodder & S.]

28-20129

The dashing Pleydells, and the wicked "Rose" Noble who have figured in other of the author's stories are at odds again in this one. Noble makes off with Major Pleydell's beautiful wife and holds her for ransom in a castle in Austria. The Major's friends leap to the rescue. The frantic chase in, out, and around the castle is full of hair-raising incidents, and ends of course in the death of Noble and the rescue of Adèle.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 S 9 '28 100w

"The villain is very villainous, the heroes very heroic. Lots of things happen. The book is written in a slightly stilted manner that goes agreeably with its matter and makes it quite readable."

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:253 O 13 '28 120w

"Some delicate Ruritanian sentiment and a touch or two of real romantic beauty add distinction to the thrilling pages. . . Excitement of the first quality is provided by Perishable Goods."

+ Spec 141:198 Ag 11 '28 280w

YATES, ELIZABETH HALL. Diana at the bath. 319p il $2.50 Penn

28-8709

"A gay story in which Diana, wife of the late Rev. Witherbee, pays a visit to her staid, married daughter in Paris, scintillates at Montmartre, diets with a congenial Englishman at Mirat-les-Bains—in short, conducts herself in a highly scandalous and delightful manner."—Wis Lib Bul

"Here is a delightful bit of fluffy fiction." Will Cuppy

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p12 S 9 '28 80w

"Miss Yates has an easy style with a racy touch, and she has succeeded in finding a new angle from which to portray the life of a visiting American in Paris, at the same time introducing an element of plausibility that keeps her story from seeming fantastic or overdrawn."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ap 14 '28 230w

"Humor is said to lurk in the book, but we have read it through without the semblance of a chuckle."

— N Y World p7m My 20 '28 90w
Wis Lib Bul 24:163 My '28

YEATS, WILLIAM BUTLER. The tower. 110p $2.25 (6s) Macmillan

821 28-13579

A collection of the later poems of the author. In the title poem he "calls up gracious or fantastically touched memories of the past and weighs them against the realities of his present." (Times [London] Lit Sup)

Booklist 25:22 O '28

Reviewed by Babette Deutsch
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p1 Ag 5 '28 1350w
Boston Transcript p3 Ag 11 '28 200w
Christian Century 45:1026 Ag 23 '28 50w

Reviewed by J: Eglinton
Dial 86:62 Ja '29 1000w

"Yeats is here in a graver, more meditative, scholarly mood—with poems which to be fully understood need his gracefully worded footnotes, but which in their imagery and music hardly need to be fully understood to be enjoyed."

+ Ind 121:261 S 15 '28 120w
Living Age 334:747 Ap 15 '28 650w
Nation 127:379 O '28 20w

"Years seem to have dried up the Celtic mists, to have braced the nerves and sharpened the senses of this particular poet, so that he reverses the usual order and is a better poet in his age than in his youth."

+ Nation and Ath 43:81 Ap 21 '28 400w

"This book is different from its predecessors, not only because it is concerned with different emotions, and because its style is in many ways different from Mr. Yeats' previous style, but also because it gets closer to reality; it is more centripetal. Even if the symbolism is on occasion remote, the emotions, particularly those connected with old age, are more convincing than they ever have been, and many of these poems—'The Tower,' 'Nineteen Nineteen,' 'Among School Children'—will remain a permanent part of English poetry." Theodore Spencer

+ New Repub 56:sup219 O 10 '28 880w

"Mr. Yeats has not only retained the principle of growth, but, with it, has retained the possibility of developments unknown to his earlier manner. Many readers and critics of poetry, indeed, may discover here an inspiration, which, perhaps for the first time, they can enjoy as well as passively appreciate."

+ New Statesman 30:829 Ap 7 '28 770w

"Like a tower, these poems have a substantial underpinning, are stately and well foundationed. If pictures, they would possess an exceptional gift of line. There is in them the far-seeing eye, the ironic sadness that is part and parcel of the ancient Gaelic age. They do not belong to our generation of bizarre experimentation in the art of poetry. Rather, they give a long and wistful look backward toward shadowy unrealities, vague and misty beauty." Laura Benet

+ N Y Evening Post p5 Ag 4 '28 400w

Reviewed by J. D. Tasker
Outlook 150:831 S 19 '28 480w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:580 N '28

"He has never written a better poem than 'Sailing to Byzantium' in this collection, never as profound a poem as 'The Tower,' and never a more typically heart-breaking one than 'Nineteen-Nineteen.' Indeed, you would almost say that he had been all his life practising his art, and perfecting his instrument so that he might give at the last (though we pray that it is not the last) a supreme performance." Humbert Wolfe

+ Sat R 145:225 F 25 '28 1100w

"How can the critic begin to talk about this quality which grows richer and richer in Mr. Yeats' work as it matures? One can only linger over it, half-angry because one finds the palate spoiled for former and favorite vintages." R: Church
Spec 140:324 Mr 3 '28 850w

"More constantly than in preceding books, perhaps, there is a quality in these poems which seems at variance with their personal disquiet, a freedom of the poetic elements, an imaginative and prosodic beauty that brings one the pure and impersonal joy of art."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p146 Mr 1 '28 1100w

YORK, ALVIN C. Sergeant York; his own life story and war diary; ed. by Tom Skeyhill. 309p il $2.50 Doubleday, Doran

B or 92

The war diary of Sergeant York, whose exploit in the Argonne is one of the single-handed heroisms of the war, is amplified by Sergeant York's account of his life in the Cumberlands before the war as farmer and lay preacher, and his work for the education of the boys and girls of the Tennessee mountains. The illustrations are all from this part of his life.

Boston Transcript p5 N 17 '28 800w

"Whether it is an asset or a liability to give the story in what purports to be York's own mountain dialect probably depends upon the reader, but sincerity rings through the whole account. . . Sergeant York's plans for a mountain school, his difficulties in realizing his ambitions to bring 'a heap of larnin' to the children of his mountain neighbors are told. And it is apparent that this is the impelling reason now for his telling his story in print. He will not exploit himself except for his own people. All of which gives his book an appeal beyond its contents." S. T. Williamson

+ N Y Times p17 D 23 '28 900w

Reviewed by C: J. Finger

N Y World p8e O 28 '28 450w

Sat R of Lit 5:490 D 8 '28 200w

YOUNG, ARTHUR. On my way. 303p il $4 Liveright

B or 92 28-25384

The book is a casual compilation of mellow philosophy, witty aphorisms, and comment on men and affairs from Art Young's notebook, combined with striking drawings and cartoons from his sketchbook many of which will be remembered from their original publication in Life, The Saturday Evening Post, The Masses, and elsewhere.

" 'On My Way' is a sort of scrapbook. Art Young never could sit down and write a consecutive autobiography; instead, every day for six months he turned the pages of the albums of his drawings and then jotted down whatever came into his head. Some of the notes are naive, many are sentimental, a few are superb —always they are Art Young. Out of the hodgepodge, Art Young's serious, chuckling personality emerges with outlines as clear as the strong lines of his own drawings." L: Gannett

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 N 4 '28 800w

"The trouble with Mr. Young is that his intelligence is not in keeping with the beliefs he professes. He is gay, rather too self analytical and eager to show the readers of this book that he is a man of profound feeling. He is an artist first and foremost. His flippancy makes this record of his life amusing, but too amusing to do him justice. We are certain that he is more of a man than he dares to show by the use of his pen."

— + Boston Transcript p7 D 1 '28 380w

"He is interested in everything, and he knows how to convey his interest to his readers. As for the drawings in the book, all that is necessary to say is that they are Art Young at his best." I: Anderson

+ N Y Times p8 D 16 '28 1000w

"It is all spiced and mellowed with his thoughts upon life and his tolerant loving philosophy, the distillation of long years spent watching the pageant with the perspicacious eye of one who is both artist and social commentator. As to style, Art Young has achieved that most difficult of all things to achieve in letters, utter simplicity." Shaemas O'Sheel

+ Sat R of Lit 5:552 D 29 '28 950w

YOUNG, ARTHUR. Trees at night. 39p il $3 Boni & Liveright

741 Trees. Plants in art 27-22648

" 'Trees at Night' is a book of drawings in black and white recording a series of fantastic discoveries made by a surprised artist who under cover of darkness has strayed into a world of elementals. The trees of the forest are inhabited by gigantic misshapen beings whose presence is revealed only at nightfall. Grotesque visages, nodding and grimacing, appear in the shifting foliage, and weird animals rear themselves in silhouette against the sky, the desperate and tragic embodiment of human moods."—Nation

"The book is unusual and amusing and an unmistakable testimony to the artistic strength and originality in Mr. Young's pencil."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 D 18 '27 150w

Boston Transcript p4 D 17 '27 200w

Dial 85:74 Jl '28 100w

"Those whose zoological researches have been confined to the cloudy pages of the sky on a windy summer's day may now thank Mr. Young and turn to the forest at night for a bestiary less remote and more bizarre. Only an extraordinarily eager and fertile fancy may evoke such apparitions as these." Glen Mullin

+ Nation 125:740 D 28 '27 550w

"Art Young has let the disorderly arabesque of trees and plants against the nocturnal sky speak to him. They have told him whimsical, grave, at times terrible things. They have spoken of caravans, sinister birds in flight, archangels, pastoral dances, pedants at study, panic stricken steeds, Pegasus cruelly tied to earth. These fancies are rendered in black wash with a rich and free handling which a Japanese painter would approve. It is a book to put on one's shelf and take to one's heart."

+ Sat R of Lit 4:507 Ja 7 '28 160w

Springf'd Republican p5f Ag 12 '28 110w

World Tomorrow 11:184 Ap '28 20w

YOUNG, EMILY HILDA. Vicar's daughter. 320p $2.50 Harcourt [7s 6d J. Cape]

28-24061

A mistaken assumption nearly disrupts the pleasant home life of the vicar of Old Framling. While the vicar and his wife and daughter are on holiday, a cousin comes to take charge of the parish. A country girl looking for a place brings a letter from her mother to the vicar. Something in the incident rouses the cousin's suspicions as to the girl's parentage. On the vicar's return this suspicion deepens and a curious tension envelops the household. Nothing is said in open accusation but to the cousin and to the vicar's wife every word and act seems to confirm their suspicions. Family relations are strained to the breaking point when the gigantic mistake comes out. The good vicar never guesses what it was all about.

" 'The Vicar's Daughter' has the same fine, firm texture as 'William,' Miss Young's first success. To my mind it is a finer book than her intervening 'The Mallets' and 'Moor Fires.' To say that it is wholesome is to run the risk of intimating that it is dull, for we are likely to assume that wholesomeness cannot cohabit with sophistication. Yet it is just such a marriage of elements which are only superficially incompatible that the story achieves, a delicate vigor of root, branch and flower, like the tall blue larkspur in an English garden or the wild daffodil beside an English stream." Mary Ross

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 O 21 '28 980w

Boston Transcript p6 N 21 '28 1100w

"The comedy of errors is of the slightest, but it affords opportunity to define rememberably the four characters involved. And the village world outside has the quality of Miss Young's backgrounds—a quality so evanescent as to seem almost unsought—the intimately local, dissolving into something strange and remote as in a fairy story."

+ New Repub 57:51 N 28 '28 80w

"The Vicar's Daughter is an enchanting book. Incidentally, Hilary—a delicious creation—is the only young girl I have read about for a very long time who does not use nauseating slang and behave with that brazen bad taste which is, I believe, known as 'facing life.' " Elizabeth Bibesco

+ New Statesman 32:52 O 20 '28 150w

"There is an old-fashioned note to this book that ought to delight many people who claim to writhe every time they pick up a problem or a sex novel, and who complain of seldom finding a book they like. For such as these who enjoy life mellowed and sweetened and well-seasoned 'The Vicar's Daughter' is highly recommended."

YOUNG, E. H.—Continued
+ N Y Times p26 O 28 '28 650w

" 'The Vicar's Daughter' is clever, complicated and, above all, improbable. Miss Young has a keen insight into character and an original way of presenting it. She shows her people in so many different aspects that even at the end their identity remains vague; she endows them with contradictory qualities that she never quite resolves into the compass of a single personality. . . A most curious book, with passages of absorbing interest, but ultimately disappointing because of its profound improbability." L. P. Hartley
— + Sat R 146:400 S 29 '28 180w

"With its various charm of softly lit interiors, sunny gardens, and vital dialogues, this is a captivating book. For all its low laughter, you are never unaware of the quick emotional pulse beneath it."
+ Spec 141:376 S 22 '28 180w

Reviewed by Mary Ross
Survey 61:313 D 1 '28 150w

"The book is so subtle, so quietly finished, so amusing, so moving that one is tempted to magnify the author's talents. But it is, anyway, and as 'William' was, the work of an artist."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p802 N 1 '28 280w

Wis Lib Bul 24:305 N '28

YOUNG, ERIC BRETT. Murder at Fleet. 304p $2 Lippincott [7s 6d Hutchinson]
28-6759

Professor Jago has been conducting a series of drastic experiments on his brother-in-law, a paralytic from shell-shock to whom his sister, the professor's wife, is deeply attached. The professor disappears. His body is found propped up in a field, a gruesome scarecrow. A reporter covering the tragedy for a local paper and two of his friends make an amateur investigation of the case which ends with a startling discovery.

Booklist 24:366 Je '28

New Statesman 30:298 D 10 '27 50w

"Mr. Young has a gift for comedy, and he has made good use of it in depicting Constable McArdle. McArdle is a Scot, and his dialect is a delight. A character like McArdle would go far toward making any story worth reading."
+ N Y Times p20 Mr 4 '28 450w

Reviewed by Vincent Starrett
N Y World p7m My 27 '28 100w

"The chief sport in the tale is to spot the criminal and this ought to be done half-way through, though more clues are duly given right up to the end. A good story."
+ Sat R 144:556 O 22 '27 100w

"One of the most interesting and best written murder mystery stories of the new season."
+ Springf'd Republican p7f Mr 18 '28 200w

"This is a gruesome story of murder, but extremely competently told."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p769 O 27 '27 120w

YOUNG, FRANCIS BRETT. Key of life. 279p $2.50 Knopf [7s 6d Heinemann]
28-10624

"It begins in a Shropshire spring, when the bluebells are bluer than heaven, and the cowslips are scenting the air like wine, and the cuckoo is calling softly; and it ends among the sands that drop from the ruined sides of kings—and queens—in ancient Thebes. Ruth Morgan nurses a young archaeologist, Hugh Bredon, who is brought almost dying to her home. But he goes to the excavations in Thebes, and when she journeys out to marry him she meets on the ship Dr. Henri Bezuidenhout, a modern and slightly crude scientist with whom she instantly feels in close agreement. As he is also bound for Luxor, a certain amount of conflict follows, for Hugh is ill, neurotic, and desperately devoted to dead princesses. Ruth makes the usual sacrifice."—Spec

---

Booklist 24:406 Jl '28

"The story is the conventional moving picture plot and the style and tone of the novel is solid and gray, the people are solid, they are like granite. The author is as cool and hard as his characters except that you suspect him of hankering after some of their sentiments, Dr. Bezuidenhout, for instance, who talks about the 'key of life.' " Margery Latimer
— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 Ap 22 '28 850w

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 25 '28 1400w

"This sentimental love story sounds as if it were composed on the author's day off. The best thing in the book is the local color—the modern Thebes of the excavations—which is so neatly handled as to make one sigh for the Brett Young of years ago who knew his Conrad and was frank about his limitations."
— Nation 126:653 Je 6 '28 120w

Reviewed by Edmund Blunden
Nation and Ath 42:852 Mr 10 '28 230w

Reviewed by Robert Hyde
N Y Evening Post p8 Jl 7 '28 330w
+ N Y Times p9 My 6 '28 850w

Reviewed by J: R. Chamberlain
N Y Times p26 Je 24 '28 60w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
No Am 225:adv Je '28 50w

"This book is slight. It is highly readable, but it does not make the demands upon the reader's intellect and imagination which fine books must make. But it is in one thing fascinating. The setting of most of the story is the Valley of Kings, where the two men are engaged in archæological excavation. The atmosphere of excitement, the dusty sunlight, the weirdness of the tombs, is placed so vividly before the reader that he cannot put the book down until he has had it all." F. C. L. R.
+ — Outlook 149:156 My 23 '28 180w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:322 Je '28

"The book never for a moment hangs fire and it is only on looking back that one realizes that Mr. Brett Young has expanded a short-story into a novel. The theme is interesting, the narrative, with its vivid pictures of Wales and Egypt under the archæologist's pick-axe, a good one. A thoroughly enjoyable book; it displays those solid qualities of head and heart which make its author's personality as he reveals it (too sparingly) in his pages such an agreeable travelling-companion." L. P. Hartley
+ Sat R 145:294 Mr 10 '28 520w

Sat R of Lit 4:918 My 26 '28 180w

"Of course the story is not unattractive; it seems merely to have lapsed from some higher and stranger intention. Equally, of course, some of the prose is beautifully written—the spring scene in the beginning, the acute and exquisite account of the women's marriage-cry in Cairo, and the glimpse of the lilac and purple poppies by the river on the way to Thebes. Still, Mr. Brett Young does not seem quite at ease in immemorial Egypt." R. A. Taylor
+ — Spec 140:329 Mr 3 '28 230w

"The style of the book is Mr Young at his best. Its even tenor is smoothly flowing, albeit usually colored brightly; and there are passages of glowing, impassionate beauty." H. King
+ Springf'd Republican p7f Je 24 '28 850w

"The technique of writing is there, of course, the happy touch with landscape and the power of composing natural conversation: but the situation and the characters are not in the least convincing; and the whole thing conveys the impression that having visited an archæological excavation camp in Egypt, Mr. Brett-Young determined to get his impressions into a novel."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p148 Mr 1 '28 380w

YOUNG, FRANCIS BRETT. My brother Jonathan. 437p $3 Knopf [10s 6d Heinemann]
28-23467

The steadfast devotion of Jonathan Dakers to his ideals and to his brilliant and attractive young brother Harold, commits him from the beginning to a life of sacrifice. Unembittered by his parents' injustice or Harold's' easy success and popularity, Jonathan goes his plodding way, patiently accepting his rôle as unacknowledged mainstay of his unpractical family. Rewards come to Jonathan from his selfless devotion as physician in a Black Country mining town. The war comes and the crowning sacrifice, when Jonathan gives up his dearly beloved Edie to Harold, who returns to life after reported death. After that the sacrifice of the good doctor's life, as the result of an infection, hardly weighs in the scales of his giving.

"To take up a book like 'My Brother Jonathan,' after reading some of the ostentatiously iconoclastic novels of the day is like listening to formal organ music in a great cathedral after leaving a night-club. Mr. Brett Young relies on neither stream-of-consciousness technique nor stream-of-sewage subject-matter. His approach is direct, and the people of his tale behave like civilized human beings. Moreover, since he has an exquisitely developed sense of continuity these people are never static; we see them as we see those we know best, changing and growing, twisted into new selves by time and experience." Grace Frank

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 O 21 '28 1000w

"The Wednesford chapters of 'My Brother Jonathan' are Dr. Brett Young's top achievement in the writing of fiction. Indeed it is not easy to recall a more able picture of medical life than he offers in this book. It would be useless to pretend that the latter portion of the story is not a bitter and exasperating disappointment, for the glories of the second part were so pronounced." J. F. Smith

+ — Boston Transcript p6 O 20 '28 1950w

"Mr. Brett Young has a cultivated style, an observant eye for externals, and highly honourable convictions, but his books never deviate into psychological or æsthetic significance." Raymond Mortimer

+ — Nation and Ath 44:111 O 20 '28 200w

"Dr. Young's new novel is sensitive to beauty and fine feeling. Its pages are crowded with delightful characterizations."

+ N Y Times p7 O 21 '28 800w

"It is a really excellent novel, and indicates quite clearly that its author is well on his way to a very high place among English novelists." Herschel Brickell

+ No Am 226:adv D '28 100w

"Mr. Brett Young gets his inspiration from without, not from within. He has a gallery of portraits which have little family likeness, a repertoire of incidents that are completely spontaneous and fresh. In his power of making life yield new material he has no superior among contemporary novelists. And it is clear his progress has not stopped yet. His limitation is a certain literal-mindedness, an odd complement of his poetical faculty. He lacks a sense of proportion in details; he selects but he cannot ignore; the quality of his attention does not vary, he gives a generous ear to all the claims of life. 'My Brother Jonathan' is an achievement of which he may well be proud." L. P. Hartley

+ — Sat R 146:548 O 27 '28 620w

"This is the epic of the general practitioner, fighting disease and death in the embittered inglorious battlefield of a little mining town, yet carrying great trophies with him at the high mockery of his end. A selfless and intelligent physician, enriched by the intimacy of his human experience, is one of the best of our modern types. . . My Brother Jonathan is a leisurely, humane, and generous novel, with a dignified manner made sweet by Mr. Brett Young's invariably limpid and gracious style." R. A. Taylor

+ Spec 141:498 O 13 '28 200w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 9 '28 1100w

"If the invention outside experience of 'My Brother Jonathan' is a trifle imitative, the literary style shows no weakening. Mr. Brett Young has a fluency and a power denied to the majority of his contemporaries in the craft of fiction."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p754 O 18 '28 480w

YOUNG, FRANK H. Advertising layout; with a foreword by René Clarke. 170p il $7.50 Covici [31s 6d Library press]

659 Advertising. Printing—Specimens
28-26622

"Deals with arrangement of advertisements in magazines and newspapers. Largely a discussion of progress sketches and complete advertisements."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

---

Booklist 25:16 O '28

" 'Advertising Layout' serves a very definite purpose. To the student of advertising it brings a fund of useful information. The do's and the dont's are all listed for you. The subjects of balance, movement, composition, typography and color are all discussed in an elementary way. The book is beautifully printed and illustrated. Many examples of layout technique and current advertising add to its interest and instructive qualities."

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p7 Ag 5 '28 300w

"A reliable guide to the designing of advertising." Frances Atwater

+ N Y Times p18 D 2 '28 220w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:469 O '28

YOUNG, JOHN. Diary of John Young; extracts transcribed and ed. by Florence Remington Goodman. 183p il $3 Macmillan [7s 6d S.P.C.K.]

B or 92 England—Religious and ecclesiastical institutions

"Rummaging in a chest of miscellaneous manuscripts which had reposed for many years in a chapter room cupboard, the librarian of Winchester Cathedral discovered the diary of this worthy churchman who was dean of Winchester from the year 1616 to the advent of the Commonwealth. From its pages one derives a vivid impression of ecclesiastical life in those days—the relief of the poor, the granting of leases, the selecting of bishops and the conduct of services."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p18 S 16 '28 180w

"The learned editor of this valuable and interesting record proves herself to be careful, industrious, highly qualified and sympathetic. Out of a shabby and almost incoherent manuscript, such as she describes, few could have made a book so interesting and so clear. The book presents a highly attractive picture of cathedral life in the time of Charles I. The attractiveness, it should be noted, is not due so much to the items of the diary, which are largely concerned with complicated finance and unnecessary quarrelling, but to the happy style in which Mrs. Goodman deals with her materials."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p369 My 17 '28 880w

YOUNG, KIMBALL. Source book for social psychology. 844p $4.25 Knopf

301 Social psychology
28-16151

"Kimball Young has selected, from the thousands of writings concerned with our living together, about two hundred and fifty accounts of the amazing things we human beings do, from lynching negroes to swallowing slogans. His authors are the living men of our own day." —Educ R

YOUNG, KIMBALL—Continued
Reviewed by W: F. Ogburn
Am J Soc 34:553 N '28 420w

"The writers are authorities. Happily, almost all of them are free from the pedantry that kills the interest in a human subject. They are treating the doings around us which are concerned with the life and mind."
+ Educ R 75:152 Mr '28 1050w

YOUNG, NORWOOD. Carlyle; his rise and fall. 382p $3.50 Morrow [12s 6d Duckworth]
B or 92 Carlyle, Thomas [28-17667]

An extremely critical view of Carlyle's character and work which fortifies its criticism with carefully selected evidence from his writings. The book has the effect of greatly diminishing Carlyle's stature. The estimate is summed up in these words: "The general opinion now is that Carlyle's office was that of a stimulant, not a food; that he was an artist of extraordinary gifts, not a thinker. His equipment consisted of two things—the dramatic speech of his father, the religion of his mother. He applied the one to the other and conquered the world."

"One cannot escape a feeling that Mr. Young is too insistent on belittling the actual achievements of Carlyle. When he has to bestow praise he does it grudgingly, while he lays open every weakness or semblance of weakness with a smack of satisfaction. This is particularly apparent in his treatment of Carlyle's personal qualities. He finds it hard to understand, or at least he fails to explain, why he so frequently inspired affection and attachment. It is this portion of the censure which will probably stir the partisans of Carlyle to their warmest indignation. It is certainly the spot at which the prosecution is most vulnerable." Jacob Zeitlin
— Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p4 Jl 15 '28 1200w
Boston Transcript p2 Je 13 '28 800w

"The materials are sometimes commonplace, but the author's appraisal of their values is fresh, and because of the delicacy of verbal style, the fastidiousness of language, scenes as common as a New York gin party are rendered with vividness not often achieved by the gin and ginger-ale followers of Mr Hemingway. The second part is too long, creates atmosphere without always relating it to theme and character. The novel is not violent, exploits no popular topic of discussion, and is altogether in the tradition of intelligent thinking and writing."
+ — Dial 85:266 S '28 100w
Nation 127:sup380 O 10 '28 110w
New Statesman 30:597 F 18 '28 770w

"Mr. Young has done a thorough job. In spite of a total lack of humor, an undistinguished style and a tendency to preach which is sometimes as strong as that of Carlyle himself, he is undeniably convincing. He strips the great man completely. He does not even leave him his beloved dyspepsia." R. L. Duffus
+ — N Y Times p6 Je 3 '28 1550w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p7m Je 10 '28 1000w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:491 O '28

"Mr. Young discusses Carlyle's books in detail, with a wealth of quotation and analysis. He certainly makes good his thesis that Carlyle's merit steadily decreased as his fame increased. His chapter on Carlyle's last serious publication, the voluminous life of Frederick the Great, is of special interest at the present time. Mr. Young has himself written a less ambitious work on that potentate, and is well able to show the fundamental defect in Carlyle's handling of his subject—a defect which Carlyle himself evidently realized as he went on, but which he had not the courage to acknowledge. This defect is simply a lack of truth in the historical thesis on which the six ponderous volumes are based. Unfortunately, Carlyle's high reputation as an historian gave undue weight to his conclusions, and Mr. Young is probably right in saying that his glorification of Prussian militarism counted for something considerable among the subsidiary causes of the late war."
+ — Sat R 145:169 F 11 '28 600w

Reviewed by Gerald Carson
Sat R of Lit 5:69 Ag 25 '28 900w

"Mr. Young's compact memoir of Carlyle gives the main facts of his career. It is marred by his too evident dislike of the great man. Hero-worship in a biographer may be deprecated; but there should be sympathy between the writer and his subject. . . It is preposterous even to discuss to what extent Carlyle shares the responsibility for the late War. How could he foresee what would happen fifty years hence? If Mr. Young had cut out such fantasies his book would be better than it is."
— Spec 140:384 Mr 10 '28 160w

"As a tenacious study of perversity and partisanship in Carlyle's thought Mr. Young's book compels attention. He confirms with a wealth of evidence the judgment passed upon Carlyle when a young man by Dr. Chalmers, that he was 'a lover of earnestness more than a lover of truth'; and he shows how much finer and more effective an influence he might have had upon his age if he could have consistently obeyed his own exhortation, 'let us cease shrieking and begin considering.' "
Times [London] Lit Sup p108 F 16 '28 1400w

YOUNG, STARK. Torches flare. 381p $2.50 Scribner
28-12078

A young southern woman comes to New York, mingles with a Greenwich Village group, and is given a part in a play. She makes a tremendous hit, and on the night of her success consummates her first love affair. In the midst of her intense happiness, illness calls her back to her Mississippi home town. Her lover follows. But there in her home environment things are not the same. The sweetness has gone out of their love, and when Lena discovers Arthur's deception the end comes. The story is written presumably by a man who is Lena's steadfast friend.

Booklist 25:31 O '28

"A full-length, rounded piece of fiction, with a central situation deftly handled, and more than its share of wisdom and wit in its excellent dialogue." Herschel Brickell
+ Bookm 67:461 Je '28 500w

Reviewed by Hudson Strode
Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p3 Je 3 '28 1000w

"Stark Young's style is competent but not distinguished. His characters all have individuality, and some are even interesting. But the most successful and important feature of the book is its thorough portrayal of the stage in New York as it is seen by those who are in the closest and most constant touch with it."
+ — Boston Transcript p2 Je 23 '28 160w

Christian Century 45:908 Jl 19 '28 70w

"Stark Young makes convincing use of environments with which he is evidently very familiar, and he writes without self-consciousness and in general with a deft touch for reality. The great weakness, however, of this thoughtful and secretive style is a subtlety which makes the reactions and impulses of the characters seem overelaborate and refined, giving them a precious beauty and charm which is not completely satisfying. When Mr. Young is most the idealist, his work becomes most artificial; but he has qualities of insight and calm purpose which should place him well in the front of the battle to gain universal recognition as an artist."
+ — Ind 120:581 Je 16 '28 220w

"A loose but very gracefully drawn picture of the better side of Greenwich Village, with an equally skilful portrait of an old Southern household: the two badly set within a framework of unconvincing plot. The story is notable for its able solution of a stock difficulty: it is told in the first person, the narrator plays an important role, and yet he manages to depict himself as neither a prig nor a fool. 'The Torches Flare' has a certain quiet beauty and a gentle wit that is extremely rare: it should not pass unnoticed." C. P. F.

+ — Nation 126:653 Je 6 '28 100w

"Its charm is the charm of the temperament (personality would be too strong a word) of Stark Young, who names himself Hal Boardman for novel purposes and then proceeds to unfold the story of Lena Dandridge as it comes into the ken of the man who is 'I' throughout the book. Like Stark Young, Hal Boardman is restrained and wise; alive to shades, nuances, tone and texture; and a trifle academic in the way he stands off from life. . . The settings of the book are also done to a muted perfection."

+ N Y Times p8 My 13 '28 880w

Reviewed by J: R. Chamberlain

N Y Times p26 Je 24 '28 70w

"This quiet, gentle novel marks Stark Young's second departure from dissertations on the theatre. We are forced to admit that a book of such essays would have given us greater pleasure than we find in this tepid story. He seems shy and embarrassed in the presence of his characters, and they, affected by his hesitancy, speak unnaturally and too much. Although the middle and the latter part of the novel found them all more at ease, the beginning seemed to us little short of painful."

— + N Y World p7m Ag 5 '28 320w

"A full, rounded and thoroughly interesting novel [which] has for its setting the New York of Greenwich Village and Broadway and a little college town in North Mississippi. It offers all sorts of opportunity for shrewd and witty and understanding comment upon these two contrasting civilizations, which Mr. Young knows well. The Torches Flare is an engaging book to read because of the brilliance of its writing, but it is a good deal more than entertaining." Herschel Brickell

+ No Am 225:adv Je '28 130w

"The first half of the book is interesting in its picture of the stage, as might be expected, but is otherwise disappointing. Young's handling of Bohemia is pretty bad. Actual characters appear, either under their own names or thinly disguised, and places, things, and people are described with all the topical patter of a chit-chat column, an unworthy business for so gifted a writer, and one which detracts to an unfortunate extent from the emotional effect of the first half of the book. But when the story moves South Young is at his best. Here the scene becomes as real, as moving, and as valuable as was the lovely scene of 'Heaven Trees,' Young's earlier and insufficiently appreciated novel."

— + Outlook 149:474 Jl 18 '28 380w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:366 Jl '28

"Mr. Young does everything innocently. He points no fingers, hangs out no signs. He merely says this and that—delightful, amusing, unpretentious things—and you find yourself knowing much more that is left unsaid. To write as he has written is a notable thing." Bray Hammond

+ Sat R of Lit 4:986 Je 23 '28 720w

Springf'd Republican p7f Je 3 '28 550w

YOUNGHUSBAND, SIR FRANCIS EDWARD. Life in the stars. 222p il $3.75 Dutton

523.13 Plurality of worlds. Universe [28-8727]

"An exposition of the view that on some planets of some stars exist beings higher than ourselves, and on one a world-leader, the supreme embodiment of the eternal spirit which animates the whole."—Subtitle

---

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 O 7 '28 130w

"His outlook is that of a poet rather than that of a scientist. Yet he is such a master of attractive style, and brings in so many plausible illustrations in support of his thesis, that the reader is sure to be carried along—at times even in spite of himself." E. N.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Jl 25 '28 650w

"This book, though speculative, is one of very great charm; it provides a pleasant antidote to the austere mathematical abstractions to which modern astronomy must confine itself."

+ Nature 121:201 F 11 '28 130w

St Louis 26:314 O '28

Reviewed by R: Church

Spec 139:sup985 D 3 '27 1300w

"The complete lack of scientific evidence for these speculations prevents the book from being more than a fantasy. As a theory of the universe it has no particular claim to attention. It is best regarded, perhaps, as a somewhat queer embodiment of Sir Francis's ideals and aspirations."

— Times [London] Lit Sup p708 O 13 '27 980w

YOXALL, HAROLD WALDO. Modern love. 314p $2 Washburn [7s 6d Faber & G.]

[27-16471]

An Englishman living in London with his American wife meets again his former sweetheart and the old affection revives between them. At the same time a friend and fellow countryman is drawn to the American wife. The four are people of sense as well as sensibilities, and work out their problem with dignity and good taste.

"The story is not badly written. The author preserves an alluring simplicity of plot, with enough action woven in to make the whole readable."

— Boston Transcript p6 My 12 '28 140w

"There is not a page in it which does not show ability, thought, care, tact; from the first sentence the idiom is individual and fresh; the design is clear, the treatment economical; and these are unusual merits in a first novel. Against them may be set defects which are general in promising first novels: derivativeness, in this case from Meredith and James, unsureness of taste, artificiality." Edwin Muir

+ — Nation and Ath 40:898 Mr 26 '28 300w

"A pleasant, credible, though undistinguished novel." E. H. W.

New Repub 54:358 My 9 '28 150w

"The fact that until developments have progressed quite far we do not know Mrs. Cray's real feelings toward the situation lends a quality of suspense that is perhaps why the reader, though he recognizes the pattern of the age-old plot, continues to read the book with a certain interest to the end."

N Y Times p22 My 27 '28 300w

"The author is a young Englishman who has lived in America long enough to write intelligently about it. His manner is sophisticated and his treatment introspective. Thoroughly modern in psycho-analytical, sixth-sense, observations, he has chronicled an international marriage situation, its intrigues and ambuscades, with suave brilliance."

+ Sat R of Lit 4:806 Ap 21 '28 140w

"There have been many novels on this subject, but very few authors have written with such far-sightedness and cool philosophy as Mr. Yoxall." B. E. Todd

+ Spec 138:385 Mr 5 '27 200w

Z

ZENOS, ANDREW CONSTANTINIDES. Plastic age of the Gospel; a manual of New Testament theology. 264p $1.75 Macmillan

225 Bible. New Testament—Theology

27-22563

Professor Zenos, who is dean and professor of historical theology at McCormick theological seminary, calls his book "a manual of New

ZENOS, A. C.—Continued
Testament theology." It is an interpretation of the theological material contained in the New Testament, giving the New Testament answer to the question: What is Christianity?

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p10 Mr 4 '28 130w

Crozer Quarterly 5:255 Ap '28 300w

"Dr. Zenos has won a wide reputation as a skilful and inspiring teacher, and from this book we can gather at least part of the secret of his success. He arranges his topics carefully in their logical order, and his exposition is always admirably clear. He is never dull or irrelevant, and while he takes account of conflicting opinions, he does not allow them to bury or confuse his own line of thought." E. F. Scott

+ J Religion 8:287 Ap '28 680w

Springf'd Republican p7f Ap 8 '28 180w

ZEROMSKI, STEFAN. Ashes; tr. from the Polish by Helen Stankiewicz Zand. 2v 758p $6 Knopf

28-23664

A huge, formless, two-volume novel which describes first in a background of rural Poland before the Napoleonic wars the romantic passion of the youthful hero Raphael and the ghostly melodramatic scene which is the outcome of his love. Scenes show Raphael in the household of Prince Gintult, in love with the Prince's sister, and still others describe his terrible experiences in the wars with his friend Cedro.

"Stephan Zeromski, who died in 1925, was one of the great Polish writers, called by many the master of Polish fiction in his day. 'Ashes' is the first of his works to be translated into English and it embodies some of the finest traits of the Polish mind." V. P. Ross

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p6 O 21 '28 1100w

" 'Ashes' is neither pleasant nor easy to read. Today's test of a novel, we are told, is to ask: 'Does it create an atmosphere?' 'Ashes' certainly does. A thin thread of story at first, no plot at all at the end; introspection, rather than character-analysis; theorizing on social conditions, now extinct, for better or worse; these are the material of a great book only when welded with consummate artistry. Genius is a word we dislike and fear, but it describes a quality which this book displays." B. B.

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 19 '28 550w

"It is a great novel, of unusual quality. And everywhere horror and tenderness, as in the pictures of the sack of Saragossa, are welded in a unity of description and emotion which never rings false." F. H. M.

+ N Y Evening Post p9m N 24 '28 350w

"The novel is crowded with incident, thronged with characters; it is all done on a tremendous scale, and done without any flagging on the author's part, or any weariness on that of the reader. 'Ashes' is a tale heroic in size, in treatment, in perspective, yet always human." L. M. Field

+ N Y Times p7 N 18 '28 1100w

"The artistic triumph undoubtedly achieved by Zeromski in his historical novel is attained by a method of minute realism of detail and by a vividness of local coloring to which the author's emotional nature lends its peculiar glow. The result is a Napoleonic epic in prose which may well be placed side by side with Tolstoy's monumental 'War and Peace.' The mood, here as elsewhere in Zeromski's work, is one of tragic bitterness from beginning to end." R. Dyboski

+ Sat R of Lit 5:318 N 3 '28 1200w

ZIMAND, SAVEL. Living India; with an introd. by Æ. [George W. Russell]. 280p il $3 (10s 6d) Longmans

954 India—History. India—Social conditions. India—Religion 28-27791

A sympathetic analysis of the revolution of thought now taking place in India. The author traces the historical background from the founding of the British empire in the East under Robert Clive, describes the structure of Indian society, and shows the development of the rising tide of independence and the growth of nationalism.

Boston Transcript p6 N 24 '28 580w

"It is a vehement defense of India, going as far in one direction as Miss Mayo went in the other. Hence it is no more convincing than is any one-sided argument." E. F. Edgett

— Boston Transcript p10 D 8 '28 250w

"A penetrating analysis of conditions and trends of thought, leading up to just such a verification of the author's observations as the recent Report of the All Parties Conference." Gertrude Emerson

+ New Repub 57:sup115 D 12 '28 1000w

Reviewed by C: Johnston

+ N Y Times p30 D 16 '28 500w

"The style is always absorbing, often thrilling, and shows accurate observation and careful research, unfortunately so often lacking in other volumes on this subject."

+ Sat R of Lit 5:495 D 8 '28 100w

"He has no ax to grind, nor is his pen driven by the reformer's zeal. His emotions appear to be harnessed behind a central desire to see all sides and to attain that temper which is necessary if white-heat controversy is to be managed for socially desirable ends. He has given American readers a book for which they have been waiting." E: C. Carter

+ Survey 61:449 Ja 1 '29 1000w

"A book which is interesting, suggestive and therefore valuable. He may not see very deeply into any Indian subject, but he sees the superficial surface of a wide subject with remarkable clearness; he is admirably impartial; and native shrewdness renders him distrustful of extreme views, and of arguments which prove their case too completely."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p1002 D 20 '28 900w

ZIMMERN, ALFRED ECKHARD. Learning and leadership; a study of the needs and possibilities of international intellectual co-operation. 112p $2 (5s) Oxford

327 International cooperation. Intellectual cooperation. Learning and scholarship [28-28345]

"Alfred Zimmern's 'Learning and Leadership' is one more contribution to 'the faith of a Liberal.' In this particular instance the Liberal is known throughout the world of scholars for his 'Greek Commonwealth.' In love as he is with the model of an intelligent community which the Greek city-state at its best furnished us, he has been driven in these post-war years to discover just why the modern world is emphatically not an intelligent community. He postulates that man has lost control of his environment and that control over one's environment is the mark of civilization. His book is an inquiry into how we can recapture that control, and his answer is very much the Platonic one that philosophers must rule. The author is in the noble tradition of Liberalism."—Books (N Y Herald Tribune)

Am Hist R 34:158 O '28 150w

Booklist 25:107 D '28

"There is a great deal of ripe wisdom and experienced comment in the 'by-products' of Professor Zimmern's thinking. And even if we do not share the faith that this modern world can be induced to vote for sages; even if we see no deep basis for a program that might prevent the repetition of 1914-'18, still he offers some common-sense methods whereby international misunderstanding will at least not be needlessly multiplied." Stringfellow Barr

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p2 S 16 '28 500w

"It is a rare essay. Its merit lies in its keen intelligence and clearness of statement, both of which are alike remarkable. Regardless of one's partisan views concerning the League, the aspirations of the author can be shared and his analysis will clarify the understanding of many." G. M. Y.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ag 25 '28 700w

Nation and Ath 43:472 Jl 7 '28 60w

"His summary is rapid and allusive, and his argument sometimes abridged to the point of obscurity; but his sketch of the post-War world is vivid and convincing, particularly in regard to the danger of res publica, or the self-government of democracy, being entirely swamped by the predominance of res privatae, the interests of great international financial, commercial, and industrial concerns and magnates. . . Every page glitters with points of light which draw one to discussion."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p527 Jl 19 '28 870w

ZORA, LUCIA (MRS FRED ALISPAW). Sawdust and solitude; ed. by Courtney Ryley Cooper. 230p il $2.50 Little

B or 92 Circus: Ranch life 28-10015

"The bravest woman in the world" won this designation by her animal training feats. The most spectacular of these are described in the first part of her book, written in collaboration with Courtney Ryley Cooper. Being pioneers at heart, Zora and her husband deserted the circus for the rigors of ranch life in north western Colorado, there enduring mental and physical hardships certainly as great as any encountered in the sawdust ring. The second part of the book describes this venture and its slow success.

Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p15 Ag 5 '28 110w

Boston Transcript p4 Mr 28 '28 680w

Cleveland Open Shelf p64 My '28

"The life of the circus is interesting, and Lucia Zora tells her story honestly and simply with a modest pride in her achievements; but the most moving part of the book is the picture of bitter, pioneer life. 'Sawdust and Solitude' is well worth reading by anyone who feels that the old days of hardship, the days of frontier life, have departed for modern comfort and pleasure."

+ Ind 120:437 My 5 '28 180w

"Too much contact with the gentler side of elephants has made Lucia Zora sentimental on a Brobdingnagian scale. Lucia Zora has been many things, but she has never yet been a writer." T. S.

— N Y Evening Post p12 Mr 31 '28 80w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple

Survey 60:397 Jl 1 '28 420w

Wis Lib Bul 24:223 Jl '28

ZUCROW, SOLOMON. Adjustment of law to life in rabbinic literature. 186p $1.50 Stratford

296 Jews—Law 28-10718

"Solomon Zuckrow discusses some of the achievements of the rabbis in their efforts to adjust law to life. He deals with the various principles which guided them in their modifications of the law, and gives the best-known examples of such changes. He mentions the laws which they have abrogated and enumerates the prerogatives of the rabbinical courts. The appendix suggests a practical application to modern Jewish orthodox life of the facts dealt with in the book. He calls upon the modern orthodox rabbinate to meet in council and abrogate certain ritual laws the observance of which has become arduous if not almost impossible." —J Religion

---

"The author is a layman, but he has a vast knowledge of the Talmud, and he gives to the unfamiliar reader—as almost all of us are—an insight into the contents, spirit, and method of that vast and revered storehouse. It is a serious and well written book, and deserves attention especially from the Jew, but also from the Gentile."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 9 '28 250w

"Although the material is not original, the author gives it clear presentation. Aside from technical slovenliness, the work is handy and informative, and a useful addition to Talmudic literature in English." S. B. Freehof

+ — J Religion 8:627 O '28 630w

ZWEIG, ARNOLD. Case of Sergeant Grischa; tr.[2] from German by Eric Sutton. 449p $2.50 Viking press

28-30156

A Russian soldier-peasant escapes from a German prison camp and wanders between the lines trying to get back to Russia. A peasant woman aids him, loves him, and helps him on his way with the uniform and passport of a dead spy. Grischa is recaptured and sentenced to death as the spy. He is able to prove his identity, but the wheels of the military machine have been set in motion and the frantic efforts of Grischa's friends are powerless to save him. Arnold Zweig makes of the case—which is based on an actual happening during the European war—an impassioned and powerful drama of man's inhumanity to man.

" 'The Case of Sergeant Grischa' is a great novel first and a war novel only secondarily. It is, moreover, an achievement in clear and full-bodied dramatic narrative and not an expression of personal dismay and revolt in the face of the war's irreconcilable horrors. It is at once one of the most considerable imaginative works that Germany has furnished to the world since the war, and one of the amazingly few distinguished war novels that have appeared in any literature." Eugene Lohrke

+ Books (N Y Herald Tribune) p5 D 2 '28 920w

"This Sergt. Grischa is a memorable figure; for he is the hero of the first great German war novel. Indeed, of the first great novel yet written anywhere about the war. Arnold Zweig is the first to throw into definitely recognizable form all that he has seen and felt in the war. The first to write a war novel in the grand style." Lion Feuchtwanger

+ Chicago Daily Tribune p21 D 1 '28 1150w

"By verisimilitude the book defeats its own ends, and in proving war boring almost becomes so itself. Arnold Zweig can write good narrative and makes Grischa's escape from the timber camp exciting, but the story gradually ceases to move of its own accord, and the reader has to lend the author a hand in pushing from behind if the journey is ever to be completed. Only at moments vitality returns. Grischa is convincing, a good-natured, shrewd, fatalistic Russian peasant, but he never becomes humanly important, and simplicity alone will not make a tragic hero." L. L. D.

— + Nation and Ath 44:327 D 1 '28 320w

"Zweig's human, humorous and immensely moving tragedy of war on the Russo-German front provides one of those rare occasions on which we dust off the word 'great' and add another member to the small company of this century's masterpieces. The book seems to me easily the deepest and widest of all the novels about the war, and the reading of it is an experience which goes on and on long after the book is finished." Robert Littell

+ N Y Evening Post p9m D 1 '28 720w

"To us it is the most exciting and stirring volume of its sort we have encountered. Besides a sense of drama which stretches the interest tighter and tighter with no moment of slackening, the author has an almost divine ability in character creation." F: F. Van de Water

+ N Y Evening Post p9m D 29 '28 900w

"Some experiences in literature are unforgettable, and this is one. The rising force of Arnold Zweig's narrative, so painfully slow in gathering momentum at the start, with its mass of detail, its conscientious creation of military background, its bringing of diverse units into conflict, culminates at length in an overwhelming effect of power and protest and the irony and pathos of human fate." L: Kronenberger

ZWEIG, ARNOLD—Continued

+ N Y Times p9 D 2 '28 1150w

"The whole book, though too drawn out, is extraordinarily impartial and capable, sensitive alike to general tendencies and individual emotions. It is one of the best novels about the war." L. P. Hartley

+ Sat R 146:736 D 1 '28 500w

"This is a book rich in human character, and radiant with the young chivalry that flames against injustice." R. A. Taylor

+ Spec 141:794 N 24 '28 330w

"Herr Zweig's book includes, in the description of a single episode, some glimpse at the working of every part of the machine, and it describes each part no less fairly than vividly. But no summary can even suggest the orderly richness of detail with which Herr Zweig has expressed every aspect of his theme. He has, in the first place, a remarkable gift of rapid, easy characterization, and all his persons, numerous and various as they are, stand out distinct and comprehensible."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p963 D 6 '28 1050w

ZWEIG, STEFAN. Adepts in self-portraiture: Casanova, Stendhal, Tolstoy; tr. from the German by Eden and Cedar Paul. (Master builders) 357p $3.50 Viking press

B or 92 Casanova de Seingalt, Giacomo Girolamo. Beyle, Marie Henri. Tolstoi, Leo Nikolaievich 28-24739

Stefan Zweig holds up to the mirror of their own writings Casanova, Stendhal, and Tolstoy, setting down the mental and physical characteristics he sees reflected there, and thus producing a rounded self-portrait from youth to age, of each of the three figures.

"Stefan Zweig makes no effort to be sensational and succeeds in being wholly convincing and unfailingly interesting." J. W. Maury

+ Boston Transcript p6 N 10 '28 1400w

Cleveland Open Shelf p134 D '28

"Three portraits into which Zweig breathes life. Three portraits breaking through their canvas and walking past us, quickened with life. Three symbols turned men. Let it no longer be said that Germans are ponderous and unreadable. Here is style, pellucid and vivid, all muscle and nerve." Paul Eldridge

+ N Y Evening Post p8m N 10 '28 600w

"Not only is Zweig successful in his realization of the psychology of these great egotists, but he likewise is able to kindle a desire to reread or read more of the works of these men. . . In Zweig we have a critic extending the function of criticism and revivifying it." Edwin Clark

+ N Y Times p2 N 11 '28 200w

ZWEIG, STEFAN. Ben Jonson's Volpone; a loveless comedy in 3 acts; freely adapted by Stefan Zweig and tr. from the German by Ruth Langner. 187p $2 Viking press

832 Jonson, Ben 28-10994

In Stefan Zweig's modern version Ben Jonson's famous comedy has been produced in Germany and all over central Europe. Now retranslated from the German by Ruth Langner, it is being produced (1928) by the New York Theatre guild.

Booklist 24:394 Jl '28

Cleveland Open Shelf p100 S '28

Dial 84:528 Je '28 750w

Reviewed by Stark Young

New Repub 54:295 Ap 25 '28 1350w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 33:405 Jl '28

"The title page of the charming book the Viking Press has made of Stefan Zweig's 'Volpone' carries the subtitle, 'A Loveless Comedy,' which, as a dramatic form, is even more unique in our theatre than a 'heartless comedy.' Stefan Zweig has wisely admitted only one real love into the six scenes of his play, and that is an unquenchable, all-devouring lust for gold. By whittling away Jonson's subplots ('the busie plot, as they were once known) he shows up this overwhelming passion with an emphasis as skilful as it is relentless. His people, like Jonson's, are, with the exception of Colomba, as sordid and bawdy as any who have stalked onto a New York stage in recent years. They are monomaniacs, who have no redeeming virtues and are cursed with no subtleties. They are types, pure and simple, stamped and unmistakable." J: M. Brown

Sat R of Lit 4:782 Ap 21 '28 1600w

"The process of double transplantation has produced a play which will be anathema to the scholarly lovers of the Elizabethan theatre, but one that offers producer and playgoer alike a tempting excursion into unexploited fields. Though this Volpone differs radically from the original in construction, plot and motivation, it is no less lusty and colorful than its prototype. This is not The Fox in modern dress but rather a modern in fox's clothing—Ben Jonson treated with the same freedom as he and his contemporaries treated their predecessors." Rosamond Gilder

Theatre Arts Mo 12:368 My '28 300w

Reviewed by J: M. Brown

Theatre Arts Mo 12:387 Je '28 1500w

Wis Lib Bul 24:189 Je '28

List of Documents for Use in the Smaller Libraries

Compiled by

MARY E. FURBECK

Public Affairs Information Service

Agriculture

Yearbook of agriculture, 1927. N. A. Crawford, ed. (U.S. Agric. dept.) 1234p '28

Bibliography

List of publications of the United States department of agriculture from January, 1901, to December, 1925, inclusive. M. G. Hunt. (U.S. Agric. dept. Misc. pub. 9) 182p pa '27

Statistics

United States census of agriculture, 1925: reports for states, with statistics for counties and a summary for the United States: pt. 2, Southern states. U.S. Census bur. 1328p '27 $1.75

United States census of agriculture, 1925: reports for states, with statistics for counties and a summary for the United States; pt. 2, Western states. U.S. Census bur. 512p '27 $1

United States census of agriculture, 1925: summary statistics by states; final figures. U.S. Census bur. 149p pa '28

Airports

Construction of airports, April, 1928. (U.S. Commerce dept. Aeronautics bul. 2) 16p pa '28

Automobile accidents

Mortality from automobile accidents: death rates from automobile accidents based on deaths reported from 76 large cities for four week periods, 1926 and 1927. U.S. Commerce dept. 3p pa Ja '28 (Mim.)

Baking industry

Consumer demand for bakery products in 15 cities of Pennsylvania. H. A. Hanemann. (Pennsylvania. Agric. dept. Gen. bul. 459) 57p pa My '28 Department of Agriculture, Harrisburg, Pa.

Bees

A manual of bee husbandry. E. G. Carr. (N.J. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 463). 87p pa Ag '28 New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, New Brunswick

Birds

The European starling in the United States. E. R. Kalmbach. (U.S. Agric. dept. Farmers' bul. 1571) 28p pa D '28

Canning and preserving

Preservation of foods. (N.Y. State col. of Agric. Cornell bul. for homemakers 159) 107p pa D '27 Extension Service, N.Y. State College of Agriculture, Ithaca

Cemeteries

The rural cemetery. C. P. Halligan and H. K. Merihinick. (Michigan, Agric. exp. sta. special bul 175) 36p pa My '28 Michigan State College of Agriculture and applied science, East Lansing

Child labor

Child labor in New Jersey: 2, Children engaged in industrial home work. Mary Skinner. (U.S. Children's bur. Bur. pub. 185) 62p pa '28

Fourteen and fifteen year old children in industry. (Pennsylvania Labor and Industry dept. Special bul. 21) 29p pa '28 Department of Labor and Industry, Harrisburg, Pa.

Laws

A digest of the laws controlling school attendance and employment of minors. Pennsylvania. Dept. of public instruction. 72p pa '28 State Department of Public Instruction, Harrisburg, Pa.

Child welfare

The child and the home. E. R. Groves. (North Carolina. Univ. Exten. bul. v. 7, no. 11) 24p pa Mr '28 University Extension Division, Chapel Hill, N.C.

Children

The food consumption of rural school children in relation to their health. E. S. Davies. (Massachusetts. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 241) 98-147p pa Mr '28

Care and hygiene

The Kansas mother's manual. F. B. Sherbon. (Kansas. State bd. of health. Bul. v. 6, no. 1) 132p pa '28 State Board of Health, Topeka, Kansas

City planning

A city planning primer. U.S. Commerce dept. Advisory com. on zoning. 18p pa '28

Reconstruction and development of the Tokyo-Yokohama district. J. H. Ehlers. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade promotion ser. 69) 84p pa '28

Legislation

A standard city planning enabling act. (U.S. Commerce dept. Advisory com. on city planning and zoning. 53p pa '28

Clothing

The organization and direction of clothing clubs. (Illinois. Univ. Agric. col. Circ. 327) 32p pa F '28 Agricultural Extension Service, University of Illinois, Urbana

Sun suits for children. Ruth O'Brien. (U.S. Agric. dept. Leaflet 24) 8p pa Ap '28

Cockroaches

Cockroaches. C. S. Marlatt. (U.S. Agric. dept. Farmers' bul. 658) 15p pa My '28

Colleges and universities

Accredited higher institutions. (U.S. Educ. bur. Bul. 1927, no. 41) 40p pa '28

Community life

Home talent tournaments. J. H. Kolb and D. E. Lindstrom. (Wisconsin. Univ. Agric. col. Ext. Service Circ. 221) 16p pa My '28 Agricultural Extension Service, College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin, Madison

A study of town-country relationships. C. R. Hoffer. (Michigan. Agric. exp. sta. Special bul. 181) 20p O '28 College of Agriculture and Applied Science, East Lansing, Mich.

Connecticut

Facts about agriculture, climate, education, soil, rainfall, cities, recreation and other desirable living conditions. E. H. Platt. (Connecticut. Dept. of agric.) 33p pa '28 State Department of Agriculture, Hartford

Corporations

The juridical status of foreign corporations in the American republics. Inter American high comm. U.S. Sect. Central exec. council. 128p pa '27 Text in both English and Spanish.

Cotton industry

Cotton fabrics and their uses. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur.) 36p pa '28

Cotton industry—Continued
Relation of farm prices to quality of cotton. G. L. Crawford and L. P. Gabbard. (Texas. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 383) 29p pa Je '28 Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College Station.

Deaf

Statistics

The deaf-mute population of the United States, 1920: a statistical analysis of the data obtained at the 14th decennial census (U.S. Census bur.) 159p pa '28

Diseases

Statistics

The notifiable diseases: prevalence in states, 1926. (U.S. Public health service. Sup. to Pub. Health Repts, no.67) 67p pa '27

District of Columbia
District of Columbia: report of the subcommittee, appointed December 14, 1927, to make a study of the government of the District of Columbia. U.S. House. Com. on the District of Columbia. 32p pa My '28 (U.S. 70th Congress, 1st sess.)

Dyes and dyeing

Statistics

Census of dyes and of other synthetic organic chemicals. (U.S. Tariff comm. Tariff information ser. 37) 191p pa '28

Education
Public education in Virginia. (Virginia. Comm. to survey the educ. system of Va.) 639p pa '28 State Educational Commission, Richmond, Va.

Eggs
Marketing eggs. R. R. Slocum. (U.S. Agric. dept. Farmers bul. 1378) 30p pa '28

Electricity on the farm
The use of electricity on Kansas farms. H. S. Hinrichs. (Kansas. Agric. col. Eng. exp. sta. Bul. no. 21) 64p pa '28 State Agricultural college, Manhattan, Kansas

Erosion
Soil erosion a national menace. H. H. Bennett and W. R. Chapline. (U.S. Agric. dept. Circ. 33) 36p pa Ap '28

Farm management
Farm budgeting. J. B. Hutson. (U.S. Agric. dept. Farmers' bul. 1564) 22p pa Jl '28

Farm ownership
How Wisconsin farmers become farm owners. B. H. Hubbard and G. A. Peterson. (Wis. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 402) 35p pa Ag '28 University of Wisconsin, Agricultural Experiment Station, Madison

Farmers
Rural changes in western North Dakota: social and economic factors involved in the changes in number of farms and movement of settlers from farms. E. A. Willson and others. (North Dakota. Agric. col. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 214) 110p pa Ja '28 Experiment Station, Fargo, N.D.

Finance

France

French national finance and stabilization. H. C. MacLean. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade information bul. 586) 22p pa N '28

Flood control
Forests and floods. Wade Shepard. (U.S. Agric. dept., Circ. 19) 24p pa Ja '28

Bibliography

Bibliography on flood control, Dec. 10, 1927. F. S. Hellman, comp. (U.S. H. com. on flood control. Com. doc., no.4) 83p pa '27

Copies may be obtained from the Library of Congress

Flowers
Use of cut flowers. Alex Sawrie. (Michigan. Agric. exp. sta. special bul. 176) 22p pa My '28 Michigan State College of Agriculture and Applied Science, East Lansing

Food supply
A study of food habits of people in two contrasting areas of Mississippi. Dorothy Dickins. (Mississippi. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 245) 52p pa N '27

Forests and forestry
Forest facts: a compendium of handy information on America's great heritage of forests. U.S. Forest service. 16p pa F '28
Why grow timber? W. N. Sparhawk. (U.S. Agric. dept. Misc. pub. 26) 14p pa Je '28

Statistics

American forests and forest products. (U.S. Agric. dept. Statistical bul. 21) 324p pa '28

Furniture
The home-made service wagon. G. E. Stratton. (Connecticut. Agric. col. ext. service bul. 122) 8p pa My '28 Connecticut Agricultural College, Storrs

Gardening
The long-row farm garden from planting to storage. (Illinois. Col. of agric. and agric. exp. sta. Circ. 325) 20p pa F '28. Agricultural Extension Service, University of Illinois, Urbana

Geese
Goose raising. A. R. Lee. (U.S. Agric. dept. Farmers' bul. 767) 14p pa Ap '28

Goats
Milk goats. C. A. Matthews and Earl Weaver. (Iowa. Agric. exp. sta. circ. 111) 15p pa Ap '28 Iowa State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, Ames

Home ownership
Present home financing methods. J. M. Gries and T. M. Curran. (U.S. Commerce dept.) 23p pa '28

Bibliography

Publications of interest to suburbanites and home-builders: publications for sale by the superintendent of documents. (U.S. Supt. of docs. Price list 72, 5th ed.) 18p pa '28
Publications of interest to suburbanites and home-builders: publications for sale by the superintendent of documents. (U.S. Govt. printing office. Price list 72, 6th ed.) 19p pa O '28

Hours of labor
Hours and earnings in bituminous coal mining, 1922, 1924 and 1926. (U.S. Labor statistics bur. Bul. 454) 66p pa N '27

House plants
The control of aphids on house plants. G. H. Griswold. (N.Y. (state) Col. of agric. Cornell ext. bul. 162) 15p pa D '27 Office of Publication, College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N.Y.

Income

Statistics

Preliminary report: statistics of income from returns of net income for 1927. U.S. Internal revenue bur. 21p pa '28

Industry
Report to the Legislature, March 9, 1928. N.Y. (state) Industrial survey comm. 138p pa '28 State Library, Education Building, Albany, N.Y.

Investment trusts
Participating shares in British investment trusts. F. E. Lee. (U.S. For. and dom. commerce bur. Trade inf. bul. 530) 28p pa F '28

Iron and steel industry
Iron ore, pig iron and steel in 1926. H. W. Davis. (U.S. Mines bur. Mineral resources of the U.S., 1926, I:9) 87-124p pa '27 10c

Jury

Bibliography

The jury system: a bibliographical list. U.S. Lib. of Congress. 17p pa D '27 (Mim.)

Landscape gardening
Beautifying the farm home. V. H. Ries. (Ohio. State univ. agric. col. exten. serv. bul. 73) 32p pa '28 Agricultural Extension Service, Ohio State University, Columbus

Making the farm grounds attractive. J. M. Rocheford. (Missouri. Univ. Agric. col. Circ. 191) 15p pa '27 University of Missouri College of Agriculture, Columbia

Libraries

Rural libraries. W. C. Nason. (U.S. Agric. Dept. Farmers' bul. 1559) 50p pa Ap '28

Lilies

A score of easily propagated lilies. David Griffiths. (U.S. Agric. dept. Circ. 23) 36p pa Mr '28

Manuals

Handy books. (U.S. Supt. of docs. Price list 73, 3d ed.) 11p pa My '28

Meat as food

Meat: why, what, and how? (Ohio. State univ. Agric. col. exten. service. Bul. 70) 16p pa '28. Agricultural Extension Service, Ohio State University, Columbus

Milk

Marketing

The demand side of the New York milk market. H. A. Ross. (N.Y. state. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 459) 86p pa Jl '27 Agricultural experiment Station, Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.

Milk marketing in Pennsylvania: shipping station operations; an economic analysis of plant operations based on a study of the record of 52 shipping stations in 1925. R. W. Bartlett and W. E. Gregg. (Pennsylvania. State col. School of agric. and exp. sta. Bul. 219) 43p pa Ja '28 Director of Experiment Station, State College, Centre County, Pa.

Some factors affecting the demand for milk and cream in the metropolitan area of New York. H. A. Ross. (U.S. Agric. dept. Technical bul. 73) 68p pa Je '28

Mines and mining

Statistics

Statistics of the mineral production of Alabama, for 1925: with a special discussion of coal and coke. W. B. Jones. (Alabama. Geol. survey. Bul. 34) 185p pa '28 postage Geological Survey, University, Ala.

Montana

Montana: resources and opportunities. (Montana. Dept. of agric. labor and industry) 320p pa Ag '28 State Department of Agriculture, Labor and Industry, Helena, Montana

Motor vehicle industry and trade

Automotive industry and trade of Great Britain and Ireland. W. M. Park. (U.S. foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade promotion ser. 63) 52p pa '28

Instalment selling of motor vehicles in Europe. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade information bul. 550) 42p pa My '28

Motor vehicles

Laws

Michigan laws relating to motor vehicles and their operation on the streets and highways: revision of 1927. Michigan. State dept. 99p pa '27. Secretary of State, Lansing, Mich.

Mountains

The mountains of the United States. Henry Gannett, comp. (U.S. Geological survey. Map information office) 37p pa '28 (Mim.)

Municipal finance

Financial statistics of cities having a population of over 30,000, 1926. (U.S. Census bur.) 505p '28

Municipal government

City manager plan

City manager plan: additional references (supplementary to mimeographed list, Jan. 28, 1920.) (U.S. Lib. of Congress) 13p pa Jl '27 (Mim.)

New England

New England's manufactures in the nation's commerce. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade information Bul. 582) 36p pa '28

The external trade of New England. R. J. McFall. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Dom. commerce ser. 22) 44p pa '28

Newspapers

A study of the relation of the daily press to crime and the administration of justice. N.Y. state. Crime comm. 25p pa '27 New York State Library, Albany, N.Y.

Panama canal

The Panama canal and its ports. (U.S. Bd. of engineers for rivers and harbors. Port ser. 22) 72p pa '28

Peru

Statistics

Statistical abstract of Peru, 1926. Peru, Statistics bur. 207p pa '27. Consulate general of Peru, 42 Broadway, N.Y.

Plants

Diseases

Black currant spreads white-pine blister rust. S. B. Detwiler. (U.S. Agric. dept. Misc. pub. 27) 8p pa Jl '28

Poultry

Poultry feeding stuffs and rations. A. R. Winter. (Ohio. State univ. Agric. col. exten. service. Bul. 63) 16p pa D '27. Agricultural Extension Service, Ohio State University, Columbus.

Poultry houses and fixtures. M. A. Jull and A. R. See (U.S. Agric. dept. Farmers' bul. 1554) 30p pa Mr '28

A poultry survey in Kansas. L. F. Payne and H. H. Steup. (Kansas. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 245) 52p pa Ja '28 Agricultural Experiment Station, Manhattan, Kansas

A statistical study of egg production in four breeds of the domestic fowl; pt. 4, Egg production of White leghorns. L. C. Dunn. (Connecticut. Storrs agric. exp. sta. Bul. 147)

Bibliography

The poultry industry: a selected list of references on the economic aspects of the industry, 1920-1927. C. O. Bercaw, comp. (U.S. Agric. econ. bur. Agric. econ. bibl. 24) 106p pa F '28

Public health

Legislation

Municipal ordinances and regulations pertaining to public health, 1923-1926. William Fowler, comp. (U.S. Pub. health service. Pub. health repts. sup. 68) 237p pa '28

Radio

Wireless communication in the British empire. G. S. Shoup. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade information bul. 551) 28p pa My '28

Railroads

Statistics

40th annual report on the statistics of railways in the United States, for the year ended December 31, 1926. (U.S. Interstate commerce comm.) 274p '28

Recreation

A report epitomizing the results of major fact-finding surveys and projects which have been undertaken under the auspices of the National conference on outdoor recreation. (U.S. 70th Cngress, 1st sess., S. doc. 158) 104p pa '28

Retail trade

Analysing retail selling costs: cost of selling commodities over the retail counter. G. E. Bittner. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur.) 15p pa '28

Roses

Rose diseases: their causes and control. A. M. Waterman. (U.S. Agric. dept. Farmers' bul. 1547) 20p pa F '28

Sewing
Stitches, seams and garment finishes. E. M. Callahan and M. J. Butler. (Ohio. State univ. agric. col. exten. serv. Bul. 77) 36p pa Ap '28 Agricultural Extension Service, Ohio State University, Columbus

Shipping

Statistics

Mechant marine statistics, 1927. U.S. Navigation bur. 75p '28 15c

Stock dividends
Stock dividends. U.S. Fed. trade comm. 273p pa '27 (U.S. 70th Congress, 1st sess., S. doc. no. 26)

Taxation
Taxation on Michigan's rented farms, 1919-1925. R. W. Newton. (Michigan. Agric. exp. sta. Tech. bul. 91) 34p pa Ja '28. College of Agriculture and Applied Science, East Lansing, Mich.

Assessment

Farm real estate assessment practices in Michigan. R. W. Newton and W. O. Hedrick. (Michigan. Agric. exp. sta. Special bul. 172) 80p pa F '28 Michigan State College of Agriculture and Applied Science, East Lansing

Teachers
Preparation of teachers. W. McK. Robinson. (U.S. Educ. bur. Bul. 1927, no. 36) 34p pa '28

State laws and regulations governing teachers' certificates. K. M. Cook. (U.S. Educ. bur. Bul. 1927, no.19) 296p pa '27

Textiles
The changing use of textile fibers in clothing and household articles. E. L. Clark. (U.S. Agric. dept. Misc. pub. 31) 55p pa '28

Travel
Books of travel; a program for women's clubs. U. T. Holmes. (North Carolina. Univ. Ext. bul. v.7, no.7) 48p pa D '27 Women's Clubs Section, University Extension Division, Chapel Hill, N.C.

Trees
Tree planting in the Great Plains region. F. R. Johnson and F. E. Cobb. (U.S. Agric. dept. Farmers' bul. 1312) 32p pa Mr '28

Trusts
The international cartel movement. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade information bul. 556) 61p pa Je '28

Tuberculosis in animals
Tuberculosis in live stock: detection, control and eradication, J. A. Kiernan and A. E. Wight. rev ed (U.S. Agric. dept. Farmers' bul. 1069) 22p pa Ag '28

Unemployment
Report to Hon. Alfred E. Smith, on unemployment conditions in New York State J. A. Hamilton. (N.Y. state. Labor dept.) 17p pa F '28. State Library, Albany, N.Y.

Bibliography

Unemployment: selected references to recent books and periodicals in the Public library of the city of Boston. (Boston, Mass. Public lib. Brief reading lists 37) 10p pa Mr '28 5c

United States

Commerce

Commerce yearbook, 1928: v 1, United States. (U.S. Bur. of foreign and domestic commerce) 708p '28

United States trade with Latin America. H. S. Giusta. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade promotion ser. 71) 80p pa '28

Statistics

Statistical abstract of the United States, 1928. U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. 841p '28 (v. 50)

Commencing with this issue, the Statistical abstract will be designated by the year in which it is published, consequently there was no issue bearing date 1927.

Vital statistics
Summary of provisional birth, death and infant mortality figures in the birth registration area, 1927. U.S. Census bur. 13p '28 (Mim.)

Wages

Statistics

Union scale of wages and hours of labor, 1927. (Penn. Dept. of labor and ind. Special bul. 22) 121p pa '28 Department of Labor and Industry, Harrisburg, Penn.

Workmen's compensation
Workmen's compensation legislation in relation to vocational rehabilitation; an analysis of certain provisions of workmen's compensation laws showing their relation to the administration of disabled persons, December, 1927. (U.S. Fed. bd. of vocational educ. Bul. 126) 146p pa '28

Yugoslavia
Kingdom of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes (Yugoslavia): a commercial and industrial handbook. K. S. Patton. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade promotion ser. 61) 261p pa '28

The Senate and House documents and reports are issued in limited editions, and unless otherwise indicated may be obtained only through members of Congress. Librarians should make application to their own representatives in Washington.

The Department of Agriculture's supply of the Current number of Farmers' Bulletins is ordinarily sufficient to make it possible to send them free to all applicants. They are also for sale at 5 cents per copy [by the Superintendent of Documents].

The Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., is authorized to sell at cost of paper and printing any United States public document in his charge, the distribution of which is not otherwise provided for. Publications cannot be supplied free to individuals nor forwarded in advance of payment.

Subject, Title and Pseudonym Index

To Author Entries, March 1928—February, 1929

A-B-C of æsthetics. Stein, L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
A B C of flight. Le Page, W. L. (D '28)
A B C of psychology. Randolph, V. (Ap '28)
A. E. F. Liggett, H. (Je '28)
A. E. F. in battle. Van Every, D. (Ag '28)
Abbé Pierre's people. Hudson, J. W: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Abbott, A. A., pseud. See Spewack, S: (Ag '28)
'Abd al-Aziz ibn Sa'ūd, king of Hejaz and Nejd
Rihani, A. F. Maker of modern Arabia. (Je '28)
Abe Lincoln grows up. Sandburg, C. (N '28)
Abilities of man. Spearman, C: E: (Je '28)
Ability
Testing
Kelley, T. L. Crossroads in the mind of man. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Spearman, C: E: Abilities of man. (Je '28)
Ability, influence of age on
Thorndike, E: L., and others. Adult learning. (N '28)
About England. Hughes, M. V. (Ap '28)
About ourselves. Overstreet, H. A. (Ap '28)
About your dog. Lemmon, R. S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Above the bright blue sky. Springs, E. W. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Abraham Lincoln, 1809-1858. Beveridge, A. J. (N '28)
Abraham Lincoln and Walt Whitman. Barton, W: E. (My '28)
Abyssinia
McCreagh, G. Last of free Africa. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Description and travel
Baum, J. E. Savage Abyssinia. (Je '28)
Acadia
Brebner, J: B. New England's outpost. (Ap '28)
Lescarbot, M. Nova Francia. (Je '28)
Accident prevention through education in the elementary schools. Shea, P. F. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Accidental accomplice. Johnston, W: A. (Ag '28)
Accidents
Prevention
American engineering council. Safety and production. (F 29) (1928 Annual)
Shea, P. F. Accident prevention through education in the elementary schools. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Woodbury, R. M. Workers' health and safety. (Ap '28)
Statistics
American engineering council. Safety and production. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Account of the principles of measurement and calculation. Campbell, N. R. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Acetate silk and its dyes. Mullin, C: E. (Ag '28)
Across Asia's snows and deserts. Morden, W: J. (Je '28)
Acting
Crafton, A., and Royer, J. Acting. (N '28)
Activity school. Ferrière, A. (N '28)
Actors and actresses
Skinner, O. Mad folk of the theatre. (Je '28)
Williamson, A. M. Alice in Movieland. (S '28)
Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.
Maude, C. Lest I forget. (O '28)
Whiffen, B. Keeping off the shelf. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Adams, John
Adams, J:, and Waterhouse, B: Statesman and friend; correspondence of John Adams with Benjamin Waterhouse. (Ap '28)
Adaptation (biology)
Shepheard-Walwyn, H. W. Harmonies of nature. (Je '28)
Adepts in self-portraiture. Zweig, S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Adirondack mountains
Carson, R. M. L. Peaks and people of the Adirondacks. (My '28)
O'Kane, W. C. Trails and summits of the Adirondacks. (O '28)
Adjustment of law to life in Rabbinic literature. Zucrow, S. (D '28)
Administrative law
United States
Patterson, E. W. Insurance commissioner in the United States. (D '28)
Adolescence
Chesser, E. M. Youth. (N '28)
Kupky, O. Religious development of adolescents. (O '28)
Mead, M. Coming of age in Samoa. (O '28)
Seabury, D: Growing into life. (Ag '28)
Adult learning. Thorndike E: L., and others. (N '28)
Adventure. Forbes, R. (S '28)
Adventure. Streeter, B. H., and others. (My '28)
Adventure and adventurers
Outerbridge, H:, ed. Captain Jack. (S '28)
Adventure with children. Lewis, M. H. (S '28)
Adventures in Alaska and along the trail. Endicott, W. (O '28)
Adventures in American diplomacy, 1896-1906. Dennis, A. L: P. (My '28)
Adventures in flower gardening. Mitchell, S. B. (D '28)
Adventures of an African slaver. Canot, T. (S '28)
Adventures of Chicchi. Lombroso, P. (Mr '28)
Advertising
Borden, N. H. Problems in advertising. (My '28)
Calkins, E. E. Business, the civilizer. (Je '28)
Durstine, R. S. This advertising business. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Goode, K. M., and Powell, H. W. H. What about advertising? (My '28)
Hall, S: R. Mail-order and direct-mail selling. (N '28)
Hopkins, C. C. My life in advertising. (Ag '28)
Percy, C. Window display advertising. (Je '28)
Young, F. H. Advertising layout. (D '28)
Advertising layout. Young, F. H. (D '28)
Aerial photographs. Reeves, D. M. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Aeronautics
Crump, I. Boys' book of airmen. (Ag '28)
Green, F. Dick Byrd—air explorer. (O '28)
Jacobs, A. M. Knights of the wing. (Ag '28)
Le Page, W. L. A B C of flight. (D '28)
Pagé, V: W. Everybody's aviation guide. (N '28)
Pagé, V: W. Modern aircraft. (Je '28)
Sueter, M. F. Airmen or Noahs. (O '28)

Aeronautics—Continued

Voyages

Byrd, R: E. Skyward. (My '28)
Chamberlin, C. D. Record flights. (O '28)
Earhart, A. 20 hrs. 40 min. (N '28)
Keyhoe, D. E: Flying with Lindbergh. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Köhl, H., and others. Three musketeers of the air. (D '28)
Thomas, L. J. European skyways. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Wilkins, G: H. Flying the Arctic. (O '28)

Aeronautics, Military
Sueter, M. F. Airmen or Noahs. (O '28)

Afghanistan

Description and travel

Trinkler, E. Through the heart of Afghanistan. (S '28)

Africa

Biography

Gollock, G. A. Sons of Africa. (D '28)

Civilization

Buell, R. L. Native problem in Africa. (Ag '28)

Description and travel

Finger, C: J. David Livingstone. (Ap '28)
Mason, M. H: Deserts idle. (D '28)

Economic conditions

Buell, R. L. Native problem in Africa. (Ag '28)

Native races

Buell, R. L. Native problem in Africa. (Ag '28)

Politics

Buell, R. L. Native problem in Africa. (Ag '28)

Race question

Buell, R. L. Native problem in Africa. (Ag '28)

Africa, British East
Douglas, R. D., jr., and others. Three boy scouts in Africa. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Description and travel

Green, F. Martin Johnson, lion hunter. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Johnson, M. E. Safari. (My '28)

Africa, Central

Description and travel

Haardt, G. M., and Audouin-Dubreuil, L: Black journey. (Ap '28)

Africa, North

Description and travel

Campbell, D. On the trail of the veiled Tuareg. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Slouschz, N. Travels in North Africa. (Ag '28)

Africa, West

Description and travel

Ossendowski, F. A. Slaves of the sun. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Social life and customs

Ossendowski, F. A. Slaves of the sun. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

African jungle life. Dugmore, A. R. (S '28)
African saga. Cendrars, B., comp. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Against the sun. Elton, G. (D '28)
Age, Khub Dekhta. See Khub Dekhtä Äge, pseud. (Mr '28)
Age of reason. Gibbs, P. H. (Ag '28)
Age of the gods. Dawson, C. H: (O '28)
Agony of Christianity. Unamuno y Jugo, M. de. (Ag '28)

Agricultural laws and legislation

United States

Nourse, E. G. Legal status of agricultural co-operation. (Ag '28)

Agriculture

Biography

De Kruif, P. H: Hunger fighters. (D '28)

Economic aspects

Bailey, L. H. Harvest of the year to the tiller of the soil. (Je '28)
Engberg, R. C. Industrial prosperity and the farmer. (Ag '28)
Holmes, C. L. Economics of farm organization and management. (O '28)
Johnsen, J. E., comp. Agriculture and the tariff. (S '28)
Mead, E: S., and Ostrolenk, B. Harvey Baum. (N '28)
Nourse, E. G. Legal status of agricultural co-operation. (Ag '28)

Experimentation

De Kruif, P. H: Hunger fighters. (D '28)

Egypt

Gompertz, M. Corn from Egypt. (O '28)

Great Britain

Ashley, W: J. Bread of our forefathers. (O '28)

Russia

Borders, K: Village life under the Soviets. (Mr '28)

United States

Eastman, E: R. These changing times. (Mr '28)
Engberg, R. C. Industrial prosperity and the farmer. (Ag '28)
Johnsen, J. E., comp. Agriculture and the tariff. (S '28)
Mead, E: S., and Ostrolenk, B. Harvey Baum. (N '28)

Agriculture, Cooperative

United States

Nourse, E. G. Legal status of agricultural co-operation (Ag '28)

Agriculture and the tariff. Johnsen, J. E., comp. (S '28)
Aimée Villard. Silvestre, C: (Je '28)
Aircraft handbook. Colvin, F. H. and H: F. (N '28)
Airmen or Noahs. Sueter, M. F. (O '28)

Airplanes
Colvin, F. H. and H: F. Aircraft handbook. (N '28)
Le Page, W. L. A B C of flight. (D '28)

Models

Hamburg, M. Beginning to fly. (O '28)

Al. Smith, the pope, and the presidency. Schroeder, T. A. (O '28)
Al Smith's Tammany hall. Allen, W: H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Aladdin, U.S.A. Greenwood, E. (Je '28)

Alaska

Description and travel

Endicott, W. Adventures in Alaska and along the trail. (O '28)
Willoughby, F. Gentlemen unafraid. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Albyn. Grieve, C. M. (Ag '28)

Alcibiades

Fiction

Atherton, G. F. Jealous gods. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Alcott, May (Mrs Ernest Nieriker)
Ticknor, C. May Alcott. (My '28)
Alexander. Bercovici, K. (N '28)
Alexander Hamilton. Hicks, H. H. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Alexander the Great
Jouguet, P. Macedonian imperialism and the Hellenization of the East. (F '28) (1928 Annual)

Fiction
Bercovici, K. Alexander. (N '28)
Alexandra, consort of Nicholas II, emperor of Russia
Radziwill, C. Intimate life of the last tzarina. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Alger, Horatio
Mayes, H. R. Alger. (Je '28)
Alice Foote MacDougall. MacDougall, A. (My '28)
Alice in Movieland. Williamson, A. M. (S '28)
Alice in the Delighted States. Hope, E: (Je '28)
Alimony. Cuthrell, F. (D '28)
Alken, Henry
Sparrow, W. S. Henry Alken. (S '28)
All aboard. Cobb, I. S. (N '28)
All about me. Drinkwater, J: (Ja '29 (1928 Annual)
All alone; the life and private history of Emily Jane Brontë. Eng title of Life and private history of Emily Jane Brontë. Wilson, R., pseud. (Ag '28)
All at sea. Sitwell, O. and S. (Ag '28)
All children must be paid for. Sieveking, L. De G. (My '28)
All kneeling. Parrish, A. (O '28)
All or nothing. Beresford, J: D. (Ap '28)
All the king's horses. Stevens, L: (My '28)
All these. Frothingham, P. R. (My '28)
Allen, Ira
Wilbur, J. B: Ira Allen. (O '28)
Alps
Collet, L. W: Structure of the Alps. (Je '28)
Alps, French
Description and travel
Gos, F. M. E. Rambles in high Savoy. (My '28)
Oakley, A. Cloud-lands of France. (Mr '28)
The "also rans." Seitz, D. C. (My '28)
Amateur crime. Cox, A. B. (O '28)
Ambassadors
Willson, B. America's ambassadors to France (1777-1927). (Ag '28)
Willson, B. Paris embassy. (Mr '28)
Ambition. Train, A. C. (Ap '28)
America
Discovery and exploration
Adams, R. G. Gateway to American history. (Ap '28)
Powys, L. Henry Hudson. (Ap '28)
Strawn, A. Sails & swords. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
America and French culture, 1750-1848. Jones, H. M. (My '28)
America and the new Poland. Fisher, H. H:, and Brooks, S. (S '28)
America arraigned! Trent, L., and Cheyney, R., eds. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
America, nation or confusion. Lewis, E: R. (S '28)
America seen through German eyes. Feiler, A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
American adventure. Muzzey, D: S. (My '28)
The American and the German university. Thwing, C: F. (Ag '28)
American architecture. Kimball, S. F. (N '28)
American architecture of to-day. Edgell, G: H. (Je '28)
American arts. Jackman, R. E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
American ballads and songs
Eckstorm, F., and Smyth, M. W., comps. Minstrelsy of Maine. (My '28)
Richardson, E., comp. American mountain songs. (My '28)
Smith, R., comp. South Carolina ballads. (D '28)
American caravan, Second. (D '28)
American comedy. Lloyd, H. C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
American criticism. Foerster, N. (S '28)
American detective stories. Wells, C., ed. (S '28)
American drama
Duffus, R. L. American renaissance. (N '28)
Collections
Hughes, H., and others, eds. Copy, 1928. (D '28)
Locke, A. Le R., and Gregory, M., eds. Plays of negro life. (Je '28)
Nicholson, K., ed. Appleton book of short plays; second ser. (Mr '28)
Phillips, Le R., and Johnson, T., eds. Types of modern dramatic composition. (Ap '28)
History and criticism
Quinn, A. H. History of the American drama, from the civil war to the present day. (Ap '28)
American essays
Collections
Hastings, W: T., ed. Contemporary essays. (My '28)
Shepard, O., and Hillyer, R. S., comps. Essays of today, 1926-1927. (D '28)
American farm. Wells, R. (N '28)
American fiction
Cross, W. L. Modern English novel. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
History and criticism
Michaud, R. American novel to-day. (Mr '28)
American foreign policies. Garner, J. W. (My '28)
American furniture and decoration. Holloway, E: S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
American Indians and their music. Densmore, F. (Mr '28)
American inquisitors. Lippincott, W. (Ag '28)
American labor dynamics in the light of post-war developments. Hardman, J. B. S., ed. (S '28)
American literature
Collections
American caravan, Second. (D '28)
Hull, H. R., and others, eds. Copy, 1927. (Mr '28)
Snyder, F. B. and E: D., eds. Book of American literature. (Ap '28)
History and criticism
Foerster, N. American criticism. (S '28)
Munson, G. B. Destinations. (O '28)
Pearson, E. L. Queer books. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Sinclair, U. B. Money writes! (Ap '28)
Squire, J: C., and others. Contemporary American authors. (Je '28)
Whipple, T: K. Spokesmen. (Ag '28)
Yearbooks
American caravan, Second. (D '28)
New Mexico
Henderson, A., comp. Turquoise trail. (N '28)
Southern states
Hibbard, C. A., ed. Lyric South. (O '28)
American loans to Germany. Kuczynski, R. R. (My '28)
American loyalists
Hulton, A. Letters of a loyalist lady. (S '28)
American marriage and family relationships. Groves, E. R., and Ogburn, W: F. (D '28)
American medicine and the people's health. Moore, H. H. (Mr '28)
American mountain songs. Richardson, E., comp. (My '28)
American mystery stories. Wells, C., ed. (S '28)
American negro. Herskovits, M. J. (Ag '28)
American novel to-day. Michaud, R. (Mr '28)
American omen. Garrett, G. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
American orchestra and Theodore Thomas. Russell, C: E: (Mr '28)
American orchid culture. White, E: A. (Je '28)
American parties and politics. Bruce, H. R. (My '28)
American party battle. Beard, C: A. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
American philosophy of equality. Smith, T: V. (Je '28)
American pilgrimage. Scribner, G. (Ap '28)

American poetry

Collections

Fugitives. (My '28)
Henderson, A., comp. Turquoise trail.(N '28)
Hibbard, C. A., ed. Lyric South. (O '28)
King, M., comp. Mirror of youth. (N '28)
Lawson, J. G. comp. World's famous short poems and prose selections. (N '28)
Markham, E., comp. Book of poetry. (Je '28)
Moult, T:, comp. Best poems of 1927. (Je '28)
Oxford book of American verse. (Ap '28)
Rittenhouse, J. B., ed. Third book of modern verse. (Ap '28)

American policy toward Russia since 1917. Schuman, F: L: (O '28)
American presidents. Moran, T: F. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
American prosperity. Mazur, P. M. (Ag '2)
American reinforcement in the world war. Frothingham, T: G. (Mr '28)
American renaissance. Duffus, R. L. (N '28)
American secretaries of state and their diplomacy, v 4-5. Bemis, S: F., ed. (O '28)
American songbag. Sandburg, C., comp. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
American statesmen. Griggs, E: H. (My '28)
American travelcharts and travel chats. Collins, F: L: (Ag '28)
American universities and colleges. Robertson, D: A., ed. (O '28)
American whaleman. Hohman, E. P. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Americanization
Fairchild, H: P., ed. Immigrant backgrounds. (Ap '28)
Americans in Santo Domingo. Knight, M. M. (Ag '28)
America's ambassadors to France (1777-1927). Willson, B. (Ag '28)
America's human wealth. Woods, E: A:, and Metzger, C. B. (Ag '28)
Among our banished birds. Beetham, B. (Mr '28)
Among those sailing. Eng title of Daughters of folly. Hamilton, C. (Je '28)

Amusements
Burt, E. R. Shower book. (O '28)
Longstreth, E:, and Holton, L. T. What'll we do now? (S '28)
Nash, J. B. Organization and administration of playgrounds and recreation. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Rose, A. Boy showman and entertainer. (Ap '28)

Ananias. Pach, W. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Anatole France abroad (Itinéraire de Paris à Buenos-Ayres). France, A. (Je '28)

Anatomy, Human
Clendening, L. Human body. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Ancient Egyptian metallurgy. Garland, H., and Bannister, C. O. (My '28)
Ancient man. Lull, R: S. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
And so to bed. Fagan, J. B. (Mr '28)

Andersen, Hans Christian
Reumert, E. P. P. Hans Andersen the man. (O '28)

Anderson, Sherwood
Chase, C. B. Sherwood Anderson. (Ap '28)
Andrew Johnson. Winston, R. W. (My '28)

Andrews, Marietta Minnigerode (Mrs Eliphalet Fraser Andrews)
Andrews, M. M. My studio window. (D '28)
Angel that troubled the waters. Wilder, T. N. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Angel's flight. Ryan, D. (Ap '28)

Angelico, Fra (Giovanni da Fiesole)
Hausenstein, W. Fra Angelico. (N '28)
Animal biology. Haldane. J: B. S., and Huxley, J. S. (My '28)
Animal ecology. Elton, C: (My '28)

Animal intelligence
Gates, G. I. Modern cat. (S '28)
Rabaud, E. How animals find their way about. (S '28)

Animal lore
Ingersoll, E. Dragons and dragon lore. (Ag '28)

Animal mechanics
Hill, A. V. Living machinery. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Animals
Douglas, R. D., jr., and others. Three boy scouts in Africa. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Habits and behavior

Dugmore, A. R. African jungle life. (S '28)
Finley, W: L. and I. Wild animal pets. (Ag '28)
Hornaday, W: T. Wild animal interviews and wild opinions of us. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Knottnerus-Meyer, T. C. B. Birds and beasts of the Roman zoo. (My '28)
Moseley, E. L. Our wild animals. (My '28)

Legends and stories

Finley, W: L. and I. Wild animal pets. (Ag '28)
Salten, F. Bambi. (S '28)

Animals, Mythical
Ingersoll, E. Dragons and dragon lore. (Ag '28)
Anne Belinda. Wentworth, P. (My '28)
Annie Besant. West, G. (Je '28)
Anniversaries and holidays. Hazeltine, M. E. (O '28)
Annuals of flowerland. Quackenbush, A. T. A. (N '28)
Another country. Du Coudray, H. (N '28)
Answering voice. Teasdale, S., comp. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Antarctic regions
Greely, A. W. Polar regions in the twentieth century. (D '28))
Anthology of modern Indian poetry. Goodwin, G., ed. (Mr '28)

Anthony, Susan Brownell
Dorr, R. L. Susan B. Anthony. (D '28)
Anthony Trollope. Walpole, H. (Ag '28)

Anthropology
Hankin, E. H. Cave man's legacy. (O '28)
Smith, G. E., and others. Culture. (S '28)

Antiques
Guild, L. van A. Geography of American antiques. (Mr '28)

Anti-saloon league of America
Odegard, P: H. Pressure politics. (S '28)
Steuart, J. Wayne Wheeler, dry boss. (O '28)

Apache Indians
Wells, E. W. Argonaut tales. (Ap '28)

Apes
Tilney, F: Brain from ape to man. (N '28)
Aphra Behn. Sackville-West, V. M. (My '28)

Apostles
Mygatt, T. D., and Witherspoon, F. Glorious company. (My '28)

Appetite
Aldrich, C: A. Cultivating the child's appetite. (S '28)
Apples and madonnas. Bulliet, C. J. (Ap '28)
Appleton book of short plays; second ser. Nicholson, K., ed. (Mr '28)
Applied economics. Bye, R. T., and Hewett, W: W. (O '28)
Applied magnetism. Wall, T: F: (My '28)
Appreciation of music. Welch, R. D. (Je '28)

Appressian, Ohanus
Hartill, L. R. Men are like that. (Je '28)
Apron strings. Dickenson, M. F. (N '28)

Apulia

Description and travel

Hooker, K. Through the heel of Italy. (Ap '28)

Arabia
Bell, G. M. L. Letters. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Description and travel

Chapple, J. M. To Bagdad and back. (S '28)

History

Graves, R. Lawrence and the Arabian adventure. (My '28)
Rihani, A. F. Maker of modern Arabia. (Je '28)

Politics and government
Rihani, A. F. Maker of modern Arabia. (Je '28)

Arabs in Mesopotamia
Fulanain, pseud. Marsh Arab, Haji Rikkan. (Je '28)

Arachne. Phillpotts, E. (S '28)

Arachne. Wilder, A. N. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Araminta. Forbes, H. C. (Ap '28)

Arapaho Indians
Collins, H. E. Warpath & cattle trail. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Arbitration, Industrial
Selekman, B. M. Postponing strikes. (My '28)
Soule, G: H: Wage arbitration. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Arbitration, International
Geneva institute of international relations. Problems of peace. (Ag '28)

Archeology
Peake, H. J: E., and Fleure, H. J. Peasants & pottters. (Je '28)

Archimedes. Whyte, L. L. (Je '28)

Architect of the Roman empire. Holmes, T. R. (S '28)

Architecture
Frankl, P. T. New dimensions. (S '28)
Greeley, W: R. Essence of architecture. (N '28)

History
Russell, A. L. N. Architecture. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

France
Robertson, H., and Yerbury, F. R., eds. Examples of modern French architecture. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Germany
Sitwell, S. German baroque art. (My '28)

New York (city)
Bailey, V. H. Skyscrapers of New York. (D '28)

Spain
King, G. G. Mudéjar. (D '28)

United States
Edgell, G: H. American architecture of to-day (Je '28)
Kimball, S. F. American architecture. (N '28)
Tallmadge, T: E. Story of architecture in America. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Architecture, Baroque
Sitwell, S. German baroque art. (My '28)

Architecture, Domestic

Designs and plans
Allen, G. Smaller house of to-day. (Ap '28)

Architecture, Medieval
Coulton, G: G. Art and the reformation. (O '28)

Architecture, Mohammedan
King, G. G. Mudéjar. (D '28)

Archon. Fyfe, H. H. (Je '28)

Arctic regions
Bartlett, R. A. Log of Bob Bartlett. (O '28)
Borden, C. L. Cruise of the Northern Light. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Greely, A. W. Polar regions in the twentieth century. (D '28)
Wilkins, G: H. Flying the Arctic. (O '28)

Argonaut tales. Wells, E. W. (Ap '28)

Ariadne. Lhevinne, I. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Aristotle
Lucas, F. L. Tragedy in relation to Aristotle's "Poetics." (Je '28)

Arizona
History
Wells, E. W. Argonaut tales. (Ap '28)

Armed with madness. Butts, M. (Ag '28)

Armenia
Hartill, L. R. Men are like that. (Je '28)
Nansen, F. Armenia and the Near East. (N '28)

Armenia and the Near East. Nansen, F. (N '28)

Armenian question
Hartill, L. R. Men are like that. (Je '28)
Nansen, F. Armenia and the Near East. (N '28)

Armistice day
Sanford, A. P., and Schauffler, R. H., eds. and comps. Armistice day. (Mr '28)

Army with banners. Mitchell, R. C. (D '28)

Arnold, Benedict
French, A. Taking of Ticonderoga in 1775. (D '28)

Arnold, Matthew
Kingsmill, H. Matthew Arnold. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Arnold, Thomas
Whitridge, A. Dr Arnold of Rugby. (S '28)

Arnold Levenberg. Pinsky, D: (N '28)

Arrogance. Aminoff, C. L. C. (S '28)

Art
Pach, W. Ananias. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
West, R. Strange necessity. (D '28)
Wood, C. Outline of man's knowledge (Mr '28)

Galleries and museums
Richards, C: R. Industrial art and the museum. (My '28)

History
Bulliet, C. J. Apples and madonnas. (Ap '28)

Study and teaching
Duffus, R. L. American renaissance. (N '28)

Florence
Gauthiez, P. Florence. (D '28)

Spain
King, G. G. Mudéjar. (D '28)

Umbria
Ricci, C. Umbria santa. (Ag '28)

United States
Duffus, R. L. American renaissance. (N '28)
Jackman, R. E. American arts. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Galleries and museums
Breuning, M. Exploring New York's art galleries. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Duffus, R. L. American renaissance. (N '28)

Art, Baroque
Sitwell, S. German baroque art. (My '28)

Art, Egyptian
Capart, J. Lectures on Egyptian art. (O '28)

Art, Flemish
Fry, R. E. Flemish art. (Ap '28)

Art, German
Sitwell, S. German baroque art. (My '28)

Art, Greek
Ridder, A. H. P. de, and Deonna, W. Art in Greece. (My '28)

Art, Italian
Fairfield, O. P. Italian renaissance in art. (O '28)

Art, Medieval
Coulton, G: G. Art and the reformation. (O '28)

Art, Mohammedan
King, G. G. Mudéjar. (D '28)

Art, Primitive
Boas, F. Primitive art. (S '28)
Osborn, H: F. Man rises to Parnassus. (S '28)

Art, Renaissance
Fairfield, O. P. Italian renaissance in art. (O '28)
Taylor, R. A. Leonardo the Florentine. (O '28)

Art, Spanish
Kane, E. K. Gongorism and the golden age. (O '28)
Art and religion
Coulton, G: G. Art and the reformation. '28)
Art and the reformation. Coulton, G: G. (O '28)
Art criticism
Pach, W. Ananias. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Art in Greece. Ridder, A. H. P. de, and Deonna, W. (My '28)
Art in painting. Barnes, A. C. (O '28)
Art industries and trade
Dow, G: F. Arts & crafts in New England, 1704-1775. (My '28)
Frankl, P. T. New dimensions. (S '28)
Guild, L. van A. Geography of American antiques. (My '28)
Richards, C: R. Industrial art and the museum. (My '28)
Art of landscape painting. Richmond, L. (N '28)
Art of pen drawing. Ellwood, G: M. (S '28)
Art of plate printing. Neale, H. S. (N '28)
Art of still-life painting. Furst, H. E. A: (Ap '28)
Art of successful bidding. Reith, G: (N '28)
Art of the night. Nathan, G: J. (My '28)
Artagnan, Charles De Baatz De Castelmore

Fiction

Bedford-Jones, H: King's passport. (My '28)
Arthur, king of Britain
Jaffray, R. King Arthur and the Holy Grail. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Articles de Paris. Huddleston, S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Artist in the family. Millin, S. G. (Ap '28)
Artists
Cooper, A. P. Authors and others. (Ag '28)
Pach, W. Ananias. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Artists, American
Jackman, R. E. American arts. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Arts & crafts in New England, 1704-1775. Dow, G: F. (My '28)
As a thief in the night. Freeman, R: A. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
As I knew them. Stoddard, H: L. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
As they seemed to me. Ojetti, U. (O '28)
Ashenden. Maugham, W. S. (My '28)
Ashes. Zeromski, S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Ashton, Winifred. See Dane, C., pseud. (O '28)
Asia

Description and travel

Komroff, M., ed. Contemporaries of Marco Polo. (S '28)

History

Wilson, A. T. Persian gulf. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Politics

Harrison, M. E. Asia reborn. (Je '28)
Asia, Central

Description and travel

Morden, W: J. Across Asia's snows and deserts. (Je '28)

Asia, Western

Description and travel

Elliott, R: M. Sunny side of Asia. (Ag '28)
Asia reborn. Harrison, M. E. (Je '28)
Aspects of British foreign policy. Willert, A. (Ag '28)
Aspects of Doctor Johnson. Roscoe, E. S. (S '28)
The assassin. O'Flaherty, L. (O '28)
Assyria

Antiquities

Baikie, J. Glamour of Near East excavation. (S '28)

Astrology
Adams, E. S. Astrology. (Mr '28)
At the House of Dree. Gardiner, G. (My '28)
At the south gate. Richmond, G. L. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Atlantic treasury of childhood stories. Hodgkins, M. D. H., ed. (D '28)
Atoms
Gerlach, W. Matter, electricity, energy. (D '28)
Haas, A. E. World of atoms. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Atonement
Poteat, E. M. Scandal of the cross. (O '28)
Aubrey Beardsley. Macfall, H. (Mr '28)
Auction bridge
Reith, G: Art of successful bidding. (N '28)
Augur, pseud. See Poliakoff, V. (My '28)
Augustus, Gaius Octavius, emperor of Rome
Holmes, T. R. Architect of the Roman empire. (S '28)
Australia

Description and travel

Macdonald, R. M. Opals & gold. (Ag '28)
Austria-Hungary

History

Bagger, E. S. Francis Joseph. (Mr '28)
Authentic life of Billy the Kid. Garrett, P. F. (My '28)
Authors
Cooper, A. P. Authors and others. (Ag '28)
Drake, W: A. Contemporary European writers. (Ag '28)

Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.

Lucas, E: V. The Colvins and their friends. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Authors, American
Raymond, C: H. Story-lives of master writers. (Ag '28)
Sinclair, U. B. Money writes! (Ap '28)
Squire, J. C., and others. Contemporary American authors. (Je '28)
Whipple, T: K. Spokesmen. (Ag '28)
Authors, British
Adcock, A. St J: Glory that was Grub Street. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Raymond, C: H. Story-lives of master writers. (Ag '28)
Authors, French
Faguet, E. Politicians and moralists of the nineteenth century. (Je '28)
Authors, Women
Overton, G. M. Women who make our novels. (Je '28)
Authors and others. Cooper, A. P. (Ag '28)
Authorship
Nixon, H. K. Psychology for the writer. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sinclair, U. B. Money writes! (Ap '28)
Autobiography. Jørgensen, J. (D '28)
Autobiography of an ex-coloured man. Johnson, J. W. (Mr '28)
Autolycus, pseud. See Bacon, L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Automobile industry. Epstein, R. C. (N '28)
Automobile industry and trade
Epstein, R. C. Automobile industry. (N '28)
Seltzer, L. H. Financial history of the American automobile industry. (N '28)

Finance

Seligman, E. R. A. Economics of instalment selling. (Je '28)
Automobiles

Painting

Pearce, M. J. Modern automobile painting. (Ap '28)

Aviation
Thomas, L. J. European skyways. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Aviators
Crump, I. Boys' book of airmen. (Ag '28)
The axe. Undset, S. (Ap '28)

Babe Evanson. Brody, C. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Babe Ruth's own book of baseball. Ruth, G: H. (S '28)
Babylonia
Antiquities
Baikie, J. Glamour of Near East excavation. (S '28)
The Babyons. Dane, C., pseud. (O '28)
Bach, Johann Sebastian
Terry, C: S. Bach. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bacheller, Irving Addison
Bacheller, I. A. Coming up the road. (D '28)
Back fire. Simpson, L. J. (Mr '28)
Back of war. Norton, H: K. (My '28)
Back-trailers from the middle border. Garland, H. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Background of the Bible. Booth, H: K. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bacon, Roger
Newbold, W: R. Cipher of Roger Bacon. (O '28)
Bacteriology
Hilliard, C. M. Textbook of bacteriology and its applications. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Jordan, E. O., and Falk, I. S., eds. Newer knowledge of bacteriology and immunology. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Bad girl. Delmar, V. (My '28)
Baffle book. Wren, L., and McKay, R. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bagdad
Bell, G. M. L. Letters. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Description
Casey, R. J. Baghdad & points east. (D '28)
Chapple, J. M. To Bagdad and back. (S '28)
Baghdad & points east. Casey, R. J. (D '28)
Bait-casting. Vogt, W: C. (N '28)
Balascheff, Mme Marie
Balascheff, M. The transplanting. (My '28)
Balboa, Vasco Núñez de
Strawn, A. Sails & swords. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
A balcony. Royde-Smith, N. G. (O '28)
Baldwin, Mrs Faith. See Cuthrell, F. (D '28)
Balfour, Eva. See Balfour, H., pseud. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Ballad of the Brown girl. Cullen, C. (Ag '28)
Ballads
Smith, R., comp. South Carolina ballads. (D '28)
Ballads, American
Finger, C: J., comp. Frontier ballads. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Paskman, D., and Spaeth, S. G. "Gentlemen, be seated!" (Je '28)
Richardson, E., comp. American mountain songs. (My '28)
Smith, R., comp. South Carolina ballads. (D '28)
Ballads and sea songs from Nova Scotia. Mackenzie, W: R., comp. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Balloon buster. Hall, N. S. (O '28)
Balloon moon. Cabot, E. (Je '28)
Baltic sea
Loomis, A. F. Fair winds in the far Baltic. (Ag '28)
Bambi. Salten, F. (S '28)
Banana
Reynolds, P. K. The banana. (Ap '28)
Bankers in Bolivia. Marsh, M. C. (N '28)
Bankruptcy of marriage. Calverton, V: F. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Banks and banking
Disbrow, C: W. Fundamentals of banking, finance, and economics. (Ap '28)
Kilborne, R. D. Principles of money and banking. (O '28)
Woodward, W. H. Profits in bank stocks. (Ap '28)
United States
Burgess, W. R. Reserve banks and the money market. (Ap '28)
Bare hills. Winters, Y. (Ag '28)
Barnum, Phineas Taylor
Root, H. W. Unknown Barnum. (Mr '28)
Barrie, Sir James Matthew
Moult, T: Barrie. (Je '28)
Barrington, E. pseud. See Beck, L. A. (Je, O '28, Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bartlett, Robert Abram
Bartlett, R. A. Log of Bob Bartlett. (O '28)
Baseball
Ruth, G: H. Babe Ruth's own book of baseball. (S '28)
Basque provinces
Elsner, E. Romance of the Basque country and the Pyrenees. (Je '28)
Bastable children. Bland, E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bats in the belfry. Sieveking, L. de G. (Mr '28)
Battle of the horizons. Thompson, S. (Ag '28)
Baudelaire, Charles Pierre
Baudelaire, C: P. Letters of Baudelaire. (Mr '28)
Bayard, Pierre du Terrail, seigneur de
Shellabarger, S: Chevalier Bayard. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Baynes, Ernest Harold
Gorges, R. Ernest Harold Baynes. (S '28)
Beaconsfield, Benjamin Disraeli, 1st earl of Maurois, A., pseud. Disraeli. (Mr '28)
Beaconsfield, Mary Anne (Evans) Disraeli, viscountess
Sykes, J. Mary Anne Disraeli. (D '28)
Beardsley, Aubrey Vincent
Macfall, H. Aubrey Beardsley. (Mr '28)
Beast with five fingers. Harvey, W: F. (O '28)
Beasts & super-beasts. Munro, H. H. (Ag '28)
Beau ideal. Wren, P. C. (O '28)
Beaumont, Francis
Oliphant, E. H: C. Plays of Beaumont and Fletcher. (Mr '28)
Beauty, Personal
Cocks, D. Etiquette of beauty. (Ap '28)
Beauty and the beast. MacLeod, J. G. (Ag '28)
Beauty in home furnishings. Storey, W. R. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Beckford, William
Beckford, W: Travel-diaries. (N '28)
Bed and breakfast. Hobson, C. (My '28)
Beebe, Elswyth Thane. See Thane, E., pseud. (My '28)
Beekeeping. Phillips, E. F. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Bees
Phillips, E. F. Beekeeping. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Beethoven, Ludwig van
Sullivan, J: W: N. Beethoven. (Mr '28)
Beggars can choose. Jackson, M. (D '28)
Beggars of the sea. Slocum, S. E. (Je '28)
Begging deer. Rowe, D. (D '28)
Beginning to fly. Hamburg, M. (O '28)
Behavior of young children of the same family. Weill, B. C. (D '28)
Behaviorism (psychology)
Dummer, E. S., ed. The unconscious. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Vaughan, W. F. Lure of superiority. (S '28)
Watson, J: B. Ways of behaviorism. (S '28)
Watson, J: B. and R. A. Psychological care of infant and child. (Je '28)
Wickham, H. Misbehaviorists. (S '28)
Behind that curtain. Biggers, E. D. (Je '28)
Behind the devil screen. Keck, M., and Orbison, O. (Ag '28)
Behind the scenes with Cyril Maude. Eng title of Lest I forget. Maude, C. (O '28)
Behn, Mrs Aphra (Amis)
Sackville-West, V. M. Aphra Behn. (My '28)
Behold, the bridegroom—. Kelly, G: E: (Je '28)
Belgium
Description and travel
Schoonmaker, F. Come with me through Belgium and Holland. (N '28)

Belief of Catholics. Knox, R. A. (My '28)
Beliefs that matter. Brown, W: A. (N '28)
Bell, Gertrude Margaret Lowthian
Bell, G. M. L. Letters. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Bells
Cole, S. N. Bells. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
The belt. Sifton, P. (Ap '28)
Ben Jonson's Volpone. Zweig, S. (Je '28)
Beneath tropic seas. Beebe, W: (D '28)
Benedetto Croce. Croce, B. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Benjamin ben Jonah, of Tudela
Komroff, M., ed. Contemporaries of Marco Polo. (S '28)
Benjamin Franklin of Paris, 1776-1785. Steell, W. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bennett, James Gordon, 1795-1872
Seitz, D. C. James Gordon Bennetts. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bennett, James Gordon, 1841-1918
Seitz, D. C. James Gordon Bennetts. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bergson, Henri Louis
Chevalier, J. Henri Bergson. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Berkeley, Anthony, pseud. See Cox, A. B. (O, N '28)
Berries
Van Meter, R. A. Bush fruit production. (D '28)
Berry, Erick, pseud. See Best, A. (D '28) (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Berry and co. Yates, D. (S '28)
Besant, Mrs Annie (Wood)
West, G. Annie Besant. (Je '28)
Best books of our time, 1901-1925. Dickinson, A. D., comp. (N '28)
Best British short stories of 1927. O'Brien, E: J. H., ed. (Mr '28)
Best British short stories of 1928. O'Brien, E: J. H., ed. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Best continental short stories of 1927. Eaton, R:, ed. (S '28)
Best French short stories of 1926-27; and, The yearbook of the French short story. Eaton, R:, ed. (Je '28)
Best plays of 1927-28; and, The year book of the drama in America. Mantle, B., ed. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Best poems of 1927. Moult, T:, comp. (Je '28)
Best short stories of 1928; and, The yearbook of the American short story. O'Brien, E: J. H., ed. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Beston, Henry B., pseud. See Sheahan, H: B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Better angels. Little, R: H: (Ag '28)
Better country. Sharp, D. L. (Je '28)
Better schools. Washburne, C. W., and Stearns, M. M. (O '28)
Bewitched. Barbey d'Aurevilly, J. A. (Je '28)
Beyle, Marie Henri
Zweig, S. Adepts in self-portraiture. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Beyond the Bund. Kerby, P. (Mr '28)
Bianca Cappello, consort of Francesco Maria de' Medici, grand duke of Tuscany
Bax, C. Bianca Cappello. (S '28)

Fiction

De Witte, Y. Daughter of Venice. (Je '28)
Bianco, Giuseppe, pseud. See White, J. (Je '28)
Bible. Whole
Bible. Whole. Living Bible; ed. from the King James version by Bolton Hall. (Ag '28)

Criticism, interpretation, etc.

Battenhouse, H: M. Bible unlocked. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Booth, H: K. Background of the Bible. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Campbell, J: L. Bible under fire. (O '28)
Eakin, F. Revaluing scripture. (O '28)

Geography

Browne, L: Graphic Bible. (O '28)

History

Baikie, J. English Bible and its story. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Pope, H. Catholic church and the Bible. (N '28)

History of Biblical events

Browne, L: Graphic Bible. (O '28)

Bible. Old Testament

Criticism, interpretation, etc.

Gunkel, H. What remains of the Old Testament. (Je '28)

Psalms

Keet, C. C. Liturgical study of the Psalter. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Isaiah

Torrey, C: C. Second Isaiah. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Bible. New Testament

Criticism, interpretation, etc.

Barton, G: A. Studies in New Testament Christianity. (D '28)
Gilbert, G: H. Greek thought in the New Testament. (S '28)
Luccock, H. E: Preaching values in new translations of the New Testament. (O '28)
Studies in early Christianity. (N '28)

Versions

Luccock, H. E: Preaching values in new translations of the New Testament. (O '28)

Gospels

Crum, J: M. C. Original Jerusalem gospel. (N '28)
Easton, B. S. Gospel before the Gospels. (Ag '28)

St John

Saunders, K. J. Gospel for Asia. (D '28)

Epistles of Paul

Goodspeed, E. J. New solutions of New Testament problems. (Je '28)

History

Goodspeed, E. J. New solutions of New Testament problems. (Je '28)

Theology

Zenos, A. C. Plastic age of the Gospel. (Je '28)

Bible under fire. Campbell, J: L. (O '28)
Bible unlocked. Battenhouse, H: M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bibliography
McKerrow, R. B. Introduction to bibliography. (Mr '28)
Van Hoesen, H: B., and Walter, F. K. Bibliography. (N '28)

Best books

Bacon, C., comp. Standard catalog; fiction section. (S '28)
Bacon, C., comp. Standard catalog; Social sciences section. (S '28)
Dickinson, A. D., comp. Best books of our time, 1901-1925. (N '28)

Bibliography

Esdaile, A. J. K. Sources of English literature. (O '28)
Bibliography of the Negro in Africa and America. Work, M. N., comp. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Big frogs. Pringle, H: F. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Big Matt. Whitlock, B. (Ag '28)
Biography
Nicolson, H. G: Development of English biography. (Je '28)

Dictionaries

Crone, J: S. Concise dictionary of Irish biography. (N '28)
Dictionary of national biography. (Ap '28)

Biography (individual)
Adams, J:, and Waterhouse, B: Statesman and friend; correspondence of John Adams with Benjamin Waterhouse. (Ap '28)
André, M. Columbus. (Je '28)
Andrews, M. M. My studio window. (D '28)
Armstrong, M. D. Lady Hester Stanhope. (Ag '28)
Asquith, C. M. E. Duchess of York. (D '28)
Austin, C. Immortal Ninon. (Je '28)
Bacheller, I. A. Coming up the road. (D '28)
Bagger, E. S. Francis Joseph. (Mr '28)
Baker, R. S. Life and letters of Woodrow Wilson. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Balascheff, M. The transplanting. (My '28)
Barry, I. Portrait of Lady Mary Montagu. (My '28)
Bartlett, R. A. Log of Bob Bartlett. (O '28)
Barton, W: E. Abraham Lincoln and Walt Whitman. (My '28)
Barton, W: E. Father of his country. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Barton, W: E. Women Lincoln loved. (Mr '28)
Baudelaire, C: P. Letters of Baudelaire. (Mr '28)
Bax, C. Bianca Cappello. (S '28)
Beckford, W: Travel-diaries. (N '28)
Bell, G. M. L. Letters. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Belloc, H. Danton. (My '28)
Belloc, H. James the Second. (O '28)
Belloc, H. Robespierre. (My '28)
Benjamin, L: S. William Makepeace Thackeray. (Ag '28)
Béraud, H. My friend Robespierre. (D '28)
Bertrand, L: Louis XIV. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Beveridge, A. J. Abraham Lincoln, 1809-1858. (N '28)
Bikle, L. L. George W. Cable. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bradford, G. D. L. Moody. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Bradley, E: S. George Henry Boker. (My '28)
Brown, B. C. Elizabeth Chudleigh, duchess of Kingston. (D '28)
Browne, M. Recollections of Rupert Brooke. (Je '28)
Buchan, J: Montrose. (D '28)
Buchan, S. Sword of state; Wellington after Waterloo. (D '28)
Burdett, O. The Brownings. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Burdett, O. W. E. Gladstone. (Mr '28)
Burns, R. Letters. (N '28)
Burr, A. R. Portrait of a banker: James Stillman. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Burroughs, J: Heart of Burroughs's journals. (D '28)
Canot, T. Adventures of an African slaver. (S '28)
Caruso, D., and Goddard, T. Wings of song. (Ag '28)
Chase, C. B. Sherwood Anderson. (Ap '28)
Chesterton, G. K. Robert Louis Stevenson. (Mr '28)
Chevalier, J. Henri Bergson. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Church, R: Mary Shelley. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Conrad, J. Conrad to a friend. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Conrad, J. Letters from Joseph Conrad, 1895-1924. (My, S '28)
Creel, G: Sam Houston. (Ag '28)
Croce, B. Benedetto Croce. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Curie, R: Last twelve years of Joseph Conrad. (D '28)
Dean, E. L. Dolly Madison. (S '28)
Defries, A. D. Interpreter Geddes. (O '28)
Delaplaine, E: S. Life of Thomas Johnson. (N '28)
Delteil, J. Lafayette. (Ag '28)
Delteil, L. Meryon. (D '28)
Dickinson, T: H. Portrait of a man as governor: Alfred E. Smith. (Je '28)
Dorr, R. L. Susan B. Anthony. (D '28)
Dostoievskaîa, A. G. Diary of Dostoyevsky's wife. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Drew, E. A. Jane Welsh and Jane Carlyle. (My '28)
Drinkwater, J: Charles James Fox. (D '28)
Duncan, I. My life. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Dunsterville, L. C: Stalky's reminiscences. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Edwards, W: H. Tragedy of Edward VII. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Eliot, G:, pseud. Family life and letters. (S '28)
Elliot, M. Lord Byron's helmet. (N '28)
Fairley, B. Charles M. Doughty. (Ap '28)
Farington, J. Farington diary, v 7. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Federn, K: Richelieu. (N '28)
Finger, C: J. David Livingstone. (Ap '28)
Fiori, V. E. de. Mussolini. (My '28)
Fleg, E. Life of Moses. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Flower, W. N. Franz Schubert. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Forester, C. S. Louis XIV. (My '28)
Forssell, N. Fouché. (O '28)
Foy, E., pseud., and Harlow, A. F. Clowning through life. (Ap '28)
Franklin, B: "My dear girl." (Ap '28)
French, M. Memories of a sculptor's wife. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
French, W: Some recollections of a Western ranchman. (My '28)
Fuess, C. M. Rufus Choate. (My '28)
Fuller, R. H. Jubilee Jim; the life of Colonel Jim Fisk, Jr. (D '28)
Fülöp-Miller, R. Lenin and Gandhi. (Ap '28)
Fülöp-Miller, R. Rasputin, the holy devil. (D '28)
Gade, J: A. Christian IV. (Ag '28)
Garland, H. Back-trailers from the middle border. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Garrick, D: Diary. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Gay, R. M. Emerson. (O '28)
Gell, E. M. Under three reigns, 1860-1920. (Je '28)
George III. Correspondence of King George the Third, v 3-6. (S '28)
Gibbon, J: Personal recollections of the Civil war. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Glenbervie, S. D. Diaries of Sylvester Douglas. (D '28)
Gogh, V. van. Letters of Vincent van Gogh. (Ap '28)
Goldmark, C. Notes from the life of a Viennese composer. (O '28)
Goldsmith, O. Collected letters. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Gorges, R. Ernest Harold Baynes. (S '28)
Graf, O. M. Prisoners all. (N '28)
Green, F. Dick Byrd—air explorer. (O '28)
Griffith, G. O. John Bunyan. (O '28)
Guilday, P: K. Life and times of John England. (My '28)
Hall, N. S. Balloon buster. (O '28)
Hapgood, N., and Moskowitz, H: Up from the city streets, Alfred E. Smith. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Hard, W: Who's Hoover? (S '28)
Harding, W: H: John Bunyan, pilgrim and dreamer. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hardy, F. E., comp. Early life of Thomas Hardy, 1840-1891. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Harrison, G: B. John Bunyan. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Harvey, G: B. M. Henry Clay Frick. (My '28)
Hausenstein, W. Fra Angelico. (N '28)
Hawkins, A. H. Memories and notes. (Ap '28)
Hawthorne, J. Shapes that pass. (D '28)
Helm, K. True story of Mary, wife of Lincoln. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hendrick, B. J. Training of an American: Walter H. Page. (Ag '28)
Hermine, princess, consort of William II. Empress in exile. (D '28)
Hevesy, A. de. Discoverer. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hicks, E: Sir Thomas Malory. (D '28)
Hicks, H. H. Alexander Hamilton. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Hill, F: T. Lincoln. (N '28)
Holdsworth, W: S. Charles Dickens as a legal historian. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Hone, P. Diary, 1828-1851. (Mr '28)
Horn, A. A., pseud. Harold the webbed. (Ag '28)

Biography (individual)—Continued
Hortense, queen consort of Louis, king of Holland. Memoirs. (Ap '28)
House, E: M. Intimate papers of Colonel House, v 3-4. (D '28)
Howells, W: D. Life in letters. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Howes, F. William Byrd. (Je '28)
Hughes, R. George Washington, v 2. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Hussey, D. Wolfgang Amade Mozart. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Irwin, W. Herbert Hoover. (Je '28)
James, J. A. Life of George Rogers Clark. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Jenkins, J: W. James B. Duke. (My '28)
Jørgensen, J. Autobiography, v 1. (D '28)
Josephson, M. Zola and his time. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Kellock, H. Parson Weems of the cherry-tree. (My '28)
Kingsmill, H. Matthew Arnold. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Klein, F. Madeleine Sémer. (Ag '28)
Lamb, H. Tamerline. (D '28)
Lauder, H. Roamin' in the gloamin'. (N '28)
Lee, U. Lord's horseman [John Wesley]. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Leslie, S. Skull of Swift. (My '28)
Lewis, C: L. Matthew Fontaine Maury. (S '28)
Lewis, D. B. W. François Villon. (O '28)
Ligne, C: J. Letters and memoirs. (Je '28)
Lipsky, A. John Wesley. (D '28)
Lloyd, H. C. American comedy. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Long, J: C. Bryan, the Great Commoner. (S '28)
Lowell, C. T. Christopher North and the Noctes Ambrosianae. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lucas, E: V. The Colvins and their friends. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Lucas, J. M., (supposed author). Oldest biography of Spinoza. (Ap '28)
Lucas-Dubreton, J. Fourth musketeer. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Ludwig, E. Goethe. (O '28)
McCurdy, E: Mind of Leonardo da Vinci. (S '28)
McDonald, J. G. Rhodes. (Ag '28)
MacDougall, A. Alice Foote MacDougall. (My '28)
Macfall, H. Aubrey Beardsley. (Mr '28)
McFee, W: Life of Sir Martin Frobisher. (D '28)
Mackinnon, J. Luther and the reformation, v 2. (O '28)
McPherson, A. S. In the service of the King. (O '28)
Marcu, V. Lenin. (N '28)
Maude, C. Lest I forget. (O '28)
Maurois, A. Disraeli. (Mr '28)
Mayes, H. R. Alger. (Je '28)
Meehan, J. Lady of the Limberlost (Gene Stratton-Porter). (N '28)
Mégroz, R. L. Francis Thompson, the poet of earth in heaven. (Mr '28)
Meier-Graefe. J. A. Dostoevsky. (O '28)
Merezhkovskĭĭ, D. S. Napoleon, the man. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Michael, E:, and Booth, J. B. Tramps of a scamp. (N '28)
Mitchell, B. William Gregg. (N '28)
Monahan, M. My Jeanne d'Arc. (Je '28)
Montpensier, A. M. L. d'O. Memoirs of la Grande Mademoiselle. (D '28)
Morrow, H. Mary Todd Lincoln. (Je '28)
Moult, T: Barrie. (Je '28)
Mozart, J. C. W. A. Letters (D '28)
Munson, G. B. Robert Frost. (Mr '28)
Mussolini, B. My autobiography. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Napier, H: D. Field-Marshal Lord Napier of Magdala. (Ap '28)
Nevins, A. Frémont. (My '28)
Newman, B. Edmund Burke. (Mr '28)
Newton, A. Wordsworth in early American criticism. (N '28)
Olmsted, F: L. Frederick Law Olmsted, v 2. (My '28)
Ottman, F. C. Herbert Booth. (S '28)
Oxford and Asquith, 1st earl of. Memories and reflections. (O '28)
Paine, A. B. Girl in white armor [Jeanne d'Arc]. (Ag '28)
Paléologue, G. M. Tragic empress. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Payne, E: F. Dickens days in Boston. (Mr '28)
Peterson, H. Havelock Ellis. (Ag '28)
Pilkington, L. Memoirs, 1712-1750. (My '28)
Pinto, V. de S. Life of Sir Charles Sedley. (Ag '28)
Poincaré, R. Memoirs of Raymond Poincaré (1913-1914). (N '28)
Pond, E. Le R. Junius Smith. (D '28)
Ponsonby, A. A: W: H. Samuel Pepys. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Powell, S. W. Roving years. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Powicke, F: M. Stephen Langton. (O '28)
Powys, L. Henry Hudson. (Ap '28)
Preston, H. Memories. (N '28)
Prezzolini, G. Nicolo Machiavelli. (Ag '28)
Radziwill, C. Intimate life of the last tzarina. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Ramsay, A. A. W. Sir Robert Peel. (Ag '28)
Reumert, E. P. P. Hans Andersen the man. (O '28)
Richardson, N. Mother of kings. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Roberts, C. E. B. Winston Churchill. (My '28)
Robertson, A. Mussolini and the new Italy. (D '28)
Robinson, H: C. Correspondence with the Wordsworth circle (1808-1866). (My '28)
Rodman, H. Yarns of a Kentucky admiral. (S '28)
Rogers, C. Legend of Calvin Coolidge. (D '28)
Ronaldshay, L. J: L. D. Life of Lord Curzon, 3v. (My, O '28, F '29) (1928 annual)
Roosevelt, T. Diaries of boyhood and youth. (D '28)
Root, H. W. Unknown Barnum. (Mr '28)
Roscoe, E. S. Aspects of Doctor Johnson. (S '28)
Rowland, E. O. Varina Howell. (Mr '28)
Russell, C: E: American orchestra and Theodore Thomas. (Mr '28)
Rutter, F. V. P. Since I was twenty-five. (My '28)
Sacco, N., and Vanzetti, B. Letters. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sachs, E. L. "Terrible siren," Victoria Woodhull (1837-1927). (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sackville-West, V. M. Aphra Behn. (My '28)
Salvatorelli, L. Life of St Francis of Assisi. (Ag '28)
Sandburg, C. Abe Lincoln grows up. (N '28)
Sanders, E. K. S. François de Sales, 1567-1622. (D '28)
Schiff, J. H: Jacob H. Schiff. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Schubert, F. P: Letters, and other writings. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Schumann, C. J., and Brahms, J. Letters, 1853-1896. (Je '28)
Scott, H. L. Some memories of a soldier. (Ag '28)
Scribner, G. American pilgrimage. (Ap '28)
Sedgwick, H: D. La Fayette. (Ag '28)
Ségur, L: P. de. Memoirs and anecdotes. (N '28)
Ségur, N. Opinions of Anatole France. (Je '28)
Ségur, P. M. M. H. Julie de Lespinasse. (My '28)
Ségur, P. M. M. H. Marie Antoinette. (O '28)
Seitz, D. C. James Gordon Bennetts. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Senior, D. Life and times of Colley Cibber. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Shaw, C. Letizia Bonaparte (Madame Mère). (O '28)
Shellabarger, S: Chevalier Bayard. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Sherman, T: H: Twenty years with James G. Blaine. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Skinner, H. C. Echo from Parnassus. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Smith, H: P. Heretic's defense. (Mr '28)
Sousa, J: P. Marching along. (Ag '28)
Spinoza, B. de. Correspondence. (N '28)
Steele, R: Letters. (Ap '28)
Sterne, L. Letters. (Mr '28)
Steuart, J. Wayne Wheeler, dry boss. (O '28)

Straus, R. Charles Dickens. (N '28)
Straus, R. Unspeakable Curll. (Je '28)
Strauss, R: Correspondence between [the author] and Hugo von Hofmannsthal, 1907-1918. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Street, C. J: C: Lord Reading. (N '28)
Sturt, G: Small boy in the sixties. (My '28)
Sullivan, H., and Flower, W. N. Sir Arthur Sullivan. (Je '28)
Sullivan, J: W: N. Beethoven. (Mr '28)
Swift, L: F., and Van Vlissingen, A. Yankee of the Yards. (My '28)
Sykes, J. Mary Anne Disraeli. (D '28)
Tate, A. Stonewall Jackson. (Je '28)
Taylor, G: R. S. Cromwell. (Je '28)
Taylor, R. A. Leonardo the Florentine. (O '28)
Terry, C: S. Bach. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Thaddeus, V: Voltaire, genius of mockery. (D '28)
Ticknor, C. May Alcott. (My '28)
Turnbull, A. D. John Stevens. (Ag '28)
Vandercook, J: W. Black Majesty. (My '28)
Van de Water, V. B. Heart of a child. (Je '28)
Van Loon, H. W. Life and times of Pieter Stuyvesant. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Van Santvoord, S. Saint Francis. (Je '28)
Vestal, S. Kit Carson. (My '28)
Victoria, queen of Great Britain. Letters; v 3. (Ap '28)
Vollard, A. Degas. (Mr '28)
Wade, M. H. Boy who found out. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Waldman, M. Sir Walter Raleigh. (Je '28)
Walpole, H. Anthony Trollope. (Ag '28)
Warshow, R. I. Jay Gould. (S '28)
Washburn, C: G. Life of John W. Weeks. (D '28)
Washington, G: Washington speaks for himself. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Waugh, E. Rossetti. (Ag '28)
Wellington, A. W. Great man's friendship. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
West, G. Annie Besant. (Je '28)
West, J. E. Lone scout of the sky. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Whiffen, B. Keeping off the shelf. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Whitridge, A. Dr Arnold of Rugby. (S '28)
Wilbur, J. B: Ira Allen. (O '28)
Willis, I. C. Elizabeth Barrett Browning. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Wilson, P. W. Explorer of changing horizons: William Edgar Geil. (Ap '28)
Wilson, R., pseud. Life and private history of Emily Jane Brontë. (Ag '28)
Wilson, R. M. Napoleon the man. (Ag '28)
Winkler, J: K. W. R. Hearst. (Ag '28)
Winston, R. W. Andrew Johnson. (My '28)
Woodward, W: E. Meet General Grant. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
York, A. C. Sergeant York. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Young, J: Diary. (D '28)
Young, N. Carlyle. (Ag '28)

Biography (collective)
Bishop, M. Gallery of eccentrics. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bowen, M., pseud. Sundry great gentlemen. (My '28)
Carswell, D. Brother Scots. (My '28)
Cournos, J: Modern Plutarch. (D '28)
Dark, S. Five deans. (O '28)
Frothingham, P. R. All these. (My '28)
Gleichen-Russwurm, A. Dandies and Don Juans. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Griggs, E: H. American statesmen. (My '28)
Moran, T: F. American presidents. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Myers, J. A. Fighters of fate. (My '28)
Nida, W: L: and S. H. Pilots and pathfinders. (N '28)
O'Donnell, E. Strange disappearances. (Ap '28)
Pringle, H: F. Big frogs. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Seitz, D. C. The "also rans." (My '28)
Shaw, C: G. Low-down. (My '28)
Smith, E: H: Mysteries of the missing. (Ap '28)
Thompson, C: J: S: Mysteries of history. (O '28)
Thompson, E: R. Portraits of the new century (the first ten years). (Ag '28)
White, W: A. Masks in a pageant. (N '28)

Biology
Haldane, J: B. S., and Huxley, J. S. Animal biology. (My '28)
Haupt, A. W. Fundamentals of biology. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

History
Nordenskiöld, E. History of biology. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Biology of insects. Carpenter, G: H. (S '28)
Bird of Freedom. Pendexter, H. (Ag '28)

Birds
Knottnerus-Meyer, T. C. B. Birds and beasts of the Roman zoo. (My '28)

Legends and stories
Baynes, E. H. Three young crows. (Ja '28) (1928 Annual)

Cape Cod
Sheahan, H: B. Outermost house. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Haiti
Beebe, W: Beneath tropic seas. (D '28)

Birds and beasts of the Roman zoo. Knottnerus-Meyer, T. C. B. (My '28)
Birds around the light. Paludan, J. (N '28)
Birds of the ocean. Alexander, W. B. (Je '28)
Birmingham, George A., pseud. See Hannay, J. O. (O '28)
The bishop's wife. Nathan, R. (N '28)

Bismarck, Otto, fürst von

Drama
Ludwig, E. Bismarck. (Ag '28)

Bitter end. Brophy, J: (Ag '28)
Bitter heritage. Pedler, M. (N '28)
Black Bull. Bedford-Jones, H: (Mr '28)
Black cap. Asquith, C. M. E., comp. (O '28)
Black country. Beddow, B. (D '28)
Black democracy. Davis, H. P. (Ag '28)
Black fan. O'Reilly, M. B. (Ag '28)
Black folk tales. Best, A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Black heart. Horler, S. (O '28)
Black house in Harley street. Fletcher, J. S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Black journey. Haardt, G. M., and Audouin-Dubreuil, L: (Ap '28)
Black majesty. Vandercook, J: W. (My '28)
Black Sadie. Campbell, T: B. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Black Sparta. Mitchison, N. M. (S '28)
Black Valley. Martinez Zuviría, G. A. (Ap '28)
Blade of Picardy. McLaughlin, F. (Ag '28)
Blades. McCutcheon, G: B. (D '28)

Blaine, James Gillespie
Sherman, T: H: Twenty years with James G. Blaine. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Tyler, A. F. Foreign policy of James G. Blaine. (S '28)

Blake, William
Wicksteed, J. H. Blake's Innocence and Experience. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Blake's Innocence and Experience. Wicksteed, J. H. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Blessing of Pan. Dunsany, E: J: M. D. P. (Mr '28)
Blight. Rice, A. (Ag '28)
Blind circle. Renard, M., and Jean, A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Blind man's buff. Lynde, F. (S '28)
Blue murder. Snell, E. (O '28)
Blue trousers. Murasaki Shikibu. (S '28)
Bluefeather. Meynell, L. W. (D '28)

Boat-building
Leitch, A. C. Miniature boat building. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Boiler feed water purification. Powell, S. T. (My '28)

Boker, George Henry
Bradley, E: S. George Henry Boker. (My '28)

Bolivia

Economic conditions

Marsh, M. C. Bankers in Bolivia. (N '28)

Bolshevism

Russia

Lee, I. L. Present-day Russia. (Je '28)
Marcu, V. Lenin. (N '28)
Spinka, M. Church and the Russian revolution. (My '28)
Thompson, D. New Russia. (N '28)
Walsh, E. A. Fall of the Russian empire. (S '28)

Bon vivant's companion. Thomas, J. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Bonaparte, Elizabeth (Patterson) (Mrs Jerome Bonaparte)

Fiction

Henderson, D. M. Golden bees. (My '28)

Bonaparte, Maria Letizia (Ramolino)

Richardson, N. Mother of kings. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Shaw, C. Letizia Bonaparte (Madame Mère). (O '28)

Bonnet and shawl. Guedalla, P. (D '28)

Bonney, William H. (Billy the Kid)

Garrett, P. F. Authentic life of Billy the Kid. (My '28)

Bonney family. Suckow, R. (Ap '28)
Bonnie Prince Charlie. Chidsey, D. B. (N '28)
Boojum. Wertenbaker, C: (Je '28)
Book about Paris. Adam, G: J. and P. (S '28)

Book collecting

Newton, A. E: This book-collecting game. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Sawyer, C: J., and Darton, F. J. H. English books 1475-1900. (Ap '28)
Williams, I. A. Elements of book-collecting. (My '28)
Winterich, J: T. Collector's choice. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

The book in Italy during the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. Orcutt, W: D. (D '28)
Book of American literature. Snyder, F. B. and E: D., eds. (Ap '28)
Book of Catherine Wells. Wells, A. C. (O '28)
Book of food. Shand, P. M. (Ap '28)
Book of French wines. Shand, P. M. (N '28)
Book of green vegetables. Gold, M., and Gilbert, E. (S '28)
Book of long stories. Nethercot, A. H., ed. (D '28)
Book of marionette plays. Stoddard, A., and Sarg, T. (Je '28)
Book of poetry. Markham, E., comp. (Je '28)
Book of princess stories. Adams, K., and Atchinson, F. E., comps. (Mr '28)
Book of shrubs. Hottes, A. C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Book of words. Kipling, R. (O '28)

Books

McKerrow, R. B. Introduction to bibliography. (Mr '28)
McMurtrie, D. C. Golden book. (My '28)
Maxwell, M. Story of books up through the ages. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Newton, A. E: This book-collecting game. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Reviews

Jones, L. How to criticize books. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Books and reading

Bennett, J. O. Much loved books. (Mr '28)
Dickinson, A. D., comp. Best books of our time, 1901-1925. (N '28)
Erskine, J: Delight of great books. (My '28)
Hind, C: L: One hundred best books. (Ag '28)
Pearson, E. L. Queer books. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Booth, Herbert

Ottman, F. C. Herbert Booth. (S '28)

Booth, John Wilkes

Fiction

Glasgow, A. Twisted tendril. (S '28)

Borgia family

Portigliotti, G. The Borgias. (My '28)
The Borgias. Portigliotti, G. (My '28)

Boston

History

Colonial period

Hulton, A. Letters of a loyalist lady. (S '28)

Social life and customs

Hulton, A. Letters of a loyalist lady. (S '28)

Boston. Sinclair, U. B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Boston through the ages. Crosby, I. B. (Ag '28)

Botanists

Hawks, E., and Boulger, G: S. Pioneers of plant study. (N '28)

Botany

Swingle, D. B. Textbook of systematic botany. (N '28)

History

Hawks, E., and Boulger, G: S. Pioneers of plant study. (N '28)

Bounties

Macdonald, A. F. Federal aid. (Ag '28)

Bourne, George, pseud. See Sturt, G: (My '28)

Boxing

Farnol, J. Famous prize fights. (S '28)
O'Brien, J., and Bilik, S: E. Boxing. (O '28)

Boy in the sun. Rosenfeld, P. (D '28)
Boy in the wind. Dillon, G: (Mr '28)
Boy knight of Reims. Lownsbery, E. (My '28)
Boy of the desert. Tietjens, E. S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Boy showman and entertainer. Rose, A. (Ap '28)
Boy who found out. Wade, M. H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
The boy who was. Hallock, G. T. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Boys' book of airmen. Crump, I. (Ag '28)
Boys' book of camp life. Jessup, E. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Boy's busy book. Fraser, C. C. (My '28)

Brahe, Tyge

Fiction

Brod, M. Redemption of Tycho Brahe. (S '28)

Brahms, Johannes

Schumann, C. J., and Brahms, J. Letters, 1853-1896. (Je '28)

Brain

Piéron, H. Thought and brain. (My '28)
Tilney, F: Brain from ape to man. (N '28)

Brain from ape to man. Tilney, F: (N '28)
Bram. Jacobs, C: P. (Ag '28)
Bramah, Ernest, pseud. See Smith, E. B. (Je '28)

Bread

Ashley, W: J. Bread of our forefathers. (O '28)

Bread an' jam. Garthwaite, W. B. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Bread of our forefathers. Ashley, W: J. (O '28)
Bride's progress. Weston, H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Bridle wise. Goldschmidt, S. G. (Ag '28)
Brief candle. Venner, N. (D '28)

Brigands and robbers

Hatch, W. J. Land pirates of India. (N '28)

Bright avenues. Bentham, J. (My '28)
Bright metal. Stribling, T: S. (N '28)
British coal dilemma. Lubin, I., and Everett, H. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
British engineering wages. Spicer, R. S. (Ag '28)
British foreign secretaries, 1807-1916. Cecil, A. (Mr '28)

British Honduras

Gann, T: W: F. Maya cities. (Ag '28)

British war finance, 1914-1919. Grady, H: F. (My '28)
Broadway racketeers. O'Connor, J: J. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Brock, Lynn, pseud. See McAllister, A. (N '28)
Broken. Ayres, R. M. (N '28)

Brontë, Charlotte
Dimnet, E. Brontë sisters. (Mr '28)
Brontë, Emily Jane
Wilson, R., pseud. Life and private history of Emily Jane Brontë. (Ag '28)
Brontë family
Dimnet, E. Brontë sisters. (Mr '28)
Brontë sisters. Dimnet, E. (Mr '28)
Bronze age
Osborn, H: F. Man rises to Parnassus. (S '28)
Bronze treasury. Kemp, H., ed. (Ap '28)
Brood of ducklings. Swinnerton, F. A. (D '28)
Brook Evans. Glaspell, S. (Ag '28)
Brook Farm
Orvis, M. Letters from Brook Farm, 1844-1847. (D '28)
Brooke, Rupert
Browne, M. Recollections of Rupert Brooke. (Je '28)
Brooks, Jonathan, pseud. See Mellett, J: C. (My '28)
Brother and brother. Van Doren, D. (D '28)
Brother Scots. Carswell, D. (My '28)
Brown, John
Poetry
Benét, S. V. John Brown's body. (S '28)
Browning, Mrs Elizabeth (Barrett)
Burdett, O. The Brownings. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Willis, I. C. Elizabeth Barrett Browning. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Browning, Robert
Atkins, G. G. Reinspecting Victorian religion. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Burdett, O. The Brownings. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
De Vane, W: C. Browning's Parleyings. (Ap '28)
The Brownings. Burdett, O. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Browning's Parleyings. De Vane, W: C. (Ap '28)
Bryan, the Great Commoner. Long, J: C. (S '28)
Bryan, William Jennings
Long, J: C. Bryan, the Great Commoner. (S '28)
Buccaneers
Wycherley, G: Buccaneers of the Pacific. (My '28)
Buccaneers of the Pacific. Wycherley, G: (My '28)
Buck in the snow. Millay, E. St V. (D '28)
Buddha and Buddhism
Beck, L. A. Story of oriental philosophy. (O '28)
Brown, B., ed. Story of Buddha and Buddhism. (My '28)
Saunders, K. J. Gospel for Asia. (D '28)
Buffalo. Park school of Buffalo
Lewis, M. H. Adventure with children. (S '28)
Buffalo Bill. See Cody, W: F: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Build a winning model yacht. Moore, T: (D '28)
The builder. Steel, F. A. (N '28)
Building
Handbooks, manuals, etc.
Dingman, C: F. Construction job management. (N '28)
Superintendence
Dingman, C: F. Construction job management. (N '28)
Building international goodwill. World alliance for international friendship through the churches. (N '27)
Building of cultures. Dixon, R. B. (My '28)
Bunker Hill, Battle of, 1775
Murdock, H. Bunker Hill. (My '28)
Bunker Hill. Murdock, H. (My '28)
Bunyan, John
Griffith, G. O. John Bunyan. (O '28)
Harding, W: H: John Bunyan, pilgrim and dreamer. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Harrison, G: B. John Bunyan. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bureau of educational experiments, New York
Johnson, H. M. Children in the Nursery school. (N '28)
Burgoyne, John
Nickerson, H. Turning point of the revolution. (Ag '28)
Burke, Edmund
Newman, B. Edmund Burke. (Mr '28)
Burning bush. Untermeyer, L: (Ag '28)
Burns, Robert
Burns, R. Letters. (N '28)
Burroughs, John
Burroughs, J: Heart of Burroughs's journals. (D '28)
Burying road. Wiltshire, M. (Je '28)
Bush fruit production. Van Meter, R. A. (D '28)
Bush terminal company
Bush, I. T. Working with the world. (Ap '28)
Business
Bush, I. T. Working with the world. (Ap '28)
Calkins, E. E. Business, the civilizer. (Je '28)
Crecraft, E. W. Government and business. (O '28)
Disbrow, C: W. Fundamentals of banking, finance, and economics. (Ap '28)
Foster, W: T., and Catchings, W. Road to plenty. (Je '28)
Business conditions
Mazur, P. M. American prosperity. (Ag '28)
Business-cycle theory. Hansen, A. H. (O '28)
Business cycles
Hansen, A. H. Business-cycle theory. (O '28)
Pigou, A. C. Industrial fluctuations. (My '28)
Business of the Supreme court. Frankfurter, F., and Landis, J. M. (My '28)
Business, the civilizer. Calkins, E. E. (Je '28)
But gentlemen marry brunettes. Loos, A. (Ag '28)
But once a year. Abbott, E. H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
By request. Eng title of Peggy by request. Dell, E. M. (Je '28)
By the clock of St. James's. Armytage, P. (Mr '28)
By-products in the packing industry. Clemen, R. A. (My '28)
Byrd, Richard Evelyn
Green, F. Dick Byrd—air explorer. (O '28)
Byrd, William
Howes, F. William Byrd. (Je '28)
Byrom, John
Hobhouse, S. H: William Law and eighteenth century Quakerism. (My '28)
Byron, George Gordon Noël, 6th baron
Elliott, M. Lord Byron's helmet. (N '28)

Cabin at the trail's end. Hargreaves, S. (Je '28)
Cabinet officers
United States
Bemis, S: F., ed. American secretaries of state and their diplomacy, v 4-5. (O '28)
Cable, George Washington
Bikle, L. L. George W. Cable. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Caesar, Caius Julius
Thaddeus, V: Julius Caesar & the grandeur that was Rome. (Je '28)
Caledonia. Thomson, G: M. (Ag '28)
Calendars
Hazeltine, M. E. Anniversaries and holidays. (O '28)
Calhoun, John Caldwell
Bancroft, F: Calhoun and the South Carolina nullification movement. (D '28)

Calhoun and the South Carolina nullification movement. Bancroft, F: (D '28)

California

Gold discoveries

Ritchie, R. W. Hell-roarin' forty-niners. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

California. State prison, San Quentin
Tasker, R. J. Grimhaven. (D '28)
Call it a day! Patrick, D., pseud. (Ap '28)

Calorimeters and calorimetry
White, W. P. Modern calorimeter. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Cambric tea. Lowrie, R. (Je '28)
Cambridge ancient history, v 6. (Mr '28)
Camp Conqueror. Bennett, E. (D '28)

Camping
Jessup, E. Boys' book of camp life. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Campus. Angell, R. C. (Je '28)

Canada

Constitutional history

Massey, V. Making of a nation. (Ag '28)

History

Wittke, C. History of Canada. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Politics and government

Massey, V. Making of a nation. (Ag '28)

Social life and customs

Bouchard, G. Other days, other ways (Vieilles choses vieilles gens). (Je '28)

Canadian ballads and songs
Mackenzie, W: R., comp. Ballads and sea songs from Nova Scotia. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Canadian short stories. Knister, R., ed. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Cancer
Soiland, A. Cancer. (S '28)
Candle-light stories. Hutchinson, V. S., ed. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Cannon law. Paynter, T: C. (S '28)

Canot, Theodore
Canot, T. Adventurès of an African slaver. (S '28)

Cape Cod
Sheahan, H: B. Outermost house. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Cape Colony
Duff-Gordon, L. Letters from the Cape. (Ap '28)
Capital and finance in the age of the renaissance. Ehrenberg, R: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Capitalism
Shaw, G: B. Intelligent woman's guide to socialism and capitalism. (Ag '28)
Cap'n Sue. Footner, H. (N '28)
Captain Jack. Outerbridge, H:, ed. (S '28)
Captain Java. Beck, L. A. (D '28)
Capture of old Vincennes. Clark, G: R., and Hamilton, H: (Je '28)
Caravans to Santa Fe. Malkus, A. S. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Cardinal's mistress. Mussolini, B. (N '28)
Care of ornamental trees in planting. Greeves-Carpenter, C. F. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Careers. Rodger, E. G. (Ag '28)
Caribbean cruise. Foster, H. La T. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Caribbean sea
Foster, H. La T. Caribbean cruise. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Caricature
Ashbee, C: R. Caricature. (O '28)

Caricatures and cartoons

Negroes

Covarrubias, M. Negro drawings. (S '28)

Carlyle, Mrs Jane Baillie (Welsh)
Drew, E. A. Jane Welsh and Jane Carlyle. (My '28)

Carlyle, Thomas
Drew, E. A. Jane Welsh and Jane Carlyle. (My '28)
Young, N. Carlyle. (Ag '28)
Carnack, the life-bringer. Gale, O. M. (S '28)

Caroline (ship)
Hare, R. H. A. Voyage of the Caroline from England to Van Diemen's Land and Batavia in 1827-28. (D '28)

Carpentry
Roehl, L: M. Household carpentry. (S '28)

Carson, Christopher
Vestal, S. Kit Carson. (My '28)

Caruso, Enrico
Caruso, D., and Goddard, T. Wings of song. (Ag '28)

Casanova de Seingalt, Giacomo Girolamo
Zweig, S. Adepts in self-portraiture. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Case for Christianity. Rogers, C. F. (N '28)
Case of Sergeant Grischa. Zweig, A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Case studies in community organization. Pettit, W. W: (Je '28)
Caspar Hauser. Wassermann, J. (D '28)
Cassiodore case. Martin, A. R: (Ag '28)

Castile

History

Seaver, H: L. Great revolt in Castile. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Castles in Spain. Gunterman, B. L., comp. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Cat book. Lucas, E: V. (Ap '28)
The catastrophe. Kerensky, A. F. (Mr '28)
Cathedral sermons. Robbins, H. C. (Ap '28)
Catherine-Paris. Bibesco, M. L. (Ag '28)
Catholic church and the Bible. Pope, H. (N '28)
Catholic church and the citizen. Ryan, J: A. (O '28)
Catholic church and the home. Gillis, J. M. (O '28)
Catholic spirit in America. Shuster, G: N. (My '28)
Catholic view of holism. Kolbe, F: C: (Ag '28)
Catholicism and the American mind. Garrison, W. E. (O '28)

Cats
Gates, G. I. Modern cat. (S '28)

Cats, Stories of
Underwood, L. Siamese cat. (My '28)

Catullus, Gaius Valerius
Frank, T. Catullus and Horace. (Ag '28)
Catullus and Horace. Frank, T. (Ag '28)
Caught! Croy, H. (O '28)
Cavalier of Tennessee. Nicholson, M. (S '28)
Cavalleria rusticana. Verga, G. (O '28)
Cave man's legacy. Hankin, E. H. (O '28)

Cavell, Edith Louisa

Fiction

Berkeley, R. C. Dawn. (S '28)
Celebrated trials and remarkable cases of criminal jurisprudence from the earliest records to the year 1825. Borrow, G:, ed. (O '28)

Central America
Ruhl, A. B. Central Americans. (N '28)

Antiquities

Gann, T: W: F. Maya cities. (Ag '28)

Description and travel

Puxley, W. L. Magic land of the Maya. (D '28)

Central Americans. Ruhl, A. B. (N '28)

Central Park, New York (city)
Olmsted, F: L. Frederick Law Olmsted, v 2. (My '28)
The centuries. Basshe, E. J. (S '28)
Century of fashion. Worth, J. P. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Century of industrial progress. Wile, F: W:, ed. (S '28)
Ceramic tests and calculations. Andrews, A. I. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Ceramics. Wilson, H. (Ap '28)
A certain Dr Thorndyke. Freeman, R: A. (Ap '28)

Certainty of God. Gilkey, J. G. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Certitudes. Mary Eleanore, Sister. (Mr '28)
C'est la guerre! Dunton, J. G., ed. (Je '28)
Chain of error in Scottish history. Hay, M. V. (Ag '28)
Chain store distribution and management. Baxter, W: J. (O '28)

Chain stores
Baxter, W: J. Chain store distribution and management. (O '28)

Chairs
Dyer, W. A., and Fraser, E. S. Rocking-chair. (S '28)
Challenge. McAdoo, W: G. (N '28)
The chameleon Eng title of Poison shadows. Le Queux, W: (My '28)
Changing college. Wilkins, E. H. (Ap 28)
Changing road. McGrath, H. (Mr '28)
Changing South. Robertson, W: J. (Ap '28)
Chaps and chukkers. Ames, J. B. (O '28)

Character
Roback, A. A. Psychology of character. (Ag '28)

Characters and characteristics
Adler, A. Understanding human nature. (O '28)
Kelley, T. L. Crossroads in the mind of man. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Charities

United States
Kelso, R. W. Science of public welfare. (N '28)

Charles V, emperor of Germany
Seaver, H: L. Great revolt in Castile. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Charles Dickens. Straus, R. (N '28)
Charles Dickens as a legal historian. Holdsworth, W: S. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Charles Edward Louis Philip Casimir Stuart (Young Pretender)
Chidsey, D. B. Bonnie Prince Charlie. (N '28)
Charles James Fox. Drinkwater, J: (D '28)
Charles M. Doughty. Fairley, B. (Ap '28)

Charlotte, empress consort of Maximilian, emperor of Mexico
Corti, E. C. Maximilian and Charlotte of Mexico. (Ag '28)

Chaucer, Geoffrey
Ker, W: P. Form and style in poetry. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Checkmate. Forbes-Leith, F. A. C. (Ap '28)

Chemical affinity
Hudleston, L. J. Chemical affinity. (O '28)
Chemical amusements & experiments. Gibson, C: R. (D '28)

Chemical reactions
Rice, F. O. Mechanism of homogeneous organic reactions from the physical-chemical standpoint. (Ag '28)

Chemical tests and reagents
Murray, B: L. Standards and tests for reagent and C. P. chemicals. (My '28)

Chemistry

Experiments
Gibson, C: R. Chemical amusements & experiments. (D '28)

History
Darrow, F. L. Story of chemistry. (Mr '28)

Problems, exercises, etc.
Daniels, F. Mathematical preparation for physical chemistry. (S '28)

Chemistry, Analytic
Griffin, R. C., ed. Technical methods of analysis. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Qualitative
Noyes, A. A., and Bray, W: C. System of qualitative analysis for the rare elements. (D '28)

Chemistry, Organic
Adkins, H. B., and McElvain, S: M. Elementary organic chemistry. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Rice, F. O. Mechanism of homogeneous organic reactions from the physical-chemical standpoint. (Ag '28)

Chemistry, Physical and theoretical
Daniels, F. Mathematical preparation for physical chemistry. (S '28)
Gerlach, W. Matter, electricity, energy. (D '28)
Steel, M. Physical chemistry and biophysics for students of biology and medicine. (O '28)

Chemistry, Technical
Griffin, R. C., ed. Technical methods of analysis. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lewis, E. I:, and King, G: Making of a chemical. (Ag '28)
Little, A. D. Handwriting on the wall. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Chemistry of water and sewage treatment. Buswell, A. M. (Ag '28)
Cherokee trails. Ogden, G: W. (Je '28)
Chevalier Bayard. Shellabarger, S: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Cheyenne Indians
Collins, H. E. Warpath & cattle trail. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Chicago

Public schools
Counts, G: S. School and society in Chicago. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Child and society. Blanchard, P. M. (O '28)
Child and the world. Naumburg, M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Child study
Arlitt, A. H. Psychology of infancy and early childhood. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Blanchard, P. M. Child and society. (O '28)
Freud, A. Introduction to the technic of child analysis. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Gesell, A. L. Infancy and human growth. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Johnson, H. M. Children in the nursery school. (N '28)
Piaget, J., and others. Judgment and reasoning in the child. (N '28)
Richardson, F. H. Nervous child and his parents. (Ag '28)
Seabury, D: Growing into life. (Ag '28)
Thom, D. A. Everyday problems of the everyday child. (O '28)
Watson, J: B. and R. A. Psychological care of infant and child. (Je '28)
Weill, B. C. Behavior of young children of the same family. (D '28)
The Childermass, pt 1. Lewis, W. (O '28)

Children
Stoddard, T. L. Story of youth. (D '28)

Care and hygiene
Aldrich, C: A. Cultivating the child's appetite. (S '28)
Bennett, H: E. School posture and seating. (N '28)
Richardson, F. H. Nervous child and his parents. (Ag '28)
Watson, J: B. and R. A. Psychological care of infant and child. (Je '28)
Wood, T: D., and Lerrigs, M. O. Health behavior. (Ap '28)

Diseases
Richardson, F. H. Nervous child and his parents. (Ag '28)

Management
Gilbreth, L. E. Living with our children. (O '28)
Richardson, F. H. Nervous child and his parents. (Ag '28)
Thom, D. A. Everyday problems of the everyday child. (O '28)
Van Waters, M. Parents on probation. (O '28)
Watson, J: B. and R. A. Psychological care of infant and child. (Je '28)

Nutrition
Aldrich, C: A. Cultivating the child's appetite. (S '28)
Barnes, M. F. Feeding the child from two to six. (Je '28)
Reilly, E. How to cook for children. (Ap '28)

Children, Abnormal and backward
Whipple, H. Making citizens of the mentally limited. (Ag '28)
The children. Wharton, E. (O '28)
Children & fools. Mann, T: (Je '28)

Children in Europe
Upjohn, A. M. Friends in strange garments. (Je '28)

Children in Nigeria
Best, A. Girls in Africa. (D '28)
Children in the nursery school. Johnson, H. M. (N '28)

Children in the United States
Clark, I. Old days and old ways. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Children of the fog. Guest, C. (Mr '28)
Children of the river. Dickson, H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Children sing in the far West. Austin, M. (D '28)
Children's book of American landmarks. Bryant, L. M. (Mr '28)
Children's book of European landmarks. Bryant, L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Children's literature
Adams, K., and Atchinson, F. E., comps. Book of princess stories. (Mr '28)
Adams, R. G. Gateway to American history. (Ap '28)
Agnew, G. Let's pretend. (Mr '28)
Ainsworth, J: Story of Saint Christopher. (N '28)
Asquith, C. M. E., ed. Treasure cave. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Aulnoy, M. C. J. de B. White cat. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Bacon, P. Mercy and the mouse. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Baker, M. Water elf and the miller's child. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bartlett, A. C. Spunk, leader of the dog team. (Mr '28)
Bennett, E. Camp Conqueror. (D '28)
Best, A. Black folk tales. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Best, A. Girls in Africa. (D '28)
Blackwood, A. Sambo and Snitch. (Mr '28)
Blake, G. Doña Isabella's adventures. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bland, E. Bastable children. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bonner, M. G. Miss Angelina Adorable. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Bouton, J., comp. Poems for the children's hour. (Mr '28)
Bridges, T. C. Young folk's book of the sea. (Ag '28)
Brown, E. A. Three gates. (D '28)
Bryant, L. M. Children's book of European land-marks. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Bryant, L. M. Children's book of American landmarks. (Mr '28)
Budden, J: Jungle John. (Mr '28)
Capuana, L. Nimble-legs. (Ap '28)
Cheyney, E: G. Matu, the Iroquois. (D '28)
Clark, I. Old days and old ways. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Clark, I. Suppose we do something else. (My '28)
Cobb, B. B. and E. Pennie. (S '28)
Colum, P. Fountain of youth. (Mr '28)
Crew, H. Trojan boy. (D '28)
Crownfield, G. Feast of Noël. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Crump, I. Boys' book of airmen. (Ag '28)
Darwin, B. R: M. and E. M. Tootleoo two. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
De La Mare, W. J: Told again. (Ap '28)
Downey, J. E. Kingdom of the mind. (My '28)
Drake, H: B. Cursed be the treasure. (My '28)
Dussauze, A. Little Jack Rabbit. (Ag '28)
Duval, E. W. This earth we live on. (My '28)
Emerson, C. D. Hat-tub tale. (N '28)
Everson, F. M., and Power, E. L. Early days in Ohio. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Field, R. L. Little dog Toby. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Field, R. L. Polly Patchwork. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Field, W. T. Guide to literature for children. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Finger, C: J. David Livingstone. (Ap '28)
Finger, C: J. Spreading stain. (Mr '28)
Forbes, H. C. Araminta. (Ap '28)
Fuller, H. O. Halsey in the West Indies. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Fyleman, R. A princess comes to our town. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Gág, W. Millions of cats. (N '28)
Gibson, C: R. Chemical amusements & experiments. (D '28)
Green, F. Dick Byrd—air explorer. (O '28)
Green, F. Martin Johnson, lion hunter. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Grey, Z. Don. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Gunterman, B. L., comp. Castles in Spain. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Hader, B. and E. Picture book of travel. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hallock, G. T. The boy who was. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Hawkes, C. Patches. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hicks, H. H. Alexander Hamilton. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Hodder, M. W. S. Pax, the adventurous horse. (O '28)
Hodgkins, M. D. H., ed. Atlantic treasury of childhood stories. (D '28)
Hough, W. Story of fire. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Howes, I. C. Jane, be good! (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Hutchinson, V. S., ed. Candle-light stories. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Hyer, H. von K. Hurricane harbor. (Ap '28)
Jacobs, A. M. Knights of the wing. (Ag '28)
Jessup, E. Boys' book of camp life. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Justus, M. Peter Pocket. (My '28)
Knipe, E. and A. A. Lost—a brother. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Knipe, E. and A. A. Treasure-trove. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Kovalsky, K. A. and O. N. Flying horse. (N '28)
Kyle, M. Little Sister. (Mr '28)
Lamb, C: and M. A. Mrs Leicester's school. (My '28)
Lang, A., ed. Conquest of Montezuma's empire. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lansing, M. F. Magic gold. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Laughlin, C. E. Where it all comes true in Italy and Switzerland. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Lenski, L., comp. Jack Horner's pie. (Ap '28)
Lesterman, J: Sailor of Napoleon. (My '28)
Lisle, C. Lenapé trails. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lofting, H. Doctor Dolittle in the moon. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Lombroso, P. Adventures of Chicchi. (Mr '28)
Lomen, H., and Flack, M. Taktuk. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Longstreth, T: M. Sons of the mounted police. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Loomis, A. F. Sea legs. (Je '28)
Lownsbery, E. Boy knight of Reims. (My '28)
Lucas, E: V. Cat book. (Ap '28)
Lutz, E. G: More things to draw. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
McClelland, N. V. Young decorators. (Ag '28)
McCoy, N. Jupie follows his tale. (D '28)
MacDonald, G. Count Billy. (N '28)
Mackenzie, C: F. Jackal in Persia. (D '28)
McMillen, W. Young collector. (S '28)
Malkus, A. S. Dragon fly of Zuñi. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Mason, A., and Frank, M. Fossil fountain. (D '28)
Maxwell, M. Story of books up through the ages. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Meigs, C. L. Clearing weather. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Meigs, C. L. Wonderful locomotive. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Mellen, I. M. Young folks' book of fishes. (My '28)
Milne, A. A. House at Pooh Corner. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Moon, G. Runaway papoose. (D '28)
Mukerji, D. G. Ghond, the hunter. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Nida, W: L: and S. H. Pilots and pathfinders. (N '28)
Olcott, F. J. Children's reading. (Je '28)

Paxton, M. River gold. (Je '28)
Pease, H. Jinx ship. (Ap '28)
Perkins, L. Pioneer twins. (Mr '28)
Powel, H. W. H., and Carter, R. G. Giant's house. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Price, E. B. Citizen of nowhere. (Ap '28)
Pyle, K. Tales from Greek mythology. (O '28)
Rideout, H: M. Lola the Bear. (N '28)
Rose, A. Boy showman and entertainer. (Ap '28)
Rowe, D. Begging deer. (D '28)
Saxo Grammaticus. Swords of the Vikings. (N '28)
Skinner, C. L. Roselle of the North. (My '28)
Sloan, E. More about Ellie and Mr Me Too. (D '28)
Southwold, S., ed. Children's play-hour book. (Ap '28)
Stephens, C: A. Katahdin camps. (O '28)
Sterne, E. G. White Swallow. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Tietjens, E. S. Boy of the desert. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Tomlinson, E. T. Three boys in Alaska. (N '28)
Tucker, L: In the hills of Galilee. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Upjohn, A. M. Friends in strange garments. (Je '28)
Varble, R. M. Red cape. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Wade, M. H. Boy who found out. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Wells, R. American farm. (N '28)
Whitcomb, E. P. We five. (D '28)
Whiting, J: D. S.O.S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Whitney, E. Tod, of the fens. (O '28)
Wilson, R., pseud. Green magic. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Bibliography

Brown, Z. M., ed. Standard catalog for high school libraries. (Ag '28)
Davis, M. G., ed. Stories. (O '28)
Field, W. T. Guide to literature for children. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Children's play-hour book. Southwold, S., ed. (Ap '28)

Children's plays

Dix, B. M. Legend of Saint Nicholas. (Ap '28)
Kennedy, M., and Bemis, K. I. Special day pageants for little people. (D '28)
Mackay, C. D. Children's theatres and plays (Ap '28)
Niemeier, M. A. New plays for every day the schools celebrate. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Olcott, V. Household plays for young people. (D '28)

Children's poetry

Agnew, G. Let's pretend. (Mr '28)
Aldis, D. Here, there and everywhere. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bouton, J., comp. Poems for the children's hour. (Mr '28)
Cabot, E. Balloon moon. (Je '28)
Drinkwater, J: All about me. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Farjeon, E. Come Christmas. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Garthwaite, W. B. Bread an' jam. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lenski, L., comp. Jack Horner's pie. (Ap '28)
Wolfe, H. Cursory rhymes. (N '28)
Children's reading. Olcott, F. J. (Je '28)

Children's songs

Untermeyer, L:, and others, eds. New songs for new voices. (D '28)
Children's theatres and plays. Mackay, C. D. (Ap '28)

Chimes and chiming

Cole, S. N. Bells. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

China

Baker, J: E. Explaining China. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Johnsen, J. E., comp. Selected articles on China yesterday and today. (S '28)
Johnson, E. R: Interpretations. (Je '28)

Civilization

Andersson, J. G. Dragon and the foreign devils. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Sun Yat-Sen. Memoirs of a Chinese revolutionary. (D '28)

Court and courtiers

Der Ling, princess. Old Buddha. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Description and travel

Cable, M., and French, F. L. Through jade gate and central Asia. (My '28)
Huc, E. R. Huc and Gabet; Travels in Tartary, Thibet and China, 1844-1846. (S '28)
Kerby, P. Beyond the Bund. (Mr '28)
Wilhelm, R: Soul of China. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Economic conditions

Millard, T: F. F. China. (My '28)
Nearing, S. Whither China? (My '28)

Foreign relations

Millard, T: F. F. China. (My '28)
Monroe, P. China. (Ap '28)
Nearing, S. Whither China? (My '28)
Ransome, A. Chinese puzzle. (Mr '28)
Treat, P. J. Far East. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

History

Nearing, S. Whither China? (My '28)
Wilhelm, R: Soul of China. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Taiping rebellion, 1850-1864

Hail, W: J. Tsêng Kuo-fan and the Taiping rebellion. (Ap '28)

Republic, 1912-

Krarup-Nielsen, A. The dragon awakes. (D '28)
Strong, A. L. China's millions. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sun Yat-Sen. Memoirs of a Chinese revolutionary. (D '28)

Industries

Nearing, S. Whither China? (My '28)

Politics and government

Millard, T: F. F. China. (My '28)
Ransome, A. Chinese puzzle. (Mr '28)
Sun Yat-Sen. Memoirs of a Chinese revolutionary. (D '28)
Thomas, E. D. Chinese political thought. (Je '28)

Social conditions

Monroe, P. China. (Ap '28)
Nearing, S. Whither China? (My '28)

Social life and customs

Kerby, P. Beyond the Bund. (Mr '28)
China. Millard, T: F. F. (My '28)
China. Monroe, P. (Ap '28)
China's crucifixion. Simpson, B. L. (N '28)
China's millions. Strong, A. L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Chinese ghouls and goblins. Willoughby-Meade, G. (N '28)

Chinese in the United States

McKenzie, R. D. Oriental exclusion. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Chinese painting. Ferguson, J: C. (Ag '28)
Chinese political thought. Thomas, E. D. (Je '28)
Chinese puzzle. Ransome, A. (Mr '28)

Chlorophyl

Willstätter, R: M., and Stoll, A. Investigations on chlorophyll. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Choate, Rufus

Fuess, C. M. Rufus Choate. (My '28)
Christ at the Round table. Jones, E. S. (Je '28)
Christ the Word. More, P. E. (Ap '28)

Christian IV, king of Denmark

Gade, J: A. Christian IV. (Ag '28)

Christian biography

Mackay, H: F. B. Saints and leaders. (N '28)

Christian ethics

Scullard, H. H. Ethics of the Gospel. (Ag '28)
Christian humanism. Stafford, R. H: (My '28)

Christian life
Slattery, C: L: Following Christ. (Je '28)
Christianity
Brown, W: A. Beliefs that matter. (N '28)
Kennedy, H. A. S. Impatience of a layman. (D '28)
Lindsay, A. D., and others. Christianity and the present moral unrest. (Je '28)
Niebuhr, R. Does civilization need religion? (Mr '28)
Rall, H. F., and Cohon, S: S. Christianity and Judaism compare notes. (Ap '28)
Royden, A. M. I believe in God. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Sheppard, H. R: L. Impatience of a parson. (S '28)
Smith, G. B. Current Christian thinking. (Je '28)
Studies in early Christianity. (N '28)
Unamuno y Jugo, M. de. Agony of Christianity. (Ag '28)
Weigall, A. E: P. B. Paganism in our Christianity. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Addresses, essays, lectures
Smith, G. B., ed. Religious thought in the last quarter-century. (O '28)

Evidences
Rogers, C. F. Case for Christianity. (N '28)
Christianity and Judaism compare notes. Rall, H. F., and Cohon, S: S. (Ap '28)
Christianity and other religions
Eakin, F. Revaluing scripture. (O '28)
Jones, E. S. Christ at the Round table. (Je '28)
Saunders, K. J. Gospel for Asia. (D '28)

Hinduism
Buck, O. M. "Our Asiatic Christ." (O '28)
Christianity and the present moral unrest. Lindsay, A. D., and others. (Je '28)
Christmas
Lewis, D: B. W., and Heseltine, G. C. Christmas book. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Christmas book. Lewis, D: B. W., and Heseltine, G. C. (Ja '28) (1928 Annual) Christmas poetry
Farjeon, E. Come Christmas. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Christmas stories
Abbott, E. H. But once a year. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Crownfield, G. Feast of Noël. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Christophe, Henri, king of Haiti
Vandercook, J: W. Black majesty. (My '28)
Christopher, Saint
Ainsworth, J: Story of Saint Christopher. (N '28)
Christopher North and the Noctes Ambrosianae. Lowell, C. T. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Chudleigh, Elizabeth, countess of Bristol, calling herself duchess of Kingston
Brown, B. C. Elizabeth Chudleigh, duchess of Kingston. (D '28)
Chudleigh, E. (defendant). Trial of the duchess of Kingston. (My '28)
Church
Fiske, C: Confessions of a puzzled parson. (N '28)
Sheppard, H. R: L. Impatience of a parson. (S '28)
Church and labor
McEntee, G. P. Social Catholic movement in Great Britain. (Ap '28)
Church and social problems
Lindsay, A. D., and others. Christianity and the present moral unrest. (Je '28)
Church and state
Garrison, W. E. Catholicism and the American mind. (O '28)
Haas, J: A: W: Problem of the Christian state. (O '28)
Marshall, C: C. Roman Catholic church in the modern state. (S '28)
Ryan, J: A. Catholic church and the citizen. (O '28)
Schroeder, T. A. Al. Smith, the pope, and the presidency. (O '28)
Church and state in Russia
Spinka, M. Church and the Russian revolution. (My '28)
Church and state in the United States
Shuster, G: N. Catholic spirit in America. (My '28)
Church and the Russian revolution. Spinka, M. (My '28)
Church architecture
England
Coulton, G: G. Art and the reformation. (O '28)
Church history
Primitive and early church
More, P. E. Christ the Word. (Ap '28)
Shotwell, J. T., and Loomis, L. R., eds. See of Peter. (Ag '28)
Studies in early Christianity. (N '28)
Church-idea. Huntington, W: R. (My '28)
The church in the changing city. Douglass, H. P. (Ap '28)
Church of England
Barnes, E. W: Should such a faith offend? (Je '28)
Dark, S. Five deans. (O '28)
Iremonger, F: A. Men and movements in the church. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Clergy
Richardson, C. F. English preachers and preaching, 1640-1670. (Ag '28)
Church unity
Huntington, W: R. Church-idea. (My '28)
Soper, E. D. Lausanne: the will to understand. (S '28)
Churches
Douglass, H. P. The church in the changing city. (Ap '28)
Churchill, Winston
Roberts, C. E. B. Winston Churchill. (My '28)
Cibber, Colley
Senior, D. Life and times of Colley Cibber. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Cindy. Lane, R. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Cipher of Roger Bacon. Newbold, W: R. (O '28)
Ciphers
Newbold, W: R. Cipher of Roger Bacon. (O '28)
Circus
Bostock, E. H. Menageries, circuses and theatres. (Mr '28)
Zora, L. Sawdust and solitude. (My '28)
Cities and men. Lewisohn, L. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Cities and towns
Civic improvement
Wood, A. E. Community problems. (N '28)
Africa
Belloc, H. Towns of destiny. (My '28)
Europe
Belloc, H. Towns of destiny. (My '28)
Cities of the plain. Proust, M. (Ap '28)
Citizen of nowhere. Price, E. B. (Ap '28)
Citizenship
Jacks, L. P. Constructive citizenship. (Ap '28)
Citroën expedition
Haardt, G. M., and Audouin-Dubreuil, L: Black journey. (Ap '28)
City and town life
Miller, E. E. Town and country. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Thompson, J: G. Urbanization. (My '28)
City manager. White, L. D. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
City planning
Townroe, B. S. Slum problem. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Civilization
Barnes, H. E. Living in the twentieth century. (D '28)
Beard, C: A., ed. Whither mankind. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Bell, C. Civilization. (N '28)
Daudet, L. A. The stupid XIXth century. (Je '28)
Dixon, R. B. Building of cultures. (My '28)
Ellwood, C: A. Cultural evolution. (Je '28)
Gibbs, P. H. Day after to-morrow. (My '28)
Hertz, F. O: Race and civilization. (Je '28)
Massis, H. Defence of the West. (Je '28)
Niebuhr, R. Does civilization need religion? (Mr '28)
Smith, G. E., and others. Culture. (S '28)
Wells, H. G: Open conspiracy. (O '28)
Woolf, L. S. Imperialism and civilization. (Je '28)

History

Hattersley, A. F: Short history of western civilisation. (Ap '28)
Lull, R: S. Ancient man. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Parsons, G. Stream of history (Ag '28)
Spengler, O. Decline of the West, v 2. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Civilization, Ancient
Peake, H. J: E:, and Fleure, H. J: Peasants & potters. (Je '28)
Peake, H. J: E:, and Fleure, H. J: Priests & kings. (Je '28)

Civilization, Greek
Gilbert, G: H. Greek thought in the New Testament. (S '28)
Tarn, W: W. Hellenistic civilisation. (Ap '28)

Civilization, Medieval
Osborn, E: B. Middle ages. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Civilization, Occidental
Parmelee, M. F. Oriental and occidental culture. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Civilization, Oriental
Mason, J. W. T. Creative East. (S '28)
Massis, H. Defence of the West. (Je '28)
Parmelee, M. F. Oriental and occidental culture. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Civilization, Roman
Chapot, V: Roman world. (N '28)
Civilization of Japan. Bryan, J: T: I. (S '28)
Claire Ambler. Tarkington, B. (Mr '28)

Clark, George Rogers
James, J. A. Life of George Rogers Clark. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Clark, John Bates
Homan, P. T: Contemporary economic thought. (N '28)
Classic shades. Howe, M. A. De W. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Classical tradition in poetry. Murray, G. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Clay
Wilson, H. Ceramics. (Ap '28)

Clay industries
Andrews, A. I. Ceramic tests and calculations. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Wilson, H. Ceramics. (Ap '28)
Clearing weather. Meigs, C. L. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Clergy

United States

Baldwin, A. M. New England clergy and the American revolution. (S '28)
The clever one. Wallace, E. (D '28)

Climbing plants
Wilson, E. H: More aristocrats of the garden. (Je '28)
Clinical and abnormal psychology. Wallin, J: E: W. (S '28)
Clipper ship. Daniel, H. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Clipper ships
Daniel, H. Clipper ship. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Shewan, A. Great days of sail. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Clock strikes two. Webster, H: K. (D '28)
Closed garden. Green, J. (Je '28)
Clothes economy for well dressed women. Wells, M. (Ap '28)
Clothes on and off the stage. Chalmers, H. (Ag '28)

Clothing and dress
Langdon-Davies, J: Lady Godiva. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Wells, M. Clothes economy for well dressed women. (Ap '28)
Clothing construction. Brown, C. M. (O '28)
Cloud-lands of France. Oakley, A. (Mr '28)
Cloudy in the West. White, W: P. (Ap '28)
Clowning through life. Foy, E., pseud. and Harlow, A. F. (Ap '28)

Clubs
Elliott, H. S. Process of group thinking. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Clutching hand. Dutton, C: J. (O '28)

Coaching (athletics)
Griffith, C. R. Psychology and athletics. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Coal carbonization. Roberts, J: (My '28)

Coal distillation
Roberts, J: Coal carbonization. (My '28)

Coal industry
Lubin, I., and Everett, H. British coal dilemma. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Coal miners
Lubin, I., and Everett, H. British coal dilemma. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Coal-tar
Everest, A. E. Higher coal-tar hydrocarbons. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Coast of pleasure. Richards, G. (N '28)

Cobden, Richard
Dawson, W: H. Richard Cobden and foreign policy. (My '28)
Cock pit. Cozzens, J. G. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Cock's feather. Burt, K. N. (D '28)

Coconut
Snodgrass, K. Copra and coconut oil. (Ja '28) (1928 Annual)

Cody, William Frederick (Buffalo Bill)
Walsh, R: J:, and Salsbury, M. S. Making of Buffalo Bill. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Colet, John
Dark, S. Five deans. (O '28)
Collected letters. Goldsmith, O. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Collected papers. Bradley, H: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Collected physical papers. Bose, J. C. (O '28)
Collected plays. Peabody, J. P. (My '28)
Collected poems. Coppard, A. E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Collected poems. Peabody, J. P. (My '28)
Collected poems. Robinson, E. A. (Mr '28)
Collected poems. Widdemer, M. (D '28)
Collecting. Lynch, B. (O '28)
Collecting hooked rugs. Waugh, E., and Foley, E. (Ap '28)

Collectors and collecting
Lynch, B. Collecting. (O '28)
McMillen, W. Young collector. (S '28)
Waugh, E., and Foley, E. Collecting hooked rugs. (Ap '28)
Collector's choice. Winterich, J: T. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

College sports
Griffith, C. R. Psychology and athletics. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Colleges and universities
Book, W: F: How to succeed in college. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Wilkins, E. H. Changing college. (Ap '28)

Germany

Thwing, C: F. The American and the German university. (Ag '28)

United States

Angell, R. C. Campus. (Je '28)
Benn, J: A. Columbus—undergraduate. (My '28)
Edwards, R: H:, and others. Undergraduates. (D '28)
Halle, R. Which college? (My '28)
Howe, M. A. De W. Classic shades. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Kelly, R. L., ed. Effective college. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Robertson, D: A., ed. American universities and colleges. (O '28)

Colleges and universities—United States—Cont.
Thwing, C: F. The American and the German university. (Ag '28)

Color
Bernstein, M. Colour in art and daily life. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Color of water. Meeker, M. (S '28)

Color prints
Priestley, A. F. How to know Japanese colour prints. (My '28)
Colorado. Raine, W: M. (My '28)
Colour in art and daily life. Bernstein, M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Coloured thinking. Fraser-Harris, D: F. (D '28)

Columbus, Christopher
André, M. Columbus. (Je '28)
Hevesy, A. de. Discoverer. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Drama

Kennedy, C: R. Repertory of plays for a company of three players. (My '28)

Columbus—undergraduate. Benn, J: A. (My '28)
Column book of F. P. A. Adams, F. P. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Colvin, Frances Fetherstonhaugh (Sitwell), lady
Lucas, E: V. The Colvins and their friends. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Colvin, Sir Sidney
Lucas, E: V. The Colvins and their friends. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Colvins and their friends. Lucas, E: V. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Come Christmas. Farjeon, E. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Come with me through Belgium and Holland. Schoonmaker, F. (N '28)
Come with me through France. Schoonmaker, F. (S '28)

Comets
Weir, J: W. Comets and the sun. (Je '28)
Comets and the sun. Weir, J: W. (Je '28)
Coming of Christ. Masefield, J: (Ag '28)
Coming of age in Samoa. Mead, M. (O '28)
Coming of the Lord. Millin, S. G. (D '28)
Coming up the road. Bacheller, I. A. (D '28)

Commandments, Ten
Moehlman, C. H: Story of the ten commandments. (My '28)

Commerce
Taussig, F. W: International trade. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Commerce of South America. Jones, C. F. (O '28)
Common cheat. Cleugh, S. (N '28)
Common principles in psychology & physiology. MacCurdy, J: T. (N '28)
Commonwealth and restoration stage. Hotson, J: L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Communism
Dreiser, T. Dreiser looks at Russia. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Stalin, I. Leninism. (S '28)

Community centers
Glueck, E. Community use of schools. (N '28)
Nash, J. B. Organization and administration of playgrounds and recreation. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Playground and recreation association of America. Parks. (D '28)

Community church
Piper, D: R. Community churches. (N '28)

Community life
Pettit, W. W: Case studies in community organization. (Je '28)
Community churches. Piper, D: R. (N '28)
Community problems. Wood, A. E. (N '28)
Community use of schools. Glueck, E. (N '28)

Comorra

Fiction

Forgione, L: Men of silence. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Company unions. Dunn, R. W. (Ag '28)
Comprehensive survey of starch chemistry, v 1. Walton, R. P., and others, eds. (O '28)
Concerning man's origin. Keith, A. (My '28)
Concise dictionary of Irish biography. Crone, J: S. (N '28)
Concrete building construction. Crane, T. (Ag '28)

Concrete construction
Crane, T. Concrete building construction. (Ag '28)
Condemned to Devil's Island. Niles, B. (Je '28)

Conduct of life
Eliot, C: W: Talks to parents and young people. (D '28)
Faunce, W: H. P. Facing life. (D '28)
Parshley, H. M. Science and good behavior. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Smith, C. Straight answers to life questions. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Confessions of a puzzled parson. Fiske, C: (N '28)
Confessions of a rum-runner. Barbican, J. (Je '28)

Confucius and Confucianism
Beck, L. A. Story of oriental philosophy. (O '28)
Brown, B., ed. Story of Confucius. (My '28)
Confusion of tongues. Ferguson, C: W. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Congressional club cook book. Congressional club, Washington, D.C., comp. (O '28)
Connington, J. J., pseud. See Stewart, A. W. (My, O '28)
Conquest. Carter, J: F. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Conquest of illusion. Leeuw, J. J. van der. (N '28)
Conquest of life. Voronoff, S. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Conquest of Montezuma's empire. Lang, A., ed. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Conquistador. Guedalla, P. (Mr '28)

Conrad, Joseph
Conrad, J. Conrad to a friend. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Conrad, J. Letters from Joseph Conrad, 1895-1924. (My, S '28)
Curle, R: Last twelve years of Joseph Conrad. (D '28)
Conrad to a friend. Conrad, J. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Consciousness
Burrow, T. Social basis of consciousness. (N '28)
Garnett, A. C. Instinct and personality. (N '28)

Constellations
Barton, S: G. and W: H: Guide to the constellations. (N '28)
Whyte, C: Constellations and their history. (S '28)
Constellations and their history. Whyte, C: (S '28)
Constitution of the United States in some of its fundamental aspects. Bacon, G. G. (D '28)
Construction job management. Dingman, C: F. (N '28)
Constructive citizenship. Jacks, L. P. (Ap '28)

Consumption (economics)
Foster, W: T., and Catchings, W. Road to plenty. (Je '28)
Contemporaries and snobs. Riding, L. (N '28)
Contemporaries of Marco Polo. Komroff, M., ed. (S '28)
Contemporary American authors. Squire, J. C., and others. (Je '28)
Contemporary economic thought. Homan, P. T: (N '28)
Contemporary essays. Hastings, W: T., ed. (My '28)
Contemporary European writers. Drake, W: A. (Ag '28)
Contemporary sociological theories. Sorokin, P. A. (D '28)
Contemporary thought of Great Britain. Widgery, A. G. (My '28)
Continental cook book. Bonné, J. (Ag '28)

Control (psychology)
Alexander, J. Thought-control in everyday life. (S '28)
Control of the mind. Thouless, R. H: (Ag '28)

Conversion
Sanctis, S. de. Religious conversion. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Cook and be cool. Harrison, M. (N '28)

Cookery
Allen, M. P., and Hutton, I. O. Man-sized meals for the kitchenette. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Congressional club, Washington, D.C., comp. Congressional club cook book. (O '28)
Gottfried, R. A. J. Questing cook. (Ap '28)
Harris, J. W., and Lacey, E. V. D. Everyday foods. (Ap '28)
Harrison, M. Cook and be cool. (N '28)
Reilly, E. How to cook for children. (Ap '28)

Cookery (vegetables)
Gold, M., and Gilbert, E. Book of green vegetables. (S '28)

Cookery, European
Bonné, J. Continental cook book. (Ag '28)

Coolidge, Calvin
Rogers, C. Legend of Calvin Coolidge. (D '28)

Cooperation
Warbasse, J. P: What is cooperation? (Ap '28)

Coppleston, Bennet, pseud. See Kitchin, F: H. (Mr '28)

Copra
Snodgrass, K. Copra and coconut oil. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Copra and coconut oil. Snodgrass, K. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Copy, 1928. Hughes, H., and others, eds. (D '28)

Coquette. Abbott, G:, and Bridgers, A. P. (Ag '28)

Corder, William
Curtis, J. Mysterious murder of Maria Marten at Polstead, in Suffolk. (N '28)

Cork ships and how to make them. Adams, P: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Corn from Egypt. Gompertz, M. (O '28)

Cornish droll. Phillpotts, E. (My '28)

Corporations

Finance

Seltzer, L. H. Financial history of the American automobile industry. (N '28)

Corpulence
Fishbein, M., ed. Your weight and how to control it. (Ap '28)

Correspondence. Spinoza, B. de. (N '28)

Correspondence between [the author] and Hugo von Hofmannsthal, 1907-1918. Strauss, R: (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Correspondence of King George the Third, v 3-6. George III. (S '28)

Correspondence with the Wordsworth circle (1808-1866). Robinson, H: C. (My '28)

Corrosion and anti-corrosives
Rawdon, H: S. Protective metallic coatings. (N '28)

Cortes, Hernando
Diaz del Castillo, B. Discovery and conquest of Mexico, 1517-1521. (O '28)
Diaz del Castillo, B. True history of the conquest of Mexico. (O '28)

Corunna road. Haslett, G. W. (My '28)

Cost and standard of living
Houghteling, L. Income and standard of living of unskilled laborers in Chicago. (Ap '28)
Peixotto, J. B. Getting and spending at the professional standard of living. (My '28)

Costume
Chalmers, H. Clothes on and off the stage. (Ag '28)
Mills, W. H., and Dunn, L. M. Marionettes, masks and shadows. (My '28)
Worth, J. P. Century of fashion. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Costumes by Eros. Aiken, C. P. (D '28)

Cotton. Bethea, J. (S '28)

Cotton manufacture
Mitchell, B. William Gregg. (N '28)

Cougars and cowboys. Newell, D. M. (Mr '28)

Count Billy. MacDonald, G. (N '28)

Country life
Miller, E. E. Town and country. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sims, N. Le R. Elements of rural sociology. (O '28)

Courts

United States

Frankfurter, F., and Landis, J. M. Business of the Supreme court. (My '28)

The coward. Wainwright, N. (Je '28)

Cowboy. Santee, R. (D '28)

Cowboys
Santee, R. Cowboy. (D '28)

Fiction

Adams, A. Log of a cowboy. (Mr '28)
Newell, D. M. Cougars and cowboys. (Mr '28)

Crabtree, Lotta
Rourke, C. M. Troupers of the Gold Coast. (D '28)

Cranmer Paul. Bennett, R. (Ag '28)

Creation by evolution. Mason, F., ed. (O '28)

Creative East. Mason, J. W. T. (S '28)

Creative music in the home. Coleman, S. N. (N '28)

Creator spirit. Raven, C: E. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Creatures. Colum, P. (My '28)

Credit
Seligman, E. R. A. Economics of instalment selling. (Je '28)
Truesdale, J: R. Credit bureau management. (N '28)

Credit bureau management. Truesdale, J: R. (N '28)

Crescendo. Bellamann, H: (N '28)

Crime and criminals
Ashton-Wolfe, H. Warped in the making. (Ag '28)
Borrow, G:, ed. Celebrated trials and remarkable cases of criminal jurisprudence from the earliest records to the year 1825. (O '28)
Brasol, B. L. Elements of crime. (Je '28)
Dilnot, G: Great detectives and their methods. (My '28)
Ferrier, J. K. Crooks & crime. (My '28)
Jeffries, G. M. Passion, murder and mystery. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Kavanagh, M. A. Criminal and his allies. (Je '28)
Lawes, L: E. Life and death in Sing Sing. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
McAdoo, W: Procession to Tyburn. (Mr '28)
Minot, G: E. Murder will out. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
O'Connor, J: J. Broadway racketeers. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Pearson, E. L. Five murders. (Je '28)
Schlapp, M. G., and Smith, E: H: New criminology. (Ag '28)
Schmidt, F. Hangman's diary. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Tasker, R. J. Grimhaven. (D '28)
Wyndham, H. C. Crime on the continent. (N '28)
Wyndham, H. C. Crimes in high life. (Mr '28)

New York (city)

Asbury, H. Gangs of New York. (Je '28)

Pennsylvania

Barnes, H. E. Evolution of penology in Pennsylvania. (My '28)

Southwest, New

Garrett, P. F. Authentic life of Billy the Kid. (My '28)

Crime code. Le Queux, W: (N '28)

Crime in the crypt. Wells, C. (N '28)

Crime on the continent. Wyndham, H. C. (N '28)

Crimes in high life. Wyndham, H. C. (Mr '28)

Criminal and his allies. Kavanagh, M. A. (Je '28)

Criminal anthropology
Schlapp, M. G., and Smith, E: H: New criminology. (Ag '28)

Criminal law
Barnes, H. E. Evolution of penology in Pennsylvania. (My '28)
Kavanagh, M. A. Criminal and his allies. (Je '28)

Criminal procedure
Kavanagh, M. A. Criminal and his allies. (Je '28)
Schmidt, F. Hangman's diary. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Crimson quest. Barr, D. (D '28)
Crises in Venetian history. Ragg, L. M. (D '28)
Critical studies in the legal chemistry of foods. Brooks, R. O. (O '28)
Croce, Benedetto
Croce, B. Benedetto Croce. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Cromwell, Oliver
Taylor, G: R. S. Cromwell. (Je '28)
Crooked. Foster, M. (Ap '28)
Crooks & crime. Ferrier, J. K. (My '28)
Crook's game. Dilnot, G: (Mr '28)
Cross, Mary Ann (Evans). See Eliot, G:, pseud.
- (S '28)
Crossroads in the mind of man. Kelley, T. L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Cross-stitch heart. Field, R. L. (Ap '28)
Crouching beast. Williams, V. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Crow Indians
Leforge, T: H. Memoirs of a White Crow Indian. (Ag '28)
Crowell's dictionary of English grammar and handbook of American usage. Weseen, M. H. (O '28)
Cruise of the Northern Light. Borden, C. L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Crusade. Byrne, D. (My '28)
Cuba
Economic conditions
Jenks, L. H. Our Cuban colony. (D '28)
Foreign relations
United States
Jenks, L. H. Our Cuban colony. (D '28)
Industries
Jenks, L. H. Our Cuban colony. (D '28)
Cullum. Robertson, E. A. (O '28)
Cult of Santiago. Stone, J. S: (Ap '28)
Cultivating the child's appetite. Aldrich, C: A. (S '28)
Cultural evolution. Ellwood, C: A. (Je '28)
Culture
Dixon, R. B. Building of cultures. (My '28)
Ellwood, C: A. Cultural evolution. (Je '28)
Culture. Smith, G. E., and others. (S '28)
Cups, wands & swords. Simpson, H. (Je '28)
Curiosities
Gould, R. T: Oddities. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Curious trials and criminal cases from Socrates to Scopes. Bierstadt, E: H. (N '28)
Curll, Edmund
Straus, R. Unspeakable Curll. (Je '28)
Current Christian thinking. Smith, G. B. (Je '28)
Curse of the Tarniffs. Keyserling, E. H. N. (Ap '28)
Cursed be the treasure. Drake, H: B. (My '28)
Cursory rhymes. Wolfe, H. (N '28)
Curzon of Kedleston, George Nathaniel Curzon, 1st marquis
Ronaldshay, L. J: L. D. Life of Lord Curzon, 3v. (My, O '28, F '29) (1928 Annual)
Cyrano de Bergerac, Savinien
Fiction
Bedford-Jones, H: King's passport. (My '28)
Czechoslovak Republic
Beneš, E. My war memories. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

D. L. Moody. Bradford, G. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Dagny. Peattie, L. (Ag '28)
Dairy products
Fundamentals of dairy science. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Daisy and Daphne. Macaulay, R. (My '28)
Dan Minturn. Hedges, M. H. (Je '28)
Dance of death. Blackwood, A. (Je '28)
Dancing
History
Sharp, E. Here we go round. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Dancing silhouette. Lincoln, N. S. (Ap '28)
Dandies
Gleichen-Russwurm, A. Dandies and Don Juans. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Dandies and Don Juans. Gleichen-Russwurm, A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Dante Alighieri
Baldwin, G. E. New Beatrice. (D '28)
Drama
Kennedy, C: R. Repertory of plays for a company of three players. (My '28)
Danton, Georges Jacques
Belloc, H. Danton. (My '28)
Dark god. Chancellor, J: (Ag '28)
Dark princess. Du Bois, W: E: B. (Ag '28)
Darkest spot. Thayer, L. (O '28)
D'Artagnan. Bedford-Jones, H: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Darwin, Charles Robert
Keith, A. Concerning man's origin. (My '28)
Dāsa-Gupta, Surendranātha. See Surendranātha Dāsa-Gupta. (D '28)
Daughter of the Hawk. Forester, C. S. (N '28)
Daughter of Venice. De Witte, Y. (Je '28)
Daughters of folly. Hamilton, C. (Je '28)
Daughters of India. Wilson, M. (Je '28)
David, king of Israel
Fiction
Davis, E. H. Giant killer. (D '28)
Parker, G. Promised land. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
David Livingstone. Finger, C: J. (Ap '28)
Davis, Jefferson
Rowland, E. O. Varina Howell. (Mr '28)
Davis, Varina (Howell) (Mrs Jefferson Davis)
Rowland, E. O. Varina Howell. (Mr '28)
Dawes plan and the new economics. Auld, G: P. (Mr '28)
Dawn. Berkeley, R. C. (S '28)
Dawson pedigree. Sayers, D. L. (Ap '28)
Day after to-morrow. Gibbs, P. H. (My '28)
Day of fortune. Matson, N. H. (O '28)
Day's end. Bates, H. E. (O '28)
Days in Doorn. Eng title of Empress in exile. Hermine, princess, consort of William II. (D '28)
Days of the king. Frank, B. (Mr '28)
De night in de front from Chreesmas. Gross, M. (Mr '28)
Dead lovers are faithful lovers. Newman, F. (Je '28)
Deadlock. Vieressaev, V. V. (S '28)
Deadwood, South Dakota
Bennett, E. Old Deadwood days. (S '28)
Deaf and dumb
Heckman, H. E. My life transformed. (My '28)
Deans and advisers of women and girls. Pierce, A. E. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Dear senator. Huston, M. (N '28)
Death in the dusk. Markham, V. (O '28)
Death of a diplomat. Oldfeld, P: (Je '28)
Death near the river. Cooper, M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Debates and debating
Elliott, H. S. Process of group thinking. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Phelps, E. M., ed. University debaters' annual, 1926-1927. (Ap '28)
Debonair. Stern, G. B. (My '28)
Debts, Public
Page, K. Dollars and world peace. (Ap '28)
Germany
Kuczynski, R. R. American loans to Germany. (My '28)
Decade of progress in teacher training. Hill, C. M. (O '28)

Decline of the West, v 2. Spengler, O. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Decoration and ornament
Frankl, P. T. New dimensions. (S '28)
Dedication. Garvin, M. (N '28)
Deep-lake mystery. Wells, C. (S '28)
Deep waters. Gray, G: W., ed. (D '28)
Defeat. Huch, R. O. (N '28)
Defective and delinquent classes
Grimberg, L. E. Emotion and delinquency (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Education

Whipple, H. Making citizens of the mentally limited. (Ag '28)
Defence of the West. Massis, H. (Je '28)
Degas, Hilaire Germain Edgar
Vollard, A. Degas. (Mr '28)
Dehan, Richard, pseud. See Graves, C. I. M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Delafield, E. M., pseud. See De La Pasture, E. E. M. (Mr '28)
Delight of great books. Erskine, J: (My '28)
Delphos. Pankhurst, E. S. (D '28)
Deluge. Wright, S. F. (Ap '28)
Democracy
Begbie, H. Howling mob. (My '28)
Brownell, W: C. Democratic distinction in America. (Mr '28)
Thompson, J: G. Urbanization. (My '28)
Democratic distinction in America. Brownell, W: C. (Mr '28)
Democratic party

History

Kent, F. R. Democratic party. (My '28)
Democratic party. Kent, F. R. (My '28)
Demon caravan. Surdez, G. (Mr '28)
Demon of the absolute. More, P. E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Department stores

Fiction

Sprague, J. R. Making of a merchant. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
The derelict. Nordhoff, C: B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Desert Moon mystery. Strahan, K. C. (Ag '28)
Deserts idle. Mason, M. H: (D '28)
Design, Decorative
Boas, F. Primitive art. (S '28)
Destinations. Munson, G. B. (O '28)
Destiny Bay. Byrne, D. (N '28)
Detective stories
Wells, C., ed. American detective stories. (S '28)
Wren, L., and McKay, R. Baffle book. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Wright, W. H., ed. Great detective stories. (Mr '28)
See also Fiction—Mystery stories
Detectives
Dilnot, G: Great detectives and their methods. (My '28)
The deuce. Eng title of The devil. Neumann, A. (O '28)
Development of English biography. Nicolson, H. G: (Je '28)
Development of the theater. Nicoll, A. (My '28)
The devil. Neumann, A. (O '28)
Devil in the cheese. Cushing, C: C. S. (N '28)
Devil's cocktail. Wilson, A. D. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Devil's Island penal colony

Fiction

Niles, B. Condemned to Devil's Island. (Je '28)
Devil's jest. Carfrae, E. (N '28)
Devil's shadow. Thiess, F. (D '28)
Dew of the sea. Vachell, H. A. (O '28)
Dextrine
Walton, R. P., and others, eds. Comprehensive survey of starch chemistry, v 1. (O '28)

Bibliography

Walton, R. P., and others, eds. Comprehensive survey of starch chemistry, v 1. (O '28)
Dialectic. Adler, M. J. (O '28)
Dialogues & monologues. Wolfe, H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Diamond rose mystery. Knevels, G. (O '28)
Diana at the bath. Yates, E. H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Diana of the north country. Monger, M. (O '28)
Diaries of boyhood and youth. Roosevelt, T. (D '28)
Diaries of Sylvester Douglas. Glenbervie, S. D. (D '28)
Diary. Garrick, D: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Diary. Young, J: (D '28)
Diary, 1828-1851. Hone, P. (Mr '28)
Diary of a communist schoolboy. Rozânov, M. G. (O '28)
Diary of Dostoyevsky's wife. Dostoievskaîa, A. G. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Diastase
Walton, R. P., and others, eds. Comprehensive survey of starch chemistry, v 1. (O '28)

Bibliography

Walton, R. P., and others, eds. Comprehensive survey of starch chemistry, v 1. (O '28)
Dick Byrd—air explorer. Green, F. (O '28)
Dickens, Charles
Dexter, W. Some rogues and vagabonds of Dickens. (Ap '28)
Holdsworth, W: S. Charles Dickens as a legal historian. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Payne, E: F. Dickens days in Boston. (Mr '28)
Straus, R. Charles Dickens. (N '28)

Fiction

Roberts, C. E. B. This side idolatry. (N '28)
Dickens days in Boston. Payne, E: F. (Mr '28)
Dictionary of national biography. (Ap '28)
Dielectric phenomena
Whitehead, S. E. Dielectric phenomena. (My '28)
Diet
Callow, A. B. Food & health. (D '28)
Fishbein, M., ed. Your weight and how to control it. (Ap '28)
Harris, J. W., and Lacey, E. V. D. Everyday foods. (Ap '28)
Lieb, C. W: Eat, drink and be healthy. (O '28)
Dillingham, Robert Barclay, pseud. See Fouke, W: D. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Dinner of herbs. Paradis, M. B. (O '28)
Discoverer. Hevesy, A. de. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Discovery and conquest of Mexico, 1517-1521. Díaz del Castillo, B. (O '28)
Disposal of sewage. Veal, T. H. P. (D '28)
Disraeli. Maurois, A., pseud. (Mr '28)
Distributive justice. Ryan, J: A. (Ap '28)
District bungalow. Lowis, C. C. (Mr '28)
Diversey. Kantor, M. (O '28)
Divided allegiance. McKenna, S. (D '28)
Divine revolution. Peck, W. G. (My '28)
Divine right of kings
Hocart, A. M. Kingship. (My '28)
Diving, Submarine
Beebe, W: Beneath tropic seas. (D '28)
A dock brief. Eng title of Crimson quest. Barr, D. (D '28)
Dr Arnold of Rugby. Whitridge, A. (S '28)
Doctor Dolittle in the moon. Lofting, H. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Dr Glazebrook's revenge. Brown, A. C. (Ag '28)
Dr Johnson and company. Lynd, R. (N '28)
Doctor looks at marriage and medicine. Collins, J. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Documents of Russian history, 1914-1917. Golder, F. A., ed. (Ap '28)
Dodshon, Mrs Francis (Henshaw) Paxton Hobhouse, S. H: William law and eighteenth century Quakerism. (My '28)
Does civilization need religion? Niebuhr, R. (Mr '28)

Dog-puncher on the Yukon. Walden, A. T. (S '28)

Dogs
Lemmon, R. S. About your dog. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Legends and stories
Bartlett, A. C. Sea dog. (Mr '28)
Bartlett, A. C. Spunk, leader of the dog team. (Mr '28)
Field, R. L. Little dog Toby. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Foote, J: T. Trub's diary. (S '28)
Grey, Z. Don. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hinkle, T: C. Trueboy. (O '28)

Training
Lemmon, R. S. About your dog. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Dollars and world peace. Page, K. (Ap '28)

Dolls
Singleton, E. Dolls. (Ap '28)
Dolly Madison. Dean, E. L. (S '28)

Dolomite Alps

Description and travel
Davidson, L. M. Things seen in the Dolomites. (Ag '28)
Dominance. Jenison, M. (My '28)

Dominican Republic

Foreign relations
United States
Knight, M. M. Americans in Santo Domingo. (Ag '28)
Welles, S. Naboth's vineyard. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

History
Welles, S. Naboth's vineyard. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Politics and government
Knight, M. M. Americans in Santo Domingo. (Ag '28)
Welles, S. Naboth's vineyard. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Don. Grey, Z. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Don Careless. Beach, R. (Ag '28)
Doña Isabella's adventures. Blake G. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Donne, John
Dark, S. Five deans. (O '28)
Door of death. Shellabarger, S: (D '28)
Door unlatched. Cher, M., pseud. (Mr '28)

Dostoievskaĭa, Anna Grigorevna (Snitkina) (Mme Feodor Mikhailovich Dostoievskiĭ)
Dostoievskaĭa, A. G. Diary of Dostoyevsky's wife. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Dostoievskiĭ, Feodor Mikhailovich
Dostoievskaĭa, A. G. Diary of Dostoyevsky's wife. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Meier-Graefe, J. Dostoevsky. (O '28)

Double chance. Fletcher, J. S. (S '28)
Double nought. Eng title of Crime code. Le Queux, W: (N '28)
Double shuffle. Hobart, D. B. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Doubtful year. Lebar, J: (N '28)

Doughty, Charles Montagu
Fairley, B. Charles M. Doughty. (Ap '28)

Douglas, O., pseud. See Buchan, A. (O '28)
Drafting of the covenant. Miller, D: H. (N '28)
Dragon and the foreign devils. Andersson, J., G. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
The dragon awakes. Krarup-Nielsen, A. (D '28)
Dragon fly of Zuñi. Malkus, A. S. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Dragon of Lung Wang. Harvey, M. (S '28)
Dragon shadows. Bennett, J. W. (O '28)

Dragons
Ingersoll, E. Dragons and dragon lore. (Ag '28)
Dragons and dragon lore. Ingersoll, E. (Ag '28)
Drake's radio cyclopedia. Manly, H. P. (My '28)

Drama
Nathan, G: J. Art of the night. (My '28)

History and criticism
Bellinger, M. I. Short history of the drama. (Mr '28)
Kraft, I. Plays, players, playhouses. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Nicoll, A. Development of the theater. (My '28)

Technique
Ervine, St J: G. How to write a play. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Dramas
Abbott, G:, and Bridgers, A. P. Coquette. (Ag '28)
Alvarez Quintero, S. and J. Four plays. (Je '28)
Anderson, M., and Hickerson, H. Gods of the lightning; [and] Outside looking in. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Barrie, J. M. Peter Pan. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Basshe, E. J. The centuries. (S '28)
Basshe, E. J. Earth. (Ag '28)
Brandane, J: Treasure ship. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Büchner, G. Plays. (My '28)
Chesterton, G. K. Judgment of Dr Johnson. (Ap '28)
Cohen, L. Oscar Wilde. (Ag '28)
Cormack, B. Racket. (S '28)
Cushing, C: C. S. Devil in the cheese. (N '28)
Ervine, St J: G. Four one-act plays. (O '28)
Fagan, J. B. And so to bed. (Mr '28)
Field, R. L. Cross-stitch heart. (Ap '28)
Firkins, O. W. Two passengers for Chelsea. (My '28)
Frank, B. Twelve thousand. (My '28)
Gantillon, S. Maya. (My '28)
Gogol, N. V. Gamblers, and Marriage. (Ap '28)
Green, P. In the valley. (Ag '28)
Gregory, I. A. Three last plays. (N '28)
Hecht, B., and MacArthur, C: Front page. (N '28)
Heijermans, H. The Good Hope. (Mr '28)
Kaufman, G: S., and Ferber, E. Royal family. (My '28)
Kelly, G: E: Behold, the bridegroom—. (Je '28)
Kennedy, C: R. Repertory of plays for a company of three players. (My '28)
Lenormand, H. R. Three plays. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Ludwig, E. Bismarck. (Ag '28)
MacKaye, P. Kentucky Mountain fantasies. (O '28)
Masters, E. L. Jack Kelso. (O '28)
Milne, A. A. Ivory door. (D '28)
Neumann, A. The patriot. (Ag '28)
O'Casey, S. Silver Tassie. (O '28)
O'Neill, E. G. Strange interlude. (Ap '28)
Peabody, J. P. Collected plays. (My '28)
Pirandello, L. One-act plays. (My '28)
Royde-Smith, N. G. A balcony. (O '28)
Sifton, P. Belt. (Ap '28)
Sitwell, O. and S. All at sea. (Ag '28)
Stevens, H: B. Tolstoy. (N '28)
Vanbrugh, J: Complete works. (Ag '28)
Veiller, B. Trial of Mary Dugan. (D '28)
Wilder, T. N. Angel that troubled the waters. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Zweig, S. Ben Jonson's Volpone. (Je '28)

Bibliography
Firkins, I. T. E., comp. Index to plays, 1800-1926. (Ap '28)

Collections
Katzin, W., comp. Eight European plays. (My '28)
Mantle, B., ed. Best plays of 1927-28; and, The year book of the drama in America. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Shay, F., ed. Fifty more contemporary one-act plays. (Je '28)
Smith, R. M., ed. Types of philosophic drama. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Smith, R. M., ed. Types of world tragedy. (S '28)

Drawing
Johnson, B. Technique of pencil drawing. (N '28)

Instruction
Lutz, E. G: More things to draw. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Draycott murder mystery. Thynne, M. (O '28)
Dreadful night. Williams, B. A. (Ag '28)
Dreams
Stiles, P. G. Dreams. (Ap '28)
Dreiser looks at Russia. Dreiser, T. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Dressmaking
Brown, C. M. Clothing construction. (O '28)
Drew, John
Wood, P. Splendid gypsy: John Drew. (Mr '28)
Drifting sands of party politics. Underwood, O. W. (Je '28)
Driftwood. Shotwell, W. G. (Mr '28)
Drosophilidae
Pearl, R. Rate of living. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Duchess of York. Asquith, C. M. E. (D '28)
Due reckoning. McKenna, S. (Mr '28)
Duke, James Buchanan
Jenkins, J: W. James B. Duke. (My '28)
Dumas, Alexander
Lucas-Dubreton, J. Fourth musketeer. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Duncan, Isadora
Duncan, I. My life. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Dunkerley, William Arthur. See Oxenham, J:, pseud. (S, O '28)
Duns Scotus, Joannes
Harris, C: R. S. Duns Scotus. (O '28)
Dust. Tempski, A. von. (Je '28)
Dwight, Marianne. See Orvis, M. (D '28)
Dyes and dyeing
Mullin, C: E. Acetate silk and its dyes. (Ag '28)

Earhart, Amelia
Earhart, A. 20 hrs. 40 min. (N '28)
Early American glass. Knittle, R. M. (My '28)
Early days in Ohio. Everson, F. M., and Power, E. L. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Early life of Thomas Hardy, 1840-1891. Hardy, F. E., comp. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Early to bed. Kahler, W. (S '28)
Earth
Brewster, E. T. This puzzling planet. (D '28)
Earth. Basshe, E. J. (Ag '28)
Earth and its history. Bradley, J: H., jr. (S '28)
Earth and its rhythms. Schuchert, C:, and Le Vene, C. M. (Je '28)
Earth for sale. Monro, H. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Earth movements
Osborn, C. S. Earth upsets. (N '28)
Earth upsets. Osborn, C. S. (N '28)
Earthen lot. Field, B. (Ap '28)
Earthquakes
Osborn, C. S. Earth upsets. (N '28)
Earths, Rare
Noyes, A. A., and Bray, W: C. System of qualitative analysis for the rare elements. (D '28)
East (Far East)
Treat, P. J. Far East. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Description and travel
Grenfell, W. T. Labrador looks at the Orient. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Wright, E. Great horn spoon. (D '28)
Industries
Todd, A. J. Three wise men of the East. (My '28)
East all the way. Lockhart, J: G. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
East and West
Mason, J. W. T. Creative East. (S '28)
Eastern question (Far East)
Etherton, P. T:, and Tiltman, H. H. The Pacific. (Ag '28)
Fox, F. Mastery of the Pacific. (O '28)
Harrison, M. E. Asia reborn. (Je '28)
Millard, T: F. F. China. (My '28)
Roosevelt, N: Restless Pacific. (Je '28)
Treat, P. J. Far East. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Eat, drink and be healthy. Lieb, C. W: (O '28)
Echo. Desmond, S. (O '28)
Echo from Parnassus. Skinner, H. C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Ecola! Marmur, J. (Je '28)
Economic and social history of the middle ages. Thompson, J. W. (N '28)
Economic conditions
Auld, G: P. Dawes plan and the new economics. (Mr '28)
Ryan, J: A. Distributive justice. (Ap '28)
Economic, financial and political state of Germany since the war. Reinhold, P: P. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Economic history of Europe in modern times. Knight, M. M., and others. (Ap '28)
Economic history of the United States. Faulkner, H. U. (Je '28)
Economic impact of America. Peel, G: (S '28)
Economic institutions. Thorp, W. L. (S '28)
Economic organization of the Soviet union Nearing, S., and Hardy, J. (Mr '28)
Economic problems. Fairchild, F. R., and Compton, R. T., eds. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Economic problems in Europe to-day. Pringle, W. H., ed. (Ag '28)
Economic world. Burns, A. R. and E. M. (Ja '29) (1923 Annual)
Economics
Brokaw, W. E. Equitable society and how to create it. (D '28)
Burns, A. R. and E. M. Economic world. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bye, R. T., and Hewett, W: W. Applied economics. (O '28)
Cannan, E. An economist's protest. (O '28)
Carver, T: N., and Lester, H. W. This economic world. (Ag '28)
Disbrow, C: W. Fundamentals of banking, finance, and economics. (Ap '28)
Fairchild, F. R., and Compton, R. T., eds. Economic problems. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Florence, P. S. Economics and human behaviour. (Ap '28)
Foster, W: T., and Catchings, W. Road to plenty. (Je '28)
Hayes, H. G. Our economic system. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hewett, W: W. Rudiments of economics. (O '28)
Bibliography
Bacon, C., comp. Standard catalog; social sciences section. (S '28)
History
Homan, P. T: Contemporary economic thought. (N '28)
Weber, M. General economic history. (My '28)
Economics and human behaviour. Florence, P. S. (Ap '28)
Economics of farm organization and management. Holmes, C. L. (O '28)
Economics of instalment selling. Seligman, E. R. A. (Je '28)
Economics of life insurance. Huebner, S. S. (My '28)
An economist's protest. Cannan, E. (O '28)
Eden
Fiction
Littell, P. This way out. (N '28)
Sheehan, M. Eden. (Mr '28)
Eden. Sheehan, M. (Mr '28)
Edmund Burke. Newman, B. (Mr '28)
Education
Findlay, J. J: Foundations of education, v 2. (My '28)
Finney, R. L. Sociological philosophy of education. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bibliography
Bacon, C., comp. Standard catalog; social sciences section. (S '28)

Education—Continued

Curricula

Finney, R. L. Sociological philosophy of education. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Whipple, H. Making citizens of the mentally limited. (Ag '28)

Experimental methods

Cobb, S. New leaven. (O '28)
Ferrière, A. Activity school. (N '28)
Johnson, H. M. Children in the nursery school. (N '28)
Lewis, M. H. Adventure with children. (S '28)
Naumburg, M. Child and the world. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Washburne, C. W., and Stearns, M. M. Better schools. (O '28)

History

Reisner, E: H. Historical foundations of modern education. (S '28)

East (Far East)

Todd, A. J. Three wise men of the East (My '28)

Formosa

Foght, H. W. and A. M. Unfathomed Japan. (D '28)

Germany

Danton, G: H: Germany ten years after. (Je '28)

Illinois

Counts, G: S. School and society in Chicago. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Japan

Foght, H. W. and A. M. Unfathomed Japan. (D '28)

Russia

Wilson, L. L. New schools of new Russia. (O '28)

United States

Johnsen, J. E., comp. Selected articles on a federal department of education. (Ap '28)
Judd, C: H. Unique character of American secondary education. (D '28)
Leighton, J. A. Individuality and education. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Washburne, C. W., and Stearns, M. M. Better schools. (O '28)

Directories

Robertson, D: A., ed. American universities and colleges. (O '28)

Education, Higher
Book, W: F: How to succeed in college. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Burton, E. De W. Education in a democratic world. (S '28)
Kelly, R. L., ed. Effective college. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Quiller-Couch, A. T: Lecture on lectures. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Education, Secondary
Judd, C: H. Unique character of American secondary education. (D '28)
Waples, D. Problems in classroom method. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Education and state
Counts, G: S. School and society in Chicago. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Education in a democratic world. Burton, E. De W. (S '28)

Education of adults
Thorndike, E: L., and others. Adult learning. (N '28)

Education of children
Cobb, S. New leaven. (O '28)
Ferrière, A. Activity school. (N '28)
Lewis, M. H. Adventure with children. (S '28)
Naumburg, M. Child and the world. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Education of women
Pierce, A. E. Deans and advisers of women and girls. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Educational psychology. Cameron, E: H. (Je '28)

Educators
Howe, M. A. De W. Classic shades. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Wiggam, A. E: Exploring your mind with the psychologists. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Edward VII, king of Great Britain
Edwards, W: H. Tragedy of Edward VII. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
The eel. Morgan, E. (N '28)
Effective college. Kelly, R. L., ed. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Efficiency, Industrial
American engineering council. Safety and production. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Anderson, A. G. Industrial engineering and factory management. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Davis, R. C. Principles of factory organization and management. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Smith, E. D. Psychology for executives. (S '28)

Egypt

Antiquities

Baikie, J. Glamour of Near East excavation. (S '28)

Civilization

Jouguet, P. Macedonian imperialism and the Hellenization of the East. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Moret, A. Nile and Egyptian civilization. (My '28)

Description and travel

Chapple, J. M. To Bagdad and back. (S '28)
Grenfell, W. T. Labrador looks at the Orient. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Newman, E. M. Seeing Egypt and the Holy Land. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

History

Moret, A. Nile and Egyptian civilization. (My '28)

Eight European plays. Katzin, W., comp. (My '28)

Eilean More. Davidson, A. A. (N '28)

Electric discharges through gases
Whitehead, S. E. Dielectric phenomena. (My '28)

Electric engineering
Greenwood, E. Aladdin, U.S.A. (Je '28)
Tarboux, J. G. Electric power equipment. (My '28)

Electric heating
Wilcox, E. A. Electric heating. (D '28)
Electric heating. Wilcox, E. A. (D '28)

Electric industries
Raushenbush, H. S., and Laidler, H. W. Power control. (N '28)

Electric lines
Lowe, E. A. Electric power transmission. (Ag '28)

Electric motors, Induction
Dudley, A. M. Induction motor practice. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Electric power
Greenwood, E. Aladdin, U.S.A. (Je '28)

Electric power distribution
Loew, E. A. Electrical power transmission. (Ag '28)
Electric power equipment. Tarboux, J. G. (My '28)

Electric wiring, Interior
Wolber, J. G., and Rose, O: K. Practical and technical electricity. (N '28)
Electrical power transmission. Loew, E. A. (Ag '28)

Electricity
Gerlach, W. Matter, electricity, energy. (D '28)
Gibson, C: R. Modern conceptions of electricity. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Greenwood, E. Aladdin, U.S.A. (Je '28)

Electrons
Bloch, E. Thermionic phenomena. (Ap '27)
Gibson, C: R. Modern conceptions of electricity. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Elegant infidelities of Madame Li Pei Fou. Pettit, C: (D '28)
Elementary organic chemistry. Adkins, H. B., and McElvain, S: M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Elements of book-collecting. Williams, I. A. (My '28)
Elements of constitutional law. Arneson, B. A. (O '28)
Elements of crime. Brasol, B. L. (Je '28)
Elements of economic geology. Gregory, J: W. (S '28)
Elements of machine design. Hoffman, J. D:, and Scipio, L. A. (D '28)
Elements of rural sociology. Sims, N. Le R. (O '28)
Elements of telephone transmission. Harrison, H. H. (My '28)
Eliot, George, pseud. (Mrs Mary Ann [Evans] Cross)
Eliot, G:, pseud. Family life and letters. (S '28)
Eliza for common. Buchan, A. (O '28)

Elizabeth, queen of England
Strachey, G. L. Elizabeth and Essex. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Elizabeth and Essex. Strachey, G. L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Elizabeth Barrett Browning. Willis, I. C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Elizabeth Chudleigh, duchess of Kingston. Brown, B. C. (D '28)
Ellington brat. Mellett, B. (Mr '28)

Ellis, Havelock
Peterson, H. Havelock Ellis. (Ag '28)
Elmer 'n Edwina. Van de Water, F: F. (Ag '28)

Embankments
Paul, C: H., and Bennett, C: S. Methods and plant for excavating and embankment. (Ap '28)
Embattled borders. Powell, E: A. (Je '28)
Emerald tiger. Jepson, E. (S '28)
Emerald trails. Gregory, J. (Ag '28)
Emergence of modern America, 1865-1878. Nevins, A. (My '28)

Emerson, Ralph Waldo
Gay, R. M. Emerson. (O '28)
Emigrant. Howard, F: J. (S '28)
Emotion and delinquency. Grimberg, L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
The emperor falls in love. Aubry, O. (My '28)
Emperor Joseph. Eng title of Spellbinder. Rossiter, L. (Je '28)
Empire builder. Sullivan, O. M. (O '28)
Empire to commonwealth. Hall, W. P. (S '28)

Employee ownership
National industrial conference board. Employee stock purchase plans in the United States. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Employee stock purchase plans in the United States. National industrial conference board. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Employees' representation in management
Dunn, R. W. Company unions. (Ag '28)

Employment management
Metcalf, H: C., ed. Psychological foundations of management. (D '28)
Smith, E. D. Psychology for executives. (S '28)
Empress in exile. Hermine, princess, consort of William II. (D '28)
Empress of hearts. Beck, L. A. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Empty bed. Adams, H. (Ag '28)
En garde! Morse, S: (Je '28)
Enchanting danger. Wheatley, V. (D '28)
Encyclopedia of English furniture. Brackett, O., ed. (My '28)

Engines
Andrade, E: N. da C. Engines. (N '28)

England, John
Guilday, P: K. Life and times of John England. (My '28)

England

Biography
Benjamin, L: S. Windsor beauties. (D '28)

Description and travel
Brooks, C: S. Roads to the north. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hughes, M. V. About England. (Ap '28)
Maskell, H: P. Taverns of old England. (Mr '28)
Morton, H: C. V. In search of England. (S '28)

Intellectual life
George, M. D. England in Johnson's day. (N '28)

Religious and ecclesiastical institutions
Young, J: Diary. (D '28)

Social life and customs
Bennett, H: S., ed. England from Chaucer to Caxton. (O '28)
George, M. D. England in Johnson's day. (N '28)
Harrison G: B. England in Shakespeare's day. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Morton, H: C. V. In search of England. (S '28)

England and America. Van Tyne, C. H. (Ap '28)
England from Chaucer to Caxton. Bennett, H: S., ed. (O '28)
England in Johnson's day. George, M. D. (N '28)
England in Shakespeare's day. Harrison, G: B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
England reclaimed. Sitwell, O. (Ap '28)
England's holy war. Willis, I. C. (S '28)
English as experience. Tracy, H: C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
English Bible and its story. Baikie, J. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
English books 1475-1900. Sawyer, C: J., and Darton, F. J. H. (Ap '28)

English drama

Collections
Phillips, Le R., and Johnson, T., eds. Types of modern dramatic composition. (Ap, Ag '28)

History and criticism
Lawrence, W: J: Pre-restoration stage studies. (Ag '28)

English essays

Collections
Archbold, W: A. J., ed. Twentieth-century essays and addresses. (S '28)
Hastings, W: T., ed. Contemporary essays. (My '28)
Hogarth essays. (D '28)

English fiction
Cross, W. L. Modern English novel. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

English language
De Selincourt, B. Pomona. (S '28)
Krapp, G: P. Knowledge of English. (Mr '28)

Dictionaries
Weseen, M. H. Crowell's dictionary of English grammar and handbook of American usage. (O '28)

Etymology
Weekley, E. More words, ancient and modern. (Ap '28)

Names
Bradley, H: Collected papers. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Grammar
Weseen, M. H. Crowell's dictionary of English grammar and handbook of American usage. (O '28)

History
McKnight, G: H., and Emsley, B. Modern English in the making. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

English language—Continued

Phonetics

McLean, M. P. Good American speech. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Study and teaching

Cox, S. Teaching of English. (O '28)

Terms and phrases

Weseen, M. H. Crowell's dictionary of English grammar and handbook of American usage. (O '28)

English literature

Tracy, H: C. English as experience. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Wolfe, H. Dialogues & monologues. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Addresses, essays, lectures

Erskine, J: Delight of great books. (My '28)
Harper, G: M. Spirit of delight. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Collections

Bennett, H: S., ed. England from Chaucer to Caxton. (O 28)
Harrison, G: B. England in Shakespeare's day. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Lewis, D: B. W., and Heseltine, G. C. Christmas book. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

History and criticism

Boyd, E. A: Literary blasphemies. (Mr '28)
Crawford, J. R. What to read in English literature. (N '28)
Cruse, A. English literature through the ages. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Fairchild, H. N. The noble savage. (N '28)
Legouis, E. H., and Cazamian, L: F. History of English literature, v 2. (Ap '28)
Magnus, L. English literature in its foreign relations, 1300 to 1800. (My '28)
Widdows, M. English literature. (S '28)

English literature. Widdows, M. (S '28)
English literature in its foreign relations, 1300 to 1800. Magnus, L. (My '28)
English literature through the ages. Cruse, A. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
English miss. Mottram, R. H. (N '28)

English philology

Bradley, H: Collected papers. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

English poetry

Ker, W: P. Form and style in poetry. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Riding, L., and Graves, R. Survey of modernist poetry. (N '28)

Collections

Ault, N., comp. and ed. Seventeenth century lyrics. (My '28)
Beatty, A., comp. Romantic poetry of the early nineteenth century. (Je '28)
Cooke, J: D., ed. Minor Victorian poets. (Je '28)
Hammond, E. P., ed. English verse between Chaucer and Surrey. (My '28)
Judson, A. C., ed. Seventeenth-century lyrics. (Je '28)
Kemp, H., ed. Bronze treasury. (Ap '28)
King, M., comp. Mirror of youth. (N '28)
Lawson, J. G., comp. World's famous short poems and prose selections. (N '28)
Markham, E., comp. Book of poetry. (Je '28)
Moult, T:, comp. Best poems of 1927. (Je '28)
Oxford poetry, 1927. (Je '28)
Teasdale, S., comp. Answering voice. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

History and criticism

Davison, E: L: Some modern poets. (Ag '28)
Murray, G. Classical tradition in poetry. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Middle English

Hammond, E. P., ed. English verse between Chaucer and Surrey. (My '28)
English preachers and preaching, 1640-1670. Richardson, C. F. (Ag '28)
English verse between Chaucer and Surrey. Hammond, E. P., ed. (My '28)
Englishmen, Frenchmen, Spaniards. Madariaga, S. de. (D '28)
Enter the Greek. Gibbs, A. (O '28)
Enterprising burglar. Balfour, H., pseud. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Entertaining

Burt, E. R. Shower book. (O '28)
Environment and race. Taylor, G. (Mr '28)
Ephesian, pseud. See Roberts, C. E. B. (My, N '28)

Equality

Smith, T: V. American philosophy of equality. (Je '28)
Equitable society and how to create it. Brokaw, W. E. (D '28)
Ernest Harold Baynes. Gorges, R. (S '28)
Errors in school. Adams, J: (Je '28)
Escape me—never. Skelton, G. (N '28)

Eskimos

Jenness, D. People of the twilight. (O '28)

Essay

Johnson, B. Essaying the essay. (Ap '28)
Essaying the essay. Johnson, B. (Ap '28)

Essays

Beerbohm, M. A variety of things. (D '28)
Bennett, A. Savour of life. (Je '28)
Boswell, J. Hypochondriack. (O '28)
Burt, M. S. Other side. (S '28)
Cooley, C: H. Life and the student. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Crothers, S: M. Thought broker. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Dwiggins, W: A. Paraphs. (S '28)
Faguet, E. Politicians and moralists of the nineteenth century. (Je '28)
Gale, Z. Portage, Wisconsin. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Goldsmith, O. New essays. (O '28)
Grandgent, C: H. Prunes and prism. (My '28)
Hammerton, J: A. Memories of books and places. (O '28)
Hinchman, W. S. Pedestrian papers. (D '28)
Huddleston, S. Articles de Paris. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Huxley, A. L. Proper studies. (Ap '28)
Lucas, E: V. Fronded isle. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Lucas, E: V. A rover I would be. (D '28)
McCord, D: T. W. Stirabout. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Mary Eleanore, Sister. Certitudes. (Mr '28)
Masson, T: L. In tune with the finite. (O '28)
Morley, C. D. Essays. (O '28)
Murry, J: M. Things to come. (D '28)
Newman, G: Interpreters of nature. (Ap '28)
Ojetti, U. As they seemed to me. (O '28)
Priestley, J: B. Too many people. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Russell, B. A. W: Sceptical essays. (D '28)
Sherman, S. P. Shaping men and women (D '28)
Shotwell, W. G. Driftwood. (Mr '28)
Swinnerton, F. A. Tokefield papers. (My '28)
Warner, F. L. Unintentional charm of men. (D '28)
West, R. Strange necessity. (D '28)
Essays in philosophy. Ward, J. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Essays of today, 1926-1927. Shepard, O., and Hillyer, R. S. comps. (D '28)
Essence of architecture. Greeley, W: R. (N '28)
Essentials of international public law and organization. Hershey, A. S. (My '28)

Essex, Robert Devereux, 2nd earl of

Strachey, G. L. Elizabeth and Essex. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Esteven, John, pseud. See Shellabarger, S: (D '28)

Esthetics

MacLeod, J. G. Beauty and the beast. (Ag '28)
Stein, L. A-B-C of æsthetics. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Etched in moonlight. Stephens, J. (My '28)
Eternal moment. Forster, E: M. (Je '28)
Eternal spirit in the daily round. Doan, F. C. (D '28)

Ethical basis of reality. Thomas, E. E: (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Ethics
Parshley, H. M. Science and good behavior. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Paton, H. J. Good will. (O '28)
Scullard, H. H. Ethics of the Gospel. (Ag '28)
Sharp, F. C. Ethics. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sherman, C: L. Moral self. (Je '28)

History
Rogers, A. K. Morals in review. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Ethics, Evolutionary
Parshley, H. M. Science and good behavior. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Ethics of the Gospel. Scullard, H. H. (Ag '28)

Ethnology
Taylor, G. Environment and race. (Mr '28)

Europe
Gunther, H. F. K. Racial elements of European history. (My '28)

Oceanica
Hocart, A. M. Kingship. (My '28)

Etiquet
Hathaway, H. Manners. (S '28)
Post, E. How to behave—though a débutante. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Richardson, A. S. Etiquette at a glance. (Mr '28)

Etiquette at a glance. Richardson, A. S. (Mr '28)

Etiquette of beauty. Cocks, D. (Ap '28)

Etrurians
Randall-MacIver, D: Etruscans. (Ap '28)

Eugenics
Haire, N. Hymen. (Je '28)

Eugénie, empress consort of Napoleon III
Paléologue, G. M. Tragic empress. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Europe

Civilization
Fitzpatrick, B. Ireland and the foundations of Europe. (Ap '28)
Keyserling, H. A. Europe. (S '28)
Massis, H. Defence of the West. (Je '28)
Mowrer, E. A. This American world. (Ag '28)

Description and travel
Beckford, W: Travel-diaries. (N '28)
Bercovici, K. Nights abroad. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bryant, L. Children's book of European landmarks. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Greenbie, M. L., and Davis, H. L. Young America travels abroad. (Ag '28)
Harper, G: M. Spirit of delight. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Loomis, A. F. Fair winds in the far Baltic. (Ag '28)
O'Malley, F. W. Swiss family O'Malley. (D '28)
Thomas, L. J. European skyways. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Guide-books
Harrigan, M. H. Traveling light; [Great Britain, France, Belgium and Holland]. (Ag '28)

Economic conditions
Bell, E: P. Europe's economic sunrise. (Ag '28)
Knight, M. M., and others. Economic history of Europe in modern times. (Ap '28)
Pringle, W. H., ed. Economic problems in Europe to-day. (Ag '28)
Thompson, J. W. Economic and social history of the middle ages. (N '28)

Literature
Drake, W: A. Contemporary European writers. (Ag 28)

Politics
Chirol, V. Fifty years in a changing world. (Mr '28)
Corti, E. C. Reign of the house of Rothschild. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Corti, E. C. Rise of the house of Rothschild. (Ag '28)
Fabre-Luce, A. Locarno. (O '28)
Fay, S. B. Origins of the world war. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Herford, C: H. Post-war mind of Germany, and other European studies. (My '28)
Poliakoff, V. Peace in Europe. (My '28)
Powell, E: A. Embattled borders. (Je '28)
Stegemann, H. Mirage of Versailles. (S '28)
Victoria, queen of Great Britain. Letters of Queen Victoria. (Ap '28)

Relations (general) with United States
Mowrer, E. A. This American world. (Ag '28)

Social conditions
Thompson, J. W. Economic and social history of the middle ages. (N '28)

Europe. Keyserling, H. A. (S '28)

European skyways. Thomas, L. J. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

European war, 1914-1918
Barbusse, H. I saw it myself. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Aerial operations
Gibbons, F. P. Red knight of Germany. (Mr '28)
Sueter, M. F. Airmen or Noahs. (O '28)

Fiction
Springs, E. W. Above the bright blue sky. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Atrocities
Ponsonby, A. A: W: H. Falsehood in wartime. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Biography
Liddell Hart, B. H: Reputations, ten years after. (My '28)
Martin, W: Statesmen of the war in retrospect, 1918-1928. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Campaigns
Johnson, T: M. Without censor. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

France
Liggett, H. A. E. F. (Je '28)
Van Every, D. A. E. F. in battle (Ag '28)

Turkey and the Near East
Graves, R. Lawrence and the Arabian adventure. (My '28)

Causes
Fay, S. B. Origins of the world war. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Lichnowsky, K: M. Heading for the abyss. (O '28)
Renouvin, P. Immediate origins of the war. (My '28)

Diplomatic history
Lichnowsky, K: M. Heading for the abyss. (O '28)
Lutz, H. Lord Grey and the World war. (Je '28)
Sazonov, S. D. Fateful years, 1909-1916. (My '28)

Economic aspects
Grady, H: F. British war finance, 1914-1919. (My '28)

Finance
Grady, H: F. British war finance, 1914-1919. (My '28)

Naval operations
Richmond, H. W: National policy and naval strength. (N '28)
Thomas, L. J. Raiders of the deep. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

European war, 1914-1918—Continued

Personal narratives

Jacks, L. V. Service record. (Ag '28)
Mark VII, pseud. Subaltern on the Somme in 1916. (Mr '28)
Rendinell, J. E: One man's war. (Je '28)
Roosevelt, T. Rank and file. (Je '28)

Poetry

Sanford, A. P., and Schauffler, R. H., eds. and comps. Armistice day. (Mr '28)

Prisoners and prisons

Hardy, J. L. I escape! (Ap '28)

Propaganda

Lasswell, H. D. Propaganda technique in the World war. (My '28)
Ponsonby, A. A: W: H. Falsehood in wartime. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Refugees

Balascheff, M. The transplanting. (My '28)

Reparations

Auld, G: P. Dawes plan and the new economics. (Mr '28)

Territorial questions

Harrison, M. E. Asia reborn. (Je '28)
Stegemann, H. Mirage of Versailles. (S '28)

Armenia

Hartill, L. R. Men are like that. (Je '28)

Czechoslovak Republic

Beneš, E. My war memories. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Germany

Lichnowsky, K: M. Heading for the abyss. (O '28)
Maximilian, Prince of Baden. Memoirs. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Great Britain

Beaverbrook, W: M. A., baron. Politicians and the war, 1914-1916. (N '28)
Lutz, H. Lord Grey and the World war. (Je '28)
Oxford and Asquith, H. H: A. Memories and reflections. (O '28)
Willis, I. C. England's holy war. (S '28)

Poland

Fisher, H. H:, and Brooks, S. America and the new Poland. (S '28)

United States

Frothingham, T: G. American reinforcement in the world war. (Mr '28)
House, E: M. Intimate papers of Colonel House, v 3-4. (D '28)
Johnson, T: M. Without censor. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Liggett, H. A. E. F. (Je '28)
Van Every, D. A. E. F. in battle. (Ag '28)

Europe's economic sunrise. Bell, E: P. (Ag '28)

Evangelistic work

Clark, G. Fishers of men. (O '28)

Eva's apples. Gerhardi, W: A. (Ag '28)

Evergreens

Rockwell, F: F. Evergreens for the small place. (D '28)
Schrepfer, F. A. Hardy evergreens. (D '28)

Evergreens for the small place. Rockwell, F: F. (D '28)

Everybody's aviation guide. Pagé, V: W. (N '28)

Everyday foods. Harris, J. W., and Lacey, E. V. D. (Ap '28)

Everyday problems of the everyday child. Thom. D. A. (O '28)

Evoe, pseud. See Knox, E. G: V. (Je '28)

Evolution

Bateson, W: William Bateson, F. R. S. naturalist. (O '28)
Brain, W. R. Galatea. (D '28)
Campbell, J: L. Bible under fire. (O '28)
Keith, A. Concerning man's origin. (My '28)
Kolbe, F: C: Catholic view of holism. (Ag '28)
Mason, F., ed. Creation by evolution. (O '28)
Parsons, G. Stream of history. (Ag '28)
Tilney, F: Brain from ape to man. (N '28)

Evolution of penology in Pennsylvania. Barnes, H. E. (My '28)

Evolution of scientific thought from Newton to Einstein. Abro, A. d'. (S '28)

Evolution of the English hymn. Gillman, F: J: (My '28)

Evolution of trout and trout fishing in America. Southard, C: Z. (Ag '28)

Examples of modern French architecture. Robertson, H., and Yerbury, F. R., eds. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Excavation

Paul, C: H., and Bennett, C: S. Methods and plant for excavating and embankment. (Ap '28)

Excavations (archaeology)

Baikie, J. Glamour of Near East excavation. (S '28)

Exchange

Brokaw, W. E. Equitable society and how to create it. (D '28)

Executions and executioners

Schmidt, F. Hangman's diary. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Exile. Maynard, T. (Ag '28)

Explaining China. Baker, J: E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Explorer of changing horizons: William Edgar Geil. Wilson, P. W. (Ap '28)

Exploring New York's art galleries. Breuning, M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Exploring your mind with the psychologists. Wiggam, A. E: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Extraordinary women. Mackenzie, C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Extremes meet. Mackenzie, C. (S '28)

Fables, Hindu

Mackenzie, C: F. Jackal in Persia. (D '28)

Fabre, Jean Henri Casimir

Wade, M. H. Boy who found out. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Fabulous New Orleans. Saxon, L. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Façade. Goldring, D. (Je '28)

Facing life. Faunce, W: H. P. (D '28)

Factory management

Anderson, A. G. Industrial engineering and factory management. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Davis, R. C. Principles of factory organization and management. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Fair winds in the far Baltic. Loomis, A. F. (Ag '28)

Fairy goose. O'Flaherty, L. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Fairy tales

Adams, K., and Atchinson, F. E., comps. Book of princess stories. (Mr '28)
Aulnoy, M. C. J. de B. White cat. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
De La Mare, W. J: Told again. (Ap '28)
Hutchinson, V. S., ed. Candle-light stories. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Williams, A. National traits and fairy-lore. (D '28)
Wilson, R., pseud. Green magic. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Faith

Royden, A. M. I believe in God. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Fall flight. Gizycka, E. M. (D '28)

Fall of the Russian empire. Walsh, E. A. (S '28)

Falls of Niagara. Forrester, G. C. (N '28)

Falsehood in war-time. Ponsonby, A. A: W: H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Familiar letters on important occasions. Richardson, S: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Family

Gross, E. B. Hebrew family. (D '28)
Eliot, C: W: Talks to parents and young people. (D '28)

Gilbreth, L. E. Living with our children. (O '28)
Goodsell, W. Problems of the family. (D '28)
Groves, E. R., and Ogburn, W: F. American marriage and family relationships. (D '28)
Van Waters, M. Parents on probation. (O '28)
Weill, B. C. Behavior of young children of the same family. (D '28)
Family in the making. Messer, M. B. (Ag '28)
Family life and letters. Eliot, G:, pseud. (S '28)
Famous fimmales. Gross, M. (S '28)
Famous prize fights. Farnol, J. (S '28)

Fanaticism
Seldes, G. V. Stammering century. (N '28)
Far call. Marshall, E. (Ag '28)
Far East. Treat, P. J. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Farewell to youth. Jameson, S. (S '28)

Farington, Joseph
Farington, J. Farington diary, v 7. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Farington diary, v 7. Farington, J. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Farm life
Bailey, L. H. Harvest of the year to the tiller of the soil. (Je '28)
Cram, W: E. Time and change. (Je '28)
Eastman, E: R. These changing times. (Mr '28)
Rose, H. The stump farm. (Ag '28)

Farm management
Holmes, C. L. Economics of farm organization and management. (O '28)

Farm produce

Marketing

Watts, G. S. Roadside marketing. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Fascinating women. Blei, F. (D '28)
Fatal kiss mystery. King, R. (D '28)
Fate and freedom. Russell, H: N. (My '28)
Fateful years, 1909-1916. Sazonov, S. D. (My '28)
Father. Brown, K. H. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Father India. Ranga Iyer, C. S. (S '28)
Father of his country. Barton, W: E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Fats and oils. Alsberg, C. L., and Taylor, A. E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Feast of Noël. Crownfield, G. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Feathered nest. Leech, M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Feathered serpent. Wallace, E. (S '28)
Federal aid. Macdonald, A. F. (Ag '28)

Federal reserve banks
Burgess, W. R. Reserve banks and the money market. (Ap '28)

Feed-water purification
Powell, S. T. Boiler feed water purification. (My '28)

Feeding the child from two to six. Barnes, M. F. (Je '28)

Félix, Elisa Rachel
Agate, J. E. Rachel. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Female of the species. McNeile, H. C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Ferns
Durand, H. Field book of common ferns. (D '28)

Feudal Germany. Thompson, J. W. (S '28)

Fiction (books about)

Bibliography

Bacon, C., comp. Standard catalog; fiction section. (S '28)

Fiction (classified according to subject)

Adolescence

Blaker, R: Scabby Dichson. (Ap '28)
Carr, R. S. Rampant age. (Je '28)
Coursen, D. Fire of spring. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Adventure

Ames, J. B. Flame of the desert. (S '28)
Bedford-Jones, H: Black Bull. (Mr '28)
Bedford-Jones, H: D'Artagnan. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bedford-Jones, H: King's passport. (My '28)
Beith, J: H. Poor gentleman. (Ap '28)
Buchan, J: Runagates club. (O '28)
Chambers, R. W: Rogue's moon. (O '28)
Drake, H: B. Cursed be the treasure. (My '28)
Forester, C. S. Daughter of the Hawk. (N '28)
Gompertz, M. L: A. Mirror of dreams. (D '28)
Harper, T. A. and W. M. H.-B. Kubrik the outlaw. (D '28)
Keck, M., and Orbison, O. Behind the devil screen. (Ag '28)
McFarland, R. Sea panther. (My '28)
Marshall, E. Far call. (Ag '28)
Newsom, J. D. Garde à vous! (On guard!) (Ag '28)
Nordhoff, C: B. The derelict. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Pereyra, D. de. Land of the golden scarabs. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Reid, H. S. Phillida. (O '28)
Roberts, C. Sagusto. (Mr '28)
Skinner, C. L. Search relentless. (D '28)
Smith, W. H. Red ivory. (N '28)
Snaith, J: C. Surrender. (O '28)
Surdez, G. Demon caravan. (Mr '28)
Treynor, A. M. Hands up! (Je '28)
Wren, P. C. Beau ideal. (O '28)
Wright, S. F. Island of Captain Sparrow. (S '28)
Wynnton, P. Lady Zia. (O '28)
Yates, D. Perishable goods. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Animal stories

Bartlett, A. C. Sea dog. (Mr '28)
Bartlett, A. C. Spunk, leader of the dog team. (Mr '28)
Brooke, G. F. H. Horse lovers. (N '28)
Foote, J: T. Trub's diary. (S '28)
Hawkes, C. Patches. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hinkle, T: C. Trueboy. (O '28)
Hodder, M. W. S. Pax, the adventurous horse. (O '28)
Underwood, L. Siamese cat. (My '28)
Williamson, H: Tarka the otter. (Ap '28)

Artist life

Burlingame, R. High Thursday. (Mr '28)
Millin, S. G. Artist in the family. (Ap '28)

Aviation

Bellah, J. W. Gods of yesterday. (Ap '28)
Guthrie, R. Parachute. (Ap '28)

Biblical stories

Davis, E. H. Giant killer. (D '28)
Parker, G. Promised land. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sheehan, M. Eden. (Mr '28)
Tucker, L: In the hills of Galilee. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Tucker, L: When he came to himself. (S '28)
Untermeyer, L: Moses. (D '28)
Washburn, R. C. Samson. (D '28)

Buddhism

Morand, P. Living Buddha. (My '28)

Business

Foster, M. Crooked. (Ap '28)
Jerrold, D. Quex. (My '28)
Riesenberg, F. Red horses. (S '28)
Sprague, J. R. Making of a merchant. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Character studies

Aldrich, B. A lantern in her hand. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Arlen, M., pseud. Lily Christine. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Austin, A. Jackson street. (Ap '28)
Bang, H. J. Ida Brandt. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Baroja y Nessi, P. Tree of knowledge. (O '28)
Bartley, N. I. The fox woman. (S '28)
Beddow, B. Black country. (D '28)
Bennett, R. Cranmer Paul. (Ag '28)
Bentham, J. Bright avenues. (My '28)
Beresford, J: D. All or nothing. (Ap '28)
Bottome, P. Messenger of the gods. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Bronson, F. W. Old Nick. (Mr '28)

Fiction—Character studies—Continued
Brophy, J: Bitter end. (Ag '28)
Buchan, J: Half-hearted. (S '28)
Burt, K. N. Cock's feather. (D '28)
Childers, J. S. Hilltop in the rain. (N '28)
Coalfleet, P. Meanwhile. (Ag '28)
Connolly, M. Mr Blue. (N '28)
Curtis, K. Tired captains. (Je '28)
Deeping, W. Old Pybus. (N '28)
Dickenson, M. F. Apron strings. (N '28)
Eiker, M. Lady of stainless raiment. (N '28)
Feld, R. C. Heritage. (N '28)
Field, B. Earthen lot. (Ap '28)
Fort, J: P. Light in the window. (O '28)
Frankau, G. So much good. (Mr '28)
Glenn, I. Southern charm. (Mr '28)
Holtby, W. Land of green ginger. (Je '28)
Housman, L. Uncle Tom Pudd. (D '28)
Jacobs, C: P. Bram. (Ag '28)
Johnston, M. Hanging Johnny. (Ap '28)
Keable, R. Though this be madness. (O '28)
Larsen, N. Quicksand. (Je '28)
Leslie, D. Fools in mortar. (N '28)
Lincoln, J. C. Silas Bradford's boy. (D '28)
McClure, R. E. Lady in marble. (S '28)
Mellett, B. Ellington brat. (Mr '28)
Mellett, J: C. High ground. (My '28)
Mitchell, R. C. Army with banners. (D '28)
Mottram, R. H. English miss. (N '28)
November night. (Mr '28)
O'Neil, G: That bright heat. (Je '28)
Parrish, A. All kneeling. (O '28)
Raushenbush, H. S. Men atwhiles are sober. (Ag '28)
Reid, L. Trevy the River. (My '28)
Richardson, A. Transgressor. (D '28)
Robertson, E. A. Cullum. (O '28)
Rossiter, L. Spellbinder. (Je '28)
Russell, P. Fumbler. (D '28)
Shepherd, N. Quarry wood. (D '28)
Stern, G. B. Debonair. (My '28)
Sudermann, H. Mad professor. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Taylor, K. H. Youngest one. (S '28)
Tupper, T. The river. (Ag '28)
Wolf, M. H. Hank Miller. (D '28)
Young, F. B. My brother Jonathan. (D '28)

Cheerful stories

Cox, A. B. Amateur crime. (O '28)
Crozier, B. Smiley's haven. (Je '28)
Garrett, W: A. Professional guest. (N '28)
Hannay, J. O. Runaways. (O '28)
Hueston, E. Ginger Ella. (Je '28)
Hughes, P., pseud. Together. (Ag '28)
Hyde, R. Young family. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Jepson, E. Emerald tiger. (S '28)
Kelland, C. B. Knuckles. (Ag '28)
Lathrop, L. A. Mad masquerade. (O '28)
Lenanton, C. Holiday. (Ag '28)
Leroux, G. Son of three fathers. (S '28)
Loos, A. But gentlemen marry brunettes. (Ag '28)
Miller, A. Welcome home. (My '28)
Oemler, M. Sheaves. (S '28)
Powel, H. W. H. Virgin queene. (Je '28)
Singmaster, E. What everybody wanted. (N '28)
Sullivan, A. Sands of fortune. (O '28)
Thane, E., pseud. His Elizabeth. (My '28)
Vachell, H. A. Men are so selfish! (My '28)
Wodehouse, P. G. Meet Mr Mulliner. (Mr '28)
Wodehouse, P. G. Money for nothing. (N '28)
Yates, D. Berry and co. (S '28)

Children, stories about

Brady, M. Genevieve Gertrude. (Je '28)
Coursen, D. Fire of spring. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Royde-Smith, N. G. In the wood. (Ag '28)
Van de Water, F: F. Elmer 'n Edwina. (Ag '28)

Circus life

Gates, H: L. Here comes the bandwagon. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
McCallum, M. R. Tents of wickedness. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Companionate marriage

Paradis, M. B. Dinner of herbs. (O '28)

Crime and criminals

Coe, C: F. River pirate. (Ag '28)
Coe, C: F. Swag. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Footner, H. Queen of clubs. (My '28)
Lowndes, M. A. Story of Ivy. (My '28)
Martin, S. Fifteen cells. (S '28)
Packard, F. L. Shanghai Jim. (S '28)

Divorce

Cuthrell, F. Alimony. (D '28)
Wharton, E. N. The children. (O '28)

Dual personality

Macaulay, R. Daisy and Daphne. (My '28)

European war

Bellah, J. W. Gods of yesterday. (Ap '28)
Bellah, J. W. Sons of Cain. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Brophy, J: Bitter end. (Ag '28)
Dunton, J. G., ed. C'est la guerre! (Je '28)
Ingram, K. Out of darkness. (Mr '28)
Mack, C: E. Two black Crows in the A.E.F. (N '28)
Mackenzie, C. Extremes meet. (S '28)
Maugham, W: S. Ashenden. (My '28)
Nason, L. H. Sergeant Eadie. (My '28)
Nason, L. H. Top kick. (N '28)
Noble, E: Moving waters. (Je '28)
Thompson, E: J: These men, thy friends. (Ap '28)
Unruh, F. von. Way of sacrifice. (Ag '28)
Upson, W: H. Me and Henry and the artillery. (O '28)
Wharton, J. B. Squad. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Whiting, J: D. S.O.S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Zweig, A. Case of Sergeant Grischa. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Family life

Biddle, F. Llanfear pattern. (Mr '28)
Buchan, A. Eliza for common. (O '28)
Chase, E. Pennagan Place. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Clark, M. M. Head in the wind. (D '28)
Cort, D: Once more, ye laurels. (Je '28)
Dane, C., pseud. The Babyons. (O '28)
De La Pasture, E. E. M. Way things are. (Mr '28)
Herbst, J. Nothing is sacred. (D '28)
Hurst, F. A president is born. (Mr '28)
Jones, E. B. C. Helen and Felicia. (My '28)
Leech, M. Feathered nest. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Matson, N. H. Day of fortune. (O '28)
Mills, M. Madeleine heritage. (My '28)
O'Donnell, P. The way it was with them. (D '28)
Paxton, T. S. Tellings. (O '28)
Stebbins, L. P. Old Adam's likeness. (N '28)
Suckow, R. Bonney family. (Ap '28)
Sullivan, A. Sands of fortune. (O '28)
Swinnerton, F. A. Brood of ducklings. (D '28)
Tooker, H. V. The 5:35. (Ap '28)
Van Doren, D. Brother and brother. (D '28)
Wiley, J: Queer street. (Je '28)

Fantasies

Calthrop, D. C. Hyacinth. (Ap '28)
Davey, N. Judgment day. (D '28)
Douglas, N. In the beginning. (Je '28)
Dunsany, E: J: M. D. P. Blessing of Pan. (Mr '28)
Garnett, L. Joyous pretender. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Gerhardi, W: A. Eva's apples. (Ag '28)
Jepson, E. Horned shepherd. (Ag '28)
Nathan, R. The bishop's wife. (N '28)
Powys, T. F. Mr Weston's good wine. (My '28)
Roberts, E. M. Jingling in the wind. (N '28)
Starrett, V. Seaports in the moon. (Je '28)
Unamuno y Jugo, M. de. Mist (Niebla). (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Wells, H. G: Mr Blettsworthy on Rampole island. (D '28)
Woolf, V. Orlando. (D '28)
Wright, S. F. Island of Captain Sparrow. (S '28)

Farm life

Cannon, C. J. Red rust. (Ap '28)
Feld, R. C. Heritage. (N '28)
Grew, D: Migration. (Ap '28)
Grove, F: P. Our daily bread. (D '28)
Martinez Zuviría, G. A. Stone desert. (D '28)
Vaughan, H. Invader. (O '28)
Wells, R. American farm. (N '28)

Fathers and daughters

Heyer, G. Helen. (Ag '28)
Swinnerton, F. A. Brood of ducklings. (D '28)
White, J. On the sixth day. (Je '28)
Wylie, P. Heavy laden. (Je '28)

Fathers and sons

De Voto, B. A. House of sun-goes-down. (Ag '28)

Feminism

Neff, W. F. We sing Diana. (Ap '28)

Frontier and pioneer life

Aldrich, B. A lantern in her hand. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Boyd, T: A. Shadow of the Long Knives. (Ag '28)
Everson, F. M., and Power, E. L. Early days in Ohio. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Fisher, V. Toilers of the hills. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Hargreaves, S. Cabin at the trail's end. (Je '28)
Pendexter, H. Bird of Freedom. (Ag '28)

Fur trade

Evarts, H. G: Fur brigade. (O '28)

Ghost stories

Wakefield, H: R. They return at evening. (S '28)

Historical novels

Canada

Chambers, R. W: Sun Hawk. (Je '28)
Curwood, J. O. Plains of Abraham. (Ag '28)

Carolinas

Sass, H. R. War drums. (Ag '28)

England

Deeping, W. Uther and Igraine. (Je '28)
Fletcher, J. S. I'd venture all for thee! (My '28)
Hannah, I. C. Voadica. (O '28)
Sheppard, A. T. Here comes an old sailor. (N '28)

France

Beck, L. A. Empress of hearts. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bedford-Jones, H: D'Artagnan. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Feval, P., and Lassez, M. Years between. (Je '28)
Ford, F. M. Little less than gods. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Morse, S: En garde! (Je '28)
Prescott, H. F. M. Lost fight. (N '28)

Greece

Atherton, G. F. Jealous gods. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Mitchison, N. M. Black Sparta. (S '28)
Sims, A. Phoinix. (O '28)

Holland

Slocum, S. E. Beggars of the sea. (Je '28)

India

Steel, F. A. The builder. (N '28)

Italy

Huch, R. O. Defeat. (N '28)
Oxenham, J:, pseud. Hawk of Como. (S '28)

Mexico

McLaughlin, F. Blade of Picardy. (Ag '28)

Poland

Zeromski, S. Ashes. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Spain

Blake, G. Doña Isabella's adventures. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Sabatini, R. Hounds of God. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

United States

Brown, K. H. Father. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Peattie, D. C. and L. Up country. (My '28)

Horror tales

Asbury, H., ed. Not at night! (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Beeding, F. House of Dr Edwardes. (Mr '28)
Beeding, F., pseud. Six proud walkers. (O '28)
Biggs, J: jr. Seven days whipping. (O '28)
Drake, H: B. The shadowy thing. (D '28)
La Marre, J. Passion of the beast. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Markham, V. Death in the dusk. (O '28)
Merritt, A. 7 footprints to Satan. (Je '28)
Meyrink, G. The golem. (O '28)
Priestley, J: B. Old dark house. (Ap '28)
Renard, M., and Jean, A. Blind circle (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Shellabarger, S: Door of death. (D '28)
Trites, W: B. The gypsy. (Ap '28)

Horse-racing

Chamberlain, G: A. The taken child. (D '28)

Humor and satire

Anthony, E: How to get rid of a woman. (D '28)
Barnes, D. Ryder. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Belloc, H. Haunted house. (Mr '28)
Bennett, A. The Vanguard. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Crawford, N. A. Man of learning. (Ap '28)
Erskine, J: Penelope's man. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Farrell, J. Girl everybody knew. (Je '28)
Huxley, A. L. Point counter point. (D '28)
Lewis, S. Man who knew Coolidge. (My '28)
Littell, P. This way out. (N '28)
"Sh! not before Evelyn May." (Ag '28)
Sieveking, L. De G. All children must be paid for. (My '28)
Steel, B. Java-Java. (S '28)
Top drawer. (Ap '28)
Weigall, A. Infidelity. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Weston, H. Bride's progress. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Wiley, H. "Here's luck!" (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Immigrants in America

Forgione, L: River between. (Ag '28)
Matson, N. H. Day of fortune. (O '28)

Indian tales and legends

Cheyney, E: G. Matu, the Iroquois. (D '28)

International intrigue

Beeding, F., pseud. Six proud walkers. (O '28)
Maugham, W: S. Ashenden. (My '28)
Oppenheim, E: P. Light beyond. (Mr '28)
Oppenheim, E: P. Matorni's vineyard. (D '28)
O'Reilly, M. B. Black fan. (Ag '28)

International marriages

Gizycka, E. M. Fall flight. (D '28)
Graham, D. French wife. (Ap '28)
Stern, E. M. Scarlet heels. (N '28)
Thompson, S. Battle of the horizons. (Ag '28)
Yoxall, H. W. Modern love. (Je '28)

Irish in America

Tully, J. Shanty Irish. (D '28)

Jewish life

Ashton, M. G. Race. (N '28)
Burstein, A. Ghetto messenger. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lewisohn, L. Island within. (My '28)
Pinsky, D: Arnold Levenberg. (N '28)
Rosenfeld, P. Boy in the sun. (D '28)

Fiction—Continued

Judaism

Poliakoff, S. L. Rejected Messiah. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Labor and laboring classes

Forgione, L: River between. (Ag '28)
Grove, F: P. Search for America. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Law and lawyers

Train, A. C. Ambition. (Ap '28)

Letters (stories in letter form)

Love letters of a husband. (Ag '28)

Locality, Novels of

Africa, North

Surdez, G. Demon caravan. (Mr '28)

Alaska

Tomlinson, E. T. Three boys in Alaska. (N '28)

Aleutian islands

Marshall, E. Far call. (Ag '28)

Argentina

Martinez Zuviría, G. A. Black Valley. (Ap '28)
Martinez Zuviría, G. A. Stone desert. (D '28)

Arizona

Ames, J. B. Flame of the desert. (S '28)

Australia

Howard, F: J. Emigrant. (S '28)

Austria

Preedy, G:, pseud. General Crack. (N '28)

Borneo

Rutter, O. Golden rain. (S '28)

Boston

Sinclair, U. B. Boston. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Budapest

Stevens, L: All the king's horses. (My '28)

Burma

Black, D. Idle women. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Lowis, C. C. District bungalow. (Mr '28)

California

Cram, M. Scotch Valley. (S '28)
Gregory, J. Redwood and gold. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Hughes, R. Lovely ducklings. (Ag '28)
Kyne, P: B. Tide of empire. (S '28)
Norris, K. Foolish virgin. (N '28)
Simpson, L. J. Back fire. (Mr '28)
Small, S. H. Splendid Californians. (S '28)

Canada

Abbot, J. Seigneurs of La Saulaye. (N '28)
Cartwright, Z. Wapoose. (S '28)
Dunham, B. M. Toward Sodom. (Mr '28)
Grove, F: P. Our daily bread. (D '28)
Longstreth, T: M. Sons of the mounted police. (F '29) 1928 Annual)
Skinner, C. L. Search relentless. (D '28)
Steele, H. E. R. Ninth circle. (My '28)

Cape Cod

Lincoln, J. C. Silas Bradford's boy. (D '28)

Carolinas

Campbell, E. Survival. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Central America

McFee, W: Pilgrims of adversity. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Chicago

Kantor, M. Diversey. (O '28)
Riesenberg, F. Red horses. (S '28)

China

Bennett, J. W. Dragon shadows. (O '28)
Bennett, J. W. Son of the typhoon. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Pettit, C: Elegant infidelities of Madame Li Pei Fou. (D '28)
Simpson, B. L. China's crucifixion. (N '28)
Smith, E. B. Kai Lung unrolls his mat. (Je '28)

China (Peking)

Duffield, A. Miss Mayhew and Ming Yun. (Ap '28)
Gautier, J. Imperial dragon. (Je '28)
Keck, M., and Orbison, O. Behind the devil screen. (Ag '28)

China (Shanghai)

Miln, L. Flutes of Shanghai. (N '28)

Cleveland

Everson, F. M., and Power, E. L. Early days in Ohio. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Colorado

Raine, W: M. Colorado. (My '28)

Cornwall

Phillpotts, E. Cornish droll. (My '28)

Cuba

Cozzens, J. G. Cock pit. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Harding, A. Tropical fruit. (D '28)

Dakota

Grew, D: Migration. (Ap '28)

Denmark

Paludan, J. Birds around the light. (N '28)
Soiberg, H. Sea king. (O '28)

Dutch East Indies

Wiehe, E. M. Too much Java. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Egypt

Strunsky, S. King Akhnaton. (N '28)
Young, F. B. Key of life. (My '28)

England

Beith, J: H. Poor gentleman. (Ap '28)
Butts, M. Armed with madness. (Ag '28)
Farnol, J. Guyfford of Weare. (D '28)
Ford, F. M. Last post. (Mr '28)
Galsworthy, J: Swan song. (S '28)
Jameson, S. Farewell to youth. (S '28)
Knox, A. Flowerdown. (D '28)
McKenna, S. Divided allegiance. (D '28)
Mannin, E. E. Green willow. (N '28)
Mottram, R. H. English miss. (N '28)
Simpson, H. Cups, wands & swords. (Je '28)
Yoxall, H. W. Modern love. (Je '28)

England (London)

Bellah, J. W. Sons of Cain. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Gibbs, A. Enter the Greek. (O '28)
Goldring, D. Façade. (Je '28)
Guest, C. Children of the fog. (Mr '28)
Haslett, G. W. Corunna road. (My '28)
Hopkins, G. Friend of Antaeus. (Ag '28)
Metcalfe, J: Mrs Condover. (O '28)
Miln, L. Red lily and Chinese jade. (O '28)
Sidgwick, E. When I grow rich. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

England (provincial and rural)

Adcock, A. St J: Love is master. (Ag '28)
Bates, H. E. Day's end. (O '28)
Beddow, B. Black country. (D '28)
Bower, M. Gotobedde lane. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
De La Pasture, E. E. M. Way things are. (Mr '28)
Fletcher, J. S. Pinfold. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Graves, C. I. M. Lovers of the market-place. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hinkson, K. Respectable lady. (Ag '28)
Hooke, S. D. Nettle harvest. (O '28)
Kaye-Smith, S. Iron and smoke. (Mr '28)
Phillpotts, E. It happened like that. (N '28)
Phillpotts, E. Ring fence. (S '28)
Rees, A. J: Love me Anise. (S '28)

Weekes, A. R. and R. K. Fool in the forest. (Ag '28)
Wheatley, V. Enchanting danger. (D '28)
Wiltshire, M. Burying road. (Je '28)

Florida

Granberry, E. Strangers and lovers. (My '28)

France

Aubry, O. On the king's couch. (Mr '28)
Bedford-Jones, H: King's passport. (My '28)
Fournier, A. The wanderer (Le grand Meaulnes). (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Graham, D. French wife. (Ap '28)
Green, J. Closed garden. (Je '28)
Hudson, J. W: Abbé Pierre's people. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Ingram, K. Out of darkness. (Mr '28)
Morse, S: En garde! (Je '28)
Silvestre, C: Aimée Villard. (Je '28)

France (Brittany)

Le Franc, M. Whisper of a name (Grand-Louis l'Innocent). (F '29) (1928 Annual)

France (Paris)

Carco, F. Perversity. (O '28)
Cheke, M. Papillée. (My '28)
Kahler, W. Early to bed. (S '28)
McClure, R. E. Lady in marble. (S '28)

Germany

Keyserling, E. H. N. Curse of the Tarniffs. (Ap '28)
Sudermann, H. Mad professor. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Thiess, F. Devil's shadow. (D '28)

Germany (Berlin)

Goldsmith, M. Karin's mother. (Je '28)

Hawaiian islands

Tempski, A. von. Dust. (Je '28)

Hebrides

Davidson, A. A. Eilean More. (N '28)

India

Blaker, R: Scabby Dichson. (Ap '28)
Dell, E. M. Peggy by request. (Je '28)
Gompertz, M. L: A. Mirror of dreams. (D '28)
Steel, F. A. The builder. (N '28)
Wilson, M. Daughters of India. (Je '28)

Ireland

Byrne, D. Destiny Bay. (N '28)
Hannay, J. O. Runaways. (O '28)
Johnston, M. Hanging Johnny. (Ap '28)
O'Donnell, P. The way it was with them. (D '28)
O'Flaherty, L. The assassin. (O '28)
Thurston, E. T. Jane Carroll. (My '28)

Italy

Bedford-Jones, H: Black Bull. (Mr '28)
Verona, G. da. Woman who invented love. (O '28)
Winwar, F. Golden round. (D '28)

Italy (Rome)

Beeding, F., pseud. Six proud walkers. (O '28)
Clarke, I. C. Strangers of Rome. (D '28)
Desmond, S. Echo. (O '28)

Italy (Venice)

De Witte, Y. Daughter of Venice. (Je '28)
Hewes, A. D. Swords on the sea. (Ag '28)

Japan

Sawyer, E. A. Way of Umé. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Java

Herron, V. Peacocks. (Ap '28)

Kentucky

Bird, R. M. Nick of the woods. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Daingerfield, F. That gay nineties murder. (Je '28)
Kroll, H. H. Mountainy singer. (N '28)

Malta

Du Coudray, H. Another country. (N '28)

Maryland

Footner, H. Cap'n Sue. (N '28)

Mexico

Grant, R. Shorn. (My '28)
Treynor, A. M. Hands up! (Je '28)

Minnesota

Benson, R. Hill country. (O '28)
Cannon, C. J. Red rust. (Ap '28)
Monger, M. Diana of the north country. (O '28)

Mississippi river

Le May, A. Old father of waters. (My '28)

Morocco

Forbes, R. Pursuit. (O '28)

Nebraska

Pendexter, H. Bird of Freedom. (Ag '28)

New Hampshire

Feld, R. C. Heritage. (N '28)

New Jersey

Terhune, A. P. Water! (My '28)

New Orleans

Dickson, H. Children of the river. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Gibbs, G: F. Shores of romance. (Je '28)
Tinker, E: L. Toucoutou. (Ag '28)

New York (city)

Barretto, L. Old enchantment. (My '28)
Beer, T: Road to heaven. (Ag '28)
Bellamann, H: Crescendo. (N '28)
Brody, C. Babe Evanson. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Cavanagh, D., pseud. Tammany boy. (N '28)
Fisher, R. Walls of Jericho. (O '28)
McKay, C. Home to Harlem. (Ap '28)
Martin, N. C. B. Lord Byron of Broadway. (D '28)
Raushenbush, H. S. Men atwhiles are sober. (Ag '28)
Wiley, J: Queer street. (Je '28)

Newfoundland

Day, F. P. Rockbound. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Normandy

Barbey d'Aurevilly, J. A. Bewitched. (Je '28)

North Carolina

Green, P. Wide fields. (Ag '28)

Norway

Hamsun, K. Women at the pump. (D '28)
Haukland, A. E. D. Norns are spinning. (Ag '28)
Undset, S. The axe. (Ap '28)

Oregon

Hargreaves, S. Cabin at the trail's end. (Je '28)

Panama

Sutherland, J. Onslaught. (Ap '28)

Peru

Jenkins, J. F. Tambo. (N '28)

Philadelphia

Biddle, F. Llanfear pattern. (Mr '28)

Philippine islands

Thomson, C: G. Time is a gentleman. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Poland

Gielgud, V. H: Old swords. (Je '28)
Zeromski, S. Ashes. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Russia

Fox, R. Storming heaven. (O '28)
Gaer, J. Legend called Meryom. (My '28)
Gusev, S. I. Land of the children. (Ag '28)

Fiction—Locality, Novels of—Russia—Continued
Krasnov, P. N. Unforgiven. (My '28)
Quick, H., and MacMahon, E. S. We have changed all that. (Je '28)
Rozânov, M. G. Diary of a communist schoolboy. (O '28)
Shmelev, I. Sun of the dead. (My '28)
Vieressaev, V. V. Deadlock. (S '28)

St Louis
O'Neil, G: That bright heat. (Je '28)

Scotland
Blake, G: Gettin' in society. (O '28)
Walsh, M. While rivers run. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Siberia
Harper, T. A. and W. M. H.-B. Kubrik the outlaw. (D '28)

Sicily
Pirandello, L. Old and the young. (S '28)

South Africa
Millin, S. G. Artist in the family. (Ap '28)
Millin, S. G. Coming of the Lord. (D '28)

South America
Pereyra, D. de. Land of the golden scarabs. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

South Carolina
McCants, E. C. White Oak farm. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

South Sea islands
Beck, L. A. Captain Java. (D '28)
Chadourne, M. Vasco. (O '28)
Nordhoff, C: B. The derelict. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Stacpoole, H: De V. Mystery of Uncle Bollard. (Je '28)

Spain
Alarcón, P. A. de. Three-cornered hat. (My '28)
Blasco Ibáñez, V. Intruder. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Blasco Ibáñez, V. Reeds and mud (Cañas y barro). (Je '28)
Trites, W: B. The gypsy. (Ap '28)

Spain (Madrid)
Baroja y Nessi, P. Tree of knowledge. (O '28)

Sweden
Dixelius, H. The son. (My '28)

Switzerland
Knittel, J: Into the abyss. (D '28)
Richardson, D. M. Oberland. (Je '28)

Tennessee
Stribling, T: S. Bright metal. (N '28)

Texas
Austin, A. Jackson street. (Ap '28)
Coolidge, D. Gun-smoke. (S '28)

Tibet
Gompertz, M. L: A. High snow. (Ap '28)

Turkey
Berry, W: R. Justice of Allah. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Griffith, G. K. Silent drum. (O '28)

United States (middlewestern)
Hurst, F. A president is born. (Mr '28)
Powell, D. She walks in beauty. (Je '28)
Suckow, R. Bonney family. (Ap '28)

United States (northwestern)
Evarts, H. G. Fur brigade. (O '28)

United States (southern)
Bethea, J. Cotton. (S '28)
Canney, H. E. Sentry. (D '28)
Cobb, I. S. All aboard. (N '28)
Glenn, I. Southern charm. (Mr '28)

United States (southwestern)
Malkus, A. S. Caravans to Sante Fe. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Raine, W: M. Texas man. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

United States (western)
Ames, J. B. Chaps and chukkers. (O '28)
Bower, B. M., pseud. Hay-wire. (O '28)
Bower, B. M., pseud. Points west. (Mr '28)
Brand, M. Pillar Mountain. (D '28)
Brand, M. Pleasant Jim. (Ap '28)
Case, R. O. Riders of the Grande Ronde. (O '28)
Cooper, C. R. Golden bubble. (My '28)
De Voto, B. A. House of sun-goes-down. (Ag '28)
Dorrance, J. F. Rio rustlers. (My '28)
Gregory, J. Emerald trails. (Ag '28)
Grey, Z. "Nevada." (Je '28)
Hawkes, C. Patches. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Ogden, G: W. Cherokee trails. (Je '28)
Ogden, G: W. Sheep limit. (D '28)
Stevens, J. Homer in the sagebrush. (N '28)
Wister, O. When West was West. (S '28)

Vancouver island
Morgan, G. J. Salvage all. (S '28)

Vermont
Kelland, C. B. Knuckles. (Ag '28)

Vienna
Bard, J. Shipwreck in Europe. (Je '28)

Virginia
Cockrell, S. Hinge of heaven. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Daingerfield, F. Wilderness house. (O '28)

Wales
Davies, R. Withered root. (My '28)
Vaughan, H. Invader. (O '28)

Wisconsin
Wescott, G. Good-bye Wisconsin. (N '28)

Love stories
Abbott, E. H. Love and the ladies. (Je '28)
Adcock, A. St J: Love is master. (Ag '28)
Ayres, R. M. Broken. (N '28)
Baring, M. When they love. (N '28)
Bates, S. C. That magic fire. (N '28)
Bellah, J. W. Sons of Cain. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bellamann, H: Crescendo. (N '28)
Benefield, B. Little clown lost. (O '28)
Burton, B. P. Little yellow house. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Carfrae, E. Devil's jest. (N '28)
Cleugh, S. Common cheat. (N '28)
Cohen, O. R. Spring tide. (S '28)
Darrow, J. Figured flame. (N '28)
Dawson, C. W: Pilgrims of the impossible. (S '28)
Dell, E. M. Peggy by request. (Je '28)
Donisthorpe, G. S. You. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Drago, H. S. Where the loon calls. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Dryden, B., pseud. Passion is the wind. (D '28)
Elton, G. Against the sun. (D '28)
Farnham, M. Marsh-fire. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Fraser, F. L. Lovely ladies. (Ap '28)
Furniss, R. P. Gay. (N '28)
Glaspell, S. Brook Evans. (Ag '28)
Granberry, E. Strangers and lovers. (My '28)
Griffith, G. K. Silent drum. (O '28)
Henry, H. Halves. (Ag '28)
Herbert, A. Pen and ink passion. (S '28)
Hull, E. M. Lion-tamer. (N '28)
Johnston, W: A. Accidental accomplice. (Ag '28)
Kennedy, M. A long week-end. (Mr '28)
Le Franc, M. Whisper of a name (Grand-Louis l'Innocent). (F '29) (1928 Annual)
McClure, R. E. Lady in marble. (S '28)
Metcalfe, J: Mrs Condover. (O '28)
Meynell, V. Girl adoring. (Ap '28)
Miln, L. Flutes of Shanghai. (N '28)

Patrick, D., pseud. Call it a day! (Ap '28)
Pedler, M. Bitter heritage. (N '28)
Ruck, B. Money for one. (My '28)
Ruck, B. Youngest Venus. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Scott, W. M. Mademoiselle Dahlia. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Skelton, G. Escape me—never. (N '28)
Taylor, E. E. Not Magnolia. (Ap '28)
Thane, E., pseud. His Elizabeth. (My '28)
Wadsley, O. Traceries. (D '28)
Walsh, M. While rivers run. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Wentworth, P. Will-o'-the-wisp. (D '28)
Wheatley, V. Enchanting danger. (D '28)
Wrexe, A. Maid among men. (My '28)

Marriage

Ashton, M. G. Race. (N '28)
Banning, M. Money of her own. (N '28)
Delmar, V. Bad girl. (My '28)
Gibbs, A. H. Harness. (D '28)
Jackson, M. Beggars can choose. (D '28)
Livingston, F. B. This man and this woman. (S '28)
Mackail, D. G. Tales from Greenery street. (O '28)
Martin, H. The lie. (My '28)
Maxwell, W: B. We forget because we must. (D '28)
Richmond, G. L. At the south gate. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Roche, A. S. Wise wife. (Ap '28)
Woodbury, H. Uncertain treasure. (Mr '28)

Companionate marriage

Oursler, F. Poor little fool. (Ag '28)

Messianic novels

Polïakoff, S. L. Rejected Messiah. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Mining

Beddow, B. Black country. (D '28)

Ministers of the gospel

Brummitt, D. B. Shoddy. (Ag '28)
Davies, R. Withered root. (My '28)
King, B. Pluck. (N '28)
Poling, D. A. The heretic. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Mountaineers

Campbell, E. Survival. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Chapman, M. Happy mountain. (S '28)
Kroll, H. H. Mountainy singer. (N '28)
Lane, R. Cindy. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Moving pictures

Van Vechten, C. Spider boy. (O '28)

Mystery stories

Adams, H. Empty bed. (Ag '28)
Adams, H. Rogues fall out. (D '28)
Ames, J. B. Chaps and chukkers. (O '28)
Arnold, J: Murders in Surrey wood. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Asbury, H. Tick of the clock. (Ap '28)
Asquith, C. M. E., comp. Black cap. (O '28)
Atkey, B. Midnight mystery. (My '28)
Aubrey-Fletcher, H: L. Missing partners. (N '28)
Bacheller, I. A. House of the three ganders. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Bailey, H: C. Mr Fortune, please. (Ap '28)
Balfour, H., pseud. Enterprising burglar. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Barr, D. Crimson quest. (D '28)
Barry, C:, pseud. Smaller penny. (O '28)
Beeding, F., pseud. House of Dr Edwardes. (Mr '28)
Beeding, F., pseud. Six proud walkers. (O '28)
Beresford, J: D. Instrument of destiny. (O '28)
Biggers, E. D. Behind that curtain. (Je '28)
Bindloss, H. Lone hand. (O '28)
Brandon, J: G. Secret brotherhood. (N '28)
Brooks, C. Ghost hunters. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Brown, A. C. Dr Glazebrook's revenge. (Ag '28)
Burr, A. R. Palludia. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Campbell, A. O. Juggernaut. (O '28)
Chancellor, J: Dark god. (Ag '28)
Charnwood, G. R. B. Tracks in the snow. (Mr '28)
Christie, A. Mystery of the blue train. (S '28)
Cole, G: D. H. and M. I. Man from the river. (N '28)
Cooper, M. Death near the river. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Cox, A. B. Silk stocking murders. (N '28)
Crofts, F. W. Sea mystery. (O '28)
Cullum, R. Mystery of the barren lands. (S '28)
Daingerfield, F. House across the way. (Ag '28)
Daingerfield, F. That gay nineties murder. (Je '28)
Daly, C. J: Man in the shadows. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Dilnot, G: Crook's game. (Mr '28)
Drake, H: B. Cursed be the treasure. (My '28)
Dutton, C: J. Clutching hand. (O '28)
Fairlie, G. Scissors cut paper. (O '28)
Farjeon, J. J. House of disappearance. (Mr '28)
Farjeon, J. J. Shadows by the sea. (My '28)
Farjeon, J. J. Underground. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Ferguson, J: A. Man in the dark. (S '28)
Fielding, A. Net around Joan Ingilby. (O '28)
Fletcher, J. S. Black house in Harley street. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Fletcher, J. S. Double chance. (S '28)
Fletcher, J. S. Murder in the Pallant. (My '28)
Fletcher, J. S. Three days' terror. (O '28)
Fletcher, J. S. Wrist mark. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Footner, H. Velvet hand. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Forgione, L: Men of silence. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Forrest, A. E. Silent guests. (Mr '28)
Fraser-Simson, C. Swinging shutter. (O '28)
Freeman, R: A. As a thief in the night. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Freeman, R: A. A certain Dr Thorndyke. (Ap '28)
Gardiner, G. At the House of Dree. (My '28)
Gilbert, A. Murder of Mrs Davenport. (N '28)
Gluck, S. Last trap. (Ap '28)
Gollomb, J. Portrait invisible. (Mr '28)
Gordon, N. New gun runners. (D '28)
Gordon, N. Professor's poison. (My '28)
Gore-Browne, R. In search of a villain. (N '28)
Grierson, F. D. Smiling death. (My '28)
Hart, I. R. G. Torture Island. (S '28)
Harvey, M. Dragon of Lung Wang. (S '28)
Hawk, J:, pseud. Titanic hotel mystery. (S '28)
Hobart, D. B. Double shuffle. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Horler, S. Black heart. (O '28)
Horler, S. Life for sale. (Ag '28)
Huntington, J:, pseud. Seven black chessmen. (D '28)
Jeffries, G. M. Hate ship. (S '28)
Johns, F., pseud. Square emerald. (Je '28)
Jones, E. Who killed Gregory? (N '28)
Keeler, H. S. Sing Sing nights. (O '28)
Keverne, R: Strange case of "William" Cook. (S '28)
King, R. Fatal kiss mystery. (D '28)
Knevels, G. Diamond rose mystery. (O '28)
Landon, H. Green shadow. (Ag '28)
Landon, H. Murder mansion. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Le Queux, W: Crime code. (N '28)
Le Queux, W: Poison shadows. (My '28)
Lewis, M. Roman gold. (My '28)
Lilly, J. Seven sisters. (N '28)
Lincoln, N. S. Dancing silhouette. (Ap '28)
Lincoln, N. S. Secret of Mohawk Pond. (O '28)
Livingston, A. Monk of Hambleton. (My '28)
Lockhart, J: G. East all the way. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lowis, C. C. District bungalow. (Mr '28)
Lynde, F. Blind man's buff. (S '28)
McAllister, A. Slip-carriage mystery. (N '28)
McGrath, H. Changing road. (Mr '28)

Fiction—Mystery stories—Continued

MacLeod, A. G. Marloe mansions murder. (My '28)
McNeile, H. C. Female of the species. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Markham, V. Death in the dusk. (O '28)
Martin, A. R: Cassiodore case. (Ag '28)
Martin, S. Fifteen cells. (S '28)
Mason, A. E: W. Prisoner in the opal. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Masterman, W. S. "2. L. O." (My '28)
Merritt, A. 7 footprints to Satan. (Je '28)
Meynell, L. W. Bluefeather. (D '28)
Moffett, C. L. Master mind. (Ap '28)
Muir, A: Shadow on the left. (D '28)
O'Brien, H. V. Four-and-twenty blackbirds. (Ag '28)
Oldfeld, P: Death of a diplomat. (Je '28)
Oppenheim, E: P. Fortunate wayfarer. (Ag '28)
Osbourne, L. Not to be opened. (Ag '28)
Paynter, T: C. They sailed on a Friday. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Priestley, J: B. Old dark house. (Ap '28)
Renard, M., and Jean, A. Blind circle. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Reynolds, G. Gift in the gauntlet. (Mr '28)
Rinehart, M. Two flights up. (N '28)
Sayers, D. L. Dawson pedigree. (Ap '28)
Sayers, D. L. Unpleasantness at the Bellona club. (O '28)
Scott, W. Shadows. (Mr '28)
Seltzer, C: A. Mystery range. (S '28)
Shellabarger, S: Door of death. (D '28)
Shiel, M. P. How the old woman got home. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Sieveking, L. de G. Stampede. (D '28)
Snell, E. Blue murder. (O '28)
Snell, E. Kontrol. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Stacpoole, H: de V. Mystery of Uncle Bollard. (Je '28)
Stewart, A. W. Mystery at Lynden Sands. (O '28)
Stewart, A. W. Tragedy at Ravensthorpe. (My '28)
Strahan, K. C. Desert Moon mystery. (Ag '28)
Strange, J: S. Man who killed Fortescue. (N '28)
Street, C. J: C: Murders in Praed street. (My '28)
Street, C. J: C: Tragedy at the Unicorn. (N '28)
Swem, C: L. Werewolf. (D '28)
Thayer, L. Darkest spot. (O '28)
Thorndike, A. R. The slype. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Thynne, M. Draycott murder mystery. (O '28)
Tracy, L: Women in the case. (S '28)
Turnbull, M. Rogues' march. (S '28)
Van de Water, F: F. Hurrying feet. (O '28)
Van Dine, S. S., pseud. Greene murder case. (My '28)
Vane, D. Sign of the snake. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Wallace, E. The clever one. (D '28)
Wallace, E. Feathered serpent. (S '28)
Wallace, E. Squealer. (Ap '28)
Walling, R. A. J: That dinner at Bardolph's. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Walter, A. E. and H. C. The patriot. (O '28)
Watkins, R: H. Master of revels. (D '28)
Webster, H: K. Clock strikes two. (D '28)
Webster, H: K. Quartz eye. (N '28)
Wells, C. Crime in the crypt. (N '28)
Wells, C. Deep-lake mystery. (S '28)
Wells, C. Tannahill tangle. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Wells, C. Where's Emily? (My '28)
Wells, C., ed. American detective stories. (S '28)
Wells, C., ed. American mystery stories. (S '28)
Wentworth, P. Anne Belinda. (My '28)
White, W: P. Cloudy in the West. (Ap '28)
Whitechurch, V: L. Shot on the downs. (Mr '28)
Williams, B. A. Dreadful night. (Ag '28)
Williams, V. Crouching beast. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Wilson, A. D. Devil's cocktail. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Wilson, A. D. Mystery of tunnel 51. (Ag '28)
Wood, C. Shadow from the bogue. (Je '28)
Wright, W. H., ed. Great detective stories. (Mr '28)
Wynne, A. Red scar. (N '28)
Young, E. B. Murder at Fleet. (My '28)

Negro life

Campbell, T: B. Black Sadie. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Cohen, O. R. Florian Slappey goes abroad. (Ag '28)
Du Bois, W: E: B. Dark princess. (Ag '28)
Fisher, R. Walls of Jericho. (O '28)
Kennedy, R. E. Gritny people. (Mr '28)
Larsen, N. Quicksand. (Je '28)
McKay, C. Home to Harlem. (Ap '28)
Odum, H. W. Rainbow round my shoulder. (My '28)
Peterkin, J. M. Scarlet sister Mary. (D '28)
Tinker, E: L. Toucoutou. (Ag '28)

Philosophical novels

Lewis, W. The Childermass, pt 1. (O '28)

Physicians

Young, F. B. My brother Jonathan. (D '28)

Political novels

Cavanagh, D., pseud. Tammany boy. (N '28)
Hedges, M. H. Dan Minturn. (Je '28)
Huston, M. Dear senator. (N '28)
Whitlock, B. Big Matt. (Ag '28)

Prehistoric times

Gale, O. M. Carnack, the life-bringer. (S '28)

Prisons and prisoners

Hale, C: M., and Simpson, E. J: Redemption Island. (O '28)
Niles, B. Condemned to Devil's Island. (Je '28)

Prophecies (novels of the future)

Taine, J: Green fire. (Je '28)

Prostitution

Bodenheim, M. Georgie May. (S '28)

Pseudo-science

Cox, E. Out of the silence. (D '28)
King, R. Fatal kiss mystery. (D '28)

Psychological novels

Bard, J. Shipwreck in Europe. (Je '28)
Biggs, J:, jr. Seven days whipping. (O '28)
Butts, M. Armed with madness. (Ag '28)
Cher, M., pseud. Door unlatched. (Mr '28)
Colby, N. A man can build a house. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Collins, D. Vanity under the sun. (O '28)
Curle, R: The one and the other. (N '28)
Dane, C., pseud. The Babyons. (O '28)
Davidson, A. A. Eilean More. (N '28)
De Voto, B. A. House of sun-goes-down. (Ag '28)
Dryden, B., pseud. Passion is the wind. (D '28)
Ford, F. M. Last post. (Mr '28)
Geijerstam, G. af. Woman power. (My '28)
Green, J. Closed garden. (Je '28)
Gribble, P. Mulleins. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Haskins, M. L. Through beds of stone. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Irwin, M. E. F. Fire down below. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Jenison, M. Dominance. (My '28)
Jones, E. B. C. Helen and Felicia. (My '28)
Latimer, M. We are incredible. (Ag '28)
Lhevinne, I. Ariadne. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Macaulay, R. Daisy and Daphne. (My '28)
McClure, M. Many waters. (D '28)
Mauriac, F. Thérèse. (Ag '28)
Milton, E. To kiss the crocodile. (Ag '28)
O'Flaherty, L. The assassin. (O '28)
Richardson, D. M. Oberland. (Je '28)
Rogers, S: Less than kind. (D '28)
Rosenfeld, P. Boy in the sun. (D '28)
Shenton, E: Lean twilight. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Steele, W. D. Meat. (Ap '28)
Steni, L. Prelude to a rope for Myer. (D '28)

Venner, N. Brief candle. (D '28)
Williams, W: C. Voyage to Pagany. (D '28)

Reincarnation

Desmond, S. Echo. (O '28)

Religion

Borden, L. From out Magdala. (Mr '28)
Gibbs, P. H. Age of reason. (Ag '28)
Strachey, R. Shaken by the wind. (Ap '28)

Religious psychology

Bromfield, L: Strange case of Miss Annie Spragg. (N '28)

Roman Catholic faith

Clarke, I. C. Strangers of Rome. (D '28)

Romance

Abbott, J. Seigneurs of La Saulaye. (N '28)
Bedford-Jones, H: King's passport. (My '28)
Buckley, F: R. Way of sinners. (Mr '28)
Byrne, D. Crusade. (My '28)
Farnol, J. Guyfford of Weare. (D '28)
Feval, P., and Lassez, M. Years between. (Je '28)
Fletcher, J. S. I'd venture all for thee! (My '28)
Gibbs, P. Shores of romance. (Je '28)
Hewes, A. D. Swords on the sea. (Ag '28)
McCutcheon, G: B. Blades. (D '28)
McGrath, H. Changing road. (Mr '28)
Morse, S: En garde! (Je '28)
Paynter, T: C. Cannon law. (S '28)
Preedy, G:, pseud. General Crack. (N '28)
Sass, H. R. War drums. (Ag '28)
Turner, J: H. While the gods grinned. (S '28)
Weyman, S. J: Lively Peggy. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Winwar, F. Golden round. (D '28)
Wright, S. F. Deluge. (Ap '28)
Wylie, E. H. Mr Hodge & Mr Hazard. (My '28)
Wynnton, P. Lady Zia. (O '28)

School and college life

Carr. R. S. Rampant age. (Je '28)
Fabian, W., pseud. Unforbidden fruit. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Rosanov, M. G. Diary of a communist schoolboy. (O '28)
Scott, E. War among ladies. (S '28)
Wertenbaker, C: Boojum. (Je '28)

Sea stories

Bartlett, A. C. Sea dog. (Mr '28)
Lesterman, J: Sailor of Napoleon. (My '28)
Loomis, A. F. Sea legs. (Je '28)
McFarland, R. Sea panther. (My '28)
McIntyre, J: T: Stained sails. (My '28)
Marmur, J. Ecola! (Je '28)
Noble, E: Moving waters. (Je '28)
Pease, H. Jinx ship. (Ap '28)
Rogers, S. Ships and sailors. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Smith, A. D. H. Hate. (D '28)
Sullivan, A. Verdict of the sea. (Ap '28)
Wetjen, A. R: Way for a sailor! (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Whiting, J: D. S.O.S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Sex problems

St Johns, A. R. Single standard. (Ag '28)
Steni, L. Prelude to a rope for Myer. (D '28)

Short stories

Abbott, E. H. But once a year. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Abbott, E. H. Love and the ladies. (Je '28)
Aiken, C. P. Costumes by Eros. (D '28)
Arden, M. Luck, and other stories. (Mr '28)
Asbury, H., ed. Not at night! (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Asquith, C. M. E., comp. Black cap. (O '28)
Baker, C: H., jr., ed. Rejections of 1927. (O '28)
Barnes, M. Prevailing winds. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bates, H. E. Day's end. (O '28)
Benjamin, L: S., and Hargreaves, R., eds. Great French short stories. (O '28)
Bennett, J. W. Dragon shadows. (O '28)
Bercovici, K. Peasants. (My '28)
Blackwood, A. Dance of death. (Je '28)
Bottome, P. Strange fruit. (D '28)
Burstein, A. Ghetto messenger. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Burt, M. S. They could not sleep. (Je '28)
Cobb, I. S. All aboard. (N '28)
Community workers of the New York Guild for the Jewish blind. Samples. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Cournos, J:, ed. Fifteen finest short stories. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Coxon, M. Seven lovers. (My '28)
Dunton, J. G., ed. C'est la guerre! (Je '28)
Eaton, R:, ed. Best continental short stories of 1927. (S '28)
Eaton, R:, ed. Best French short stories of 1926-27; and, The yearbook of the French short story. (Je '28)
Edwards, D. Rhapsody. (Ap '28)
Ervine, St J: G. The mountain. (N '28)
Flaubert, G. Golden tales. (Ag '28)
Footner, H. Velvet hand. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Forster, E: M. Eternal moment. (Je '28)
Fulcher, P. M. Short narratives. (D '28)
Galsworthy, J: Two Forsyte interludes. (Ap '28)
Georgian stories, 1927. (Ap '28)
Gibbs, P. H. Out of the ruins. (Mr '28)
Gray, C: W., ed. Deep waters. (D '28)
Green, P. Wide fields. (Ag '28)
Harvey, W: F. Beast with five fingers. (O '28)
Haslett, G. W. Corunna road. (My '28)
Hergesheimer, J. Quiet cities. (Ag '28)
Herron, V. Peacocks. (Ap '28)
Hutchinson, V. Other gate. (D '28)
Jesse, F. T. Many latitudes. (My '28)
Keyserling, E. H. N. Curse of the Tarniffs. (Ap '28)
Knister, R., ed. Canadian short stories. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Lawrence, D: H. Woman who rode away. (Ag '28)
Le Clercq, J. G. C. Show cases. (My '28)
Lewis, W. Wild body. (Ap '28)
Mackail, D. G: Tales from Greenery street. (O '28)
Manhood, H. A. Nightseed. (N '28)
Mann, T: Children & fools. (Je '28)
Marquis, D. When the turtles sing. (N '28)
Munro, H. H. Beasts & super-beasts. (Ag '28)
Munro, H. H. Reginald. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Munro, H. H. Toys of peace. (Ag '28)
Nason, L. H. Top kick. (N '28)
Nethercot, A. H., ed. Book of long stories. (D '28)
New Decameron; fifth volume. (Je '28)
O. Henry memorial award. Prize stories of 1927. (Mr '28)
O'Brien, E: J. H., ed. Best British short stories of 1927. (Mr '28)
O'Brien, E: J. H., ed. Best British short stories of 1928. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
O'Brien, E: J. H., ed. Best short stories of 1928; and, The yearbook of the American short story. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
O'Flaherty, L. Red Barbara. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Packard, F. L. Shanghai Jim. (S '28)
Phillpotts, E. It happened like that. (N '28)
Porter, E. Fortunate Mary. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Powys, T. F. House with the echo. (O '28)
Ryttenberg, L., and Lang, B., comps. Samples. (My '28)
Stephens, J. Etched in moonlight. (My '28)
Stevens, J. Homer in the sagebrush. (N '28)
Upson, W: H. Me and Henry and the artillery. (O '28)
Vachell, H. A. Dew of the sea. (O '28)
Van Buren, M., and Bemis, K. I., eds. Mother in modern story. (S '28)
Verga, G. Cavalleria rusticana. (O '28)
Wakefield, H: R. They return at evening. (S '28)
Walpole, H. Silver thorn. (D '28)
Wassermann, J. Worlds' ends [Der unbekannte Gast]. (Ap '28)
Wells, C., ed. American detective stories. (S '28)

Fiction—Short stories—Continued

Wells, C., ed. American mystery stories. (S '28)
Wescott, G. Good-bye Wisconsin. (N '28)
Wister, O. When West was west. (S '28)
World's best short stories of 1927. (Mr '28)
Wright, W. H., ed. Great detective stories. (Mr '28)

Social conditions and problems

Eastman, M. Venture. (Je '28)
Grove, F: P. Search for America. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sinclair, U. B. Boston. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Society novels

Benson, E: F: Lucia in London. (Ap '28)
Bibesco, M. L. Catherine-Paris. (Ag '28)
Bowen, E. The hotel. (My '28)
Eden, E. Semi-attached couple. (Ag '28)
Hamilton, C. Three passions. (D '28)
Huxley, A. L. Point counter point. (D '28)
Irwin, I. P. D. F. R. (D '28)
McKenna, S. Divided allegiance. (D '28)
McKenna, S. Due reckoning. (Mr '28)
Mellett, B. Ellington brat. (Mr '28)
Oxford and Asquith, M. A. Octavia. (Ag '28)
Stevens, L: All the king's horses. (My '28)
Walpole, H. Wintersmoon. (Ap '28)

Supernatural phenomena

Blackwood, A. Dance of death. (Je '28)
Drake, H: B. The shadowy thing. (D '28)
Harvey, W: F. Beast with five fingers. (O '28)

Theater and stage life

Acosta, M. de. Until the day break. (Je '28)
Hamilton, P. Twopence coloured. (O '28)
McEvoy, J. P. Show girl, Simon and Schuster present. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Translated stories

Danish

Bang, H. J. Ida Brandt. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Paludan, J. Birds around the light. (N '28)
Soiberg, H. Sea king. (O '28)

French

Aubry, O. The emperor falls in love. (My '28)
Barbey d'Aurevilly, J. A. Bewitched. (Je '28)
Bedel, M. Jerome. (S '28)
Benjamin, L: S., and Hargreaves, R., eds. Great French short stories. (O '28)
Bibesco, M. L. Catherine-Paris. (Ag '28)
Carco, F. Perversity. (O '28)
Chadourne, M. Vasco. (O '28)
Dévigne, R. Gay dreamers. (My '28)
Fournier, A. The wanderer (Le grand Meaulnes). (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Kessel, J. Pure in heart. (S '28)
Le Franc, M. Whisper of a name (Grand-Louis l'Innocent). (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Mauriac, F. Thérèse. (Ag '28)
Morand, P. Living Buddha. (My '28)
Proust, M. Cities of the plain [Sodome et Gomorrhe]. (Ap '28)
Silvestre, C: Aimée Villard. (Je '28)

German

Brod, M. Redemption of Tycho Brahe. (S '28)
Frank, B. Days of the king. (Mr '28)
Frank, B. Trenck. (N '28)
Mann, H. Mother Mary. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Mann, T: Children & fools. (Je '28)
Meyrink, G. The golem. (O '28)
Neumann, A. The devil. (O '28)
Reck-Malleczewen, F. P. Woman in flight. (Ag '28)
Schickele, R. Maria Capponi. (My '28)
Schnitzler, A. Theresa. (D '28)
Sudermann, H. Mad professor. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Thiess, F. Devil's shadow. (D '28)
Wassermann, J. Caspar Hauser. (D '28)
Wassermann, J. World's ends [Der unbekannte Gast]. (Ap '28)
Zweig, A. Case of Sergeant Grischa. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Hungarian

Bródy, S. Rembrandt. (S '28)

Italian

Capuana, L. Nimble-legs. (Ap '28)
Mussolini, B. Cardinal's mistress. (N '28)
Pirandello, L. Old and the young. (S '28)
Verga, G. Cavalleria rusticana. (O '28)
Verona, G. da. Woman who invented love. (O '28)

Japanese

Murasaki Shikibu. Blue trousers. (S '28)

Norwegian

Bojer, J. New temple. (D '28)
Hamsun, K. Women at the pump. (D '28)
Haukland, A. E. D. Norns are spinning. (Ag '28)
Larsen, H. A., ed. Norway's best stories. (N '28)
Undset, S. The axe. (Ap '28)

Polish

Zeromski, S. Ashes. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Russian

Gusev, S. I. Land of the children. (Ag '28)
Krasnov, P. N. Unforgiven. (My '28)
Rozanov, M. G. Diary of a communist schoolboy. (O '28)
Remizov, A. M. Fifth pestilence. (Ag '28)
Shmelev, I. Sun of the dead. (My '28)
Vieressaev, V. V. Deadlock. (S '28)

Spanish

Alarcón, P. A. de. Three-cornered hat. (My '28)
Baroja y Nessi, P. Tree of knowledge. (O '28)
Blasco Ibáñez, V. Intruder. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Blasco Ibáñez, V. Reeds and mud (Cañas y barro). (Je '28)
Martinez Zuviría, G. A. Black Valley. (Ap '28)
Unamuno y Jugo, M. de. Mist (Niebla). (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Swedish

Dixelius, H. Grandson. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Dixelius, H. The son. (My '28)
Geijerstam, G. af. Woman power. (My '28)
Lagerlöf, S. O. L. General's ring. (My '28)
Larsen, H. A., ed. Sweden's best stories. (N '28)

War

Hamilton, C. M. Lest ye die. (O '28)

Witchcraft

Forbes, E. Mirror for witches. (Je '28)

Young people

Gibbs, P. H. Age of reason. (Ag '28)
Hamilton, C. Daughters of folly. (Je '28)
Hughes, R. Lovely ducklings. (Ag '28)
Irwin, I. P. D. F. R. (D '28)
Jameson, S. Farewell to youth. (S '28)
Sidgwick, E. When I grow rich. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Stern, G. B. Debonair. (My '28)
Tarkington, B. Claire Ambler. (Mr '28)

Field book of common ferns. Durand, H. (D '28)
Field book of common gilled mushrooms. Thomas, W: S. (D '28)
Field book of North American mammals. Anthony, H. E. (S '28)
Field-Marshal Lord Napier of Magdala. Napier, H: D. (Ap '28)
Fifteen cells. Martin, S. (S '28)
Fifteen finest short stories. Cournos, J:, ed. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Fifth pestilence. Ramizov, A. M. (Ag '28)
Fifty more contemporary one-act plays. Shay, F., ed. (Je '28)
Fifty years in a changing world. Chirol, V. (Mr '28)
Fighters of fate. Myers, J. A. (My '28)
Figured flame. Darrow, J. (N '28)
Final burning of boats, etc. Smyth, E. M. (S '28)

Finance
Guest, H. W. Public expenditure. (Ap '28)
Pigou, A. C. Study in public finance. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Bolivia
Marsh, M. C. Bankers in Bolivia. (N '28)

Europe
Ehrenberg, R: Capital and finance in the age of the renaissance. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Germany
Auld, G: P. Dawes plan and the new economics. (Mr '28)
Kuczynski, R. R. American loans to Germany. (My '28)
Reinhold, P: P. Economic, financial and political state of Germany since the war. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Great Britain
Grady, H: F. British war finance, 1914-1919. (My '28)
Peel, G: Economic impact of America. (S '28)

United States
Peel, G: Economic impact of America. (S '28)
Financial history of the American automobile industry. Seltzer, L. H. (N '28)

Fire
Hough, W. Story of fire. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Fire and sleet and candlelight. Chilton, E. C., and others. (Ag '28)
Fire down below. Irwin, M. E. F. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Fire of spring. Coursen, D. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Fireflies. Tagore, R. (Je '28)
Firm hand. Eng title of Lone hand. Bindloss, H. (O '28)
First Americans, 1607-1690. Wertenbaker, T: J. (Je '28)

Fish
Legends and stories
Pertwee, R. Fish are such liars! (N '28)
Fish are such liars! Pertwee, R. (N '28)
Fishers of men. Clark, G. (O '28)

Fishes
Mellen, I. M. Young folks' book of fishes. (My '28)

Fishing
Grey, Z. Tales of fresh-water fishing. (D '28)
Phillips, J: C: Sportsman's scrapbook. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Seigne, J: W: Irish bogs. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Slocum, E. E. Ye gods & little fishes. (Ap '28)
Stewart, P. M. Travel and sport in many lands. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Thompson, J: B. de M. Modern bait and fly casting. (N '28)
Vogt, W: C. Bait-casting. (N '28)

Fisk, James, jr.
Fuller, R. H. Jubilee Jim; the life of Colonel Jim Fisk, Jr. (D '28)

Fitzgerald, Edward. See Foy, E., pseud. (Ap '28)
Five deans. Dark, S. (O '28)
Five murders. Pearson, E. L. (Je '28)
Five Roman emperors. Henderson, B. W: (My '28)
The 5:35. Tooker, H. V. (Ap '28)
Five world problems. Jefferson, C: E: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Fixation of atmospheric nitrogen. Ernst, F. A. (N '28)
Flame of the desert. Ames, J. B. (S '28)
Flavor of Holland. De Leeuw, A. L. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Flemish art. Fry, R. E. (Ap '28)

Fletcher, John
Oliphant, E. H: C. Plays of Beaumont and Fletcher. (Mr '28)
Flood control. Beman, L. T., comp. (O '28)

Floods
Beman, L. T., comp. Flood control. (O '28)

Bibliography
Beman, L. T., comp. Flood control. (O '28)

Florence
Description
Gauthiez, P. Florence. (D '28)
Florian Slappey goes abroad. Cohen, O. R. (Ag '28)
Flowerdown. Knox, A. (D '28)

Flowers
Bush-Brown, L. Flowers for every garden. (Mr '28)
Quackenbush, A. T. A. Annuals of flowerland. (N '28)
Volz, E. C. Home flower-growing. (Ag '28)

North America
Taylor, N. Guide to the wild flowers. (S '28)
Flowers for every garden. Bush-Brown, L. (Mr '28)
Flutes of Shanghai. Miln, L. (N '28)

Fly-casting
Thompson, J: B. de M. Modern bait and fly casting. (N '28)
Vogt, W: C. Bait-casting. (N '28)
Flying horse. Kovalsky, K. A. and O. N. (N '28)
Flying the Arctic. Wilkins, G: H. (O '28)
Flying with Lindbergh. Keyhoe, D. E: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Foibles of insects and men. Wheeler, W: M. (S '28)

Folk songs, American
Eckstorm, F., and Smyth, M. W., comps. Minstrelsy of Maine. (My '28)
Finger, C: J., comp. Frontier ballads. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Richardson, E., comp. American mountain songs. (My '28)

Folklore
Kanner, L. Folklore of the teeth. (S '28)
Porteous, A. Forest folklore, mythology, and romance. (S '28)

Africa
Best, A. Black folk tales. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Cendrars, B., comp. African saga. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Brittany
Johnson, W. B. Folktales of Brittany. (Je '28)

China
Willoughby-Meade, G. Chinese ghouls and goblins. (N '28)

Provence
Johnson, W. B. Folktales of Provence. (Je '28)

Rumania
Beza, M. Paganism in Roumanian folklore. (Ag '28)

South Carolina
Smith, R., comp. South Carolina ballads. (D '28)

Folklore, Negro
Adams, E: C. L. Nigger to nigger. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Folklore of the teeth. Kanner, L. (S '28)
Folktales of Brittany. Johnson, W. B. (Je '28)
Folktales of Provence. Johnson, W. B. (Je '28)
Following Christ. Slattery, C: L: (Je '28)

Food
Callow, A. B. Food & health. (D '28)
Eddy, W. H. Nutrition. (D '28)
Harris, J. W., and Lacey, E. V. D. Everyday foods. (Ap '28)
Shand, P. M. Book of food. (Ap '28)

Analysis
Brooks, R. O. Critical studies in the legal chemistry of foods. (O '28)

Food adulteration and inspection
Brooks, R. O. Critical studies in the legal chemistry of foods. (O '28)
Food & health. Callow, A. B. (D '28)

Food law and legislation
Brooks, R. O. Critical studies in the legal chemistry of foods. (O '28)
Food supply
De Kruif, P. H: Hunger fighters. (D '28)
Fool in the forest. Weekes, A. R. and R. K. (Ag '28)
Foolish virgin. Norris, K. (N '28)
Fool's errand. Laing, A. K. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Fools in mortar. Leslie, D. (N '28)
Football
Stagg, A. A. Touchdown! (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Ford motor company, Detroit
Seltzer, L. H. Financial history of the American automobile industry. (N '28)
Foreign policy of James G. Blaine. Tyler, A. F. (S '28)
Foreign trade
Taussig, F. W: International trade. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Forest folklore, mythology, and romance. Porteous, A. (S '28)
Forest reserves
Yard, R. S. Our federal lands. (F '29 (1928 Annual)
Forgotten ladies. Wright, R. L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Form and style in poetry. Ker, W: P. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Formosa
Description and travel
Foght, H. W. and A. M. Unfathomed Japan. (D '28)
Forms of individuality. Jordan, E. (Ag '28)
Fortunate Mary. Porter, E. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Fortunate wayfarer. Oppenheim, E: P. (Ag '28)
Fossil fountain. Mason, A., and Frank, M. (D '28)
Fouché, Joseph
Forssell, N. Fouché. (O '28)
Foundations of education, v 2. Findlay, J. J: (My '28)
Foundations of English opera. Dent, E: J. (D '28)
Foundations of Euclidean geometry. Forder, H: G: (My '28)
Fountain of youth. Colum, P. (Mr '28)
Four-and-twenty blackbirds. O'Brien, H. V. (Ag '28)
Four one-act plays. Ervine, St J: G. (O '28)
Four plays. Alvarez Quintero, S. and J. (Je '28)
Fourth musketeer. Lucas-Dubreton, J. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Fox, Charles James
Drinkwater, J: Charles James Fox. (D '28)
The fox woman. Bartley, N. I. (S '28)
Foy, Eddie, pseud. (Edward Fitzgerald)
Foy, E., pseud., and Harlow, A. F. Clowning through life. (Ap '28)
Fra Angelico. Hausenstein, W. (N '28)
France, Anatole
France, A. Anatole France abroad (Itinéraire de Paris à Buenos-Ayres). (Je '28)
Ségur, N. Opinions of Anatole France. (Je '28)
France
Army
Foreign legion
Doty, B. J. Legion of the damned. (Ap '28)
Biography
Latour, T. L: Princesses, ladies and salonnières of the reign of Louis XV. (N '28)
Civilization
Daudet, L. A. The stupid XIXth century. (Je '28)
Jones, H. M. America and French culture, 1750-1848. (My '28)
Court and courtiers
Latour, T. L: Princesses, ladies and salonnières of the reign of Louis XV. (N '28)
Montpensier, A. M. L. d'O. Memoirs of la Grande Mademoiselle. (D '28)
Description and travel
Robson, E. I. Wayfarer in French vineyards. (S '28)
Guide-books
Schoonmaker, F. Come with me through France. (S '28)
Foreign relations
Great Britain
Willson, B. Paris embassy. (Mr '28)
Russia
Ségur, P. M. M. H. Memoirs and anecdotes. (N '28)
United States
Willson, B. America's ambassadors to France (1777-1927). (Ag '28)
History
Dickinson, G. L. Revolution and reaction in modern France. (S '28)
Bourbons, 1589-1789
Montpensier, A. M. L. d'O. Memoirs of la Grande Mademoiselle. (D '28)
Revolution
Belloc, H. Danton. (My '28)
Belloc, H. Robespierre. (My '28)
Forssell, N. Fouché. (O '28)
Mathiez, A. French revolution. (D '28)
Ségur, P. M. M. H. Marie Antoinette. (O '28)
Revolution—Biography
Béraud, H. Twelve portraits of the French revolution. (F '29) (1928 Annual) 1789-1815
Hortense, queen consort of Louis, king of Holland. Memoirs. (Ap '28)
1789-1900
Ségur, P. M. M. H. Memoirs and anecdotes. (N '28)
Relations (general) with United States
Jones, H. M. America and French culture, 1750-1848. (My '28)
Social conditions
Pipkin, C: W. Idea of social justice. (N '28)
france is full of frenchmen. Galantière, L: (Je '28)
France on ten words a day. McCarty, W., and Lee, H. M. (Mr '28)
Francis Joseph I, emperor of Austria
Bagger, E. S. Francis Joseph. (Mr '28)
Francis de Sales, Saint
Sanders, E. K. S. François de Sales, 1567-1622. (D '28)
Francis of Assisi, Saint
Ricci, C. Umbria santa. (Ag '28)
Salvatorelli, L. Life of St Francis of Assisi. (Ag '28)
Van Santvoord, S. Saint Francis. (Je '28)
Francis Thompson, the poet of earth in heaven. Mégroz, R. L. (Mr '28)
François Villon. Lewis, D. B. W. (O '28)
Franklin, Benjamin
Franklin, B: "My dear girl." (Ap '28)
Steell, W. Benjamin Franklin of Paris, 1776-1785. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Franz Schubert. Flower, W. N. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Frederick Law Olmsted, v 2. Olmsted, F: L. (My '28)
Frederick II, the Great, king of Prussia
Fiction
Frank, B. Days of the king. (Mr '28)
Free trade and protection
Crompton, G: Tariff. (Ap '28)
Free will and determinism
Carr, H. W. Unique status of man. (Ag '28)
Russell, H: N. Fate and freedom. (My '28)
Freedom in the modern world. Kallen, H. M., ed. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Frémont, Jessie (Benton) (Mrs John Charles Frémont)
Nevins, A. Frémont. (My '28)
Frémont, John Charles
Nevins, A. Frémont. (My '28)
French, Daniel Chester
French, M. Memories of a sculptor's wife. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
French, William
French, W: Some recollections of a Western ranchman. (My '28)
French Canadians
Bouchard, G. Other days, other ways (Vieilles choses vieilles gens). (Je '28)
French language
Conversation and phrase books
McCarty, W., and Lee, H. M. France on ten words a day. (Mr '28)
French leave. Somerville, E. A. Œ., and Martin, V. F. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
French revolution. Mathiez, A. (D '28)
French sixteenth century printing. Johnson, A. F. (O '28)
French wife. Graham, D. (Ap '28)
Frick, Henry Clay
Harvey, G: B. M. Henry Clay Frick. (My '28)
Friend of Antaeus. Hopkins, G. (Ag '28)
Friends, Society of
Dorland, A. G. History of the Society of Friends (Quakers) in Canada. (D '28)
Gibbons, D. God in us. (Je '28)
Hobhouse, S. H: William Law and eighteenth century Quakerism. (My '28)
Friends in strange garments. Upjohn, A. M. (Je '28)
Fringe of the Moslem world. Franck, H. A. (D '28)
Frobisher, Sir Martin
McFee, W: Life of Sir Martin Frobisher. (D '28)
From colonel to subaltern. McTaggart, M. F. (O '28)
From magic to science. Singer, C: J. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
From out Magdala. Borden, L. (Mr '28)
From Rome to Florence. Hutchinson, H. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
From three yachts. OBrien, C. (Je '28)
Fronded isle. Lucas, E: V. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Front page. Hecht, B., and MacArthur, C: (N '28)
Frontenac, Louis de Buade, comte de
Fiction
Chambers, R. W: Sun Hawk. (Je '28)
Frontier and pioneer life
Bennett, E. Old Deadwood days. (S '28)
Breakenridge, W: M. Helldorado. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Rose, H. The stump farm. (Ag '28)
Wells, E. W. Argonaut tales. (Ap '28)
Alaska
Willoughby, F. Gentlemen unafraid. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
California
Ritchie, R. W. Hell-roarin' forty-niners. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Kentucky
Bird, R. M. Nick of the woods. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Frontier ballads. Finger, C: J., comp. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Frost, Robert
Munson, G. B. Robert Frost. (Mr '28)
Fugger family
Ehrenberg, R: Capital and finance in the age of the renaissance. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Fugitives. (My '28)
Fumbler. Russell, P. (D '28)
Fumigation
Mason, A. F. Spraying, dusting and fumigating of plants. (D '28)
Function and forms of thought. Avey, A. E. (Ap '28)
Functions of the body. Eng title of Physiology. Mottram, V. H: (Ag '28)
Fundamentals of banking, finance, and economics. Disbrow, C: W. (Ap '28)
Fundamentals of biology. Haupt, A. W. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Fundamentals of dairy science. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Funeral costs. Gebhart, J: C: (O '28)
Funeral rites and ceremonies
Gebhart, J: C: Funeral costs. (O '28)
Fur
Gottlieb, A. Fur truths. (D '28)
Fur brigade. Evarts, H. G: (O '28)
Fur-bearing animals
Ashbrook, F. G. Fur-farming for profit. (O '28)
Gottlieb, A. Fur truths. (D '28)
Fur-farming for profit. Ashbrook, F. G. (O '28)
Fur trade
Gottlieb, A. Fur truths. (D '28)
Fur truths. Gottlieb, A. (D '28)
Furniture
Brackett, O., ed. Encyclopedia of English furniture. (My '28)
Eberlein, H. D., and Ramsdell, R. W. Practical book of Italian, Spanish, and Portuguese furniture. (My '28)
Guild, L. van A. Geography of American antiques. (My '28)
Holloway, E: S. American furniture and decoration. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Storey, W. R. Beauty in home furnishings. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Future of an illusion. Freud, S. (D '28)
Galatea. Brain, W. R. (D '28)
Galatea. Tragett, M. R. (S '28)
The gallant came late. Storm, M. (D '28)
Gallant ladies. Rogers, C. (Ap '28)
Gallery of eccentrics. Bishop, M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Gallio. Sullivan, J: W: N. (Je '28)
Gambier, Kenyon, pseud. See Lathrop, L. A. (O '28)
Gamblers, and Marriage. Gogol, N. V. (Ap '28)
Game and game birds
Seigne, J: W: Irish bogs. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Games
Clark, I. Suppose we do something else. (My '28)
Longstreth, E:, and Holton, L. T. What'll we do now? (S '28)
Rodgers, M. A. Handbook of stunts. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Gandhi, Mohandas Karamchand
Fülöp-Miller, R. Lenin and Gandhi. (Ap '28)
Gangs
Asbury, H. Gangs of New York. (Je '28)
Gangs of New York. Asbury, H. (Je '28)
Ganpat, pseud. See Gompertz, M. L: A. (Ap, N, D '28)
Garde à vous! (On guard!) Newsom, J. D. (Ag '28)
Garden Cinderellas. Fox, H. (Ag '28)
Garden lover. Bailey, L. H. (Ag '28)
Gardening
Bailey, L. H. Garden lover. (Ag '28)
Bush-Brown, L. Flowers for every garden. (Mr '28)
Hort, A. F. Unconventional garden. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
McIlvaine, F. E. Spring in the little garden. (Ag '28)
Mitchell, S. B. Adventures in flower gardening. (D '28)
Volz, E. C. Home flower-growing. (Ag '28)
Wilson, E. H: More aristocrats of the garden. (Je '28)

Gardens
Bailey, L. H. Garden lover. (Ag '28)
Gothein, M. L. History of garden art. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Garnett, Edward
Conrad, J. Letters from Joseph Conrad, 1895-1924. (My '28)
Garrick, David
Garrick, D: Diary. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Gas, Natural
Diehl, J: C. Natural gas handbook. (My '28)
Gases
Analysis
United States steel corporation. Methods of the chemists of the United States steel corporation for the sampling and analysis of gases. (My '28)
Gastronomy
Shand, P. M. Book of food. (Ap '28)
Gateway to American history. Adams, R. G. (Ap '28)
Gay. Furniss, R. P. (N '28)
Gay dreamers. Dévigne, R. (My '28)
Geddes, Patrick
Defries, A. D. Interpreter Geddes. (O '28)
Geil, William Edgar
Wilson, P. W. Explorer of changing horizons: William Edgar Geil. (Ap '28)
Geil, Mrs Edith Mary (Brodrick)
Geil, E. M. Under three reigns, 1860-1920. (Je '28)
General Crack. Preedy, G:, pseud. (N '28)
General economic history. Weber, M. (My '28)
General motors corporation
Seltzer, L. H. Financial history of the American automobile industry. (N '28)
General shop mathematics. Harper, H. D. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Generals
Liddell Hart, B. H: Reputations, ten years after. (My '28)
General's ring. Lagerlöf, S. O. L. (My '28)
Genet, Edmond Charles Edouard
Minnigerode, M. Jefferson, friend of France. 1793. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Genevieve Gertrude. Brady, M. (Je '28)
Genghis Khan
Fiction
Gottfried, M. Prelude to battle. (Je '28)
Wingate, L. B. Servant of the mightiest. (Ap '28)
Gentleman with a duster, pseud. See Begbie, H. (My '28)
"Gentlemen, be seated!" Paskman, D., and Spaeth, S. G. (Je '28)
"Gentlemen— the King!" Oxenham, J:, pseud. (O '28)
Gentlemen unafraid. Willoughby, F. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Geography
Juvenile literature
Duval, E. W. This earth we live on. (My '28)
Geography of American antiques. Guild, L. van A. (My '28)
Geology
Bradley, J: H., jr. Earth and its history. (S '28)
Brewster, E. T. This puzzling planet. (D '28)
Mather, K. F. Old mother earth. (O '28)
Schuchert, C:, and Le Vene, C. M. Earth and its rhythms. (Je '28)
Alps
Collet, L. W: Structure of the Alps. (Je '28)
Massachusetts
Crosby, I. B. Boston through the ages. (Ag '28)
Niagara Valley
Forrester, G. C. Falls of Niagara. (N '28)
Geology, Economic
Gregory, J: W. Elements of economic geology. (S '28)
Geometry
Forder, H: G: Foundations of Euclidean geometry. (My '28)
George III, king of Great Britain
George III. Correspondence of King George the Third, v 3-6. (S '28)
George Henry Boker. Bradley, E: S. (My '28)
George W. Bellows: his lithographs. Bellows, G: W. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
George W. Cable. Bikle, L. L. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
George Washington; v 2. Hughes, R. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Georgian stories, 1927. (Ap '28)
Georgie May. Bodenheim, M. (S '28)
German Baroque art. Sitwell, S. (My '28)
German poetry
Liptzin, S. Lyric pioneers of modern Germany. (Je '28)
Germans in the United States
Thwing, C: F. The American and the German university. (Ag '28)
Germany
Description and travel
McBride, R. M. Towns and people of modern Germany. (My '28)
Economic conditions
Danton, G: H: Germany ten years after. (Je '28)
Quigley, H., and Clark, R. T. Republican Germany. (D '28)
Reinhold, P: P. Economic, financial and political state of Germany since the war. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
History
843-1273
Thompson, J. W. Feudal Germany. (S '28)
Revolution
Daniels, H. G. Rise of the German Republic. (Ag '28)
Intellectual life
Danton, G: H: Germany ten years after. (Je '28)
Herford, C: H. Post-war mind of Germany, and other European studies. (My '28)
Politics and government
Daniels, H. G. Rise of the German Republic. (Ag '28)
Quigley, H., and Clark, R. T. Republican Germany. (D '28)
Reinhold, P: P. Economic, financial and political state of Germany since the war. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Social conditions
Danton, G: H: Germany ten years after. (Je '28)
Germany ten years after. Danton, G: H: (Je '28)
Gettin' in society. Blake, G: (O '28)
Getting and spending at the professional standard of living. Peixotto, J. B. (My '28)
Getting and writing news. Harwood, D. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Ghetto messenger. Burstein, A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Ghond, the hunter. Mukerji, D. G. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Ghost hunters. Brooks, C. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Giant killer. Davis, E. H. (D '28)
Giant's house. Powel, H. W. H. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Gibbon, John
Gibbon, J: Personal recollections of the Civil war. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Gift in the gauntlet. Reynolds, G. (Mr '28)
Gilbert, Sir William Schwenck
Goldberg, I: Story of Gilbert and Sullivan. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Ginger Ella. Hueston, E. (Je '28)
Giovanni di Piano Carpini, abp. of Antivare
Komroff, M., ed. Contemporaries of Marco Polo. (S '28)

Gipsies
Bercovici, K. Story of the gypsies. (N '28)
Girl adoring. Meynell, V. (Ap '28)
Girl everybody knew. Farrell, J. (Je '28)
Girl in white armor [Jeanne d'Arc]. Paine, A. B. (Ag '28)

Girls
Burrell, C. B. Our girls and our times. (N '28)
Ormsbee, H. G. Young employed girl. (Ag '28)
Pierce, A E. Deans and advisers of women and girls. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Girls in Africa. Best, A. (D '28)

Girty, Simon
Boyd, T: A. Simon Girty. (D '28)

Gladstone, William Ewart
Burdett, O. W. E. Gladstone. (Mr '28)
Knaplund, P. Gladstone and Britain's imperial policy. (Ap '28)
Gladstone and Britain's imperial policy. Knaplund, P. (Ap '28)
Glamour of Near East excavation. Baikie, J. (S '28)

Glands, Ductless
Cobb, I. G. Glands of destiny. (My '28)
Schlapp, M. G., and Smith, E: H: New criminology. (Ag '28)
Voronoff, S. Conquest of life. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Glands of destiny. Cobb, I. G. (My '28

Glass manufacture
Knittle, R. M. Early American glass. (My '28)

Glassware
Knittle, R. M. Early American glass. (My '28)

Glenbervie, Sylvester Douglas, baron.
Glenbervie, S. D. Diaries of Sylvester Douglas. (D '28)
Glorious company. Mygatt, T. D., and Witherspoon, F. (My '28)
Glory that was Grub Street. Adcock, A. St J: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Glycerin
Lawrie, J. W. Glycerol and the glycols. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Glycerol and the glycols. Lawrie, J. W. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Glycols
Lawrie, J. W. Glycerol and the glycols. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Gobbler of God. MacKaye, P. (S '28)

Gobi desert
Cable, M., and French, F. L. Through jade gate and central Asia. (My '28)

God
Gilkey, J. G. Certainty of God. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Turner, J: E. Nature of Deity. (Ag '28)
God in us. Gibbons, D. (Je '28)
Gods of the lightning; [and] Outside looking in. Anderson, M., and Hickerson, H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Gods of yesterday. Bellah, J. W. (Ap '28)

Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von
Ludwig, E. Goethe. (O '28)

Gogh, Vincent van
Gogh, V. van. Letters of Vincent van Gogh. (Ap '28)
Going to pieces. Woollcott, A. (O '28)
Golden bees. Henderson, D. M. (My '28)
Golden book. McMurtrie, D. C. (My '28)
Golden bubble. Cooper, C. R. (My '28)
Golden rain. Rutter, O. (S '28)
Golden room. Gibson, W. W. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Golden round. Winwar, F. (D '28)
Golden tales. Flaubert, G. (Ag '28)

Goldmark, Carl
Goldmark, C. Notes from the life of a Viennese composer. (O '28)

Goldsmith, Oliver
Goldsmith, O. Collected letters. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
The golem. Meyrink, G. (O '28)

Golf
Martin, H. B. Pictorial golf. (Ag '28)

Góngora y Argote, Luis de
Kane, E. K. Gongorism and the golden age (O '28)
Gongorism and the golden age. Kane, E. K. (O '28)
Good American speech. McLean, M. P. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Good and evil
Paton, H. J. Good will. (O '28)
Good-bye Wisconsin. Wescott, G. (N '28)
The Good Hope. Heijermans, H. (Mr '28)
Good morning, America. Sandburg, C. (D '28)
Good will. Paton, H. J. (O '28)
Gorilla. Burbridge, B. (Ag '28)

Gorillas
Burbridge, B. Gorilla. (Ag '28)
Gospel before the Gospels. Eaton, B. S. (Ag '28)
Gospel for Asia. Saunders, K. J. (D '28)
Gospel of Sâdhu Sundar Singh. Heiler, F. (Je '28)
Gotobedde lane. Bower, M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Gould, Jay
Warshow, R. I. Jay Gould. (S '28)
Government and business. Crecraft, E. W. (O '28)

Grading and marking (students)
Kelley, T. L. Interpretation of educational measurements. (O '28)

Graeme, Bruce, pseud. See Jeffries, G. M. (S '28, Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Graf, Oskar Maria
Graf, O. M. Prisoners all. (N '28)

Grain
Gompertz, M. Corn from Egypt. (O '28)

Grain trade
Great Britain
Ashley, W: J. Bread of our forefathers. (O '28)

Grandson. Dixelius, H. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Grant, Ulysses Simpson
Woodward, W: E. Meet General Grant. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Graphic Bible. Browne, L: (O '28)
Gravestones of early New England and the men who made them, 1653-1800. Forbes, H. (Ap '28)

Gravitation
Mathews, A. P. Nature of matter, gravitation, and light. (N '28)

Grayson, David, pseud. See Baker, R. S. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Great American band-wagon. Merz, C: (Mr '28)

Great Britain. Parliament
Reform
Christie, O. F. Transition from aristocracy, 1832-1867. (S '28)

Great Britain
Biography
Benjamin, L: S. Maids of honour. (Mr '28)
Cecil, A. British foreign secretaries, 1807-1916. (Mr '28)
Dictionary of national biography. (Ap '28)
Guedalla, P. Bonnet and shawl. (D '28)
Thompson, E: R. Portraits of the new century (the first ten years). (Ag '28)

Civilization
Wingfield-Stratford, E. C. History of British civilization. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Colonies
Hall, W. P. Empire to commonwealth. (S '28)
Knaplund, P. Gladstone and Britain's imperial policy. (Ap '28)

Constitutional history
Hall, W. P. Empire to commonwealth. (S '28)

Court and courtiers
Armytage, P. By the clock of St. James's. (Mr '28)
Benjamin, L: S. Maids of honour. (Mr '28)
Benjamin, L: S. Windsor beauties. (D '28)

Diplomatic and consular service
Willson, B. Paris embassy. (Mr '28)

Great Britain—Continued

Economic conditions

Bell, E: P. Europe's economic sunrise. (Ag '28)
Fay, C: R. Great Britain from Adam Smith to the present day. (S '28)
Mantoux, P. J. Industrial revolution in the eighteenth century. (O '28)
Peel, G: Economic impact of America. (S '28)

Foreign relations

Cecil, A. British foreign secretaries, 1807-1916. (Mr '28)
Fox, F. Mastery of the Pacific. (O '28)
Willert, A. Aspects of British foreign policy. (Ag '28)

France

Willson, B. Paris embassy. (Mr '28)

History

Belloc, H. History of England, v 3. (Je '28)
Wingfield-Stratford, E. C. History of British civilization. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Puritan revolution, 1642-1660

Taylor, G: R. S. Cromwell. (Je '28)

1760-1789

George III. Correspondence of King George the Third, v 3-6. (S '28)

19th century

Victoria, queen of Great Britain. Letters; v 3. (Ap '28)

20th century

Hall, W. P. Empire to commonwealth. (S '28)

History, Naval

Williamson, J. A. Sir John Hawkins. (My '28)

History, Comic, satirical, etc.

Knox, E. G: V. I'll tell the world! (Je '28)

Industries

Fay, C: R. Great Britain from Adam Smith to the present day. (S '28)

Politics and government

Beaverbrook, W: M. A., baron. Politicians and the war, 1914-1916. (N '28)
Christie, O. F. Transition from aristocracy. 1832-1867. (S '28)
Newman, B. Edmund Burke. (Mr '28)
Oxford and Asquith, H. H: A. Memories and reflections. (O '28)

Population

Carr-Saunders, A. M., and Jones, D: C. Survey of the social structure of England & Wales as illustrated by statistics. (N '28)

Social conditions

Begbie, H. Howling mob. (My '28)
Carr-Saunders, A. M., and Jones, D: C. Survey of the social structure of England & Wales as illustrated by statistics. (N '28)
Fay, C: R. Great Britain from Adam Smith to the present day. (S '28)
Pipkin, C: W. Idea of social justice. (N '28)

Social life and customs

Christie, O. F. Transition from aristocracy, 1832-1867. (S '28)

Statistics

Carr-Saunders, A. M., and Jones, D: C. Survey of the social structure of England & Wales as illustrated by statistics. (N '28)
Great Britain from Adam Smith to the present day. Fay, C: R. (S '28)
Great days of sail. Shewan, A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Great detectives and their methods. Dilnot, G: (My '28)
Great detective stories. Wright, W. H., ed. (Mr '28)
Great enlightenment. Dodd, L. W. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Great French short stories. Benjamin, L: S., and Hargreaves, R., eds. (O '28)
Great horn spoon. Wright, E. (D '28)
Great man's friendship. Wellington, A. W. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Great painters. Abbott, E. R. (Mr '28)
Great revolt in Castile. Seaver, H: L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Greece

History

Household, H. W. Hellas; v 1. (Ap '28)

Fiction

Mitchison, N. M. Black Sparta. (S '28)

Greece, Modern

Miller, W: Greece. (N '28)
Greece. Miller, W: (N '28)

Greek church

Spinka, M. Church and the Russian revolution. (My '28)
Greek philosophy before Plato. Scoon, R. M. (D '28)

Greek poetry

Collections

Translations into English

Wolfe, H. Others abide. (Ap '28)
Greek thought in the New Testament. Gilbert, G: H. (S '28)
Green fire. Taine, J: (Je '28)
Green magic. Wilson, R., pseud. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Green shadow. Landon, H. (Ag '28)
Green willow. Mannin, E. E. (N '28)
Greene murder case. Van Dine, S. S., pseud. (My '28)

Gregg, William

Mitchell, B. William Gregg. (N '28)

Grey of Fallodon, Edward Grey, 1st viscount

Lutz, H. Lord Grey and the World war. (Je '28)
Grimhaven. Tasker, R. J. (D '28)
Gritny people. Kennedy, R. E. (Mr '28)
Grove's dictionary of music and musicians. Grove, G:, ed. (My '28)
Growing into life. Seabury, D: (Ag '28)
Growing up. De Schweinitz, K: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Growth of our knowledge of heart disease. Moon, R. O. (Ag '28)
Guide-posts to Chinese painting. Hackney, L. W. (Ag '28)
Guide to historical bibliographies. Coulter, E. M. (Je '28)
Guide to literature for children. Field, W. T. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Guide to the constellations. Barton, S: G. and W: H: (N '28)
Guide to the wild flowers. Taylor, N. (S '28)
Gun-smoke. Coolidge, D. (S '28)
Guyfford of Weare. Farnol, J. (D '28)

Gymnastics

Rodgers, M. A. Handbook of stunts. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
The gypsy. Trites, W: B. (Ap '28)

Hair

Nessler, C: Story of hair. (O '28)

Haiti

Description and travel

Beebe, W: Beneath tropic seas. (D '28)

History

Davis, H. P. Black democracy. (Ag '28)
Vandercook, J: W. Black majesty. (My '28)

Hakluyt, Richard

Finger, C: J., ed. Heroes from Hakluyt. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hale's pond. Whaler, J. (My '28)
Half-hearted. Buchan, J: (S '28)
Halsey in the West Indies. Fuller, H. O. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Halves. Henry, H. (Ag '28)

Hamilton, Alexander
Hamilton, A. Hamiltonian principles. (S '28)
Hicks, H. H. Alexander Hamilton. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Hamiltonian principles. Hamilton, A. (S '28)
Hand and the mind. Laffan, M. N. (N '28)
Handbook of scientific and technical societies and institutions of the United States and Canada. National research council. Research information service. (Je '28)
Handbook of stunts. Rodgers, M. A. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Handcraft pottery. Wren, H: and D. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Handicraft
Fraser, C. C. Boy's busy book. (My '28)
Hands up! Quinn, V. (My '28)
Hands up! Sutton, F. E. (Mr '28)
Hands up! Treynor, A. M. (Je '28)
Handwriting on the wall. Little, A. D. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Hanging Johnny. Johnston, M. (Ap '28)
Hangman's diary. Schmidt, F. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Hank Miller. Wolf, M. H. (D '28)
Hans Andersen the man. Reumert, E. P. P. (O '28)
Happy ending. Guiney, L. I. (Ap '28)
Happy mountain. Chapman, M. (S '28)

Hardy, Thomas
Braybrooke, P. Thomas Hardy. (My '28)
Hardy, F. E., comp. Early life of Thomas Hardy, 1840-1891. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Hardy, T:, and Collins, V. H: Talks with Thomas Hardy at Max Gate, 1920-1922. (My '28)
Hardy evergreens. Schrepfer, F. A. (D '28)

Hare-Naylor, Mrs Georgiana (Shipley)
Franklin, B: "My dear girl." (Ap '28)
Harmonies of nature. Shepheard-Walwyn, H. W. (Je '28)
Harness. Gibbs, A. H. (D '28)
Harold the webbed. Horn, A. A., pseud. (Ag '28)

Hart, Basil Henry Liddell. See Liddell Hart, B. H: (My '28)
Harvest of the year to the tiller of the soil. Bailey, L. H. (Je '28)
Harvey Baum. Mead, E: S., and Ostrolenk, B. (N '28)
Hat-tub tale. Emerson, C. D. (N '28)
Hate. Smith, A. D. H. (D '28)
Hate ship. Jeffries, G. M. (S '28)
Haunted house. Belloc, H. (Mr '28)
Havelock Ellis. Peterson, H. (Ag '28)
Hawk of Como. Oxenham, J:, pseud. (S '28)

Hawkins, Sir Anthony Hope (Anthony Hope, pseud.)
Hawkins, A. H. Memories and notes. (Ap '28)

Hawkins, Sir John
Williamson, J. A. Sir John Hawkins. (My '28)

Hawthorne, Julian
Hawthorne, J. Shapes that pass. (D '28)

Hay, Ian, pseud. See Beith, J: H. (Ap '28)
Hay-wire. Bower, B. M., pseud. (O '28)
Head in the wind. Clark, M. M. (D '28)
Heading for the abyss. Lichnowsky, K: M. (O '28)
Health and wealth. Dublin, L: I. (Ag '28)
Health behavior. Wood, T: D., and Lerrigo, M. O. (Ap '28)
Health work in soviet Russia. Haines, A. J. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Hearnden, Beryl. See Balfour, H., pseud. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Hearst, William Randolph
Winkler, J: K. W. R. Hearst. (Ag '28)

Heart

Diseases
Moon, R. O. Growth of our knowledge of heart disease. (Ag '28)

Heart of a child. Van de Water, V. B. (Je '28)
Heart of Burroughs's journals. Burroughs, J: (D '28)

Heating
Rietschel, H. I., and Brabbée, C. W. Heating and ventilation. (N '28)

History
Hough, W. Story of fire. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Heating and ventilation. Rietschel, H. I., and Brabbée, C. W. (N '28)
Heavenly bodies. Jenkins, O. (D '28)
Heavy laden. Wylie, P. (Je '28)
Hebrew family. Cross, E. B. (D '28)
Helen. Heyer, G. (Ag '28)
Helen and Felicia. Jones, E. B. C. (My '28)
Hell-roarin' forty-niners. Ritchie, R. W. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hellas; v 1. Household, H. W. (Ap '28)
Helldorado. Breakenridge, W: M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Hellenism
Jouguet, P. Macedonian imperialism and the Hellenization of the East. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Tarn, W: W. Hellenistic civilisation. (Ap '28)
Hellenistic civilisation. Tarn, W: W. (Ap '28)
Henri Bergson. Chevalier, J. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Henry Alken. Sparrow, W. S. (S '28)
Henry Clay Frick. Harvey, G: B. M. (My '28)
Henry Hudson. Powys, L. (Ap '28)
Her knight comes riding. Weaver, J: Van A. (S '28)
Herbert Booth. Ottman, F. C. (S '28)
Herbert Hoover. Irwin, W. (Je '28)
Here comes an old sailor. Sheppard, A. T. (N '28)
Here comes the bandwagon. Gates, H: L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Here, there and everywhere. Aldis, D. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Here we go round. Sharp, E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Heredity
Bateson, W: William Bateson, F.R.S. naturalist. (O '28)
"Here's luck!" Wiley, H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Heresy of Antioch. Norwood, R. W. (Ag '28)
The heretic. Poling, D. A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Heretic's defense. Smith, H: P. (Mr '28)
Heritage. Feld, R. C. (N '28)
Heritage of music. Foss, H. J., comp. and ed. (Ap '28)

Hermine, princess, consort of William II, ex-emperor of Germany
Hermine, princess, consort of William II. Empress in exile. (D '28)
Heroes from Hakluyt. Finger, C: J., ed. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Hewson, Mrs Mary (Stevenson)
Franklin, B: "My dear girl." (Ap '28)
High ground. Mellett, J: C. (My '28)
High school administration. Foster, H. H. (N '28)
High school library. Logasa, H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
High-school principal. Roberts, A. C., and Draper, E. M. (Ap '28)

High schools
Foster, H. H. High school administration. (N '28)
Roberts, A. C., and Draper, E. M. High-school principal. (Ap '28)
Waples, D. Problems in classroom method. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
High snow. Gompertz, M. L: A. (Ap '28)
High Thursday. Burlingame, R. (Mr '28)
Higher coal-tar hydrocarbons. Everest, A. E. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Highway engineering. Bateman, J: H. (O '28)
Highway materials. Bauer, E: E. (O '28)

Hill, James Jerome

Fiction
Benson, R. Hill country. (O '28)
Sullivan, O. M. Empire-builder. (O '28)
Hill country. Benson, R. (O '28)
Hilltop in the rain. Childers, J. S. (N '28)
Hindu mysticism. Surendranātha Dāsa-Gupta. (D '28)

Hinduism
Saunders, K. J. Gospel for Asia. (D '28)
Surendranātha Dāsa-Gupta. Hindu mysticism. (D '28)
Thompson, E: Suttee. (O '28)

Hine, Muriel. See Coxon, M. (My '28)
Hinge of heaven. Cockrell, S. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
His Elizabeth. Thane, E., pseud. (My '28)
Historians of Anglo-American law. Holdsworth, W: S. (O '28)
Historic railroads. Holland, R. S. (Ap '28)
Historical foundations of modern education. Reisner, E: H. (S '28)
History
Wood, C. Outline of man's knowledge. (Mr '28)

Addresses, essays, lectures
Cheyney, E: P. Law in history. (Je '28)

Bibliography
Coulter, E. M. Guide to historical bibliographies. (Je '28)

Curiosa and miscellany
Thompson, C: J: S: Mysteries of history. (O '28)

Philosophy
Adams, H: Tendency of history. (S '28)
Bober, M. M. Karl Marx's interpretation of history. (Ag '28)
Parsons, G. Stream of history. (Ag '28)
Spengler, O. Decline of the West, v 2. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
History, Ancient
Cambridge ancient history, v 6. (Mr '28)
History, Modern

20th century
Burns, C. D. 1918-1928. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
History, Universal
Parsons, G. Stream of history. (Ag '28)
History and development of road transport. Paterson, J. (N '28)
History of American foreign relations. Sears, L: M. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
History of American painting. Isham, S: (My '28)
History of American political thought. Gettell, R. G. (D '28)
History of biology. Nordenskiöld, E. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
History of British civilization. Wingfield-Stratford, E. C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
History of Canada. Wittke, C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
History of England, v 3. Belloc, H. (Je '28)
History of English literature, v 2. Legouis, E. H., and Cazamian, L: F. (Ap '28)
History of European liberalism. Ruggiero, G. de. (Je '28)
History of garden art. Gothein, M. L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
History of Lloyd's. Wright, C:, and Fayle, C: E. (Ag '28)
History of modern philosophy. Dresser, H. W. (S '28)
History of music. Gray, C. (N '28)
History of printing. Oswald, J: C. (N '28)
History of public school music in the United States. Birge, E: B. (D '28)
History of social thought. Bogardus, E. S. (O '28)
History of South Africa. Walker, E. A. (Ap '28)
History of the American drama, from the civil war to the present day. Quinn, A. H. (Ap '28)
History of the American working class. Bimba, A. (Je '28)
History of the First international. Stekloff, G. M. (Je '28)
History of the Sheffield scientific school of Yale university, 1846-1922. Chittenden, R. H: (D '28)
History of the Society of Friends (Quakers) in Canada. Dorland, A. G. (D '28)
History of wood-engraving. Bliss, D. P. (D '28)
Hobhouse, Leonard Trelawney
Carter, H. Social theories of L. T. Hobhouse. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hobson, John Atkinson
Homan, P. T: Contemporary economic thought. (N '28)
Hofmannsthal, Hugo Hofmann, edler von
Strauss, R: Correspondence between [the author] and Hugo von Hofmannsthal, 1907-1918. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hogarth essays. (D '28)
Holiday. Lenanton, C. (Ag '28)
Holidays
Hazeltine, M. E. Anniversaries and holidays. (O '28)
Kennedy, M., and Bemis, K. I. Special day pageants for little people. (D '28)
Niemeier, M. A. New plays for every day the schools celebrate. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hollywood, California
Williamson, A. M. Alice in Movieland. (S '28)
Holy Roman empire

History
843-1273
Thompson, J. W. Feudal Germany. (S '28)
Home
Eliot, C: W: Talks to parents and young people. (D '28)
Gillis, J. M. Catholic church and the home. (O '28)
Macdonald, E. and F. Homemaking. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Home economics
Kinyon, K. P., and Hopkins, L. T: Junior home problems. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Macdonald, E. and F. Homemaking. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Study and teaching
Brown, C. M., and Haley, A. H. Teaching of home economics. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Home flower-growing. Volz, E. C. (Ag '28)
Home to Harlem McKay, C. (Ap '28)
Homemaking. Macdonald, E. and F. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Homer
Clark, F. L. Study of the Iliad in translation. (Ag '28)
Rodd, J. R. Homer's Ithaca. (S '28)
Homer in the sagebrush. Stevens, J. (N '28)
Homer's Ithaca. Rodd, J. R. (S '28)
Hone, Philip
Hone, P. Diary, 1828-1851. (Mr '28)
Honey
Phillips, E. F. Beekeeping. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hoover, Herbert Clark
Crowther, S: Presidency vs. Hoover. (S '28)
Hard, W: Who's Hoover? (S '28)
Irwin, W. Herbert Hoover. (Je '28)
Hope, Anthony, pseud. See Hawkins, A. H. (Ap '28)
Horace (Quintus Horatius Flaccus)
Frank, T. Catullus and Horace. (Ag '28)
Horn, Alfred Aloysius, pseud.
Horn, A. A., pseud. Harold the webbed. (Ag '28)
Horned shepherd. Jepson, E. (Ag '28)
Horns of Ramadan. Train, A. C. (D '28)
Horse lovers. Brooke, G. F. H. (N '28)
Horse training
Goldschmidt, S. G. Bridle wise. (Ag '28)
Horsemanship
McTaggart, M. F. From colonel to subaltern. (O '28)
Horses
Legends and stories
Brooke, G. F. H. Horse lovers. (N '28)
Hawkes, C. Patches. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hodder, M. W. S. Pax, the adventurous horse. (O '28)
Hortense, queen consort of Louis, king of Holland
Hortense, queen consort of Louis, king of Holland. Memoirs. (Ap '28)
The hotel. Bowen, E. (My '28)
Hotel accounting. Horwath, E. B., and Toth, L: (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Hotels, taverns, etc.
Dahl, J. O. Kitchen management, construction, planning, administration. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Accounting
Horwath, E. B., and Toth, L: Hotel accounting. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

England
Maskell, H: P. Taverns of old England. (Mr '28)

Houdini, Harry
Kellock, H. Houdini. (Ag '28)
Hounds of God. Sabatini, R. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
House, Edward Mandell
House, E: M. Intimate papers of Colonel House, v 3-4. (D '28)
House across the way. Daingerfield, F. (Ag '28)
House at Pooh Corner. Milne, A. A. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
House decoration
Frankl, P. T. New dimensions. (S '28)
Holloway, E: S. American furniture and decoration. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
McClelland, N. V. Young decorators. (Ag '28)
Storey, W. R. Beauty in home furnishings. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
House of disappearance. Farjeon, J. J. (Mr '28)
House of Dr Edwardes. Beeding, F. (Mr '28)
House of sun-goes-down. De Voto, B. A. (Ag '28)
House of the three ganders. Bacheller, I. A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
House with the echo. Powys, T. F. (O '28)
Household carpentry. Roehl, L: M. (S '28)
Household plays for young people. Olcott, V. (D '28)
Housing

Great Britain
Rider, D. Ten years' adventures among landlords and tenants. (Je '28)
Townroe, B. S. Slum problem. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Houston, Samuel
Creel, G: Sam Houston. (Ag '28)
How animals find their way about. Rabaud, E. (S '28)
How the old woman got home. Shiel, M. P. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
How the reformation happened. Belloc, H. (S '28)
How the Soviets work. Brailsford, H: N. (Mr '28)
How to behave—though a débutante. Post, E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
How to cook for children. Reilly, E. (Ap '28)
How to criticize books. Jones, L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
How to get rid of a woman. Anthony, E: (D '28)
How to identify oriental rugs. Wolfe, F. A. and A. T. (My '28)
How to know Japanese colour prints. Priestley, A. F. (My '28)
How to make lampshades. Allen, R. C. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
How to succeed in college. Book, W: F: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
How to write a play. Ervine, St J: G. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
How we got our liberties. Swift, L. B. (Ag '28)
Howells, William Dean
Howells, W: D. Life in letters. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Howling mob. Begbie, H. (My '28)
Huc and Gabet; travels in Tartary, Thibet and China, 1844-1846. Huc, E. R. (S '28)
Hudson, Henry
Powys, L. Henry Hudson. (Ap '28)
Hudson bay
Freeman, L: R. The nearing North. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
James, T: Voyage for the discovery of the northwest passage, 1631. (D '28)
Huguenots in South Carolina
Hirsch, A. H: Huguenots of colonial South Carolina. (Je '28)
Huguenots of colonial South Carolina. Hirsch, A. H: (Je '28)
Human body. Clendening, L. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Human migration & the future. Gregory, J: W (S '28)
Human values and verities. Taylor, H: O. (Ag '28)
Humanism
Reese, C. W., ed. Humanist sermons. (My '28)
Stafford, R. H: Christian humanism. (My '28)
Humanist sermons. Reese, C. W., ed (My '28)
Humor
Andrews, W: E. Imagine my surprise! (Ag '28)
Benchley, R. C: 20,000 leagues under the sea. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Day, C. S. Thoughts without words. (Ag '28)
Galantière, L: france is full of frenchmen. (Je '28)
Gross, M. De night in de front from Chreesmas. (Mr '28)
Gross, M. Famous fimmales. (S '28)
Hope, E: Alice in the Delighted States. (Je '28)
Leacock, S. B. Short circuits. (S '28)
Marquis, D. Love sonnets of a cave man. (Je '28)
Hunger fighters. De Kruif, P. H: (D '28)
Hunting
Clark, J. L. Trails of the hunted. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Phillips, J: C: Sportsman's scrapbook. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Stewart, P. M. Travel ad sport on many lands. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Abyssinia
McCreagh, G. Last of free Africa. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Africa
Burbridge, B. Gorilla. (Ag '28)
Green, F. Martin Johnson, lion hunter. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Haardt, G. M., and Audouin-Dubreuil, L: Black journey. (Ap '28)
Johnson, M. E. Safari. (My '28)

Alaska
Endicott, W. Adventures in Alaska and along the trail. (O '28)

Arctic regions
Borden, C. L. Cruise of the Northern Light. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Ireland
Seigne, J: W: Irish bogs. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Hurricane harbor. Hyer, H. von K. (Ap '28)
Hurrying feet. Van de Water, F: F. (O '28)
Hyacinth. Calthrop, D. C. (Ap '28)
Hydrocarbons
Everest, A. E. Higher coal-tar hydrocarbons. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hydrochloric acid
Laury, N. A. Hydrochloric acid and sodium sulfate. (My '28)
Hydrochloric acid and sodium sulfate. Laury, N. A. (My '28)
Hygiene
Haggard, H. W. What you should know about health and disease. (Ap '28)
Whitmore, E. R. Keeping young after forty. (S '28)
Hygiene, Rural
Ehlers, V: M., and Steel, E. W: Municipal and rural sanitation. (Ap '28)
Hymen. Haire, N. (Je '28)
Hymenoptera
Wheeler, W: M. Social insects. (O '28)
Hymns, English
Gillman, F: J: Evolution of the English hymn. (My '28)
Hypochondriack. Boswell, J. (O '28)
Hysterical background of radio. Clarkson, R. P. (Ag '28)

I believe in God. Royden, A. M. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
I escape. Hardy, J. L. (Ap '28)
I saw it myself. Barbusse, H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Ice
Barnes, H. T. Ice engineering. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Ice engineering. Barnes, H. T. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Iconoclastes. Griffith, H. F. (My '28)
I'd venture all for thee! Fletcher, J. S. (My '28)
Ida Brandt. Bang, H. J. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Idea of social justice. Pipkin, C: W. (N '28)
Idle women. Black, D. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
If I had only one sermon to preach. Steizle, C:, comp. (My '28)
If you go to South America. Foster, H. La T. (My '28)
I'll tell the world! Knox, E. G: V. (Je '28)

Illustrated books
Bliss, D. P. History of wood-engraving. (D '28)

Illustration of books
Ellwood, G: M. Art of pen drawing. (S '28)

Illustrators
Ellwood, G: M. Art of pen drawing. (S '28)

Imagination
Prescott, F: C. Poetry & myth. (Je '28)
Imagine my surprise! Andrews, W: E. (Ag '28)
Immediate origins of the war. Renouvin, P. (My '28)
Immigrant backgrounds. Fairchild, H: P., ed. (Ap '28)

Immigration
Fairchild, H: P., ed. Immigrant backgrounds. (Ap '28)
Garis, R. L. Immigration restriction. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Gregory, J: W. Human migration & the future. (S '28)
Lewis, E: R. America, nation or confusion. (S '28)
McKenzie, R. D. Oriental exclusion. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Panunzio, C. M. Immigration crossroads. (Ap '28)
Immigration crossroads. Panunzio, C. M. (Ap '28)
Immigration restriction. Garis, R. L. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Immortal adventure. Lindheim, I. L. (Je '28)
Immortal Ninon. Austin, C. (Je '28)

Immortality
Frazer, J. G: Man, God and immortality. (Ap '28)
Nairne, A. Life eternal. (Ag '28)

Immunity
Jordan, E. O., and Falk, I. S., eds. Newer knowledge of bacteriology and immunology. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Impatience of a layman. Kennedy, H. A. S. (D '28)
Impatience of a parson. Sheppard, H. R: L. (S '28)
Imperial dragon. Gautier, J. (Je '28)

Imperialism
Peffer, N. White man's dilemma. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Woolf, L. S. Imperialism and civilization. (Je '28)
Imperialism and civilization. Woolf, L. S. (Je '28)
In quest of the western ocean. Crouse, N. M. (Je '28)
In search of a villain. Gore-Browne, R. (N '28)
In search of England. Morton, H: C. V. (S '28)
In search of our ancestors. Boyle, M. E. (O '28)
In the beginning. Douglas, N. (Je '28)
In the golden nineties. Brown, H: C. (Je '28)
In the hills of Galilee. Tucker, L: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
In the isles of King Solomon. Hopkins, A. I. (D '28)
In the Lincoln country. Newcomb, R. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
In the service of the King. McPherson, A. S. (O '28)
In the valley. Green, P. (Ag '28)
In the wake of the wind-ships. Wallace, F: W: (Ap '28)
In the wood. Royde-Smith, N. G. (Ag '28)
In tune with the finite. Masson, T: L. (O '28)

Income
Bossard, J. H. S. Problems of social well-being. (Je '28)
Income and standard of living of unskilled laborers in Chicago. Houghteling, L. (Ap '28)
Incredible Siberia. Wood, J. B. (Ag '28)

Incunabula
Orcutt, W: D. The book in Italy during the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. (D '28)
Index to plays, 1800-1926. Firkins, I. T E., comp. (Ap '28)

India

Civilization
Marvin, F. S. India and the West. (Ag '28)

Description and travel
Bonsels, W. Indian journey. (S '28)
Elliott, R: M. Sunny side of Asia. (Ag '28)
Wright, E. Great horn spoon. (D '28)

History
Zimand, S. Living India. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Non-cooperation movement
Gandhi, M. K. Young India, 1924-1926. (Ap '28)

Politics and government
Gandhi, M. K. Young India, 1924-1926. (Ap '28)
Khub Dekhtā Age, pseud. India to-morrow. (Mr '28)
Marvin, F. S. India and the West. (Ag '28)

Religion
Jones, E. S. Christ at the Round table. (Je '28)
Zimand, S. Living India. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Social conditions
Mukerji, D. G. A son of Mother India answers. (Ap '28)
Ranga Iyer, C. S. Father India. (S '28)
Zimand, S. Living India. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Social life and customs
Christlieb, M. L. An uphill road in India. (Ag '28)
Hatch, W. J. Land pirates of India. (N '28)
Thompson, E: Suttee. (O '28)
Williams, G. L. Understanding India. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

India and the West. Marvin, F. S. (Ag '28)
India tomorrow. Khub Dekhtā Age, pseud. (Mr '28)
Indian journey. Bonsels, W. (S '28)

Indian Territory
Collins, H. E. Warpath & cattle trail. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Indians
Fairchild, H. N. The noble savage. (N '28)
Radin, P. Story of the American Indian. (Mr '28)

Indians of North America
Bartram, W: Travels. (Ap '28)
Buffalo Child Long Lance (Siksika chief). Long Lance. (N '28)
Radin, P. Story of the American Indian. (Mr '28)

Fiction
Sterne, E. G. White Swallow. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Government relations
Schmeckebier, L. F: Office of Indian affairs. (D '28)

Missions
Jesuits. Letters from missions (North America). Indians of North America. (Ap '28)

Music
Densmore, F. American Indians and their music. (Mr '28)

Reservations
Yard, R. S. Our federal lands. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Social life and customs
Densmore, F. American Indians and their music. (Mr '28)
Leforge, T: H. Memoirs of a White Crow Indian. (Ag '28)
Standing Bear, L., (Sioux chief). My people the Sioux. (Je '28)

Wars
Leforge, T: H. Memoirs of a White Crow Indian. (Ag '28)
Wells, E. W. Argonaut tales. (Ap '28)

Canada
Jesuits. Letters from missions (North America). Indians of North America. (Ap '28)

Southwest, New
Robinson, W: H: Under turquoise skies. (S '28)

Indians of North America. Jesuits. Letters from missions (North America). (Ap '28)

Indians of South America
Radin, P. Story of the American Indian. (Mr '28)

Indic poetry
Goodwin, G., ed. Anthology of modern Indian poetry. (Mr '28)

Individuality
Jordan, E. Forms of individuality. (Ag '28)
Leighton, J. A. Individuality and education. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Thomas, E. E: Ethical basis of reality. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Individuality and education. Leighton, J. A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Induction motor practice. Dudley, A. M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Industrial art and the museum. Richards, C: R. (My '28)

Industrial education
Mays, A. B. Problem of industrial education. (D '28)

Industrial engineering and factory management. Anderson, A. G. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Industrial fluctuations. Pigou, A. C. (My '28)

Industrial management
Houser, J. D: What the employer thinks. (Ap '28)

Industrial prosperity and the farmer. Engberg, R. C. (Ag '28)

Industrial relations
Houser, J. D: What the employer thinks. (Ap '28)

Industrial revolution
Mantoux, P. J. Industrial revolution in the eighteenth century. (O '28)

Industrial revolution in the eighteenth century. Mantoux, P. J. (O '28)

Industry
Crompton, G: Tariff. (Ap '28)

Industry and state

United States
Crecraft, E. W. Government and business. (O '28)
Raushenbush, H. S., and Laidler, H. W. Power control. (N '28)

Infancy and human growth. Gesell, A. L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Infidelity. Weigall, A. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Inge, William Ralph
Dark, S. Five deans. (O '28)

Innocents of Paris. Andrews, C. E: (Ag '28)

Inns
Maskell, H: P. Taverns of old England. (Mr '28)

Inquiring mind. Chafee, Z., jr. (Ag '28)

Insects
Balfour-Browne, F. Insects. (Je '28)
Wheeler, W: M. Foibles of insects and men. (S '28)
Wheeler, W: M. Social insects. (O '28)

Biology
Carpenter, G: H. Biology of insects. (S '28)

Insects, Injurious and beneficial
Mason, A. F. Spraying, dusting and fumigation of plants. (D '28)

Instalment plan
Muller, H. M., comp. Installment buying. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Seligman, E. R. A. Economics of instalment selling. (Je '28)

Installment buying. Muller, H. M., comp. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Instinct and personality. Garnett, A. C. (N '28)

Instrument of destiny. Beresford, J: D. (O '28)

Insurance, Life
Huebner, S. S. Economics of life insurance. (My '28)

Insurance commissioner in the United States. Patterson, E. W. (D '28)

Insurance law
United States
Patterson, E. W. Insurance commissioner in the United States. (D '28)

Intellect
Russell, B. A. W: Sceptical essays. (D '28)

Intellectual cooperation
Zimmern, A. E. Learning and leadership. (D '28)

Intellectuals
Benda, J. Treason of the intellectuals (La trahison des clercs) (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Pitkin, W. B. Twilight of the American mind. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Intelligent woman's guide to socialism and capitalism. Shaw, G: B. (Ag '28)

International civics. Potter, P. B:, and West, R. L. (My '28)

International cooperation
World alliance for international friendship through the churches. Building international goodwill. (N '28)
Zimmern, A. E. Learning and leadership. (D '28)

International federation
Wells, H. G: Open conspiracy. (O '28)

International labor organization
Geneva institute of international relations. Problems of peace. (Ag '28)

International law and relations
Brierly, J. L. Law of nations. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Burns, C. D. 1918-1928. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Eagleton, C. Responsibility of states in international law. (D '28)
Hershey, A. S. Essentials of international public law and organization. (My '28)
Norton, H: K. Back of war. (My '28)
Potter, P. B:, and West, R. L. International civics. (My '28)
Williams, B. S. State security and the League of nations. (Ag '28)

International missionary council
Mathews, B. J. Roads to the City of God. (N '28)

International trade. Taussig, F. W: (F '29) (1928 Annual)

International workingmen's association
Stekloff, G. M. History of the First International. (Je '28)

Internationalism
Brailsford, H: N. Olives of endless age. (Mr '28)

Interpretation of educational measurements. Kelley, T. L. (O '28)

Interpretations. Johnson, E. R: (Je '28)

Interpreter Geddes. Defries, A. D. (O '28)

Interpreters of nature. Newman, G: (Ap '28)

Intestines
Disease
Montague, J. F. Troubles we don't talk about! (Ap '28)

Intimacy with Jesus. Woodman, C: M. (S '28)

Intimate life of the last tzarina. Radziwill, C. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Intimate papers of Colonel House, v 3-4. House, E: M. (D '28)
Into the abyss. Knittel, J: (D '28)
Introduction to American economic history. Jennings, W. W. (Ag '28)
Introduction to bibliography. McKerrow, R. B (Mr '28)
Introduction to the history of science, v 1. Sarton, G: (O '28)
Introduction to the metallurgy of iron and steel. Boylston, H. M. (D '28)
Introduction to the reading of Shakespeare. Boas, F: S: (My '28)
Introduction to the technic of child analysis. Freud, A. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Intruder. Blasco Ibáñez, V. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Invader. Vaughan, H. (O '28)
Investigations on chlorophyll. Willstätter, R: M., and Stoll, A. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Investments
Marsh, M. C. Bankers in Bolivia. (N '28)
Invisible government. Munroe, W: B. (My '28)
Ions
Bloch, E. Thermionic phenomena. (Ap '28)
Ira Allen. Wilbur, J. B: (O '28)
Iraq
Description and travel
Fulanain, pseud. Marsh Arab, Haji Rikkan. (Je '28)
Social life and customs
Fulanain, pseud. Marsh Arab, Haji Rikkan. (Je '28)
Ireland
Biography
Crone, J: S. Concise dictionary of Irish biography. (N '28)
Civilization
Fitzpatrick, B. Ireland and the foundations of Europe. (Ap '28)
Description and travel
Bell, A. Spell of Ireland. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Gwynn, S. L. Ireland. (O '28)
History
Figgis, D. Recollections of the Irish war. (Mr '28)
Fitzpatrick, B. Ireland and the foundations of Europe. (Ap '28)
Hayden, M. T., and Moonan, G: A. Short history of the Irish people. (My '28)
1920-
Gwynn, D. R. Irish Free State, 1922-1927. (O '28)
Politics and government
Gwynn, D. R. Irish Free State, 1922-1927. (O '28)
Sullivan, A. M. Old Ireland. (D '28)
Ireland. Gwynn, S. L. (O '28)
Ireland and the foundations of Europe. Fitzpatrick, B. (Ap '28)
Irish bogs. Seigne, J: W: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Irish Free State, 1922-1927. Gwynn, D. R. (O '28)
Iron, Ralph, pseud. See Schreiner, O. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Iron
Metallurgy
Boylston, H. M. Introduction to the metallurgy of iron and steel. (D '28)
Iron age
Italy
Randall-MacIver, D: Iron age in Italy. (N '28)
Iron age in Italy. Randall-MacIver, D: (N '28)
Iron and smoke. Kaye-Smith, S. (Mr '28)
Iron industry and trade
Vanderblue, H. B., and Crum, W: L. Iron industry in prosperity and depression. (Ap '28)
Iron industry in prosperity and depression. Vanderblue, H. B., and Crum, W: L. (Ap '28)
Island of Captain Sparrow. Wright, S. F. (S '28)
Island within. Lewisohn, L. (My '28)
Islanders. Eng title of Way it was with them. O'Donnell, P. (D '28)
Israel in world history. Blunt, A. W. F. (D '28)
It happened like that. Phillpotts, E. (N '28)
Italian holiday. Wilstach, P. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Italian renaissance in art. Fairfield, O. P. (O '28)
Italian Riviera. Lynch, B. (Ag '28)
Italy
Antiquities
Randall-MacIver, D: Iron age in Italy. (N '28)
Description and travel
Canziani, E. Through the Apennines and the lands of the Abruzzi. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Formilli, C. T. G. Stones of Italy. (My '28)
Hutchinson, H. From Rome to Florence. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Laughlin, C. E. So you're going to Rome! (Je '28)
Newman, E. M. Seeing Italy. (Mr '28)
Wilstach, P. Italian holiday. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Guide-books
Laughlin, C. E. Where it all comes true in Italy and Switzerland. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Economic conditions
Gay, H. N. Strenuous Italy. (Mr '28)
Fascist movement
Gay, H. N. Strenuous Italy. (Mr '28)
Ithaca (island)
Rodd, J. R. Homer's Ithaca. (S '28)
Ivory door. Milne, A. A. (D '28)
"J. T., jr." Akeley, D. J. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Jack Horner's pie. Lenski, L., comp. (Ap '28)
Jack Kelso. Masters, E. L. (O '28)
Jackal in Persia. Mackenzie, C: F. (D '28)
Jackson, Andrew
Fiction
Nicholson, M. Cavalier of Tennessee. (S '28)
Jackson, Thomas Jonathan
Tate, A. Stonewall Jackson. (Je '28)
Jackson street. Austin, A. (Ap '28)
Jacob H. Schiff. Schiff, J. H: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
James, Saint, apostle
Stone, J. S: Cult of Santiago. (Ap '28)
James II, king of England (James VII of Scotland)
Belloc, H. James the Second. (O '28)
James B. Duke. Jenkins, J: W. (My '28)
James Gordon Bennetts. Seitz, D. C. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
James the Second. Belloc, H. (O '28)
James Watt and the steam engine. Dickinson, H. W., and Jenkins, R. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Jane, be good! Howes, I. C. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Jane Carroll. Thurston, E. T. (My '28)
Jane Welsh and Jane Carlyle. Drew, E. A. (My '28)
Japan
Allen, G. C. Modern Japan and its problems. (Ag '28)
Civilization
Bryan, J: T: I. Civilization of Japan. (S '28)
Description and travel
Foght, H. W. and A. M. Unfathomed Japan. (D '28)

Foreign relations
Brown, A. J. Japan in the world of to-day. (O '28)
Treat, P. J. Far East. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

History
Gowen, H. H: Outline history of Japan. (Ap '28)

Religion
Brown, A. J. Japan in the world of to-day. (O '28)

Social conditions
Brown, A. J. Japan in the world of to-day. (O '28)

Social life and customs
Bryan J: T: I. Japanese all. (O '28)
Foght, H. W. and A. M. Unfathomed Japan. (D '28)

Japan in the world of to-day. Brown, A. J. (O '28)
Japanese all. Bryan, J: T: I. (O '28)
Japanese in the United States
McKenzie, R. D. Oriental exclusion. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Java
Banner, H. S. Romantic Java. (My '28)

History
Hare, R. H. A. Voyage of the Caroline from England to Van Diemen's Land and Batavia in 1827-28. (D '28)
Java-Java. Steel, B. (S '28)
Jay Gould. Warshow, R. I. (S '28)
Jealous gods. Atherton, G. F. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Jealous of dead leaves. O'Sheel, S. (S '28)
Jeanne. Kenyon, T. (D '28)
Jeanne d'Arc, Saint
Monahan, M. My Jeanne d'Arc. (Je '28)
Paine, A. B. Girl in white armor [Jeanne d'Arc]. (Ag '28)

Fiction
Kenyon, T. Jeanne. (D '28)
Jefferson, Thomas
Minnigerode, M. Jefferson, friend of France, 1793. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Jefferson, friend of France, 1793. Minnigerode, M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Jeffersonian principles. Jefferson, T: (Ag '28)
Jerome. Bedel, M. (S '28)
Jesuit enigma. Barrett, E: J: B. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Jesuits
Barrett, E: J: B. Jesuit enigma. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Missions
Jesuits. Letters from missions (North America). Indians of North America. (Ap '28)
Jesuits in North America
Jesuits. Letters from missions (North America). Indians of North America. (Ap '28)
Jesus Christ
Buck, O. M. "Our Asiatic Christ." (O '28)
Bundy, W. E. Religion of Jesus. (D '28)
Gibran, K. Jesus the Son of man. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Leonard, W: E. Poet of Galilee. (S '28)
Ludwig, E. Son of man. (S '28)
More, P. E. Christ the Word. (Ap '28)
Norwood, R. W. Heresy of Antioch. (Ag '28)
Weigall, A. E: P. B. Paganism in our Christianity. (Ja '28) (1928 Annual)
Woodman, C: M. Intimacy with Jesus. (S '28)

Crucifixion
Poteat, E. M. Scandal of the cross. (O '28)

Drama
Kennedy, C: R. Repertory of plays for a company of three players. (My '28)

Passion
Crozier, W: P., ed. Letters of Pontius Pilate. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Peck, W. G. Divine revolution. (My '28)

Poetry
Oxenham, J:, pseud. "Gentlemen—the King!" (O '28)
Jesus the Son of man. Gibran, K. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Jeweled herd. Evans, I. M. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Jews

History
Blunt, A. W. F. Israel in world history. (D '28)

Law
Zucrow, S. Adjustment of law to life in Rabbinic literature. (D '28)

Liturgy and ritual
Keet, C. C. Liturgical study of the Psalter. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Religion
Farbridge, M. H. Judaism and the modern mind. (My '28)
Levinthal, I. H. Steering or drifting—which? (D '28)
Rall, H. F., and Cohon, S: S. Christianity and Judaism compare notes. (Ap '28)

Social life and customs
Cross, E. B. Hebrew family. (D '28)
Jews in Africa
Slouschz, N. Travels in North Africa. (Ag '28)
Jingling in the wind. Roberts, E. M. (N '28)
Jinx ship. Pease, H. (Ap '28)
Jipping street. Woodward, K. (Ag '28)
John, Evan, pseud. See Hale, C: M., jt. author. (O '28)
John Brown's body. Benét, S. V. (S '28)
John Bunyan. Griffith, G. O. (O '28)
John Bunyan. Harrison, G: B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
John Bunyan, pilgrim and dreamer. Harding, W: H: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
John Cameron's odyssey. Cameron, J: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
John Frensham, K.C. Sullivan, A. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
John Stevens. Turnbull, A. D. (Ag '28)
John Wesley. Lipsky, A. (D '28)
Johnson, Andrew
Winston, R. W. Andrew Johnson. (My '28)
Johnson, Martin Elmer
Green, F. Martin Johnson, lion hunter. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Johnson, Samuel
Lynd, R. Dr Johnson and company. (N '28)
Roscoe, E. S. Aspects of Doctor Johnson. (S '28)

Drama
Chesterton, G. K. Judgment of Dr Johnson. (Ap '28)
Johnson, Thomas
Delaplaine, E: S. Life of Thomas Johnson. (N '28)
Jones, John Paul

Fiction
McCulloch, J: H. Splendid renegade. (D '28)
McIntyre, J: T: Stained sails. (My '28)
Spewack, S: Mon Paul. (Ag '28)
Jonson, Ben
Zweig, S. Ben Jonson's Volpone. (Je '28)
Jørgensen, Jøhannes
Jørgensen, J. Autobiography, v 1. (D '28)
Josephine, consort of Napoleon I

Fiction
Aubry, O. The emperor falls in love. (My '28)
Joshua's vision. Locke, W: J: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Journal of William Maclay. Maclay, W: (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Journalism
Allen, E. W: Printing for the journalist. (O '28)
Brazelton, E. M. Writing and editing for women. (Mr '28)
Harwood, D. Getting and writing news. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Journey to the land of Eden. Byrd, W: (N '28)
Joy ride. Gilbert, W. (Ag '28)
Joyous pretender. Garnett, L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Jubilee Jim; the life of Colonel Jim Fisk, Jr. Fuller, R. H. (D '28)
Judaism and the modern mind. Farbridge, M. H. (My '28)

Judgment
Piaget, J., and others. Judgment and reasoning in the child. (N '28)
Judgment and reasoning in the child. Piaget, J., and others. (N '28)
Judgment day. Davey, N. (D '28)
Judgment of Dr Johnson. Chesterton, G. K. (Ap '28)
Judicial dramas. Eng title of Crimes in high life. Wyndham, H. C. (Mr '28)
Juggernaut. Campbell, A. O. (O '28)
Julie de Lespinasse. Ségur, P. M. M. H. (My '28)
Julius Caesar & the grandeur that was Rome. Thaddeus, V: (Je '28)
Jungle John. Budden, J: (Mr '28)
Junior home problems. Kinyon, K. P., and Hopkins, L. T: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Junius Smith. Pond, E. Le R. (D '28)
Jupie follows his tale. McCoy, N. (D '28)

Jury
Johnsen, J. E., comp. Jury system. (S '28)
Jury system. Johnsen, J. E., comp. (S '28)

Justice
Cardozo, B: N. Paradoxes of legal science. (Ag '28)
Justice first. Lapp, J: A: (N '28)
Justice of Allah. Berry, W: R. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Juvenile courts

United States
Lou, H. H. Juvenile courts in the United States. (My '28)
Juvenile courts in the United States. Lou, H. H. (My '28)

Juvenile delinquency
Grimberg, L. E. Emotion and delinquency. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lou, H. H. Juvenile courts in the United States. (My '28)

Kai Lung unrolls his mat. Smith, E. B. (Je '28)
Kanaka moon. Gessler, C. (Ap '28)
Karin's mother. Goldsmith, M. (Je '28)
Karl Marx's interpretation of history. Bober, M. M. (Ag '28)
Katahdin camps. Stephens, C: A. (O '28)

Kaye, Emily Beilby
Mahon, P. H., defendant. Trial of Patrick Mahon. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Keats, John
Spurgeon, C. F. E., comp. Keats's Shakespeare. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Tighe, M. Keats and Mary Tighe. (N '28)
Keats and Mary Tighe. Tighe, M. (N '28)
Keats's Shakespeare. Spurgeon, C. F. E., comp. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Keeping off the shelf. Whiffen, B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Keeping up appearances. Eng title of Daisy and Daphne. Macaulay, R. (My '28)
Keeping young after forty. Whitmore, E. R. (S '28)
Kentucky Mountain fantasies. MacKaye, P. (O '28)
Key of life. Young, F. B. (My '28)

Kidnapping
Smith, E: H: Mysteries of the missing. (Ap '28)
King Akhnaton. Strunsky, S. (N '28)
King Arthur and the Holy Grail. Jaffray, R. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
King of Spain. Bodenheim, M. (Ag '28)
Kingdom of the mind. Downey, J. E. (My '28)

Kings and rulers
Bowen, M., pseud. Sundry great gentlemen. (My '28)
Hocart, A. M. Kingship. (My '28)
Peake, H. J: E:, and Fleure, H. J: Priests & kings. (Je '28)
King's passport. Bedford-Jones, H: (My '28)
Kingship. Hocart, A. M. (My '28)
The kiss. Wisehart, M. K. (My '28)
Kit Carson. Vestal, S. (My '28)
Kitchen management, construction, planning, administration. Dahl, J. O. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Kitchens
Dahl, J. O. Kitchen management, construction, planning, administration. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Klondike goldfields
Walden, A. T. Dog-puncher on the Yukon. (S '28)
Knights of the wing. Jacobs, A. M. (Ag '28)

Knit goods
Caplin, J. F. Knitting. (N '28)
Knitting. Caplin, J. F. (N '28)
Knowledge of English. Krapp, G: P. (Mr '28)
Knuckles. Kelland, C. B. (Ag '28)
Kontrol. Snell, E. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Kubrik the outlaw. Harper, T. A. and W. M. H.-B. (D '28)

Kuravers
Hatch. W. J. Land pirates of India. (N '28)
Kuyumjian, Dikran. See Arlen, M., pseud. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Labor and laboring classes
Perlman, S. Theory of the labor movement. (N '28)

Great Britain
Cole, G: D. H. Short history of the British working class movement, 1900-1927. (Mr '28)

Mexico
McLean, R. N. That Mexican! (O '28)

Russia
American trade union delegation to the Soviet union. Russia after ten years. (D '28)

United States
Bimba, A. History of the Amercian working class. (Je '28)
Hardman, J. B. S., ed. American labor dynamics in the light of post-war developments. (S '28)

Labor laws and legislation
Oakes, E. S. Law of organized labor and industrial conflicts. (O '28)

France
Pipkin, C: W. Idea of social justice. (N '28)

Great Britain
Pipkin, C: W. Idea of social justice. (N '28)
Labrador looks at the Orient. Grenfell, W. T. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lacoste on tennis. Lacoste, J. R. (O '28)

Ladakh
Gompertz, M. L: A. Magic Ladakh. (N '28)
Lady Godiva. Langdon-Davies, J: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Lady Hester Stanhope. Armstrong, M. D. (Ag '28)
Lady in marble. McClure, R. E. (S '28)
Lady of stainless raiment. Eiker, M. (N '28)
Lady of the Limberlost (Gene Stratton-Porter). Meehan, J. (N '28)

Lady Zia. Wynnton, P. (O '28)
Lafayette, Marie Joseph Paul Roch Yves Gilbert de Motier, marquis de
Delteil, J. Lafayette. (Ag '28)
Sedgwick, H: D. La Fayette. (Ag '28)
Lamaism
Ellam, J. E. Religion of Tibet. (N '28)
Lampshades
Allen, R. C. How to make lampshades. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Lance of justice. Maguire, J: M. (F '29 (1928 Annual)
Land
Brokaw, W. E. Equitable society and how to create it. (D '28)
Land of green ginger. Holtby, W. (Je '28)
Land of the children. Gusev, S. I. (Ag '28)
Land of the golden scarabs. Pereyra, D. de. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Land pirates of India. Hatch, W. J. (N '28)
Landlord and tenant
Rider, D. Ten years' adventures among landlords and tenants. (Je '28)
Landscape gardening
Gothein, M. L. History of garden art. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Rockwell, F: F. Evergreens for the small place. (D '28)
Schrepfer, F. A. Hardy evergreens. (D '28)
Landscape painting
Richmond, L. Art of landscape painting. (N '28)
Langton, Stephen, abp.
Powicke, F: M. Stephen Langton. (O '28)
Language, Universal
Pankhurst, E. S. Delphos. (D '28)
Language and languages
Pillsbury, W. B., and Meader, C. L. Psychology of language. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Languages, Artificial
Pankhurst, E. S. Delphos. (D '28)
A lantern in her hand. Aldrich, B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Larminie, Margaret Rivers. See Tragett, M. R. (S '28)
Last Bohemia. Carco, F. (Je '28)
Last judgment. Haldane, J: B. S. (My '28)
Last of free Africa. McCreagh, G. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Last post. Ford, F. M. (Mr '28)
Last trap. Gluck, S. (Ap '28)
Last twelve years of Joseph Conrad. Curle, R: H: P. (D '28)
Latin America in world politics. Rippy, J. F. (S '28)
Latin America—men and markets. Cooper, C. S. (Ap '28)
Latin poetry
Allen, P. S. Romanesque lyric. (N '28)
Lauder, Sir Harry
Lauder, H. Roamin' in the gloamin'. (N '28)
Laughing. Armstrong, M. D. (O '28)
Laughter
Armstrong, M. D. Laughing. (O '28)
Walsh, J. J. Laughter and health. (Ag '28)
Laughter and health. Walsh, J. J. (Ag '28)
Laundry
Johnson, G: H: Textile fabrics. (Ap '28)
Lausanne: the will to understand. Soper, E. D. (S '28)
Law, William
Hobhouse, S. H: William Law and eighteenth century Quakerism. (My '28)
Law
Cardozo, B: N. Paradoxes of legal science. (Ag '28)
Darling, S. B. You and the law. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Great Britain
Holdsworth, W: S. Historians of Anglo-American law. (O '28)
United States
Holdsworth, W: S. Historians of Anglo-American law. (O '28)
Law in history. Cheyney, E: P. (Je '28)
Law of nations. Brierly, J. L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Law of organized labor and industrial conflicts. Oakes, E. S. (O '28)
Lawrence, Thomas Edward
Graves, R. Lawrence and the Arabian adventure. (My '28)
Lawrence and the Arabian adventure. Graves, R. (My '28)
Lawyers
Great Britain
Holdsworth, W: S. Historians of Anglo-American law. (O '28)
League of nations
Bassett, J: S. League of nations. (Ag '28)
Brailsford, H: N. Olives of endless age. (Mr '28)
Fabre-Luce, A. Locarno, the reality. (O '28)
Geneva institute of international relations. Problems of peace. (Ag '28)
Mair, L. P. Protection of minorities. (D '28)
Miller, D: H. Drafting of the covenant. (N '28)
Price, B. The world talks it over. (Ap '28)
Williams, B. S. State security and the League of nations. (Ag '28)
Woolf, L. S. Imperialism and civilization. (Je '28)
Lean twilight. Shenton, E: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Learned institutions and societies
National research council. Research information service. Handbook of scientific and technical societies and institutions of the United States and Canada. (Je '28)
Ogg, F: A. Research in the humanistic and social sciences. (S '28)
Learning and leadership. Zimmern, A. E. (D '28)
Learning and scholarship
Zimmern, A. E. Learning and leadership. (D '28)
Leave me with a smile. Springs, E. W. (Je '28)
Leaves and fruit. Gosse, E. W: (Mr '28)
Lectures on Egyptian art. Capart, J. (O '28)
Lecture on lectures. Quiller-Couch, A. T: (F '29) (Annual 1928)
Lectures and lecturing
Quiller-Couch, A. T: Lecture on lectures. (F '29) (Annual 1928)
Lee, Robert Edward
Dodd, W: E: Lincoln or Lee. (Ag '28)
Legal aid society
Maguire, J: M. Lance of justice. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Legal status of agricultural co-operation. Nourse, E. G. (Ag '28)
Legend called Meryom. Gaer, J. (My '28)
Legend of Calvin Coolidge. Rogers, C. (D '28)
Legend of Quincibald. Bacon, L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Legend of Saint Nicholas. Dix, B. M. (Ap '28)
Legends
Spain
Gunterman, B. L., comp. Castles in Spain. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Légion d'honneur
Paris, W: F. Napoleon's legion. (S '28)
Legion of the damned. Doty, B. J. (Ap '28)
Legislation
United States
Underwood, O. W. Drifting sands of party politics. (Je '28)
Lenapé trails. Lisle, C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
L'Enclos, Ninon de
Austin, C. Immortal Ninon. (Je '28)
Lenin, Nikolai, pseud. (Vladimir Ilich Ulyanov)
Eastman, M. Marx and Lenin. (S '28)
Fülöp-Miller, R. Lenin and Gandhi. (Ap '28)
Marcu, V. Lenin. (N '28)
Stalin, I. Leninism. (S '28)
Lenin and Gandhi. Fülöp-Miller, R. (Ap '28)
Leninism. Stalin, I. (S '28)
Leonardo da Vinci
McCurdy, E: Mind of Leonardo da Vinci. (S '28)

Leonardo da Vinci—Continued
Taylor, R. A. Leonardo the Florentine. (O '28)
Leonardo the Florentine. Taylor, R. A. (O '28)
Lespinasse, Julie Jeanne Eléonore de
Ségur, P. M. M. H. Julie de Lespinasse. (My '28)
Less than kind. Rogers, S: (D '28)
Lest I forget. Maude, C. (O '28)
Lest ye die. Hamilton, C. M. (O '28)
Let freedom ring. Hays, A. G. (S '28)
Letizia Bonaparte (Madame Mère). Shaw, C. (O '28)
Let's pretend. Agnew, G. (Mr '28)
Letters
Richardson, S: Familiar letters on important occasion. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Letters. Bell, G. M. L. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Letters. Burns, R. (N '28)
Letters. Mozart, J. C. W. A. (D '28)
Letters. Sacco, N., and Vanzetti, B. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Letters. Steele, R: (Ap '28)
Letters. Sterne, L. (Mr '28)
Letters, 1853-1806. Schumann, C. J., and Brahms, J. (Je '28)
Letters; v 3. Victoria, queen of Great Britain. (Ap '28)
Letters and memoirs. Ligne, C: J. (Je '28)
Letters, and other writings. Schubert, F. P: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Letters from Brook Farm, 1844-1847. Orvis, M. (D '28)
Letters from Joseph Conrad, 1895-1924. Conrad, J. (My, S '28)
Letters from the Cape. Duff-Gordon, L. (Ap '28)
Letters of a loyalist lady. Hulton, A. (S '28)
Letters of Baudelaire. Baudelaire, C: P. (Mr '28)
Letters of Pontius Pilate. Crozier, W: P., ed. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Letters of Vincent van Gogh. Gogh, V. van. (Ap '28)
Levant
Description and travel
Chapple, J. M. To Bagdad and back. (S '28)
Franck, H. A. Fringe of the Moslem world. (D '28)
Lew Tyler and the ladies. Irwin, W. A. (O '28)
Liberal party (Great Britain)
Willis, I. C. England's holy war. (S '28)
Liberalism
Ruggiero, G. de. History of European liberalism. (Je '28)
Liberty
Cardozo, B: N. Paradoxes of legal science. (Ag '28)
Chafee, Z., jr. Inquiring mind. (Ag '28)
Hays, A. G. Let freedom ring. (S '28)
Kallen, H. M., ed. Freedom in the modern world. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Swift, L. B. How we got our liberties. (Ag '28)
Liberty of speech
Chafee, Z., jr. Inquiring mind. (Ag '28)
Liberty of the press
Ernst, M. L., and Seagle, W: To the pure. . . (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Libraries
Circulation, loans
Flexner, J. M. Circulation work in public libraries. (Je '28)
Libraries and state
Koos, F. H. State participation in public school library service. (Ag '28)
Library administration
Lowe, J: A. Public library administration. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Library science
Flexner, J. M. Circulation work in public libraries. (Je '28)
Lowe, J: A. Public library administration. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Van Hoesen, H: B., and Walter, F. K. Bibliography. (N '28)
The lie. Martin, H. (My '28)
Life
Bradford, G. Life and I. (My '28)
Woods, E: A:, and Metzger, C. B. America's human wealth. (Ag '28)
Life (biology)
Pearl, R. Rate of living. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Life & adventures of Peter Wilkins. Paltock, R. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Life and death in Sing Sing. Lawes, L: E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Life and death of Sacco and Vanzetti. Lyons, E. (Ap '28)
Life and I. Bradford, G. (My '28)
Life and letters of Woodrow Wilson. Baker, R. S. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Life and private history of Emily Jane Brontë. Wilson, R., pseud. (Ag '28)
Life and the student. Cooley, C: H. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Life and times of Colley Cibber. Senior, D. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Life and times of John England. Guilday, P: K. (My '28)
Life and times of Pieter Stuyvesant. Van Loon, H. W. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Life eternal. Nairne, A. (Ag '28)
Life for sale. Horler, S. (Ag '28)
Life in letters. Howells, W: D. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Life in the stars. Younghusband, F. E: (D '28)
Life of George Rogers Clark. James, J. A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Life of John W. Weeks. Washburn, C: G. (D '28)
Life of Lord Curzon, 3v. Ronaldshay, L. J: L. D. (My, O '28, F '29) (1928 Annual)
Life of Moses. Fleg, E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Life of St Francis of Assisi. Salvatorelli, L. (Ag '28)
Life of Sir Charles Sedley. Pinto, V. de S. (Ag '28)
Life of Sir Martin Frobisher. McFee, W: (D '28)
Life of Thomas Johnson. Delaplaine, E: S. (N '28)
Light
Macfie, R. C. Sunshine and health. (Je '28)
Mathews, A. P. Nature of matter, gravitation, and light. (N '28)
Physiological effect
Macfie, R. C. Sunshine and health. (Je '28)
Light beyond. Oppenheim, E: P. (Mr '28)
Light in the window. Fort, J: P. (O '28)
Light shines through. Cohen, O. R. (D '28)
Lighting
History
Eaton, J. Story of light. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Gould, G: G. and F. Period lighting fixtures. (D '28)
Hough, W. Story of fire. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Ligne, Charles Joseph, prince de
Ligne, C: J. Letters and memoirs. (Je '28)
Lilies
Fox, H. Garden Cinderellas. (Ag '28)
Lily Christine. Arlen, M., pseud. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Limicolae
Beetham, B. Among our banished birds. (Mr '28)
Limitations of music. Blom, E. (D '28)
Lincoln, Abraham
Barton, W: E. Abraham Lincoln and Walt Whitman. (My '28)
Barton, W: E. Women Lincoln loved. (Mr '28)
Beveridge, A. J. Abraham Lincoln, 1809-1858. (N '28)
Dodd, W: E: Lincoln or Lee. (Ag '28)
Helm, K. True story of Mary, wife of Lincoln. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hill, F: T. Lincoln. (N '28)
Newcomb, R. In the Lincoln country. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Sandburg, C. Abe Lincoln grows up. (N '28)
Fiction
Little, R: H: Better angels. (Ag '28)
Morrow, H. With malice toward none. (S '28)

Lincoln, Mary (Todd) (Mrs Abraham Lincoln)
Helm, K. True story of Mary, wife of Lincoln. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Morrow, H. Mary Todd Lincoln. (Je '28)
Lincoln or Lee. Dodd, W: E: (Ag '28)

Lindbergh, Charles Augustus
Keyhoe, D. E: Flying with Lindbergh. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
West, J. E. Lone scout of the sky. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Poetry

Hooley, A., ed. Spirit of St Louis. (Ap '28)

Lindsay, Nicholas Vachel
Davison, E: L: Some modern poets. (Ag '28)
Lino-cuts. Flight, C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Linoleum-block printing
Flight, C. Lino-cuts. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lion-tamer. Hull, E. M. (N '28)

Liquors
Thomas, J. Bon vivant's companion. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Literary blasphemies. Boyd, E. A: (Mr '28)

Literary criticism
Foerster, N. American criticism. (S '28)
MacLeod, J. G. Beauty and the beast. (Ag '28)

Literary reviews
Jones, L. How to criticize books. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Literature
Dudley, L. Study of literature. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Fraser-Harris, D: F. Coloured thinking. (D '28)
Hutton, M. Many minds. (S '28)
West, R. Strange necessity. (D '28)

Addresses, essays, lectures

Harper, G: M. Spirit of delight. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
More, P. E. Demon of the absolute. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Collections

Hodgkins, M. D. H., ed. Atlantic treasury of childhood stories. (D '28)
Lewis, D: B. W., and Heseltine, G. C. Christmas book. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

History and criticism

Drake, W: A. Contemporary European writers. (Ag '28)
Gosse, E. W: Leaves and fruit. (Mr '28)
Hogarth essays. (D '28)
Lewis, W. Time and western man. (Mr '28)
Lewisohn, L. Cities and men. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Wood, C. Outline of man's knowledge. (Mr '28)

Philosophy

More, P. E. Demon of the absolute. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Literature, Comparative
Murray, G. Classical tradition in poetry. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Lithographs, American
Bellows, G: W. George W. Bellows: his lithographs. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Little clown lost. Benefield, B. (O '28)
Little dog Toby. Field, R. L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Little Jack Rabbit. Dussauze, A. (Ag '28)
Little less than gods. Ford, F. M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Little Sister. Kyle, M. (Mr '28)
Little yellow house. Burton, B. P. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Liturgical study of the Psalter. Keet, C. C. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Lively Peggy. Weyman, S. J: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Living Bible; ed. from the King James version by Bolton Hall. Bible. Whole. Texts. (Ag '28)
Living Buddha. Morand, P. (My '28)
Living in the twentieth century. Barnes, H. E. (D '28)
Living India. Zimand, S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Living machinery. Hill, A. V. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Living with our children. Gilbreth, L. E. (O '28)

Livingstone, David
Finger, C: J. David Livingstone. (Ap '28)
Llanfear pattern. Biddle, F. (Mr '28)

Lloyd, Harold Clayton
Lloyd, H. C. American comedy. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Lloyd's, London
Wright, C:, and Fayle, C: E. History of Lloyd's. (Ag '28)
Locarno. Fabre-Luce, A. (O '28)

Locarno treaties, 1925
Fabre-Luce, A. Locarno. (O '28)

Log cabins
Aldrich, C. D. Real log cabin. (O '28)
Log of a cowboy. Adams, A. (Mr '28)
Log of Bob Bartlett. Bartlett, R A. (O '28)

Logic
Adler, M. J. Dialectic. (O '28)
Avey, A. E. Function and forms of thought. (Ap '28)
Bogoslovsky, B. B. Technique of controversy. (O '28)

Logic, Symbolic and mathematical
Barry, F: Scientific habit of thought. (Mr '28)
Logic of modern physics. Bridgman, P. W. (My '28)
Lola the Bear. Rideout, H: M. (N '28)

London
Johnson, E. R: Interpretations. (Je '28)

Amusements

Desmond, S. London nights in the gay nineties. (Ag '28)

Description

Hopkins, R. T. This London. (N '28)
Wagner, L. Saunterings in London. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

History

Hare, K. London in bygone days. (Je '28)

Hotels, taverns, etc.

Hooton-Smith, E. Restaurants of London. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Poor

Woodward, K. Jipping street. (Ag '28)

Social life and customs

Desmond, S. London nights in the gay nineties. (Ag '28)
Hare, K. London in bygone days. (Je '28)

Theaters

Hotson, J: L. Commonwealth and restoration stage. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

London in bygone days. Hare, K. (Je '28)
London nights in the gay nineties. Desmond, S. (Ag '28)
London nights of long ago. Eng title of London nights in the gay nineties. Desmond, S. (Ag '28)
Lone hand. Bindloss, H. (O '28)
Lone scout of the sky. West, J. E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Long, Mrs Gabrielle Margaret Vere (Campbell). See Bowen, M., pseud. (My '28)

Long Lance. Buffalo Child Long Lance (Siksika chief). (N '28)
A long week-end. Kennedy, M. (Mr '28)

Longfellow, Henry Wadsworth
Skinner, H. C. Echo from Parnassus. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Looting of Nicaragua. Nogales y Mendez, R. de. (Je '28)
Lord Byron of Broadway. Martin, N. C. B. (D '28)
Lord Byron's helmet. Elliott, M. (N '28)
Lord Grey and the World war. Lutz, H. (Je '28)
Lord Reading. Street, C. J: C: (N '28)
Lord's horseman [John Wesley]. Lee, U. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Lost—a brother. Knipe, E. and A. A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lost address. Smith, C. P. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lost fight. Prescott, H. F. M. (N '28)
Lost lyrist. Frost, E. (D '28)

Louis XIV, king of France
Bertrand, L: Louis XIV. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Forester, C. S. Louis XIV. (My '28)
Louis XIV. Bertrand, L: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Love and I. Aiken, E. (S '28)
Love and the ladies. Abbott, E. H. (Je '28)
Love is master. Adcock, A. St J: (Ag '28)
Love letters of a husband. (Ag '28)
Love me Anise. Rees, A. J: (S '28)

Love poetry
Teasdale, S., comp. Answering voice. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Love sonnets of a cave man. Marquis, D. (Je '28)
Lovely ducklings. Hughes, R. (Ag '28)
Lovely ladies. Fraser, F. L. (Ap '28)
Lovers of the market-place. Graves, C. I. M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Low-down. Shaw, C: G. (My '28)
Lubricating greases. Klemgard, E. N. (N '28)

Lubrication and lubricants
Klemgard, E. N. Lubricating greases. (N '28)

Lucette (schooner)
Loomis, A. F. Fair winds in the far Baltic. (Ag '28)
Lucia in London. Benson, E: F: (Ap '28)
Luck, and other stories. Arden, M. (Mr '28)
Luckiest lady. Ayres, R. M. (Mr 28)

Luke, Frank
Hall, N. S. Balloon buster. (O '28)

Lumbering
Russell, C: E: A-rafting on the Mississip'. (D '28)
Lure of superiority. Vaughan, W. F. (S '28)

Luther, Martin
Mackinnon, J. Luther and the reformation, v 2. (O '28)
Luther and the reformation, v 2. Mackinnon, J. (O '28)
Luxury husband. Greig, M. (Je '28)
Lyric pioneers of modern Germany. Liptzin, S. (Je '28)

Lyric poetry
Allen, P. S. Romanesque lyric. (N '28)
Ault, N., comp. and ed. Seventeenth century lyrics. (My '28)
Liptzin, S. Lyric pioneers of modern Germany. (Je '28)
Lyric South. Hibbard, C. A., ed. (O '28)

McAndrew, William
Counts, G: S. School and society in Chicago. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

MacDonald, A. B. See Sutton, F. E. (Ap '28)

MacDougall, Mrs Alice (Foote)
MacDougall, A. Alice Foote MacDougall. (My '28)

Macedonia
History
Ancient to B.C. 168
Jouguet, P. Macedonian imperialism and the Hellenization of the East. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Macedonian imperialism and the Hellenization of the East. Jouguet, P. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Machiavelli, Niccolò
Prezzolini, G. Nicolo Machiavelli. (Ag '28)

Machinery
Design
Hoffman, J. D:, and Scipio, L. A. Elements of machine design. (D '28)

McKay, Donald
McKay, R: C. Some famous sailing ships and their builder, Donald McKay. (D '28)

McPherson, Mrs Aimee Semple
McPherson, A. S. In the service of the King. (O '28)
Mad folk of the theatre. Skinner, O. (Je '28)
Mad masquerade. Lathrop, L. A. (O '28)
Mad professor. Sudermann, H. (F '29) (1928 Annual) n

Madeira
Description and travel
Hutcheon, J. E. Things seen in Madeira. (N '28)
Madeleine heritage. Mills, M. (My '28)
Madeleine Sémer. Klein, F. (Ag '28)
Mademoiselle Dahlia. Scott, W. M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Madison, Dorothea (Payne) (Mrs James Madison)
Dean, E. L. Dolly Madison. (S '28)
Madness of Monty. Eng title of Though this be madness. Keable, R. (O '28)

Magic
Singer, C: J. From magic to science. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Thompson, C: J: S: Mysteries and secrets of magic. (Je '28)
Magic gold. Lansing, M. F. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Magic Ladakh. Gompertz, M. L: A. (N '28)
Magic land of the Maya. Puxley, W. L. (D '28)
Magic of Morocco. Elsner, E. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Magnetism
Wall, T: F: Applied magnetism. (My '28)

Mahabhārata
Saunders, K. J. Gospel for Asia. (D '28)
Maid among men. Wrexe, A. (My '28)
Maids of honour. Benjamin, L: S. (Mr '28)
Mail and passenger steamships of the nineteenth century. Parker, H., and Bowen, F. C. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Mail-order and direct-mail selling. Hall, S: R. (N '28)

Mail-order business
Hall, S: R. Mail-order and direct-mail selling. (N '28)

Maitland, Frederick William
Holdsworth, W: S. Historians of Anglo-American law. (O '28)
Major sport fundamentals. Hammett, C: E: (Ap '28)
Maker of modern Arabia. Rihani, A. F. (Je '28)
Making a living. Lyon, L. S: (D '28)
Making citizens of the mentally limited. Whipple, H. (Ag '28)
Making of a chemical. Lewis, E. I:, and King, G: (Ag '28)
Making of a merchant. Sprague, J. R. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Making of a nation. Massey, V. (Ag '28)
Making of Buffalo Bill. Walsh, R: J:, and Salsbury, M. S. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Making of the Constitution. Warren, C: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Malory, Sir Thomas
Hicks, E: Sir Thomas Malory. (D '28)

Mammals
North America
Anthony, H. E. Field book of North American mammals. (S '28)

Man
Frazer, J. G: Man, God and immortality. (Ap '28)
Woods, E: A:, and Metzger, C. B. America's human wealth. (Ag '28)

Influence of environment
Taylor, G. Environment and race. (Mr '28)
Weill, B. C. Behavior of young children of the same family. (D '28)

Origin
Boyle, M. E. In search of our ancestors. (O '28)
Keith, A. Concerning man's origin. (My '28)
Lull, R: S. Ancient man. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Tilney, F: Brain from ape to man. (N '28)

Man, Prehistoric
Boyle, M. E. In search of our ancestors. (O '28)
Cleland, H. F. Our prehistoric ancestors. (N '28)
Dawson, C. H: Age of the gods. (O '28)
Gale, O. M. Carnack, the life-bringer. (S '28)
Hankin, E. H. Cave man's legacy. (O '28)
Lull, R: S. Ancient man. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Osborn, H: F. Man rises to Parnassus. (S '28)
Man and the supernatural. Underhill, E. (Ag '28)
A man can build a house. Colby, N. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Man from the river. Cole, G: D. H. and M. I. (N '28)
Man, God and immortality. Frazer, J. G: (Ap '28)
Man in the dark. Ferguson, J: A. (S '28)
Man in the shadows. Daly, C. J: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Man of learning. Crawford, N. A. (Ap '28)
Man of the midlands. Eng title of Black country. Beddow, B. (D '28)
Man rises to Parnassus. Osborn, H: F. (S '28)
Man-sized meals for the kitchenette. Allen, M. P., and Hutton, I. O. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Man who killed Fortescue. Strange, J: S. (N '28)
Man who knew Coolidge. Lewis, S. (My '28)
Manners. Hathaway, H. (S '28)
Manners and customs
Stoddard, T. L. Story of youth. (D '28)
Man's quest for social guidance. Odum, H. W. (Mr '28)
Manual for small museums. Coleman, L. V. (My '28)
Manual training
Fraser, C. C. Boy's busy book. (My '28)
Manufacture of artificial silk. Wheeler, E. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Many latitudes. Jesse, F. T. (My '28)
Many minds. Hutton, M. (S '28)
Many waters. McClure, M. (D '28)
March of commerce. Keir, R. M. (Je '28)
Marching along. Sousa, J: P. (Ag '28)
Marching men. Coblentz, S. A. (Ag '28)
Maria Capponi. Schickele, R. (My '28)
Marie Antoinette, consort of Louis XVI, king of France
Ségur, P. M. M. H. Marie Antoinette. (O '28)

Fiction

Beck, L. A. Empress of hearts. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Marine fauna
Beebe, W: Beneath tropic seas. (D '28)
Crowder, W: Naturalist at the seashore. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Marionettes masks and shadows. Mills, W. H., and Dunn, L. M. (My '28)
Marketing
Maynard, H. H., and others. Principles of marketing. (D '28)
Marloe mansions murder. MacLeod, A. G. (My '28)
Marriage
Calverton, V: F. Bankruptcy of marriage. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Collins, J. Doctor looks at marriage and medicine. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Gillis, J. M. Catholic church and the home. (O '28)
Goodsell, W. Problems of the family. (D '28)
Groves, E. R. Marriage crisis. (D '28)
Groves, E. R., and Ogburn, W: F. American marriage and family relationships. (D '28)
Haire, N. Hymen. (Je '28)
Macdonald, E. and F. Homemaking. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Messer, M. B. Family in the making. (Ag '28)
Neumann, H: Modern youth and marriage. (My '28)
Smith, J. Woman in soviet Russia. (O '28)
Marriage crisis. Groves, E. R. (D '28)
Marriage made easy. Webster, D., and Hopkins, M. A. (My '28)
A marriage was made. Stern, E. G. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Marsh Arab, Haji Rikkan. Fulanain, pseud. (Je '28)
Marsh-fire. Farnham, M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Marshall, Alfred
Homan, P. T: Contemporary economic thought. (N '28)
Martin, Mrs Victoria (Claflin) Woodhull
Sachs, E. L. "Terrible siren," Victoria Woodhull (1838-1927). (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Martin Johnson, lion hunter. Green, F. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Marx, Karl
Bober, M. M. Karl Marx's interpretation of history. (Ag '28)
Eastman, M. Marx and Lenin. (S '28)
Marx and Lenin. Eastman, M. (S '28)
Mary Anne Disraeli. Sykes, J. (D '28)
Mary Shelley. Church, R: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Mary Todd Lincoln. Morrow, H. (Je '28)
Maryknoll mission letters: China. Catholic foreign mission society of America. (Ag '28)
Masks (plays)
Mills, W. H., and Dunn, L. M. Marionettes masks and shadows. (My '28)
Masks in a pageant. White, W: A. (N '28)
Master mind. Moffett, C. W. (Ap '28)
Master of revels. Watkins, R: H. (D '28)
Mastery of the Pacific. Fox, F. (O '28)
Masts and rigging
Anderson, R. C: Rigging of ships in the days of the spritsail topmast 1600-1720 (Je '28)
Materia medica
Cohen, S. S., and Githens, T: S. Pharmacotherapeutics, materia medica and drug action. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Mathematical preparation for physical chemistry. Daniels, F. (S '28)
Mathematics
Daniels, F. Mathematical preparation for physical chemistry. (S '28)
Harper, H. D. General shop mathematics. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Matorni's vineyard. Oppenheim, E: P. (D '28)
Matter
Gerlach, W. Matter, electricity, energy. (D '28)
Mathews, A. P. Nature of matter, gravitation, and light. (N '28)
Matter, electricity, energy. Gerlach, W. (D '28)
Matthew Arnold. Kingsmill, H. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Matthew Fontaine Maury. Lewis, C: L. (S '28)
Matu, the Iroquois. Cheyney, E: G. (D '28)
Maude, Cyril
Maude, C. Lest I forget. (O '28)
Mauritius

History

Hare, R. H. A. Voyage of the Caroline from England to Van Diemen's Land and Batavia in 1827-28. (D '28)

Maury, Matthew Fontaine
Lewis, C: L. Matthew Fontaine Maury. (S '28)
Maximilian, emperor of Mexico
Corti, E. C. Maximilian and Charlotte of Mexico. (Ag '28)
Maximilian and Charlotte of Mexico. Corti, E. C. (Ag '28)
May Alcott. Ticknor, C. (My '28)
Maya. Gantillon, S. (My '28)
Maya cities. Gann, T: W: F. (Ag '28)
Mayas
Gann, T: W: F. Maya cities. (Ag '28)
Radin, P. Story of the American Indian. (Mr '28)
Mayo, Katherine
Mukerji, D. G. A son of Mother India answers. (Ap '28)
Ranga Iyer, C. S. Father India. (S '28)
Me and Henry and the artillery. Upson, W. H. (O '28)
Meaning no offense. Ford, C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Meanwhile. Coalfleet, P. (Ag '28)
Meat. Steele, W. D. (Ap '28)

Meat industry and trade
Clemen, R. A. By-products in the packing industry. (My '28)
Swift, L: F., and Van Vlissingen, A. Yankee of the Yards. (My '28)
Mechanical engineering
Andrade, E: N. da C. Engines. (N '28)
Mechanics, Applied
Smallwood, J. C., and Kouwenhoven, F. W. Mechanics for engineers, statics and kinetics. (D '28)
Mechanics for engineers, statics and kinetics. Smallwood, J. C., and Kouwenhoven, F. W. (D '28)
Mechanism of homogeneous organic reactions from the physical-chemical standpoint. Rice, F. O. (Ag '28)
Medical jurisprudence
Parry, L. A. Some famous medical trials. (Je '28)
Medici, Giovanni Giacomo
Fiction
Oxenham, J:, pseud. Hawk of Como. (S '28)
Medicine
Biography
Newman, G: Interpreters of nature. (Ap '28)
History
Singer, C: J. From magic to science. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Singer, C: J. Short history of medicine. (D '28)
Practice
Barker, L. F. Young man and medicine. (O '28)
Collins, J. Doctor looks at marriage and medicine. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
United States
Moore, H. H. American medicine and the people's health. (Mr '28)
Medill, Robert, pseud. See McBride, R. M. (My '28)
Mediocrat. Bartley, N. I. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Meet General Grant. Woodward, W: E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Meet Mr Mulliner. Wodehouse, P. G. (Mr '28)
Melville, Lewis, pseud. See Benjamin, L: S. (Ag '28)
Memoirs. Hortense, queen consort of Louis, king of Holland. (Ap '28)
Memoirs. Maximilian, Prince of Baden. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Memoirs, 1712-1750. Pilkington, L. (My '28)
Memoirs and anecdotes. Ségur, L: P. de. (N '28)
Memoirs of a Chinese revolutionary. Sun Yat-Sen. (D '28)
Memoirs of a White Crow Indian. Leforge, T: H. (Ag '28)
Memoirs of la Grande Mademoiselle. Montpensier, A. M. L. d'O. (D '28)
Memoirs of Raymond Poincaré (1913-1914). Poincaré, R. (N '28)
Memories. Preston, H. (N '28)
Memories and notes. Hawkins, A. H. (Ap '28)
Memories and reflections. Oxford and Asquith, H. H: A. (O '28)
Memories of a sculptor's wife. French, M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Memories of books and places. Hammerton, J: A. (O '28)
Men and movements in the church. Iremonger, F: A. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Men are like that. Hartill, L. R. (Je '28)
Men are so selfish! Vachell, H. A. (My '28)
Men atwhiles are sober. Raushenbush, H. S. (Ag '28)
Men of Andover. Fuess, C. M. (S '28)
Men of silence. Forgione, L: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Menageries, circuses and theatres. Bostock, E. H. (Mr '28)
Mencken, Henry Louis
Menckeniana. (Mr '28)
Menckeniana. (Mr '28)
Mennonites
Fiction
Dunham, B. M. Toward Sodom. (Mr '28)
Mental discipline
Alexander, J. Thought-control in everyday life. (Ag '28)
Mental hygiene. La Rue, D. W. (Ag '28)
Mental physiology and hygiene
Bossard, J. H. S. Problems of social well-being. (Je '28)
Fishbein, M., and White, W: A., eds. Why men fail. (Ag '28)
La Rue, D. W. Mental hygiene. (Ag '28)
Seabury, D: Growing into life. (Ag '28)
Walsh, J. J. Laughter and health. (Ag '28)
Mental suggestion
Alexander, J. Thought-control in everyday life. (S '28)
Mental tests
Kelley, T. L. Crossroads in the mind of man. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Kelley, T. L. Interpretation of educational measurements. (O '28)
Wallin, J: E: W. Clinical and abnormal psychology. (S '28)
Wells, F: L. Mental tests in clinical practice. (My '28)
Wiggam, A. E: Exploring your mind with the psychologists. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Mental tests in clinical practice. Wells, F: L. (My '28)
Menus
Barnes, M. F. Feeding the child from two to six. (Je '28)
Fishbein, M., ed. Your weight and how to control it. (Ap '28)
Harrison, M. Cook and be cool. (N '28)
Lutes, D. Table setting and service for mistress and maid. (S '28)
Mercer, Cecil William. See Yates, D., pseud. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Merchant marine
Canada
Wallace, F: W: In the wake of the windships. (Ap '28)
Great Britain
Shewan, A. Great days of sail. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Mercy and the mouse. Bacon, P. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Méryon, Charles
Delteil, L. Meryon. (D '28)
Messenger of the gods. Bottome, P. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Metallurgist's manual. Bamford, T. G., and Harris, H. (Ap '28)
Metallurgy
Bamford, T. G., and Harris, H. Metallurgist's manual. (Ap '28)
History
Garland, H., and Bannister, C. O. Ancient Egyptian metallurgy. (My '28)
Metaphysics
Losskii, N. O. The world as an organic whole. (O '28)
Metaphysics of pragmatism. Hook, S. (N '28)
Meteorology
Brunt, D: Meteorology. (S '28)
Methodism
Brash, W. B. Methodism. (D '28)
Methodism. Brash, W. B. (D '28)
Methods and plant for excavating and embankment. Paul, C: H., and Bennett, C: S. (Ap '28)
Methods of the chemists of the United States steel corporation for the sampling and analysis of gases. United States steel corporation. (My '28)
Mexicans in the United States
McLean, R. N. That Mexican! (O '28)
Mexico
Gruening, E. H: Mexico and its heritage. (N '28)
Rippy, J. F., and others. Mexico. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Description and travel
Puxley, W. L. Magic land of the Maya. (D '28)

Economic conditions
McLean, R N. That Mexican! (O '28)

Foreign relations
United States
Rippy, J. F., and others. Mexico. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

History
Corti, E. C. Maximilian and Charlotte of Mexico. (Ag '28)
Gruening, E. H. Mexico and its heritage. (N '28)
Winton, G: B. Mexico past and present. (D '28)

Conquest, 1519-1540
Díaz del Castillo, B. Discovery and conquest of Mexico, 1517-1521. (O '28)
Diaz del Castillo, B. True history of the conquest of Mexico. (O '28)
Lang, A., ed. Conquest of Montezuma's empire. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Politics and government
Winton, G: B. Mexico past and present. (D '28)

Religion
McLean, R. N. That Mexican! (O '28)

Social conditions
McLean, R. N. That Mexican! (O '28)
Mexico. Rippy, J. F., and others. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Mexico and its heritage. Gruening, E. H: (N '28)
Mexico past and present. Winton, G: B. (D '28)
Middle ages
Osborne, E: B. Middle ages. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Thompson, J. W. Economic and social history of the middle ages. (N '28)
Midnight mystery. Atkey, B. (My '28)
Mid-Pacific. Hall, J. N. (Ag '28)
Midsummer night. Masefield, J: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Migration. Grew, D: (Ap '28)
Military art and science
Coblentz, S. A. Marching men. (Ag '28)
Milk
Fundamentals of dairy science. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Millions of cats. Gág, W. (N '28)
Mind of Leonardo da Vinci. McCurdy, E: (S '28)
Mines and mineral resources
United States
Payne, H: M. Undeveloped mineral resources of the South. (D '28)
Miniature boat building. Leitch, A. C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Minimum wage
Richardson, J. H. Study on the minimum wage. (N '28)
Ministerial practices. McAfee, C. B. (D '28)
Ministers of the gospel
McAfee, C. B. Ministerial practices. (D '28)
Minor Victorian poets. Cooke, J: D., ed. (Je '28)
Minorities
Mair, L. P. Protection of minorities. (D '28)
Minstrel shows
Paskman, D., and Spaeth, S. G. "Gentlemen, be seated!" (Je '28)
Minstrelsy of Maine. Eckstorm, F., and Smyth, M. W., comps. (My '28)
Mirage of Versailles. Stegemann, H. (S '28)
Mirror for witches. Forbes, E. (Je '28)
Mirror of dreams. Gompertz, M. L: A. (D '28)
Mirror of youth. King, M., comp. (N '28)
Mirrors of the year, 1927-8. (Je '28)
Misbehaviorists. Wickham, H. (S '28)
Misleaders of labor. Foster, W: Z. (My '28)
Miss Angelina Adorable. Bonner, M. G. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Miss Mayhew and Ming Yun. Duffield, A. (Ap '28)
Miss Nobody from Nowhere. Jordan, E. G. (Ag '28)
Miss Torrobin's experiment. Eng title of Men are so selfish! Vachell, H. A. (My '28)
Missing partners. Aubrey-Fletcher, H: L. (N '28)
Missions
Mathews, B. J. Roads to the City of God. (N '28)
Africa
Gollock, G. A. Sons of Africa. (D '28)
China
Catholic foreign mission society of America. Maryknoll mission letters: China. (Ag '28)
Huc, E. R. Huc and Gabet; travels in Tartary, Thibet and China, 1844-1846. (S '28)
India
Christlieb, M. L. An uphill road in India. (Ag '28)
Tibet
Huc, E. R. Huc and Gabet; travels in Tartary, Thibet and China, 1844-1846. (S '28)
Mississippi river
Russell, C: E: A-rafting on the Mississip' (D '28)
Description and travel
Speakman, H. Mostly Mississippi. (Ap '28)
Floods
Beman, L. T., comp. Flood control. (O '28)
Mississippi valley
History
Whitaker, A. P. Spanish-American frontier: 1783-1795. (Ap '28)
Mist (Niebla). Unamuno y Jugo, M. de. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Mr Blettsworthy on Rampole island. Wells, H. G: (D '28)
Mr Blue. Connolly, M. (N '28)
Mr Fortune, please. Bailey, H: C. (Ap '28)
Mr Hodge & Mr Hazard. Wylie, E. H. (My '28)
Mr Pope. Tate, A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Mr Weston's good wine. Powys, T. F. (My '28)
Mrs Condover. Metcalfe, J: (O '28)
Mrs Leicester's school. Lamb, C: and M. A. (My '28)
Mitchell, Wesley Clair
Homan, P. T: Contemporary economic thought. (N '28)
Modern aircraft. Pagé, V: W. (Je '28)
Modern automobile painting. Pearce, M. J. (Ap '28)
Modern bait and fly casting. Thompson, J: B. de M. (N '28)
Modern calorimeter. White, W. P. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Modern cat. Gates, G. I. (S '28)
Modern conceptions of electricity. Gibson, C: R. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Modern English in the making. McKnight, G: H., and Emsley, B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Modern English novel. Cross, W. L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Modern Japan and its problems. Allen, G. C. (Ag '28)
Modern love. Yoxall, H. W. (Je '28)
Modern painting. Mather, F. J. (Mr '28)
Modern Plutarch. Cournos, J: (D '28)
Modern youth and marriage. Neumann, H: (My '28)
Modernism
Campbell, J: L. Bible under fire. (O '28)
Lippmann, W. American inquisitors. (Ag '28)
Snowden, J. H: Old faith and new knowledge. (N '28)
Mon Paul. Spewack, S: (Ag '28)

Money
Burns, A. R. Money and monetary policy in early times. (O '28)
Kilborne, R. D. Principles of money and banking. (O '28)

Germany
Schacht, H. Stabilization of the mark. (My '28)
Money and monetary policy in early times. Burns, A. R. (O '28)
Money for nothing. Wodehouse, P. G. (N '28)
Money for one. Ruck, B. (My '28)
Money of her own. Banning, M. (N '28)
Money writes! Sinclair, U. B. (Ap '28)

Mongolia

History
Komroff, M., ed. Contemporaries of Marco Polo. (S '28)

Monk of Hambleton. Livingston, A. (My '28)

Monkeys
Akeley, D. J. "J. T., jr." (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Monopolies
Levy, H. Monopolies, cartels and trusts in British industry. (Je '28)
Monopolies, cartels and trusts in British industry. Levy, H. (Je '28)
Monsieur Croche. Debussy, A. C. (O '28)

Montagu, Lady Mary (Pierrepont) Wortley
Barry, I. Portrait of Lady Mary Montagu. (My '28)

Montpensier, Anne Marie Louise d'Orléans, duchess de
Montpensier, A. M. L. d'O. Memoirs of la Grande Mademoiselle. (D '28)

Montrose, James Graham, 1st marquis of Buchan, J: Montrose. (D '28)

Monuments

United States
Bryant, L. M. Children's book of American landmarks. (Mr '28)

Moody, Dwight Lyman
Bradford, G. D. L. Moody. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Moral conditions
Calverton, V: F. Bankruptcy of marriage. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Moral self. Sherman, C: L. (Je '28)
Morals in review. Rogers, A. K. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Mordaunt, Elinor, pseud. See Wiehe, E. M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
More about Ellie and Mr Me Too. Sloan, E. (D '28)
More aristocrats of the garden. Wilson, E. H: (Je '28)
More essays on religion. Clutton-Brock, A. (My '28)
More things to draw. Lutz, E. G: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
More words, ancient and modern. Weekley, E. (Ap '28)

Moresby, Louis, pseud. See Beck, L. A. (Je, O '28, Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Morocco

Description and travel
Elsner, E. Magic of Morocco. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Harrigan, M. H. Traveling light; [Spain and Morocco]. (Ag '28)

Morton Prince and abnormal psychology. Taylor, W: S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Moses
Fleg, E. Life of Moses. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Fiction
Untermeyer, L: Moses. (D '28)

Moses. Untermeyer, L: (D '28)
Mostly Mississippi. Speakman, H. (Ap '28)
Mother in modern story. Van Buren, M., and Bemis, K. I., eds. (S '28)
Mother Mary. Mann, H. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Mother of kings. Richardson, N. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Motherhood and its enemies. Haldane, C. (Mr '28)

Mothers
Haldane, C. Motherhood and its enemies. (Mr '28)
Van Buren, M., and Bemis, K. I., eds. Mother in modern story. (S '28)

Motion picture theatre management. Franklin, H. B. (My '28)
The mountain. Ervine, St J: G. (N '28)

Mountain whites (Southern states)
Richardson, E., comp. American mountain songs. (My '28)

Mountaineering
Gos, F. M. E. Rambles in high Savoy. (My '28)
O'Kane, W. C. Trials and summits of the Adirondacks. (O '28)

Mountainy singer. Kroll, H. H. (N '28)

Mouth
Hartman, L. L. Teeth and the mouth. (Je '28)

Moving picture plays
Patterson, F. T. Scenario and screen. (Ag '28)

Moving picture theaters
Franklin, H. B. Motion picture theatre management. (My '28)

Moving pictures
Kennedy, J. P., ed. Story of the films. (Ag '28)
Patterson, F. T. Scenario and screen. (Ag '28)

Biography
Williamson, A. M. Alice in Movieland. (S '28)

Moving waters. Noble, E: (Je '28)

Mozart, Johannes Chrysostom Wolfgang Amadeus
Hussey, D. Wolfgang Amade Mozart. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Mozart, J. C. W. A. Letters. (D '28)

Much loved books. Bennett, J. O. (Mr '28)
Mudéjar. King, G. G. (D '28)

Mulattoes
Johnson, J. W. Autobiography of an ex-coloured man. (Mr '28)

Mulleins. Gribble, P. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Municipal and rural sanitation. Ehlers, V: M., and Steel, E. W: (Ap '28)

Municipal government

City manager plan
White, L. D. City manager. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Murder
Minot, G: E. Murder will out. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Pearson, E. L. Five murders. (Je '28)
Wyndham, H. C. Crime on the continent. (N '28)

Murder at Fleet. Young, E. B. (My '28)
Murder in the Pallant. Fletcher, J. S. (My '28)
Murder mansion. Landon, H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Murder of an M. P. Eng title of In search of a villain. Gore-Brown, R. (N '28)
Murder of Mrs Davenport. Gilbert, A. (N '28)
Murder will out. Minot, G: E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Murders in Praed street. Street, C. J: C: (My '28)
Murders in Surrey wood. Arnold, J: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Murray, Sinclair, pseud. See Sullivan, A. (O '28, Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Muscles
Hill, A. V. Living machinery. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Museums
Coleman, L. V. Manual for small museums. (My '28)

Mushrooms
Thomas, W: S. Field book of common gilled mushrooms. (D '28)

Music
Creighton, W. Music. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Foss, H. J., comp. and ed. Heritage of music. (Ap '28)
Turner, W. J. Musical meanderings. (O '28)

Acoustics and physics
Redfield, J: Music. (O '28)

Addresses, essays, lectures
Debussy, A. C. Monsieur Croche. (O '28)

Analysis, interpretation, appreciation
Creighton, U. Music. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Isaacson, C: D: Simple story of music. (Ag '28)
Welch, R. D. Appreciation of music. (Je '28)

Dictionaries
Grove, G:, ed. Grove's dictionary of music and musicians. (My '28)

History and criticism
Creighton, U. Music. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Debussy, A. C. Monsieur Croche. (O '28)
Gray, C. History of music. (N '28)
Morse, C. Music and music makers. (Ap '28)

Instruction and study
Birge, E: B. History of public school music in the United States. (D '28)
Coleman, S. N. Creative music in the home. (N '28)

Philosophy and esthetics
Blom, E. Limitations of music. (D '28)
Redfield, J: Music. (O '28)

United States
Russell, C: E: American orchestra and Theodore Thomas. (Mr '28)

Music. Redfield, J: (O '28)
Music and music makers. Morse, C. (Ap '28)

Musical instruments
Coleman, S. N. Creative music in the home. (N '28)

Musical meanderings. Turner, W. J. (O '28)

Musicians
Creighton, W. Music. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Foss, H. J., comp. and ed. Heritage of music. (Ap '28)

Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.
Bond, C. J. Roads of melody. (O '28)
Sousa, J: P. Marching along. (Ag '28)
Sullivan, H., and Flower, W. N. Sir Arthur Sullivan. (Je '28)

Dictionaries
Grove, G., ed. Grove's dictionary of music and musicians. (My '28)

Mussolini, Benito
Fiori, V. E. de. Mussolini. (My '28)
Mussolini, B. My autobiography. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Robertson, A. Mussolini and the new Italy. (D '28)

Mussolini and the new Italy. Robertson, A. (D '28)
My autobiography. Mussolini, B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
My brother Jonathan. Young, F. B. (D '28)
"My dear girl." Franklin, B: (Ap '28)
My first two thousand years. Viereck, G: S., and Eldridge, P. (D '28)
My friend Robespierre. Béraud, H. (D '28)
My Jeanne d'Arc. Monahan, M. (Je '28)
My life. Duncan, I. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
My life in advertising. Hopkins, C. C. (Ag '28)
My life transformed. Heckman, H. E. (My '28)
My people the Sioux. Standing Bear, L., (Sioux chief). (Je '28)
My studio window. Andrews, M. M. (D '28)
My war memories. Beneš, E. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
"My wife, poor wretch." Brunner, E. B. (Mr '28)

Myrtella. More, B. J. (N '28)

Mysteries, Religious
Rostovtzeff, M. I. Mystic Italy. (Ag '28)

Mysteries and miracle-plays
Osgood, P. E. Old-time church drama adapted. (D '28)

Mysteries and secrets of magic. Thompson, C: J: S: (Je '28)
Mysteries of history. Thompson, C: J: S: (O '28)
Mysteries of the missing. Smith, E: H: (Ap '28)
Mysterious murder of Maria Marten at Polstead, in Suffolk. Curtis, J. (N '28)
Mystery at Lynden Sands. Stewart, A. W. (O '28)
Mystery of the barren lands. Cullum, R. (S '28)
Mystery of the blue train. Christie, A. (S '28)
Mystery of tunnel 51. Wilson, A. D. (Ag '28)
Mystery of Uncle Bollard. Stacpoole, H: de V. (Je '28)
Mystery range. Seltzer, C: A. (S '28)
Mystic Italy. Rostovtzeff, M. I. (Ag '28)

Mysticism
Jones, R. M. New studies in mystical religion. (Mr '28)
Surendranātha Dāsa-Gupta. Hindu mysticism. (D '28)
Tillyard, A. C. W. Spiritual exercises and their results. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Mythology
Kellett, E. E: Story of myths. (Ap '28)
Prescott, F: C. Poetry & myth. (Je '28)

Mythology, Greek

Juvenile literature
Pyle, K. Tales from Greek mythology. (O '28)

Naboth's vineyard. Welles, S. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Naked truth. Sheridan, C. C. (My '28)

Names, Geographical
Bradley, H: Collected papers. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Nanking incident, 1927
Hobart, A. T. Within the walls of Nanking. (S '28)

Nantucket
Macy, W: F. Story of old Nantucket. (O '28)

Napier of Magdala, Robert Cornelius Napier, 1st baron
Napier, H: D. Field-Marshall Lord Napier of Magdala. (Ap '28)

Naples, Bay of
Mackinnon, A. G. Things seen in the Bay of Naples. (S '28)

Napoleon I, emperor of the French
Hortense, queen consort of Louis, king of Holland. Memoirs. (Ap '28)
Merezhkovskiĭ, D. S. Napoleon, the man. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Wilson, R. M. Napoleon the man. (Ag '28)

Fiction
Aminoff, C. L. C. Arrogance. (S '28)
Aubry, O. The emperor falls in love. (My '28)

Napoleon, the man. Merezhkovskiĭ, D. S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Napoleon the man. Wilson, R. M. (Ag '28)
Napoleon's legion. Paris, W: F. (S '28)
National character and the factors in its formation. Barker, E. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

National characteristics
Barker, E. National character and the factors in its formation. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Burt, M. S. Other side. (S '28)
Keyserling, H. A. Europe. (S '28)

National characteristics, American
Brownell, W: C. Democratic distinction in America. (Mr '28)

National characteristics, American—Continued
Merz, C: Great American band-wagon. (Mr '28)
Nichols, B. Star spangled manner. (D '28)
National characteristics, English
Madariaga, S. de. Englishmen, Frenchmen, Spaniards. (D '28)
National characteristics, French
Madariaga, S. de. Englishmen, Frenchmen, Spaniards. (D '28)
National characteristics, Spanish
Madariaga, S. de. Englishmen, Frenchmen, Spaniards. (D '28)
National parks and reserves
Albright, H. M., and Taylor, F. J. "Oh, ranger!" (O '28)
Yard, R. S. Our federal lands. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
National policy and naval strength. Richmond, H. W: (N '28)
National traits and fairy-lore. Williams, A. (D '28)
Nationalism and nationality
Barker, E. National character and the factors in its formation. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Benda, J. Treason of the intellectuals (La trahison des clercs.). (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Fairchild, H: P., ed. Immigrant backgrounds. (Ap '28)
Harrison, M. E. Asia reborn. (Je '28)
Page, K. Dollars and world peace. (Ap '28)
Native problem in Africa. Buell, R. L. (Ag '28)
Natural gas handbook. Diehl, J: C. (My '28)
Natural history
Bartram, W: Travels. (Ap '28)
Abyssinia
Baum, J. E. Savage Abyssinia. (Je '28)
Asia
Morden, W: J. Across Asia's snows and deserts. (Je '28)
Southwest
Robinson, W: H: Under turquoise skies. (S '28)
Natural resources
Yard, R. S. Our federal lands. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Naturalist at the seashore. Crowder, W: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Nature
Shepheard-Walwyn, H. W. Harmonies of nature. (Je '28)
Nature in poetry
King, M., comp. Mirror of youth. (N '28)
Nature of Deity. Turner, J: E. (Ag '28)
Nature of matter, gravitation, and light. Mathews, A. P. (N '28)
Nature study
Albright, H. M., and Taylor, F. J. "Oh, Ranger!" (O '28)
Naval battles
Green, F., and Frost, H. H. Some famous sea fights. (Ag '28)
Naval history
Richmond, H. W: National policy and naval strength. (N '28)
Naval history in the law courts. Senior, W: (Ap '28)
Naval law
Senior, W: Naval history in the law courts. (Ap '28)
Naval prints
Chatterton, E: K. Old ship prints. (D '28)
Parker, H., and Bowen, F. C. Mail and passenger steamships of the nineteenth century. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Navigation
Juvenile literature
Loomis, A. F. Sea legs. (Je '28)
The nearing North. Freeman, L: R. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Negro drawings. Covarrubias, M. (S '28)
Negro literature
Locke, A. Le R., and Gregory, M., eds. Plays of negro life. (Je '28)
Negro minstrels
Paskman, D., and Spaeth, S. G. "Gentlemen, be seated!" (Je '28)
Negro problems in cities. Woofter, T: J., ed. (D '28)
Negroes
Herskovits, M. J. American negro. (Ag '28)
Johnson, J. W. Autobiography of an ex-coloured man. (Mr '28)
Bibliography
Work, M. N., comp. Bibliography of the Negro in Africa and America. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Biography
Gollock, G. A. Sons of Africa. (D '28)
Moral and social conditions
Woofter, T: J., ed. Negro problems in cities. (D '28)
South Carolina
Adams, E: C. L. Nigger to nigger. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Negroes in Africa
Gollock, G. A. Sons of Africa. (D '28)
Negroes in literature
Basshe, E. J. Earth. (Ag '28)
Locke, A. Le R., and Gregory, M., eds. Plays of negro life. (Je '28)
Neon, pseud.
Sueter, M. F. Airmen or Noahs. (O '28)
Nerves
Hill, A. V. Living machinery. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Nervous child and his parents. Richardson, F. H. (Ag '28)
Nervous system
Piéron, H. Thought and brain. (My '28)
Diseases
Kennedy, F., and Stevenson, L: D. Your nerves and their control. (S '28)
Richardson, F. H. Nervous child and his parents. (Ag '28)
Nesbit, E. See Bland, E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Net around Joan Ingilby. Fielding, A. (O '28)
Netherlands
Description and travel
De Leeuw, A. L. Flavor of Holland. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Schoonmaker, F. Come with me through Belgium and Holland. (N '28)
Nettle harvest. Hooke, S. D. (O '28)
Neuroses
Burrow, T. Social basis of consciousness. (N '28)
Seabury, D: Growing into life. (Ag '28)
Neurotic personality. Gordon, R. G. (Ag '28)
"Nevada." Grey, Z. (Je '28)
Never go back. Boas, G: (D '28)
New Argonautica. Henderson, W. B. D. (N '28)
New Beatrice. Baldwin, G. E. (D '28)
New Christian epic. Palmer, A. W. (S '28)
New criminology. Schlapp, M. G., and Smith, E: H: (Ag '28)
New Decameron; fifth volume. (Je '28)
New dimensions. Frankl, P. T. (S '28)
New England
History
Taussig, C: W: Rum, romance and rebellion. (Je '28)
Industries
Dow, G: F. Arts & crafts in New England, 1704-1775. (My '28)
Social life and customs
Colonial period
Lawrence, H: W. Not-quite Puritans. (D '28)
New England clergy and the American revolution. Baldwin, A. M. (S '28)
New England's outpost. Brehner, J: B. (Ap '28)
New essays. Goldsmith, O. (O '28)
New exploration. MacKaye, B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

New France

Discovery and exploration

Crouse, H. M. In quest of the western ocean. (Je '28)
Jesuits. Letters from missions (North America). Indians of North America. (Ap '28)

New God for America. Parrish, H. (Ag '28)
New gun runners. Gordon, N. (D '28)
New leaven. Cobb, S. (O '28)

New Mexico

Description and travel

French, W: Some recollections of a Western ranchman. (My '28)

New Orleans

Description

Saxon, L. Fabulous New Orleans. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

History

Saxon, L. Fabulous New Orleans. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

New Persia. Sheean, V. (Ap '28)
New plays for every day the schools celebrate. Niemeier, M. A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
New quantum mechanics. Birtwistle, G: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
New realism and old reality. Evans, D. L. (S '28)
New Russia. Thompson, D. (N '28)
New schools of new Russia. Wilson, L. L. (O '28)
New solutions of New Testament problems. Goodspeed, E. J. (Je '28)
New songs for new voices. Untermeyer, L:, and others, eds. (D '28)
New studies in mystical religion. Jones, R. M. (Mr '28)
New temple. Bojer, J. (D '28)
New trails in old Spain. Bailey, V. H. (S '28)

New York (city)

Description

Ford, F. M. New York is not America. (Ap '28)

Galleries and museums

Breuning, M. Exploring New York's art galleries. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

History

Brown, H: C. In the golden nineties. (Je '28)

Colonial period

Van Loon, H. W. Life and times of Pieter Stuyvesant. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Parks

Olmsted, F: L. Frederick Law Olmsted, v 2. (My '28)

Social conditions

Asbury, H. Gangs of New York. (Je '28)
O'Connor, J: J. Broadway racketeers. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Views

Bailey, V. H. Skyscrapers of New York. (D '28)

New York (state)

Description and travel

Nutting, W. New York beautiful. (Mr '28)

Politics and government

New York (State) Governor (Alfred E. Smith). Progressive democracy. (S '28)

New York beautiful. Nutting, W. (Mr '28)

New York Herald

Seitz, D. C. James Gordon Bennetts. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

New York is not America. Ford, F. M. (Ap '28)

New York zoological society

Beebe, W: Beneath tropic seas. (D '28)
Newer knowledge of bacteriology and immunology. Jordan, E. O., and Falk, I. S., eds. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Newspapers

Allen, E. W: Printing for the journalist. (O '28)
Harwood, D. Getting and writing news. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Directories

Council on foreign relations. Political handbook of the world. (N '28)

United States

Winkler, J: K. W. R. Hearst. (Ag '28)

Niagara Falls

Forrester, G. C. Falls of Niagara. (N '28)

Nicaragua

Foreign relations

United States

Cox, I: J. Nicaragua and the United States, 1909-1927. (Je '28)
Nogales y Mendez, R. de. Looting of Nicaragua. (Je '28)

Nicaragua and the United States, 1909-1927. Cox, I: J. (Je '28)
Nick of the woods. Bird, R. M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Nicolo Machiavelli. Prezzolini, G. (Ag '28)

Nigeria

Social life and customs

Best, A. Girls in Africa. (D '28)

Nigger to nigger. Adams, E: C. L. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Nights abroad. Bercovici, K. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Nightseed. Manhood, H. A. (N '28)
Nile and Egyptian civilization. Moret, A. (My '28)
Nimble-legs. Capuana, L. (Ap '28)
1918-1928. Burns, C. D. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Nineteenth century

Daudet, L. A. The stupid XIXth century. (Je '28)
Seldes, G. V. Stammering century. (N '28)

Ninth circle. Steele, H. E. R. (My '28)

Nitrogen

Fixation

Ernst, F. A. Fixation of atmospheric nitrogen. (N '28)

The noble savage. Fairchild, H. N. (N '28)
Nocturnes and autumnals. Morton, D: (O '28)

Nonsense verses

Sieveking, L. de G. Bats in the belfry. (Mr '28)

Normal schools

Hill, C. M. Decade of progress in teacher training. (O '28)

The norns are spinning. Haukland, E. A. D. (Ag '28)

North Carolina

Description and travel

Byrd, W: Journey to the land of Eden. (N '28)

North Sea

Loomis, A. F. Fair winds in the far Baltic. (Ag '28)

Northern Light (ship)

Borden, C. L. Cruise of the Northern Light. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Northwest, Canadian

Description and travel

Freeman, L: R. The nearing North. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Northwest, Old

History

Clark, G: R., and Hamilton, H: Capture of old Vincennes. (Je '28)

Northwest passage

Crouse, H. M. In quest of the western ocean. (Je '28)
James, T: Voyage for the discovery of the northwest passage, 1631. (D '28)

Norway's best stories. Larsen, H. A., ed. (N '28)
Not at night! Asbury, H., ed. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Not Magnolia. Taylor, E. E. (Ap '28)
Not-quite Puritans. Lawrence, H: W. (D '28)
Not to be opened. Osbourne, L. (Ag '28)
Notes from the life of a Viennese composer. Goldmark, C. (O '28)
Nothing is sacred. Herbst, J. (D '28)
Nova Francia. Lescarbot, M. (Je '28)

Nova Scotia
History
Brebner, J: B. New England's outpost. (Ap '28)

Novelists, American
Overton, G. M. Women who make our novels. (Je '28)

Novelists, English
Braybrooke, P. Some goddesses of the pen. (My '28)
November night. (Mr '28)
Now the sky, & other poems. Van Doren, M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Nuda veritas. Eng title of Naked truth. Sheridan, C. C. (My '28)

Nullification
Bancroft, F: Calhoun and the South Carolina nullification movement. (D '28)

Nutrition
Eddy, W. H. Nutrition. (D '28)
Fishbein, M., ed. Your weight and how to control it. (Ap '28)
Lieb, C. W: Eat, drink and be healthy. (O '28)

Oberland. Richardson, D. M. (Je '28)
O'Brien, Mrs Edward Joseph Harrington. See Wilson, R., pseud. (Ag '28)

Occult sciences
Beck, L. A. Way of power. (Je '28)

Occupations
Diseases and hygiene
Lyon, L. S: Making a living. (D '28)
Woodbury, R. M. Workers' health and safety. (Ap '28)

Ocean
Bridges, T. C. Young folks' book of the sea. (Ag '28)
Octavia. Oxford and Asquith, M. A. (Ag '28)
Oddities. Gould, R. T: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Odorico da Pordenone
Komroff, M., ed. Contemporaries of Marco Polo. (S '28)
Office of Indian affairs. Schmeckebier, L. F: (D '28)

Oglala Indians
Standing Bear, L., (Sioux chief). My people the Sioux. (Je '28)

Ognyov, N., pseud. See Rozânov, M. G. (O '28)
"Oh, ranger!" Albright, H. M., and Taylor, J. (O '28)

Oils and fats
Alsberg, C. L., and Taylor, A. E. Fats and oils. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Ol' man Adam an' his chillun. Bradford, R. (Je '28)
Old Adam's likeness. Stebbins, L. P. (N '28)

Old age pensions
Beman, L. T., comp. Selected articles on old age pensions. (My '28)
Old and the young. Pirandello, L. (S '28)
Old Buddha. Der Ling, princess. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Old dark house. Priestley, J: B. (Ap '28)
Old days and old ways. Clark, I. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Old Deadwood days. Bennett, E. (S '28)
Old enchantment. Barretto, L. (My '28)
Old English porcelain. Honey, W. B. (N '28)
Old faith and new knowledge. Snowden, J. H: (N '28)
Old father of waters. Le May, A. (My '28)
Old Ireland. Sullivan, A. M. (D '28)
Old masters and modern art. Holmes, C: J: (Ag '28)
Old mother earth. Mather, K. F. (O '28)
Old Nick. Bronson, F. W. (Mr '28)
Old Pybus. Deeping, W. (N '28)
Old ship prints. Chatterton, E: K. (D '28)
Old swords. Gielgud, V. H: (Je '28)
Old Testament. Bible. Old Testament. Texts. (N '28)
Old-time church drama adapted. Osgood, P. E. (D '28)
Oldest biography of Spinoza. Lucas, J. M., (supposed author). (Ap '28)
Olives of endless age. Brailsford, H: N. (Mr '28)

Olmsted, Frederick Law
Olmsted, F: L. Frederick Law Olmsted, v 2. (My '28)
On a Paris roundabout. Gordon, J. (Mr '28)
On my way. Young, A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
On the king's couch. Aubry, O. (Mr '28)
On the sixth day. White, J. (Je '28)
On the trail of the veiled Tuareg. Campbell, D. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Once more, ye laurels. Cort, D: (Je '28)
One-act plays. Pirandello, L. (My '28)
The one and the other. Curle, R: H: P. (N '28)
One hundred best books. Hind, C: L: (Ag '28)
One hundred years of American railroading. Starr, J: W:, jr. (N '28)
One man's war. Rendinell, J. E: (Je '28)
Onslaught. Sutherland, J. (Ap '28)

Ontology
Moore, J. S. Rifts in the universe. (Je '28)
Santayana, G: Realm of essence. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Opals & gold. Macdonald, R. M. (Ag '28)

Open-air schools
Lewis, M. H. Adventure with children. (S '28)
Open conspiracy. Wells, H. G: (O '28)

Opera, English
Dent, E: J. Foundations of English opera. (D '28)
Opinions and argument from speeches and addresses, 1910-1927. Balfour, A. J. B. (O '28)
Opinions of Anatole France. Ségur, N. (Je '28)

Opium
Gavit, J: P. Opium. (Ap '28)
Opium problem. Terry, C: E:, and Pellens, M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Opium trade
Gavit, J: P. Opium. (Ap '28)
Terry, C: E:, and Pellens, M. Opium problem. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Opus majus. Bacon, R. (O '28)

Oratory
Barton, P. Training for speaking. (Mr '28)

Orchestra and orchestral music
Russell, C: E: American orchestra and Theodore Thomas. (Mr '28)

Orchids
White, E: A. American orchid culture. (Je '28)

Orenburgsky, Sergey Gussiev, pseud. See Gusev, S. I. (Ag '28)
Organization and administration of playgrounds and recreation. Nash, J. B. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Oriental and occidental culture. Parmelee, M. F. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Oriental exclusion. McKenzie, R. D. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Orientation
Rabaud, E. How animals find their way about. (S '28)
Origin of the state. Lowie, R. H. (My '28)
Original Jerusalem gospel. Crum, J: M. C. (N '28)
Origins of the world war. Fay, S. B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Orlando. Woolf, V. (D '28)

Orvis, Mrs Marianne (Dwight)
Orvis, M. Letters from Brook Farm, 1844-1847. (D '28)
Oscar Wilde. Cohen, L. (Ag '28)

Other days, other ways (Vieilles choses vieilles gens). Bouchard, G. (Je '28)
Other gate. Hutchinson, V. (D '28)
Other side. Burt, M. S. (S '28)
Others abide. Wolfe, H. (Ap '28)

Otters
Williamson, H: Tarka the otter. (Ap '28)
"Our Asiatic Christ." Buck, O. M. (O '28)
Our Cockney ancestors. Eng title of London in bygone days. Hare, K. (Je '28)
Our Cuban colony. Jenks, L. H. (D '28)
Our daily bread. Grove, F: P. (D '28)
Our economic system. Hayes, H. G. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Our fathers faith and ours. Schaff, D: S. (N '28)
Our federal lands. Yard, R. S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Our girls and our times. Burrell, C. B. (N '28)
Our inheritance. Baldwin, S. (O '28)
Our prehistoric ancestors. Cleland, H. F. (N '28)
Our relations to the nations of the western hemisphere. Hughes, C: E. (N '28)
Our wild animals. Moseley, E. L. (My '28)
Out of darkness. Ingram, K. (Mr '28)
Out of the ruins. Gibbs, P. H. (Mr '28)
Out of the silence. Cox, E. (D '28)
Outcrop. Evans, A. H. (Ag '28)
Outermost house. Sheahan, H: B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Outlaws
Breakenridge, W: M. Helldorado. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Outline history of Japan. Gowen, H. H: (Ap '28)
Outline of man's knowledge. Wood, C. (Mr '28)
Outline of philosophy. Eng title of Philosophy. Russell, B. A. W: (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Oxford and Asquith, Herbert Henry Asquith, 1st earl of Oxford and Asquith, H. H: A. Memories and reflections. (O '28)
Oxford book of American verse. (Ap '28)
Oxford history of the United States, 1783-1917. Morison, S: E. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Oxford poetry, 1927. (Je '28)

P. D. F. R. Irwin, I. (D '28)
The Pacific. Etherton, P. T:, and Tiltman, H. H. (Ag '28)

Pacific ocean
Etherton, P. T:, and Tiltman, H. H. The Pacific. (Ag '28)
Fox, F. Mastery of the Pacific. (O '28)
Roosevelt, N: Restless Pacific. (Je '28)
Wycherley, G: Buccaneers of the Pacific. (My '28)

Packing-house products
Clemen, R. A. By-products in the packing industry. (My '28)
Paganism in our Christianity. Weigall, A. E: P. B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Paganism in Roumanian folklore. Beza, M. (Ag '28)

Page, Walter Hines
Hendrick, B. J. Training of an American: Walter H. Page. (Ag '28)

Pageants
Kennedy, M., and Bemis, K. I. Special day pageants for little people. (D '28)

Pahlen, Peter, count

Drama
Neumann, A. The patriot. (Ag '28)

Painters, Chinese
Hackney, L. W. Guide-posts to Chinese painting. (Ag '28)

Painting
Barnes, A. C. Art in painting. (O '28)
Bulley, M. H. Simple guide to pictures and painting. (O '28)

History
Abbot, E. R. Great painters. (Mr '28)
Bulliet, C. J. Apples and madonnas. (Ap '28)
Mather, F. J. Modern painting. (Mr '28)

Painting, American
Isham, S: History of American painting. (My '28)

Painting, Chinese
Ferguson, J: C. Chinese painting. (Ag '28)
Hackney, L. W. Guide-posts to Chinese painting. (Ag '28)

Painting, English
Holmes, C: J: Old masters and modern art. (Ag '28)

Painting, Flemish
Fry, R. E. Flemish art. (Ap '28)

Painting, French
Bulliet, C. J. Apples and madonnas. (Ap '28)
Holmes, C: J: Old masters and modern art. (Ag '28)

Paintings
Abbot, E. R. Great painters. (Mr '28)

Palestine

Antiquities
Baikie, J. Glamour of Near East excavation. (S '28)

Description and travel
Fosdick, H. E. Pilgrimage to Palestine. (Mr '28)
Golding, L: Those ancient lands. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Grenfell, W. T. Labrador looks at the Orient. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lindheim, I. L. Immortal adventure. (Je '28)
Newman, E. M. Seeing Egypt and the Holy Land. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Historical geography
Browne, L: Graphic Bible. (O '28)
Fosdick, H. E. Pilgrimage to Palestine. (Mr '28)

Palludia. Burr, A. R. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Palmer, John Leslie. See Beeding, F., pseud. (Mr, O '28)

Palmistry
Laffan, M. N. Hand and the mind. (N '28)
Quinn, V. Hands up! (My '28)

Papacy

History
Shotwell, J. T., and Loomis, L. R., eds. See of Peter. (Ag '28)

Paper money. Eng title of Gettin' in society. Blake, G: (O '28)
Papillée. Cheke, M. (My '28)
Parachute. Guthrie, R. (Ap '28)
Paradoxes of legal science. Cardozo, B: N. (Ag '28)
Paraphs. Dwiggins, W: A. (S '28)
Parent-teacher association and its work. Butterworth, J. E: (D '28)

Parents
Van Waters, M. Parents on probation. (O '28)

Parents' and teachers' associations
Butterworth, J. E: Parent-teacher association and its work. (D '28)
Parents on probation. Van Waters, M. (O '28)

Paris
Gordon, J. On a Paris roundabout. (Mr '28)

Description
Adam, G: J. and P. Book about Paris. (S '28)
Andrews, C. E: Innocents of Paris. (Ag '28)
Reynolds, B. Paris with the lid lifted. (Ap '28)

Intellectual life
Huddleston, S. Paris salons, cafés, studios. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Social life and customs
Andrews, C. E: Innocents of Paris. (Ag '28)
Huddleston, S. Paris salons, cafés, studios. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Paris. Montmartre
Carco, F. Last Bohemia. (Je '28)
Paris. Quartier latin
Carco, F. Last Bohemia. (Je '28)
Paris embassy. Willson, B. (Mr '28)
Paris salons, cafés, studios. Huddleston, S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Paris with the lid lifted. Reynolds, B. (Ap '28)
Parks
Playground and recreation association of America. Parks. (D '28)
Parodies
Ford, C. Meaning no offense. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Parson Weems of the cherry-tree. Kellock, H. (My '28)
Party principles and practical politics. Lewis, S. (N '28)
Passion is the wind. Dryden, B., pseud. (D '28)
Passion, murder and mystery. Jeffries, G. M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Passion of the beast. La Marre, J. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Patches. Hawkes, C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Patent laws and legislation
Roberts, G: L. Patentability of inventions and the interpretation of patents. (N '28)
Patentability of inventions and the interpretation of patents. Roberts, G: L. (N '28)
The patriot. Neumann, A. (Ag '28)
The patriot. Walter, A. E. and H. C. (O '28)
Paul, Saint
Mygatt, T. D., and Witherspoon, F. Glorious company. (My '28)
Norwood, R. W. Heresy of Antioch. (Ag '28)
Pavements
Bateman, J: H. Highway engineering. (O '28)
Bauer, E: E. Highway materials. (O '28)
Pax, the adventurous horse. Hodder, M. W. S. (O '28)
Peace
Brailsford, H: N. Olives of endless age. (Mr '28)
Brierly, J. L. Law of nations. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Page, K. Dollars and world peace. (Ap '28)
Price, B. The world talks it over. (Ap '28)
World alliance for international friendship through the churches. Building international goodwill. (N '27)
Peace conference, 1919
House, E: M. Intimate papers of Colonel House, v 3-4. (D '28)
Miller, D: H. Drafting of the covenant. (N '28)
Peace in Europe. Poliakoff, V. (My '28)
Peacocks. Herron, V. (Ap '28)
Peaks and people of the Adirondacks. Carson, R. M. L. (My '28)
Peasantry
Poland
Thomas, W: I:, and Znaniecki, F. Polish peasant in Europe and America. (Je '28)
Russia
Williams, A. R. The Russian land. (Ap '28)
Peasants. Bercovici, K. (My '28)
Peasants & potters. Peake, H. J: E:, and Fleure, H. J: (Je '28)
Pedestrian papers. Hinchman, W. S. (D '28)
Peel, Sir Robert
Ramsay, A. A. W. Sir Robert Peel. (Ag '28)
Peggy by request. Dell, E. M. (Je '28)
Pelton, C: J., pseud. See Jacobs, C: P. (Ag '28)
Peltzer case. Harry, G. (N '28)
Pen and ink passion. Herbert, A. (S '28)
Pen drawing
Ellwood, G. M. Art of pen drawing. (S '28)
Lutz, E. G: Practical pen drawing. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Penelope's man. Erskine, J: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Penelope's web. Comstock, H. T. (O '28)
Pennagan Place. Chase, E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Pennie. Cobb, B. B. and E. (S '28)
Penny show. Davies, M. C. (S '28)
People of the twilight. Jenness, D. (O '28)
Pepys, Elizabeth (St Michel) (Mrs Samuel Pepys)
Fiction
Brunner, E. B. "My wife, poor wretch." (Mr '28)
Pepys, Samuel
Ponsonby, A. A: W: H. Samuel Pepys. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Drama
Fagan, J. B. And so to bed. (Mr '28)
Perhaps I am. Bok, E: W: (Je '28)
Period lighting fixtures. Gould, G: G. and F. (D '28)
Perishable goods. Yates, D. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Persia
Description and travel
Bell, G. L. Persian pictures. (D '28)
Forbes-Leith, F. A. C. Checkmate. (Ap '28)
Economic conditions
Sheean, V. New Persia. (Ap '28)
Foreign relations
Sheean, V. New Persia. (Ap '28)
Politics and government
Sheean, V. New Persia. (Ap '28)
Social life and customs
Forbes-Leith, F. A. C. Checkmate. (Ap '28)
Persian gulf
Wilson, A. T. Persian gulf. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Persian pictures. Bell, G. L. (D '28)
Personal recollections of the Civil war. Gibbon, J: (F '29) (1928 Annual) Personality
Cobb, I. G. Glands of destiny. (My '28)
Garnett, A. C. Instinct and personality. (N '28)
Roback, A. A. Psychology of character. (Ag '28)
Perversity. Carco, F. (O '28)
Peter, Saint, apostle
Shotwell, J. T., and Loomis, L. R. eds. See of Peter. (Ag '28)
Peter Pan. Barrie, J. M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Peter Pocket. Justus, M. (My '28)
Petroleum
Gruse, W: A. Petroleum and its products. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Petroleum and its products. Gruse, W: A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Petroleum industry and trade
Denny, L. We fight for oil. (S '28)
Petty, Sir William
Petty, W: Petty papers. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Petty papers. Petty, W: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Pharmacology
Cohen, S. S., and Githens, T: S. Pharmacotherapeutics, materia medica and drug action. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Pharmacotherapeutics, materia medica and drug action. Cohen, S. S., and Githens, T: S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Philippine Islands
Hart, R. W. Philippines today. (Ag '28)
Philippines today. Hart, R. W. (Ag '28)
Phillida. Reid, H. S. (O '28)
Phillips, Gerald William. See Huntington, J:, pseud. (D '28)
Phillips academy, Andover
Fuess, C. M. Men of Andover. (S '28)
Philosophy
Chevalier, J. Henri Bergson. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Dewey, J: Philosophy of John Dewey. (D '28)
Russell, B. A. W: Philosophy. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Santayana, G: Realm of essence. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Ward, J. Essays in philosophy. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Wood, C. Outline of man's knowledge. (Mr '28)

Philosophy, Ancient
Brett, G: S. Psychology, ancient and modern. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Gilbert, G: H. Greek thought in the New Testament. (S '28)
Scoon, R. M. Greek philosophy before Plato. (D '28)

Philosophy, Chinese
Beck, L. A. Story of oriental philosophy. (O '28)

Philosophy, English
Widgery, A. G. Contemporary thought of Great Britain. (My '28)

Philosophy, Hindu
Beck, L. A. Story of oriental philosophy. (O '28)

Philosophy, Modern
Benda, J. Treason of the intellectuals (La trahison des clercs). (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Buchanan, S. M. Possibility. (Je '28)
Lewis, W. Time and western man. (Mr '28)
Schaub, E: L., comp. and ed. Philosophy today. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Addresses, essays, lectures
Spaulding, E: G. What am I? (N '28)

History
Dresser, H. W. History of modern philosophy. (S '28)
Evans, D. L. New realism and old reality. (S '28)

Philosophy and religion
Russell, H: N. Fate and freedom. (My '28)
Philosophy of John Dewey. Dewey, J: (D '28)
Philosophy today. Schaub, E: L., comp. and ed. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Phoinix. Sims, A. (O '28)
Photochemical processes. Kistiakowsky, G: B. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Photochemistry
Kistiakowsky, G: B. Photochemical processes. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Photographic art secrets. Nutting, W. (Mr '28)

Photography, Aerial
Reeves, D. M. Aerial photographs. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Photography, Artistic
Nutting, W. Photographic art secrets. (Mr '28)

Photography, Military
Reeves, D. M. Aerial photographs. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Photography of animals
Champion, F: W. With a camera in Tigerland. (Je '28)
Finley, W: L. and I. Wild animal pets. (Ag '28)
Green, F. Martin Johnson, lion hunter. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Johnson, M. E. Safari. (My '28)
Physical chemistry and biophysics for students of biology and medicine. Steel, M. (O '2

Physical education and training
Rodgers, M. A. Handbook of stunts. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Physical measurements
Campbell, N. R. Account of the principles of measurement and calculation. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Physicians
Barker, L. F. Young man and medicine. (O '28)
Collins, J. Doctor looks at marriage and medicine. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Physics
Bose, J. C. Collected physical papers. (O '28)
Bridgman, P. W. Logic of modern physics. (My '28)
Whyte, L. L. Archimedes. (Je '28)

History
Crew, H: Rise of modern physics. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Philosophy
Russell, B. A. W: Philosophy. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Physiology
Clendening, L. Human body. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Haggard, H. W. What you should know about health and disease. (Ap '28)
Hill, A. V. Living machinery. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
MacCurdy, J: T. Common principles in psychology & physiology. (N '28)
Mottram, V. H: Physiology. (Ag '28)
Pictorial golf. Martin, H. B. (Ag '28)
Picture book of travel. Hader, B. and E. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Pigsties with spires. Garry, G. (O '28)

Pilate, Pontius
Crozier, W: P., ed. Letters of Pontius Pilate. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Pilgrimage to Palestine. H. E. Fosdick. (Mr '28)
Pilgrims of adversity. McFee, W: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Pilgrims of the impossible. Dawson, C. W: (S '28)

Pilkington, Lætitia (Van Lewen) (Mrs Matthew Pilkington)
Pilkington, L. Memoirs, 1712-1750. (My '28)
Pillar Mountain. Brand, M. (D '28)
Pilots and pathfinders. Nida, W: L: and S. H. (N '28)
Pinfold. Fletcher, J. S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Pioneer twins. Perkins, L. (Mr '28)
Pioneers of plant study. Hawks, E., and Boulger, G: S. (N '28)

Piozzi, Mrs Hester Lynch (Salusbury) Thrale
Merritt, E: P. True story of the so-called love letters of Mrs Piozzi. (O '28)

Pirates
Gollomb, J. Pirates, old and new. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Wycherley, G: Buccaneers of the Pacific. (My '28)
Pirate's face. Richardson, N. (Ag '28)
Plain Jane. Herbert, A. P. (Mr '28)
Plains of Abraham. Curwood, J. O. (Ag '28)
Plant life and its romance. Weiss, F: E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Plant lore
Porteous, A. Forest folklore, mythology, and romance. (S '28)

Plants
Evolution
Weiss, F: E. Plant life and its romance. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Plants in art
Young, A. Trees at night. (Mr '28)
Plastic age of the Gospel. Zenos, A. C. (Je '28)

Plate-printing
Neale, H. S. Art of plate printing. (N '28)

Playgrounds
Nash, J. B. Organization and administration of playgrounds and recreation. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Playground and recreation association of America. Parks. (D '28)
Plays. Büchner, G. (My '28)
Plays of Beaumont and Fletcher. Oliphant, E. H: C. (Mr '28)
Plays of negro life. Locke, A. Le R., and Gregory, M., eds. (Je '28)
Plays, players, playhouses. Kraft, I. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Pleasant Jim. Brand, M. (Ap '28)
Pluck. King, B. (N '28)

Plumbing
Babbitt, H. E. Plumbing. (O '28)

Plurality of worlds
Younghusband, F. E: Life in the stars. (D '28)
Poems. Calkins, C. (My '28)
Poems. Canton, W: (Mr '28)
Poems and letters. Marvell, A. (Mr '28)
Poems for the children's hour. Bouton, J., comp. (Mr '28)
Poems in praise of practically nothing. Hoffenstein, S: (Je '28)
Poet of Galilee. Leonard, W: E. (S '28)

Poetical works. Denham, J: (O '28)

Poetry
Ker, W: P. Form and style in poetry. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Prescott, F: C. Poetry & myth. (Je '28)
Riding, L. Contemporaries and snobs. (N '28)
Riding, L., and Graves, R. Survey of modernist poetry. (N '28)
Rylands, G: H. W. Words and poetry. (S '28)
Wolfe, H. Dialogues & monologues. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Collections
Clark, T: C., and Gillespie, E. A. comps. Quotable poems. (O '28)

History and criticism
Auslander, J., and Hill, F. E. Winged horse. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Murray, G. Classical tradition in poetry. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Poetry (individual authors)
Austin, M. Children sing in the far West. (D '28)
Bacon, L. Legend of Quincibald. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Bellamann, H: Upward pass. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Benét, S. V. John Brown's body. (S '28)
Blanding, D. Vagabond's house. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Blunden, E. C: Retreat. (N '28)
Bodenheim, M. King of Spain. (Ag '28)
Calkins, C. Poems. (My '28)
Canton, W: Poems. (Mr '28)
Chilton, E. C., and others. Fire and sleet and candlelight. (Ag '28)
Clairmont, R. Quintillions. (Je '28)
Colum, P. Creatures. (My '28)
Coppard, A. E. Collected poems. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Crane, N. C. R. Venus invisible. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Cullen, C. Ballad of the Brown girl. (Ag '28)
Davies, M. C. Penny show. (S '28)
Dillon, G: Boy in the wind. (Mr '28)
Dodd, L. W. Great enlightenment. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Evans, A. H. Outcrop. (Ag '28)
Foulke, W: D. Songs of eventide. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Frost, E. Lost lyrist. (D '28)
Frost, R. West-running brook. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Garvin, V. G. Dedication. (N '28)
Gessler, C. Kanaka moon. (Ap '28)
Gibson, W. W. Golden room. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Gilbert, W. Joy ride. (Ag '28)
Guiney, L. I. Happy ending. (Ap '28)
Guthrie, R. World too old. (Ap '28)
Hardy, T: Winter words. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Herbert, A. P. Plain Jane. (Mr '28)
Hill, F. E. Stone dust. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Hillyer, R. S. Seventh hill. (My '28)
Hoffenstein, S: Poems in praise of practically nothing. (Je '28)
Jenkins, O. Heavenly bodies. (D '28)
Laing, A. K. Fool's errand. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Lowell, A. Selected poems. (Ag '28)
MacKaye, P. Gobbler of God. (S '28)
Malam, C: Spring plowing. (S '28)
March, J. M. Set-up. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
March, J. M. Wild party. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Marvell, A. Poems and letters. (Mr '28)
Masefield, J: Midsummer night. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Maynard, T. Exile. (Ag '28)
Meeker, M. Color of water. (S '28)
Millay, E. St V. Buck in the snow. (D '28)
Miller, M. B. Songs of infancy. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Monro, H. Earth for sale. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Moore, V. Sweet water and bitter. (D '28)
More, B. J. Myrtella. (N '28)
Morgan, E. The eel. (N '28)
Morley, C. D. Toulemonde. (S '28)
Morton, D: Nocturnes and autumnals. (O '28)
Novák, S. R. Winds from the moon. (N '28)
Oliver, W. Sky-rider. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Olson, T. Stranger and afraid. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
O'Sheel, S. Jealous of dead leaves. (S '28)
Parker, D. Sunset gun. (S '28)
Peabody, J. P. Collected poems. (My '28)
Pinckney, J. Sea-drinking cities. (Ap '28)
Ritter, M. T. Wind out of Betelgeuse. (S '28)
Robinson, E. A. Collected poems. (Mr '28)
Robinson, E. A. Sonnets. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sandburg, C. Good morning, America. (D '28)
Schneider, I. Temptation of Anthony. (Ag '28)
Sitwell, O. England reclaimed. (Ap '28)
Smith, C. P. Lost address. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sterling, G: Sonnets to Craig. (N '28)
Tabb, J: B. Poetry. (N '28)
Taggard, G. Travelling standing still. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Tagore, R. Fireflies. (Je '28)
Tate, A. Mr Pope. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Untermeyer, L: Burning bush. (Ag '28)
Van Doren, M. Now the sky, & other poems. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Vinal, H. Stranger in heaven. (Ap '28)
Ward, C. Saga of Cap'n Iohn Smith. (S '28)
Warner, S. T. Time importuned. (O '28)
Weaver, J: Van A. To youth. (O '28)
Whaler, J. Hale's pond. (My '28)
Widdemer, M. Collected poems. (D '28)
Wilder, A. N. Arachne. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Winters, Y. Bare hills. (Ag '28)
Wylie, E. H. Trivial breath. (S '28)
Yeats, W: B. The tower. (Ag '28)
Poetry & myth. Prescott, F: C. (Je '28)

Poets, English
Judson, A. C., ed. Seventeenth-century lyrics. (Je '28)
Kemp, H., ed. Bronze treasury. (Ap '28)

Poincaré, Raymond
Poincaré, R. Memoirs of Raymond Poincaré (1913-1914). (N '28)
Point counter point. Huxley, A. L. (D '28)
Points west. Bower, B. M., pseud. (Mr '28)
Poison shadows. Le Queux, W: (My '28)

Poland

History
Fisher, H. H:, and Brooks, S. America and the new Poland. (S '28)

Relations (general) with United States
Fisher, H. H:, and Brooks, S. America and the new Poland. (S '28)

Polar regions in the twentieth century. Greely, A. W. (D '28)

Poles

Social conditions
Thomas, W: I:, and Znaniecki, F. Polish peasant in Europe and America. (Je '28)

Poles in the United States
Thomas, W: I:, and Znaniecki, F. Polish peasant in Europe and America. (Je '28)
Polish peasant in Europe and America. Thomas, W: I:, and Znaniecki, F. (Je '28)
Political behavior. Kent, F. R. (O '28)
Political handbook of the world. Council on foreign relations. (N '28)

Political parties
Council on foreign relations. Political handbook of the world. (N '28)

United States
Beard, C: A. American party battle. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bruce, H. R. American parties and politics. (My '28)
Lewis, S. Party principles and practical politics. (N '28)

Political pluralism. Hsiao, K. C. (Ap '28)

Political science
Fyfe, H. H. Archon. (Je '28)
Hsiao, K. C. Political pluralism. (Ap '28)

History
Gettell, R. G. History of American political thought. (D '28)
Swift, L. B. How we got our liberties. (Ag '28)
Thomas, E. D. Chinese political thought. (Je '28)
Politicians and moralists of the nineteenth century. Faguet, E. (Je '28)
Politics, Practical
Kent, F. R. Political behavior. (O '28)
Moley, R. Practice of politics. (Ag '28)
Rice, S. A. Quantitative methods in politics. (D '28)
Polly Patchwork. Field, R. L. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Pomona. De Selincourt, B. (S '28)
Poor gentleman. Beith, J: H. (Ap '28)
Poor little fool. Oursler, F. (Ag '28)
Popes
History
Shotwell, J. T., and Loomis, L. R., eds. See of Peter. (Ag '28)
Portage, Wisconsin. Gale, Z. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Porter, Gene (Stratton) (Mrs Charles Darwin Porter)
Meehan, J. Lady of the Limberlost (Gene Stratton-Porter). (N '28)
Portrait invisible. Gollomb, J. (Mr '28
Portrait of a banker: James Stillman. Burr, A. R. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Portrait of a man as governor: Alfred E. Smith. Dickinson, T: H. (Je '28)
Portrait of Lady Mary Montagu. Barry, I. (My '28)
Portraits of the new century (the first ten years). Thompson, E: R. (Ag '28)
Possibility
Buchanan, S. M. Possibility. (Je '28)
Possible worlds. Haldane, J: B. S. (My '28)
Post-war mind of Germany, and other European studies. Herford, C: H. (My '28)
Postponing strikes. Selekman, B. M. (My '28)
Posture
Bennett, H: E. School posture and seating. (N '28)
Pottery
Honey, W. B. Old English porcelain. (N '28)
Wren, H: and D. Handcraft pottery. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Formulae, tables, etc.
Andrews, A. I. Ceramic tests and calculations. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Pottery, Ancient
Peake, H. J: E:, and Fleure, H. J: Peasants & potters. (Je '28)
Poultry
Hurd, L: M. Practical poultry-farming. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Power control. Raushenbush, H. S., and Laidler, H. W. (N '28)
Practical and technical electricity. Wolber, J. G., and Rose, O: K. (N '28)
Practical application of sociology. Shenton, H. N. (O '28)
Practical book of Italian, Spanish, and Portuguese furniture. Eberlein, H. D., and Ramsdell, R. W. (My '28)
Practical pen drawing. Lutz, E. G: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Practical poultry-farming. Hurd, L: M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Practical teacher. Holley, C: E. (My '28)
Practice of politics. Moley, R. (Ag '28)
Pragmatic revolt in politics. Elliott, W: Y. (D '28)
Pragmatism
Elliott, W: Y. Pragmatic revolt in politics. (D '28)
Hook, S. Metaphysics of pragmatism. (N '28)
Preaching
Luccock, H. E: Preaching values in new translations of the New Testament. (O '28)
Richardson, C. F. English preachers and preaching, 1640-1670. (Ag '28)
Preaching values in new translations of the New Testament. Luccock, H. E: (O '28)
Precious stones
Macdonald, R. M. Opals & gold. (Ag '28)
Prefaces, introductions and other uncollected papers. France, A. (Ap '28)
Prelude to a rope for Myer. Steni, L. (D '28)
Prelude to battle. Gottfried, M. (Je '28)
Pre-restoration stage studies. Lawrence, W: J: (Ag '28)
Present-day dilemmas in religion. Gilkey, C: W. (S '28)
Present-day Russia. Lee, I. L. (Je '28)
A president is born. Hurst, F. (Mr '28)
Presidency vs. Hoover. Crowther, S: (S '28)
Presidential years, 1787-1860. Minnigerode, M. (Ag '28)
Presidents
United States
Moran, T: F. American presidents. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Stoddard, H: L. As I knew them. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
White, W: A. Masks in a pageant. (N '28)
Election
Merriam, C: E:, and Overacker, L. Primary elections. (O '28)
Minnigerode, M. Presidential years, 1787-1860. (Ag '28)
Powers and duties
Crowther, S: Presidency vs. Hoover. (S '28)
Presland, John, pseud. See Skelton, G. (N '28)
Press
Ockham, D: Stentor. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Great Britain
Ockham, D: Stentor. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Willis, I. C. England's holy war. (S '28)
United States
Bent, S. Strange bedfellows. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Pressure politics. Odegard, P: H. (S '28)
Preston, Harry
Preston, H. Memories. (N '28)
Prevailing winds. Barnes, M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Priests & kings. Peake, H. J: E:, and Fleure, H. J: (Je '28)
Primaries
Merriam, C: E:, and Overacker, L. Primary elections. (O '28)
Primary elections. Merriam, C: E:, and Overacker, L. (O '28)
Primitive art. Boas, F. (S '28)
Prince, Morton
Taylor, W: S. Morton Prince and abnormal psychology. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
A princess comes to our town. Fyleman, R. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Princesses, ladies and salonnières of the reign of Louis XV. Latour T. L: (N '28)
Principles of abnormal psychology. Conklin, E. S. (My '28)
Principles of factory organization and management. Davis, R. C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Principles of marketing. Maynard, H. H., and others. (D '28)
Principles of money and banking. Kilborne, R. D. (O '28)
Printers
Oswald, J: C. History of printing. (N '28)
Printing
History
McKerrow, R. B. Introduction to bibliography (Mr '28)
McMurtrie, D. C. Golden book. (My '28)
Maxwell, M. Story of books up through the ages. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Oswald, J: C. History of printing. (N '28)

Printing—History—Continued

France

Johnson, A. F. French sixteenth century printing. (O '28)

Italy

Orcutt, W: D. The book in Italy during the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. (D '28)

Specimens

Young, F. H. Advertising layout. (D '28)

Printing, Practical
Allen, E. W: Printing for the journalist. (O '28)
Printing for the journalist. Allen, E. W: (O '28)
Prisoner in the opal. Mason, A. E: W. (F '28) (1928 Annual)
Prisoners all. Graf, O. M. (N '28)

Prisons
Tasker, R. J. Grimhaven. (D '28)

Pennsylvania

Barnes, H. E. Evolution of penology in Pennsylvania. (My '28)
Prize stories of 1927. O. Henry memorial award. (Mr '28)

Probabilities
Fry, T. C. Probability and its engineering uses. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Probability and its engineering uses. Fry, T. C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Problem of industrial education. Mays, A. B. (D '28)
Problem of lay-analyses. Freud, S. (Ap '28)
Problem of the Christian state. Haas, J: A: W (O '28)
Problem of vocational guidance. Myers, G: E. (D '28)
Problems in advertising. Borden, N. H. (My '28)
Problems in classroom method. Waples, D. (J '29) (1928 Annual)
Problems in psychopathology. Mitchell, T: W. (Ag '28)
Problems of peace. Geneva institute of international relations. (Ag '28)
Problems of social well-being. Bossard, J. H. S. (Je '28)
Problems of the family. Goodsell, W. (D '28)
Process of group thinking. Elliott, H. S. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Procession to Tyburn. McAdoo, W: (Mr '28)

Prodigal son

Fiction

Tucker, L: When he came to himself. (S '28)

Profession, Choice of
Barker, L. F. Young man and medicine. (O '28)
Myers, G: E. Problem of vocational guidance. (D '28)
Rodger, E. G. Careers. (Ag '28)
Professional codes. Landis, B. Y. (My '28)

Professional ethics
Landis, B. Y. Professional codes. (My '28)
Professional guest. Garrett, W: A. (N '28)
Professor's poison. Gordon, N. (My '28)
The professor's wife. Imbs, B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Profits in bank stocks. Woodward, W. H. (Ap '28)

Progress
Barnes, H. E. Living in the twentieth century. (D '28)
Beard, C: A., ed. Whither mankind. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Gibbs, P. H. Day after to-morrow. (My '28)
Page, K., ed. Recent gains in American civilization. (D '28)
Progressive democracy. New York (State) Governor (Alfred E. Smith). (S '28)

Prohibited books
Ernst, M. L., and Seagle, W: To the pure . . . (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Prohibition
Darrow, C. S., and Yarros, V: S. Prohibition mania. (Mr '28)
Feldman, H. Prohibition. (Ap '28)
McAdoo, W: G. Challenge. (N '28)
McBain, H. L. Prohibition, legal and illegal. (D '28)
Steuart, J. Wayne Wheeler, dry boss. (O '28)
Prohibition, legal and illegal. McBain, H. L. (D '28)
Prohibition mania. Darrow, C. S., and Yarros, V: S. (Mr '28)
Promised land. Parker, G. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Propaganda
Bernays, E: L. Propaganda. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lasswell, H. D. Propaganda technique in the World war. (My '28)

Propaganda, British
Willis, I. C. England's holy war. (S '28)
Propaganda technique in the World war. Lasswell, H. D. (My '28)
Proper studies. Huxley, A. L. (Ap '28)
Properties of silica. Sosman, R. B. (Ag '28)
Prophets true and false. Villard, O. G. (S '28)

Prospecting
Macdonald, R. M. Opals & gold. (Ag '28)

Prostitution
Londres, A. Road to Buenos Ayres. (Je '28)
Protection of minorities. Mair, L. P. (D '28)
Protective metallic coatings. Rawdon, H: S. (N '28)

Protestant Episcopal church
Slattery, C L: Following Christ. (Je '28)

Protestantism
Schaff, D: S. Our fathers faith and ours. (N '28)
Provincial society, 1690-1763. Adams, J. T. (Mr '28)
Prunes and prism. Grandgent, C: H. (My '28)

Pryde, Anthony, pseud. See Weekes, A. R. (Ag '28)

Psychoanalysis
Bagby, E. Psychology of personality. (N '28)
Burrow, T. Social basis of consciousness. (N '28)
Dummer E. S., ed. The unconscious. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Fishbein, M., and White, W: A., eds. Why men fail. (Ag '28)
Freud, A. Introduction to the technic of child analysis. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Freud, S. Future of an illusion. (D '28)
Freud, S. Problem of lay-analyses. (Ap '28)
Gordon, R. G. Neurotic personality. (Ag '28)
Mitchell, T: W. Problems in psychopathology. (Ag '28)
Schmalhausen, S: D. Why we misbehave. (N '28)

Psychological care of infant and child. Watson, J: B. and R. A. (Je '28)
Psychological foundations of management. Metcalf, H: C., ed. (D '28)

Psychology
Adler, A. Understanding human nature. (O '28)
Bartlett, F: C: Psychology and the soldier. (My '28)
Coleman, L. R., and Commins, S. Psychology. (O '28)
Ellis, R. S. Psychology of individual differences. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Hollingworth, H. L. Psychology. (Ag '28)
Leary, D. B. That mind of yours. (My '28)
MacCurdy, J: T. Common principles in psychology & physiology. (N '28)
Overstreet, H. A. About ourselves. (Ap '28)
Piéron, H. Thought and brain. (My '28)
Randolph, V. A B C of psychology. (Ap '28)
Russell, B. A. W: Philosophy. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Vaughan, W. F. Lure of superiority. (S '28)
Weld, H. P. Psychology as science. (O '28)
Wickham, H. Misbehaviorists. (S '28)

History

Brett, G: S. Psychology, ancient and modern. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Juvenile literature
Downey, J. E. Kingdom of the mind. (My '28)

Psychology, Applied
Griffith, C. R. Psychology and athletics. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Metcalf, H: C., ed. Psychological foundations of management. (D '28)
Nixon, H. K. Psychology for the writer. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Smith, E. D. Psychology for executives. (S '28)
Thouless, R. H: Control of the mind. (Ag '28)
Wiggam, A. E: Exploring your mind with the psychologists. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Psychology, Comparative
Gates, G. I. Modern cat. (S '28)

Psychology, Educational
Cameron, E: H. Educational psychology. (Je '28)
Cobb, S. New leaven. (O '28)
Naumburg, M. Child and the world. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Spearman, C: E: Abilities of man. (Je '28)

Psychology, Pathological
Brasol, B. L. Elements of crime. (Je '28)
Conklin, E. S. Principles of abnormal psychology. (My '28)
Gordon, R. G. Neurotic personality. (Ag '28)
Grimberg, L. Emotion and delinquency. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Overstreet, H. A. About ourselves. (Ap '28)
Schmalhausen, S: D. Why we misbehave. (N '28)
Taylor, W: S. Morton Prince and abnormal psychology. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Wallin, J: E: W. Clinical and abnormal psychology. (S '28)

Psychology, Physiological
Gesell, A. L. Infancy and human growth. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Parshley, H. M. Science and good behavior. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Thorndike, E: L., and others. Adult learning. (N '28)
Psychology, ancient and modern. Brett, G: S. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Psychology and athletics. Griffith, C. R. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Psychology and the soldier. Bartlett, F: C: (My '28)
Psychology as science. Weld, H. P. (O '28)
Psychology for executives. Smith, E. D. (S '28)
Psychology for the writer. Nixon, H. K. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Psychology of character. Roback, A. A. (Ag '28)
Psychology of individual differences. Ellis, R. S. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Psychology of infancy and early childhood. Arlitt, A. H. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Psychology of language. Pillsbury, W. B., and Meader, C. L. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Psychology of personality. Bagby, E. (N '28)
Psychology of socialism. Man, H: de. (O '28)
Public expenditure. Guest, H. W. (Ap '28)

Public health
Bossard, J. H. S. Problems of social well-being. (Je '28)
Dublin, L: I. Health and wealth. (Ag '28)
Ehlers, V: M., and Steel, E. W: Municipal and rural sanitation. (Ap '28)
Haines, A. J. Health work in soviet Russia. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Moore, H. H. American medicine and the people's health. (Mr '28)
Newman, G: Interpreters of nature. (Ap '28)
Public library administration. Lowe, J: A. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Public opinion
Bernays, E: L. Propaganda. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Rice, S. A. Quantitative methods in politics. (D '28)

Public schools
United States
Judd, C: H. Unique character of American secondary education. (D '28)
Washburne, C. W., and Stearns, M. M. Better schools. (O '28)

Public speaking
Berton, P. Training for speaking. (Mr '28)

Public utilities
Hungerford, E: Story of public utilities. (O '28)
Raushenbush, H. S., and Laidler, H. W. Power control. (N '28)

Publicity
Routzahn, M. B. and E. G. Publicity for social work. (O '28)
Publicity for social work. Routzahn, M. B. and E. G. (O '28)

Punishment
Barnes, H. E. Evolution of penology in Pennsylvania. (My '28)

Puppet plays
Mills, W. H., and Dunn, L. M. Marionettes masks and shadows. (My '28)
Stoddard, A., and Sarg, T. Book of marionette plays. (Je '28)
Pure in heart. Kessel, J. (S '28)

Puritans
Lawrence, H: W. Not-quite Puritans. (D '28)
Pursuit. Forbes, R. (O '28)

Püterschein, Hermann, pseud. See Dwiggins, W: A. (S '28)

Puzzles
Wren, L., and McKay, R. Baffle book. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Pyrenees
Elsner, E. Romance of the Basque country and the Pyrenees. (Je '28)

Q, pseud. See Quiller-Couch, A. T: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Quantitative methods in politics. Rice, S. A. (D '28)
Quantum and its interpretation. Allen, H. S. (D '28)

Quantum theory
Allen, H. S. Quantum and its interpretation. (D '28)
Birtwistle, G: New quantum mechanics. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Quarry wood. Shepherd, N. (D '28)
Quartz eye. Webster, H: K. (N '28)
Queen of clubs. Footner, H. (My '28)
Queer books. Pearson, E. L. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Queer street. Wiley, J: (Je '28)
Questing cook. Gottfried. R. A. J. (Ap '28)
Quex. Jerrold, D. (My '28)
Quicksand. Larsen, M. (Je '28)
Quiet cities. Hergesheimer, J. (Ag '28)
Quintillions. Clairmont, R. (Je '28)
Quotable poems. Clark, T: C., and Gillespie, E. A., comps. (O '28)

Quotations
Grey of Fallodon, P., comp. White wallet. (D '28)

Race. Aston, M. G. (N '28)
Race and civilization. Hertz, F. O: (Je '28)
Race contact. Muntz, E. E: (Ap '28)

Race problems
Hertz, F. O: Race and civilization. (Je '28)
Muntz, E. E: Race contact. (Ap '28)
Taylor, G. Environment and race. (Mr '28)
Rachel. Agate, J. E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Racial elements of European history. Gunther, H. F. K. (My '28)
Racket. Cormack, B. (S '28)
Radio amateur's handbook. Collins, A. F: (Mr '28)

Radio communication
Burns, E. E. Radio. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Clarkson, R. P. Hysterical background of radio. (Ag '28)
Collins, A. F: Radio amateur's handbook. (Mr '28)
Dunlap, O. E. Story of radio. (Mr '28)
Manly, H. P. Drake's radio cyclopedia. (My '28)
Palmer, L. S. Wireless principles and practice. (N '28)

Radio receivers

Repairing

Haan, E. R. Radio trouble-shooting. (N '28)

Radio trouble-shooting. Haan, E. R. (N '28)
A-rafting on the Mississip'. Russell, C: E: (D '28)
Raiders of the deep. Thomas, L. J. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Railroad labor board. Wolf, H. D. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Railroads

History

Holland, R. S. Historic railroads. (Ap '28)

United States

Holland, R. S. Historic railroads. (Ap '28)
Starr, J: W:, jr. One hundred years of American railroading. (N '28)
Wolf, H. D. Railroad labor board. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Rainbow round my shoulder. Odum, H. W. (My '28)

Raleigh, Sir Walter
Waldman, M. Sir Walter Raleigh. (Je '28)
Rambles in high Savoy. Gos, F. M. E. (My '28)
Rampant age. Carr, R. S. (Je '28)

Ranch life
Collins, H. E. Warpath & cattle trail. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
French, W: Some recollections of a Western ranchman. (My '28)
Santee, R. Cowboy. (D '28)
Zora, L. Sawdust and solitude. (My '28)
Rank and file. Roosevelt, T. (Je '28)

Rasputin, Grigorĭĭ Efimovich
Fülöp-Miller, R. Rasputin, the holy devil. (D '28)
Rasputin, the holy devil. Fülöp-Miller, R. (D '28)
Rate of living. Pearl, R. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Rationalism
Spaulding, E: G. What am I? (N '28)
Raymond, E. T., pseud. See Thompson, E: R. (Ag '28)

Reading, Rufus Daniel Isaacs, 1st marquess of
Street, C. J: C: Lord Reading. (N '28)
Readings in American government. Pollock, J. K., ed. (Ag '28)
Readings in sociology. Davis, J., and Barnes, H. E., eds. (Ag '28)
Real log cabin. Aldrich, C. D. (O '28)
Real situation in Russia. Trotsky, L., pseud. (O '28)

Realism
Evans, D. L. New realism and old reality. (S '28)

Reality
Leeuw, J. J. van der. Conquest of illusion. (N '28)
Thomas, E. E: Ethical basis of reality. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Realm of essence. Santayana, G: (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Reasoning
Bogoslovsky, B. B. Technique of controversy. (O '28)
Piaget, J., and others. Judgment and reasoning in the child. (N '28)
Recent gains in American civilization. Page, K., ed. (D '28)
Recollections of Rupert Brooke. Browne, M. (Je '28)
Recollections of the Irish war. Figgis, D. (Mr '28)

Reconstruction (European war)
Burns, C. D. 1918-1928. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Germany

Danton, G: H: Germany ten years after. (Je '28)

Poland

Fisher, H. H:, and Brooks, S. America and the new Poland. (S '28)

Record flights. Chamberlin, C. D. (O '28)
Red Barbara. O'Flaherty, L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Red cape. Varble, R. M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
The red dwarf. Eng title of Draycott murder mystery. Thynne, M. (O '28)
Red horses. Riesenberg, F. (S '28)
Red ivory. Smith, W. H. (N '28)
Red knight of Germany. Gibbons, F. P. (Mr '28)
Red lily and Chinese jade. Miln, L. (O '28)
Red Russia after ten years. London, G: (N '28)
Red rust. Cannon, C. J. (Ap '28)
Red scar. Wynne, A. (N '28)
Redemption Island. Hale, C: M., and Simpson, E. J: (O '28)
Redemption of Tycho Brahe. Brod, M. (S '28)
Redwood and gold. Gregory, J. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Reeds and mud (Cañas y barro). Blasco Ibáñez, V. (Je '28)

Reference books

Bibliography

Van Hoesen, H: B., and Walter, F. K. Bibliography. (N '28)

Reformation
Belloc, H. How the reformation happened. (S '28)
Coulton, G: G. Art and the reformation. (O '28)
Reformed church pulpit. Stamm, F: K., comp. (My '28)

Reformers
Seldes, G. V. Stammering century. (N '28)
Reginald. Munro, H. H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Regional planning
MacKaye, B. New exploration. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Reign of the house of Rothschild. Corti, E. C. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Reinspecting Victorian religion. Atkins, G. G. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Rejected Messiah. Polĭakoff, S. L. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Rejections of 1927. Baker, C: H., jr., ed. (O '28)

Rejuvenation
Voronoff, S. Conquest of life. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Relativity (physics)
Abro, A.d'. Evolution of scientific thought from Newton to Einstein. (S '28)
Religio militis. Hopkinson, A. (N '28)

Religion
Clutton-Brock, A. More essays on religion. (My '28)
Diamond, H. M. Religion and the commonweal. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Gilkey, C: W. Present-day dilemmas in religion. (S '28)
Hopkinson, A. Religio militis. (N '28)
Huxley, J. S. Religion without revelation. (Ap '28)
Rohrbaugh, L: G. Science of religion. (Ag '28)
Wood, C. Outline of man's knowledge. (Mr '28)

History

Windle, B. C. A. Religions past and present. (Ap '28)

Philosophy

Mahoney, C. K. Religious mind. (My '28)
Wieman, H: N. Wrestle of religion with truth. (Je '28)

Psychology

Freud, S. Future of an illusion. (D '28)
Kupky, O. Religious development of adolescents. (O '28)

Mahoney, C. K. Religious mind. (Ag '28)
Sanctis, S. de. Religious conversion. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Woodburne, A. S. Religious attitude. (Ap '28)

Religion, Primitive
Diamond, H. M. Religion and the commonweal. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Frazer, J. G: Man, God and immortality. (Ap '28)

Religion and science
Campbell, J: L. Bible under fire. (O '28)
Kolbe, F: C: Catholic view of holism. (Ag '28)
Mather, K. F. Science in search of God. (N '28)
Raven, C: E. Creator spirit. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Russell, H: N. Fate and freedom. (My '28)
Snowden, J. H: Old faith and new knowledge. (N '28)
Streeter, B. H., and others. Adventure. (My '28)

Religion and social justice. Eddy, G: S. (My '28)

Religion and the commonweal. Diamond, H. M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Religion in literature
Atkins, G. G. Reinspecting Victorian religion. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Religion of Jesus. Bundy, W. E. (D '28)

Religion of Tibet. Ellam, J. E. (N '28)

Religion under the soviets. Hecker, J. F. (Ap '28)

Religion without revelation. Huxley, J. S. (Ap '28)

Religions
Windle, B. C. A. Religions past and present. (Ap '28)

Religions past and present. Windle, B. C. A. (Ap '28)

Religious attitude. Woodburne, A. S. (Ap '28)

Religious conversion. Sanctis, S. de. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Religious development of adolescents. Kupky, O. (O '28)

Religious drama
Osgood, P. E. Old-time church drama adapted. (D '28)
Osgood, P. E. Sinner beloved. (D '28)

Religious education
Soares, T. G. Religious education. (S '28)

Religious liberty
Dieffenbach, A. C: Religious liberty. (Ap '28)

Religious literature
Eakin, F. Revaluing scripture. (O '28)

Religious mind. Mahoney, C. K. (My '28)

Religious poetry
Clark, T: C., and Gillespie, E. A., comps. Quotable poems. (O '28)

Religious thought in the last quarter-century. Smith, G. B., ed. (O '28)

Remaking of an American. Banks, E. L. (Ag '28)

Rembrandt Hermanszoon van Rijn

Fiction

Bródy, S. Rembrandt. (S '28)

Renaissance
Taylor, R. A. Leonardo the Florentine. (O '28)

Rent
Rider, D. Ten years' adventures among landlords and tenants. (Je '28)

Repertory of plays for a company of three players. Kennedy, C: R. (My '28)

Reporters and reporting
Harwood, D. Getting and writing news. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Representative industries in the United States. Warshow, H. T:, ed. (N '28)

Reproduction
De Schweinitz, K: Growing up. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Republican Germany. Quigley, H., and Clark, R. T. (D '28)

Republican party
Myers, W: S. Republican party. (Je '28)

Reputations, ten years after. Liddell Hart, B. H: (My '28)

Research
Ogg, F: A. Research in the humanistic and social sciences. (S '28)

Research in the humanistic and social sciences. Ogg, F: A. (S '28)

Reserve banks and the money market. Burgess, W. R. (Ap '28)

Respectable lady. Hinkson, K. (Ag '28)

Responsibility of states in international law. Eagleton, C. (D '28)

Restaurants, lunch rooms, etc.
Dahl, J. O. Kitchen management, construction, planning, administration. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Restaurants of London. Hooton-Smith, E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Restless Pacific. Roosevelt, N: (Je '28)

Retail trade
Baxter, W: J. Chain store distribution and management. (O '28)

Retreat. Blunden, E. C: (N '28)

Revaluing scripture. Eakin, F. (O '28)

Revolution and reaction in modern France. Dickinson, G. L. (S '28)

Revolutions
Eastman, M. Marx and Lenin. (S '28)

Rhapsody. Edwards, D. (Ap '28)

Rhode, John, pseud. See Street, C. J: C: (Ag, N '28)

Rhodes, Cecil
McDonald, J. G. Rhodes. (Ag '28)

Richard Cobden and foreign policy. Dawson, W: H. (My '28)

Richelieu, Armand Jean du Plessis, cardinal, duc de
Federn, K: Richelieu. (N '28)

Richthofen, Manfred Albrecht, freiherr von
Gibbons, F. P. Red knight of Germany. (Mr '28)

Riddell, John, pseud. See Ford, C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Riders of the Grande Ronde. Case, R. O. (O '28)

Rifts in the universe. Moore, J. S. (Je '28)

Rigging of ships in the days of the spritsail topmast 1600-1720. Anderson, R. C: (Je '28)

Ring fence. Phillpotts, E. (S '28)

Rio rustlers. Dorrance, J. F. (My '28)

Ripley, Ozark, pseud. See Thompson, J: B. de M. (N '28)

Rise of modern physics. Crew, H: (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Rise of the common man. Fish, C. R. (My '28)

Rise of the German Republic. Daniels, H. G. (Ag '28)

Rise of the house of Rothschild. Corti, E. C. (Ag '28)

Rising wind. Moore, V. (N '28)

Rites and ceremonies
Hocart, A. M. Kingship. (My '28)

The river. Tupper, T. (Ag '28)

River between. Forgione, L: (Ag '28)

River gold. Paxton, M. (Je '28)

River pirate. Coe, C: F. (Ag '28)

Riviera
Lynch, B. Italian Riviera. (Ag '28)
Richards, G. Coast of pleasure. (N '28)
Richardson, L. Riviera coast. (N '28)

Riviera coast. Richardson, L. (N '28)

Road materials
Bauer, E: E. Highway materials. (O '28)

Road to Buenos Ayres. Londres, A. (Je '28)

Road to heaven. Beer, T: (Ag '28)

Road to plenty. Foster, W: T., and Catchings, W. (Je '28)

Roads
Bateman, J: H. Highway engineering. (O '28)

History

Paterson, J. History and development of road transport. (N '28)

Roads of melody. Bond, C. J. (O '28)

Roads to the City of God. Mathews, B. J. (N

Roads to the north. Brooks, C: S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Roads to the Revolution. Comstock, S. (Mr '28)
Roadside marketing. Watts, G. S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Roamin' in the gloamin'. Lauder, H. (N '28)
Robert Frost. Munson, G. B. (Mr '28)
Robert Louis Stevenson. Chesterton, G. K. (Mr '28)
Robespierre, Maximilien Marie Isidore de
Belloc, H. Robespierre. (My '28)
Béraud, H. My friend Robespierre. (D '28)
Rock gardens
Rockwell, F: F. Rock gardens. (N '28)
Rockbound. Day, F. P. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Rocking-chair. Dyer, W. A., and Fraser, E. S. (S '28)
Rodman, Hugh
Rodman, H. Yarns of a Kentucky admiral. (S '28)
Rogers, Lore Alfred
Fundamentals of dairy science. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Rogues and vagabonds
Finger, C: J. Romantic rascals. (Je '28)
Rogues fall out. Adams, H. (D '28)
Rogues' march. Turnbull, M. (S '28)
Rogue's moon. Chambers, R. W: (O '28)
Roman Catholic church
Gillis, J. M. Catholic church and the home. (O '28)
Marshall, C: C. Roman Catholic church in the modern state. (S '28)
Pope, H. Catholic church and the Bible. (N '28)

Doctrinal and controversial works

Knox, R. A. Belief of Catholics. (My '28)
Schaff, D: S. Our fathers faith and ours. (N '28)

History

Shotwell, J. T., and Loomis, L. R., eds. See of Peter. (Ag '28)

Missions

Catholic foreign mission society of America. Maryknoll mission letters: China. (Ag '28)
Huc, E. R. Huc and Gabet; travels in Tartary, Thibet and China, 1844-1846. (S '28)
Roman Catholic church in Great Britain
McEntee, G. P. Social Catholic movement in Great Britain. (Ap '28)
Roman Catholic church in the modern state. Marshall, C: C. (S '28)
Roman Catholic church in the United States
Garrison, W. E. Catholicism and the American mind. (O '28)
Guilday, P: K. Life and times of John England. (My '28)
Maury, R. Wars of the godly. (S '28)
Ryan, J: A. Catholic church and the citizen. (O '28)
Schroeder, T. A. Al. Smith, the pope, and the presidency. (O '28)
Shuster, G: N. Catholic spirit in America. (My '28)
Roman gold. Lewis, M. (My '28)
Roman world. Chapot, V: (N '28)
Romance of forgotten men. Faris, J: T. (D '28)
Romance of modern travel. Davidson, N. J. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Romance of reality. Clarke, B. L. (My '28)
Romance of the Basque country and the Pyrenees. Elsner, E. (Je '28)
Romance of the sun. Proctor, M. (Ap '28)
Romanesque lyric. Allen, P. S. (N '28)
Romantic Java. Banner, H. S. (My '28)
Romantic poetry of the early nineteenth century. Beatty, A., comp. (Je '28)
Romantic rascals. Finger, C: J. (Je '28)
Romanticism
Fairchild, H. N. The noble savage. (N '28)
Rome

Biography

Henderson, B. W: Five Roman emperors. (My '28)

History

Chapot, V: Roman world. (N '28)

Republic, B.C. 265-30

Holmes, T: E. Architect of the Roman empire. (S '28)

Empire, 31 B.C.-476 A.D.

Henderson, B. W: Five Roman emperors. (My '28)

Religion

Rostovtzeff, M. I. Mystic Italy. (Ag '28)

Social conditions

Barrow, R. H. Slavery in the Roman empire. (N '28)
Rome (city)
Knottnerus-Meyer, T. C. B. Birds and beasts of the Roman zoo. (My '28)

Description and travel

Laughlin, C. E. So you're going to Rome! (Je '28)
Roosevelt, Theodore
Roosevelt, T. Diaries of boyhood and youth. (D '28)
Roselle of the North. Skinner, C. L. (My '28)
Rossetti, Dante Gabriel
Waugh, E. Rossetti. (Ag '28)
Rothschild family
Corti, E. C. Reign of the house of Rothschild. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Corti, E. C. Rise of the house of Rothschild. (Ag '28)
A rover I would be. Lucas, E: V. (D '28)
Roving years. Powell, S. W. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Royal Canadian mounted police

Fiction

Longstreth, T: M. Sons of the mounted police. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Royal family. Kaufman, G: S., and Ferber, E. (My '28)
Rudiments of economics. Hewett, W: W (O '28)
Rufus Choate. Fuess, C. M. (My '28)
Rugby school
Whitridge, A. Dr Arnold of Rugby. (S '28)
Rugs
Waugh, E., and Foley, E. Collecting hooked rugs. (Ap '28)
Rugs, Oriental
Wolfe, F. A. and A. T. How to identify oriental rugs. (My '28)
Rum
Taussig, C: W: Rum, romance and rebellion. (Je '28)
Rum, romance and rebellion. Taussig, C: W: (Je '28)
Runagates club. Buchan, J: (O '28)
Runaway papoose. Moon, G. (D '28)
Runaways. Hannay, J. O. (O '28)
Russia
American trade union delegation to the Soviet union. Soviet Russia in the second decade. (O '28)

Description and travel

Newman, E. M. Seeing Russia. (Ag '28)

Economic conditions

American trade union delegation to the Soviet union. Russia after ten years. (D '28)
American trade union delegation to the Soviet union. Soviet Russia in the second decade. (O '28)
Borders, K: Village life under the Soviets. (Mr '28)
Dobb, M. H., and Stevens, H. C. Russian economic development since the revolution. (Je '28)
Dreiser, T. Dreiser looks at Russia. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Nearing, S., and Hardy, J. Economic organization of the Soviet union. (Mr '28)

Foreign relations
Arnot, R. P. Soviet Russia and her neighbors. (Mr '28)
Sazonov, S. D. Fateful years, 1909-1916. (My '28)

United States
Schuman, F: L: American policy toward Russia since 1917. (O '28)

History
Revolution, 1917-
Kerensky, A. F. The catastrophe. (Mr '28)
Marcu, V. Lenin. (N '28)
Mavor, J. Russian revolution. (S '28)
Spinka, M. Church and the Russian revolution. (My '28)
Walsh, E. A. Fall of the Russian empire. (S '28)

Sources
Golder, F. A., ed. Documents of Russian history, 1914-1917. (Ap '28)

Politics and government
American trade union delegation to the Soviet union. Russia after ten years. (D '28)
Brailsford, H: N. How the Soviets work. (Mr '28)
Dreiser, T. Dreiser looks at Russia. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Golder, F. A., ed. Documents of Russian history, 1914-1917. (Ap '28)
Lee, I. L. Present-day Russia. (Je '28)
Stalin, I. Leninism. (S '28)
Thompson, D. New Russia. (N '28)
Trotsky, L., pseud. Real situation in Russia. (O '28)

Religion
Hecker, J. F. Religion under the soviets. (Ap '28)
Spinka, M. Church and the Russian revolution. (My '28)

Social conditions
Dreiser, T. Dreiser looks at Russia. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lee, I. L. Present-day Russia. (Je '28)
London, G: Red Russia after ten years. (N '28)
Thompson, D. New Russia. (N '28)

Social life and customs
Williams, A. R. The Russian land. (Ap '28)
Russia after ten years. American trade union delegation to the Soviet union. (D '28)
Russian economic development since the revolution. Dobb, M. H., and Stevens, H. C. (Je '28)
The Russian land. Williams, A. R. (Ap '28)
Russian revolution. Mavor, J. (S '28)
Russians in France
Balascheff, M. The transplanting. (My '28)
Rutter, Frank Van Phipson
Rutter, F. V. P. Since I was twenty-five. (My '28)
Ruysbroek, Willem van
Komroff, M., ed. Contemporaries of Marco Polo. (S '28)
Ryder. Barnes, D. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

S. François de Sales, 1567-1622. Sanders, E. K. (D '28)
S.O.S. Whiting, J: D. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sacco, Nicola
Lyons, E. Life and death of Sacco and Vanzetti. (Ap '28)
Sacco, N., and Vanzetti, B. Letters. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Fiction
Sinclair, U. P. Boston. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Poetry
Trent, L., and Cheyney, R., eds. America arraigned! (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Saddharmapundarika
Saunders, K. J. Gospel for Asia. (D '28)
Safari. Johnson, M. E. (My '28)
Safety and production. American engineering council. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Saga of Cap'n Iohn Smith. Ward, C. (S '28)
Sagusto. Roberts, C. (Mr '28)
Sailor of Napoleon. Lesterman, J: (My '28)
Sails & swords. Strawn, A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Saint Francis. Van Santvoord, S. (Je '28)
St Thomas of Canterbury. Dark, S. (My '28)
Saints and leaders. Mackay, H: F. B. (N '28)
Saki, pseud. See Munro, H. H. (Ag '28, F '29) (1928 Annual)
Salons
Huddleston, S. Paris salons, cafés, studios. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Salvage all. Morgan, G. J. (S '28)
Salvation army
Ottman, F. C. Herbert Booth. (S '28)
Sam Houston. Creel, G: (Ag '28)
Sambo and Snitch. Blackwood, A. (Mr '28)
Samoa
Social life and customs
Mead, M. Coming of age in Samoa. (O '28)
Samples. Community workers of the New York Guild for the Jewish blind. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Samples. Ryttenberg, L., and Lang, B., comps. (My '28)
Samson, judge of Israel
Fiction
Washburn, R. C. Samson. (D '28)
Samson. Washburn, R. C. (D '28)
Samuel Pepys. Ponsonby, A. A: W: H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sands of fortune. Sullivan, A. (O '28)
Sandwiches
Cowles, F. A., comp. Seven hundred sandwiches. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sanitary engineering
Ehlers, V: M., and Steel, E. W: Municipal and rural sanitation. (Ap '28)
Sanitation
Ehlers, V: M., and Steel, E. W: Municipal and rural sanitation. (Ap '28)
Santa Fe trail
Fiction
Malkus, A. S. Caravans to Santa Fe. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Santander, Spain (province)
Description and travel
Peers, E. A. Santander. (Je '28)
Santander. Peers, E. A. (Je '28)
Santiago de Compostela
Stone, J. S: Cult of Santiago. (Ap '28)
Sapper, pseud. See McNeile, H. C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Saunders, Hilary Aldan St George. See Beeding, F., pseud. (Mr, O '28)
Saunterings in London. Wagner, L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Savage Abyssinia. Baum, J. E. (Je '28)
Savages
Fairchild, H. N. The noble savage. (N '28)
Savour of life. Bennett, A. (Je '28)
Savoy theater, London
Goldberg, I: Story of Gilbert and Sullivan. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Sawdust and solitude. Zora, L. (My '28)
Scabby Dichson. Blaker, R: (Ap '28)
Scandal of the cross. Poteat, E. M. (O '28)
Scarlet heels. Stern, E. M. (N '28)
Scarlet sister Mary. Peterkin, J. M. (D '28)
Scenario and screen. Patterson, F. T. (Ag '28)
Sceptical essays. Russell, B. A. W: (D '28)
Scherr, Marie. See Cher, M., pseud. (Mr '28)

Schiff, Jacob Henry
Schiff, J. H: Jacob H. Schiff. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Scholarship of teachers in secondary schools. Fitzpatrick, E: A:, and Hutson, P. W. (Ag '28)
School and society in Chicago. Counts, G: S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
School hygiene
Bennett, H: E. School posture and seating. (N '28)
Wood, T: D., and Lerrigo, M. O. Health behavior. (Ap '28)
School libraries
Field, W. T. Guide to literature for children. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Koos, F. H. State participation in public school library service. (Ag '28)
School libraries (high school)
Brown, Z. M. ed. Standard catalog for high school libraries. (Ag '28)
Logasa, H. High school library. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
School management and organization
Foster, H. H. High school administration. (N '28)
Roberts, A. C., and Draper, E. M. High-school principal. (Ap '28)
School posture and seating. Bennett, H: E. (N '28)
School superintendents and principals
Roberts, A. C., and Draper, E. M. High-school principal. (Ap '28)
Schools
Furniture, equipment, etc.
Bennett, H: E. School posture and seating. (N '28)
Schubert, Franz Peter
Flower, W. N. Franz Schubert. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Schubert, F. P: Letters, and other writings. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Schumann, Clara Josephine (Wieck) (Mrs Robert Schumann)
Schumann, C. J., and Brahms, J. Letters, 1853-1896. (Je '28)
Science
Clarke, B. L. Romance of reality. (My '28)
Crowther, J. G. Science for you. (D '28)
Fraser-Harris, D: F. Coloured thinking. (D '28)
Slosson, E. E. Snapshots of science. (Ag '28)
Wood, C.. Outline of man's knowledge. (Mr '28)
Addresses, essays, lectures
Hakdane, J: B. S. Possible worlds. (My '28)
Sullivan, J: W: N. Gallio. (Je '28)
History
Sarton, G: Introduction to the history of science, v 1. (O '28)
Singer, C: J. From magic to science. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Methodology
Abro, A. d'. Evolution of scientific thought from Newton to Einstein. (S '28)
Barry, F: Scientific habit of thought. (Mr '28)
Parshley, H. M. Science and good behavior. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Philosophy
Sullivan, J: W: N. Gallio. (Je '28)
Science and good behavior. Parshley, H. M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Science for you. Crowther, J. G. (D '28)
Science in search of God. Mather, K. F. (N '28)
Science of public welfare. Kelso, R. W. (N '28)
Science of religion. Rohrbaugh, L: G. (Ag '28)
Scientific expeditions
Beebe, W: Beneath tropic seas. (D '28)
Scientific habit of thought. Barry, F: (Mr '28)
Scientific recreations
Gibson, C: R. Chemical amusements & experiments. (D '28)
Scientific research
Little, A. D. Handwriting on the wall. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Scientific societies
Bibliography
National research council. Research information service. Handbook of scientific and technical societies and institutions of the United States and Canada. (Je '28)
Scientists
De Kruif, P. H: Hunger fighters. (D '28)
Sarton, G: Introduction to the history of science, v 1. (O '28)
Scissors cut paper. Fairlie, G. (O '28)
Scotch Valley. Cram, M. (S '28)
Scotland
Grieve, C. M. Albyn. (Ag '28)
Thomson, G: M. Caledonia. (Ag '28)
Biography
Carswell, D. Brother Scots. (My '28)
Church history
Hay, M. V. Chain of error in Scottish history. (Ag '28)
Kings and rulers
Cook, E. T. Their majesties of Scotland. (S '28)
Queens
Cook, E. T. Their majesties of Scotland. (S '28)
Scott, Hugh Lenox
Scott, H. L. Some memories of a soldier. (Ag '28)
Scribner, Grace
Scribner, G. American pilgrimage. (Ap '28)
Sea dog. Bartlett, A. C. (Mr '28)
Sea-drinking cities. Pinckney, J. (Ap '28)
Sea king. Soiberg, H. (O '28)
Sea legs. Loomis, A. F. (Je '28)
Sea mystery. Crofts, F. W. (O '28)
Sea panther. McFarland, R. (My '28)
Sea power
Richmond, H. W: National policy and naval strength. (N '28)
Sea serpents
O'Donnell, E. Strange sea mysteries. (Ap '28)
Sea songs
Mackenzie, W: R., comp. Ballads and sea songs from Nova Scotia. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sea stories
Gray, C: W., ed. Deep waters. (D '28)
O'Donnell, E. Strange sea mysteries. (Ap '28)
Sea urchin. Eng title of While the gods grinned. Turner, J: H. (S '28)
Seafaring life
Bartlett, R. A. Log of Bob Bartlett. (O 28)
Cameron, J: John Cameron's odyssey. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Follett, B. N. Voyage of the Norman D. (Ag '28)
Riesenberg, F. Shipmates. (Ag '28)
Seamen
Riesenberg, F. Shipmates. (Ag '28)
Seaports in the moon. Starrett, V. (Je '28)
Search for America. Grove, F: P. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Search relentless. Skinner, C. L. (D '28)
Second cabin. Vorse, M. M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Second Eden. Ward, F. J. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Second Isaiah. Torrey, C: C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Secret brotherhood. Brandon, J: G. (N '28)
Secret of Mohawk Pond. Lincoln, N. S. (O '28)
Secret service
Rowan, R: W. Spy and counter-spy. (D '28)
United States
Outerbridge, H:, ed. Captain Jack. (S '28)
Sects
Ferguson, C: W. Confusion of tongues. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Sedley, Sir Charles
Pinto, V. de S. Life of Sir Charles Sedley. (Ag '28)
See of Peter. Shotwell, J. T., and Loomis, L. R., eds. (Ag '28)
Seeing Egypt and the Holy Land. Newman, E. M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Seeing Italy. Newman, E. M. (Mr '28)
Seeing Russia. Newman, E. M. (Ag '28)
Ségur, Louis Philippe de
Ségur, L: P. de. Memoirs and anecdotes. (N '28)
Seigneurs of La Saulaye. Abbott, J. (N '28)
Selected articles on a federal department of education. Johnsen, J. E., comp. (Ap '28)
Selected articles on China yesterday and today. Johnsen, J. E., comp. (S '28)
Selected articles on intervention in Latin America. Beman, L. T., comp. (O '28)
Selected articles on old age pensions. Beman, L. T. comp. (My '28)
Selected poems. Lowell, A. (Ag '28)
Sémer, Mme Madeleine
Klein, F. Madeleine Sémer. (Ag '28)
Semi-attached couple. Eden, E. (Ag '28)
Semi-detached house. Eden, E. (S '28)
Sentry. Canney, H. E. (D '28)
Sepulchral monuments
Forbes, H. Gravestones of early New England and the men who made them, 1653-1800. (Ap '28)
Sergeant Eadie. Nason, L. H. (My '28)
Sergeant York. York, A. C. (F '29) (1928 (Annual)
Sermons
Barnes, E. W: Should such a faith offend? (Je '28)
Billings, S. Talks to boys. (D '28)
Palmer, A. W. New Christian epic. (S '28)
Reese, C. W., ed. Humanist sermons. (My '28)
Robbins, H. C. Cathedral sermons. (Ap '28)
Stafford, R. H: Christian humanism. (My '28)
Stamm, F: K., comp. Reformed church pulpit. (My '28)
Stelzle, C:, comp. If I had only one sermon to preach. (My '28)
Servant of the mightiest. Wingate, L. B. (Ap '28)
Service record. Jacks, L. V. (Ag '28)
Set-up. March, J. M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Seven black chessmen. Huntingdon, J:, pseud. (D '28)
Seven days whipping. Biggs, J:, jr. (O '28)
7 footprints to Satan. Merritt, A. (Je '28)
Seven hundred sandwiches. Cowles, F. A., comp. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Seven lovers. Coxon, M. (My '28)
Seven sisters. Lilly, J. (N '28)
Seventeenth century lyrics. Ault, N., comp. and ed. (My '28)
Seventeenth-century lyrics. Judson, A. C., ed. (Je '28)
Seventh hill. Hillyer, R. S. (My '28)
Sewage
Purification
Buswell, A. M. Chemistry of water and sewage treatment. (Ag '28)
Sewage disposal
Veal, T. H. P. Disposal of sewage. (D '28)
Sewing
Brown, C. M. Clothing construction. (O '28)
Sex (psychology)
Mead, M. Coming of age in Samoa. (O '28)
Schmalhausen, S: D. Why we misbehave. (N '28)
Sex instruction
De Schweinitz, K: Growing up. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sexual ethics
Calverton, V: F. Bankruptcy of marriage. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Haire, N. Hymen. (Je '28)
Neumann, H: Modern youth and marriage. (My '28)
"Sh! not before Evelyn May." (Ag '28)
Shadow from the bogue. Wood, C. (Je '28)
Shadow of the Hawk. Eng title of Daughter of the Hawk. Forester, E. S. (N '28)
Shadow of the Long Knives. Boyd, T: (Ag '28)
Shadow on the left. Muir, A: (D '28)
Shadow pantomimes and plays
Mills, W. H., and Dunn, L. M. Marionettes masks and shadows. (My '28)
Shadows. Scott, W. (Mr '28)
Shadows by the sea. Farjeon, J. J. (My '28)
The shadowy thing. Drake, H: B. (D '28)
Shaken by the wind. Strachey, R. (Ap '28)
Shakespeare, William
Lawrence, W. J. Shakespeare's workshop. (O '28)
Nicoll, A. Studies in Shakespeare. (My '28)
Spurgeon, C. F. E., comp. Keats's Shakespeare. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Adaptations
Spencer, H. Shakespeare improved. (O '28)
Biography
Smart, J: S. Shakespeare, truth and tradition. (N '28)
Criticism and interpretation
Griffith, H. F. Iconoclastes. (My '28)
Smith, D: N. Shakespeare in the eighteenth century. (D '28)
Stage history
Spencer, H. Shakespeare improved. (O '28)
Study
Boas, F: S: Introduction to the reading of Shakespeare. (My '28)
Style
Rylands, G: H. W. Words and poetry. (S '28
Shakespeare improved. Spencer, H. (O '28)
Shakespeare in the eighteenth century. Smith, D: N. (D '28)
Shakespeare, truth and tradition. Smart, J: S. (N '28)
Shakespeare's workshop. Lawrence, W. J. (O '28)
Shanghai Jim. Packard, F. L. (S '28)
Shanty Irish. Tully, J. (D '28)
Shapes that pass. Hawthorne, J. (D '28)
Shaping men and women. Sherman, S. P. (D '28)
She walks in beauty. Powell, D. (Je '28)
Sheaves. Oemler, M. (S '28)
Sheep limit. Ogden, G: W. (D '28)
Shelley, Mary Wollstonecraft (Godwin) (Mrs Percy Bysshe Shelley)
Church, R: Mary Shelley. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Shelley, Percy Bysshe
Solve, M. T. Shelley. (Ap '28)
Sheppard, Hugh Richard Laurie
Kennedy, H. A. S. Impatience of a layman. (D '28)
Sheridan, Mrs Consuelo (Frewen)
Sheridan, C. C. Naked truth. (My '28)
Sherwood Anderson. Chase, C. B. (Ap '28)
Shifting scenes of the modern European theatre. Flanagan, H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Ship model making, v 3. McCann, E. A. (S '28)
Ship models
Adams, P: Cork ships and how to make them. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Leitch, A. C. Miniature boat building. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
McCann, E. A. Ship model making, v 3. (S '28)
Moore, T: Build a winning model yacht. (D '28)
Shipbuilding
McKay, R: C. Some famous sailing ships and their builder, Donald McKay. (D '28)
Wallace, F: W: In the wake of the windships. (Ap '28)
Shipley, Catherine Louisa
Franklin, B: "My dear girl." (Ap '28)
Shipmates. Riesenberg, F. (Ag '28)

Ships
Bridges, T. C. Young folk's book of the sea. (Ag '28)
Chatterton, E: K. Old ship prints. (D '28)
McKay, R: C. Some famous sailing ships and their builder, Donald McKay. (D '28)
Ships and sailors. Rogers, S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Shipwreck in Europe. Bard, J. (Je '28)

Shipwrecks
Kitchin, F: H. Tales of S.O.S. and T.T.T. (Mr '28)
O'Donnell, E. Strange sea mysteries. (Ap '28)
Shoddy. Brummitt, D. B. (Ag '28)
Shores of romance. Gibbs, G: F. (Je '28)
Shorn. Grant, R. (My '28)
Short circuits. Leacock, S. B. (S '28)
Short history of medicine. Singer, C: J. (D '28)
Short history of the British working class movement, 1900-1927. Cole, G: D. H. (Mr '28)
Short history of the drama. Bellinger, M. I. (Mr '28)
Short history of the Irish people. Hayden, M. T., and Moonan, G: A. (My '28)
Short history of western civilisation. Hattersley, A. F: (Ap '28)
Short narratives. Fulcher, P. M. (D '28)

Short stories

Collections

Asbury, H., ed. Not at night! (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Asquith, C. M. E., comp. Black cap. (O '28)
Baker, C: H., jr., ed. Rejections of 1927. (O '28)
Benjamin, L: S., and Hargreaves, R., eds. Great French short stories. (O '28)
Community workers of the New York Guild for the Jewish blind. Samples. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Cournos, J:, ed. Fifteen finest short stories. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Eaton, R:, ed. Best continental short stories of 1927. (S '28)
Eaton, R:, ed. Best French short stories of 1926-27; and The yearbook of the French short story. (Je '28)
Fulcher, P. M. Short narratives. (D '28)
Georgian stories, 1927. (Ap '28)
Gray, C: W., ed. Deep waters. (D '28)
Knister, R., ed. Canadian short stories. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Larsen, H. A., ed. Norway's best stories. (N '28)
Larsen, H. A., ed. Sweden's best stories. (N '28)
Nethercot, A. H., ed. Book of long stories. (D '28)
New Decameron; fifth volume. (Je '28)
O. Henry memorial award. Prize stories of 1927. (Mr '28)
O'Brien, E: J. H., ed. Best British short stories of 1927. (Mr '28)
O'Brien, E: J. H., ed. Best British short stories of 1928. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
O'Brien, E: J. H., ed. Best short stories of 1928; and, The yearbook of the American short story. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Ryttenberg, L., and Lang, B., comps. Samples. (My '28)
Van Buren, M., and Bemis, K. I., eds. Mother in modern story. (S '28)
Wells, C., ed. American detective stories. (S '28)
Wells, C., ed. American mystery stories. (S '28)
World's best short stories of 1927. (Mr '28)
Wright, W. H., ed. Great detective stories. (Mr '28)
Shot on the downs. Whitechurch, V: L. (Mr '28)
Should such a faith offend? Barnes, E. W: (Je '28)

Show cases. Le Clerq, J. G. C. (My '28)

Show girl, Simon and Schuster present. McEvoy, J. P. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Show-windows
Percy, C. Window display advertising. (Je '28)

Shower book. Burt, E. R. (O '28)

Shrubs
Hottes, A. C. Book of shrubs. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Schrepfer, F. A. Hardy evergreens. (D '28)
Wilson, E. H: More aristocrats of the garden. (Je '28)
Siamese cat. Underwood, L. (My '28)

Siberia

Description and travel

Digby G: B. Tigers, gold, and witch-doctors. (My '28)
Wood, J. B. Incredible Siberia. (Ag '28)

Social life and customs

Wood, J. B. Incredible Siberia. (Ag '28)

Sicily
Brown, A. Sicily, present and past. (Ag '28)
Sicily, present and past. Brown, A. (Ag '28)
Sidelights on our social and economic history. Forman, S: E., ed. (Je '28)
Sign of the snake. Vane, D. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Silas Bradford's boy. Lincoln, J. C. (D '28)
Silent drum. Griffith, G. K. (O '28)
Silent guests. Forrest, A. E. (Mr '28)

Silica
Sosman, R. B. Properties of silica. (Ag '28)

Silk, Artificial
Mullin, C: E. Acetate silk and its dyes. (Ag '28)
Wheeler, E. Manufacture of artificial silk. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Silk purse. Holding, E. (O '28)
Silk stocking murders. Cox, A. B. (N '28)
Silver tassie. O'Casey, S. (O '28)
Silver thorn. Walpole, H. (D '28)
Simon Girty. Boyd, T: A. (D '28)
Simple guide to pictures and painting. Bulley, M. H. (O '28)
Simple story of music. Isaacson, C: D: (Ag '28)
Since I was twenty-five. Rutter, F. V. P. (My '28)
Sinclair-Cowan, Mrs Bertha (Muzzy). See Bower, B. M., pseud. (Mr, O '28)
Sing Sing nights. Keeler, H. S. (O '28)

Sing Sing prison
Lawes, L: E. Life and death in Sing Sing. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Single standard. St Johns, A. R. (Ag '28)
Sinner beloved. Osgood, P. E. (D '28)
Sir Arthur Sullivan. Sullivan, H., and Flower, W. N. (Je '28)
Sir John Hawkins. Williamson, J. A. (My '28)
Sir Robert Peel. Ramsey, A. A. W. (Ag '28)
Sir Thomas Malory. Hicks, E: (D '28)
Sir Walter Raleigh. Waldman, M. (Je '28)
Sirocco. Eng title of Pursuit. Forbes, R. (O '28)
Six proud walkers. Beeding, F., pseud. (O '28)

Skepticism
Russell, B. A. W: Sceptical essays. (D '28)
Skull of Swift. Leslie, S. (My '28)
Sky-rider. Oliver, W. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Skyscrapers of New York. Bailey, V. H. (D '28)
Skyward. Byrd, R: E. (My '28)

Slave trade
Canot, T. Adventures of an African slaver. (S '28)
Taussig, C: W: Rum, romance and rebellion. (Je '28)

Slavery in Rome
Barrow, R. H. Slavery in the Roman empire. (N '28)
Slavery in the Roman empire. Barrow, R. H. (N '28)
Slaves of the sun. Ossendowski, F. A. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Slip-carriage mystery. McAllister, A. (N '28)
Slum problem. Townroe, B. S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
The slype. Thorndike, A. R. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Small boy in the sixties. Sturt, G: (My '28)
Smaller house of to-day. Allen, G. (Ap '28)
Smaller penny. Barry, C:, pseud. (O '28)
Smiley's haven. Crozier, B. (Je '28)
Smiling death. Grierson, F. D. (My '28)
Smith, Alfred Aloysius. See Horn, A. A., pseud (Ag '28)

Smith, Alfred Emanuel
Allen, W: H. Al Smith's Tammany hall. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Dickinson, T: H. Portrait of a man as governor: Alfred E. Smith. (Je '28)
Hapgood, N., and Moskowitz, H: Up from the city streets, Alfred E. Smith. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Schroeder, T. A. Al. Smith, the pope, and the presidency. (O '28)

Smith, Henry Preserved
Smith, H: P. Heretic's defense. (Mr '28)

Smith, Junius
Pond, E. Le R. Junius Smith. (D '28)

Smoking
Hamilton, A. E. This smoking world. (Mr '28)

Smuts, Jan Christian
Kolbe, F: C: Catholic view of holism. (Ag '28)

Snapshots of science. Slosson, E. E. (Ag '28)
So much good. Frankau, G. (Mr '28)
So you're going to Rome! Laughlin, C. E. (Je '28)
Social basis of consciousness. Burrow, T. (N '28)
Social Catholic movement in Great Britain. McEntee, G. P. (Ap '28)

Social conditions
Calverton, V: F. Bankruptcy of marriage. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Ross, E: A. World drift. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Thompson, J: G. Urbanization. (My '28)

Social ethics
Russell, B. A. W: Sceptical essays. (D '28)

Social insects. Wheeler, W: M. (O '28)

Social problems
Bossard, J. H. S. Problems of social well-being. (Je '28)
Eddy, G: S. Religion and social justice. (My '28)
Goodsell, W. Problems of the family. (D '28)
Kelso, R. W. Science of public welfare. (N '28)
Lapp, J: A: Justice first. (N '28)
Odum, H. W. Man's quest for social guidance. (Mr '28)
Ross, E: A. World drift. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Wells, H. G: Open conspiracy. (O '28)
Wood, A. E. Community problems. (N '28)

Social problems. Gillin, J: L:, and others. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Social psychology
Blanchard, P. M. Child and society. (O '28)
Elliott, H. S. Process of group thinking. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Florence, P. S. Economics and human behaviour. (Ap '28)
Jordan, E. Forms of individuality. (Ag '28)
Rice, S. A. Quantitative methods in politics. (D '28)
Young, K. Source book for social psychology. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Social sciences
Ogburn, W: F., and Goldenweiser, A. A. eds. Social sciences and their interrelations. (Ap '28)

Bibliography

Bacon, C., comp. Standard catalog; social sciences section. (S '28)

Study and teaching

Dawson, E., and others. Teaching the social studies. (Ap '28)

Social sciences and their interrelations. Ogburn, W: F., and Goldenweiser, A. A., eds. (Ap '28)

Social service
Kelso, R. W. Science of public welfare. (N '28)
Lapp, J: A: Justice first. (N '28)
Pettit, W. W: Case studies in community organization. (Je '28)
Routzahn, M. B. and E. G. Publicity for social work. (O '28)

Social surveys
Douglass, H. P. The church in the changing city. (Ap '28)

Social theories of L. T. Hobhouse. Carter, H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Socialism
Elliott, W: Y. Pragmatic revolt in politics. (D '28)
Hearnshaw, F. J. C. Survey of socialism. (O '28)
Man, H: de. Psychology of socialism. (O '28)
Perlman, S. Theory of the labor movement. (N '28)
Shaw, G: B. Intelligent woman's guide to socialism and capitalism. (Ag '28)

Socialism, Christian
McEntee, G. P. Social Catholic movement in Great Britain. (Ap '28)

Societies

Bibliography

National research council. Research information service. Handbook of scientific and technical societies and institutions of the United States and Canada. (Je '28)

Society, Primitive
Frazer, J. G: Man, God and immortality. (Ap '28)
Lowie, R. H. Origin of the state. (My '28)

Sociological philosophy of education. Finney, R. L. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Sociology
Carter, H. Social theories of L. T. Hobhouse. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Davis, J., and Barnes, H. E., eds. Readings in sociology (Ag '28)
Diamond, H. M. Religion and the commonweal. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Ellwood, C: A. Cultural evolution. (Je '28)
Finney, R. L. Sociological philosophy of education. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Gillin, J: L:, and others. Social problems. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Odum, H. W. Man's guest for social guidance. (Mr '28)
Shenton, H. N. Practical application of sociology. (O '28)
Sorokin, P. A. Contemporary sociological theories. (D '28)

History

Bogardus, E. S. History of social thought. (O '28)

Sociology, Christian
Eddy, G: S. Religion and social justice. (My '28)
Fiske, C: Confessions of a puzzled parson. (N '28)
Niebuhr, R. Does civilization need religion? (Mr '28)

Sociology, Rural
Sims, N. Le R. Elements of rural sociology. (O '28)

Sodium sulfate
Laury, N. A. Hydrochloric acid and sodium sulfate. (My '28)

Soldier of the South. Pickett, C: E: (Je '28)

Soldiers
Bartlett, F: C: Psychology and the soldier. (My '28)

Solomon islands
Hopkins, A. I. In the isles of King Solomon. (D '28)

Some famous medical trials. Parry, L. A. (Je '28)
Some famous sailing ships and their builder, Donald McKay. McKay, R: C. (D '28)
Some famous sea fights. Green, F., and Frost, H. H. (Ag '28)
Some goddesses of the pen. Braybrooke, P. (My '28)
Some memories of a soldier. Scott, H. L. (Ag '28)
Some modern poets. Davison, E: L: (Ag '28)
Some recollections of a Western ranchman. French, W: (My '28)
Some rogues and vagabonds of Dickens. Dexter, W. (Ap '28)
The son. Dixelius, H. (My '28)

Son of his country. Bloem, W. S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Son of man. Ludwig, E. (S '28)
A son of Mother India answers. Mukerji, D. G. (Ap '28)
Son of the typhoon. Bennett, J. W. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Son of three fathers. Leroux, G. (S '28)
Song book of the American spirit. Stanley-Brown, K., comp. (Je '28)
Songs
Dresser, P. Songs. (Ag '28)
Untermeyer, L:, and others, eds. New songs for new voices. (D '28)
Songs, American
Sandburg, C., comp. American songbag. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Stanley-Brown, K., comp. Song book of the American spirit. (Je '28)
Songs of eventide. Foulke, W: D. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Songs of infancy. Miller, M. B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Sonnets. Robinson, E. A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sonnets to Craig. Sterling, G: (N '28)
Sons of Africa. Gollock, G. A. (D '28)
Sons of Cain. Bellah, J. W. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Sons of the mounted police. Longstreth, T: M. (F 29) (1928 Annual) Soul of China. Wilhelm, R: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Sound
Richardson, E: G. Sound. (N '28)
Source book for social psychology. Young, K. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sources of English literature. Esdaile, A. J. K. (O '28)
Sousa, John Philip
Sousa, J: P. Marching along. (Ag '28)
South
Robertson, W: J. Changing South. (Ap '28)
Description and travel
Bartram, W: Travels. (Ap '28)
Industries
Mitchell, B. William Gregg. (N '28)
South Africa
History
Walker, E. A. History of South Africa. (Ap '28)
South America
Commerce
Jones, C. F. Commerce of South America. (O '28)
Description and travel
Foster, H. La T. If you go to South America. (My '28)
Economic conditions
Haring, C. H: South America looks at the United States. (Je '28)
Relations (general) with United States
Haring, C. H: South America looks at the United States. (Je '28)
South America looks at the United States. Haring, C. H: (Je '28)
South Carolina
History
Hirsch, A. H: Huguenots of colonial South Carolina. (Je '28)
Politics and government
Bancroft, F: Calhoun and the South Carolina nullification movement. (D '28)
South Carolina ballads. Smith, R., comp. (D '28)
Southern charm. Glenn, I. (Mr '28)
Southwest, New
Antiquities
Robinson, W: H: Under turquoise skies. (S '28)
Description and travel
Robinson, W: H: Under turquoise skies. (S '28)
Southwest, Old
History
Whitaker, A. P. Spanish-American frontier: 1783-1795. (Ap '28)
Sovereignty
Ward, P. W: Sovereignty. (N '28)
Soviet government
Borders, K: Village life under the Soviets. (Mr '28)
Brailsford, H: N. How the Soviets work. (Mr '28)
Soviet Russia and her neighbors. Arnot, R. P. (Mr '28)
Soviet Russia in the second decade. American trade union delegation to the Soviet union. (O '28)
Spain
Colonies
North America
Whitaker, A. P. Spanish-American frontier: 1783-1795. (Ap '28)
Description and travel
Bailey, V. H. New trails in old Spain. (S '28)
Riggs, A. S. Spanish pageant. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Trend, J: B. Spain from the South. (Je '28)
Guide-books
Harrigan, M. H. Traveling light; [Spain and Morocco]. (Ag '28)
History
Trend, J: B. Spain from the South. (Je '28)
House of Austria, 1516-1700
Seaver, H: L. Great revolt in Castile. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Spain from the South. Trend, J: B. (Je '28)
Spanish America
Cooper, C. S. Latin America—men and markets. (Ap '28)
Economic conditions
Cooper, C. S. Latin America—men and markets. (Ap '28)
Foreign relations
Rippy, J. F. Latin America in world politics. (S '28)
United States
Beman, L. T., comp. Selected articles on intervention in Latin America. (O '28)
Hughes, C: E. Our relations to the nations of the western hemisphere. (N '28)
Politics
Rippy, J. F. Latin America in world politics. (S '28)
Relations (general) with Europe
Rippy, J. F. Latin America in world politics. (S '28)
Relations (general) with United States
Rippy, J. F. Latin America in world politics. (S '28)
Spanish-American frontier: 1783-1795. Whitaker, A. P. (Ap '28)
Spanish literature
History and criticism
Kane, E. K. Gongorism and the golden age. (O '28)
Spanish pageant. Riggs, A. S. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Spanish prisoner. Tilden, F. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Speaker of the House of representatives since 1896. Chiu, C-W. (S '28)
Special day pageants for little people. Kennedy, M., and Bemis, K. I. (D '28)
Spell of Ireland. Bell, A. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Spellbinder. Rossiter, L. (Je '28)

Spenser, Edmund
Henley, P. Spenser in Ireland. (O '28)
Spenser in Ireland. Henley, P. (O '28)
Spider boy. Van Vechten, C. (O '28)

Spies
Gollomb, J. Spies. (D '28)
Rowan, R: W. Spy and counter-spy. (D '28)

Spinoza, Benedictus de
Lucas, J. M., (supposed author). Oldest biography of Spinoza. (Ap '28)
Spinoza, B. de. Correspondence. (N '28)
Spirit of delight. Harper, G: M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Spirit of St Louis. Hooley, A., ed. (Ap '28)
Spiritual exercises and their results. Tillyard, A. C. W. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Spiritual life
Doan, F. C. Eternal spirit in the daily round. (D '28)
Klein, F. Madeleine Sémer. (Ag '28)
Tillyard, A. C. W. Spiritual exercises and their results. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Underhill, E. Man and the supernatural. (Ag '28)
Splendid adventure of Hannibal Tod. Eng title of Emerald tiger. Jepson, E. (S '28)
Splendid Californians. Small, S. H. (S '28)
Splendid gypsy: John Drew. Wood, P. (Mr '28)
Splendid renegade. McCulloch, J: H. (D '28)
Spokesmen. Whipple, T: K. (Ag '28)

Sporting prints
Sparrow, W. S. Henry Alken. (S '28)

Sports
Hammett, C: E: Major sport fundamentals. (Ap '28)
Nash, J. B. Organization and administration of playgrounds and recreation. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Tunis, J: R. Sports. (D '28)
Sportsman's scrapbook. Phillips, J: C: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Spraying
Mason, A. F. Spraying, dusting and fumigating of plants. (D '28)
Spraying, dusting and fumigating of plants. Mason, A. F. (D '28)
Spreading stain. Finger, C: J. (Mr '28)
Spring darkness. Eng title of Mrs Condover. Metcalfe, J: (O '28)
Spring in the little garden. McIlvaine, F. E. (Ag '28)
Spring plowing. Malam, C: (S '28)
Spring tide. Cohen, O. R. (S '28)
Spunk, leader of the dog team. Bartlett, A. C. (Mr '28)
Spy and counter-spy. Rowan, R: W. (D '28)
Squad. Wharton, J. B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Square emerald. Johns, F., pseud. (Je '28)
Squealer. Wallace, E. (Ap '28)
Stabilization of the mark. Schacht, H. (My '28)
Stage decoration. Cheney, S. W. (My '28)
Stained sails. McIntyre, J: T: (My '28)
Stair builder's guide. Williams, M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Stair building
Williams, M. Stair builder's guide. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Stalky's reminiscences. Dunsterville, L. C: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Stammering century. Seldes, G. V. (N '28)
Stampede. Sieveking, L. de G. (D '28)
Standard catalog; fiction section. Bacon, C., comp. (S '28)
Standard catalog; social sciences section. Bacon, C., comp. (S '28)
Standard catalog for high school libraries. Brown, Z. M., ed. (Ag '28)
Standardization of error. Stefánsson, V. (My '28)
Standards and tests for reagent and C. P. chemicals. Murray, B: L. (My '28)

Stanhope, Lady Hester Lucy
Armstrong, M. D. Lady Hester Stanhope. (Ag '28)

Stanley, Arthur Penrhyn
Dark, S. Five deans. (O '28)
Star spangled manner. Nichols, B. (D '28)

Starch
Walton, R. P., and others, eds. Comprehensive survey of starch chemistry, v 1. (O '28)

Bibliography
Walton, R. P., and others, eds. Comprehensive survey of starch chemistry, v 1. (O '28)

State, The
Elliott, W: Y. Pragmatic revolt in politics. (D '28)
Lowie, R. H. Origin of the state. (My '28)
State participation in public school library service. Koos, F. H. (Ag '28)
State security and the League of nations. Williams, B. S. (Ag '28)
Statesman and friend; correspondence of John Adams with Benjamin Waterhouse. Adams, J:, and Waterhouse, B: (Ap '28)

Statesmen
Martin, W: Statesmen of the war in retrospect, 1918-1928. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Statesmen, American
Bemis, S: F., ed. American secretaries of state and their diplomacy. v 4-5 (O '28)
Griggs, E: H. American statesmen. (My '28)
Villard, O. G. Prophets true and false. (S '28)
White, W: A. Masks in a pageant. (N '28)

Statesmen, British
Beaverbrook, W: M. A., baron. Politicians and the war, 1914-1916. (N '28)
Cecil, A. British foreign secretaries, 1807-1916. (Mr '28)
Statesmen of the war in retrospect, 1918-1928. Martin, W: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Statistics
Rice, S. A. Quantitative methods in politics. (D '28)

Steam engines
Dickinson, H. W., and Jenkins, R. James Watt and the steam engine. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Steam turbines
Church, E. F. Steam turbines. (Ag '28)

Steamboat navigation

Mississippi river
Russell, C: E: A-rafting on the Mississip'. (D '28)

Steamboats
Parker, H., and Bowan, F. C. Mail and passenger steamships of the nineteenth century. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Steel

Metallurgy
Boylston, H. M. Introduction to the metallurgy of iron and steel. (D '28)

Steele, Sir Richard
Steele, R: Letters. (Ap '28)

Steering or drifting—which? Levinthal, I. H. (D '28)
Stentor, Ockham, D: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Stephen Langton. Powicke, F: M. (O '28)

Sterne, Laurence
Sterne, L. Letters. (Mr '28)

Stevens, John
Turnbull, A. D. John Stevens. (Ag '28)

Stevenson, Robert Louis
Chesterton, G. K. Robert Louis Stevenson. (Mr '28)

Still life painting
Furst, H. E. A: Art of still-life painting. (Ap '28)

Stillman, James
Burr, A. R. Portrait of a banker: James Stillman. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Stirabout. McCord, D: T. W. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Stocks
National industrial conference board. Employee stock purchase plans in the United States. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Woodward, W. H. Profits in bank stocks. (Ap '28)

Stone age
Osborn, H: F. Man rises to Parnassus. (S '28)
Stone-cutters
Forbes, H. Gravestones of early New England and the men who made them, 1653-1800. (Ap '28)
Stone desert. Martinez Zuviría, G. A. (D '28)
Stone dust. Hill, F. E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Stones of Italy. Formilli, C. T. G. (My '28)
Stonewall Jackson. Tate, A. (Je '28)
Storage batteries
Arendt, M. Storage batteries. (D '28)
Stories. Davis, M. G., ed. (O '28)
Storm, Lesley, pseud. See Clark, M. M. (D '28)
Storming heaven. Fox, R. (O '28)
Story-lives of master writers. Raymond, C: H. (Ag '28)
Story of architecture in America. Tallmadge, T: E. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Story of books up through the ages. Maxwell, M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Story of Buddha and Buddhism. Brown, B., ed. (My '28)
Story of chemistry. Darrow, F. L. (Mr '28)
Story of Confucius. Brown, B., ed. (My '28)
Story of fire. Hough, W. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Story of Gilbert and Sullivan. Goldberg, I: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Story of hair. Nessler, C: (O '28)
Story of Ivy. Lowndes, M. A. (My '28)
Story of light. Eaton, J. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Story of myths. Kellett, E. E: (Ap '28)
Story of old Nantucket. Macy, W: F. (O '28)
Story of oriental philosophy. Beck, L. A. (O '28)
Story of public utilities. Hungerford, E: (O '28)
Story of radio. Dunlap, O. E. (Mr '28)
Story of Saint Christopher. Ainsworth, J: (N '28)
Story of textiles. Watson, E. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Story of the American Indian. Radin, P. (Mr '28)
Story of the films. Kennedy, J. P., ed. (Ag '28)
Story of the gypsies. Bercovici. K. (N '28)
Story of the ten commandments. Moehlman, C. H: (My '28)
Story of the theatre. Hughes, G. (N '28)
Story of youth. Stoddard, T. L. (D '28)
Straight answers to life questions. Smith, C. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Strange bedfellows. Bent, S. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Strange case of Miss Annie Spragg. Bromfield, L: (N '28)
Strange case of "William" Cook. Keverne, R: (S '28)
Strange disappearances. O'Donnell, E. (Ap '28)
Strange fruit. Bottome, P. (D '28)
Strange fugitive. Callaghan, M. (O '28)
Strange interlude. O'Neill, E. G. (Ap '28)
Strange necessity. West, R. (D '28)
Strange sea mysteries. O'Donnell, E. (Ap '28)
Stranger and afraid. Olson, T. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Stranger at the feast. Chamberlain, G: A. (Ag '28)
Stranger in heaven. Vinal, H. (Ap '28)
Strangers and lovers. Granberry, E. (My '28)
Strangers of Rome. Clarke, I. C. (D '28)
Strauss, Richard
Strauss, R: Correspondence between [the author] and Hugo von Hofmannsthal, 1907-1918. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Stream of history. Parsons, G. (Ag '28)
Strenuous Italy. Gay, H. N. (Mr '28)
Strikes and lockouts
Selekman, B. M. Postponing strikes. (My '28)
Structure of the Alps. Collet, L. W: (Je '28)
Studdert Kennedy, H. A. See Kennedy, H. A. S. (D '28)
Students
Angell, R. C. Campus. (Je '28)
Book, W: F: How to succeed in college. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Edwards, R: H:, and others. Undergraduates. (D '28)
Faunce, W: H. P. Facing life. (D '28)
Pierce, A. E. Deans and advisers of women and girls. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Studies in early Christianity. (N '28)
Studies in New Testament Christianity. Barton, G: A. (D '28)
Studies in Shakespeare. Nicoll, A. (My '28)
Study in bronze. Hyman, E. (N '28)
Study in public finance. Pigou, A. C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Study of literature. Dudley, L. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Study of the Iliad in translation. Clark, F. L. (Ag '28)
Study on the minimum wage. Richardson, J. H. (N '28)
The stump farm. Rose, H. (Ag '28)
The stupid XIXth century. Daudet, L. A. (Je '28)
Sturt, George
Sturt, G: Small boy in the sixties. (My '28)
Stuyvesant, Peter
Van Loon, H. W. Life and times of Pieter Stuyvesant. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Subaltern on the Somme in 1916. Mark VII, pseud. (Mr '28)
Subconsciousness
Dummer, E. S., ed. The unconscious. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Taylor, W: S. Morton Prince and abnormal psychology. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Sugar trade
Cuba
Jenks, L. H. Our Cuban colony. (D '28)
Suicide
Cavan, R. S. Suicide. (Je '28)
Sullivan, Sir Arthur Seymour
Dunhill, T: F: Sullivan's comic operas. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Goldberg, I: Story of Gilbert and Sullivan. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Sullivan, H., and Flower, W. N. Sir Arthur Sullivan. (Je '28)
Sullivan's comic operas. Dunhill, T: F: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Sun
Proctor, M. Romance of the sun. (Ap '28)
Weir, J: W. Comets and the sun. (Je '28)
Sun Hawk. Chambers, R. W: (Je '28)
Sun of the dead. Shmelev, I. (My '28)
Sundar Singh
Heiler, F. Gospel of Sâdhu Sundar Singh. (Je '28)
Sundry great gentlemen. Bowen, M., pseud. (My '28)
Sunny side of Asia. Elliott, R: M. (Ag '28)
Sunset gun. Parker, D. (S '28)
Sunshine
Macfie, R. C. Sunshine and health. (Je '28)
Sunshine and health. Macfie, R. C. (Je '28)
Supernatural
Underhill, E. Man and the supernatural. (Ag '28)
Suppose we do something else. Clark, I. (My '28)
Surrender. Snaith, J: C. (O '28)
Surrey wood mystery. Eng title Murders in Surrey wood. Arnold, J: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Survey of modernist poetry. Riding, L., and Graves, R. (N '28)
Survey of socialism. Hearnshaw, F. J. C. (O '28)
Survey of the social structure of England & Wales as illustrated by statistics. Carr-Saunders, A. M., and Jones, D: C. (N '28)
Surveying
Davis, R. E., and others. Surveying theory and practice. (D '28)
Surveying theory and practice. Davis, R. E., and others. (D '28)
Survival. Campbell, E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Susan B. Anthony. Dorr, R. L. (D '28)
Suttee
Thompson, E: Suttee. (O '28)
Swag, Coe, C: F. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Swan song. Galsworthy, J: (S '28)

Sweden's best stories. Larsen, H. A., ed. (N '28)
Sweet water and bitter. Moore, V. (D '28)
Swift, Gustavus Franklin
Swift, L: F., and Van Vlissingen, A. Yankee of the Yards. (My '28)
Swift, Jonathan
Dark, S. Five deans. (O '28)
Leslie, S. Skull of Swift. (My '28)
Swindlers and swindling
O'Connor, J: J. Broadway racketeers. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Swinging shutter. Fraser-Simson, C. (O '28)
Swiss family O'Malley. O'Malley, F. W. (D '28)
Switzerland
Description and travel
Ashby, D. Things seen in Switzerland in summer. (N '28)
Laughlin, C. E. Where it all comes true in Italy and Switzerland. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Lunn, A. H: M. Switzerland. (N '28)
Switzerland. Lunn, A. H: M. (N '28)
Sword of state; Wellington after Waterloo. Buchan, S. (D '28)
Swords of the Vikings. Saxo Grammaticus. (N '28)
Swords on the sea. Hewes, A. D. (Ag '28)
Symbolism
Whitehead, A. N. Symbolism. (Ap '28)
Syndicalism
Elliott, W: Y. Pragmatic revolt in politics. (D '28)
Syria
Description and travel
Casey, R. J. Baghdad & points east. (D '28)
Chapple, J. M. To Bagdad and back. (S '28)
System of qualitative analysis for the rare elements. Noyes, A. A., and Bray, W: C. (D '28)

Table
Gunn, L. M. Table service and decoration. (N '28)
Lutes, D. Table setting and service for mistress and maid. (S '28)
Table service and decoration. Gunn, L. M. (N '28)
Table setting and service for mistress and maid. Lutes, D. (S '28)
Tahiti
Description and travel
Hall, J. N. Mid-Pacific. (Ag '28)
The taken child. Chamberlain, G: A. (D '28)
Taking of Ticonderoga in 1775. French, A. (D '28)
Taktuk. Lomen, H., and Flack, M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Tales, Spanish
Gunterman, B. L., comp. Castles in Spain. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Tales from Greek mythology. Pyle, K. (O '28)
Tales from Greenery street. Mackall, D. G: (O '28)
Tales of fresh-water fishing. Grey, Z. (D '28)
Tales of S.O.S. and T.T.T. Kitchin, F: H. (Mr '28)
Talks to boys. Billings, S. (D '28)
Talks to parents and young people. Eliot, C: W: (D '28)
Talks with Thomas Hardy at Max Gate, 1920-1922. Hardy, T:, and Collins, V. H: (My '28)
Tambo. Jenkins, J. F. (N '28)
Tamerlane. Lamb, H. (D '28)
Tammany boy. Cavanagh, D., pseud. (N '28)
Tammany hall
Allen, W: H. Al Smith's Tammany hall. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Werner, M. R. Tammany hall. (Je '28)
Tanaquil, pseud. See Le Clercq, J. G. C. (My '28)
Tannahill tangle. Wells, C. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Tariff
Crompton, G: Tariff. (Ap '28)
United States
Johnsen, J. E., comp. Agriculture and the tariff. (S '28)
Tarka the otter. Williamson, H: (Ap '28)
Tasmania
History
Hare, R. H. A. Voyage of the Caroline from England to Van Diemen's Land and Batavia in 1827-28. (D '28)
Taverns of old England. Maskell, H: P. (Mr '28)
Taxidermy
Clark, J. L. Trails of the hunted. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Teachers
Fitzpatrick, E: A:, and Hutson, P. W. Scholarship of teachers in secondary schools. (Ag '28)
Landis, B. Y. Professional codes. (My '28)
Leighton, J. A. Individuality and education. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Salaries, pensions, etc.
Peixotto, J. B. Getting and spending at the professional standard of living. (My '28)
Training
Fitzpatrick, E: A:, and Hutson, P. W. Scholarship of teachers in secondary schools. (Ag '28)
Hill, C. M. Decade of progress in teacher training. (O '28)
Teaching
Adams, J: Errors in school. (Je '28)
Holley, C: E. Practical teacher. (My '28)
Waples, D. Problems in classroom method. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Washburne, C. W., and Stearns, M. M. Better schools. (O '28)
Teaching, Freedom of
Lippmann, W. American inquisitors. (Ag '28)
Teaching of English. Cox, S. (O '28)
Teaching of home economics. Brown, C. M., and Haley, A. H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Teaching the social studies. Dawson, E., and others. (Ap '28)
Technical methods of analysis. Griffin, R. C., ed. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Technical societies
Bibliography
National research council. Research information service. Handbook of scientific and technical societies and institutions of the United States and Canada. (Je '28)
Technique of controversy. Bogoslovsky, B. B. (O '28)
Technique of pencil drawing. Johnson, B. (N '28)
Teeth
Kanner, L. Folklore of the teeth. (S '28)
Care and hygiene
Hartman, L. L. Teeth and the mouth. (Je '28)
Teeth and the mouth. Hartman, L. L. (Je '28)
Telephone
Harrison, H. H. Elements of telephone transmission. (My '28)
Tellings. Paxton, T. S. (O '28)
Temperament
Roback, A. A. Psychology of character. (Ag '28)
Temptation of Anthony. Schneider, I. (Ag '28)
Ten years' adventures among landlords and tenants. Rider, D. (Je '28)
Tendency of history. Adams, H: (S '28)
Tenement houses
Townroe, B. S. Slum problem. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Tennis
Lacoste, J. R. Lacoste on tennis. (O '28)
Wills, H. Tennis. (Ag '28)

Tennyson, Alfred Tennyson, 1st baron
Atkins, G. G. Reinspecting Victorian religion. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Tents of wickedness. McCallum, M. R. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Termites
Wheeler, W: M. Social insects. (O '28)
"Terrible siren," Victoria Woodhull (1838-1927). Sachs, E. L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Texas

History
Creel, G: Sam Houston. (Ag '28)
Texas man. Raine, W: M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Textbook of bacteriology and its applications. Hilliard, C. M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Textbook of systematic botany. Swingle, D. B. (N '28)
Textile fabrics. Johnson, G: H: (Ap '28)

Textile industry and fabrics
Johnson, G: H: Textile fabrics. (Ap '28)
Watson, E. Story of textiles. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Thackeray, William Makepeace
Benjamin, L: S. William Makepeace Thackeray. (Ag '28)
That bright heat. O'Neil, G: (Je '28)
That dinner at Bardolph's. Walling, R. A. J: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
That gay nineties murder. Daingerfield, F. (Je '28)
That magic fire. Bates, S. C. (N '28)
That Mexican! McLean, R. N. (O '28)
That mind of yours. Leary, D. B. (My '28)

Theater
Dukes, A. World to play with. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Isaacs, E. J. R., ed. Theatre. (Ap '28)
Kraft, I. Plays, players, playhouses. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

History
Hughes, G. Story of the theatre. (N '28)
Nicoll, A. Development of the theater. (My '28)

Yearbooks
Mantle, B., ed. Best plays of 1927-1928; and, The year book of the drama in America. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

California
Rourke, C. M. Troupers of the Gold Coast. (D '28)

England
Hotson, J: L. Commonwealth and restoration stage. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lawrence, W: J: Pre-restoration stage studies. (Ag '28)

Europe
Flanagan, H. Shifting scenes of the modern European theatre. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

London
Spencer, H. Shakespeare improved. (O '28)

United States
Duffus, R. L. American renaissance. (N '28)
Nathan, G: J. Art of the night. (My '28)
Woollcott, A. Going to pieces. (O '28)

Theaters

Stage setting and scenery
Cheney, S. W. Stage decoration. (My '28)
Lawrence, W: J: Pre-restoration stage studies. (Ag '28)
Theatre. Isaacs, E. J. R., ed. (Ap '28)
Theatre of Neptune in New France. Lescarbot, M. (S '28)
Their majesties of Scotland. Cook, E. T. (S '28)
Theodore Savage. Eng title of Lest ye die. Hamilton, C. M. (O '28)

Theology
Barnes, E. W: Should such a faith offend? (Je '28)
Smith, G. B. Current Christian thinking. (Je '28)

Theology, Practical
McAfee, C. B. Ministerial practices. (D '28)
Theory of the labor movement. Perlman, S. (N '28)

Therapeutics
Cohen, S. S., and Githens, T: S. Pharmacotherapeutics, materia medica and drug action. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Theresa. Schnitzler, A. (D '28)
Thérèse. Mauriac. (Ag '28)

Thermionic phenomena
Bloch, E. Thermionic phenomena. (Ap '28)
These changing times. Eastman, E: R. (Mr '28)
These men, thy friends. Thompson, E: J: (Ap '28)
They could not sleep. Burt, M. S. (Je '28)
They return at evening. Wakefield, H: R. (S '28)
They sailed on a Friday. Paynter, T: C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
They who paddle. Webster, R. (N '28)
Things seen in Madeira. Hutcheon, J. E. (N '28)
Things seen in Switzerland in summer. Ashby, D. (N '28)
Things seen in the Bay of Naples. Mackinnon, A. G. (S '28)
Things seen in the Dolomites. Davidson, L. M. (Ag '28)
Things to come. Murray, J: M. (D '28)
Things were different. Fagan, E. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Third book of modern verse. Rittenhouse, J. B., ed. (Ap '28)
This advertising business. Durstine, R. S. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
This American world. Mowrer, E. A. (Ag '28)
This book-collecting game. Newton, A. E: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
This earth we live on. Duval, E. W. (My '28)
This economic world. Carver, T: N., and Lester, H. W. (Ag '28)
This London. Hopkins, R. T. (N '28)
This man and this woman. Livingston, F. B. (S '28)
This puzzling planet. Brewster, E. T. (D '28)
This side idolatry. Roberts, C. E. B. (N '28)
This smoking world. Hamilton, A. E. (Mr '28)
This way out. Littell, P. (N '28)

Thomas, Theodore
Russell, C: E: American orchestra and Theodore Thomas. (Mr '28)

Thomas á Becket, Saint, abp. of Canterbury
Dark, S. St Thomas of Canterbury. (My '28)
Thomas Hardy. Braybrooke, P. (My '28)

Thompson, Francis
Mégroz, R. L. Francis Thompson, the poet of earth in heaven. (Mr '28)

Thompson, William Hale
Counts, G: S. School and society in Chicago. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Those ancient lands. Golding, L: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Though this be madness. Keable, R. (O '28)
Thought and brain. Piéron, H. (My '28)
Thought broker. Crothers, S: M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Thought-control in everyday life. Alexander, J. (Ag '28)
Thoughts without words. Day, C. S. (Ag '28)
Three boy scouts in Africa. Douglas, R. D. jr., and others. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Three boys in Alaska. Tomlinson, E. T. (N '28)
Three-cornered hat. Alarcón, P. A. de. (My '28)
Three days' terror. Fletcher, J. S. (O '28)
Three gates. Brown, E. A. (D '28)
Three last plays. Gregory, I. A. (N '28)
Three musketeers of the air. Köhl, H., and others. (D '28)
Three passions. Hamilton, C. (D '28)
Three plays. Lenormand, H. R. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Three wise men of the East. Todd, A. J. (My '28)
Three young crows. Baynes, E. H. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Through beds of stone. Haskins, M. L. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Through jade gate and Central Asia. Cable M., and French, F. (My '28)
Through the Apennines and the lands of the Abruzzi. Canziani, E. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Through the heart of Afghanistan. Trinkler, E. (S '28)
Through the heel of Italy. Hooker, K. (Ap '28)
Tibet
Description and travel
Huc, E. R. Huc and Gabet; travels in Tartary, Thibet and China, 1844-1846. (S '28)
Religion
Ellam, J. E. Religion of Tibet. (N '28)
Tick of the clock. Asbury, H. (Ap '28)
Ticonderoga, N.Y.
Capture, 1775
French, A. Taking of Ticonderoga in 1775. (D '28)
Tide of empire. Kyne, P: B. (S '28)
Tigers, gold, and witch-doctors. Digby, G: B. (My '28)
Timbuctoo
Hall, L. Timbuctoo. (Mr '28)
Time
Lewis, W. Time and western man (Mr '28)
Time and change. Cram, W: E. (Je '28)
Time and western man. Lewis, W. (Mr '28)
Time importuned. Warner, S. T. (O '28)
Time is a gentleman. Thomson, C: G. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Timūr, the Great
Lamb, H. Tamerlane. (D '28)
Tin mines and mining
Moor, C. G: Tin mining. (O '28)
Tin mining. Moor, C. G: (O '28)
Tired captains. Curtis, K. (Je '28)
Tis, pseud. See Furst, H. E. A: (Ap '28)
Titanic hotel mystery. Hawk, J:, pseud. (S '28)
To Bagdad and back. Chapple, J. M. (S '28)
To kiss the crocodile. Milton, E. Ag '28
To the pure . . . Ernst, M. L., and Seagle, W: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
To youth. Weaver, J: Van A. (O '28)
Tobacco
Hamilton, A. E. This smoking world. (Mr '28)
Physiological effect
Schrumpf-Pierron, P. Tobacco & physical efficiency. (Ag '28)
Tobacco & physical efficiency. Schrumpf-Pierron, P. (Ag '28)
Tod. of the fens. Whitney, E. (O '28)
Together. Hughes, P., pseud. (Ag '28)
Toilers of the hills. Fisher, V. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Tokefield papers. Swinnerton, F. A. (My '28)
Told again. De La Mare, W. J: (Ap '28)
Tolstoi, Leo Nikolaievich, count
Zweig, S. Adepts in self-portraiture. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Drama
Stevens, H: B. Tolstoy. (N '28)
Tolstoy. Stevens, H: B. (N '28)
Tombs
Randall-MacIver, D: Iron age in Italy. (N '28)
Tombstone, Arizona
Breakenridge, W: M. Helldorado. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Too many people. Priestley, J: B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Too much Java. Wiehe, E. M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Tootleoo two. Darwin, B. R: M. and E. M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Top drawer. (Ap '28)
Top kick. Nason, L. H. (N '28)
Torches flare. Young, S. (Ag '28)
Torture Island. Hart, I. R. G. (S '28)
Touchdown! Stagg, A. A. (F '29) (1928 Annual) (1928 Annual)
Toucoutou. Tinker, E: L. (Ag '28)
Toulemonde. Morley, C. D. (S '28)
Toward Sodom. Dunham, B. M. (Mr '28)
The tower. Yeats, W: B. (Ag '28)
Town and country. Miller, E. E. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Towns and people of modern Germany. McBride, R. M. (My '28)
Towns of destiny. Belloc, H. (My '28)
Toys of peace. Munro, H. H. (Ag '28)
Traceries. Wadsley, O. (D '28)
Tracks in the snow. Charnwood, G. R. B. (Mr '28)
Trade unions
Perlman, S. Theory of the labor movement. (N '28)
Great Britain
Cole, G: D. H. Short history of the British working class movement, 1900-1927. (Mr '28)
United States
Bimba, A. History of the American working class. (Je '28)
Dunn, R. W. Company unions. (Ag '28)
Foster, W: Z. Misleaders of labor. (My '28)
Hardman, J. B. S., ed. American labor dynamics in the light of post-war developments. (S '28)
Tragedy
Lucas, F. L. Tragedy in relation to Aristotle's "Poetics." (Je '28)
Smith, R. M., ed. Types of world tragedy. (S '28)
Tragedy at Ravensthorpe. Stewart, A. W. (My '28)
Tragedy at the Unicorn. Street, C. J: C: (N '28)
Tragedy in relation to Aristotle's "Poetics." Lucas, F. L. (Je '28)
Tragedy of Edward VII. Edwards, W: H. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Tragic empress. Paléologue, G. M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Trails and summits of the Adirondacks. O'Kane, W. C. (O '28)
Trails of the hunted. Clark, J. L. (Ja '28) (1928 Annual)
Training for speaking. Berton, P. (Mr '28)
Training of an American: Walter H. Page. Hendrick, B. J. (Ag '28)
Tramps of a scamp. Michael, E:, and Booth, J. B. (N '28)
Transgressor. Richardson, A. (D '28)
Transition from aristocracy, 1832-1867. Christie, O. F. (S '28)
Transplantation (physiology)
Voronoff, S. Conquest of life. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
The transplanting. Balascheff, M. (My '28)
Transportation
Hader, B. and E. Picture book of travel. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
History
Keir, R. M. March of commerce. (Je '28)
Paterson, J. History and development of road transport. (N '28)
Travel
Hader, B. and E. Picture book of travel. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Travel and sport in many lands. Stewart, P. M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Travel-diaries. Beckford, W: (N '28)
Traveling light; [Great Britain, France, Belgium and Holland]. Harrigan, M. H. (Ag '28)
Traveling light; [Spain and Morocco]. Harrigan, M. H. (Ag '28)
Travelling standing still. Taggard, G. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Travels. Bartram, W: (Ap '28)
Travels in North Africa. Slouschz, N. (Ag '28)
Treason of the intellectuals (La trahison des clercs). Benda, J. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Treasure cave. Asquith, C. M. E., ed. (F '29) (1928 Annual) Treasure ship. Brandane, J: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Treasure-trove. Knipe, E. and A. A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Tree of knowledge. Baroja y Nessi, P. (O '28)

Trees
Greeves-Carpenter, C. F. Care of ornamental trees in planting. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Porteous, A. Forest folklore, mythology, and romance. (S '28)
Schrepfer, F. A. Hardy evergreens. (D '28)
Wilson, E. H: More aristocrats of the garden. (Je '28)
Young, A. Trees at night. (Mr '28)
Trees at night. Young, A. (Mr '28)
Trenck, Friedrich, freiherr von der
Fiction
Frank, B. Trenck. (N '28)
Trevy the River. Reid, L. (My '28)
Trial of Mary Dugan. Veiller, B. (D '28)
Trial of Patrick Mahon. Mahon, P. H., defendant. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Trial of Professor Webster. Dilnot, G: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Trial of the detectives. Dilnot, G:, ed. (S '28)
Trial of the Duchess of Kingston. Chudleigh, E. (defendant). (My '28)
Trials
Bierstadt, E: H. Curious trials and criminal cases from Socrates to Scopes. (N '28)
Borrow, G:, ed. Celebrated trials and remarkable cases of criminal jurisprudence from the earliest records to the year 1825. (O '28)
Chudleigh, E. (defendant). Trial of the Duchess of Kingston. (My '28)
Curtis, J. Mysterious murder of Maria Marten at Polstead, in Suffolk. (N '28)
Dilnot, G: Trial of Professor Webster. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Dilnot, G:, ed. Trial of the detectives. (S '28)
Harry, G. Peltzer case. (N '28)
Hays, A. G. Let freedom ring. (S '28)
Mahon, P. H., defendant. Trial of Patrick Mahon. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Parry, L. A. Some famous medical trials. (Je '28)
Wyndham, H. C. Crimes in high life. (Mr '28)
Trivial breath. Wylie, E. H. (S '28)
Trojan boy. Crew, H. (D '28)
Trollope, Anthony
Walpole, H. Anthony Trollope. (Ag '28)
Tropical fruit. Harding, A. (D '28)
Troubles we don't talk about! Montague, J. F. (Ap '28)
Troupers of the Gold Coast. Rourke, C. M. (D '28)
Trout fishing
Southard, C: Z. Evolution of trout and trout fishing in America. (Ag '28)
Trub's diary. Foote, J: T. (S '28)
True history of the conquest of Mexico. Diaz del Castillo, B. (O '28)
True story of Mary, wife of Lincoln. Helm, K. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
True story of the so-called love letters of Mrs Piozzi. Merritt, E: P. (O '28)
Trueboy. Hinkle, T: C. (O '28)
Trusts
Levy, H. Monopolies, cartels and trusts in British industry. (Je '28)
Truth
Stefánsson, V. Standardization of error. (My '28)
Taylor, H: O. Human values and verities. (Ag '28)
Truth about Quex. Eng title of Quex. Jerrold, D. (My '28)
Tsêng Kuo-fan
Hail, W: J. Tsêng Kuo-fan and the Taiping rebellion. (Ap '28)
Tsêng Kuo-fan and the Taiping rebellion. Hail, W: J. (Ap '28)
Tuaregs
Campbell, D. On the trail of the veiled Tuareg. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Tuberculosis
Myers, J. A. Fighters of fate. (My '28)
Turkestan
Description and travel
Cable, M., and French, F. Through jade gate and central Asia. (My '28)
Turkey
Description and travel
Franck, H. A. Fringe of the Moslem world. (D '28)
History
Hālidah Adīb. Turkish ordeal. (N '28)
Politics and government
Hālidah Adīb. Turkish ordeal. (N '28)
Turkish ordeal. Hālidah Adīb. (N '28)
Turning point of the revolution. Nickerson, H. (Ag '28)
Turquoise trail. Henderson, A., comp. (N '28)
Twelve portraits of the French revolution. Béraud, H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Twelve thousand. Frank, B. (My '28)
Twentieth century
Barnes, H. E. Living in the twentieth century. (D '28)
Twentieth-century essays and addresses. Archbold, W: A. J., ed. (S '28)
20 hrs. 40 min. Earhart, A. (N '28)
20,000 leagues under the sea. Benchley, R. C: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Twenty years with James G. Blaine. Sherman, T: H: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Twilight of the American mind. Pitkin, W. B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Twisted tendril. Glasgow, A. (S '28)
Two black Crows in the A.E.F. Mack, C: E. (N '28)
Two flights up. Rinehart, M. (N '28)
Two Forsyte interludes. Galsworthy, J: (Ap '28)
"2. L. O." Masterman, W. S. (My '28)
Two passengers for Chelsea. Firkins, O. W. (My '28)
Twopence coloured. Hamilton, P. (O '28)
Tynan, Katherine. See Hinkson, K. (Ag '28)
Types of modern dramatic composition. Phillips, Le R., and Johnson, T., eds. (Ap, Ag '28)
Types of philosophic drama. Smith, R. M., ed. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Types of world tragedy. Smith, R. M., ed. (S '28)
Tzŭ-Hsi, empress dowager of China
Der Ling, princess. Old Buddha. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Umbria
Description and travel
Ricci, C. Umbria santa. (Ag '28)
Umbria santa. Ricci, C. (Ag '28)
The unburied dead. Eng title of Divided allegiance. McKenna, S. (D '28)
Uncertain treasure. Woodbury, H. (Mr '28)
Uncle Tom Pudd. Housman, L. (D '28)
The unconscious. Dummer, E. S., ed. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Unconventional garden. Hort, A. F. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Under the yew. Nichols, R. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Under three reigns, 1860-1920. Gell, E. M. (Je '28)
Under turquoise skies. Robinson, W: H: (S '28)
Undergraduates. Edwards, R: H:, and others. (D '28)
Underground. Farjeon, J. J. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Understanding human nature. Adler, A. (O '28)
Understanding India. Williams, G. L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Undertakers and undertaking
Gebhart, J: C: Funeral costs. (O '28)
Undeveloped mineral resources of the South. Payne, H: M. (D '28)
Undine. Schreiner, O. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Unfathomed Japan. Foght, H. W. and A. M. (D '28)
Unforbidden fruit. Fabian, W., pseud. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Unforgiven. Krasnov, P. N. (My '28)
Unintentional charm of men. Warner, F. L. (D '28)

Unique character of American secondary education. Judd, C: H. (D '28)
Unique status of man. Carr, H. W. (Ag '28)
Unitarianism
Gow, H: Unitarians. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Reese, C. W., ed. Humanist sermons. (My '28)
Unitarians. Gow, H: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
United States. Army. A.E.F., 1917-1920
Frothingham, T: G. American reinforcement in the world war. (Mr '28)
Johnson, T: M. Without censor. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Liggett, H. A. E. F. (Je '28)
Van Every, D. A. E. F. in battle. (Ag '28)
United States. Congress. House
Chiu, C-W. Speaker of the House of representatives since 1896. (S '28)
United States. Constitution
Bacon, G. G. Constitution of the United States in some of its fundamental aspects. (D '28)
Warren, C: Making of the Constitution. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
United States. 1st Congress, 1789-1791
Maclay, W: Journal of William Maclay. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
United States. National park service
Albright, H. M., and Taylor, F. J. "Oh, ranger!" (O '28)
United States. Office of Indian affairs
Schmeckebier, L. F: Office of Indian affairs. (D '28)
United States. Railroad labor board
Wolf, H. D. Railroad labor board. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
United States. Supreme court
Frankfurter, F., and Landis, J. M. Business of the Supreme court. (My '28)
United States
Biography
Clark, I. Old days and old ways. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Faris, J: T. Romance of forgotten men. (D '28)
Fuess, C. M. Men of Andover. (S '28)
Pringle, H: F. Big frogs. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Seitz, D. C. The "also rans." (My '28)
Seldes, G. V. Stammering century. (N '28)
Villard, O. G. Prophets true and false. (S '28)
Wright, R. L. Forgotten ladies. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Civilization
Adams, J. T. Provincial society, 1690-1763. (Mr '28)
Fish, C. R. Rise of the common man. (My '28)
Jones, H. M. America and French culture, 1750-1848. (My '28)
Merz, C: Great American band-wagon. (Mr '28)
Mirrors of the year, 1927-8. (Je '28)
Mowrer, E. A. This American world. (Ag '28)
Nevins, A. Emergence of modern America, 1865-1878. (My '28)
Page, K., ed. Recent gains in American civilization. (D '28)
Pitkin, W. B. Twilight of the American mind. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Wertenbaker, T: J. First Americans, 1607-1690. (Je '28)
Commerce
History
Keir, R. M. March of commerce. (Je '28)
Great Britain
Peel, G: Economic impact of America. (S '28)
Constitutional history
Warren, C: Making of the Constitution. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Constitutional law
Arneson, B. A. Elements of constitutional law. (O '28)
Frankfurter, F., and Landis, J. M. Business of the Supreme court. (My '28)
Description and travel
Brigham, A. P. United States of America. (My '28)
Ford, F. M. New York is not America. (Ap '28)
Guedalla, P. Conquistador. (Mr '28)
Newcomb, R. In the Lincoln country. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Guide-books
Collins, F: L: American travelcharts and travel chats. (Ag '28)
Diplomatic and consular service
Willson, B. America's ambassadors to France (1777-1927). (Ag '28)
Economic conditions
Bent, S. Strange bedfellows. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Bush, I. T. Working with the world. (Ap '28)
Fairchild, F. R., and Compton, R. T., eds. Economic problems. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Faulkner, H. U. Economic history of the United States. (Je '28)
Feiler, A. America seen through German eyes. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Fish, C. R. Rise of the common man. (My '28)
Forman, S: E., ed. Sidelights on our social and economic history. (Je '28)
Garrett, G. American omen. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Jennings, W. W. Introduction to American economic history. (Ag '28)
Mazur, P. M. American prosperity. (Ag '28)
Nevins, A. Emergence of modern America, 1865-1878. (My '28)
Page, K. Dollars and world peace. (Ap '28)
Peel, G: Economic impact of America. (S '28)
Thorp, W. L. Economic institutions. (S '28)
Woods, E: A:, and Metzger, C. B. America's human wealth. (Ag '28)
Economic policy
Carter, J: F. Conquest. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Crecraft, E. W. Government and business. (O '28)
Raushenbush, H. S., and Laidler, H. W. Power control. (N '28)
Education, Department of (proposed)
Johnsen, J. E., comp. Selected articles on a federal department of education. (Ap '28)
Foreign population
Panunzio, C. M. Immigration crossroads. (Ap '28)
Foreign relations
Bemis, S: F., ed. American secretaries of state and their diplomacy. v 4-5 (O '28)
Carter, J: F. Conquest. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Dennis, A. L: P. Adventures in American diplomacy, 1896-1906. (My '28)
Etherton, P. T:, and Tiltman, H. H. The Pacific. (Ag '28)
Fox, F. Mastery of the Pacific. (O '28)
Garner, J. W. American foreign policies. (My '28)
Page, K. Dollars and world peace. (Ap '28)
Roosevelt, N: Restless Pacific. (Je '28)
Sears, L: M. History of American foreign relations. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Tyler, A. F. Foreign policy of James G. Blaine. (S '28)
World alliance for international friendship through the churches. Building international goodwill. (N '28)
Cuba
Jenks, L. H. Our Cuban colony. (D '28)
Dominican Republic
Knight, M. M. Americans in Santa Domingo. (Ag '28)
Welles, S. Naboth's vineyard. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

United States—Foreign relations—Continued

France

Willson, B. America's ambassadors to France (1777-1927). (Ag '28)

Mexico

Rippy, J. F., and others. Mexico. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Nicaragua

Cox, I: J. Nicaragua and the United States, 1909-1927. (Je '28)
Nogales y Mendez, R. de. Looting of Nicaragua. (Je '28)

Russia

Schuman, F: L: American policy toward Russia since 1917. (O '28)

Spanish America

Beman, L. T., comp. Selected articles on intervention in Latin America. (O '28)
Hughes, C: E. Our relations to the nations of the western hemisphere. (N '28)

Historic houses, etc.

Bryant, L. M. Children's book of American landmarks. (Mr '28)
Comstock, S. Roads to the Revolution. (Mr '28)
Kimball, S. F. American architecture. (N '28)

History

Morison, S: E. Oxford history of the United States, 1783-1917. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Muzzy, D: S. American adventure. (My '28)

Historiography

Lippmann, W. American inquisitors. (Ag '28)

Colonial period

Adams, R. G. Gateway to American history. (Ap '28)

French and Indian war, 1755-1763

Baker-Crothers, H. Virginia and the French and Indian war. (N '28)

Revolution

Baldwin, A. M. New England clergy and the American revolution. (S '28)
Comstock, S. Roads to the Revolution. (Mr '28)
Van Tyne, C. H. England and America. (Ap '28)

Revolution—Campaigns and battles

Nickerson, H. Turning point of the revolution. (Ag '28)

Constitutional period, 1789-1809

Minnigerode, M. Jefferson, friend of France, 1793. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Civil war

Dodd, W: E: Lincoln or Lee. (Ag '28)

Civil war—Campaigns and battles

Tate, A. Stonewall Jackson. (Je '28)

Civil war—Personal narratives

Gibbon, J: Personal recollections of the Civil war. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Gray, J: C., and Ropes, J: C. War letters, 1862-1865. (Mr '28)
Pickett, C: E: Soldier of the South. (Je '28)

Civil war—Poetry

Benet, S. V. John Brown's body. (S '28)

History, Juvenile

Adams, R. G. Gateway to American history. (Ap '28)

Industries

Garrett, G. American omen. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Mazur, P. M. American prosperity. (Ag '28)
Warshow, H. T:, ed. Representative industries in the United States. (N '28)
Wile, F: W:, ed. Century of industrial progress. (S '28)

Intellectual life

Pitkin, W. B. Twilight of the American mind. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Manufactures

Warshow, H. T:, ed. Representative industries in the United States. (N '28)

Navy

Rodman, H. Yarns of a Kentucky admiral. (S '28)

Politics and government

Arneson, B. A. Elements of constitutional law. (O '28)
Baldwin, A. M. New England clergy and the American revolution. (S '28)
Bancroft, F: Calhoun and the South Carolina nullification movement. (D '28)
Beard, C: A. American party battle. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Bent, S. Strange bedfellows. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Bruce, H. R. American parties and politics. (My '28)
Gettell, R. G. History of American political thought. (D '28)
Kent, F. R. Democratic party. (My '28)
Kent, F. R. Political behavior. (O '28)
Maury, R. Wars of the godly. (S '28)
Minnigerode, M. Presidential years, 1787-1860. (Ag '28)
Moley, R. Practice of politics. (Ag '28)
Munroe, W: B. Invisible government. (My '28)
Myers, W: S. Republican party. (Je '28)
Pollock, J. K., ed. Readings in American government. (Ag '28)
Rice, S. A. Quantitative methods in politics. (D '28)
Seitz, D. C. The "also rans." (My '28)
Stoddard, H: L. As I knew them. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Swift, L. B. How we got our liberties. (Ag '28)
Thompson, J: G. Urbanization. (My '28)
Underwood, O. W. Drifting sands of party politics. (Je '28)
White, W: A. Masks in a pageant. (N '28)

1789-1797

Maclay, W: Journal of William Maclay. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)

Public lands

Yard, R. S. Our federal lands. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Relations (general) with Europe

Mowrer, E. A. This American world. (Ag '28)

Relations (general) with France

Jones, H. M. America and French culture, 1750-1848. (My '28)

Relations (general) with Poland

Fisher, H. H:, and Brooks, S. America and the new Poland. (S '28)

Relations (general) with South America

Haring, C. H: South America looks at the United States. (Je '28)

Relations (general) with Spanish America

Rippy, J. F. Latin America in world politics. (S '28)

Religion

Dieffenbach, A. C: Religious liberty. (Ap '28)
Ferguson, C: W. Confusion of tongues. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Fiske, C: Confessions of a puzzled parson. (N '28)
Parrish, H. New God for America. (Ag '28)

Sanitary affairs

Dublin, L. I. Health and wealth. (Ag '28)

Social conditions
Feiler, A. America seen through German eyes. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Fish, C. R. Rise of the common man. (My '28)
Forman, S: E., ed. Sidelights on our social and economic history. (Je '28)
Kelso, R. W. Science of public welfare. (N '28)
Merz, C: Great American band-wagon. (Mr '28)
Nevins, A. Emergence of modern America, 1865-1878. (My '28)
Pitkin, W. B. Twilight of the American mind. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Sims, N. Le R. Elements of rural sociology. (O '28)

Social life and customs
Clark, I. Old days and old ways. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Tarkington, B. The world does move. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Colonial period
Adams, J. T. Provincial society, 1690-1763. (Mr '28)
Wertenbaker, T: J. First Americans, 1607-1690. (Je '28)

United States of America. Brigham, A. P. (My '28)

Universe
Younghusband, F. E: Life in the stars. (D '28)

Universe, Destruction of
Haldane, J: B. S. Last judgment. (My '28)
University debaters' annual, 1926-1927. Phelps, E. M., ed. (Ap '28)
Unknown Barnum. Root, H. W. (Mr '28)
Unpleasantness at the Bellona club. Sayers, D. L. (O '28)
Unrisen dawn. France, A. (N '28)
The unspeakable Curll. Straus, R. (Je '28)
Until the day break. Acosta, M. de. (Je '28)
Up country. Peattie, D. C. and L. (My '28)
Up Eel River. Montague, M. P. (Ag '28)
Up from the city streets, Alfred E. Smith. Hapgood, N., and Moskowitz, H: (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
An uphill road in India. Christlieb, M. L. (Ag '28)
Upward pass. Bellamann, H: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Urbanization. Thompson, J: G. (My '28)
Uther and Igraine. Deeping, W. (Je '28)

Vagabond's house. Blanding, D. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Vale, Charles, pseud. See Hooley, A. (Ap '28)
Valentine, Douglas, pseud. See Williams, V. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Van de Water, Virginia Belle (Terhune) (Mrs Frederic Franklyn Van de Water)
Van de Water, V. B. Heart of a child. (Je '28)
The Vanguard. Bennett, A. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Vanity under the sun. Collins, D. (O '28)
Vanzetti, Bartolomeo
Lyons, E. Life and death of Sacco and Vanzetti. (Ap '28)
Sacco, N., and Vanzetti, B. Letters. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Poetry
Trent, L., and Cheyney, R., eds. America arraigned! (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Fiction
Sinclair, U. B. Boston. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Variation (biology)
Bateson, W: William Bateson, F.R.S. naturalist. (O '28)
A variety of things. Beerbohm, M. (D '28)
Varina Howell. Rowland, E. O. (Mr '28)
Vasco. Chadourne, M. (O '28)
Vassilli, Count Paul, pseud. See Radziwill, C. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Veblen, Thorstein B.
Homan, P. T: Contemporary economic thought. (N '28)
Vedette, pesud. See Williams, V. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Vehicles
History
Paterson, J. History and development of road transport. (N '28)
Velvet hand. Footner, H. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Vengeful gods. Eng title of Jealous gods. Atherton, G. F. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual) Venice
History
Ragg, L. M. Crises in Venetian history. (D '28)
Ventilation
Rietschel, H. I., and Brabbée, C. W. Heating and ventilation. (N '28)
Venture. Eastman, M. (Je '28)
Ventures and voyages. Chatterton, E: K. (S '28)
Venus invisible. Crane, N. C. R. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Vequin, Capini, pseud. See Quinn, V. (My '28)
Verdict of the sea. Sullivan, A. (Ap '28)
Vermont
History
Wilbur, J. B: Ira Allen. (O '28)
Versailles, Treaty of, 1919
Mair, L. P. Protection of minorities. (D '28)
Stegemann, H. Mirage of Versailles. (S '28)
Vicar's daughter. Young, E. H. (D '28)
Victoria, queen of Great Britain
Victoria, queen of Great Britain. Letters; v 3. (Ap '28)
Vikings
Saxo Grammaticus. Swords of the Vikings. (N '28)
Village life under the soviets. Borders, K: (Mr '28)
Villon, François
Lewis, D. B. W. François Villon. (O '28)
Vincennes, Indiana
History
Clark, G: R., and Hamilton, H: Capture of old Vincennes. (Je '28)
Virgin islands
Description and travel
Fuller, H. O. Halsey in the West Indies. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Virgin queene. Powel, H. W. H. (Je '28)
Virginia
Description and travel
Byrd, W: Journey to the land of Eden. (N '28)
History
Baker-Crothers, H. Virginia and the French and Indian war. (N '28)
Virginia and the French and Indian war. Baker-Crothers, H. (N '28)
Vital statistics
Dublin, L: I. Health and wealth. (Ag '28)
Pearl, R. Rate of living. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Vitamines
Eddy, W. H. Nutrition. (D '28)
Voadica. Hannah, I. C. (O '28)
Vocational guidance
Lyon, L. S: Making a living. (D '28)
Myers, G: E. Problem of vocational guidance. (D '28)
Voltaire, François Marie Arouet de
Thaddeus, V: Voltaire, genius of mockery. (D '28)
Voltaire, genius of mockery. Thaddeus, V: (D '28)
Voyage for the discovery of the northwest passage, 1631. James, T: (D '28)

Voyage of the Caroline from England to Van Diemen's Land and Batavia in 1827-28. Hare, R. H. A. (D '28)
Voyage of the Norman D. Follett, B. N. (Ag '28)
Voyage to Pagany. Williams, W: C. (D '28)
Voyages and travels
Bell, G. M. L. Letters. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Cameron, J: John Cameron's odyssey. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Chatterton, E: K. Ventures and voyages. (S '28)
Cust, N. Wanderers. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Davidson, N. J. Romance of modern travel. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Finger, C: J., ed. Heroes from Hakluyt. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Forbes, R. Adventure. (S '28)
James, T: Voyage for the discovery of the northwest passage, 1631. (D '28)
Komroff, M., ed. Contemporaries of Marco Polo. (S '28)
Loomis, A. F. Fair winds in the far Baltic. (Ag '28)
OBrien, C. From three yachts. (Je '28)
Stewart, P. M. Travel and sport in many lands. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Walter, E. World on one leg. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Wilson, P. W. Explorer of changing horizons: William Edgar Geil. (Ap '28)

W. E. Gladstone. Burdett, O. (Mr '28)
W. R. Hearst. Winkler, J: K. (Ag '28)
Wade, Henry, pseud. See Aubrey-Fletcher, H: L. (N '28)
Wage arbitration. Soule, G: H: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Wages
Soule, G: H: Wage arbitration. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Spicer, R. S. British engineering wages. (Ag '28)
Wales, South
Description and travel
Johnson, E. R: Interpretations. (Je '28)
Walls of Jericho. Fisher, R. (O '28)
"Walt." Corbett, E. F. (Ap '28)
Wanderer. Cust, N. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
The wanderer (Le grand Meaulnes). Fournier, A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Wapoose. Cartwright, Z. (S '28)
War
Coblentz, S. A. Marching men. (Ag '28)
Norton, H: K. Back of war. (My '28)
War among ladies. Scott, E. (S '28)
War drums. Sass, H. R. (Ag '28)
War letters, 1862-1865. Gray, J: C., and Ropes, J: C. (Mr '28)
Warpath & cattle trail. Collins, H. E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Warped in the making. Ashton-Wolfe, H. (Ag '28)
Wars of the godly. Maury, R. (S '28)
Warwick, George, pseud. See Deeping, W. (Je, N '28)
Washington, George
Barton, W: E. Father of his country. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Hughes, R. George Washington, v 2. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Washington, G: Washington speaks for himself. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Fiction
Bloem, W. S. Son of his country. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Washington, D.C.
Biography
Andrews, M. M. My studio window. (D '28)
Social life and customs
Andrews, M. M. My studio window. (D '28)
Washington speaks for himself. Washington, G: (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Wast, Hugo, pseud. See Martinez Zuviría, G. A. (Ap, D '28)
Waste corner. Manning-Sanders, R. (N '28)
Water
Purification
Bushwell, A. M. Chemistry of water and sewage treatment. (Ag '28)
Water! Terhune, A. P. (My '28).
Water birds
Alexander, W. B. Birds of the ocean. (Je '28)
Beetham, B. Among our banished birds. (Mr '28)
Water elf and the miller's child. Baker, M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Waterhouse, Benjamin
Adams, J:, and Waterhouse, B: Statesman and friend; correspondence of John Adams with Benjamin Waterhouse. (Ap '28)
Watt, James
Dickinson, H. W., and Jenkins, R. James Watt and the steam engine. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Way for a sailor! Wetjen, A. R: (F '29) (1928 Annual)
The way it was with them. O'Donnell, P. (D '28)
Way of power. Beck, L. A. (Je '28)
Way of sacrifice. Unruh, F. von. (Ag '28)
Way of sinners. Buckley, F: R. (Mr '28)
Way of Umé. Sawyer, E. A. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Way things are. De La Pasture, E. E. M. (Mr '28)
Wayfarer in French vineyards. Robson, E. I. (S '28)
Wayfarer in the West Indies. Aspinwall, A. E: (Ag '28)
Wayne Wheeler, dry boss. Steuart, J. (O '28)
Ways of behaviorism. Watson, J: B. (S '28)
We are incredible. Latimer, M. (Ag '28)
We fight for oil. Denny, L. (S '28)
We five. Whitcomb, E. P. (D '28)
We forget because we must. Maxwell, W: B. (D '28)
We have changed all that. Quick, H., and MacMahon, E. S. (Je '28)
We sing Diana. Neff, W. F. (Ap '28)
Weale, Putnam, pseud. See Simpson, B. L. (N '28)
Wealth
Ryan, J: A. Distributive justice. (Ap '28)
Webster, John W.
Dilnot, G: Trial of Professor Webster. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Weeks, John Wingate
Washburn, C: G. Life of John W. Weeks. (D '28)
Weems, Mason Locke
Kellock, H. Parson Weems of the cherry-tree. (My '28)
Welcome home. Miller, A. (My '28)
Well of loneliness. Hall, R. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Wellington, Arthur Wellesley, 1st duke of
Buchan, S. Sword of state; Wellington after Waterloo. (D '28)
Wellington, A. W. Great man's friendship. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Werewolf. Swem, C: L. (D '28)
Wesley, John
Lee, U. Lord's horseman [John Wesley]. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Lipsky, A. John Wesley. (D '28)
West
Description and travel
Sharp, D. L. Better country. (Je '28)
West Indies
Description and travel
Aspinwall, A. E: Wayfarer in the West Indies. (Ag '28)
Foster, H. La T. Caribbean cruise. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
West-running brook. Frost, R. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Whaling
Hohman, E. P. American whaleman. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Macy, W: F. Story of old Nantucket. (O '28)

Wharton, Anthony, pseud. See McAllister, A.
(N '28)
What about advertising? Goode, K. M., and Powel, H. W. H. (My '28)
What am I? Spaulding, E: G. (N '28)
What everybody wanted. Singmaster, E. (N '28)
What is cooperation? Warbasse, J. P: (Ap '28)
What remains of the Old Testament. Gunkel, H. (Je '28)
What the employer thinks. Houser, J. D: (Ap '28)
What to read in English literature. Crawford, J. R. (N '28)
What women fear. Riddell, F. (S '28)
What you should know about health and disease. Haggard, H. W. (Ap '28)
What'll we do now? Longstreth, E:, and Holton, L. T. (S '28)

Wheeler, Wayne Bidwell
Steuart, J. Wayne Wheeler, dry boss. (O '28)
When he came to himself. Tucker, L: (S '28)
When I grow rich. Sidgwick, E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
When the turtles sing. Marquis, D. (N '28)
When they love. Baring, M. (N '28)
When West was West. Wister, O. (S '28)
Where it all comes true in Italy and Switzerland. Laughlin, C. E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Where the loon calls. Drago, H. S. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Where's Emily? Wells, C. (My '28)
Which college? Halle, R. (My '28)

Whiffen, Blanche (Galton) (Mrs Thomas Whiffen)
Whiffen, B. Keeping off the shelf. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
While rivers run. Walsh, M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
While the gods grinned. Turner, J: H. (S '28)
Whisper of a name (Grand-Louis l'Innocent). Le Franc, M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
White cat. Aulnoy, M. C. J. de B. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
White Fox. Scoggins, C: E. (Ap '28)
White man's dilemma. Peffer, N. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
White Oak farm. McCants, E. C. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
White Swallow. Sterne, E. G. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
White wallet. Grey of Fallodon, P., comp. (D '28)
Whither China? Nearing, S. (My '28)
Whither mankind. Beard, C: A., ed. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Whitman, Walt
Barton, W: E. Abraham Lincoln and Walt Whitman. (My '28)

Fiction

Corbett, E. F. "Walt." (Ap '28)
Who killed Gregory? Jones, E. (N '28)
Who's Hoover? Hard, W: (S '28)
Why men fail. Fishbein, M., and White, W: A., eds. (Ag '28)
Why we misbehave. Schmalhausen, S: D. (N '28)
Wide fields. Green, P. (Ag '28)
Wier, L. H., ed. See Playground and recreation association of America. (D '28)
Wild animal interviews and wild opinions of us. Hornaday, W: T. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Wild animal pets. Finley, W: L. and I. (Ag '28)
Wild body. Lewis, W. (Ap '28)
Wild party. March, J. M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Wilde, Oscar

Drama

Cohen, L. Oscar Wilde. (Ag '28)
Wilderness house. Daingerfield, F. (O '28)

Will
Paton, H. J. Good will. (O '28)
Will-o'-the-wisp. Wentworth, P. (D '28)

William II, German emperor (abdicated 1918)
Hermine, princess, consort of William II. Empress in exile. (D '28)
William Bateson, F.R.S. naturalist. Bateson, W: (O '28)
William Byrd. Howes, F. (Je '28)
William Cook—antique dealer. Eng title of Strange case of "William" Cook. Keverne, R: (S '28)
William Gregg. Mitchell, B. (N '28)
William Law and eighteenth century Quakerism. Hobhouse, S. H: (My '28)
William Makepeace Thackeray. Benjamin, L: S. (Ag '28)

Wilson, Mrs Desemea (Newman). See Patrick, D., pseud. (Ap '28)

Wilson, John (Christopher North, pseud.)
Lowell, C. T. Christopher North and the Noctes Ambrosianae. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Wilson, Woodrow
Baker, R. S. Life and letters of Woodrow Wilson. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
House, E: M. Intimate papers of Colonel House, v 3-4. (D '28)
Wind out of Betelgeuse. Ritter, M. T. (S '28)
The window. Rosman, A. G. (O '28)
Window display advertising. Percy, C. (Je '28)
Winds from the moon. Novák, S. R. (N '28)
Windsor beauties. Benjamin, L: S. (D '28)

Wine and wine making
Robson, E. I. Wayfarer in French vineyards. (S '28)
Shand, P. M. Book of French wines. (N '28)
Winged horse. Auslander, J., and Hill, F. E. (Ag '28 and 1927 Annual)
Wings of song. Caruso, D., and Goddard, T. (Ag '28)
Winston Churchill. Roberts, C. E. B. (My '28)
Winter words. Hardy, T: (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Wintersmoon. Walpole, H. (Ap '28)
Wireless principles and practice. Palmer, L. S. (N '28)
Wise wife. Roche, A. S. (Ap '28)
With a camera in Tiger-land. Champion, F: W. (Je '28)
With malice toward none. Morrow, H. (S '28)
Withered root. Davies, R. (My '28)
Within the walls of Nanking. Hobart, A. T. (S '28)
Without censor. Johnson, T: M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Wolfgang Amade Mozart. Hussey, D. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Woman
Collins, J. Doctor looks at marriage and medicine. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

Biography

Benjamin, L: S. Maids of honour. (Mr '28)
Benjamin, L: S. Windsor beauties. (D '28)
Blei, F. Fascinating women. (D '28)
Guedalla, P. Bonnet and shawl. (D '28)
Latour, T. L: Princesses, ladies and salonniéres of the reign of Louis XV. (N '28)
Rogers, C. Gallant ladies. (Ap '28)
Wright, R. L. Forgotten ladies. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Employment

Ormsbee, H. G. Young employed girl. (Ag '28)

History and condition

Haldane, C. Motherhood and its enemies. (Mr '28)
Messer, M. B. Family in the making. (Ag '28)

Legal status, laws, etc.

Smith, J. Woman in soviet Russia. (O '28)

Social and moral questions

Ormsbee, H. G. Young employed girl. (Ag '28)
Woman in flight. Reck-Malleczewen, F. P. (Ag '28)
Woman in soviet Russia. Smith, J. (O '28)
Woman of the eighteenth century. Goncourt, E. L: A. H. de. and J. A. H. de. (My '28)
Woman power. Geijerstam, G. af. (My '28)

Woman suffrage
Dorr, R. L. Susan B. Anthony. (D '28)
Woman who invented love. Verona, G. da. (O '28)

Woman who rode away. Lawrence, D: H. (Ag '28)
Women at the pump. Hamsun, K. (D '28)

Women in France
Goncourt, E. L: A. H. de. and J. A. H. de. Woman of the eighteenth century. (My '28)

Women in India
Mukerji, D. G. A son of Mother India answers. (Ap '28)
Williams, G. L. Understanding India. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Women in Russia
Smith, J. Woman in soviet Russia. (O '28)
Women in the case. Tracy, L: (S '28)
Women Lincoln loved. Barton, W: E. (Mr '28)
Women of the Morte Darthur. Malory, T: (D '28)
Women who make our novels. Overton, G. M. (Je '28)
Wonderful locomotive. Meigs, C. L. (F '29) (1928 Annual)

Wood engraving
Bliss, D. P. History of wood-engraving. (D '28)

Woodwork
Roehl, L: M. Household carpentry. (S '28)

Words
Weekley, E. More words, ancient and modern. (Ap '28)
Words and poetry. Rylands, G: H. W. (S '28)

Wordsworth, William
Newton, A. Wordsworth in early American criticism. (N '28)
Robinson, H: C. Correspondence with the Wordsworth circle (1808-1866). (My '28)

Wordsworth family
Robinson, H: C. Correspondence with the Wordsworth circle (1808-1866). (My '28)
Wordsworth in early American criticism. Newton, A. (N '28)
Workers' health and safety. Woodbury, R. M. (Ap '28)
Working with the world. Bush, I. T. (Ap '28)
The world as an organic whole. Losskii, N. O. (O '28)

World conference on faith and order
Soper, E. D. Lausanne: the will to understand. (S '28)
The world does move. Tarkington, B. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
World drift. Ross, E: A. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
World of atoms. Haas, A. E. (F '29) (1928 Annual) World on one leg. Walter, E. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

World politics
Bassett, J: S. League of nations. (Ag '28)
Brailsford, H: N. Olives of endless age. (Mr '28)
Burns, C. D. 1918-1928. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Carter, J: F. Conquest. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Chirol, V. Fifty years in a changing world. (Mr '28)
Council on foreign relations. Political handbook of the world. (N '28)
Denny, L. We fight for oil. (S '28)
Etherton, P. T:, and Tiltman, H. H. The Pacific. (Ag '28)
Geneva institute of international relations. Problems of peace. (Ag '28)
Harrison, M. E. Asia reborn. (Je '28)
Jefferson, C: E: Five world problems. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Norton, H: K. Back of war. (My '28)
Roosevelt, N: Restless Pacific. (Je '28)
Woolf, L. S. Imperialism and civilization. (Je '28)
The world talks it over. Price, B. (Ap '28)
World to play with. Dukes, A. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
World too old. Guthrie, R. (Ap '28)
World's best short stories of 1927. (Mr '28)
Worlds' ends. Wassermann, J. (Ap '28)
World's famous short poems and prose selections. Lawson, J. G., comp. (N '28)

Worth
Taylor, H: O. Human values and verities. (Ag '28)
Wrestle of religion with truth. Wieman, H: N. (Je '28)
Wrist mark. Fletcher, J. S. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Writing and editing for women. Brazelton, E. M. (Mr '28)
Wycliffe, John, pseud. See Bedford-Jones, H: (Mr, My '28, Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
Wynne, Pamela, pesud. See Scott, W. M. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)

X-rays
X-rays, past and present. Pullin, V. E., and Wiltshire, W. J. (Ap '28)

Yacht-building
Moore, T: Build a winning model yacht. (D '28)
Yachts and yachting
OBrien, C. From three yachts. (Je '28)
Yale university. Sheffield scientific school
Chittenden, R. H: History of the Sheffield scientific school of Yale university, 1846-1922. (D '28)
Yankee of the Yards. Swift, L: F., and Van Vlissingen, A. (My '28)
Yarns of a Kentucky admiral. Rodman, H. (S '28)
Ye gods & little fishes. Slocum, E. E. (Ap '28)
Yearbooks
Mirrors of the year, 1927-8. (Je '28)
Years between. Feval, P., and Lassez, M. (Je '28)
Yoga
Beck, L. A. Way of power. (Je '28)
York, Alvin C.
York, A. C. Sergeant York. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
York, Elizabeth Bowes Lyon, duchess of
Asquith, C. M. E. Duchess of York. (D '28)
You. Donisthorpe, G. S. (Ja '29) (1928 Annual)
You and the law. Darling, S. B. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Young, John
Young, J: Diary. (D '28)
Young America travels abroad. Greenbie, M. L., and Davis, H. L. (Ag '28)
Young collector. McMillen, W. (S '28)
Young decorators. McClelland, N. V. (Ag '28)
Young employed girl. Ormsbee, H. G. (Ag '28)
Young family. Hyde, R. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Young folks' book of fishes. Mellen, I. M. (My '28)
Young folk's book of the sea. Bridges, T. C. (Ag '28)
Young India, 1924-1926. Gandhi, M. K. (Ap '28)
Young man and medicine. Barker, L. F. (O '28)
Young women
Pierce, A. E. Deans and advisers of women and girls. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Youngest one. Taylor, K. H. (S '28)
Youngest Venus. Ruck, B. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Your nerves and their control. Kennedy, F., and Stevenson, L: D. (S '28)
Your weight and how to control it. Fishbein, M., ed. (Ap '28)
Youth
Chesser, E. M. Youth. (N '28)
Eliot, C: W: Talks to parents and young people. (D '28)
King, M., comp. Mirror of youth. (N '28)
Neumann, H: Modern youth and marriage. (My '28)
Seabury, D: Growing into life. (Ag '28)
Stoddard, T. L. Story of youth. (D '28)

Yucatan
Gann, T: W: F. Maya cities. (Ag '28)
Yukon river
Description and travel
Walden, A. T. Dog-puncher on the Yukon. (S '28)

Zia. Eng title of Lady Zia. Wynnton, P. (O '28)
Zionism
Lindheim, I. L. Immortal adventure. (Je '28)
Zola, Emile
Josephson, M. Zola and his time. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Zola and his time. Josephson, M. (F '29) (1928 Annual)
Zoology
Haldane, J: B. S., and Huxley, J. S. Animal biology. (My '28)
Ecology
Elton, C: Animal ecology. (My '28)
India
Champion, F: W. With a camera in Tiger-land. (Je '28)

Directory of Publishers

A. L. A. American Library Association, 86 E Randolph St, Chicago

Abingdon Press, 150 5th Av, N.Y.; 581 Boylston St, Boston; 105 5th Av, Pittsburgh, Pa.; 28 Elizabeth St, E, Detroit, Mich.; 420 Plum St, Cincinnati; 740 Rush St, Chicago; 1121 McGee St, Kansas City, Mo.; 7 City Hall Av, San Francisco; 304-313 Artisans Bldg, Portland, Ore.

Adelphi Co., 160 5th Av, N.Y.
Business handled by Greenberg Oct. 1, 1926-Jan. 1, 1928

Am. Unitar. American Unitarian Association (The Beacon Press, Inc.) 25 Beacon St, Boston; 105 S Dearborn St, Chicago; 285 Madison Av, N.Y.; 760 Market St, San Francisco

Appleton, D. Appleton & Company, 29-35 W 32d St, N.Y.; 34 Bedford St, London W.C. 2 [Cable Address: Hilandero New York]
don [Cable Address: Hilandero New York]

Association Press, 347 Madison Av, N.Y.

Atlantic Monthly Press Publications
Books distributed by Little, Brown & Company

Barnes, A. S. & Co., 67 W 44th St, N.Y.; Pacific Coast Agency, California School Book Depository, 149 New Montgomery St, San Francisco; Canadian Agency, Geo. M. Hendry Co., Ltd., 129 Adelaide St, W, Toronto

Barrows. M. Barrows & Company, 30 Huntington Av, Boston (17)

Beacon Press. See American Unitarian Association

Blakiston. P. Blakiston's Son & Company, 1012 Walnut St, Philadelphia

Bobbs. Bobbs-Merrill Company, 724 N Meridian St, Indianapolis, Ind.; 185 Madison Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Bobbs, Indianapolis]

Boni. Albert & Charles Boni, 66 5th Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Bonibooks]
Have acquired the publications of Lieber & Lewis, and Thomas Seltzer, Inc.

Boni & Liveright, 61 W 48th St, N.Y. [Cable Address: Liveright]
Incorporated as Horace Liveright, Fall of 1928

Bradley. Milton Bradley Company, 49 Willow St, Springfield, Mass.; 120 Boylston St, Boston; 120 E 16th St, N.Y.; Front & Brown Sts, Philadelphia; 554 Mission St, San Francisco; 384 Forrest Av, Atlanta, Ga.; Kansas City, Mo. Agent Hoover Bros., 922 Oak St; Northwestern Hoover Bros., 922 Oak St; Northwestern Agents, Thos. Charles Co., 2249 Calumet Av, Chicago [Cable Address. Miltbradco Springfield]

Brentano's, 5th Av, & 27th St, N.Y.; 63 E Washington St, Chicago; 37 Avenue de l'Opéra, Paris

Bridgman. Bridgman Publishers, Pelham, N.Y.

Brimmer. B. J. Brimmer Company, 384 Boylston St, Boston (17)

Carrier. Louis Carrier & Co., 3 E 10th St, N.Y.; 2055 University St, Montreal, Canada

Century. Century Company, 353 4th Av, N.Y.

Chemical Catalog Co. Chemical Catalog Company, Inc., 419 4th Av, N.Y.

Chemical Pub. Chemical Publishing Company, 300 N 3d St, Easton, Pa.

Clark, A. H. Arthur H. Clark Company, 4027-4035 Prospect Av., Cleveland, O.

Clode. Edward J. Clode, 156 5th Av, N.Y.

Cokesbury Press, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

Columbia Univ. Press, Columbia University, N.Y.

Cornhill. Cornhill Publishing Company, 368 Congress St, Boston [Cable Address: Cornhillco]

Cosmopolitan Bk. Cosmopolitan Book Corporation. 959 8th Av, N.Y.

Covici. Covici, Friede, Inc., 79 W 45th St, N.Y.
Formerly Covici, P., of Chicago

Crofts. F. S. Crofts & Co., 41 Union Sq, N.Y.

Crowell, T. Y. Crowell Company, 393 4th Av, N.Y.

Day. John Day Co., Inc., 386 4th Av, N.Y.

Dial Press (Lincoln MacVeagh), 152 W 13th St, N.Y.

Ditson. Oliver Ditson Company, 179 Tremont St, Boston

Dodd. Dodd, Mead & Company, 443 4th Av, N.Y.; 215 Victoria St, Toronto, Canada [Cable Address: Dodd New York]

Doran. George H. Doran Company. See Doubleday, Doran

Dorrance. Dorrance & Company, Inc., Drexel Bldg, 5th & Chestnut St, Philadelphia

Doubleday. Doubleday, Page & Company. See Doubleday, Doran

Doubleday, Doran. Doubleday, Doran & Company, Inc. (Country Life Press), Garden City, N.Y.; [Cable Address: Doubledor New York]; Doubleday, Doran & Gundy, Ltd., 250 Victoria St, Toronto, Canada; William Heinemann, Ltd., 99 Great Russell St, London
A consolidation of Doubleday, Page & Co., George H. Doran Co., Nelson Doubleday, Inc., and Garden City Pub. Co.

Duffield. Duffield & Company, 200 Madison Av, N.Y.

Duke Univ., Durham, N.C.
Address Duke univ. press

Dutton. E. P. Dutton & Co., Inc., 286-302 4th Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Yardfar]; American Agents for the London Firms of J. M. Dent & Sons, Ltd., and George Routledge & Sons, Ltd.

Food Research Inst., Stanford University, Cal; English Agent, P. S. King & Son, London

Four Seas. Four Seas Company, 470 Stuart St, Boston

Frank-Maurice, Inc., 114 E 32d St, N.Y.

French. Samuel French. Inc., 25 W 45th St, N.Y.

Funk. Funk & Wagnalls Company, 354-360 4th Av, N.Y.; 14 Salisbury Sq, London, E.C. 4

Ginn. Ginn & Company (Educational Publishers), 15 Ashburton Pl, Boston (2); 2301-2311 Prairie Av, Chicago; 70 5th Av, N.Y.; 95 Luckie St, Atlanta, Ga.; 1913 Bryan St, Dallas, Tex.; 199 E Gay St, Columbus, O.; 45 2d St, San Francisco; 7 Queen Sq, Southampton Row, London, W.C. 1

Greenberg, Publisher, Inc., 160 5th Av, N.Y.

Harcourt. Harcourt, Brace & Company, 383 Madison Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Harbrace]; American Agents for some of the publications of G. Bell & Sons, Ltd., London

Harper. Harper & Brothers, 49 E 33d St, N.Y. Acquired some of the publications of the S.S. Times

Harvard Univ. Press, Randall Hall, Cambridge, Mass.

Heath. D. C. Heath & Company, 50 Beacon St, Boston; 231-245 W 39th St, N.Y.; 1815 Prairie Av, Chicago; 29 N Pryor St, N.E. Atlanta, Ga.; 182 2d St, San Francisco

Helburn. William Helburn, Inc., 15 E 55th St, N.Y.

Henkle. Rae D. Henkle Co., Inc., Bible House, 45 4th Av, N.Y.

Henley. Norman W. Henley Publishing Company, 2 W 45th St, N.Y. [Cable Address: Norhenle]

Hitchcock. Frederick H. Hitchcock (The Grafton Press), 105 W 40th St, N.Y.

Hoeber. Paul B. Hoeber (Medical Publishers), 75 5th Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Formed]

Holt. Henry Holt & Company, 1 Park Av, N.Y.; for educational books only: 2626 Prairie Av, Chicago; 6 Park St, Boston; 149 New Montgomery St, San Francisco [Cable Address: Aylcholt New York]

Houghton. Houghton Mifflin Company (Riverside Press, Cambridge), 2 Park St, Boston; 386 4th Av, N.Y.; 2500 Prairie Av, Chicago; 612 Howard St, San Francisco; 1909 Bryan St, Dallas, Tex. [Cable Address: Mullier, Boston]

Howell. John Howell, 434 Post St, San Francisco

Huebsch, B. W. See Viking Press, Inc.

Int. Pub. International Publishers Co., Inc., 381 4th Av., N.Y. [Cable Address: Interbook]

Jewish Pub. Jewish Publication Society of America, 219 N Broad St, Philadelphia; 1560 Broadway, N.Y.

Johns Hopkins. Johns Hopkins Press, Homewood, Baltimore

Jones, Marshall. See Marshall Jones

Judd. Orange Judd Publishing Company, 15 E 26th St, N.Y.

Knopf. Alfred A. Knopf, 730 5th Av, N.Y.; 38 Bedford Pl, London, W.C. 1 [Cable Address: Knopf]

Lawyers Co-op. Lawyers' Cooperative Publishing Company, Rochester, N.Y.; 150 Nassau St, N.Y.; 140 S Dearborn St, Chicago

Lippincott. J. B. Lippincott Company, 227-231 E Washington Sq, Philadelphia; 2244 Calumet Av, Chicago; 1030 St Alexander St, Montreal, Canada; 16 John St, Adelphi, London, W.C. 2

Little. Little, Brown & Company, 34 Beacon St, Boston [Cable Address: Brownlit]

Longmans. Longmans, Green & Company, 55 5th Av, Cor. 12th St, N.Y.; Tremont Temple, Boston; 210 Victoria St, Toronto, Canada; 39 Paternoster Row, London, E.C. 4; 53 Nicol Rd, Bombay, India; for school books only: 221 E 20th St, Chicago [Cable Address: Freegrove New York]; Sole American Agents for Edward Arnold, London

Published the Columbia university studies in history, economics and public law, prior to June 1, 1926

Lothrop. Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Company, 275 Congress St, Boston

Macaulay. Macaulay Company, 257-265 4th Av, N.Y.

McBride. Robert M. McBride & Company, 7 W 16th St, N.Y.

McGraw. McGraw-Hill Book Company, Penn Terminal Bldg, 370 7th Av, N.Y.; 6-8 Bouverie St, London, E.C. 4

McKay, David McKay, 604-608 S Washington Sq, Philadelphia

Macmillan. The Macmillan Company, 60 5th Av, N.Y.; 2459 Prairie Av, Chicago; Ross & Akard Sts, Dallas, Tex.; 240 Newbury St, Boston; 500 Spring St, Atlanta, Ga.; 350 Mission St, San Francisco; St Martin's House, 70 Bond St, Toronto, Canada; 10 St Martin's St, Leicester Sq, London, W.C. 2 [Cable Address: Packamac New York]; American Agents for Cambridge University Press

Macrae Smith Co., 1712 Ludlow St, Philadelphia

Macy-Masius. See Vanguard press

Manual Arts Press, 237 N Monroe St, Peoria, Ill.

Marshall Jones. Mrshall Jones Company, 212 Summer St, Boston

Medici Soc. Medici Society of America, 755 Boylston St, Boston; 113 W 57th St, N.Y.

Miller, J. R. Jesse Ray Miller, 3566 University Av, Los Angeles, Cal.

Minton. Minton, Balch & Company, 205 E 42nd St, N.Y.

Missionary Educ Movement (Friendship Press), 150 5th Av, N.Y.

Morehouse. Morehouse Publishing Company, 1801 Fond du Lac Av, Milwaukee, Wis.; American Agents for A. B. Mowbray & Co., London

Morrow. William Morrow & Co., 386 4th Av, N.Y.

New Republic. New Republic, Inc., 421 W 21st St, N.Y.

N.Y. Public Lib., 5th Av & 42d St, N.Y.

N.Y. Univ. Press, E Washington Sq, N.Y.

Norton. W. W. Norton & Company, Inc., 70 5th Av, N.Y.

Successors to People's Inst.

Open Ct. Open Court Publishing Company, 337 E Chicago Av, Chicago

Oxford. Oxford University Press (American Branch), 114 5th Av, N.Y.

Payson & Clarke. Payson & Clarke, Ltd., 6 E 53d St, N.Y. [Cable Address. Paysoclark]; American Agents for Victor Gollancz, Ltd., London

Penn. Penn Publishing Company, 925 Filbert St, Philadelphia; depository at Hall's Bookshop, 361 Boylston St, Boston

Pilgrim Press (of the Congregational Pub. Soc.), 14 Beacon St, Boston; 418 S Market St, Chicago

Pitman. Sir Isaac Pitman & Sons, 2-6 W 45th St, N.Y.

Prentice-Hall, Inc., 70 5th Av, N.Y.

Press of the Univ. of Pa., 3438 Walnut St, Philadelphia
Distributor of the Univ. of Pa. Museum publications formerly handled by Appleton
Princeton Univ. Press, Princeton, N.J.
Putnam. G. P. Putnam's Sons. (Knickerbocker Press), Putnam Bldg, 2-6 W 45th St, N.Y.; 24 Bedford St, Strand, London [Cable Address: Putnam New York]

Rand. Rand McNally & Company, 536 S Clark St, Chicago; 270 Madison Av, N.Y.; 125 E 6th St, Los Angeles, Cal.; 559 Mission St, San Francisco
Random House, Inc., 20 E 57th St, N.Y.
Reilly & Lee. Reilly & Lee Company, 536 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago
Revell. Fleming H. Revell & Company, 158 5th Av, N.Y.; 851 Cass St, Chicago
Ronald. Ronald Press Company, 15 E 26th St, N.Y.
Rudge. W. E. Rudge, 475 5th Av; 9 Bradford Rd, Mt. Vernon, N.Y.
Russell Sage Foundation, 130 E 22d St, N.Y.

Saunders. W. B. Saunders Company, West Washington Sq, Philadelphia; 9 Henrietta St, Covent Garden, London, W.C. 2
Scribner. Charles Scribner's Sons, 597 5th Av, N.Y.; 320 E 21st St, Chicago; American Agents for the Architectural Publications of B. T. Batsford, Ltd., London
Sears. J. H. Sears & Co., Inc., 114 E 32d St, N.Y.
Shaw, A.W. A. W. Shaw Company, 660 Cass St, Chicago; 1 Park Av, N.Y.; 43-4 Shoe Lane, London, E.C. 4
Simmons-Boardman. Simmons-Boardman Publishing Company, 30 Church St, N.Y.; 200 S Clark St, Chicago; 6007 Euclid Av, Cleveland, O.; 17th & H Sts, NW, Washington, D.C.; 215 Market St, San Francisco
Simon & Schuster. Simon & Schuster, Inc., 37 W 57th St, N.Y.
Small. Small, Maynard & Company, 41 Mt Vernon St, Boston
No longer in business
Stanford Univ. Press, Stanford University, Cal. [Cable Address: Sunipress]
Stokes. Frederick A. Stokes Company, 443-449 4th Av, N.Y. [Cable Address. Stokesco]
Stratford. Stratford Company, 289 Congress St, Boston (9)
Sully. George Sully & Company, 114 E 25th St, N.Y.

Teachers College, Columbia University, 525 W 120th St, N.Y.
Textile Pub. Co., 239 W 39th St, N.Y.

U.S. Naval Inst. United States Naval Institute, Secretary & Treasurer of the United States Naval Institute, Annapolis, Md.
Unicorn. Unicorn Press, 5 E 57th St, N.Y.
Formerly Unicorn Pub. Co.
Univ. of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago
Univ. of Minn., Minneapolis, Minn.
Address The University of Minn. Press
Univ. of N.C. Press, Chapel Hill, N.C.
Univ. of Pa. Press. See Press of the Univ. of Pa.

Vanguard Press, Inc., 80 5th Av, N.Y.
Macy-Masius merged with this company, June 1928
Van Nostrand. D. Van Nostrand Company, 8 Warren St, N.Y. [Cable Address: Bowline]
Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.
Viking Press, Inc., 18 E 48th St, N.Y. [Cable address: Vikipress]
Vinal. H. Vinal, 562 5th Av, N.Y.

Warwick & York. Warwick & York, Inc., 10 E Center St, Baltimore
Washburn. Ives Washburn, Inc., 119 W 57th St, N.Y.
Watt, G. Howard, 1819 Broadway, N.Y.
Wilde. W. A. Wilde Company, 131 Clarendon St, Boston
Wiley. John Wiley & Sons, 440 4th Av, N.Y.
Willett. Willett, Clark & Colby, 440 S Dearborn St, Chicago
Williams & Wilkins. Williams & Wilkins Company, Mt Royal & Guilford Avs, Baltimore
Wilson, H.W. H. W. Wilson Company, 958-972 University Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Wilsondex]
Winston. John C. Winston Company, 1006-1016 Arch St, Philadelphia; 625 S Wabash Av, Chicago [Cable Address: Winston Philadelphia]
Wise. Wm. H. Wise & Company, 50 W 47th St, N.Y.
Womans Press, 600 Lexington Av, N.Y.
Formerly National Bd. of Young Women's Christian Associations
Wood, William Wood & Company, 156 5th Av, N.Y.
World Bk. World Book Company, Park Hill, Yonkers-on-Hudson, N.Y.; 2126 Prairie Av, Chicago; 424 W Peach St, Atlanta, Ga.; 14 Beacon St, Boston; 707 Browder St, Dallas, Tex.; 149 New Montgomery St, San Francisco; 100 5th St, Portland, Ore. [Cable Address: Foresta, Yonkers]

Yale Univ. Press, 143 Elm St, New Haven, Conn.; 386 4th Av, N.Y.

R
Z
1219
C95
1928

1-31-62

GTU LIBRARY
3 2400 00643 0700

Reference Room
San Francisco Theological Seminary
MUST NOT BE REMOVED